Dark Viet Nam Cloud Follows Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the roughest presidential campaigns in modern history neared its end Sunday, with the usual last-gasp flurries—and with the dark shadow of Viet Nam hovering over it.

On Tuesday more than 70 million voters answer the critical question that has always worried, sometimes excited and often bored this nation for two hectic months: Should Lyndon B. Johnson be kept on as president for the next four years, or should the job be given his Republican challenger, Sen. Barry Goldwater?

Johnson Tarries In Detroit, Urges Sincere Ballot Choice

By Susan J. FILSON
State News Staff Writer

President Lyndon B. Johnson made a last-minute campaign appearance in Detroit Friday and urged a crowd of 5,000 to "vote for what you know in your hearts is right for the nation and the world."

clear responsibility, Johnson said. "You must decide which man you want to lift up the receiver when the hot line rings in the White House."

Peace, Johnson said, depends on reason and responsibility as well as strength. "One miscalculated, impulsive, reckless move of a single finger on a button could incinerate our civilization."

The President and his wife Lady Bird made an hour-long stop at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport before continuing on a final campaign swing through the Midwest. The mission was probably designed to boost Democratic gubernatorial candidate Neil Staebler. Most polls indicate that Michigan's 21 electoral votes are safely in Johnson's pocket.

Johnson called a vote for Goldwater a vote to "flush the bi-partisan foreign policy of the past decade down the drain."

Johnson accused Goldwater of automatically opposing every measure designed to stimulate the economy.

Hammering at the theme of nuclear responsibility, Johnson said: "You must decide which man you want to lift up the receiver when the hot line rings in the White House."

"The tax cut bill which was passed last year will mean $1.3 million a year more income for American families," Johnson said. "And Senate minority leader Everett Dirksen has worked with me as he did with President Kennedy on foreign policy questions."

Johnson ignored several conspicuous signs saying that "LBJ needs Romney."

He promised that a Democratic administration will "continue the prosperity of the past four years."

He unveiled figures in the Labor Department's September report which show that average weekly income has risen to $103.94. The cost of living, Johnson said, is only up .2 per cent over August.

"The average family is $9.84 better off today than it was on the day President Kennedy took office," Johnson emphasized. "And this figure takes account of the rise in the cost of living."

Mom, Children Doing Fine

JACKSON, Tenn.—The State of Tennessee gained its first recorded quadruplets Sunday. Mother and children are doing fine.

The father, the Rev. Willie Grant Lyons, a 45-year-old Negro preacher and farm laborer, is "mighty happy." But he's worried, too.

He commented: "I'm rejoicing. You can't do anything but rejoice."

Recent Flash Attack Kills Four Americans

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson sought means Sunday to tighten defenses against mortar attacks such as raked a U.S. air base in South Viet Nam Saturday. He immediately replaced the jet bombers destroyed in that strike.

The nocturnal, flash attack on Beinh Hoa Airfield near Saigon killed four Americans and destroyed five B57 twin-engine light jet bombers.

This latest enemy blow in the lingering, war against the Red Viet Cong guerrillas came at the close of the presidential campaign in which this conflict has figured as an issue with the Republicans charging the administration with ineffectiveness.

The President's post-attack steps were announced by the White House following a 75-minute Sunday afternoon meeting between Johnson and top aides including Secretary of State George W. Ball and William P. Bundy, assistant secretary of state for far eastern affairs.

The administration tended to regard the affair as serious because of the loss of life and planes, but not as a major development in the long drawn out war against the Red insurgents.

It was seen as an episode of a type difficult to prevent in such a war where the enemy has many opportunities for such hit-and-run surprise attacks.

Presidential Press Secretary George Reedy issued this statement after Johnson was briefed by his advisers: "The President met with the secretaries of state and defense to receive reports on the Viet Cong flash raid at the Beinh Hoa Airfield."

"Steps in cooperation with Vietnamese authorities in local defense measures were discussed and the President was informed that his orders to replace the aircraft lost in the raid had been carried out."

About 40 of the B57's were moved into Viet Nam after the August Tonkin Gulf incident and are regarded as a tacit threat

But a significant capability to mount such an attack has rested with about 40 B57's which were flown into South Viet Nam last August after the first Gulf of Tonkin shooting incident.

Sources said the Communists could have caused more havoc to the war inside South Viet Nam, if instead of striking at Beinh Hoa, they had attacked the big Tan Son Nhut air field near Saigon.

The South Vietnamese air force and the U.S. 2nd air division both are headquartered at Tan Son Nhut. There also, can be found Skyraider dive bombers, C123 transports and other craft which directly support Vietnamese field operations against the Communist insurgents.

Viet Cong Try Plane Knock-Out

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communist mortar attack against a big air base near Saigon may have been a "preventive war" stroke aimed at knocking out U.S. bombers that could be used against Red North Viet Nam.

This was the view in some military quarters Sunday as Pentagon officials studied reports from South Viet Nam of the assault on Beinh Hoa Field near Saigon. Twenty B57 jet bombers were destroyed or damaged.

Some military sources suggested the Communists had another motive—to display their ability to mount a punishing strike against an important U.S. base.

There has been recurrent talk about the possibility of carrying the war to the north, although less in recent months than last spring when the pro-Communists were on the move in Laos and the situation in South Viet Nam seemed to be slipping badly.

The rainy season is now about over in South Viet Nam and some authorities in the past have spoken privately of November as the earliest time when such operations to the north might be carried out effectively.

There have been no indications that any decision has been made by the United States to do so.

But a significant capability to mount such an attack has rested with about 40 B57's which were flown into South Viet Nam last August after the first Gulf of Tonkin shooting incident.

Presidential Issues: Communism, Corruption

The presidential campaign which promised to offer voters "a choice and not an echo" ends today for Lyndon Baines Johnson and Barry Morris Goldwater. Approximately 115 million voters will write the finish to the 1964 presidential story Tuesday.

Goldwater and Johnson represent two widely divergent philosophies of government, at home and abroad. Beneath a sea of superfluous campaignatory, the issues which separate the two candidates are real and deep.

The Bomb

Goldwater has proposed throughout the campaign that certain NATO commanders be given control of "tactical nuclear weapons" in the event of a communications blackout with the White House during a war. Johnson has called Goldwater's suggestion "nuclear irresponsibility of the highest order."

Goldwater maintains that NATO commanders were already given this option during the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations. He has accused Johnson of making a campaign issue out of a policy which he (Johnson) already has authorized.

Johnson backed up by the Democratic platform, says that power over nuclear weapons should rest only in the hands of the President.

Goldwater voted against confirmation of the nuclear test ban treaty in the Senate. Johnson strongly supports the treaty, citing President John Kennedy's favorite statement that "a journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step."

Goldwater terms the treaty an act of political naivete, citing what he calls the Soviet record of deceit and broken agreements in Berlin, Southeast Asia and Cuba.

Morality

When the campaign began, the furor over Bobby Baker's questionable financial dealings as secretary to the Senate majority had nearly died down. Goldwater hammered hard at the Bobby Baker scandal throughout the campaign, but it did not seem to be developing into a major issue until the Walter Jenkins case broke.

Jenkins resigned two weeks ago as an aide to Johnson when it was disclosed that he had been arrested on two separate morals charges. Goldwater has charged that Johnson is "surrounded by corruption."

Johnson called for a complete investigation of the Jenkins case to see if any security secrets had been endangered. He said he knew nothing of Jenkins' arrest until he resigned.

Civil Rights

Goldwater maintains that the public accommodations and fair employment sections of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 are unconstitutional. He says that he believes racial problems must be solved by state and local agencies rather than the federal government.

Goldwater says if he is elected president, he will enforce the civil rights law unless it is declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

Johnson strongly supports the civil rights law which he helped engineer through Congress. He says that Goldwater could not enforce a law which he believes to be unconstitutional. Johnson maintains that local government in the many areas has failed to protect the rights of Negroes and that the federal government has a right and duty to intervene. Speculation has centered around a possible "white backlash" in racially tense Northern cities which could turn normally Democratic votes to Goldwater.

For the first time in nearly 80 years, Republicans have developed effective organizations in the South to work for their presidential candidate. Resentment of the civil rights law could turn many Southern votes to Goldwater.

Communism

Goldwater regards communism and capitalism as unalterable enemies. He says that there can be no permanent peaceful coexistence, that one side must triumph over the other. He advocates a "tough" line toward communism, says that America

Vice-President's Job Gains Responsibility

The vice-presidency, once considered a job for political nonentities, has taken on new importance in the past decade.

Candidates this year are Democratic Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and GOP Rep. William E. Miller.

Humphrey, first elected to the Senate from Minnesota in 1948, is now serving his third term. As majority whip, he steered the civil rights bill through the Senate during the last session of Congress.

A life-long liberal, Humphrey began his political career as Mayor of Minneapolis in 1945.

The 53-year-old senator is also a former pharmacist and political science instructor.

If elected, Humphrey will probably be given more responsibility than any vice-president in history. President Johnson says he regards the role of the vice-president as that of an "assistant president."

William E. Miller has been a congressman from upstate New York since 1950. He was chairman of the Republican National Committee 1961-1964.

Miller was the district attorney for Niagara County, N.Y., 1948-1950. He served as assistant prosecutor at the Nuremberg Nazi war crime trials after World War II.

Hare has been a teacher in Detroit's public school system and at Wayne State University. He is a former chairman of the Michigan State Safety Commission. He received his B.A. from Wayne State University and his M.A. from the U. of M.

Frank Kelley

Frank J. Kelley, a 39-year-old Democrat, is running for his second elective term as state attorney general. Kelley was first appointed to the post by former Gov. John B. Swainson in 1961.

Kelley, a lawyer, has served as Alpena City Attorney and as a member of the Alpena County Board of Supervisors. He has been active in the Alpena United Fund, Northeastern Michigan Child Guidance Clinic and Alpena Catholic Family Service. He is a graduate of the University of Detroit and received his law degree there in 1951.

has followed a constant policy or retreat since the Truman years. Goldwater opposed the U.S. sale of wheat to Russia and says soviet cultural exchange groups are composed of "trained spies." He has charged that the Johnson administration is "soft on communism."

Johnson says that the communists do not want war and that they desire coexistence with the West. He says that cooperation between America and Russia increased during the Kennedy years and cites the nuclear test ban treaty as an example. He maintains that Goldwater's hostile attitude toward the Soviet Union would increase the risk of nuclear war.

Goldwater says that peace will only be preserved if communists know that America "is willing to risk nuclear war in defense of freedom."

These are the major issues of the campaign. The choice is now up to the electorate.

Election Issue

Trustees To Gain 2 New Members

Eight candidates for the MSU Board of Trustees will vie for two seats in Tuesday's election. Both major political parties and two minor parties are represented in the contest in which two incumbent Republicans are seeking re-election.

The new Michigan constitution which went into effect Jan. 1, 1963, calls for an increase in membership of the Board of Trustees from six to eight and extension of the six-year terms to eight years.

Following adoption of the constitution, the legislature authorized the governor to fill the two vacancies for the calendar year 1964, those two positions to be filled at the fall election for eight-year terms beginning Jan. 1, 1965.

Gov. George W. Romney appointed Paul D. Bagwell and John S. Pingell as the new members. The two Republicans brought a 4-4 balance of political power to the board.

Bagwell ran twice for governor of Michigan in 1958 and 1960. He was an MSU professor of speech and headed the department of written and spoken English (now American Thought and Language). He holds an honorary doctor of literature degree from Yankton College, South Dakota.

Pingell, a 1938 MSU graduate, was named all-American halfback and played professional football with the Detroit Lions. He was an assistant football coach and administrative assistant to the dean of students here. He ran for the Board of Trustees in 1961. Both men live in Grosse Pointe, where Bagwell is president of K-S Funds, Inc., of Detroit, and Pingell is executive vice president of Ross Roy, Inc., a Detroit advertising agency.

The two Democrats challenging the incumbents are Frank Hartman of Flint and Clair White of Bay City. Hartman is a member of the State Board of Governors, on which he did not seek re-election.

Hartman is superintendent of Carman School District, Flint, and White teaches economics at Central High School, Bay City.

At its state convention, the Freedom Now Party nominated Eugene S. McGuire and Grace Lee Boggs, both of Detroit, for the two seats.

Running on the Socialist Labor Party ticket are Theos A. Grove and Albert Mills, both of Utica.

At a special session of the legislature in December, 1963, terms of the present trustees were extended one year.

Warren M. Huff and Frank Merriman, through December, 1966; C. Allen Harlan and Conner D. Smith, through December, 1968; Stephen S. Nesbit and Don Stevens, through December, 1970.

The constitution gives the board general supervision of the university and control and direction of expenditures from MSU funds. It also selects the president of the University, who presides at meetings of the board as an ex-officio member.

Romney vs. Staebler: In Barry's Shadow

The cliff-hanging gubernatorial race between incumbent Republican Gov. George W. Romney and Democrat Neil Staebler may be decided by the size of Michigan's vote for Lyndon B. Johnson.

Most political polls show Romney with a slight edge, but a Johnson landslide could sweep Staebler into office.

Before the Republican national convention in San Francisco, Romney looked like a cinch for re-election. When he took office in 1962 as the first Republican governor of Michigan in 14 years, Romney was faced with a $105 million state deficit.

Today the state has a $57 million surplus in the treasury.

Romney admits that most of the credit for the state's fiscal recovery belongs to the national economic boom of the past two years which was immediately felt by Michigan's auto industry. However, he says that his administration helped the recovery along by practicing economy in government and attracting new businesses to Michigan.

Another plus on Romney's record is the new state constitution which was approved by voters in an April 1, 1962, referendum.

Romney's campaign for the governorship in 1962 was closely linked to the new constitution. He was the first chairman of Citizens for Michigan, a non-partisan group which aroused voter interest and circulated the petition necessary to call a constitutional convention. Romney's stamp is apparent throughout the whole new constitution. Michigan Democrats bitterly opposed adoption of the document after Romney was elected governor, largely because it apportioned state senate districts on an area as well as a population basis.

In 1962, Romney was able to lure thousands of Democratic votes. He was aided by labor support garnered when he had devised the first profit-sharing plan for employees as President of American Motors Corporation.

Until San Francisco, it looked like Romney would be able to put together the winning combination again.

However, the nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater placed Romney, like most Republican moderates, in a quandary. At the GOP convention Romney fought for a stronger plank on civil rights and one condemning extremism.

Throughout the campaign, Romney has withheld support from Goldwater, declaring his reliance on the record of "Michigan Republicanism."

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Staebler has at times seemed to be running against Goldwater rather than Romney.

No novice in politics, Staebler was chairman of the Michigan Democratic Party during its greatest period of growth and success, 1950-1961. In 1962 Staebler was elected congressman-at-large from Michigan.

He said in a recent campaign speech in Pontiac: "Romney doesn't know who he's for and who he's against. He won't support Goldwater, and he won't disown him. I know who I'm for for president—Lyndon B. Johnson—yesterday, today and tomorrow."

While Staebler appeals to voters who dislike Goldwater, Romney continues to be hampered by Goldwater enthusiasts within his own party who are disgruntled because he has refused to support the Arizona Senator.

Turning to state issues, Staebler sharply criticizes Romney for his failure to obtain a tax reform bill from the legislature. Like Romney, Staebler favors a personal state income tax.

He has said repeatedly that Romney should have been able to make the legislature pass his tax reform bill.

"When Romney was elected, he promised that he would be able to obtain cooperation from diverse elements in the state government," Staebler says. "Well, he hasn't been able to do it, and I think it's time the voters of Michigan elect someone who delivers on his campaign promises."

Staebler is a 1926 graduate of the University of Michigan.

Lt. Gov. Must Belong To Governor's Party

For the first time in State history this year, Michigan voters are required to select a lieutenant governor who belongs to the same party as the governor.

The new state constitution which became effective in 1963 links the lieutenant governor to the governor, just as the U.S. Constitution ties the vice-president to the president.

The provision was written into Michigan's new constitution in hopes that it would eliminate the possibility of friction between the two highest state officers.

Republican Gov. George W. Romney and his Democratic Lieut. Gov. T. John Lesinski have quarreled over political issues several times during the past two years.

Candidates for lieutenant governor this year are State Sen. William G. Milliken, R-Flint, and Robert A. Derengoski, Democratic state solicitor general.

Milliken, a member of the moderate group of GOP senators who have supported Romney, was elected majority floor leader in 1963 while serving his second term in the state senate.

The 42-year-old Milliken, a World War II veteran who was awarded a Purple Heart, has been a member of the Michigan Waterways Commission and Board of Trustees of Northwestern Michigan College. In 1953 he was selected by the State Department to spend 75 days in Germany on a cultural exchange program.

Robert A. Derengoski was handpicked for the nomination by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Neil Staebler.

Derengoski resigned from his post as state solicitor general to run with Staebler. He was a legal adviser to former Governors John B. Swainson and C. Mennen Williams.

He is a former assistant attorney general of the State of Michigan. He received his B.A. and law degree from the University of Notre Dame.

Harold W. Hungerford is the Republican candidate for state representative from the new 58th district, created by the state constitution. He is an incumbent.

He told the League of Women Voters that he is opposed to any increase of taxes, particularly through a state income tax. "I have not been, nor am I now, nor will I ever be for an income tax," he says. "We have more than enough taxes now. Expenditures should be increased only if the need is substantiated. We must make sure that the people who pay the taxes receive a dollar in value for every tax dollar spent."

U.S. Congress— Sixth District

Charles E. Chamberlain—R

Running for re-election in a severely altered 6th Congressional District, U.S. Rep. Charles E. Chamberlain, R-East Lansing, is considered a safe bet to be back in Congress for his fifth term.

Chamberlain, who won his seat four times in a district that included heavily Democratic Flint, now is running in a mainly Republican district centering on Lansing and Jackson.

Chamberlain has voted along conservative lines in Congress. The Congressional Quarterly said he has voted against 90 per cent of all bills that would expand the role of the federal government.

He has voted in opposition to foreign aid bills of the Kennedy-Johnson administration, saying we should not give aid to Communist countries or to countries trading with Cuba, and against the Johnson Poverty Program.

Chamberlain has accused the Democrats of having a "why worry, let's charge it" attitude, and says, "We should have the courage to dig down in our jeans and pay for what we want."

Chamberlain was born in Webberville 47 years ago. He graduated from the University of Virginia and is an attorney.

He served in the Coast Guard for four years during World War II and is a commander in the Coast Guard Reserve.

Chamberlain's career of public service includes work as assistant Ingham County prosecutor.

Chamberlain is married and has three children.

Boyd K. Benedict—D

Boyd K. Benedict, Democratic candidate for U.S. representative from the new 6th District, is a man who is familiar with the area he seeks to represent.

Benedict, 38, was born in Portland and graduated from Portland High School in 1943. He attended City College in San Francisco and received his bachelor's degree in government from Michigan State in 1955.

From 1943 until 1946, Benedict served in the U.S. Navy, both in the United States and in the Pacific Theatre.

In December, 1955, Benedict was hired as city manager of Durand, a railroad center located in Shiawassee County. He continued in that position until December, 1959, when he resigned to become administrative assistant to Lt. Gov. John B. Swainson.

Benedict stayed with Swainson through his term as governor. When George Romney became governor in 1963, Benedict accepted the position of executive secretary of the Municipal Finance Commission, a position which he still holds.

Benedict, who describes himself as a liberal Democrat, is married to the former Mary Anna Baptista of San Francisco. They have three children, two sons and a daughter, all of whom attend East Lansing High School.

Benedict said he is a strong supporter of the present administration. His main differences with his opponent, incumbent Charles Chamberlain, are in the area of the role of government in relation to people.

Although he said he has great respect for his opponent and thinks he is an honest, high-principled man, Benedict said he probably would have voted the opposite of Chamberlain on most issues, especially where social legislation is concerned.

"I don't think this district was stepped into 1964 and it won't with its current representation," he said.

'Coattails' Big Question In Election

By the Associated Press

The spotlight is on the presidential race in Tuesday's election, but across the nation there are a number of key contests for governor and senator. In many cases, they are intertwined with the presidential race. In brief, they are:

Arizona
Democrat Sam Goddard, who lost his bid two years ago, is challenging Republican Richard Kleindienst, a former campaign aide of Sen. Goldwater, Republican Gov. Paul Fannin is shooting for another post this year—Goldwater's Senate seat.

Arkansas
Gov. Orval Faubus seeks an unprecedented sixth straight two-year term. Winthrop Rockefeller, brother of New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, is making a determined bid to become his adopted state's first Republican governor in a century.

Rockefeller has accused Faubus of building a vast political machine with state jobholders, and criticized his handling of illegal gambling operations in the Hot Springs resort area. Faubus has accused Rockefeller of being a racial integrationist. A rejuvenated Republican organization and a sharp increase in the number of Negro voters could be the keys in this race.

California
Sen. Pierre Salinger, a Democrat, has been campaigning feverishly for the Senate seat to which he was appointed this summer after the death of Democrat Clair Engle, Republican nominee George Murphy, once a stage and screen song-and-dance star, has been going at a more leisurely pace and reportedly has cut sharply into Salinger's early lead.

Salinger, onetime White House press secretary, has emphasized his association with the late President John F. Kennedy. Murphy, while agreeing with most of Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater's views, has declined to endorse him. Both candidates are plagued by some infighting in their own parties.

Illinois
Gov. Otto Kerner, a Democrat, seeks a second term. Charles H.

leaders presented the secretary of State's office with 330,000 petition signatures requesting that the Massachusetts ballot be put to popular vote.

The referendum was granted, since only 138,242 signatures, or 5 per cent of the total vote cast for all candidates in the 1962 gubernatorial election, were necessary to place approval or rejection of the law before the voters this fall.

Most political analysts, including Charles R. Adrian, professor and chairman of political science, believe that the Democrats' success in gaining a referendum vote and the state Republicans' decision to forego strong campaign backing for the law will result in voter rejection of the Massachusetts ballot.

"Since the Massachusetts ballot hasn't received much campaign backing from the Republicans and is a hard-to-dramatize issue at best, the average citizen doesn't have much interest in the referendum," Adrian said.

The referendum question, as it will appear on the ballot: "Shall Act 240 of the Public Acts of 1964 be approved? This act eliminates a straight party ticket and requires a separate vote for each candidate voted for and provides that in General Elections, candidates' names shall be grouped under office titles (Massachusetts-Type Ballot) rather than under party headings (Present System)."

Percy, fresh from a successful business career, has been campaigning since July 1963. A victory could push him into the future GOP presidential picture. The outcome is expected to hinge on the traditional Downstate-Republican vs. Chicago-Democrat vote.

Kerner has cited an improved economy and state financial picture and tried to tie Percy to Goldwater. Percy has charged Kerner with failure to reappoint the state legislature. He has endorsed and campaigned for Goldwater.

New York
Vote switching also is expected to be a factor in New York's Senate election between Republican incumbent Kenneth B. Keating and former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of late President.

Kennedy has drawn large and often emotional crowds since plunging into the campaign in a state which he hasn't lived in since early childhood. Keating has been hammering on this "carpetbagger" issue.

Voters To Decide Tuesday On Massachusetts Ballot

Michigan voters will either approve or reject the controversial Massachusetts ballot law Tuesday in the first statewide referendum since 1950.

The Massachusetts ballot, which has been Michigan law since May, would eliminate single-lever or single-mark straight ticket voting in future state elections if it is approved by a majority of Tuesday's referendum voters.

Under Michigan's present Indiana or "party-group" ballot form, which is used by 19 states, candidates are listed by political party. A voter can vote for all the candidates of a party by making one "X" on a paper ballot or pulling one lever on a voting machine.

Also known as the "office-group" ballot, a Massachusetts ballot identifies candidates by party but lists them by offices sought, requiring anyone wishing to vote for all candidates on a party slate to vote for each office individually.

The Massachusetts ballot became state law last spring after backing by Republican Gov. George Romney and a straight party-line vote in the legislature.

It would have been in effect for this fall's general election if strong Democratic party opposition hadn't forced the law to become Michigan's first referendum in 14 years.

In a referendum campaign aided by the Committee on Political Education (COPE) of the Michigan AFL-CIO, Democratic leaders presented the secretary of State's office with 330,000 petition signatures requesting that the Massachusetts ballot be put to popular vote.

The referendum was granted, since only 138,242 signatures, or 5 per cent of the total vote cast for all candidates in the 1962 gubernatorial election, were necessary to place approval or rejection of the law before the voters this fall.

Most political analysts, including Charles R. Adrian, professor and chairman of political science, believe that the Democrats' success in gaining a referendum vote and the state Republicans' decision to forego strong campaign backing for the law will result in voter rejection of the Massachusetts ballot.

"Since the Massachusetts ballot hasn't received much campaign backing from the Republicans and is a hard-to-dramatize issue at best, the average citizen doesn't have much interest in the referendum," Adrian said.

The referendum question, as it will appear on the ballot: "Shall Act 240 of the Public Acts of 1964 be approved? This act eliminates a straight party ticket and requires a separate vote for each candidate voted for and provides that in General Elections, candidates' names shall be grouped under office titles (Massachusetts-Type Ballot) rather than under party headings (Present System)."

Congressional Districts To Reshuffle Tuesday

The 19-member congressional delegation which Michigan voters will elect Tuesday will represent new districts decided upon last year. The position of congressman-at-large, necessitated by the addition of one congressional seat after the 1960 census, will be eliminated.

The new districts divide the state's population nearly in accordance with the "one-man, one-vote" district of about 411,000 constituents.

In this area, the redistricting gives Lansing voters greater control over the results of their congressional race. Rep. Charles E. Chamberlain, R-East Lansing, is running for re-election in the new 6th District, including Ingham, Shiawassee and Jackson Counties. The old 6th District included Ingham, Livingston and Genesee Counties, and balanced the votes of Republican Lansing against those of Democratic Flint.

In the state as a whole 10 incumbent Republicans and five incumbent Democrats are running for re-election. All the Republicans are in "outstate" districts and all the Democrats in Wayne and Macomb Counties.

The party balance after the election is expected to be about the same. All 15 incumbents are given a good chance of re-election.

In the remaining four districts, Democrats are given the edge in the 1st and 15th Districts in Wayne County and the 7th District of Genesee and Lapeer Counties and the 19th District in Oakland and Wayne Counties could go either way.

Romney Charges Kelley With 'Double Cross'

DETROIT--Gov. George Romney has accused Attorney General Frank Kelley of a political double cross. Kelley announced Saturday that Romney illegally ousted three top Michigan National Guard officers. Romney says Kelley reversed himself in legal advice given the governor's office prior to the firing of the three top officers. However, Kelley says his legal advice was not sought prior to the taking of the dismissal action.

Romney fired three high ranking Guard officers for alleged irregularities in Michigan National Guard activities. They were accused of mismanagement, Kelley says he will make known his official legal opinion Monday.

Halloween Crash Claims Seven Lives

AUBURN, N.Y.--Seven youths, but for an evening of Halloween fun, were killed Saturday night in an automobile accident, one of several that spread the grim blackness of death across the nation's highways.

The seven boys, two of them possibly hitchhikers, died when their car went off a curve and slammed into a tree in a quiet residential area on the edge of Auburn, N.Y.

One youth had been fined $50 only hours earlier on a charge of speeding, state police said.

Pasternak Companion Released From Jail

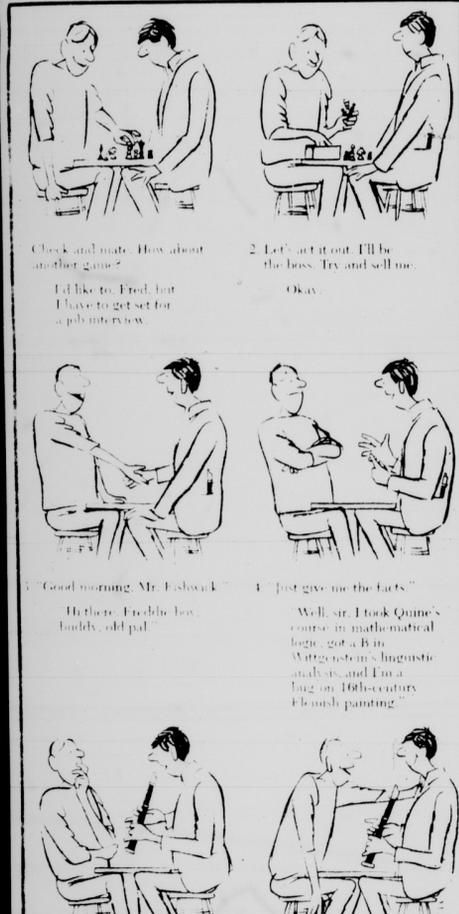

MOSCOW--Olga Inviskaya, beloved companion and inspiration for the late great novelist and poet Boris Pasternak, has been quietly released from jail, reliable sources said Sunday.

Mrs. Inviskaya, who was the model for Lara in Pasternak's Nobel-Prize winning "Dr. Zhivago," was jailed after his death in what even the party-line secretary of the Soviet Writers' Union later called "a shameful action perpetrated against the memory of our late highly-respected colleague Boris Pasternak."

West Berlin To Help Prevent Escapes

BERLIN--Well-informed sources said Sunday the West Berlin government has threatened to jail anyone who helps refugees flee communist East Germany while the wall is open for West Berliners to visit relatives in the East.

The informants said the West Berlin police are also under orders not to publicize any escapes or other incidents at the wall during this period.

Recognition Immoral?

The United States today bases non-recognition of nations on a moral instead of a practical basis, according to Robert J. Maddox, assistant professor of history. Maddox voiced that opinion in a speech sponsored by Delta Phi Epsilon professional fraternity Thursday night at the Union.

Maddox said that the policy of non-recognition in the United States dates back to Herbert Hoover's policy of containment with Russia.

Hoover believed that certain internal contradictions within the Communist system would eventually bring about its downfall, said Maddox, and if the United States refrained from normal relations with Russia, it would be at an advantage when negotiations took over the country.

Coed Injured

A Webster, N.Y., junior received a broken leg when her motorcycle collided with a car at Albert and Charles Streets Friday.

East Lansing police said Margaret Denimore, of Rt. 1, Bath, drove her car into the path of the motorcycle. Mrs. Denimore was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way.

Sing A Song Of Pumpkins

"The Great Pumpkin" has come and gone, but 15 crowds welcomed him to campus last week by singing pumpkin carols in honor of his visit.

The coeds, led by Debbie Grant, Larchmont, N. Y., sophomore; Ellen Zurkey, Rochester, N.Y., sophomore; and Barb Friedmann, Detroit, sophomore, sang carols on campus to make "The Great Pumpkin" feel part of MSU.

The coeds sang to fraternities from the Sigma Chi house to Shaw dorm. They followed the same route used last year to welcome him.

"We wanted to remind MSU students," said Debbie, "that the Great Pumpkin only brings goodies to those students who have been good during the year."

Staebler Victory Predicted

August F. (Gus) Scholle, head of the Michigan AFL-CIO, predicted Friday that the race between Gov. George Romney and Democratic candidate Neil Staebler will be the closest contest in Michigan.

"I think Staebler will win," said Scholle, "but it's going to be a tight one."

Scholle expects President Johnson to carry the state easily. "Johnson may carry the state by as much as 750,000 votes. If he does, Staebler should win by about 50,000."

Scholle says that Romney will not get as many votes in Wayne County as he did in 1962. He pointed out that former Gov. John B. Swainson was hurt badly by the issue of city income taxes two years ago.

Before the 1962 elections, the Detroit Common Council had decided to levy a 1 per cent personal income tax on all persons working in the city regardless of where they lived. The state legislature then passed a bill which prohibited cities from taxing non-residents. However, Swainson vetoes the bill.

"That issue hurt Swainson badly in the suburbs around Detroit," Scholle said. "He was going to lose votes in Wayne County whether he vetoed the bill or not."

Scholle also said that the controversial Massachusetts ballot will be overwhelmingly rejected by Michigan voters.

The Massachusetts ballot requires voters to mark their ballots for each candidate. They can still vote a straight party ticket, but they must specify their choice in each race. They cannot simply vote for one party at the top of a column of offices.

"The Republican Party hasn't even taken a strong stand on it (the ballot)," Scholle said. "Some of them are for it and some of them are against it."

Local Republican officials, according to Scholle, do not favor the Massachusetts ballot because it tends to encourage "voter dropoff."

"It takes so long to mark the Massachusetts ballot that people get tired and just don't vote for the lower offices."

Scholle was one of numerous prominent state Democrats who were in Detroit Friday for a speech by President Johnson. Others attending were Democratic gubernatorial candidate Staebler, United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther, U.S. Senators Philip A. Hart and Patrick V. McNamara, former Gov. John B. Swainson, Lt. Gov. T. John Lesinski and Staebler's running mate for lieutenant governor, Robert A. Derasingoski.

In his short speech, Johnson managed to get in a plug for nearly every Democratic candidate in Michigan.

His last-minute trip to Detroit was aimed primarily at giving an extra boost to Staebler.

"It matters very much who is governor of Michigan," Johnson said. "We need state officials who work with the federal government, because the federal government and the state government are partners."

Governor Denies Split-Vote Tutoring

Gov. George Romney has denied any connection with a citizens group which is reportedly telling voters how to split their ballots in next Tuesday's election to vote for Romney and President Johnson.

Romney said recently that he had no official knowledge of the work of the group, which is distributing sample ballots showing how a split for Johnson and Romney will look in the voting booth. He said that neither the Romney campaign organization nor the Romney Volunteers had any link with the group.

Republican National Committeeman John Martin said the group, the "How to Split Your Ticket Committee of Flint," has nothing to do with either Romney or the state Republican organization.

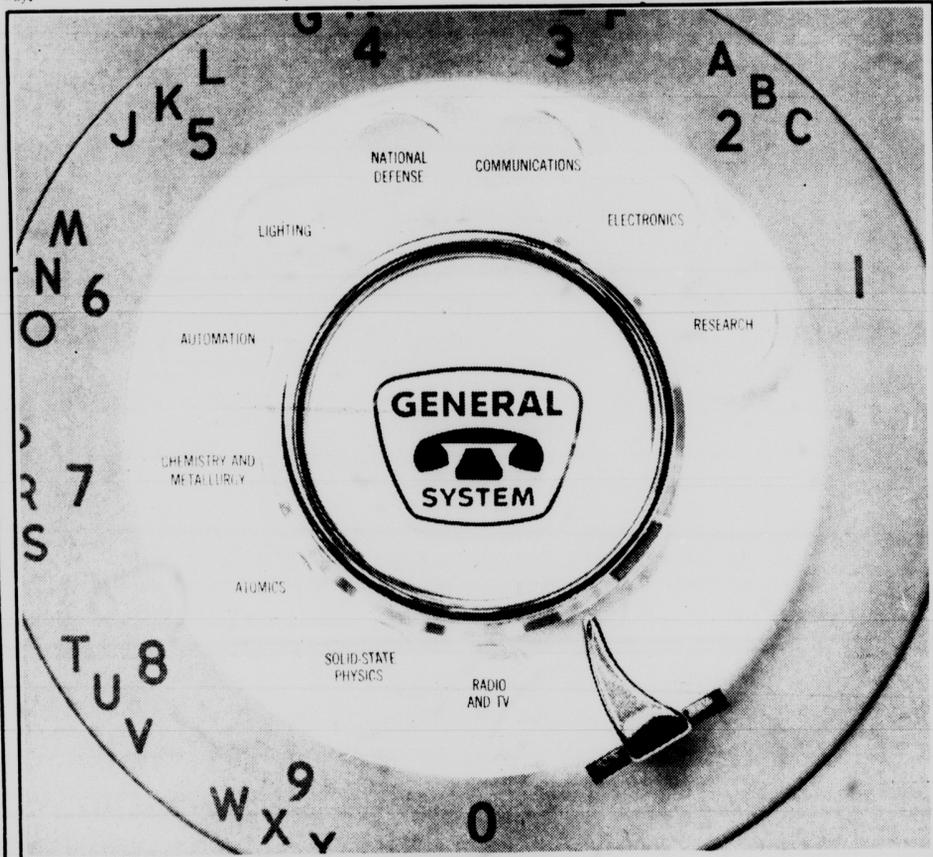

Romney said, "I've made it clear that I am not going to vote for President Johnson," but said he has not yet made up his mind how he will vote Tuesday.

The governor said the Romney Volunteers, a group which he says is endorsing no candidate other than the governor, are preparing material to show Democrats and independents how to split a Democratic ticket to vote for Romney. Also, he said, election officials are showing voters how ticket splitting in general is done.

He called this a "perfectly proper piece of election education."

While no official connection exists with the group distributing sample ballots, Romney said, there is "no way to stop individuals from doing what they want."

The first complaint about the ticket-splitting groups was made to the Republican state organization by the Michigan Citizens for Goldwater Wednesday.

Market Club Learns Interviewing Hints

A student should know his own strengths and weaknesses when interviewing for a job, recommended Edward Fitzpatrick, assistant director of the Placement Bureau.

"Recruiting has been refined today and the recruiters are professional in this aspect," Fitzpatrick said at a meeting of the Marketing Club Thursday.

"Thinking for yourself and expressing your own ideas can prevent you from being hired under false pretenses," he said.

Fitzpatrick also said that companies want a healthy balance for their company when they hire personnel, they try to be as cosmopolitan as possible.

He classified three types of interviews: the formal stuffy type, the informal personal conversation type and the haphazard type where neither side really knows what's happening.

"Don't be ashamed of being nervous and keyed up and don't be overly casual," he said.

Having a good idea of what specific area you want to enter can be a great help in interviewing since all companies can no longer afford to train people for two years.

Fitzpatrick said that waiting for that one and only company to come to campus to interview isn't a good idea. You should interview with as many companies as possible.

December and March graduates should start interviewing now. June and summer graduates should probably start interviewing in January.

Even if you are planning on going to graduate school, you should interview for jobs since something that might prevent you from attending graduate school may come up during the year, he said.

Faculty Members Attend Meeting

Three members of the school of journalism traveled to Connecticut last weekend for the 200th anniversary of the Hartford Courant, the oldest newspaper of continuous publication in the United States.

Frank Seiger, W. Cameron Meyers and John McNelly attended the celebration in Hartford Friday. A symposium on the enduring American press was part of the ceremonies, Meyers said.

The symposium was addressed by Paul Miller, president of the Associated Press; Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting Company; and George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion.

New Sorority Goes Active

Twenty-seven members of MSU's newest sorority, Sigma Delta Tau, were activated last night at the Inn America, East Lansing.

Beginning last February 6 as a pledge colony, the charter members were those through interviews with the sorority national officers.

Shaw Elections

Lop-sided election results were turned in Friday when over 300 East Shaw men voted in each election.

President Lyndon B. Johnson, Gov. George W. Romney and Sen. Philip A. Hart whipped their opponents 2 to 1, 5 to 1, and 3 to 1, respectively.

Johnson carried nine of the 10 precincts of Shaw Hall with a total of 794 votes to Barry M. Goldwater's 108.

Romney vaulted over Neil Staebler, 246 to 47, carrying all 10 precincts in the gubernatorial contest.

Hart also carried the 10 precincts in his bid for re-election. Eash Shaw gave him 200 votes to Mrs. Elly M. Peterson's 79.

Military Rule Ends

Sudan Celebrates Red Victory

KHARTOUM, Sudan (P)—Ten days of bloody violence have ended six years of military rule in the Sudan but also make the Communists a major force in Africa's largest nation.

Jubilant Sudanese have not taken time out from celebrating to assess what happened during the 10 days that left 30 dead and reduced Dictator Ibrahim Abboud to the role of president with dubious powers.

Probably the man with most of the answers is Abdel Khalig Mahmoud, shrewd and affable secretary of what one western diplomat calls "the best disciplined Communist party in Africa or the Middle East."

Membership in the party is probably less than 10,000, but it emerged with 4 seats in the 15-man cabinet, more than any other single party. With one Egyptian and a known member of the Moslem brotherhood, also holding posts, the new cabinet has a solid anti-western bloc.

Though proclaiming a continued policy of neutralism, Prime Minister Klatim El Khalifa, an educator with no previous experience in political infighting, will have a hard time sticking to the middle of the road.

By any standards, the maneuvers of the Communists during the revolt were quick and intelligent. By African standards they were dazzling.

Within 24 hours of outbreaks following the death of a Communist Khartoum University student in a riot quelled by government police, the Communists began working for a "national front" to overthrow the regime.

Almost everyone in the Sudan wished for the downfall of the military regime but the Communists prepared for it. When the moment came they exploited it shrewdly, carefully avoiding antagonizing the traditional political parties.

The old-line political parties were swept along, lured by the Communist line that their movement included recognized representatives of professional organizations.

Abboud reacted with unexpected vigor to the communist-led National Fronts. Army reinforcements poured into Khartoum.

Though violence continued and the death toll mounted slowly, it was evident by the weekend that the army controlled the streets. Young officers, whose leadership is still unclear, told Abboud to get the army out of politics. Abboud gave in, announced the end of the military government and called in representatives of the National Front to name a civilian government.

The National Front demanded that Abboud step down. He accepted, and agreed to a civilian cabinet, including four communists.

Without army interference, the National Front now appears the sole political rallying point in the Sudan.

The question is the role which Abboud and the army will play. He remains as commander in chief and the army can still exercise a decisive influence.

ATHLETIC COSTS HIGH

Who Foots Bill For Spartan Sports?

EDITOR'S NOTE: To the average fan, the only figures that have any bearing in athletics are those determining victory or defeat. For the coach, athletic director and his staff, however, other figures—those found in the team budgets—must be reckoned with before players can take the field. Throughout the week, sports writer Mike Brooks will explore the million-dollar operation that is Spartan athletics. The first installment, which appears below, will study the workings of John Laetz, Michigan State business manager.

By MIKE BROOKS
State News Sports Writer

Last year, the sports program at MSU cost $1,200,000. John Laetz, athletic department business manager, was the man who engineered the budget. Each year Laetz must have his budget ready by the first of June. In May, Laetz, working with Athletic Director Clarence "Biggie" Munn, and Philip J. May, vice president of business and financial treasurer, calls in the coaches of State's 13 varsity sports, and Intramural Director Harris F. Beeman. Laetz then tries to make the totals of their individual requests match the total sports receipts taken in the previous year.

Football is the only sport that makes money. In addition to paid spectator admissions, national television rights, the Rose Bowl, student fees, and $12 faculty activity books account for total funds available.

If the total requested budgets are more than the previous year's receipts, Laetz has to call the coaches and the IM department back to do some adjusting.

He usually looks over the itemization of their budgets and suggests areas where they can cut down.

Laetz sets no budget limits for any of the sports. He says that the money is divided up according to needs.

Each coach must figure out the costs of travel, supplies, scouting trips, meetings, athletic tutoring, and cleaning and repairs when working out a budget.

Equipment and travel are the most expensive items. Skates for the hockey team are a standard priced item, selling for $60 a pair. Equipment which is not standard priced can be bid on because of the quantity purchases made by each team.

Travel is a big expense, and with many seasons calling for five away games for the football team, the bill will continue to grow. It cost $2,600 to charter a flight to Wisconsin.

Although intramural activities have been a big part of the tab in the past, a movement has begun this year to set up a separate IM budget.

Laetz said that a large chunk of the athletic receipts went to the IM department this year, but would not give any figures.

It is rumored that students are paying an extra $10 this year to support the IM program. Laetz said that last year's football receipts, excluding student fees and State's share of Rose Bowl money, came to approximately $700,000.

National television rights account for five and six number figures every year.

All coaching, staff, and officiating wages also come out of the athletic budget.

Lions Trip Rams 37-17

DETROIT (UPI)—The Detroit Lions kept their western division hopes alive Sunday with a 37-17 trouncing of the Los Angeles Rams.

Quarterback Milt Plum led the Detroit attack by throwing for three touchdowns.

Plum hit Terry Barr twice, on 40-yard and 16-yard tosses. He also connected with Tommy Watkins on a 37-yarder.

Nick Pietrosante went over twice for Detroit, once from the one, and again from the four.

The Baltimore Colts continued their domination of the division with a 37-7 shellacking of the last-place San Francisco Forty-Niners.

The Dallas Cowboys took a first-quarter lead and never surrendered it as they upset the Chicago Bears, 24-10.

In the eastern division, the Philadelphia Eagles took it on the chin from the Washington Redskins, 21-10, as first-year halfback Charley Taylor scored two touchdowns.

TV Offers MSU Win Plus Purdue Preview

Spartan football fans who wish to relish Saturday's 22-6 conquest of Wisconsin have the opportunity to do so Monday.

A half-hour TV program featuring the game along with a preview of Big Ten co-leader Purdue, State's opponent next week, can be seen on WNSB-TV, Channel 10 at 6:00 p.m. today.

Sports director Jim Adams and Terry Eraverman will also show a film history of the MSU-Purdue series dating back to 1918.

In addition, sketches of Purdue's top stars, including fullback John Kuzewski, will be given.

Dick Proebstie, State's injured quarterback, will diagram the roll-out, drop-back and sprint-out pass plays.

The plays in actuality unfold with game film clips of Steve Judy, State's junior quarterback. Northwestern's Tommy Meyers and Rich Badar of Indiana.

Dittrich Sees Repeat Of Title Following Cross-Country Win

State's hopes for defending its Big Ten cross-country crown looked bright last Friday as the Spartans defeated Northern Illinois 15-42.

The victory gave Coach-Fran Dittrich's squad a 4-1 dual meet record for the season.

Victory has been a matter of fact thing for Spartan cross-country squads throughout the years, but what most impressed Dittrich last week was the high degree of team balance.

Dittrich's big desire all year has been to have his top five men finish a race within 40 seconds of each other. A team can win most dual meets with two or three individual stars, but in championship competition, it is usually the team that bunches its runners near the front that wins.

The first five Spartans to finish Friday were all within 30 seconds of each other, and the new course record.

Northern Illinois, a small college power which had won 32 out of its last 34 dual meets, never was in the race.

State Board Candidates Talk As Case Residents Listen

Five of the eight GOP candidates for the State Board of Education talked with residents of South Case Hall about the duties of the board and why they were the best qualified to carry them out.

James O'Neil, former member of the board, said the Republicans are better qualified and more experienced than their Democratic opponents.

Alvin Bentley, once a U.S. representative from Michigan, was chairman of Con-Con's Education Committee, O'Neil said, and the other candidates have had wide experience in education.

"I haven't seen the Democratic candidates at all," Bourke Lodewyk said.

"If they expect to ride into office on Johnson's coattails who's going to give them their orders?"

Mrs. Joyce Hatton said many people do not know what the board's functions are and most likely will not put much thought behind the choice of candidates.

"The board recommends to the legislature the financial requirements of all public education from kindergarten to graduate school."

Even those colleges that think they are independent come under the board's influence because it is concerned with the overall planning and coordination for higher education.

Fifty per cent of the state budget goes to education.

Under the new constitution, the superintendent of public instruction is an appointive instead of an elective office, Mrs. Ellen Solomonson said, and can be chosen from anywhere in the United States.

"Before, the superintendent was elected on a partisan basis. He would serve one year and then go out and polittick again."

"This method puts politics before education."

Now better men can be put into the office, she said.

"The fact that this is a statewide vote needs emphasis over and over again," Mrs. Karla Parker said.

Many people seem to think the candidates are elected on a local basis instead of being nominated at a state party convention.

She said it took some persuading to get her to run but now she finds campaigning interesting and exciting.

The candidates are running for staggered terms.

Bentley, not on campus, and O'Neil are running for 8-year terms; Robert Briggs and Jack Kreger, who also were not on campus, for 6-year terms; Lodewyk and Mrs. Hatton for 4-year terms; and Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Solomon for 2-year terms.

to Communist North Viet Nam bases which supply the Red rebels in South Viet Nam.

Authoritative sources said that "appropriate further steps" are being considered by the U.S. advisers in Saigon in cooperation with the Vietnamese government.

However, it was understood that the Washington leadership has no intention at this time of carrying the campaign north beyond South Viet Nam's borders.

There was a feeling in the administration circles that Viet Cong attacks of the flash type are possibly a Communist endeavour to make the most of an unsettled political situation as the new South Vietnamese civilian government begins its rule.

don't mind standing for the same things, and Neil isn't ashamed to stand on the same platform with his party's candidate for president."

Gov. George Romney has refused to endorse Sen. Barry Goldwater for the presidency.

At the end of his speech, Johnson coined a new slogan: "The vote you cast will be your own, and the world you save will be your own."

The speech was Johnson's second campaign appearance in Michigan. He opened his campaign on Labor Day with a traditional speech at a labor rally in Detroit's Kennedy Plaza.

Roosevelt Pumpkin Gone From Owen

Someone apparently didn't want Teddy Roosevelt to appear at Saturday's dance at Owen Graduate Center as he suddenly vanished.

The facial image of Roosevelt was made out of a pumpkin submitted in Owen's Pumpkin Carving Contest held Friday night.

The pumpkins which were to be used after the contest for decorations at the dance were carved and judged Friday.

Art Altman, Rochester, N.Y., graduate student and social chairman of Owen said he had no idea who had taken the pumpkin or why but that it had just disappeared by Saturday morning.

Some 50 pumpkins were entered in the contest. They were categorized as sexiest, political and too nebulous to categorize.

Celebrities Perform

Judy Collins, one of the year's most recognized new folk singers is heading a hootenanny sponsored by the senior class to be held Nov. 10 in the Auditorium.

She was voted the "Most Outstanding Female Folk Artist in 1963" by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. Robert Shelton, a reviewer for the New York Times calls her "a major interpreter. She radiates understanding and transports her lovely alto into the new areas of passion and intelligence in folk song interpretation."

Also appearing on the program will be the Modern Folk Quartet, a group with a distinctive new approach to folk singing.

Weapons Discussed

The modern view of foreign policy and control of nuclear weapons, the most vital issues of the campaign, rests on the lessons of history, according to evidence presented by two speakers at the Union Thursday night.

Paul A. Varg, dean of the College of Arts and Letters, and Frederick Williams, professor of history, spoke at the final meeting of the University Volunteers for Johnson.

"Since World War II the aim has been to curb Communist expansion but not overthrow the already existing regimes," Varg said.

"What would be the effect if we were hostile? If we lack confidence in world leadership, are other countries being swayed to the side of communism because we are so out of touch with reality?"

This is the conflict in the "campaign against communism," he said.

We must practice limitation of power, he added. Foreign policy is "never based on illusions of omnipotence." We can obliterate one another's political ideas and yet not get through to two million Russians and seven million Chinese, he pointed out.

Frederick Williams spoke on the control of nuclear weapons. He pointed out that the nuclear age has developed quite rapidly.

Today we have a prevailing "balance of terror," he said. Britain, China, Russia and the United States belong to the "nuclear club." Experts estimate that in 10 to 12 years, China will have an operational nuclear weapons system to put further pressure on the question of control of nuclear weapons.

"Discussions and agreements have produced some gains," he said. "The Berlin tension has eased, nuclear tests have ceased and we now have a 'hot line' to Moscow to prevent a war through miscalculation."

Political Answers Near

Some Democrats have said they'll vote for Keating because of his liberal record and refusal to endorse Sen. Goldwater. Another factor in the race: Conservative Party candidate Henry Paolucci, who may draw votes from Keating.

Ohio

Rep. Robert Taft, Jr. is challenging Democratic Sen. Stephen M. Young's bid for a second term at the age of 75. Taft, 47-year-old son of the late "Mr. Republican," is making his move after one term as Congressman-at-large and several years in the Ohio legislature. A victory could well launch him on a later try for the GOP presidential nomination which eluded his father.

Young, a staunch supporter of the Kennedy-Johnson administration, has sought votes by seeking to link Taft with Goldwater.

ing to link Taft with Goldwater. Taft has endorsed the GOP nominee and campaigned for him, but has pointed to differences on issues, notably civil rights.

Oklahoma

This is the first big game for Bud Wilkinson since he quit a successful career as football coach to plunge into Republican politics. The GOP Senate nominee is battling young state Sen. Fred Harris for the two remaining years of the late Democratic Sen. Robert S. Kerr's term.

Each man strongly supports his party's Presidential nominee. Wilkinson has attacked Harris on grounds of absenteeism; the 33-year-old attorney replies that the 48-year-old Wilkinson was a lifelong absentee from politics. With Democrats holding a 4-1 registration edge, Wilkinson is bedding for the support of conservative Democrats.

Pennsylvania

Goldwater appears to be the major issue in the Senate race between incumbent Republican High Scott and Miss Genevieve Blatt, three-time Democratic state secretary for internal affairs. She bucked the party organization in an uphill fight to win the nomination in a primary election.

Scott backed Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton in his belated bid for the GOP presidential nomination. He has reluctantly endorsed Goldwater, but points to many differences between them. Miss Blatt is criticizing Scott's endorsement in hopes that a predicted Johnson victory will make her the third woman in the senate.

Texas

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, a liberal Democrat, faces opposition from a hard-campaigning Republican, George Bush, as well as many conservative Democrats who have never supported him. But a onetime foe, Johnson, has solidly endorsed his homestate senator. Bush, a Dallas oilman making his first race, is the son of former Sen. Prescott Bush, R-Conn. He is a strong supporter of Goldwater.

Hit And Run Hurts Student

An Armstrong Hall resident was reported in fair condition at Edward W. Sparrow Hospital Sunday following a hit and run bicycle accident on campus Friday.

Norman McLeod received head cuts and a possible concussion when his bike collided with another near Shaw Lane and Engineering Road.

Campus police said they are seeking the unidentified bicyclist, who apparently was riding the wrong way on a bike path when the accident occurred.

McLeod was taken to Olin Health Center, then transferred to the intensive care ward at Sparrow Saturday.

Consultant Dead

A consultant to MSU was found dead in his room in the Holiday Inn Motel Friday afternoon.

Robert K. Huckins, 47, of Downers Grove, Ill., an expert in insecticides, had been working with the University since Wednesday.
