Center Adds 2 Professors

Richardson, Swartz Join Africa Staff

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Staff Writer

The MSU African Studies Center will get a shot in the arm with the addition of two distinguished professors of African studies next fall term.

Irvine Richardson, 46, specialist in the Bantu languages spoken in Southeastern Africa from Kenya to South Africa, will begin work here in September. He is from the University of London, which has a world reputation in the African studies field.

Marc J. Swartz, 32, will teach anthropology of Africa. He is from the University of Chicago and recently completed 18 months of field work in the South Highlands Province of Tanganyika.

Jack Berry and Hans Wolff, both professors of African studies, announced several months ago they would leave for positions at Northwestern University this summer. This caused rumors that the African Studies Center here would decline in reputation.

"The loss of Barry and Wolff is a serious one, but it will not kill the African Studies Center here," said Director Charles C. Hughes. "With the addition of these two new specialists in African studies, the center has great potential for becoming internationally recognized in this field."

Hughes indicated there may be more staff additions later if the center receives additional operating funds.

The center will offer courses in intermediate and advanced Hausa and Yoruba and a course

LBJ On Appalachia Tour, Attacks Republican Heads

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—President Johnson, haranguing through Appalachia, jabbed at a couple of Republican presidential aspirants Thursday, saying they would turn the "American dream into a nightmare."

In remarks prepared for a Knoxville audience, Johnson aimed one jibe directly at Sen. Barry Goldwater, though without naming the Arizona man who aspires to the Republican presidential nomination.

Johnson, assailing "men of timid faith and narrow vision," said that if such people had their way, "The 'For Sale' signs would be on TVA this hour."

It was Goldwater who once said a "For Sale" sign should be posted on the Appalachia properties of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Johnson was inteprevangelistic form as he swung through Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio and Tennessee en route to North Carolina and Georgia. He pounded on public rostrums and whacked his fists together exhorting thousands of fellow citizens to join the anti-poverty army.

The Chief Executive, in his Knoxville text, cited GOP charges that his proposed war on poverty is a "cruel hoax." Johnson did not identify the author of this charge, but aides traveling with him said he referred to former vice president Richard M. Nixon. Johnson said that 30 years ago some people called the Social Security plan a cruel hoax. He added:

"I do not believe you want men of timid faith and narrow vision to speak for the conscience of America. Knoxville is in the heart of TVA country and Johnson took the opportunity to praise TVA as "the world's shining example of how government and free enterprise can work hand-in-hand to help people."

Truman 80 Today, Still Missioned Man

Harry S. Truman, 80 years old today, is still a man with a mission.

The former President is still engaged in the nation's future 11 years after leaving the White House. In surprisingly good health, he gets up at 5:30 a.m. as usual and is in his office at the Truman Library in Independence, Mo., by 7:30.

He said he will campaign in the upcoming presidential election for Lyndon B. Johnson II, as he puts it, "I can do some good."

The former President addressed MSU's one-hundredth graduating class June 12, 1960. Some 2,168 graduates looked on as he received his honorary doctor of laws degree from President John A. Hannah.

"Your heritage is the greatest system of government in the history of the world. If it goes to pot, it will be your fault," he cautioned the graduates.

Much of Truman's time and energies as a private citizen have been devoted to lecturing groups of young people.

On a sunny May morning last Saturday, Truman looked across the rolling green carpet of the library grounds and opined that:

He said he will campaign in the upcoming presidential election for Lyndon B. Johnson II, as he puts it, "I can do some good."

Human Rights Group Action Unexpected

Ordinance To Have Punitive Measures

By SUE JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

An open housing ordinance with punitive measures for persons practicing racial or religious discrimination was recommended Wednesday by the East Lansing Human Relations Commission.

In a surprise move at the end of a three-hour meeting, the commission urged that the City Attorney begin drafting a fair housing ordinance for final consideration by the City Council.

The deciding vote on the motion was cast by James R. Ehinger, a realtor with offices at 203 Evergreen. Ehinger's favorable vote was unexpected because of the strong opposition of the Greater Lansing Board of Realtors to any open occupancy legislation.

In a written statement to the human relations commission, the president of the board of realtors has placed his group on record as being opposed to any "penal or civil penalties for discrimination" and asserted that persons should have a right to live in "racially homogenous neighborhoods" if they choose.

The recommendation for an open housing ordinance was introduced by Robert L. Green, assistant professor of education. It passed by a vote of 5-0, with four members of the commission abstaining.

Earlier, the commission passed a resolution opposing discrimination by persons, agencies or corporation in real estate transactions. The resolution will have no punitive measures if it is approved by the City Council.

It sets up a procedure for handling complaints of discrimination and would empower the Human Relations Commission to aid persons in preparing suits for the Michigan Civil Rights Commission.

The resolution emphasizes mediation and conciliation but has no provisions for legal sanctions against persons practicing discrimination.

Several commission members voted for the resolution as "a first step" but said it could not take the place of a legal ordinance which was later recommended.

Green said local civil rights legislation is often more effective than laws at a higher level. "East Lansing enforces its own laws regarding alcohol and sanitation," he said. "Surely human rights are equally important. The resolution cannot take

The measure, which passed by a 5-0 vote, with 4 abstaining, was strongly supported by Mrs. Mahlon S. Sharp and Robert L. Green, assistant professor of education. The recommendation for an anti-discrimination ordinance was introduced by Green.

NAACP Officer To Speak Here

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, New York City, will speak here today.

He will discuss "Education and the Racial Crisis" at 7:30 p.m., at Fairchild Theater. Wilkins will be introduced by President John A. Hannah, chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. The talk is open to the public.

International Club To Hold Festival

The International Club will present the cultures and traditions of over 20 countries in their 20th annual International Festival Saturday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. in the Auditorium.

The festival, whose theme is "Profiles of Cultures," will have various divisions of presentations. The auditorium basement will display exhibition booths of handicrafts, jewelry, household items and accessories.

The booths exhibition and stage shows are presented free.

Reds Drugged Aides In Odessa, U.S. Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American embassy in Moscow has protested to the Soviets that three U.S. military attaches apparently were drugged while in Odessa, the State Department disclosed Thursday.

The drugging of the marine, naval and air attaches, apparently during a hotel dinner in the course of a March 24-26 visit to the Black Sea port, was described as mild. And so was the U.S. reaction.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the U.S. embassy did not lodge its complaint with the Soviet Foreign Office until May 2, more than a month after the attaches returned to Moscow.

State Department officials said time was needed to complete medical tests which showed the three had received enough barbiturates to cause drowsiness. However, the U.S. investigation was not absolutely conclusive, and the men were not harmed, it was stated.

In London, the Foreign Office said a British assistant naval attaché was with the Americans on the trip and also was drugged. Britain joined the United States in its protest. The Briton was identified as Lt. Cmdr. H. Harvey-Samuel.

U.S. officials gave this account: Marine Lt. Col. J. M. Landrigan, Air Force Lt. Col. W.L. Van Meter, and Naval Lt. Cmdr. Sumner Shapiro, assistant attachés, had dinner at their hotel in Odessa, and spent the night in their hotel rooms. They first noticed a mild impact from what was believed to have been drugs when they awoke the next morning.

U.S. officials do not know of any theft of documents or attempts to compromise the at-

Buchholz To Be In Charge Of Starting College Councils

Bill Buchholz, All-University Student Government administrative vice-president has been placed in charge of Bob Harris's plan to set up college councils.

Harris, Bryan, Ohio, junior and president of AUSG, called for a system of councils to be established within each college, each of which would contain the clubs and interest groups within that college.

Buchholz, Glenview, Ill., junior, explained that the councils would have three main purposes. The first would be to coordinate the groups within the college. The second would be to provide a link between AUSG and the colleges.

The third purpose would be to provide a sounding board for student grievances, such as gripes about courses.

Buchholz said the councils would be set up for the benefit

It Began With Cybele

Mother's Day Idea Ancient

The entire nation will join MSU students Sunday to pay homage to a practice as old as civilization itself.

Although Mother's Day celebrates its Golden anniversary in the United States this second Sunday in May, its origin dates back to the early Greeks.

The ancients worshipped Cybele, mother of the gods, and honored her with rites in the woods and fields. The practice was introduced to Rome about 250 B.C., during the Ides of March, at the festival of Hilaria.

With the advent of Christianity, people transferred their veneration to the Madonna and the "mother church." The Virgin Mary symbolized all women—beauty, patience and suffering.

Again in the 17th century, another method of honoring the female parent developed. On the fourth Sunday of Lent, it was the custom for sons and daughters of England who had left home to visit their mothers. The day was called "Mothering Sunday."

President Woodrow Wilson gave motherhood an official holiday in 1914 when he proclaimed the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day in the United States. He was motivated by Anna M. Jarvis, who devoted years of her life to a crusade for a national day to honor her own and mothers everywhere.

Today most of the countries in the western hemisphere join the United States this Sunday to celebrate the occasion. In America it operates under the principle that this is one day on which mother is not taken for granted.

A special Mother's Day concert on the MSU carillon in Beaumont Tower, featuring the Brass choir, will be given at 2 p.m. Sunday.

World News at a Glance

Britain Says U.S. In Accord

LONDON (AP)—The United States was described by Foreign Secretary Richard A. Butler Thursday as completely in sympathy with Britain's determination to defend the Federation of South Arabia and its key military base, Aden.

British troops are defending them now against hundreds of well-armed desert tribesmen who are encouraged in their attacks by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

Returning from talks with government leaders in Washington, Tokyo and Manila, Butler told newsmen he reached absolute agreement with Secretary of State Dean Rusk on British policy in the Middle East.

Dirksen Holds Rights Discussions

WASHINGTON (AP)—After Wednesday night's spurt of voting, the Senate settled back Thursday to talking about the civil rights bill while Sen. Everett M. Dirksen continued to unwrap his proposed amendments behind closed doors.

The focus of discussions in his office with Senate leaders of both parties, Dirksen said, was on how to head off massive resistance against the bill's anti-discrimination measures.

April Job Increase Over Predictions

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Labor Department says the number of jobs climbed in April by 1,400,000 to 69,877,000.

The department said this was an "unusually large" increase, about 750,000 more than expected.

Action At Last

The East Lansing Human Relations Commission made its first significant move toward combating racial discrimination Wednesday in recommending an open housing ordinance to "protect and preserve and aid in the enforcement of every citizen's right to live in the City of East Lansing."

If the commission's recommendation is followed, the City Council will adopt a law with punitive measures for persons who discriminate in real estate transactions on the basis of race or creed.

The City Attorney has been asked to begin drafting an ordinance.

In the meantime, the commission has recommended that the City Council pass a resolution expressing disapproval of housing discrimination.

The resolution sets up a procedure for handling complaints and empowers the human relations commission to investigate possible cases of discrimination. It emphasizes the value of mediation and conciliation.

However, it has no legal provision for enforcing open housing policies.

Several commission members who approved the resolution abstained from voting on the ordinance. Dan C. Learned, an attorney, said he would rather promote better human relations without the "iron fist of the state."

This is an idealistic but unrealistic view.

As Mrs. Mahlon S. Sharp, another commission member, said:

"Legal action is the last resort when mediation has failed. However, legislation is sometimes needed to bring about desirable behavior."

In other words, laws are necessary when people won't listen to reason.

The resolution is a step in the right direction, but it is no substitute for a firm legal ordinance.

Sense, Not Censorship

The Oakland University Observer has struck another blow in the long fight for freedom of the press. Or has it?

University Chancellor Durward Varner doesn't think so. Varner suspended the campus paper's publication after the student editor had written an editorial charging that Varner had prevented a "sex" story from being printed.

Varner charged the editor, Wolf Metzger, with "irresponsible journalism" and fired him. Metzger charged censorship and said:

"I took the position that we are not acting as a public relations medium for the university and should be free to publish news, even if it is not always in the university's interest."

Sorry, Mr. Metzger, you are wrong.

The university is the publisher of your campus paper, just as

Michigan State is the publisher of this paper.

A publisher of a news paper, be it campus or county centered, has the right to say what goes in to print and what its readers read.

Like it or not a college newspaper appears to outsiders as a public relations organ for its university. Despite disclaimers and notices that the "views of student editors do not necessarily reflect university official opinion," readers tend to believe that the two groups are closely related.

A college newspaper which displays a high degree of responsibility can operate without administration censorship.

Some college papers can effectively publish what they want, without being suspended or having editors fired.

We think that ours does. And so do the better college papers all over the nation.

Legislature Finally Sees

The state legislature, following up its forward-thinking passage of Gov. Romney's record college budget, has approved the $5,000 property tax exemption for off-campus student housing.

This is another encouraging sign that legislators are awakening to the actual situation of colleges and college students.

'Profiles Of Culture'

Tomorrow the International Club will present "Profiles of Culture," the 20th annual International Festival.

For those who attend the festival, these countries can become

"I'm pleased that the legislature has realized the financial plight of the students," William T. Gillis, chairman of the off-campus anti-tax committee, said.

We are even more pleased that the legislature has begun acting in accordance with a realistic understanding of life in college, for both students and faculty.

more than a newspaper headline, and the foreign students—all too often overlooked by American students wrapped up in life between Grand River and Mt. Hope Avenue—can gain real identities.

This is costing us 45¢ an hour!

Letters To The Editor

Views Newspaper Action

To the Editor: While great men like Sheriff Porter and Rep. West are keeping a wise and fatherly watch over our youth, greater men, like Durward B. Varner, chancellor of Oakland University, are finding the "real" solution to our problems.

Varner has finally come up with the perfect answer to the moral tragedy of our young citizens. When he learned that some of the more corrupt youths of Oakland University made a survey on campus morals, Varner gallantly saved the day by firing the editors of the supporting newspaper and burning the remaining copies of the ugly story. Now the problem is solved! The nasty statistics have been removed from view, and Varner has cleverly hid the sinful truth. Thank goodness that there are still righteous fellows like Varner who have the integrity and conscience to keep distastful issues out of the public eye. What better way of getting rid of our problems.

Wants Sales Slip To Avoid Errors

To the Editor: The State News has recently been running a series of articles about a serious problem of East Lansing stores: shoplifting. These well-aimed articles have brought to mind a "pet peeve" of a related nature.

Why do some East Lansing stores refuse to offer a sales slip, receipt, or even a sack for purchases? Surely they are not making so small a profit that they cannot afford these courtesies? Yes, you can ask for a sack or a sales slip, if you can catch the salesperson before they disappear to parts unknown, but should this be necessary? Most items that are sold in this manner are relatively inexpensive and are on open display, exactly the kind easiest to shoplift.

Is it assuming a great deal to feel that a customer is always entitled to at least a sales slip? Penny S. Meharg 311 Phillips Hall

Makeba Review Called 'Slovenly'

To the Editor: Shameless inaccuracies and meaningless clichés may be understandable, and even pardonable, when they characterize a backward county or city newspaper serving an unthinking and ignorant community. But an alert university community has a right to expect a little more from a newspaper which it is involuntarily made to support. It is all the more disappointing, therefore, that the State News—a pace-maker and the best college newspaper in Michigan—which is well-supplied with majors from a reputable journalism department, should frustrate these expectations.

I refer in this instance to Mike Kindman's slovenly review of Miriam Makeba's performance in the State News of last Friday. Many readers may like to know from Mr. Kindman the significance of his terms "tribal" and "dialect." Makeba sang songs from many parts of Africa, a continent that is no less varied in its languages and peoples than Europe or Asia. Are we to understand that Amharic is a dialect of Zhosha or that understanding Swahili is a passport to understanding either one? And what exactly are we to understand by "jungle sounds?" Makeba happens to come from South Africa which is mostly grassland and certainly with no more wooded area than Michigan.

To Mr. Kindman and his type I would like to say, if you must write for the public, first familiarize yourself with your subject. It will save the faces of those who want to be proud of their university and "the rising caliber of its students." If you are incapable of acquiring the relevant knowledge, then take Pope's counsel: "Be silent always when you doubt your sense..."

apart there has been a continuous challenge in maintaining effective liaison and coordination between the two groups.

In addition to the three basic curricula areas of civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering supported on each campus, assistance has been given in one additional area at each institution.

During the 1961-62 era at Guindy two MSU staff members who have since returned to the MSU campus, were active in inaugurating the project in Madras.

Under active consideration in planning and development at the College of Engineering, Guindy, has been the establishment of a computer center. This operation will feature an IBM 1620 digital computer utilizing a card system.

US AID/India has been instrumental in negotiations with the IBM New York in making available at an educational concession rate the complete configuration of machines that will be without question the finest installation of its kind in South India.

Curriculum Aid MSU India Goal

Editor's Note: This is the last of a series on the MSU India Project by Frank S. Roop, instructor in mechanical engineering and former chief of party for the project. It is part of the Our Man Overseas series.

The MSU India Project has as its objectives the improvement of engineering education in relation to the training of new engineering teachers, the improvement of post-graduate curricula, the establishment of research projects, and the furnishing through US AID auspices of various research and teaching equipment.

In respect of these objectives the project provides direct assistance to the College of Engineering, Guindy, Madras State, and to the College of Engineering, Madras State.

There are perhaps three physical manifestations related to the implementation of the project: the assignment of American professors on the Indian campus for a minimum of one year; the participant program under which young Indian teachers are sent to the USA for a period of advanced study; and the procurement of laboratory apparatus to develop research programs.

India capitalizes upon this project by a special engineering instructor training program conducted on the local campuses. The government of India awards three-year fellowship annually to recent top-ranking engineering graduates.

Upon completion of post-graduate study, they will teach in the engineering colleges for at least three years. This indigenous teacher trainee program, begun in 1959, in conjunction with the US AID participant's program for advanced study in the U.S., is making a major contribution in relieving the acute shortages of qualified teaching staff in the engineering colleges.

Eight American engineering professors and one administrative officer are currently serving under the MSU India Project, with an equal division of professors in location at Guindy and at Poona. Since these two locations are some 900 miles

Dr. Prescott Honored For Work With Algae

A botanical "detective" who has tracked "killers" from one end of the Western Hemisphere to the other received Thursday the highest award Michigan State University scientists annually confer on a colleague. Dr. Gerald W. Prescott, professor of botany, was given the senior award of the MSU chapter of the Sigma Xi scientific society for nearly 35 years of outstanding research on algae. Algae are a form of plant life that includes most seaweeds and the green scum often seen on lakes. While some of the thousands of species of algae are helpful to man, many others are important because of the damage they cause. Eighteen species are known to produce lethal poisons; these are the ones in which Dr. Prescott has specialized. The "killer" algae, he said, sometimes cause large-scale deaths of fish and livestock, particularly in the western states and sections of Canada. They often attack without warning, he noted. They build up under the surface of a lake slowly at first and then rapidly. Overnight, it seems, scum appears. "Unfortunately," Dr. Prescott said, "most people do not know enough about botany to catch the first signs. By the time a farmer sees scum forming on the surface of his pond, it is too late. The poison is in the water." Algae, he said, can be controlled by applications of copper sulfate and other chemicals.

MSU's men's glee club, the Singing Statesmen, is looking for additional members, director Loren Jones disclosed Wednesday. "We wish to increase our membership from the previous number of 45-50 to approximately 90 men," Jones said. "We have very strictly limited membership in the past," he said, "and turned down more than have been accepted, but I find this too precarious with the large turnover between terms." Those wishing to join are to contact Jones, 355-7643.

Combos, Bands In Jazz Show

Phi Mu Alpha fraternity's 7th annual Jazz Show will be presented at 7 and 8:30 p.m. Monday in the Music Auditorium. Featured will be several small combos, and the MSU Jazz Band, better known as the TV Orchestra, which placed 2nd and 3rd respectively in the Villanova and Notre Dame Collegiate Jazz Festivals this year. The big band was also the first place winner in the big band category at the 1962 Notre Dame Collegiate Jazz Festival, and several of its members have won individual awards at the festival. The Jazz Band, directed by graduate student George West, and composed entirely of graduate students but two, will feature some of the arrangements of students in the Arranging for Mass Media class. The 18-member big band will perform Joel Leach's arrangement of "This Could Be the Start of Something Big," Eric Wendland's version of "The Days of Wine and Roses," Larry Wocjak's arrangement of "Wood n' You," and Bruce Early's version of "Green Dolphin Street," and his own "Fatterflea." Small groups appearing are the Jazz Duet, with piano and guitar; the Radio Quintet, its name a spoof on the TV Orchestra, with piano, bass, drums, trumpet, and saxophone; and the Vocal Quartet, which sings in a jazz style. Co-chairmen for the concert are Jim Kot, Lansing junior, and Al Mraena, Owosso junior. Commentator will be Joel Leach, graduate student and percussion instructor. The fraternity has arranged two performances to accommodate the large crowds that are drawn each year, and those interested are advised to arrive early to get a good seat. Michigan State's Gamma Epsilon chapter of Phi Mu Alpha is one of the largest chapters of the national professional music fraternity, and is one of the few to have its own house.

Rises With Education Shelter Receptiveness

A recent MSU department of communications survey in the Lansing area indicates that young men under 35 are more receptive to the idea of civil defense and fallout shelters, and this favorable attitude increases with the degree of education.

While not specifically mentioning university students, the survey implies that college men would fall into this group.

"Respondents with these characteristics knew more about nuclear radiation and fallout shelters, and were more favorable in their opinions about things related to civil defense," Robert J. Mertz, spokesman for the communications department, said.

The study, under the direction of David K. Berlo, communications department head, was a coordinated national survey to assess the public's reaction to the booklet, "Fallout Protection," issued by the Office of Civil Defense following the Berlin Crisis of 1961-62.

The survey was finished early this year, Mertz said, and the results have just been finalized.

"The study attempted to determine the accuracy of public knowledge about nuclear attack and civil defense," Mertz said.

Unitarians Function Without Pastor

By LINDA MILLER
State News Staff Writer

A church without a minister may seem like a fish out of water, but Lansing's Unitarian-Universalist Church has survived minus its pastor since August, 1963.

The faith's methods of selecting a new minister are long and involved, Mrs. Howard L. Jones, committee coordinator, said.

The Lansing Church is nearing the final stages of choosing a pastor, but if the man they select declines, the process must be repeated. If he accepts, he will assume the position this summer.

Meanwhile, what keeps a church going without its visible head?

Mrs. Jones said that the regular duties of a minister are either eliminated or substituted for by committees.

The preaching is done by outside speakers. Among those who have given sermons are Harold Walsh, professor of philosophy, Thomas H. Greer, professor of humanities, the Rev. Fred W. Graham, instructor in religion, Maurice Crane, associate professor of sociology.

Mrs. Jones said that any speaker who is not a member of the church is paid for his services.

The music sub-committee brings guest soloists, both instrumental and vocal, into the church every other week. There is no regular choir.

A lay leader conducts the service in the same manner as the minister would, except that he does not give the sermon. Readings are taken from the Scriptures and the thoughts of great men.

"There are fewer meditations," Mrs. Jones said, "because lay leaders feel awkward doing this."

Mrs. Jones has assumed responsibility for the publication of the pastor's newsletter. When church members need counseling, she arranges for them to go to a civic agency.

Funerals are handled by other ministers in the Lansing area. A Unitarian minister from Jackson is referred to for wedding ceremonies.

Church school is normally handled by lay leaders. Mrs. Jones' husband and Gerald Miller, assistant professor of communication, are advisors to the Channing-Murray student fellowship. It meets in the Union and plans its own programs.

Lansing's Unitarian-Universalist Church was originally established as a Universalist Church when Lansing became the capital city. The building was lost during the depression, but a handful of people kept the congregation together.

A fellowship of Unitarians on campus during the 1940's began to use the present church, on the corner of Holmes and Prospect, on Sunday nights. Those who had children sent them to the Universalist Sunday school.

In 1957 the Unitarians and Universalists came together, three years prior to the national merger.

Historically, the central doctrine of Universalism is salvation for all. Unitarians stress the oneness of God, holding that the Trinitarian concept is man-made and therefore in error.

"We emphasize tolerance of other viewpoints because they are so divergent," Mrs. Jones said.

"We accept many of the values of Christianity, but ideas of other religions, too. It is agreed when a person joins that he has come to his own religious belief."

She said that the purpose in meeting is to bring new ideas to light. Adherents hold that they will never reach a final unchanging belief.

Few of the 160 members of the Lansing congregation grew up in the Unitarian-Universalist faith. Members' beliefs range from orthodox Christian to atheistic.

"When those with Christian backgrounds join," Mrs. Jones said, "it means they have thought about their faith. This is especially true of the University-affiliated."

About one-third of the members are connected with MSU.

Gent, Lewis Gain Honors

Basketball star Pete Gent and All-American halfback Sherman Lewis have won the major annual University awards for athletes.

Gent has been named to receive the Conference Medal. To Lewis goes the Chester L. Brewer Award. Presentations will be made at the annual Varsity Club awards picnic on campus June 3.

The Conference Medal is awarded annually at each Big Ten institution to the graduating senior who has attained the greatest proficiency in scholarship and athletics. The selection was made by the athletic council, governing body of athletics at the university.

Gent was a three-year basketball regular and team captain his final season. He led the club in scoring all three years and received numerous All-Conference and All-American mentions.

The Brewer Award, named in honor of the university's first full time athletic director, goes annually to "the graduating senior who has distinguished himself, both in athletics and scholarship, and who in the opinion of the head coaches, director of athletics and the athletic council, possesses in the highest degree those qualities of character, leadership and personality which forecast a successful career."

Lewis, an education major who several times made the academic honor roll, was a brilliant football and track athlete.

In track, he won three Big Ten titles (two broad jump and one 300-yard dash), one IC4A (broad jump) and participated on two Penn Relays winners (440 and 880 relays).

In football, Lewis was a three-year regular and co-captain and most valuable player his senior year. He made All-Conference three straight years and last fall was a consensus first team All-America selection.

Weakened Trackmen Face Irish

The Spartans will carry a handicap to South Bend when they take on Notre Dame in a dual track meet.

MSU will be hampered by the absence of top sprinter Bob Moreland and quarter-mile star John Parker who are sidelined by leg injuries sustained in the Penn Relays.

Walker Beverly, who won the 100 and 220 last week against Ohio State, will carry Spartan hopes for victory in the dashes. Ron Horning, Joe Barnett, and Dick Mather will see 400 action.

Notre Dame's strength rests with its hurdlers and distance performers who have scored well for the Irish this spring.

Miller Bill Clark, two-miler Frank Carver, hurdler-high jumper Peter Whitehouse, and quarter-miler Bill Boyle are Notre Dame standouts with Boyle regarded as the top 440 man in the school's history.

The Spartans will counter the Irish in the hurdles with Fred McKay who was victorious in both the high hurdles and high jump against the Buckeyes.

MSU swept both the mile and two-mile against Ohio State and hope to outdo the Irish in that category Saturday.

Jan Bowen and Rick Zemper loom as the top bets in the mile with Zemper and Dick Sharkey running the two-mile.

The Spartans will be taking part in their second dual meet of the outdoor season after running in the Ohio and Penn Relays and facing Ohio State last week.

Notre Dame fell to Army, 97 1/2 - 51 1/2 in its last dual encounter.

'Must Win Weekend' For State '9'

Batsmen Leading Big Ten

Michigan State's baseball team, with five players in the top twenty Big Ten hitters, has taken a big lead in the team batting race.

The Spartans, hitting at a .284 clip in league competition, hold a 24 point advantage on second place Wisconsin.

Sophomore John Biedenbach, who shares the third base spot with Steve Juday, has collected six hits in 12 appearances at bat to move into third place with a .500 mark.

Mal Chiljean, who was in the number three position last week, has slipped to eighth place. The senior shortstop is hitting .353 while outfielders Joe Porrevecchio and Dick Billing are at .350 and .300, respectively. Jerry Sutton, All-American first baseman is hitting .333.

On defense, the Spartans have a .960 fielding average, fourth in the Big Ten. State has erred nine times in 229 chances, while pulling off five double plays.

The NEWS in SPORTS

Play Iowa, Illinois

'Keep Hustling' Tennis Cry

The State tennis squad will play at home for the first time this weekend with two chances to rebound from Tuesday's setback at Michigan.

MSU takes on Iowa at 2:30 this afternoon and Illinois at 9 a.m. Saturday.

The Illini meet the Hawkeyes on the Spartan courts at 10 a.m. today. Michigan takes on Illinois at 2:30 and the Hawkeyes tangle with the Wolverines at 9 a.m. Saturday.

The four team round robin may shed some light on what could be one of the tightest Big Ten conference races in the league's history.

Standings will be determined at the loop meet May 21-23 at Champaign, and, at present, most of the teams look strong.

"This spring I've seen the best Big Ten tennis since I began coaching," said Spartan Coach Stan Drobac.

"It's going to be one of the best conference meets we've ever had. The team that keeps hustling will win."

The Green and White stand 2-1 in the conference and 10-4 overall after Tuesday's loss to the Wolverines.

Michigan whipped MSU 8-1, but the Spartans were in contention in all but one match.

"Michigan's always been tough," said Drobac. "I don't think the boys disgraced themselves."

Iowa finished fifth, one notch behind MSU, in the Big Ten meet last season, and the Hawkeyes have six lettermen back from that team.

Illinois has five returning lettermen including Captain Frank Noble who finished runner-up in the conference at second singles in 1962.

Tuesday the Green and White will face the Northwestern Wildcats who ran away with the conference title last year and figure to be a strong contender for this season's championship.

Meet Hawkeyes, Gophers

Fast starting Michigan State, 5-1 in the Big Ten and 18-5 in over-all baseball competition, again faces a crucial weekend of play.

The Spartans fly to Iowa City for a Friday afternoon contest with the University of Iowa and a doubleheader Saturday against Minnesota in Minneapolis.

Should State defeat the Hawkeyes and if Minnesota spills conference leader Michigan (6-0) Friday, the Saturday twinbill would decide the Big Ten leader.

Coach Danny Litwhiler's Spartans shouldn't have too much trouble with the Hawks, Iowa dropped three in a row to Minnesota and has fallen to ninth place in the league with a 105 record.

"We have been set back seriously by injuries," said Iowa Coach Otto Vogel. "and the team is not nearly as strong as it was in early April."

Catcher Jim Freese has been leading the somewhat meager hitting attack with a .338 mark and 14 runs batted in. Jay Peterson (.306) is the only other hitter above .300. The Hawkeyes are batting only .230 as a team.

Pitching, however, has been exceptionally solid. The mound staff has held opponents to a .220 batting average, while allowing less than five runs a game.

Saturday's twinbill with Minnesota will be the gib test. The Gophers have rebounded from a bad spring training trip to become serious contenders for the Big Ten title.

Dick Siebert, in his 17th season as coach of the Gophers, has been forced to change his early season prediction. "Down in Texas we looked like we didn't belong in the league," he said. "However since coming back we have improved in all departments and could finish in the first division."

Minnesota also boasts a stingy pitching staff. In the three games against Iowa it allowed just two runs and has a season ERA of only 2.07.

Minnesota, batting only .250 as a team, has sophomore outfielder Dave Hoffman at .355, Bill Davis (.329) and Alan Druskin with a .304 mark.

John Krasnan, with a 5-0 season record and a 1.73 ERA will get the call Friday for the Spartans and John Ellward (3-0) and Bill Collins (3-2) will start Saturday.

Have The End Zone Blues? Answer's Green-White Tilt

Fifty-yard line seats for 50 cents.

That's the bargain being offered students for Saturday's second annual Green-White game at Spartan Stadium.

Game time is 2 p.m. but if you're one of the early arrivals when the ticket gates open at 1, your general admission stub will get you any seat in the stadium.

On the field, a Green team of mostly first and second unit players will take on a White team, many of whom are first-year gridmen.

This marks a switch from the formula of past years which called for splitting the squad's talent as evenly as possible.

"We're not doing it this time because I don't want to expose my top offensive and defensive units against each other," Coach Duffy Daugherty said. "We're too thin to take unnecessary injury chances."

The Green outfit will have a starting offensive unit of Don Ross at center, Ted Harris and John Darpinski at guards, Jerry Rush and Rahm Bentley at tackles, Tom Krzemienski and Dick Flynn at ends, Dave McCormick at quarterback, Dick Gordon and Harry Ammon at the halves and Gary Rugg at fullback.

Improving Linksters In 8-Team Meet

The golf team, off of a fine two rounds last Saturday against some of the best competition in the conference, will attempt to up it's 4-2 Big Ten mark this weekend.

State will travel to Iowa City, Iowa to compete in an octagonal meet against six conference opponents and one independent.

Defending Champion Minnesota, along with Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Northwestern, Wisconsin, and Notre Dame will furnish the competition and perhaps provide a solid clue as to the Green and White's chances in the conference tournament.

Last Saturday, lead by a fine performance by Jackson senior, Phil Marston, the Spartans beat Michigan, Wisconsin and Northwestern while losing to Indiana by a scant five strokes. Marston has averaged 74.0 in 12 rounds this season.

Backing up Marston this week will be regulars Bob Meyer, Dick Marr, Shep Richard and Doug Swartz. In addition, sophomore Ken Benson, who shot a 74-81-175 last week will take over the number six position.

Seven of the nine men who saw action in Saturday's games showed improvement and all were under 80 for two rounds. Thus State's short game, which has been giving them difficulty due to lack of practice, is improving.

Rope Jump Cutback Seen

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI)—Rope jumping, horseshoe pitching and other summer recreation endeavors may become victims of the Grand Rapids Board of Education's austerity program.

The Board, which cut out all school sports, extra curricular activities and made other cutbacks in its programs for next fall, also has eliminated paying $70,000 toward the cost of summer recreation programs in the city.

The issue now is up to the city of Grand Rapids which will have to carry the total cost of about $100,000 if the summer programs are to continue.

MEN'S Fraternity Track

S.A.E. by virtue of its overall strength won the fraternity track crown edging D.T.D. and A.T.O. who were tied for second place. Two records fell and another was tied as 15 fraternity teams competed for the track title.

Dick Tinsler of S.A.E. bettered the existing mark for the 220 yd. dash running it in 23.0, eclipsing the old mark by 0.3 sec. Dave Warner of Delta Sigma Phi set a new fraternity record in the 100 yd. dash with a winning time of 10.3 sec. He also bettered the old mark by 0.3 sec.

The other record performance was turned in by Bob Combs of Sigma Chi in the 60 yd. low hurdles. Combs tied the record set back in the spring of 1958, with a time of 7.7 sec.

All Due To Boll Weevil!

Service 50 Years Old

The Michigan Cooperative Extension Service will be 50 years old today and owes it all to the boll weevil.

Ralston

More than 50 years ago the Texas cotton crop was being devastated by the boll weevil. The U. S. Department of Agriculture sent out a professor to disseminate pest control knowledge.

University is performing a unique and vital role in bringing the educational resources of the University into every Michigan county.

N. P. Ralston, director of MSU's Cooperative Extension Service, came to MSU in 1949 as head of the dairy department.

Officially created by the Smith-Lever Act in 1914, the Cooperative Extension was to work between the Morrill grant schools and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Under terms of the legislation an Extension Service was set up in conjunction with each land-grant college throughout the country.

The "cooperative" title stems from the three-way support of extension work through Federal, state, and county funds.

"These people in addition to education, teach through the mass media, radio, television, and newspapers," William E. Miller, forest entomologist and staff member of the MSU Extension Service said.

In the past year nearly 16,000 news releases, 25,785 radio broadcasts and 1,506 telecasts were made. Nearly half a million phone calls were answered in response to requests for information in county and MSU offices.

"This is one way of getting to people who have no direct contact with an agent," Miller said. "Our objective is to get as much information out to as many people as possible."

One of the guiding principles of the Cooperative Extension Service through the years has been to "help people help themselves."

"Fifty years ago MSU was finding things out that would be useful for others to know," Miller said. "So we began to send our people out to teach others what we had learned through our research."

Much of the knowledge comes from the sister agricultural experiment service which does for research what we do for education, Miller explained. More than 300 scientists are working on about 400 different projects, he added.

What's ahead for Extension Service? New scientific approaches for programs aimed at helping the state's citizens are already being planned and carried out. Extension will be guided in development of educational programs in the future by the motto of "Better Living Through Learning."

Drugged Aides

taches while they were asleep in their hotel rooms.

The three returned to the American embassy, where the tests were made. They still are in Moscow.

U.S. strategists do not regard the latest incident as a major blemish on U.S.-Soviet relations and Washington sources indicate there will be no U.S. retaliation beyond the protest already filed in Moscow.

Cases of Communist harassment, of Western military attaches are fairly common, presumably because of Russian belief that such men actually are spies for their countries.

There were two previous incidents involving U.S. attaches in Russia earlier this year. In February, a crowd stopped two naval attaches in a car in Leningrad. In March, a crowd surrounded two air attaches on a visit to the city of Tula.

U.S. authorities figure the Russian "citizen" reactions against alleged snooping by the attaches was officially inspired.

Vertical Score Sheets Passe

Gradually being introduced are new machine scoring answer sheets with spaces arranged in horizontal rather than the customary vertical design.

The reason for this, according to Willard Warrington, head of Evaluation Services, is a change-over to a new high-speed computer for processing examinations.

The IBM 1230, which replaces the twenty-year old IBM 805, is capable of doing everything the old computer did but in one-third the time, he said.

With the new answer sheet design, Warrington said, the computer need only scan the filled-in portion rather than the entire surface as before.

One of the distinguishing features of the IBM 1230 is what is called the optic reader. This device, Warrington explained, functions the same way as the human eye would.

"If the reader sees that a paper has poor erasures or stray dots," he said, "the machine can be programmed to pick the heaviest mark."

"The old machine, which used a system of electric current, required the use of electrographic pencils," he said. "With the new setup, students will be able to use any pencil they have."

Under the old system, Warrington said, it was necessary to score everything three times to guard against multiple marks.

Warrington said the new machine can now be programmed to do one of three things:

-It can reject the answer sheet and process it through a separate hopper.

-It can omit the item.

-It can score the item as an incorrect answer or else penalize the student a set number of points.

Probably the most important advantage of the IBM 1230, according to Warrington, is its ability to furnish item analysis. This is a process which judges the discriminating ability of each question.

State Sees $37 Million Surplus

Spend $629 Million

Record general fund spending of $629.1 million during the next fiscal year will still leave Michigan with a $37.1 million surplus, State Controller Glenn S. Allen said Thursday.

Allen said final legislative action will leave the budget, which has all cleared the lawmakers except for the school aid bill, within one third of 1 per cent of the Governor's revised March recommendation of $631.4 million. It marks an increase of about 15 per cent over current spending, Allen said.

"No departments were decreased, some figures were higher than the governor wanted and there were a few things he didn't get at all," Allen said. "We did very well by getting that close and it shows we had great cooperation with the legislature."

The reason for the downward revision of earlier surplus estimates, according to Allen, is the state has decided to speed up its liquor bill payments from a 90-day to a 30-day basis for the first time since the "cash crisis" of 1959.

"This will drop the surplus $20 million either at the end of this fiscal year or next, depending on when we start", Allen said.

Allen pointed out that in only seven instances where Gov. Romney was required to make a "dollar" recommendation the legislature failed to go along with something. They totaled only $500,000 he said.

The figures all include the senate plan for increasing the school aid formula $5.7 million to $26.7 million over current operations, while Romney had asked for a $21 million boost. Should the legislature finally decide to drop the $3 increase per pupil approved by the senate but now in conference committee, the budget total would be $623.4 million, or $8 million less than Romney's late recommendations. However, the total would still be right on the button with his original January proposals.

The constitutional budget figure is $696 million, Allen said, because of the new requirement that places the old primary school interest fund payments in with the general fund.

Asks Rededication To Former Goals

A re-examination and rededication of traditional American principles was part of a Detroit educator's recommendation for the nation's current political and social situation.

Bernard Landuyt, dean of the University of Detroit College of Commerce and Finance, spoke at an East Lansing Lions Club meeting Thursday, on the subject "Can We Survive as a Free Economy?"

Also at the meeting the club's annual Albert J. Cordray scholarship was presented to Nandinar S. Gill, graduate student in agricultural education.

Gill, a native of India, is the fourth winner of the award, named for the University's first foreign student adviser, Cordray, now an associate professor of American Thought and Language.

He said the award is a way to "rebut the ('un-wisdom') down at the capitol against having foreign students here because it costs too much money."

Wildlife Reflected In Seal

History Recorded In State Symbols

Editor's Note: This is the last of a three-part series on Michigan government.

By MAURICE CRUM
State News Staff Writer

"If You Seek a Pleasant Peninsula, Look Around You."
This is Michigan's official motto, appearing in Latin on the Great Seal of Michigan which was designed by Gov. Lewis Cass. The state's first seal was adopted by the first constitutional convention in 1835.

The secretary of state is custodian of the Great Seal which is stamped on all state documents.

The largest figures in the circular insignia are an elk and a moose, standing on their hind legs, facing each other and supporting a shield between them. On the shield is a man with a gun in his hand, standing on a peninsula in front of a rising sun. Above him is the word "Tuebor," which means "I will defend."

Above the shield and below a banner displaying the "E Pluribus Unum" motto is the U.S. eagle with its wings spread.

There had been other seals used before 1835. In 1805, when Michigan became a territory, Gov. William Hull used his own seal temporarily.

When Cass took office in 1835, he designed the territorial seal which was used until 1835. It resembled the second one, but instead of the elk and moose, two eagles held the shield. On the shield was a small tree, explained by the legend, "the shoot at length becomes a tree."

Cass patterned the shields after the one used by the Hudson's Bay Company.

The display of only one peninsula seems to be an obvious discrepancy on the present seal, but at the time Cass drew it the Upper Peninsula was not a part of the state.

A joint resolution of both houses in 1911 established the Cass seal, without the words "The Great Seal of the State of Michigan," as Michigan's coat of arms.

At that time the state flag was adopted. The legislature declared it would be blue and would bear the state coat of arms.

The state's first flag was presented in 1837 to Gen. Hugh Brady's guards by Michigan's first governor, Stevens T. Mason, at his Detroit home. On one side was a picture of Mason standing beside a white horse. On the other side was the figure of Brady and a woman seated nearby.

Some think artist Alvin Smith meant the woman to represent Detroit.

The D.A.R. had restored the Brady flag and presented it to the capitol in 1912, but it has been missing for several years.

Legislative acts proclaimed the Apple Blossom as the state flower in 1897, but Michigan has no official state bird or song.

There is a resolution in the house now which would adopt the Kirkland's warbler as the state bird.

A bill in the senate state affairs committee now which would adopt a song written by Veatrice Smiley of Lansing as the state song. It is entitled "Our Michigan Heritage" and was introduced by Sen. Paul C. Younger, R-Lansing.

Leona Witter, a dramatic soprano of Lansing, is going to sing the song in the Senate when it comes out of committee.

Economic Activity Justifies Optimism

All indicators of economic activity justify the optimism of President Johnson and his advisers about the current upswing in the national economy, Robert F. Lanzillotti, professor and chairman of economics, said.

The President, indicating his optimism to a business gathering Wednesday, added that the full effect of the tax cut has not yet reached its peak.

Lanzillotti said increased profit reports, increased consumer purchasing power, the full effect of which is yet to be felt; and an anticipated increase in plant and equipment investment are all indicators of a rising economy.

These factors build a strong foundation to sustain high level economic activity, he said.

He also said another factor in the expansion is a more sophisticated attitude on the part of businessmen toward economic problems.

There is always the possibility of renewed inflation if there is pressure on the wage front, Lanzillotti said. This could create a wage-price spiral resumption, he said.

Hard core unemployment is the one sour note of the whole increase, he added.

This problem will be alleviated somewhat in the expansion, he said, but it is partially a structural flaw.

The flaw is caused by the lack of skill or the chronically unemployed, he said. With the present day demand for more highly skilled and educated labor and increasing automation, these people are left by the wayside.

Tax reduction does not offer much help because a person needs a regular income to feel its effects, and the unemployed do not have such incomes, he said.

What is needed in this area is retraining and then relocation to an area having a demand for the skills, Lanzillotti said.

There are moderate retraining programs going on right now, he said.

Also there is the possibility of a renewal of coal mining operations, an especially hard hit area, in the light of new developments in removing petroleum from coal, these will not come about for the next four or five years, though, he said.

The rise in prosperity will continue until the end of the year, he said, but it is difficult to make predictions beyond that. It depends on the way wages and prices go and the way the business community handles economic problems.

Open Housing Law

the place of a legal ordinance. Several commission members who approved the resolution were not in favor of recommending an ordinance.

Mrs. Stephanie H. Barch, a research assistant in zoology, said the commission should try mediation and conciliation before recommending an ordinance.

"To this date, we have not had a chance to try mediation," she said. "I think we should attempt to bring about better human relations without legal force."

Mrs. Mahlon S. Sharp, who supported an ordinance, said it would not impair the ability of the commission to "mediate and conciliate."

"Legal action would only be a last resort after mediation and conciliation have failed," she said. "I believe there are times when legislation is needed to bring about desirable behavior."

"An ordinance will not take away anyone's rights. It will merely ask citizens to behave as they should toward their fellow citizens."

Green, Ehinger, Mrs. Sharp, Robert F. Morgan, Buffalo, N.Y., graduate student; and the Rev. Wallace R. Robertson voted in favor of the ordinance motion.

Abstaining were Mrs. Barch, Dan C. Learned, an attorney; Thomas B. Scheppers, an official of the East Lansing State Bank; and Thomas K. Berlo, chairman of the communications department.

The commission also passed another resolution which recommends that the City Council pass an ordinance with punitive measures against persons who harass people attempting to buy or sell houses.

The motion was sponsored by Dan C. Learned, an attorney. "This motion is prompted by information that some residents have received phone calls of a vile, abusive or threatening nature when they were engaged in a real estate transaction. "I don't think a great deal of this is going on, but a few cases point out the need for a law." Learned said orderly civil rights demonstrations do not constitute harassment.

Singers Present Concert Sunday

The State Singers, under the direction of Richard Klausli, associate professor of music, will give their annual Spring Concert at 8:15 p.m. Sunday in the Peoples Church.

The singers, a vocal group with enough talent to form an orchestra from within its ranks, will present a program of music ranging from a Gregorian chant to some of the most recent works that have been written.

Soloists with the group, 84 strong, will be Don Schramm, Buffalo, N.Y., sophomore, baritone; Arcola Clark, Detroit graduate student, harpist; and Keith Amstutz, Midland graduate student, trumpeter.

Accompaniment will be provided by Corliss Arnold, assistant professor of music and director of music at the Peoples Church.

The orchestral group will perform with the group J.S. Bach's "To Thee Alone Be Glory," Joseph Haydn's "Kyrie Eleison," and John Sanders' "Festival Te Deum," one of the more recently composed works on the program, and contemporary in vein.

Among the works to be presented will be "Iron Bells," a musical setting of Edgar Allan Poe's famous poem by Wallace DePue, Columbus, Ohio, graduate student, a member of the State Singers. DePue will direct the work himself.

Heinz Werner Zimmermann's "Praise Him, Sing Unto God," is a composition of sacred music with elements of the jazz idiom. Klausli explained that Zimmermann, a young German composer, feels that church music and secular music ought not to be so widely separated in styles as we find them in the present day.

This idea is not so new, Klausli explained, as the sacred Gregorian chants were very similar in tonality to the traveling troubadours' songs, which did not seem strange to the medieval person, and the similarity was also found between the 16th century religious motets and secular songs.

The singers will also perform Lazare Saminsky's "Hallel Hammitry," a musical setting of several verses of Psalm 118 which are a part of the Jewish liturgy and are sung at all Jewish festivals.

Richard Klausli

Works by Lotti, Bach, Purcell, and Handel will be among the other works to be performed, which include an American folksong. The State Singers recently returned from their annual Spring Tour, which took them to cities in Michigan and Indiana, and included an overnight stay at St. Meinrad's Archabbey in St. Meinrad, Indiana.

While at St. Meinrad's, the singers were guests of a special symposium given for them, at which they heard lectures on medieval musical notation, alchemy, monasticism in the Carolingian era, and medieval Latin parodies.

They gave a concert for the monastic community and seminarians in the evening, and also sang two motets, sacred polyphonic choral works, during mass in the archabbey.

This was the second appearance they have made at the monastery on special request. Next year's tour includes a performance at St. Thomas Church in New York City, along with other cities on the eastern coast.
