

Pressure Needed To End Housing Discrimination

We live in a free country. We have the right of free press and of assemblage. But we also have the liberty to hold prejudices and to discriminate against other people -- such as is being practiced by many approved off-campus living units.

It is this kind of freedom which a democratic society can do without.

In many cases, of course, there is little that can be done. Individuals have a right to choose their own friends. If they don't want to associate with people of another race, color or creed, it's their prerogative.

If private country clubs maintain a policy of restricting membership to a certain American stock, nobody can force them to alter it.

But in many circumstances, something can be and is being done.

Often, the elements of prejudice and discrimination are not economically independent. The federal government recognizes the power it wields in this matter -- the power, for example, to withdraw contracts from private industries which practice discrimination against, say, Negro employees.

The Negroes in some southern cities recognized their economic power. And they boycotted merchants engaging in discrimination against customers of their color. It worked.

Now it has become quite evident that a University policy which prohibits racial discrimination in off-campus approved housing is being flagrantly violated by a large percentage of landlords catering to students.

Needless to say, discrimination is being practiced.

Of 22 landlords of approved off-campus who signed the contract which prohibits discrimination, only five definitely said they would rent rooms to Negroes.

That's deplorable!

Pressures ought to be applied.

The off-campus housing office takes residences off the approved list when complaints about discrimination are made.

And students encountering discrimination should flood the office with complaints.

It would be a good idea to consider seriously the point made by the NAACP -- that houses should have been investigated before they were put on the approved list.

We suggest that a comprehensive investigation be undertaken now by the off-campus housing office. It's about time that some of these violators be put on the spot.

The University has the power to bring economic pressure upon them. It should use that power in a vigorous manner -- one of which the Chairman of the Federal Civil Rights Commission, John A. Hannah, would be proud.

Letters To The Editor

On Education Corps, Morals

To the Editor: Evidently the State News has a new cause--and a worthy one, indeed.

I, for one, am wholeheartedly in support of Dr. David Gottlieb's proposed Education Corps. I only hope that more students will come to the support of this plan.

In our society, there is certainly a very important and pressing need for both young people and their parents--especially in the so-called "socio-economically" deprived areas--to realize the importance of education.

We are living today in a society where the majority of the population is unemployed, and this is due in no small part to specialization. Education of our young and the re-education of those who have found themselves increasingly out of work is a must.

Many of our delinquent youth are children who have dropped out of school and are unable to find jobs.

Adults, too, who find themselves out of work and unable to find further work, must do something to support themselves and in many cases a large family. I feel that no small proportion of crime can be attributed to difficulties arising out of financial insecurity and boredom.

If these members of our society (often perfectly capable and willing to work) could be given the opportunity for continued education and re-education -- an opportunity that the Student Education Corps would provide -- we might safely predict a decrease in delinquency and crime.

And to members of the Corps there would be a sense of a job well done by helping these deprived people.

Help For Underprivileged

To the Editor: I am writing this letter in support of Dr. David Gottlieb's proposal for an MSU Education Corps. I have worked with the St. Louis County (Missouri) Dept. of Recreation and the Mehlville Community Center. While these programs were somewhat different in structure, the goals are very much the same. These programs have been very successful. I might add that the community center program used volunteer personnel and that both programs were staffed predominantly with college-age people.

I often think that those of us who are financially able to attend college are unaware of the unfortunate conditions under which many young Americans live. What would be our outlook on life if we knew that we had little opportunity for anything except menial labor because of our race or family background?

Worse yet, what would life mean to us if our environment made us feel that nobody cared about us? This letter is a challenge to the students and faculty of MSU to find out just what the living conditions are for youth in lower socio-economic areas and to advocate and support Dr. Gottlieb's proposal.

The experiences that I will never forget are those that involve a young person saying "You really care about me" when all I've really done is to give him a baseball game, some personal interest, or a passing kind word. The most rewarding experience for workers in this type of program are seeing one's own efforts bring some meaning and ambition into these young people's lives.

I think those of us here who are more fortunate in many ways owe this small amount of effort to the less fortunate youth of our nation.

One wonders what sort of basis Mr. Jaehning used for his condemnation.

How many coeds are concubines? Does everyone crawl out from under bottle-laden tables? Can that remark about a nunery really be based on fact when, after all, there are some black-garbed sisters busily engaged in graduate work on this campus?

Aren't there some coeds who do continue as full-time students even after they do get their Mrs. degrees? And how about the college men whose status symbol is a bottle--because they have nice as a result of competition at this University, where supposedly no one studies?

Chicago Doctor Tells Formula For Heart Attacks

The tongue-in-cheek approach of a Lansing doctor in a Chicago speech on heart attacks received serious and straightforward approval from Dr. James S. Feuring, medical director of Ohio Health Center.

Commenting on a humorous speech by Dr. Richard C. Bates, Feuring said that the doctor's approach probably did more to make people aware of their health factors than a serious speech would have done.

Speaking before the Chicago Executive Club, Bates presented a satirical approach to the nation's physical fitness movement and laid down some rules on "how to have a heart attack." Bates told his audience that the first rule for promoting coronary problems is one of heredity. "The more people you have in your family who have died suddenly," he said, "the better your chances are for a heart attack."

Sex is also an important factor, Bates said. Pointing out that something in the female hormones makes women less susceptible to hardening of the arteries, he told the executives that it is possible to give female hormones to a male and slacken the pace at which his arteries age.

Bates pointed out that it is important to be a sedentary as possible.

Other Bates suggestions for having a heart attack include: Drink 15 to 20 cups of coffee with cream each day. Eat plenty of ice cream. If you play golf, ride around the course in a cart.

"How much nicer it is when stricken with a coronary thrombosis to be told it is all due to hard work, laudable ambition, and selfless devotion to duty," Bates said, "than to be told it is due to gluttony and physical indolence."

HOW'S YOUR MEMORY?

THE PROBLEM: Few students can remember every name, date, formula, conjugation, theorem, definition, principle, demanded by a 4-year program. Educators know that through the "extinction process" you will forget many of the facts taught last week, last month, last term, last year. Thus a "Memory Gap" develops between the facts you are required to remember and the facts you can make your "Memory Gap" the higher your grades will be.

THE SOLUTION: Only DATA-GUIDE solid plastic loose-leaf summaries are specifically designed to close the "Memory Gap." DATA-GUIDES preserve, organize, and make available the essential facts of each subject to give you permanent, portable reference that can be used from term to term--throughout your entire school career. Thus in spite of lost notes, surrendered tests, difficult program, and an overburdened memory, with DATA-GUIDE you have the facts you need. Authorized by leading educators, the subject matter on each DATA-GUIDE solid-plastic chart is meticulously written and uniquely organized for rapid fact location. Student memory strengthens and retention is improved throughout the U.S. as using all plastic DATA-GUIDES to insure success in school. REMEMBER Today's lessons are based on yesterday's facts! HOW IS YOUR MEMORY?

Indiana Retains Swim Supremacy

By PHIL PIERSON
Of The State News

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Michigan State's swimming team returned with another first division finish in the Big Ten day meet.

As expected, Indiana's Hoosiers dominated the field. For the third consecutive year, the Hoosiers won the meet. Their 238 1/4 points exceeded their 213 1/2 total of last year. Michigan was second with 147 1/2 points. Last season the Wolverines were also in the runner-up positions and along with Indiana, were the only first division teams to retain their positions.

Chet Jastrzemski, Ted Stickle, Tom Stock, Alan Somers and Gary Verhoeven were the big swimmers for the Hoosiers. Jastrzemski won both of the breaststroke events and along with Stickle were double winner for Indiana. Stickle won the 200 and 400-yard individual medley.

The only other double winners came from third place finisher Minnesota. Steve Jackson was victorious in both the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events. In addition to his victories he anchored the medley and freestyle relay teams to triumph. The deciding factor in the Gophers' come from behind victory.

In the freestyle relay, Jackson was the big man as Minnesota defeated defending champion MSU with a time of 3:13.4. The time bettered by one second the NCAA record set by the Spartans earlier this year.

As the Spartans were open in their favored event, they also scored an upset. Jeff Mattson, Spartan co-captain, swam one of his best races in the 100-yard backstroke. His time of 1:54.5 defeated such men as Tom Stock, one of the best backstrokers in the world and L.B. Schaefer, NCAA champion from Ohio State.

Spartans Way Back In Eighth

By RON SOLOVE
Of The State News

Michigan State's wrestling team returned to the Big Ten wrestling tournament Friday and Saturday at Northwestern.

Gary Smith, a strong title contender, was unable to make the trip due to illness. A rib separator halted Cecil Holmes on his climb towards a crown. A first round loss and a weight mix-up defeated Alex Valcanoff.

Michigan captured the title by amassing 52 points. Last year's champs Iowa finished second with 42. The Spartans, favored right eight with 16.

Michigan's title drive was led by Rick Bay, 157-pounder, and heavyweight Jack Barden, who won individual championships.

The victory gave the Wolverines their eighth Big Ten title. Northwestern placed third in the two-day meet with 34 points, followed by Minnesota with 32; Wisconsin, 23; Indiana, 22; Ohio State, 18; Michigan State, 16; Purdue, 13; and Illinois, 12.

Michigan State failed to place

Fry took third place at 137 pounds, Okla Johnson (123) and David James (137) placed fourth.

James lost a place in the finals when a reversal in the last two seconds cost him his match.

Alex Valcanoff lost his first round 177-pound match to Don Evans of Northwestern, 3-1. His second opponent was Ron Parr of Wisconsin.

Parr weighed in at 8:30 a.m. at 177 but when he wrestled Valcanoff that evening he weighed 175.

MSU still, he showed no desire to weigh in the following morning.

A 6-4 vote of the Conference Coaches disqualified Parr from the tournament and withheld his points from the Wisconsin total.

"It was tough all the way around," remarked Spartan Coach Grady Peninger. "We know we're better than that."

Individual winners were:

123 pounds - Bob Plaska, Northwestern
130 pounds - Lewis Kennedy, Minnesota

137 pounds - Tom Huff, Minnesota

147 pounds - Lonnie B. Johnson, Iowa

167 pounds - Steve Clark, Iowa

177 pounds - Don Evans, Northwestern

Heavyweight - Jack Barden, Michigan

Hoopsters End Long Campaign With Loss

Northwestern Hands Spartans Ninth Straight Drubbing, 100-83

By JOHN VAN GIESON
Of The State News

EVANSTON, Ill. — Five men scored in double figures to lead Northwestern's basketball team to an easy 100-83 romp over Michigan State Saturday in the final game of the season for both squads.

The loss was the ninth in a row for the Spartans and left them in ninth place in the Big Ten with a 5-11 record. State finished the campaign with a 14-15 overall mark.

Northwestern, tied for sixth last season with State, moved up to seventh this time with a 9-8 record. The Wildcats closed their season with a 9-15 state.

Rick Lopessa, 17; Marty Riessen and Bill Gibbs added 14.

The Spartans were paced by their Big men; 6-foot-7 Ted Williams had 18 and 6-9 Fred Thomann netted 17. Thomann's performance was just about the only encouraging note. He will be the tallest Spartan eager next year and is counted on to fill the starting center position.

Team captain Jack Lamers, along with Williams, closed out his varsity career. Lamers had 15 points from his guard position.

Saturday's game was not much of a contest. State never held the lead. The best the Spartans could do was a 2-2 tie in the opening minutes. Riessen, the Big Ten tennis champion, pumped in 10 points in the first five minutes to give Northwestern to a 14-9 lead.

Falk and Lopessa got hot to increase the margin to 51-41 at the half. Falk led all scorers with 14 points in the first half, while Pete Gent was high man for State with 11.

Marcus Sanders opened the second half with a Spartan tally, but the Wildcats ran off seven straight points to run their edge to 58-43. State never got closer than 13 during the rest of the game.

Northwestern cleared its bench in the closing minutes, and a substitute, Ken Lutgens, scored the 100th point on a layup. It was the fourth time an opponent reached the century mark against State this season.

Utah State did it first in a non-conference game with 103. Indiana's Jimmy Rayl scored 50 points in a game at Bloomington to lead the Hoosiers to a total of 113. The other Big Ten team to top 100 was Purdue with 103.

The story of a classic

In many ways the story of the Thunderbird is one of the most unusual in the automobile business. The whole idea of the car was born at one of the grand European automobile shows. The then president of our company pointed to some of the small, lush sports cars that are always a center of attention at such shows and asked his companion, "Why can't we build something like these?"

The companion, who later became a vice president of the company, said, "It just so happens I have one on the boards. I'll show it to you when we get back to Detroit." Then as fast as he could discreetly get his transatlantic telephone he called his assistant and told him, "Remember that car we've been talking about? Finish those sketches on it."

The Thunderbird became one of the few cars ever built that was produced essentially as the original sketches presented it. Most cars undergo countless changes in the design period. But there was a natural clarity and cleanliness to the Thunderbird design that immediately captured all of us at Ford.

It was probably this clean, sharp look that won so many friends so fast when the car went into production. That first Thunderbird had its drawbacks. For example, it was too soft-sprung for true sports-car handling. But, the truth is, it was not designed in the European tradition of the fast performance car. Some people called it a sports car but we never did. We called it a "personal" car; a small, fairly luxurious car that was fun to look at and fun to drive. It had its own integrity; it was one alone.

We built the Thunderbird as a bellwether car for Ford. It was our intention to test new ideas before we put them into our Fords, Fairlanes and Falcons. The new Ford ride and Swing-Away steering wheel appeared first on the Thunderbird, for instance. However, we never foresaw the extraordinary influence the Thunderbird would have on the whole automobile business here and abroad. Almost everybody offers the Thunderbird bucket seats these days. And the Thunderbird look is the most decisive styling of the 1960's.

The Thunderbird is a classic, made so by a preblend of magic ingredients of which we would love to know the secret. We're building cars right now we hope will become classics, but the truth is, we don't make classics, we make cars. People make the car a classic. And that's the story of the Thunderbird.

America's liveliest, most care-free cars!

Captain George Goes AWOL

Boys' Pace Michigan Gym Romp

MIKE JASENAK

They came, they saw, they conquered. That's the only way to describe the devastation Friday and Saturday by the Michigan gymnastics squad on its Conference rivals in the 55th annual Big Ten Gymnastics Championships at Jenison Field House.

The mighty Wolverine steamroller, powered by Gil Larose and Arno Lascari, crushed its opponents while accumulating a record total 210 1/2 points, 127 more than its closest competitor Iowa.

Michigan State, competing without the services of their captain Jerry George, who quit the team Friday, placed a disappointing fourth. Minnesota edged them for the third spot by an 11 point margin, 62-51.

When the coaches and their respective captains were introduced prior to Saturday's finale, Spartan Coach George Szypula stepped out alone, while his fiery team leader watched silently from the sidelines.

George's temperamental departure dealt a severe blow to team spirit. The captain left after posting a poor 61 on the side horse in Friday afternoon's preliminaries.

George asked to be put back on the squad that evening, but Szypula wouldn't honor the request. Szypula's stand was supported by his fellow coaches and Athletic Director Clarence "Biggie" Munn.

Michigan captured seven of the nine championship events. Larose paced all individual scorers with 56 1/2 team points, while teammate Arno Lascari occupied the runnerup position with 53 points.

Top Spartan scorer was senior Bob Carman, who registered 13 points with a fourth on the parallel bars and a fifth on the high bar.

State's defending still ring champion Dale Cooper, who entered the competition with a perfect record, scored a 96 in the preliminaries, with Jim Hooper of Wisconsin chalking up a 95. This set the stage for a showdown between the close rivals on the parallel bars, with Cooper as first up and put off a crowd-stunning performance until he dismounted.

Upon landing at the completion of his routine, Cooper fell as the partisan crowd groaned. He was awarded a 94 but his unblemished record and title were in jeopardy. Hooper, who learned part of his routine from Cooper, approached the rings with visions of the coveted crown in his eyes. Hooper gave a determined performance and the crowd and the two competitors anxiously awaited the results. Hooper received another 95, resulting in a tie, and leaving Cooper's mark intact.

The only other event which eluded the Wolverines was tumbling, where defending champion Hal Holmes, rolled up brilliant 98 1/2 on the last day, the highest score of the meet, to take his third consecutive crown in that event.

Spartan Dick Gilberste took fifth place in the event with an 81 average.

The best event for the Spartans was the parallel bars, with Larose placing second. State's hopes in that event were carried by Turchan, who placed fourth. Unfortunately, Turchan dislocated his shoulder on a fall from the high bar, and took an automatic ninth.

The Spartans had one contestant qualify for the floor exercise event and the long horse.

Lascari, likewise took the side horse event, with teammate Gil Larose placing second. State's hopes in that event were carried by Turchan, who placed fourth. Unfortunately, Turchan dislocated his shoulder on a fall from the high bar, and took an automatic ninth.

The Spartans had one contestant qualify for the floor exercise event and the long horse.

TO THE VICTORS—The University of Michigan team walked off with all the marbles at the Big Ten meet at Jenison Field House. Athletic Director Clarence Munn presents the Wolverines and Coach Jerry George with the team championship trophy and his congratulations.

Special Board Helps Kellogg Run Smooth

The key to efficient and accurate reservation service in Kellogg Center lies in a board about twice the size of an open copy of the State News which is punched with over 35,000 holes...

The reservation board located in the manager's office keeps track of each room for a six month period. Mrs. Filena Petermann, the office assistant to the manager, is in charge of keeping the reservation "alive" up to date.

The first consideration in booking rooms, naturally, is the University, she said. "We keep 20 rooms on permanent reserve for University guests."

This pre-empted space is represented by two vertical blue chalk stripes, one on each section of the board, covering 20 holes.

The rest of the blocks are taken by conferences, Mrs. Petermann explained.

The University Conference office occupies the hotel of the number of rooms the conference sponsor anticipates will be needed.

This number is blocked off during the days of the event. A small wooden peg is used to mark the reservations on the board.

The row of holes directly below provides a roommate for each delegate.

Mrs. Petermann said Kellogg overbooks by ten percent, counting on at least this number of cancellations.

She explained that under special circumstances, such as a particularly large conference, the office receives permission to cancel the University's reservations providing no one is scheduled to use them.

"On the other hand," she said, "during events like Homecoming and graduation the University guests—parents of students and alumni—reserve the whole hotel."

Neatness Stressed At Kellogg

Each day at precisely 11:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. a group of students line up in the main aisle of Kellogg Center's State Room.

The student waiters and waitresses in the University restaurant are quizzed randomly about the menu selections for the meal, and inspected thoroughly for neatness and cleanliness.

The rods must be wearing a hair net, sporting a recent shine on their shoes and wearing a neat tea apron with a well-tied bow.

The men are required to wear dark slacks, dark hose and dark shoes with a good shine.

Mrs. Evelyn Drake, director of food services in Kellogg, or one of her supervisors in the dining room conducts the inspection.

"On the whole students are very conscientious about their appearance," she said. "Once in a while they get lax though, then we've got to put on a little more pressure."

"Last year I ran contests each week, and the student who looked the sharpest for the most days in the week won a can of shoe polish or a bottle of shampoo," she said.

Diarama Hobby Proves Profitable

Diarama, the art of creating three-dimensional pictures, is helping one student through college.

Calvin Hall, Mason junior majoring in landscape architecture, makes the diarama pieces which sell from $30-$100 as a hobby.

Hall's hobby helped get him a job at the MSU museum making miniature models that might someday be used in the museum's habitat group.

Hall starts his diaramas with a curved sheet of linoleum on which he paints the background in oil.

The foreground is formed of plaster of paris and trees, flowers, and animals are inserted with glue. After the plaster hardens, it is painted.

When the scene is finished, it is enclosed in a frame equipped with two electric lights. Hall claims that everything in his pictures is an exact replica of real life objects and situations.

Hall began diarama four years ago and has turned out 20 pieces since then.

workshop usually take 25 to 70 hours to complete, depending on their size. Working only during vacations, Hall finds that he cannot produce a diarama in a hurry.

Presently, Hall is working on two more scenes.

Most of his work is currently on display at Furber's Mason Manor in Mason.

200,000 Letters Processed Monthly Trades Strain Mail System

Two different mail operations on campus and in Lansing, Mich., are straining the mail system.

Ray Krider, supervisor of mail services which include inter-departmental communication, said.

After the mail is sorted in the campus mail services and received the proper postage, it is sent over to the East Lansing post office.

"I would estimate our average daily total at about 150,000 pieces of mail," Krider said. "About 50 per cent of this is university mail."

An automatic canceling machine at East Lansing cancels 30,000 letters per day.

"Some of our mail, about 2 per cent, is hand canceled, however," Krider said. "We find watches, rings and pens in envelopes."

"Most of the mail doesn't go too far," he said. "It usually travels within a 600-mile radius with the exception of popular states, such as California, Florida and Missouri."

All East Lansing air mail pieces are processed at the East Lansing post office to be re-routed and sent to Willow Run Airport.

"About 36 million pieces of mail were handled by us last year," Krider said. "We took in $800,000 post office receipts."

"Our most frequent problem in regard to student mail is parcel post being sent from the dorms without sufficient postage," Krider said.

Krider said that not all mail can be accepted by the post office. A sorority once wanted to send a paper-mache homecoming display to the U. of M. but had to be turned down.

Master Glassblower Working For University

A small room in Keadie, cluttered with glass tubing and cork, is the domain of Andrew E. Seer. Hundreds of students pass the room daily, oblivious to the swishing roar coming out through the half-opened Dutch door. A simple sign identifies the room as the Glass Shop.

Using only carbon rods and tweezers in most of his work, Seer makes up any grotesque piece of glass equipment needed by the University.

He uses factory supplied tubing, flasks, rods and joints as the basis for his pieces.

Glass, one of the oldest materials man has to work with, is always in a liquid state, said Seer. "If heated too quickly, glass will break from the stress," said Seer.

It must be kept warm though while it is being bent or stretched, or it will break from internal strain, he said.

Seer is a free-mold glassblower. He composes the shape of the glass in his hands. The ability to tell when the glass is at the right temperature is of the utmost importance.

Twenty-five years of experience with the Dow Chemical Company have given Seer the ability to judge the approximate temperature of a flame by its color. Blue, for example, is the hottest flame due to an excess of oxygen, he said.

Experience has also taught him to recognize the critical moment when the glass is at the right temperature to bend, stretch or blow into the desired shape. Seer is a free-mold glassblower. That means he holds the piece he is working on in his hands and moves it around in a stationary flame. A bench worker moves the flame around stationary work.

Other equipment that Seer uses infrequently in his work are lathe, which is used to cut glass into annealing oven.

The lathe is used to rotate a piece of tubing evenly while a torch is applied to it to part the glass in the desired spot.

The cut-off wheel slices tubing without the use of heat.

The tungsten drill and cuts holes in the glass without shattering it.

After completing certain pieces of glass equipment, Seer puts them in the annealing oven to be heated to about 560 degrees Centigrade. This even heating relieves the internal compression and stress created in the glass by the heat of the flame in the oven.

"Stress is created at the point where the soapy, melted glass meets the more rigid, cooler glass," Seer said.

Ever since joining the University three months ago, Seer has been making plans for improving the shop.

"I hope some day to make this shop equal in caliber to the shops at the Universities of Illinois and Michigan," he said.

"With another man experienced in wiring tubes and one specializing in ruby rods and plates, the shop would be able to make anything needed by the University," he said. That would eliminate the necessity of sending some pieces outside the University to be repaired or replaced because facilities here are inadequate.

Presently, Seer has no assistants, although he hopes to have another bench installed. He would then work with a graduate student and teach him the trade, he said.

Larger Sections Alleviate Econ Enrollment Problems

Increased enrollment problems in the economics department are being solved by means of larger lecture-recitation sections, a department spokesman said recently.

Robert Lanzillotti, professor and chairman of the economics department, said experimentation with larger sections in economic principles courses have been quite satisfactory.

Almost half of the economics course enrollment, Lanzillotti said, is in the principles courses. Since the desirable ratio of students to instructors is 25 to 1, the entire economics faculty would be required to teach only one course, Lanzillotti said.

Although the sections are now larger, high quality is maintained by carefully selecting lecturers on the basis of knowledge of the subject, articulation, and the ability to project to a large audience, he said.

The student is more likely to do depth research and comprehend a great deal more when he has a teacher who can project himself well, Lanzillotti said.

Graduate assistants may also be of great help in alleviating enrollment problems, Lanzillotti said. Usually an assistant begins by teaching recitation sections. More responsibility is given to him in his second and third years. Assistants also eliminate much of the professor's routine work, Lanzillotti said. He can grade the large number of essay examinations and problems which are required in the economic principles course.

One problem still plagues the department, Lanzillotti said. Although there are 60 graduates available for assistantships, the department cannot hire them because of a lack of funds.

Eventually, the department head said, large enrollment and the maintenance of quality teaching will force the employment of more faculty members to satisfy the needs of the lecture-recitation section program.

Paul Outlines 1963-4 L-C

Mantovani, George Szell and the Cleveland Symphony, pianist Byron Janis and the stars of the Bolshoi Ballet are among the attractions highlighting the 1963-64 Lecture-Concert Series, announced the series director Wilson B. Paul.

MANTOVANI

Mantovani and his orchestra open the concert season with two performances of "The Nutcracker." The New York City Opera returns here for the 13th consecutive year to give performances of "Don Giovanni" and "La Traviata." Thirty top dancers of the famed Russian Bolshoi Ballet company will also appear.

Other productions include a performance of "The Hollow Crown" by the Royal Shakespearean Theatre of England, a recital by Byron Janis, a concert by the Vienna Symphony Orchestra, and a program of native dances by the Bayanihan Philippine Dance company.

In addition the 75-member Baltimore Philharmonic will appear as well as Metropolitan Opera singer Brigit Nilsson and violinist Ruggiero Ricci.

Auto Accounts Put State Near Top Detroit Advertising Center

"Detroit's Woodward Avenue, an unpublicized counterpart to New York's Madison Avenue, is one of the nation's leading advertising centers," said Kenwood L. Atkin, assistant professor of advertising, in an article in the February issue of "Michigan Economic Review."

In 1960, five of the nation's top 50 advertisers were Michigan-based.

Five of the nation's 50 top advertising agencies were also from Michigan," said Atkin, "reflecting in part the servicing of automotive accounts."

The top Michigan advertisers were: General Motors, Ford Motor, Chrysler, Kellogg and American Motors.

The top Michigan advertising agencies were Campbell-Ewald, McCann-Erickson, J. D. Brother, Maxon and Ross Roy, B.S.F. & D.

"Advertising," said Atkin, "became a big business in the years following World War I. In 1960, an estimated $12 billion was spent on advertising. "Michigan's share amounted to over $500 million, amount exceeding the value of the state's mineral production that year," he continued.

Expenditures for the top Michigan advertisers, according to Atkin, rose from 1.3 per cent of sales in 1950 to 11.9 per cent for Kellogg, General Motors expenditures counted for almost one-half money spent by the top
