Are Judiciary Hearings Unbiased?

Editor's Note: This is the second of a three-part series on student judiciary.

By SUE JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

Does every student charged with violating a University regulation receive a fair and unbiased hearing from student judiciary? A case last term involving five students caught at an off-campus drinking party resulted in contradictory stories from Chief Justice Frazier D. Alexander and two of the students involved.

The case was unusual for the following reasons:

1. Most of the accused students were upperclassmen who admitted knowing several judiciary members. Several of the men were fraternity brothers of a justice. Another had been dating a justice. Another justice was a close friend of the co-ed who had dated one of the defendants. The students had "connections" of some type with nearly every judiciary member.

2. Two hearings were held. Information about the verdict was "leaked" to students by several justices after the first hearing. The following day, Alexander asked that a new hearing be called. The result was suspension for two students and probation for three others. Alexander told a State News reporter that one student had been given a lighter penalty the second time. Two students said they received stiffer penalties than the information leak indicated.

3. At least two of the students admitted talking to the justices before the second hearing was concluded.

Should a judicial body ever have any personal involvement with the people it judges?

Should information about a decision be "leaked" before it is finalized by the dean of students?

John A., a senior, says: "After the first hearing, one justice told me who was out of school and who was on probation. I told some of the other people involved. We all thought everything was all right; then the next day we found out there was going to be another hearing."

"We had some indirect contact with judiciary before the first hearing. A close friend of mine was allied with one of the justices in campus politics. The justice told my friend he would work to get us all off easy."

"We told stories to save our necks. I believe judiciary does place kids in a hypocritical position. They don't think drinking when you're over 21 is wrong any more than we do."

Mary B., a junior, said the students consulted each other before the first hearing so that their stories wouldn't contradict each other.

"One of the boys gave me a story to tell," she said. "At the

Viet Nam Hot Spot Despite Coup

Another coup in Viet Nam!

Was it caused by "power-love" or love of the country?

I don't know. But what I know for sure is that Viet Nam does not need any more trouble; it has had too much already.

I heard the news Wednesday night from a friend. At first I couldn't believe what I heard. Another coup d'etat? Questions started to rise in my mind.

Why? Why did Gen. Commander Nguyen Khanh take over the government?

From what I read in Vietnamese and American newspapers, Gen. Duong Van Minh ("Big Minh") had the support of all the people and I had hoped that he could have saved the country.

Now, everything has changed. Will Gen. Nguyen Khanh be able to assume the task he has given to himself in making the coup d'etat? Will Viet Nam be safe in his hands?

The struggle with the Viet Cong still continues and the victory will be hard and long in coming. Does Viet Nam need another struggle within itself?

Hannah Hits Biased Housing

To Study Student Ban Possibilities

By LINDA MILLER
State News Staff Writer

President John A. Hannah said Thursday he would like to see students banned from premises where known racial discrimination exists.

"Discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color or national origin is both morally and legally wrong," Hannah told two students.

Maxie Gordon, Jr., campus NAACP president and Columbia, S. C., senior, and Ron Morgan, Buffalo, N. Y., graduate student and member of the East Lansing Human Relations Commission spoke with Hannah Thursday concerning discrimination in off-campus housing.

University housing policy states that a person found guilty of such discrimination is dropped from approved housing lists.

"People who practice discrimination should be at a disadvantage," Hannah said. "But how can the University say a student over 21 may live where he pleases and then place a limit on this?"

Presently, students over 21 may live wherever they choose.

Hannah said he would look into the legal aspect of placing a house of limits to any student, regardless of age.

He does not think that the University itself is discriminatory when it removes a person's name from housing lists.

"People have to find out that when a decent Negro moves into a decent, white community, nothing happens," he said.

Committee Hires Lawyer In Property Tax Battle

By OYARS BALCERS
State News Staff Writer

The Off-campus Anti-Tax Committee Thursday afternoon decided to engage a lawyer to direct the fight to seek personal property tax exemption for Fraternities, sororities and student cooperatives.

John Seaman, of McLean, Seaman & Laing, one of the foremost men on tax law in Michigan, was hired to give legal advice to the committee.

To finance the legal fees, the committee decided to send a request to the Inter-Fraternity Council, Pan-Hellenic Council and the Inter-Coup Council asking the individual member houses for $10 each to defray the costs.

William T. Gillis, instructor in natural science and chairman of the meeting, presented a ten-page report of tax assessments and payments of the houses.

Anti-Tax 'Bill Gains Support

Fraternities, sororities and student co-ops have bi-partisan support in their fight against personal property taxation.

Seven Democratic representatives added their names to the list of Republicans who sponsored a bill to exempt the organizations from such taxation.

Representative Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor, introduced the bill in the house of representatives Wednesday. Five Republican members of the house co-signed the bill.

Thursday seven Democrats added their signatures.

The new co-signers planned to endorse a similar bill to be introduced by Representative Daniel West, D-Detroit.

Celebrated jazz artist Ahmad Jamal, who scored record fame with his piano version of "But Not for Me," will provide intermission entertainment during the semi-formal affair.

One of eight coeds will receive the "Miss MSU" crown during the intermission. She will succeed Cynthia Cuthbertson, East Lansing junior, who claimed the title in 1963 at J-Hop "Oz."

Buddy Morrow and his Night Train Orchestra will provide a variety of dance music for the 3000 guests.

MHA Postpones Dress Rule Decision

Men's Halls Association Thursday night tabled a motion to change men's evening residence hall dress regulations to those of spring term on a year-round basis.

The motion presented by Emmons Hall president Thomas Guthrie, Watsontown, Pa., junior, would allow all clothing allowed spring term except tennis shoes, beachcombers, and Bermudas.

MHA tabled the move in order to present both sides of the question to the men of their respective halls and get an accurate picture of the wishes of the men.

Petitions were circulated through Emmons and were signed by 72 per cent of the men.

The motion is to be brought up again at next week's meeting.

Five students attended the meeting. Persons who were not there will not be eliminated from the committee.

Squelches Hints At Candidacy

Hannah Rejects GOP Nod

"I do not choose to run." Those words have been said many times in history, but they had renewed significance Thursday. President John A. Hannah said them and they smashed widespread speculation that he would be the Republican candidate against Democratic Sen. Philip A. Hart.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower singled out Hannah indirectly as the man he would like to have oppose Hart in next November's election.

"He did not directly ask me," Hannah said. "He merely said he thought it would be a fine thing if I would run."

Eisenhower placed his stamp of approval on the MSU president at an informal talk to state Republican leaders Wednesday in Detroit at the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel.

"I am definitely not a candidate and I never have been."

Hannah said in his office Thursday. "This issue comes up every couple years, but it used to be that they wanted me to run for governor."

He said he thinks there are greater opportunities in being president of Michigan State.

"What do I want to be a senator for," he asked. "A senator has the opportunity to influence the lives of only a few people."

"In my role at MSU, I have the opportunity to influence the lives of people, not only in Michigan, but around the globe."

One important source inside Republican circles said: "John A. Hannah would be an imposing man on any Republican Party ticket."

He indicated that Hannah would be the most likely GOP candidate to defeat Sen. Hart, who has held the office since 1959.

"I know of no other candidate who would be as attractive as Hannah would at this time," he added.

The MSU president indicated he does not think it is good for him to be considered a candidate.

"It makes education a partisan thing and it really isn't," he said. "The president of a university should not be cast as being partisan and actually I do not feel that I am."

Another GOP source indicated that may be the reason for Hannah's wide-spread appeal to Republicans.

U-M May Study Smoking Effects

The University of Michigan medical school may receive a $1 million legislative appropriation to study cancer and heart diseases reportedly caused by cigarette smoking.

A BUILDING OPERATION -- This site at College and Mott intersection will eventually be the home of the Michigan University of Osteopathic Medicine. About three miles south of the MSU campus, the new learning center will consist of a $30 to $40 million structure containing a 400 - 600 bed hospital and nurses' training school. It will employ approximately 2,000 persons.

It Should Have Been Told

The problem of managed news, one of the 1984-type aspects of life in a technological culture, appears to have found its way to the MSU campus. The administration can be proud that it has found one more way to accustom students to modern life -- by introducing them to censorship at the earliest possible date.

We are talking about administration silence concerning the incredible activities of the MSU "key club" members, six students who found a way to make master keys to many important campus buildings. More incredible than the fact that this could happen at a supposedly well-organized university is the fact that it happened almost a year and a half ago and wasn't revealed until this week.

In a spirit of blissful innocence and heartwarming trust in human nature, the administration nearly a year ago allowed three students who were caught taking part in the plot to turn in as many keys as they wished and remain at school.

These students weren't as innocent as the administration, however, and were clever enough to hold on to some of their keys, as well as to withhold names of other students who were working with them.

The big question is -- why wasn't the news of the lock-breaking plot released for publication last spring when it was discovered?

If students had been informed of the vulnerability of locks on classroom buildings, married housing apartments and dormitory rooms, they could have taken measures to prevent further instances of breaking and entering.

Apartment residents could have setup cooperative groups to watch doors and prevent thefts while friends were out. Dormitory residents might have organized similar arrangements with other students. Even classroom and office buildings might have been safer, if all students had been asked to watch for unauthorized people entering at night.

If students had been alerted to look for people with counterfeit keys they might have been able to help bring in the additional "key club" members earlier.

Managed news is one of the evils to avoid in the futuristic world we seem to be approaching, but its dangers are equally present and equally treacherous today.

Pull Up A Chair!

SEC Sets A Fine Example

It was announced Tuesday following a meeting of Governor George Romney and David Gottlieb, associate professor of education and sociology, that other Michigan colleges and universities may be asked to develop programs similar to MSU's Student Education Corps.

The governor's interest in the program is an encouraging sign that this worthwhile program can be spread to areas of the state which the SEC cannot reach.

Other colleges and universities should follow SEC's lead and get programs of their own going. At least one, the University of Michigan, already has.

SEC-type programs could be of real benefit to nearly every community in this state, particularly large metropolitan areas like Detroit, Flint and Grand Rapids, but MSU-corpsmen or students from other large universities cannot always be brought into these areas because of distances involved.

Nearly every city in Michigan of any size has a community college, however, and it should not be difficult to get students from these schools to participate in their own communities.

Perhaps the end result will be adoption of a proposed "domestic peace corps" to serve all 50 states, but Michigan educators should not sit by idly waiting. SEC can provide help to other schools in organizing programs, but it is up to the educators and students at other institutions to take the initiative of offering their services as MSU students have done.

Canal Zone Resident Airs Panama Views

By JACK SHEA
State News Staff Writer

An MSU student who was born and raised in the Panama Canal Zone has charged U.S. newspapers with misrepresenting the facts in the still unsettled Canal dispute.

"A lot of things they said about the attitude of Americans down there, and about how Panamanian workers are not treated equally, aren't true, or else they need a lot of explaining," said Jim Wilson, Canal Zone sophomore. For example, Wilson feels American papers haven't been fair when they use as an example of discrimination the fact that the Panama Canal Co. pays different wages to Americans and Panamanians for the same job.

He says the wage scale is the same. The only difference is that Americans are paid a 25 percent bonus for working out of the country. He said the bonus has been used as an incentive to get Americans to leave the country and work in a tropical zone.

When asked about the general attitude of Americans toward Panamanians, Wilson recalled his experience while working for a moving company last summer. "In my job, I worked right alongside many Panamanians. We were friendly toward each other...in fact I was even invited to some of their homes."

But he feels that the American press has left the impression that this kind of atmosphere doesn't exist at all, that Americans have nothing but a snobbish attitude toward Panamanians.

Wilson admits there are a lot of things that tend to separate the two peoples, but that for the most part he feels they are due to natural circumstances and should not be blamed on either the Americans living there or the government itself.

A June 1962 graduate of Balboa High School (scene on January 9 of the flag raising incident that precipitated the bloody rioting), Wilson cites the school system itself as a natural circumstance that separates Americans and Panamanians.

He says the U.S. government operates four high schools in the Canal Zone, and that for the most part two are attended by Americans and two by Panamanians. This is due, he says, not to any segregation policy but rather because the Panamanians use a different curriculum and a different yearly schedule than the Americans. He said this should be understandable because of the two entirely different nationalities involved.

Wilson was in Panama during Christmas vacation and was aware that petitions were being circulated to raise the American flag in front of Balboa High School.

The flag had not been raised since last summer when President Kennedy had ordered an extension of the 1959 Eisenhower ruling allowing the Panamanian flag to be flown next to the American flag to express Panamanian titular sovereignty over the Canal Zone.

Kennedy's order extended the ruling to include any place where the American flag was flown. Previously this expression of respect, granted to Panama because of her obvious geographical claims in the area, was limited to only a single official building. Because there was only one flag pole at the high school it had been decided that no flag was to fly at all.

The students, who are very conscious of their citizenship and its external symbols such as the flag, objected. During Christmas vacation they decided to get either the flag raised or else boycott school.

Wilson says that the students feel that concessions of titular sovereignty can only endanger American sovereignty in the Canal Zone. Their feelings are aptly expressed by Wilson when he says, "If you give them an inch they'll take a mile."

In a further comment on the school system, he said the different histories taught by the Panamanian and American high schools have helped to create confusion.

Wilson said that in his year of study in American history at Balboa High, his class spent six weeks on the history of the Canal Zone. The Panamanian high schools spend about the same amount of time.

However in comparing their knowledge, the students of the two high schools find they have learned two different stories about the founding of the Republic of Panama and other related facts.

"This," says Wilson, "could very likely be at the root of the misunderstanding concerning America's legal rights in the Canal Zone."

Listing other factors that tend to create problems -- but are not necessarily the fault of the United States -- Wilson felt the difference in the minimum wage U.S. style, $1.25 per hour, and Panamanian style, 40 cents, was a chief contributor.

Much of the anti-American sentiment might be traced to the fact that everyone can't work for the Panama Canal Co. And those that can't, and who therefore find that the United States isn't doing them any good, want the United States to get out.

Desire For Power Motivates France

By KAREN GILLILAND
State News Editorial Writer

To revive the power and glory that once was France. That seems to have been the purpose for the largest move by French President Charles De Gaulle -- recognition of the Communist Chinese government as legitimate.

The specific objective of this power play was to improve France's position as a balance wheel between the two major powers, the United States and the Soviet Union.

France's interest in the Far East has historical significance. She wants to resume the position of leadership she enjoyed in the Orient before her colonies there became independent. She especially wants a unified, neutral Viet Nam.

Whatever De Gaulle has gained from recognition of Red China, at least it has cost him nothing, neither a franc nor a man.

One Possible Error

However, there is one small monkeywrench which may foul up the machinery of the general's clever plan. It's spelled Nationalist China.

De Gaulle was gambling that Nationalist China would break off diplomatic relations with France when recognition of Red China was announced. Neither of the two Chinas will admit that there are two Chinas, and the idea is especially distasteful to the Nationalists.

Under considerable pressure from the United States, the Nationalist government has maintained its relations with France. Loud objections have been voiced in Taiwan to France's move, but the government is sitting tight.

So, De Gaulle has two Chinas on his hands. It will be interesting to see how he handles them.

Effects Of Recognition

How has French recognition effected the position of Communist China?

It is unlikely that other nations will follow the French example. Still, Communist China can't be kept in the shadows much longer. This is a power which has to be reckoned with eventually.

Red China's status in the developing nations has been improved with French recognition. Therefore, the Soviet Union will have to handle its Chinese ally in a different manner.

Red China finds herself closer to her goals in Asia. Recognition makes weakening the U.S. position in Viet Nam, Taiwan and Japan more feasible.

UN Membership Closer

United Nations membership for Communist China may still be a long way off, but French recognition brings her closer to it.

Thus far, the United States has taken no official action, other than mild protest on France's move. But, as Wesley R. Fisher, professor of political science, has said, "this situation presents a challenge to the United States to devise a more imaginative and forward-looking Asian policy, especially if we want to maintain a leadership role in the East."

The moralistic furor French recognition of the communist government of China has caused among American foreign policy makers indicates a rather odd confusion exists between morality and simple statecraft in the minds of our diplomats.

Arguments Should Stop

To the Editor:
Here we are bickering over what building should or should not be named for John Fitzgerald Kennedy. Here we are bickering over whether or not his grave should have had an "eternal flame." Here we are talking, prattling, talking. What a waste of time and energy!

A true memorial to his personality would be for each of us to kill the seeds of hate that we carry within us, so that they cannot take root and grow into any more hate-filled blossoms such as assassination.

Let's stop talking about discrimination -- and stop discriminating. Let's stop talking about equal rights and just be sure each person has them. Let's stop talking about morality and decency and just be decent people.

"Actions speak louder than words." We must not try to cover our guilt with platitudes and marble memorials. There's only one suitable memorial to JFK and the things he lived for -- a dedication to action on the principles for which he died. He did not die for the MSU International Center or the National Cultural Center or Cape Kennedy, ad infinitum. He died, as he lived, for equal rights and opportunities and the "good life" for all men. Let us act accordingly.

On Sharing Of 'Good News'

To the Editor:
A question was raised in last Friday's State News which requires an answer. The writer, in the article on the "True Church," was inquiring as to how much longer a student must suffer the imposition of being treated as a potential apostate to the True Church.

The author was appalled that some students had the gall to suggest that they had found truth and further disturbed that they were endeavoring to communicate it to others. Have we come to the place where uncertainty and vagueness are extolled while certainty is disdained?

With the world in a semi-chaotic state, it is encouraging to find an occasional oasis of conviction on campus. I would ask a question of those who object to the True Church advocate. Are you so "alarmed" with your anti-True Church philosophy that you try to get converts. For this is what the True Church advocate does. He has found something that satisfies, and he is so enthusiastic with the results that he wants to share it with others.

How much longer will the defenseless student have to put up with the True Church pusher? Just until students become too selfish to share their "Good News," or until there is no more "Good News" to share. The inconvenienced student will then be free, and we of all men will be most miserable.

Bill Would Color Minors' Licenses

A bill to color drivers licenses issued to persons under 21 passed the house Thursday. The bill is specifically aimed at college-age students to prevent tampering with age credentials to obtain liquor. "A green or blue or red drivers license issued to minors, would give liquor store owners proof positive on any question of age," Rep. Floyd Wagner, R-St. Joseph, co-sponsor of the bill, said. A fact finding committee from the Secretary of State's office found that falsification of age on drivers licenses was particularly prevalent in college towns throughout the state. Police officials in East Lansing, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Alma and other university towns in Michigan were interviewed for solutions to the problem and virtually all endorsed the colored license proposal. Sheriff Preadmore of Ingham County summed it up, "this is such a simple solution to the problem - how did anyone ever think of it and when can we start?"

The committee decided to send a delegation to the East Lansing City Council Monday night to seek:

--an extension on the date that the tax report forms are due back at the City Assessor's office

--a moratorium on the payment of such a tax for at least one year.

"We have only eight days left to complete the forms," Gillis said. In some cases the forms were not sent to the persons who normally handle the financial aspects."

Gillis said the request for a moratorium was justified because most houses had not budgeted for this increased tax in their fiscal planning.

"We have a moral obligation to fight this tax," Mrs. Isobel Dickinson, alumni treasurer of Sigma Kappa sorority said. "The U of M and Michigan State are probably test cases for the whole state. If we fail in our exemption bid, other college towns will probably levy a similar tax."

Jerry Wright, ICC president, said that the City Clerk had told him that the Council as such had never discussed the tax at a meeting. Rather, he added, it was an informal approval of the City Assessors request for the tax levy.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington warily eyed the new South Vietnamese leadership Thursday and sought to learn how much damage the latest Saigon upheaval has done to the war effort against Red guerrillas.

President Johnson conferred by telephone with Secretary of State Dean Rusk several times, the White House said, but beyond this offered no comment.

At the State Department, press officer Richard I. Phillips said officials are studying the reports of Wednesday's coup to ascertain whether the question of recognition of the regime headed by Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh will arise. The issue involves legal technicalities as well as policy.

"We have no reports that any Americans were injured in the recent events in Saigon, and the situation there is reported to be quiet," Phillips added. "Until we receive more complete information, and an assessment of the situation in South Viet Nam, I will have no further comment."

Meanwhile, U.S. aid is continuing. The United States, deeply committed in the campaign against the Red Viet Cong guerrillas, is spending some $500 million a year on military and economic aid in the Southeast Asian country.

Reports reaching Washington concerning the overthrow of the Saigon junta by Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh were described as still incomplete and reflecting confusion.

Nonetheless, the consensus in U.S. quarters was that the coup will have an impairing effect on the war effort. Just how much damage has been done remains undetermined.

Some U.S. authorities feel that the greatest harm from the coup comes from the atmosphere of political instability it created. Strong, stable and popularly supported government is needed for successful prosecution of a tough guerrilla war, but one coup tends to breed another.

Some believe the new coup was less disruptive than that of last November, when the military deposed and killed President Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother. This time the overthrow was bloodless, quick and did not pull fighting forces off anti-guerrilla posts in the field.

Phillips denied that U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was informed in advance of Khanh's coup, or that the United States expected it. He said there are always rumors of coups in Saigon, but advance information on this one was not given to the United States.

Prof Calls Take Over 'Personal Power Play'

The American-trained general who seized powers in a swift and bloodless coup Wednesday morning in Saigon has pledged to rid South Viet Nam of would-be neutralists.

Major General Nguyen Khanh broadcast a stinging denunciation of the deposed military government of Major General Duong Van Minh. He said the armed forces will drive out communists and traitors who favor neutralism.

The claim of Khanh, new dictator of South Viet Nam, that his coup was justified to eliminate the threat of neutralism to Viet Nam is an excuse, not a valid reason, for the coup, Wesley Fishel, professor of political science, said.

"A more likely reason for the coup was his feeling that he had been passed over by his fellow generals, that they had plums of power and he was left under the combat tree, rather barren of rewards."

Fishel said Khanh had supported Diem and may have gone along with the original Minh coup because he had to.

In the line-up of high government officials in the new South Vietnamese government only five names of the twenty-three members of the original Minh revolutionary council are missing.

"This suggests to me that Khanh's neutralism claim is an excuse," Fishel said. "Khanh even offered Minh a position as figurehead ruler--Minh was popular--but he refused the title."

"None of the leaders of the Minh regime were openly neutralist, although some privately had second thoughts about the wisdom of continuing the 23-year old Vietcong fight, the end was

So Gen. Khanh is in power now. How long will he be there before another coup will put him down? Whatever will happen, I hope that it will be for the best of Viet Nam.

Will peace ever come to Viet Nam? I believe it will, because we deserve it. For so long Viet Nam had been in war. We had fought for centuries against Chinese control, then against the French and now against Communism.

I was born during the war and have grown up in war; war is not a stranger to Vietnamese youth. We hear every day that people from our home town have been killed in the battle. But I hope that one day the word "war" will be eliminated from the human vocabulary and that we will forget the meaning of "war."

'Iota' Caused Controversy

"It doesn't make one iota of difference!"

Perhaps it doesn't to the 20th century American who issues this statement, but it made a world of difference to the ancient Greeks and the early Christian church fathers.

Iota is the ninth letter in the Greek alphabet, among other things, it was used by ancient Greeks to differentiate between that which means identical and that which is only similar.

Was Jesus Christ identical in substance and essence with God the Father, or only somewhat similar? This was the issue which confronted the early church fathers, who wrote in the Greek language, and culminated at the Council of Nicea in 325 A.D.

Athanasius, an early eastern church theologian, championed the doctrine that Jesus Christ, the son of God, was of the same essence or substance with the Father. He used the Greek word "homoousian," which meant "identical."

His opponents, the Arians, believed that Jesus was similar to God in that He was divine, but not exactly like the Father, their doctrine was labeled by the Greek word "homoousian," meaning somewhat alike. Only the iota inserted in the word gave the early church grounds for disagreement.

The conflict was resolved at the Council of Nicea, where Athanasius held the fort with his doctrine. However, the difference that one "iota" made remains a popular expression today.

Music Program Set Sunday

A music program will be presented by William Stiner, director of choral music at East Lansing High School, and the Elsingers at the Unitarian Universalist Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

Schubert's Mass in G Major will be presented. The program will also include a string ensemble and solo.

The Lansing congregation is now selecting a new minister. Sunday the program committee will bring a number of guests to the pulpit with a lay leader in charge of the service.

Students Volunteer For Summer Aid

About 900 college students are expected to join a volunteer work corps this summer in the nation and overseas under the auspices of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

More than 300 will take part in urban renewal in the United States. Others will work on Indian reservations, hold vacation church schools in fishing villages and lumber camps in Southeast Alaska, develop community recreation program in New Mexico villages, work in hospitals, clinics, schools and communities in Southern Mountain areas.

Before beginning their work, some will attend orientation sessions, during which they will meet with juvenile authorities, social workers, urban development experts and members of the youth commission.

Hundreds of other college students will participate in ecumenical work camps abroad, under the sponsorship of the World Council of Churches.

This year the Commission on Ecumenical Service Projects plans work in the areas of critical social tension and need. For example, education and registration projects in Tennessee and Alabama are being planned to follow up work done by youth volunteers last year.

Michigan State students interested in summer service projects overseas should write to the Office of Student World Relations, Room 924, 475 Riverside Drive, New York, N. Y.

community service and work-camps are available from Student Summer Service, room 1206, 475 Riverside, New York, N.Y.

Student programs, working seminars and ecumenical projects in America are handled by Presbyterian Summer Service and Study Projects, 825 Witherpoon Bldg., Philadelphia 7, Pa.

Volunteers are generally expected to pay their own transportation costs. However, limited scholarship aid is available. Applications will be accepted from students of other than Presbyterian background.

Commissions To Discuss Church Unity

Another attempt to further the cause of Christian unity will begin before Easter when commissions meet to discuss differences between the Orthodox and Roman Catholic faiths.

Archbishop Iakovos, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America, announced that the commissions will be appointed and begin work before Easter.

At the meeting of the World Council of Churches in Odesa next month, the Orthodox prelate will suggest that a conference of all religious leaders throughout the world be called to discuss "the social ills of our time" and the ways religious organizations can eliminate them.

Faith On Campus - Peace Through Jesus Christ

by Ruth Babbitt

We are living in a day when men and women across this nation and throughout the world are searching for peace. Many are looking to wealth, probably still more are looking to a church or religious cult, and perhaps some think they will find peace and security by attaining a college degree which will allow them a good position in the world. Man may search until his knowledge and energy are exhausted but his search will be in vain until he realizes exactly what the need of his heart is. In order to discover this need we must look to the Bible.

Before going further I wish to explain that I believe the Bible does not merely contain the Word of God but that it is the Word of God. I believe that it was verbally inspired by Him in its entirety. The Bible says, "Wherefore as by one man sin entered into the world and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned". (Romans 5:12). Men are lacking peace in their hearts because they are at enmity with God. Because of his sinful nature, man is separated from God, and until he becomes reconciled to God through Jesus Christ, he will not know real peace. So then the real problem is a spiritual one and cannot be solved by material means.

God has provided redemption for the sin of the world. "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins". (1 John 4:9-10)

Many people feel that they can be saved by doing good works, attending church regularly, giving large sums of money to a church or perhaps by being baptized. But the Bible says there is only one way to heaven.

Jesus tells us in the Gospel of John-"I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me." (John 14:6) We are told in the book of Titus-"Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost".

Now when an individual realizes he is lost but that he can be saved it is most important that he takes God at his word and accepts Jesus Christ as his personal Savior. "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness but with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." (Romans 10:9-13)

After confessing Christ as Savior that individual is assured of peace with God. "Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ". (Romans 5:1) When the individual opens his heart to Christ a transformation takes place in his life. He is no longer at enmity with God but rather becomes a child of God. "But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." (John 1:12) "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new". (1 Corinthians 5:17) "Verily, verily, I say unto you; He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life". (John 5:24)

Not only is it wonderful to know the saving power of Christ but it is also a joy to know that he has power to keep us. "For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels nor principalities nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is Christ Jesus our Lord". (Romans 8:38)

Finally, to make this peace complete, we are promised that Christ will return for his own. "I go to prepare a place for you, and if I go to prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am there ye may be also". (John 14:2-3)

We have seen that man is destined to eternal death unless he by faith receives Jesus Christ as his Savior. In other words, this is an individual decision. He has two alternatives: either to receive Christ and spend eternity in Heaven or to reject Christ and spend eternity in Hell—a place which God has prepared for the Devil and his angels and according to the Bible will burn forever and ever.

I praise God that he has made salvation so rich and free. I have accepted Christ as my personal Savior and I thank God for the peace and joy that is mine through this relationship. In testimony of my love for the one who paid the penalty for my sin, even Jesus Christ, I will say with Joshua of old - "Choose you this day whom ye will serve; but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Dress Regs

Most MHA members had not had an opportunity to contact the men of their respective halls at that time. Several members opposed the move because they personally did not believe the regulations should be changed.

The main argument against change was that it would destroy the educational purposes of the regulations.

Lodgers Praise Rodet Prophet

'Glorious' Groundhog Still Venerated By Many

Although for most Americans Ground Hog Day passes with little notice, there are still a few groups determined to preserve the veneration of the February second celebration.

The oldest ground-hog observing club is the Punxutawney Ground-Hog of Pennsylvania, founded in 1898, but it is rivaled by the scornful Slumbering Ground-Hog Lodge of Quarryville, Penna.

Each year members of the Quarryville Lodge don top hats, long fur coats, swallowtails, or togas to observe the emergence of the rodent prophet. After a day of celebration, the brethren gather at the Spanish Tavern to induct new members and sing the praises of the ground-hog.

"Let the scientific fakirs gnash their teeth and stamp with rage--
"Let astrologers with crystals wipe such nonsense from the page--

"We hail the King of Prophets, who's the world's outstanding Sage--TODAY THE GROUNDHOG COMES! Glory! Glory! to the Groundhog, Glory! Glory! to the Groundhog, Glory! Glory! to the Groundhog, TODAY THE PROPHET COMES!"

Ground Hog Day made the Congressional Record in 1952. Davis of Wisconsin, whose home state had declared itself the groundhog headquarters of the world in 1948, accused Pennsylvania of "presumptuously" claiming the same title.

Although the weather bureau claims the groundhog has been right only 28% of the time during the last 60 years, faithful members of groundhog clubs assert the woodchuck has been at least more accurate than the weather bureau.

In the words of the Quarryville Creed they continue to "rejoice that he can, and does, foretell with absolute accuracy the weather conditions for the six weeks following each second day of February."

Art, Red China Head Coming Talk Series

"Understanding and Appreciating Art" and "Red China - The Sleeping Giant" will be added to the Conversation Series of the university's evening college program next week.

Two sections of "Understanding and Appreciating Art" will be offered, one beginning Feb. 5, and the other, Feb. 6. Charles Meyer, assistant professor of art, will be lecturer-leader of both sections.

"The Sleeping Giant," with Kwan-Wai So, associate professor of history as lecturer-leader, will examine Red China's role in the future of the United States. This section will meet on Mondays beginning Feb. 3.

The Conversation Series meets in Kellogg Center at 7 p.m. Both conversations will meet for three hours one night each for four weeks.

'Othello' Ticket Exchange Starts

Tickets for the arena theater production of "Othello", will be distributed Monday through Wednesday, 12:30-5 p.m. Only students with University Theatre coupon books may receive tickets at the Fairchild Theater box office.

Coupon books will be punched for tickets. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Pressmen To Dine On Michigan Produce

Planning a menu using only the products of one state might be difficult if that state produced only one agricultural commodity.

In Michigan, the situation is different. In fact, Michigan's food product "horn of plenty" is making the job easy. Officials are planning the annual All-Michigan Dinner, Saturday at Kellogg Center's Big Ten Room.

Some 700 newspaper publishers and their wives are expected to eat "oh-my-Michigan products" that night. What's more, they will take home a well stocked "loot bag" full of other Michigan agricultural products.

Possibly the only thing not Michigan at the dinner will be coffee and pepper. The real Michigan products fan will substitute milk for coffee and go without the pepper.

Even the floral table decorations are produced in Michigan.

The first course will include cottage cheese and chives in a Michigan greenhouse grown tomato. Then marinated beans and carrots, soaked in vinegar and dressing will follow along with Michigan celery.

The salad will have Michigan greenhouse bibb and leaf lettuce with red radishes.

The main course includes Sebago potatoes, sugar cured haked Michigan ham and will be topped off with a Pillsbury Apple Crisp, made in Ludington.

The dinner has been an annual event for about 20 years. It is put on by the Michigan Department of Agriculture for the Michigan Press Association.

NASA Chief To Speak Here Monday

John C. Evvard, deputy associate director of research for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Lewis Research Center in Cleveland, will give a talk on "Non-Chemical Propulsion," at 4 p.m. Monday in the Engineering Aud.

The program is part of a series of mechanical engineering seminars on problems of outer space. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Evvard received his B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. in physics from the California Institute of Technology. He has served on the faculty there and at Case Institute of Technology. Student Congress Meets

$700 Fund Bill Delayed

By HUGH LEACH
State News Staff Writer

Forensics coach Jerry M. Anderson and members of his debate team watched Student Congress refer their request for funds to committee Wednesday.

Campus United Nations and the MSU Sailing Club both received requested funds.

The debate team requested $700 from Congress, but a motion was made calling for the allocation of $600 to the team.

Speaker Bob Hencken referred it to the finance committee, which refused to recommend the allocation.

Another suggestion brought the request before a special committee for consideration. A proposed resolution to request the administration last week. The bill also requires that the U.N. submit its books to AUSG by May 15.

A loan of $350 to the MSU Sailing Club was received unanimously. The money is to be used for purchasing a sailboat from Ohio State University.

In passing the bill, Congress considered that the sailing club might be unable to purchase the boat if it did not do so immediately. To give more funds to the debate team was also referred to the special committee.

A bill appropriating $200 to Campus U.N. passed unanimously inspite of heavy debate

Lewis To Run Trackmen In Relays

Spartan trackmen will join a track club of 600 entries in the 32-event Michigan Relays at Yost Field House at the University of Michigan at 1 p.m. today. Over 30 midwestern universities, colleges, high schools and track clubs are expected to participate. Among these will be Western Michigan, Miami (O.), Bowling Green, Wayne State and Toledo as well as the Spartan and Wolverine outfits. MSU Captain Sherm Lewis and Bob Moreland head a field of sprinters, which include Dorie Reid of Michigan, Hon Gregg of the Ann Arbor Track Club, Steve Schriefer of Western and Scott Typer of Miami.

In the high jump, State's Fred McKay will compete with such athletes as Michigan's Al Ammerman (fourth in Big Ten last year) and the Littlejohn brothers, Alonzo and James of Jackson. Both Ammerman and Densham have bettered 6'10", while the Littlejohns figure around 6-9.

A strong Spartan entry in the two mile will be Dick Sharkey, who was second in the Big Ten cross country meet last fall. Chris Murray of Michigan, with a 9:21 to his credit and Andy Schram of Miami are other dis-tancers challenging the MSU sophomore.

Relay competition will include the 880, 2-mile, shuttle hurdle, sprint and distance medleys and the college and university mile relay.

"We should be fielding one of the best all-around teams ever," said State Coach Fran Dittrich. "We hope to get some idea where to place our personnel to best advantage by the performances we get in the Michigan Relays. I think with this competition we should be able to ready ourselves for the MSU Relays next week. The boys now should realize that there's only one thing that makes a track team and that's hard work. So you can be sure we'll be looking for some outstanding times."

Fencing Opener Pits Four Teams

What Coach Charles Schmitter calls "the toughest opener in years" confronts the Spartan fencers Saturday when they travel to Colorado Springs for a quadrangular meet with Air Force Academy, UCLA and the University of Wisconsin.

"This will mean that everyone will have to be prepared for a full afternoon of bouts. If anybody is off, we could be hurting."

"The team has really begun shaping up in the last week," he added. "It looks as though we should have a well balanced squad though it will definitely be lacking the depth and experience of last year."

Captain and defending Big Ten sabre champion, Lou Salomone promises to be the big gun for the Spartans. Also starting in sabre will be Dave Simmons, a senior, and sophomore Mark Haskell.

Foil duties will fall into the hands of seniors Nels Marin and Bryan Kutchins and junior Lew Leonard.

In epee, senior John Lewis, and juniors Irvin Holly and Joel Serlin

How Good Are Nators? Answer May Come Saturday

The swimming season is nearly a month old, but for MSU fans it won't begin in earnest until Saturday afternoon when the Green and White face Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Coach McCaffree's young squad has already proved a pleasant surprise with lopsided dual meet wins over Iowa, Iowa State and Purdue. But tomorrow's meet with the Gophers looms as by far the greatest test to date for the MSU nators.

Minnesota placed second to the Spartans in the MSU relays in the first meet of the season. There were, however, two other teams in the meet and points were not awarded on an individual basis.

The Gophers lost to powerful Indiana in a dual meet this season, but they own conference victories over Ohio State and Iowa. Last season Minnesota handed the Spartans a 53-52 setback and went on to place fourth in the NCAA meet.

Besides the talent possessed by the Gopher aggregation, the Spartans will be facing the disadvantage of swimming away from home. It's an obstacle which can be overcome with experience, but, as McCaffree said, "It takes some getting used to."

The young swimmers who have carried the burden of responsibility for the Spartans this year will be forced to play a similar role if the Green and White are to be successful tomorrow.

When the Spartans defeated Purdue last week, five of MSU's seven individual winners were sophomores. The same sophomores have played a key role in MSU's record of 23 wins in 24 individual events in three dual meets so far.

Another factor in MSU success has been junior Dick Gretzinger from Plymouth. He earned All-American honors as a sophomore last year, and he set a varsity record against Purdue with a 2:02.9 clocking in the individual medley.

Depth-Shy Gymnasts Take On Minnesota

The Spartans' depth-shy gymnasts, after a two-week layoff, will take a 2-1 dual meet record into Minneapolis Saturday when they engage the University of Minnesota.

State has lost three performers to leg injuries and will be without the services of twotime NCAA still ring champ Dale Cooper, who has another engagement.

MSU has defeated Wisconsin and Ohio State, lost to Iowa by four points and placed third in the Midwest Open.

State's top men in each event with their best season performances are: floor exercise--Dick Gilberto (8.8), trampoline--John Noble (8.55), side horse--Ted Wilson (8.5), horizontal bar--Dave Price (8.15), parallel bars--Todd Gates (9.4), still rings--Wilson (8.15) and tumbling--Gilberto (9.5).

Minnesota is 1-1 for the year. The Gophers defeated Indiana and lost to Iowa. Minnesota's top performers are Tom Arneson on the side horse, Larry Gleason all-around and Bill Eibrink, rings and high bar.

"We can expect some good competition from Minnesota," remarked Coach George Syzula. "My main concern is that we don't come up with any more injuries so we can get ourselves in shape for the conference championships which follows the regular season."

U-M Cage Rematch Tops 'S' Sports Slate

Buoyed by a thrilling come-back victory over Ohio State Monday night State's basketball team (9-7) will try again to derail the speeding Michigan (14-1) cage express.

The second meeting for the season of the intra-state Big Ten foes will take place at Ann Arbor at 2 p.m. Saturday afternoon.

The first clash came before a sell-out throng in Jenison Fieldhouse last Saturday afternoon. Michigan won 91-77 after having been shaken considerably by three determined Spartan rallies which threatened to produce a remarkable upset.

State came right back from the disappointment of this loss to dump Ohio State at East Lansing, 102-99, OSU's All-American Gary Bradds dropped in 48 points to tie the field house record, but it wasn't enough.

Coach Fordy Anderson feels his team is in position to make an even stronger showing against the Wolverines than it did the first time.

"The team proved to themselves in the Michigan and Ohio State games that they are capable of playing with the best. We'll be more confident of doing well against Michigan than we were the first time," said Anderson.

State probably will go with the same quintet which started early season games, was broken by injuries to several key men and reassembled for the first time against Michigan last Saturday.

This unit has Pete Gent and Marcus Sanders at the forwards, Fred Thomann at center and Bill Schwarz and Stan Washington at the guards. This crew produced 65 of the 77 points against Michigan and 82 of 102 against Ohio State.

Once again the big Spartan problem will be to contain one of the greatest one-two scoring punches in the college game today, Bill Buntin and Cazzie Russell. They totaled 59 points last time against State.

The Wolverines lead the Big Ten with a 5-0 mark and are currently ranked second in the nation by both the Associated Press and United Press International.

Hockey Team Home Tonight

The State hockey team will be out for revenge at 8 p.m. tonight and Saturday night when they meet Minnesota at the Ice Arena.

Last weekend the two teams met twice at Minnesota, with the Gophers winning both contests, 4-2 and 4-2.

State will also be attempting to bring their 7-7 record over the 500 mark in the encounters.

Both teams will have some players missing for the coming encounter. Gopher wing Craig Faulkman and defenseman Dave Metzren, along with Spartan wings Doug Roberts and Don Heaphy have been disqualified from Friday's game because of their participation in a fight which broke out late in the second game of the series at Minneapolis.

Faulkman & Roberts are second in scoring for each of their respective teams.

Faulkman is also tied for third place with State's Mac Orme in the Western Conference scoring race, each has 8 points. Ray Nystrom leads the Gophers in scoring in all games with 21 points.

Michigan State is in a three way tie for fifth place in the WCHA with a 1-3 record. Michigan is tied with Minnesota for first place. A two game sweep of the series could put State back in the race for a play-off position.

The weekend games mark the first home appearance since Dec. 14 for the Spartan squad.

Fencing

will be Schmitter's choices.

"It's going to be a hard road ahead," predicted Schmitter, now beginning his 26th year as Spartan coach. Earlier I was hoping for foil and sabre to carry the most of the load but the last few days have shown epee to be on its way up.

Dennis Moffatt sought a job with responsibility

He found it at Western Electric

Dennis Moffatt, B.A., Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, '57, joined Western Electric in 1961 after two years of graduate work at the State University of Iowa and two years with the Army. Most important to Dennis was the fact that WE offered him the chance to move ahead... fast. Dennis started at Western Electric's Hawthorne Works in Chicago as a Staff Trainee in Industrial Relations.

After only a year with the Company and the completion of one of WE's training programs for college graduates, Dennis became a Personnel Placement Analyst. Advancing rapidly, Dennis was recently promoted to Section Chief. Employment and Placement, Systems Equipment Engineering.

If you, like Dennis Moffatt, want a career with a company that will recognize your skills and abilities, and have the qualifications we're looking for—let's talk! Opportunities for fast-moving careers exist now for liberal arts, physical science and business majors, as well as for electrical, mechanical and industrial engineers. Get the Western Electric Career Opportunities booklet from your Placement Officer. Or write: Western Electric, Room 6405, 222 Broadway, New York 38, N. Y.
