News Blackout Continues

From Out Wire Services
 NEW YORK CITY — The Photo-Union has rejected the terms offered by the New York City newspaper publishers. The engravers turned down the recommendation of their union to accept the proposal, UPI. The action prolongs the newspaper blackout—already in its second month—old members based union who urged them to accept the new contract.

The rejection, morning news had expected to hit the streets before Wednesday mid-afternoon. The news stands today. It has been a gala debut since 16 weeks of idleness.

The 20,000 newspaper employees were in the process of being re-elected. Most of them had not worked since the blackout Dec. 5 with a strike of 100,000 printers.

Jack McGowan, president of the Photo-Union, said the rejection will have to sit down with the publishers. The major issue from the floor was the 35-hour work week. McGowan had agreed to a 35-hour week.

The union has taken effect until the end of the year of the contract.

McGowan's suggestion was on record as an attempt to force the publishers to accept his terms. They had not been prepared to go further on the terms. McGowan also turned down the offer when it first was presented to them. But pressure from many sources, including union leaders, forced McGowan to accept the contract.

Clifford Erickson, managing editor of the struck New York Times, expressed himself as disappointed at the photoengravers' move. He added:

"I don't know just exactly what is going to do now. We had to go to put out a paper. Most of the staff has been across the street to come as soon as the picket lines were removed."

The Herald Tribune was at work on a first issue when news of the rejection was received.

MISS TURNS MRS.—Miss America of 1961 became Mrs. as Nancy Ann Fleming, Montague junior, wed William Johnson, Okemos senior, March 21 in Alumni Chapel.

Nancy Becomes Mrs. W. Johnson

The Michigan miss who vowed to "go home and be just me again" after a reign as Miss America of 1961 became a missus last week in the Alumni Memorial Chapel.

Nancy Ann Fleming, Montague junior and former Miss America, exchanged marriage vows with William F. Johnson, Okemos senior, on the campus where for the past year and a half she has sought to avert publicity and be like any other student.

In the tiny church on the north bank of the Red Cedar, Miss Fleming and Johnson were wed before 125 invited guests, relatives and close friends of the couple.

Photographers and other members of the press were asked to wait outside the Chapel during the service.

For the ceremony Miss Fleming chose a white silk linen gown with portrait neckline and elbow length sleeves. Her waist length veil fell from a flower-patterned band above her forehead, and complemented the bouquet of four white ruffled lilies which she carried to the altar.

Attending Miss Fleming were her 17-year-old sister Sue as maid of honor, and Mary Katherine Johnson, 17, the bridegroom's sister, who sang the hymn "Oh Perfect Love" before the vows were exchanged.

Both attendants wore Riviera green silk linen dresses with bell-shaped skirts and jewel necklines.

Richard W. Johnson, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Ushers were Peter Van Leer, James Connor, New York City junior, and David Zagari, Grand Rapids junior, fraternity brothers of the bridegroom.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in the Chapel parlor. A four-tiered wedding cake was surrounded at the base with yellow roses and greens. Friends and relatives also attended a buffet dinner at the Johnson residence in Okemos.

The newly-weds planned a week of skiing "somewhere in Canada" before returning to campus. The new Mrs. Johnson will continue her junior year as a communication arts major here, while her husband completes his pre-law training.

Next year the couple will travel to the West and Mexico before making their home in California.

Operator Goofs On Term Grade

Switch From C To F Creates Student 'Panic'

"Somebody pushed the wrong button."

That's what Registrar Horace C. King has been telling frantic students who called his office over vacation to find out why their expected "C" grades were reported as "Fs."

Some 1,300 "C" grades were incorrectly recorded as "Fs" when a computer operator punched the wrong hole in an IBM card.

"It was a human error," Frank B. Martin, director of data processing, said. "It was not the fault of the machines. They operate on the information we feed them."

The Registrar's office detected the error about 8:30 a.m. Friday, but it was too late to catch the incorrect reports. Grades are sent simultaneously to the post office and to the registrar for checking.

Corrected reports were mailed the same day, but because of the short vacation, many students did not receive them.

"We feel terrible about it," King said. "Students in various academic difficulty really suffered over this mistake."

"This is only the second error we've had in 24 years," said Martin. "With all our checks, it is almost statistically impossible for an error to go unnoticed—it's about one chance in a billion."

Errors have occurred before, Martin said, but they've always been caught before grades were mailed. A similar incident occurred about 10 years ago.

Psychology, physics and economics departments were hardest hit by the error.

All machine-tabulated grades are checked by the registrar's office against the class cards instructors submit. The error was discovered by a faculty member who checked his grade reports in the Registrar's office.

Colleagues Mourn Erickson's Death

By GERRY HINKLEY
 State News Staff Writer

Funeral services for Provost Clifford E. Erickson, who died Saturday at his East Lansing home, were held Tuesday at the Gortline-Rundman East Chapel in East Lansing.

Erickson, 55, of 511 Wildwood Drive, collapsed unexpectedly after working in the yard Saturday afternoon. He was found about 1:45 p.m. by his son, George.

Death was caused by a heart attack, Ingham County Coroner Dorwin Hoffmeyer said. Erickson had been in good health, the coroner said. He was in Mt. Olive Cemetery, Hannibal, Mo., on Wednesday.

President John A. Hannah said that Erickson's death "comes as a great shock to all of us who have known and worked with him."

"He leaves a place that will be very hard to fill," Hannah said.

As provost Erickson served as the chief executive officer responsible for an instructional staff of some 1,500 faculty members.

"A noted scholar and authority," Dr. Clifford E. Erickson continued his common touch and friendly informal manner after his elevation to the position of provost," Rollin H. Simons, chairman of the steering committee of the Academic Council, said.

"The steering committee was looking forward with pleasure to continued contacts with him."

"His courage and willingness to tackle any problem of the University and his high aims for the institution were such that his loss is a real blow to MSU."

Erickson was regarded as an able administrator and was nationally recognized as an educator and guidance authority.

Shortly before his death he had been given the new responsibility of directing the Educational Development Plan launched to prepare MSU for an eventual student body of some 48,000.

Erickson became provost in November 1961 leaving the office of dean of the College of Education, a post he had held since 1953.

With his new position came the job of implementing a seven-point program which originated under former provost Paul A. Miller who left the University to become president of West Virginia University.

The seven-point plan was designed to stretch the University's finances to get the greatest educational value for every dollar spent. The plan called for greater use of new learning devices—including teaching machines—and for placing a greater share of the

Reasons: Salaries, Project X

Attractive salary offers which cannot be met by MSU, as well as continued unrest over the Educational Development Project, have resulted in the intended resignation of three prominent political science faculty members as well as the possible loss of a former department chairman.

They are:

Lloyd D. Musolf, a professor, who will take a position at the University of California.

Daniel G. Giddis, an assistant professor and specialist in Latin-American affairs, who plans to leave for Oregon State.

Professor Lewis J. Dilling, who plans to take a position at Washington University in St. Louis.

Joseph LaPalombara, who resigned as chairman of the department during vacation is considering leaving the University.

LaPalombara, who was succeeded as chairman by Professor Charles Adrian, said he resigned partially because he wished to devote more time to research and study and partially because of a belief that the chairmanship should be rotated among faculty members.

Rumors that he was being stepped down by the University administration because of his stand on constitution are absolutely untrue, LaPalombara added.

"There is certainly a possibility that I will leave MSU," he said. "However, I haven't made my mind up yet."

Musolf, who begins his work at the University of California in July, said the Educational

Trustee Positions Contested

Two Democrats are running for reelection against two Republicans in the race for two MSU Board of Trustees seats in the spring elections Monday.

Don Stevens of Okemos and Jan B. Vanderploeg of North Muskegon are attempting to retain their seats against Stephen S. Nisbet of Fromont and Arthur K. Rouse of Boyne City.

Stevens, a Democrat, has been a member of the Board of Trustees since 1957. He is also educational director of the Michigan State AFL-CIO Council. A native of Greenville, he attended MSU, the University of Michigan and Cornell University. He also served on the Wayne State University Board of Governors from 1958 to 1959. He is the father of four children.

Nisbet, a Republican, was president of the 1961-62 Michigan Constitutional Convention and a former member of the State Board of Education. A heart ailment has prevented his active campaigning for election. He is a native of Tawas city and a graduate of Alma College and the University of Michigan. He has

H. L. King Assists Provost

Herman L. King has been appointed assistant provost, effective Monday.

King, a professor of entomology and assistant dean of the College of Natural Science, has been a member of the MSU staff since 1945.

He has been instrumental in the building of the Biology Research Center and the development of the College of Natural Science, the department of biophysics, and interdepartmental programs in biology.

He received his B.S. degree in 1939 at MSU and the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees at Pennsylvania State University in 1941 and 1942.

Buildings May Aid Students

By ERIC FILSON
 State News Staff Writer

Two new apartment buildings for students containing 20 units will be completed May 30 as part of a program to build 100 units in East Lansing.

Ronald G. Smith of the University Construction Co. announced Wednesday.

The two new apartment buildings located at the corner of Evergreen and Valley courts will have rents comparable to present on-campus prices, he said.

"Our program is ultimately to build 300 units," said Smith.

The two buildings called the Evergreen Arms will have 14 and 6 apartments in them.

Another 80 units will be completed by fall term, said Smith. A 41 unit building will be constructed at the corner of Haslett and Albert and a 30 unit building will be built at Delta St. and Grand River Ave., he said.

The apartments are designed for students and will contain at least 900 to 1,000 square feet of floor space, said Smith. "They will be two bedroom apartments intended for either four men or women."

Each apartment will have a study den with a built-in book shelf and desk, a living room with a re-faced stove, and a bath designed for two or three students to use at the same time. There will be individual beds for each student, Smith said.

"Each apartment is completely furnished with Danish Modern Furniture," he said, "and each apartment has a sun deck."

Leasing and rental agent for the new buildings is the Edward G. Hacker Co. According to Glen Harris of Hacker Realty, leases for the apartments are available at the present time. Each lease is for at least one year, he said. Further information is available by calling IV 2-1009 or IV 5-2261.

World News at a Glance

From AP and UPI Wires

Claim Sinking of Red Ship
 WASHINGTON—The State Department says the reported Cuban raid on a Soviet freighter in a North Cuban port late Tuesday was "deplorable."

The department says the raid merely served to strengthen Soviet hands.

Cuban exile sources in Miami told of receiving reports of the raid late Tuesday. These reports said a group called "Commando L" attacked the freighter while it was loading sugar in Calbarian Port, and that the ship was damaged. Washington intelligence sources said the attack did take place, but they do not know whether the Soviet vessel was sunk or damaged.

Was Missile, Bomber Gap, Says Dulles
 WASHINGTON—Allen Dulles, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, says there is a "missile and bomber gap" between the U.S. and Russia. He said the reports were spread by over-estimation of Russian military intentions. Dulles thus denied Defense Secretary McNamara's denial last year of a "missile gap," one of the major Democratic charges in the 1960 presidential campaign.

Demonstrators Jailed in Mississippi
 GREENWOOD, MISSISSIPPI—Eleven integration demonstrators, including "Ain' Gonna Turn Around No More," were jailed here Wednesday following an attempted march on the city hall. Scores of Negroes indignantly over continuing racial violence in this Mississippi town attempted the march earlier in the day. They were arrested by police and firemen.

Wakes $7½ Million Mistake
 SAN FRANCISCO—The Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco recently burned up seven and a half million dollars in negotiable treasury certificates in a "million-to-one error" last summer. The mistake came Wednesday in a hastily-called news conference broadcast after a San Francisco newspaper broke the story.

Four Preps On Campus Wednesday

The Four Preps, who started as a Hollywood High School singing group in 1955 and gained fame in '58 as a magazine poll's "Most Promising Singing Group," will appear here Wednesday.

Tickets go on sale today at the Union desk. They will be sold on a first-come first-served basis at $1.50, $2.00, and $2.50.

The Four Preps recent appearances at four universities broke all attendance records.

Their popularity was established with such hits as "26 Miles," "Down by the Station," "Big Man," "Got a Girl," and "More Money For You And Me."

Single releases were followed in 1961 by two college-centered albums, "The Four Preps On Campus," and "Campus Encore."

"Adding to the Preps' success have been over 30 television appearances and many night club shows.

Their college appearances have taken them to every state of the Union.

Campaigning On Campus Commences

Political aspirants begin the two week campaign today for posts on All University Student Government.

Campaigning regulations have been tightened this year in view of several incidents that happened in last spring's campaign.

Elections Commissioner, Jim Billings, said an improved set-up would enforce the rules more stringently. The commission intends to prevent early campaigning.

"So far the petitioners are tending to follow the rules closely," said Billings.

Names of office seekers will be officially announced April 4, when petitioning closes. Billings said he would like to see more people run for congress.

New requirements for candidates include a budget sheet which every candidate must adhere to closely, itemizing all campaign expenses. Budget limitations are $100.00 for AUSG president.

A Great Loss To MSU

The death of Provost Clifford E. Erickson is a great loss to Michigan State University. Erickson was a dedicated academician and a tough administrator. The University will feel the loss most keenly in the administration Development Project, a plan which Erickson had a large part in formulating. Erickson believed in the plan, which seeks ways of improving educational quality at MSU as the enrollment increases. He was dedicated to promoting the University's reputation. He will keep pace with its rapidly expanding physical facilities. It will be difficult, indeed, to find a replacement with Erickson's drive and determination which will be needed to carry out the project. Erickson was regarded as an able administrator by educators and guidance authorities across the nation. He made many outstanding contributions to the University during his 19 years here. He will be missed.

Postponement Of Democracy

Little South Korea is encountering big domestic problems. It has been nearly two years since a military junta led by General Chang Hee Park overthrew the elected civilian government of the country. Corruption and inefficiency in the government have led to a grand and glorious days of our fairer and better world. These conditions provoked the coup d'état that brought Park to power. The General promised both the people of South Korea and President Kennedy personally that once the political corruption and inefficiency had been rooted out, he would return the reins of government to civilian control. Now, the elections scheduled for June have been "postponed" by Park — for four years! Why? According to the general, four more years are needed to save Korea from "tainted politicians." The decision by the junta to postpone for four years elections and hence any semblance of democracy, comes as a great disappointment. However, it does not come as a shock. In fact, probably we would have been in the same situation if the general had fulfilled his promise to the people and President Kennedy. It is so unrealistic to expect a military regime to step down from its position of power and hand over control of the government to civilians whom they usually despise or in whom they usually lack confidence. Four years is a long time for South Koreans to wait until the so-called "tainted politicians" or "counter-revolutionaries" are driven from the political scene. Then, in 1967, we suppose there will be some other reason to postpone democracy.

Letters: On Prof Shortages

To the Editor:
 What is the purpose of a university? To educate, you answer? I agree. But how can a university fulfill its intended purpose with an insufficient staff?
 The charge that the University is inadequately staffed is not without foundation. According to the catalog, philosophy 390 is only taught Spring term. Upon investigation, however, I found that the time schedule for Spring term listed no such course. This inconsistency prompted an inquiry at the philosophy department office. I was told that because of the shortage of instructors, the course had been dropped from the curriculum for this Spring term.
 The implications of the situation existing on our campus. A student wants to take a particular course, the course is theoretically offered, but because the staff is so limited, it has to be dropped. I am not proposing that every conceivable course be taught, but simply that the courses already listed in the catalog be offered, until such time as there is no demand for them.
 The absurdity of this whole situation lies in the fact that the administration is so concerned about how the increasing number of students anticipated for the future will be accommodated by the University's facilities. How can the worry about the future when the University is not equipped to accommodate the academic needs of the students already enrolled?
 A university cannot function as it is intended and at the same time have a scarcity of professors. The administration should not be hypocritical enough to propose expansion and an increase in enrollment when the present teaching staff is not commensurate with the needs of the present student body.

Will Vote Yes

To the Editor:
 At the end of last term, James M. Hare, Secretary of State, was elected to the Michigan State Constitution. He has been picked up support since the Constitutional Convention adjourned. He has been in office for two months. He has another two months to go before the proposal at the polls despite the fact that the press is 99 per cent for the document.
 This is in my opinion, a bit of wishful thinking on the part of Mr. Hare. To the contrary, the proposal seems to be picking up support in every poll taken to date. The only strength that the opposition to the new constitution seems to be gaining is from those people who follow blindly the leadership of certain groups who happen to be personally against the document for one reason or another.
 As for the press being for the new constitution, I can only tell you to look at your own hometown newspaper. The press has been quite fair to both sides on this issue. Most of the articles I have seen have been simply informative and very non-committal.

 However, if these cognitive articles seem to be favoring the new constitution, it is only because any article which points out the differences between the old and the proposed constitution will invariably show how much of an improvement the new one is over the old.

Young Citizens for Con-Con, a non-partisan organization, feels that any person who is properly informed on the issue will vote yes in the April 1 election.

Hatch To Oppose Bartlett For State Education Post

Raymond N. Hatch, professor of education at Michigan State University, is running for state education commissioner against Lynn M. Bartlett, incumbent, in the election for 17 months beginning his campaign on Monday.

"I believe my opponent is a gentleman," Hatch said. "He has not been an adequate leader during his six years in office, and our school system has not made the progress we have a right to expect."

Hatch says Bartlett demonstrates a lack of understanding of what is going on in the public school system. He stated that the Department of Education should be doing more to improve instruction and to help research programs in school construction, curriculum, teaching methods and other subjects.

"Hundreds of our best teachers are working on over 100 curriculum committees," Hatch said. "Their findings are most revealing, but there has been a lack of courage in implementing the findings."

Hatch's complaints against Bartlett have shown outstanding results. He cited improved reading and mathematics programs which have come about to the " Sputnik era."

Hatch's complaints against Bartlett's administration include failure to rewrite the teacher code, failure to rewrite the teachers code, Bartlett said attempts to write it were in "a very bad state of confusion" when he succeeded a Republican superintendent.

He said it has taken five years to produce a substitute code and it will be ready for adoption this year.

Bartlett was assistant superintendent in Grosse Pointe and has taught at Eastern Michigan University and in Detroit area schools.

Hatch, in addition to teaching at MSU for 17 years, has held teaching and administrative posts in elementary and high schools and visiting professorships at 11 colleges and universities.

Smokers Are Cause Of Blazes

Careless smoking is the major cause of the more than 160 fire alarms in each school year, says Brian E. Langley, fire safety officer.

"Education programs through the department of public safety and the safety committees in the dorms are now in progress to cut down this hazard," he said.

"The fire alarm system which has been installed in campus buildings has been dubbed the local evacuation alarm."

"It derives its name from the fact that it doesn't ring in a central station. The alarm in the building sets off others in that same building and it is then evacuated. A call to the fire station brings the trucks," he said.

It takes three minutes for fire engines to reach the scene of a fire, says Brian E. Langley, fire safety officer.

$50.00 for class officers, and $25.00 for congressional candidates.

Petitioners now must sign a campaign supplement to the petition whereby they agree to abide by the rules of the election commission's supervision.

An official violation form is now in use enabling anyone to make specific complaints against candidates running for office under the election commission's supervision.

Jim Barnes, present AUSG president said this year's election will be much better organized.

"Haphazardly prepared expense sheets will no longer be accepted. Rules used to be open to interpretation as to what constitutes campaigning," said Barnes.

"Billings has tightened the rules so campaigning will not be punished for something they didn't know was wrong. The rules are more clear cut now," he said.

Romney Legalizes Aid Bill Despite Federal Opposition

Governor Romney has signed into law a bill putting Michigan on a par with other states in providing aid to dependent children of the unemployed despite a challenge to its validity by Federal officials. The Governor signed the bill Wednesday in his news conference. In his afternoon press conference, the Governor said much of the income received does not bear directly on the legal questions raised, but merely reports emotional arguments already based in previous debates.

The income was received by the state from Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Anthony DeLoach. According to Romney, his decision to sign the bill was partly based on the idea that "a decision to unauthorize Federal aid to dependent children of the unemployed is an arbitrary action on other Federal-state sharing programs."

The Governor said he is "confident we are right in this controversy and I intend to take all necessary steps consistent with principle and reality to see that the 10-thousand Michigan families who will qualify for assistance under the bill receive this help."

Profs Discuss EDP at Meeting

Michigan State's Educational Development Project received prime attention at a meeting of the American Association of University Professors Monday night. The announcement of the project had come as a surprise to many of the more than 30 members of the faculty at State who attended the meeting.

"It was surprising to us to have new solutions arise," said Robin L. Drews, chapter president. "The staff and administration have been working on expansion projects for a long time. The presentation of the project without any discussion with the faculty surprised us."

Drews remarked that the members of the faculty were not present for the project's "top-down" approach. "The faculty would have had fewer objections if a more broad scale approach of discussion and study had been used."

"It seems to me that when something of this nature is done, the faculty would welcome some sort of pooling of discussion."

At the meeting Marjorie Gentry, associate professor of history, remarked that members of the faculty did not learn of Educational Development Project until 14 hours after the story had been reported in the press.

Drews remarked that, contrary to some reports, the meeting was not an angry session concerned with opposition of the administration.

"The facts were pointed out and views were clearly stated. There was no anger or shouting at anyone," he remarked.

One solution to the ever-growing situation was suggested by Drews.

"An organization of state universities and colleges could set up a joint policy on speakers. Now it may be possible to arrive at a policy on limiting the number of students admitted to the state's universities and colleges when funds run out."

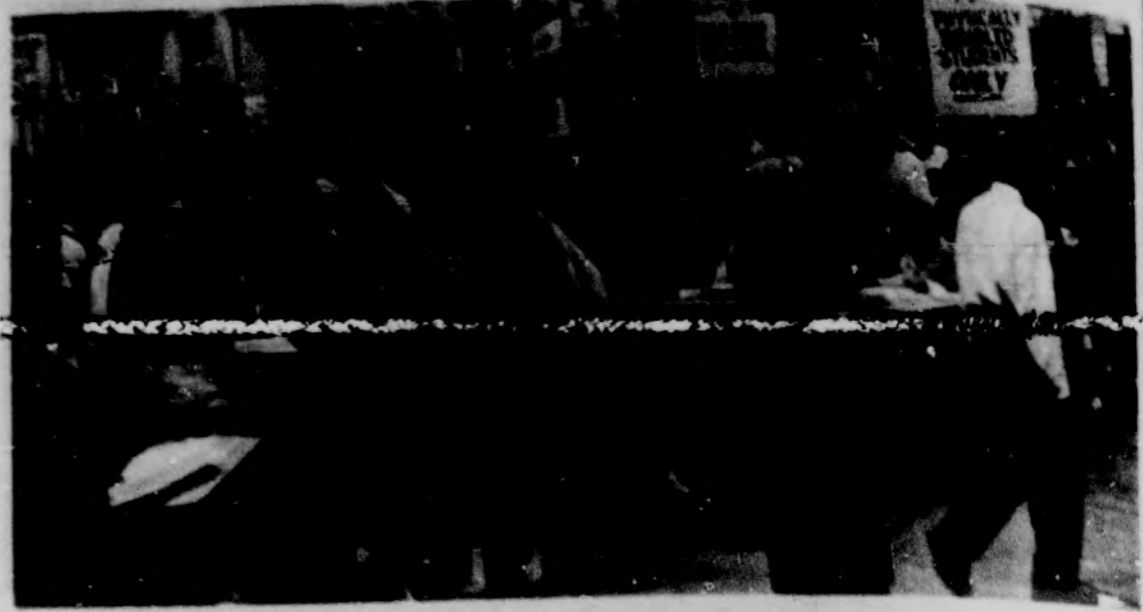

"If Michigan State decided to limit enrollment and the others did not, it would simply mean that we would gain."

Present at the meeting were two members of the MSU Board of Trustees, Don Stevens of Okemos and Jan W. Vanderploeg of North Muskegon. They held a question and answer period after the meeting.

Discussing the problem of funds, Vanderploeg stated, "We're spending every dollar we have. We know they're (University of Michigan and Wayne State) getting more money than we do. It perturbs us, I don't know what the answer is."

Mounting enrollment problems must be met by expanded community college facilities, according to Stevens.

Statements were read at the meeting from two other members of the Board of Trustees who were unable to attend, Stephen S. Nisbet of Fremont, who is recovering from a heart ailment, and Arthur K. Reiser of Bay City agreed with the views expressed by Stevens and Vanderploeg.

Poznan Choir Slated For L-C Tonight

The full, pleasing choral sound of 50 boys and 25 men, coupled with 100 years of tradition await the patrons tonight.

The Poznan Choir of Poland, currently making a tour of the United States, will play a visit to the campus for a Series II concert at 8:15 p.m. in the University Auditorium.

The group was originally scheduled to sing in this country in 1939, but was prevented from doing so because of Hitler's invasion of Poland and the subsequent "barrage" of the Polish personnel on the battlefield and in concentration camps.

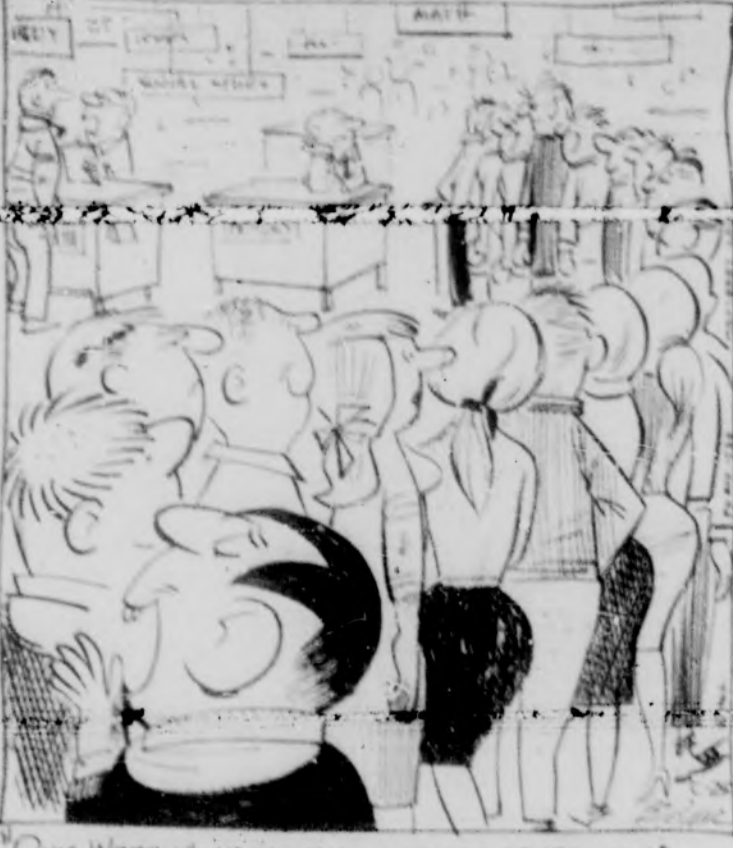

Founded in the middle of the 19th century, the Choir flourished during the 12th century when the choir's voices took over the role formerly assigned to boys. In 1918 the chorus was changed to its original make-up of men and zary, and Brahms' "On a Quiet Night."

The second part of the program will consist of Polish folk and national songs, sung a capella and with piano accompaniment. Composers represented will include such familiar names as Szymanowski, Palestrinski, and Chopin plus other lesser known figures.

Tickets for the concert are on sale at the MSU Union Building Ticket Office and at the Paramount Newsstand in downtown Lansing.

4-H Plans Incorporate Science

The 4-leaf clover, the symbol of America's 4-H clubs is also the trademark for new programs of the organization.

4-H and health organization has long been associated with rural young people and farm and home projects. Now science is the basis for new programs.

How? Gary Seever, on leave from the University's Cooperative Extension Service, has been serving with a research project in Washington D.C., seeking some directions.

Visiting Michigan this week, Seever reported that the proposed programs have at least two main objectives: to be imaginative, systematic and objectively.

Development of intellectual curiosity. Young people cannot be satisfied with "pat" answers in a complex, changing world.

An understanding and appreciation of the increasing role of science in our society.

Seever notes that much of the original impetus for the science inquiry stemmed from a 1959 conference here. In addition to the natural sciences agricultural researchers are also looking for projects in the social science areas.

Work with child development, junior leadership and group dynamics and international understanding are among a few of the possibilities.

An eight-man technical advisory committee is guiding the national study. On the board are N.P. Ralston, director of Cooperative Extension Service, and Dean John Ryder of the College of Engineering.

Frank Trull, a former University agronomist, died Saturday, March 23, at his home in Grass Lake.

Trull, 55, was a native of Muskegon and graduated from MSU in 1922. He worked at the University's soil department extension service and was an appraiser for Federal Land Bank.

He returned to Michigan State in 1933 and served on the Resource Development staff until he retired in 1955.

Hannah Helps Ohioan Solve Seedy Puzzle

Volumes of mail cross the Atlantic each day. Some of the responses are letters from presidents, diplomats, business tycoons, educators, and in the case of President John A. Hannah, seventh grade science students.

Recently, a handwritten letter containing three seeds enclosed in a dry, tin house, arrived from Fairfield, Ohio for the president.

"Please send me all the information you can," wrote Charles Bowling, Fairfield Junior High School science student.

"Also tell me how to plant them," President Hannah wrote Patricia that he was not much of an expert on seeds, but that he would ask William B. Drew, chairman of botany to identify them.

"I am pleased that you turned to Michigan State for help," he said.

Drew and other botany professors looked them over, compared them with seeds in the Deardorff Herbarium and found they were radish seeds.

In his answer to Patricia, Drew told Patricia how to plant and grow the seeds. He also suggested some references which might help her solve the puzzle.

Drew said young students frequently write to MSU for assistance with science projects but that they come mostly from within the state and are not interested directly to the president.

Socialist View To Be Presented

In addition to popular demand to know what socialism is and why several different socialist parties exist, the MSU Young Socialist Club will present their speakers at the 700-day event.

Debra Ann, 1962-63 National Socialist Party vice president, will be the featured speaker at the Socialist Labor Party, 4:30 p.m. at the American Socialist Party, and James Earl, 1962-63 National Socialist Party vice president, will be the featured speaker at the Socialist Workers Party, 7:30 p.m. at the MSU Student Center.

Programs for the National Socialist Party of April 4 will also be featured at the time of the 700-day event at the club.

Freshman Baseball Tryouts Slated Today

Freshman baseball tryouts will be held today at 5:30 p.m. in Jensen Field House. Men trying out should have had a physical examination prior to practice and must provide their own equipment, according to baseball coach.

Lawson Promoted To Research Post

Chester A. Lawson, chairman of the department of natural sciences, will become a research professor at the University College Monday.

Emmanuel Hackel, assistant dean of University College, will succeed Lawson as chairman of natural sciences.

Lawson will be working on learning theory and the development of programmed instruction materials. As chairman of natural sciences, he was responsible for the development of programmed instruction for several major sections of the three-term natural science curriculum.

"We are hoping that Lawson's efforts will not be more than a beginning," said Dean of University College Edward A. Cullen.

Lawson joined the MSU staff in 1942 as a zoology instructor. He was named head of biological science in 1944. When that department merged with physical science in 1952, he became chairman of the new department of natural sciences.

He has had a major role in pioneering new MSU curriculums designed to give students an understanding of how science operates. He has frequently acted as a consultant for other schools concerned with updating science curriculums.

Lawson received the B.S. degree in 1930 at Thiel College and the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in 1931 and 1934 at the University of Michigan. Before coming to MSU, he taught biology at Wittenberg College in Springfield, Ohio.

Hackel, a professor of natural science, has been active as a researcher and teacher as well as an administrator since he joined MSU in 1949.

In addition to his duties as a past few years on the Rh blood factor have attracted national attention.

He received B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Michigan in 1945 and 1947, respectively. He received a Ph.D. at Michigan in 1953.

$433,229 Accepted By Trustees

Trustees of the Michigan State University have accepted $433,229 in grants totaling $433,229.36 were accepted March 20 by the Board of Trustees.

Included was a grant of $121,838.75, representing a portion of 1962 contributions to the MSU Development Fund from alumni and friends of the University. The funds are used for scholarships, support of the planetarium and other purposes.

Total Development Fund gifts in 1962 came to $293,004.27.

A Ford Foundation grant of $25,000 will be used by John D. Ryder, dean of engineering, to provide loans for doctoral students.

A grant of $19,000 from the Atomic Energy Commission will enable Alton F. Yandell, associate professor of geology, to continue basic genetic and physiological studies on fruit fly reproduction.

The AEC granted $19,000 for research on the electrochemistry and spectra of metal-ammonia and metal-amine solutions by James L. Dye, associate professor of chemistry.

Maynard M. Miller, associate professor of geology, will use a grant of $17,835 from the National Science Foundation to support the Summer Institute of Geological Sciences. The Institute will offer field courses in glaciology and related subjects on the Juneau Icefield this summer.

Local Police Kept In Demand

A University student's car was severely damaged by vandals recently, according to Michigan State Police.

Trooper's said a car owned by Frederick C. Wain, Harbor, Pa., junior, was damaged while parked behind the home of Harold Abbey, 3900 Hagaders Road, East Lansing.

Officers said the vandals slashed both seats of the 1964 model car, poured sugar into the gas tank, and sprayed it with paint.

The inside rear window was panned yellow and the windshield, front dashboard and headlights light blue. The roof, trunk and four doors of the car were also painted.

A University student's car was severely damaged by vandals recently, according to Michigan State Police.

Trooper's said a car owned by Frederick C. Wain, Harbor, Pa., junior, was damaged while parked behind the home of Harold Abbey, 3900 Hagaders Road, East Lansing.

Shaw Area Parking Changes In Effect

Parking changes, effective today, in the Shaw Hall, Owen Center area are now in effect, according to Richard O. Owen, director of the Department of Public Safety.

Lot "O", directly across from Owen, is restricted to visitors with permits. Owen Hall residents with permits may use Lot "V", opposite the library, has been extended to the east, adding parking spaces south of the Shaw Hall circle.

The expansion of the Shaw Hall area was made necessary by the extension of the new Chemistry Building, Bernitt said.

The unexpected length of the building, added as an afterthought by University planners, pushed construction company buildings from the new parking ramp into space formerly utilized as a part of the parking area.

Grounds maintenance department is making special efforts to keep the parking areas usable, and muddy conditions are not expected to restrict parking.

All regular traffic and parking regulations are also in effect, Bernitt said.

Planetarium Director Named

Dr. Hogg will be first director of MSU's $500,000 planetarium, William H. Combs, dean of the university, said.

Hogg, curator of exhibits, will be in charge of the planetarium, which is one of the MSU's most popular exhibits.

The planetarium will include exhibits in the Slack light gallery, an exhibition gallery of the planetarium, expected to open in 1964.

Dr. H. Baker, director of the planetarium, will also be director of the planetarium.

Dr. H. Combs, a member of the museum staff, will be in charge of the planetarium.

The planetarium will be used as a facility for and for shows for children.

The planetarium was financed by alumni and the university through a campaign to the development of the planetarium.

Profs Student Awarded

Bennett T. Sandefur, professor of geology, was named president-elect of the Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters at a March meeting of the organization in Kalamazoo.

Dr. Sandefur, professor of art, was presented with a gold medal for his work in the development of the MSU art department, which he headed from 1945-1962.

Church has been active in the Academy for three years and was a vice president in 1959-60. He is also a past president of the Midwestern College Art Association.

Rub A. Churchill, of Michigan State, won a $50 student award.

9 Lifers Up For Commutation

From Our Wire Services

The State Parole Board announced today that nine life term prisoners, including Asa Bartlett, an aged triple killer from Muskegon County.

Bartlett, 65, has served more than 36 years for slaying a one-time political rival, the man's daughter and her fiancé.

Bartlett was convicted of first degree murder June 1, 1926, as a result of the death of Blue Lake Township Supervisor August Krubaek, his daughter Janette and William Franke.

Krubaek and his daughter fatally injured when a wooden box delivered to the Krubaek home by a postman exploded when it was opened. The box was delivered on the young couple's wedding day.

Bartlett confessed to sending the dynamite-box because of his resentment over Krubaek's reelection as Township Supervisor.

Parole officials said a cousin, Joseph Bartlett of Shelby, has offered to provide the imprisoned man with a home and job if he is released.

Another applicant for parole is Morris Brozofsky, 65, who has served 33 years for the slaying of undersheriff Edward M. Rarey of Benzie County in 1930. Rarey was shot down after he caught Brozofsky in an attempted robbery.

Also up for commutations will be Alex Wastakiewicz, 51, who has served 21 years of a first-degree murder term imposed for the slaying of a woman, in Jackson in 1932.

Gordon Rolland, 45, who has served 26 years of a first degree murder term for slaying Earl Bergman during the course of a robbery at the Look-Out Inn near Harrisville (Alcona County) in 1938.

John Buford, 93, who has been held since 1930 under the Habitual Offender Law. He was sentenced from Kalamazoo County.

Thomas Lamb, 41, who has served 21 years for the slaying of a 15-year-old boy, Arthur Currie, Jr. in Detroit in 1943. The boy was killed by a wild shot as Lamb engaged in a gun battle with police.

Clarence Jones, 49, who has served 19 years for a first degree murder conviction that resulted from the fatal shooting of Emma Jones, 25, in Detroit in 1944.

James Hines, 49, who has served 21 years for a first degree murder conviction that resulted from the slaying of Adam Tolvan in Detroit in 1941.

Johanna Reese, age about 72, who has served 34 years since being convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of her two-year-old son in Kent County. The child was killed in 1928. The woman said she saw the child because she was unable to take care of him and that she was intoxicated at the time of the offense.

Block And Bridle Show Opens Friday

The 15th annual Block and Bridle show will be held Friday and Saturday in the livestock pavilion.

The show will feature the Michigan State University's six-point horse.

The perfectly matched Shetland ponies will pull a miniature antique-looking fire wagon. Five Shetland ponies will pull from the show.

The Saturday evening show is the highlight of the show.

Richard Farbach, livestock reviewer, heads the planning and presentation of the program.

Tickets for the show are available at 205 Anthony Hall at $1 for the evening performance beginning at 7:30 and $2 for the Saturday matinee beginning at 1 p.m.

The Saturday evening show is the highlight of the show.

Sponsored by the animal husbandry department, the Block and Bridle Club uses proceeds from the show to fund scholarships, further education in the field of animal husbandry, and sponsor annual livestock competitions.

Laura Thoma, Phyllis Johnson, and other students will be competing in the Block and Bridle show.

Don Webb, Lansing, Kentucky, will also be participating in the Block and Bridle show.

Tuna Poisonings 1-In Billion Chance

The can of tuna that killed two Detroit women may have been a one-in-a-billion chance, an MSU bacteriologist says.

The bacteria that caused the deaths of the women are extremely difficult to kill and deadly, Ralph N. Costlow said.

Just why the spores are so tough is the special problem of Costlow.

"Clostridium botulinum," Costlow said, "produces the deadliest toxin known to man. In theory seven ounces of purified toxin could kill the world population."

The chief purpose of Costlow's several years of research is to find a way to destroy the spores.

Present methods allow food processors to kill 99,999,999 per cent of the spores. This reduces the possibility of an organism surviving to the point at which it just does not occur.

There have been few, if any, known cases of botulism from commercially canned foods since the 1920's Costlow said.

"It is quite possible that every other can in the lot may be good. The chance of botulism occurring in many cans is extremely small," he said.

When botulism does occur, he explained, it is usually because food was not cooked enough. Home canners, he added, should always use a pressure cooker for non-acid foods.

Costlow's research shows processors to can nonacid foods without spoiling flavor and destroying nutrients. Radiation is not the answer, he added, because the amount needed to kill botulism gives food a bad taste.

Botulism in vegetative form are easily killed by heat. In spore form, they are highly resistant and they can change to the spore form readily, Costlow observed.

Costlow is studying the basic chemistry of these botulism to see how they differ at the vegetative, intermediate and spore stages in an attempt to learn precisely how they become spores and what gives them their high resistance.

Psych Prof Heads Society

Harold H. Anderson, research professor of psychology, will be installed as president of the Intra-campus Society of Psychology when the organization holds its eighth congress in Ann Arbor April 2-6.

Anderson and his wife, Dr. Gladys L. Anderson, University research associate in psychology, are currently on a sabbatical leave.

On March 20 they will leave by car for Mexico City where they will take part in a joint project between the National University of Mexico and San Marcos University, Lima, Peru.

Subject of the research is a study of family attitudes and personality structure in a family under stress — stress being defined as the presence of an anxiety illness in a member of the family.

Dr. Katz is resigning as chairman of the department of statistics to devote more time to his research interests. He will continue as a professor of statistics.

The action, effective April 1, was approved March 20 by the Board of Trustees. His successor will be announced later.

Katz came to Michigan State in 1949 as an assistant professor and was named head of statistics in 1956.

Katz received the B.S.E.E. degree at Lawrence 1941, the M.A. at Wayne State University in 1948 and the Ph.D. at the University of Michigan in 1948.

SOMEDAY I WANT TO GO TO MSU—Cynthia Jean, Ingham County's Easter Seal, Child for 1963, tells Dan Underwood, co-captain of the MSU 1963 football team, as he makes his contribution to the 1963 Easter Seal Campaign.

he had a hip disease in early childhood which left one leg and foot smaller than the other.

The funds are used to help the crippled and the handicapped. Dan knows what this help can mean for

He overcame the physical handicap to become a star Big Ten football player. Cynthia Jean is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman J. Jean.

U.B. Meets Tonight

Union Board will hold its spring term All-Board meeting at 7:30 tonight in 31 Union.

Non-Preference Open House Set

An open house for all non-preference students will be held April 2 at 7:30 p.m. in 146 Glitner Hall.

The open house is sponsored by Alpha Delta Theta and the Men's Association of Medical Technologists.

Tree Fertilization Help Keep Highway Beautiful

Removal of fill dirt for Michigan's vast highway system could leave a scar on the countryside. Michigan state researchers and the state conservation department are trying to help heal the wound. Their prescription? Improved tree fertilization.

"The wound is a mighty big one," points out University forester Donald White. "If you don't believe it, take Interstate Highway 75 through the northern Lower Peninsula. In one 41-mile stretch, you'd find 10 acres of stripped woodland per mile. With topsoil removed, such areas have little fertility. White and soil scientist Boyd Ellis are trying to devise a fertilizer that will feed trees without leaving a scar on the countryside. The researchers have several approaches. Most promising to date has been the use of soluble fertilizers. Materials in a perforated plastic sack near each tree. The size and location of the nutrient release. The material is also important. A paper company is working with MSU on the ability of manufacturing a perforated sack. Tests are encouraging.

Prof's To Leave
 Development Project was not the major factor in his decision to leave.
 "However, it was one of the factors. There is a great deal of unhappiness among faculty members over the way Project X was announced, not necessarily the project itself," he said. "I would say the rumors of faculty discontent do have a definite basis."
 Faculty unrest over the EDP came to the forefront at the end of winter term when Bernard Duffey, a professor of English here for 15 years, announced his decision to leave the University and said it was "directly motivated by Project X." The project also drew strong criticism from three other members of the English department who plan to leave in September.
 Adrian called the intended resignation of the three professors "a tremendous loss to the department and the University."
 "The department has had one of the outstanding ones in the nation," he said. "I think it will continue to be outstanding, but we are going to have to recruit bright young faculty members to take the places of those who resign."
 "This can be done successfully, but the loss of nationally known figures cannot help but hurt the department. It stands to reason that you cannot lose a nationally known professor, recruit a promising young one and come out even. The department is sustaining a definite loss."
 Adrian said that the possible loss of both Edinger and LaPalombara would leave the department without its section on comparative European government.
 LaPalombara called the alleged faculty unrest over the EDP "an obvious fact."
 "Much of the unrest would have been unnecessary if the project had been introduced in a different manner," he said. "If the faculty had been consulted from the beginning, the attitude might be quite different today."
 LaPalombara said the major problem facing MSU and higher education in Michigan is the state's inability to meet the salaries offered by universities in other sections of the country.
 Who developed the cake mix inside the Pillsbury box? "Home economists," says Thelma Porter, dean of the College of Home Economics.
 "They are the behind-the-scenes people of many new technological developments."
 Not only do they make baking easier, but trained home economists work with public utility companies, social welfare agencies, retail establishments and the cooperative extension program, she said.
 "The largest number of our graduates go into teaching on both the junior and senior high levels."
 Various child care centers offer positions to home economists trained in child development. Centers for children of working mothers and child centers in hospitals need supervisors, she said.
 In business and industry, home economists help develop products and assist with advertising, Dean Porter said. They also write educational material about products and services.
 Nutrition is emphasized by home economists in social welfare work, Dean Porter said. Home economists assist in counseling families and teaching public welfare workers facts about food nutrition and dietetics, she said.
 The public health department has been trained in nutrition, she said. They advise hospitals, old people's homes and nursing homes concerning food buying, diets and menu planning. The extension service offers career opportunities in many areas. Home economists can help families develop and use re- sources to provide for physical, social, economic and aesthetic needs.
 They can also assist in the youth program whose goal is to develop leadership, knowledge, skills and attitudes through 4-H Clubs and out-of-school programs.
