Argentina's Ex-Dictator Unwelcome

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Juan D. Peron's dream of returning to Argentina banded into a Brazilian wall Wednesday. The ex-dictator flew to Rio from Madrid as a first class passenger, but landed as a diplomatic detainee tagged for return to Spain.

The governments of Brazil and neighboring nations—particularly Argentina, whose 19 million people he ruled from 1946 to 1955—made it plain they would not welcome Peron, who is now 69. A wanderer in luxurious exile for nine years, Peron monopolized the first class section of an Iberia DC 8 airliner with nine companions for a trans-Atlantic flight that ended at the Galeao International Airport here at 7:55 A.M.

The Peron party intended to remain aboard for the 1,200-mile leg to Montevideo, Uruguay, then switch to another plane for a flight to Asuncion, Paraguay. Egged on by a committee of his Argentine admirers, Peron hoped to take up residence in Asuncion, until he considered the time ripe for a crossing into Argentina.

But Brazil's government, which long ago declared Peron persona non grata, had other plans.

Air Force troops armed with submachine guns surrounded the Iberian jet. A colonel said the plane would not be permitted to take off if Peron refused to leave it. Eventually Iberia announced cancellation of the rest of the flight—scheduled to Montevideo, Buenos Aires and Santiago.

Peron and his followers finally emerged with Joao Lampra Graçie, the foreign ministry's chief of protocol. Among them was a woman listed on the passenger manifest as Dalmira Renio De Sosa. She accompanied Peron in a government limousine to the military section of the airport, where he was detained.

Other passengers departed on other southbound planes. Lampra announced Peron would be returned to Spain as a violator of the diplomatic order declaring him unwelcome on Brazilian soil.

Advising Procedures Under Investigation

A long-range study of academic advising got underway this week with distribution of a questionnaire to a sample of more than 5,000 students.

The questionnaire is the first phase of an examination of the advising system which has constantly been under fire. Frances H. Delisle, associate professor in the Office of Institutional Research, said.

"The purpose of the questionnaire is to get student reaction to the present system and to arrive at a definition of academic advising," Miss Delisle said.

The sample was taken of students living in all types of on and off-campus living units.

The eight-part survey covers student expectations regarding advising prior to coming to the University, actual experience with advising and various alternatives to the present system.

"All the suggested alternatives are being used at other colleges and universities," Miss Delisle said.

"However," she added, "what works for one university may not be appropriate for another."

There is also a section of the questionnaire for suggestions and comments on the advising system.

After the questionnaires have been returned, the information will be processed and analyzed. This may be followed by experimentation with different methods,

Miss Delisle said.

"As the University grows, academic advising will become increasingly important," she said.

"A purpose of this study is to determine whether we have outgrown our present system."

A questionnaire will also be distributed to all academic advisers, and interviews will be conducted with both students and faculty.

Winter Term Reservations

72% Get Full Schedules-- Available Next Week

Full schedules for winter term have been reserved for 72 per cent of the students who made section requests in November.

Registrar Horace C. King announced today that 18,618 of the 26,017 students who completed section reservation request forms during the Nov. 9-18 period will receive a full schedule next week.

Of the 28 per cent, 7,399 students, who will not receive a full schedule, nearly 70 per cent need just one more card to complete schedules.

Only 33 students do not have any reserved sections after making requests last month.

Just over 26,000 students made requests for some 136,560 sections. Only seven per cent, 9,407, of these requests were denied.

The other 93 per cent requests were confirmed, indicating that 127,153 course sections have been reserved for winter term.

Starting next Tuesday, winter term enrollees may secure preliminary section reservation reports in the class card area of the Men's Intramural Building according to the following schedule:

N-Z, Tuesday
G-M, Wednesday
C-F, Thursday
A-B, Friday

10's and student schedule cards must be presented for admission to the class card area, which will be open each day from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Students who cannot get their reports on schedule because of conflict or illness may report to the IM Building on a subsequent day, except those students not scheduled until the last day.

If a student is unable to pick up his report next week, he may obtain it in 107 Administration Building Dec. 14. However, class cards will not be available for students to complete schedules at that time.

If students receive a full schedule of reserved sections next week, they may immediately depart from the arena. Others will turn to an adjacent area to change or add sections to complete reservations for winter term.

King cautioned that students may not drop or add courses at this time. This procedure will be handled during regular registration Jan. 4-5.

Students who do not report to the IM Building next week will also have to wait until January to complete schedules.

Insurance 'Bag Man' Testifies

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Former Ambassador Matthew H. McCloskey denied Wednesday that he ever took part in an undercover deal to kick back $35,000 from one of his government contracts to help finance the 1960 Kennedy-Johnson campaign.

The 71-year-old retired Philadelphia contractor and Democratic fund-raiser testified before the Senate Rules Committee after Bobby Baker refused to answer questions about political payoffs, party girls or other capital capers.

Referring to testimony Tuesday by insurance agent Don B. Reynolds, who said he acted as "bag man" in the deal and told of a breakfast meeting at which it purportedly was set up, McCloskey said:

"That is not correct. Such a conversation never took place—at no time, ever. I never heard of it."

McCloskey said he never attended any meeting with Reynolds and Baker, as Reynolds described.

McCloskey also said he doubted he ever received a letter from Reynolds starting "Dear Matt."

"I'd only met the fellow once or twice," McCloskey said.

A copy of a letter from Reynolds billing McCloskey for a performance bond on the contract was placed in evidence Tuesday.

Reynolds testified that another guest at the breakfast meeting in the Mayflower Hotel was former President Harry S. Truman. He said Truman was not present when the alleged political kick-back plan was discussed, however.

McCloskey said he knew nothing about any such meeting attended by Truman.

Baker, the dapper ex-page boy from Pickens, S.C., invoked the fifth Amendment when asked about Reynolds' statement that Baker masterminded the arrangements for the alleged payoff.

India Welcomes Pope With Awesome Crowd

BOMBAY, India (AP)—A mighty throng gave Pope Paul VI an awesome welcome to India Wednesday. The crush of people, a million or more, at times engulfed his car on the drive downtown from the airport.

There was none of the hostility police had feared. About 250 members of fanatic Hindu organizations had been jailed last weekend after threatening demonstrations. The Pope, as one of his first acts in India, asked that they be freed. Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Minister of Information and daughter of the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, assured him: "They already have been released."

"Then tell them I am prepared to take them by the hand and treat them with affection and cordiality," the Pope responded.

Pope Paul told a restricted crowd of about 8,000 at the airport that he had come on "a journey of peace and love, of friendship and brotherliness."

As far as the eye could see, people jammed around the airport—the lame, the poor, the outcasts, all wanting to see this holy man who had come out of the West.

Police estimated at least 100,000 were at the airport and another million or more were along the route from airport to the city.

So vast were the crowds that it took 1 1/2 hours for the Pope's limousine to go the 13 miles from the airport to the oval in downtown Bombay, where he will attend the 38th International Eucharistic Council.

This was the lure that led the Pope to undertake the longest mission in Papal history, a flight of about 4,000 miles from Rome to this ancient city.

"Jai, jai!" the people shouted as the Pope entered Bombay. "Hail, hail!"

The 67-year-old pontiff looked about in wonderment at the vast throngs filling balconies, and standing atop sign boards, walls and vehicles to get a view. He smiled and waved almost continuously, occasionally shaking a dark hand stretching out to greet him from the throngs.

Russia Shifts Solid Position, May Make Peace Payment

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk conferred Wednesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko as U.S. sources said the Russians were showing interest in a possible solution to the U.N. financial crisis.

Rusk and Gromyko made quick use of the General Assembly's no-vote truce to talk about finances and other major issues at a working luncheon at the headquarters of the Soviet mission to the United Nations. They met for the first time last Monday.

U.S. sources said the Russians were displaying interest in possible payments into a U.N. general fund. The specific nature of the fund, or how much the Russians might pay has not been defined, the sources said.

While no quick solution appeared in prospect, some U.S. negotiators said they were encouraged by what appeared to be a change in the hitherto solid position of the Soviet Union.

Goldwater To Confer With Eisenhower, Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater took aim Wednesday at restoring peace and unity to the Republican party—and as an initial move disclosed plans to meet soon with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Richard M. Nixon.

He said in an interview he hopes the summit session, which he called a "general discussion," could be worked into the schedules of the former president and vice president before he returns to Arizona next week.

Goldwater, the defeated GOP presidential nominee, said he didn't know where the meeting would lead in setting the party's future course but indicated he is willing to cooperate in welding together quarrelling GOP factions.

In another move pointing toward cohesion he made it clear he would encourage formation of an advisory council to bring all segments of the Republican party into formation of policy—a proposal suggested by some GOP governors.

But on one point of contention stirred by last month's GOP defeat he remained adamant: Dean Burch, the Republican national chairman.

"They are not going to throw Burch out," the Arizona Senator said. "They don't have the votes."

The "Burch" is the Republican national committee which will meet in Chicago Jan. 21-22. Burch, Goldwater's choice for chairman, was blamed by some Republicans for Republican losses suffered in the Nov. 3 election.

Goldwater said he intends to resume writing a newspaper column in January and will have some things to say on international issues, perhaps particularly on the deteriorating conflict in South Viet Nam.

"We're in war there and it's time that the American people found out just how deeply we are involved," he said. "I pointed that out in the campaign and I am going to speak out on it some more."

His newspaper column was dropped after he became an announced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination early this year.

Bad Finals Schedules May Be Rearranged

Students who have more than two finals scheduled in one day may change their finals schedule with the approval of their instructor and the assistant dean of their college.

Herman L. King, assistant provost, said it is the usual practice for instructors to cooperate with students in adjusting finals schedules if the student has more than two exams in one day.

University policy specifies that finals may not be given before the day and time specified in the schedule. However, a student may arrange to take a final any time after it was originally scheduled.

Dilemma Of Fire: 'Ubi Ignis Est?'

Four fire engines rushed to the site of the new chemistry building after a West Shaw resident reported seeing flames at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Donald J. Dunn, East Grand Rapids junior, told East Lansing firemen the flames were coming from the fourth floor of the structure.

Firemen faced some difficulty in putting out the flames. After the construction worker they found on the scene was reluctant to give up the acetylene torch he was using.

AUSG Book Exchange Planned Next Term

A student book exchange, sponsored by AUSG, will begin this winter term, Bob Harris, president, said Tuesday.

"AUSG will not handle any money in this program," Harris said. "It is simply an exchange service."

Book blanks, to be available in all residence halls and possibly some classroom buildings, will be filled out by persons wishing to sell books at the end of fall term.

Students must fill in their names, student numbers, addresses and telephone numbers, the title and author of the books and the course numbers.

The blanks will be collected and catalogued according to course number during Christmas vacation.

At the beginning of winter term, areas for different colleges will be set up in the AUSG offices in Student Services. Students will request a book and a person on duty will call persons having that book for sale until he can locate someone at home. The buyer will then go pick the book up and pay the original owner and his slip will be pulled.

There will be a 10¢ service charge for each book.

Mixer Friday For Pep Club

A block S mixer will kick off the organization of a pep club Friday night, according to Bob Amsler, Block S director.

The mixer, to be held at 8:30 p.m. in the Crossroads Cafe, is open to all Block S members and their dates.

It will feature movies of the block, speeches by "Biggie" Munn, athletic director, Duffy Daugherty, head football coach, Nancy Lalonde, a cheerleader, and music by the Nightshift. Free refreshments will be served.

Amsler pointed out that questionnaires sent to Block members showed a tremendous enthusiasm for such a club.

A committee of about 15 will set up goals and objectives. It has been suggested that a pep club sponsor such activities as Block S, students blocks, rallies and selling campaigns.

Ticket Policy: The Big Stall

While there are 19 more shopping days 'til Christmas, it is only a matter of hours before the '64-'65 basketball season becomes a reality.

This fact, however, seems to have evaded the thinking of certain athletic officials who are still wavering over the merits of one admission policy versus another for Jenison Field House.

Not content to leave a good system good, they announced Monday that mere presentation of I.D. cards at game-time may undergo changes when winter term rolls around.

In effect, this leaves the door open for the establishment of a policy similar to the one suddenly thrust upon students and faculty midway through the season last year. Tickets had to be secured at either Jenison or the Union in advance of each game, with no provisions for late-comer admissions at the gate.

If the hesitation in outlining a definite procedure is due to unpredictable turnouts, a study of the attendance figures for last year might prove somewhat revealing.

Although State posted its best record since 1959 with a 14-10 won-lost mark, average turnouts were 8,707 in a field house with a capacity for 12,500. Only one game, that against the University of Michigan, drew a capacity crowd.

While it doesn't necessarily take a sell-out to fill the allotted number of student seats, it is common knowledge that early arrival before game-time will insure seating.

Surely the student who is genuinely interested realizes the gamble involved in a last-minute decision. And, if he has attended games in the past, he can fairly accurately judge how early "early" means.

Perhaps consideration should also be given to the fact that many students often decide whether they can make a weekday game the evening when it is scheduled. For many, then, it is pure conjecture to decide a week in advance whether studies will have them bogged down at some later date.

The present admission set-up may not be the best, although it seems to have worked out satisfactorily in the past. While consideration of altering it need not be totally dismissed, any discussions should at least be open to student leaders.

U.N. Powers At Stake

The United Nations General Assembly has evaded the question of whether the Soviet Union should lose its assembly vote for non-payment of U.N. fees. Secretary-General U. Thant has undertaken personal negotiations with representatives of the Big Four powers, "for the sole purpose of avoiding a confrontation."

This method will work for awhile. There must be discussions of the responsibilities of the Soviet Union to pay a portion of the costs of peace-making ventures in the Congo and other areas which it refused to support in the Security Council. The General Assembly, which passed the intervention proposals over Soviet objections, seems to feel it does. The United States has threatened to propose removal of the Soviet Assembly vote, according to a provision of the U.N. charter, if the bills are not paid.

The Soviet Union has threatened that it would respond to such a proposal by withdrawing from the United Nations altogether. It has expressed discontent with the U.N. many times in that body's 19 years of existence.

The United Nations has become too important a factor in regulating friction between nations and working for a more reasonable attitude toward international dealings for a threat that could dissolve it, to be handled lightly.

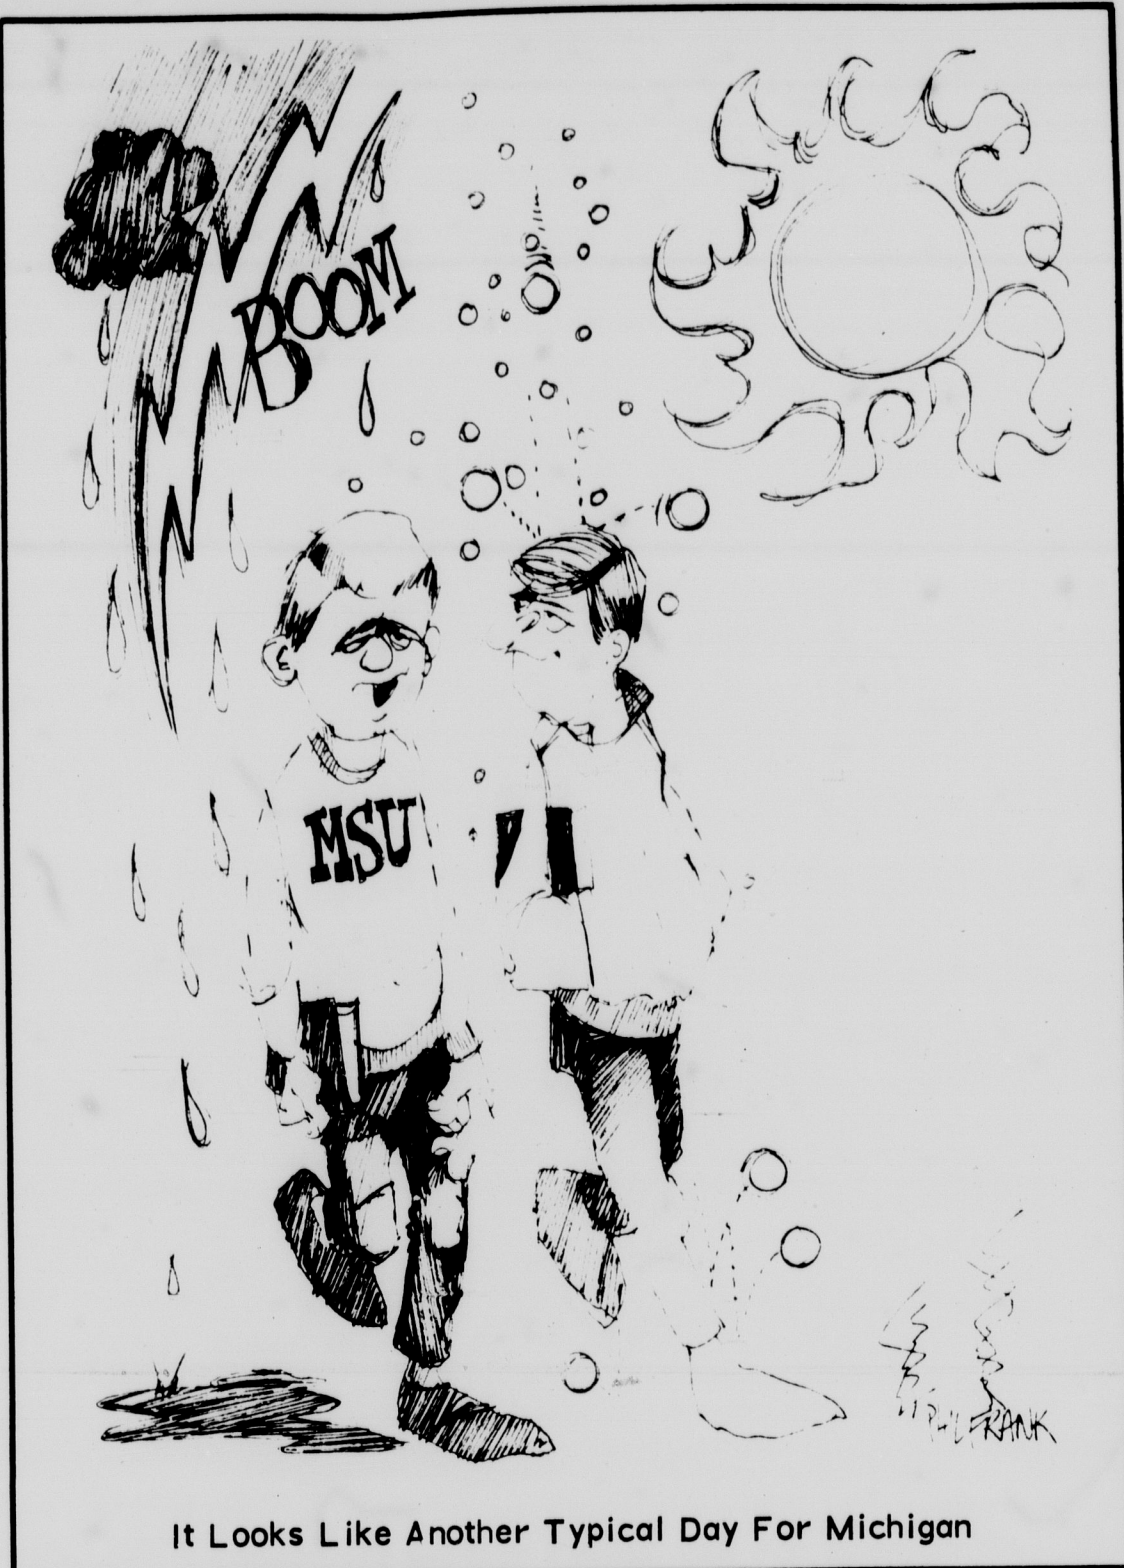

Thant's willingness to keep the discussion off the assembly floor long enough for Russian and American viewpoints to be presented in a calm, rational atmosphere will go a long way toward preserving the diplomatic peace. This is essential if the U.N. is to remain in existence at all, and certainly if it is to prove itself an effective arbiter of world disputes.

The question of Soviet responsibility, however, is not one that can be avoided in the way this particular discussion has been stalled. This question is fundamental to the operation of the U.N. and the conception of it in nations around the world.

Is the United Nations a weak form of world government? Does a decision by the U.N. bind all member nations, even those--as the Soviet Union--who disagree violently with specific proposals?

If questions such as these are not answered, at least temporarily, by the settlement of the question of Soviet payment of U.N. bills, the importance of the U.N. could be seriously diminished, and the effectiveness of United Nations policies in all future crises could be hampered.

Some sort of calm settlement is needed now, as Thant has recognized, but what is also needed is a realistic appraisal of the powers of the United Nations and of its authority in international negotiations.

Alliance Depends On Individual Nations' Wealth

By JACK BRANNAN
United Press International

Three years ago the United States launched a giant program of aid to Latin American countries, calling it the "Alliance for Progress."

The alliance is three things: It is an idea, conceived by the late President John Kennedy.

It is a weapon, designed to show the South American continent its destiny rests on the principles of democratic freedom, not Castro-style Communism.

But primarily the Alliance for Progress is a cooperative economic and social development program backed by the United States and calling for the Latin Americans to do the work.

After three years, how is the alliance working?

Mexico and Venezuela hold the most favorable economic positions within the alliance. Argentina, Brazil and Chile occupy the least favorable spots.

This was among findings in a recent report prepared by the inter-American committee on the Alliance for Progress. The report was based on the planning and development programs of the 19 Latin American nations participating in the alliance.

Mexico and Venezuela hold their favorable positions for three basic reasons. They have proved their ability to earn foreign exchange through stable, planned economies. They have favorable balance of trade positions. Their external financial needs involve only long-term, soft loans.

Argentina, Brazil and Chile, however, have unusually high short-term debt obligations and need large amounts of external financial assistance on both short-term and long-term basis.

In the cases of Brazil and Chile, new governments are making major adjustments in domestic and foreign economic policies. The adjustments, although considered promising by the alliance committee, leave the prospects for the immediate future in doubt.

The report said the major financial problem facing all alliance nations--particularly Argentina, Brazil and Chile--is debt payments due in 1965.

Debt payments due next year from the 19 Latin American nations total $1.9 billion. Of this amount, Brazil alone owes $725 million or 38 per cent. Argentina owes $550 million or 27 per cent. Chile owes $182 million, or 9 per cent.

Thus, three of the 19 nations owe almost 75 per cent of the groups' total debt payments due next year.

In the words of the alliance committee report:

"It is not possible to state dogmatically that proportion of these scheduled payments should be regarded as normal and what part as abnormal. What we can say is that the present level of such debts--and the burden they impose on the balance of payments--is abnormal."

The report noted that Mexico has one of the higher debt payment schedules for 1965--$167 million. But it pointed out that Mexico can expect an inflow of private capital totaling $221 million during the next year, more than enough to make up the debt payments. Venezuela has only $36 million in debts due next year.

Chile, with its $182 million-dollar debt schedule for 1965, can expect an inflow of only $10 million in private capital. The report also said Brazil can expect a private capital boost of $154 million dollars.

The committee said the financial positions of the 14 other Latin American nations within the alliance is generally acceptable.

Letters To The Editor
Housing Rules Here
Stiffer Than At U-M

To the Editor:

I transferred to Michigan State last year, and ever since I've heard everyone from students to professors complain about the unrealistic student regulations. I have yet to hear one person give a good argument in support of these rules.

To demonstrate how unnecessary most of these rules are, especially those concerning off-campus living, one need only compare these rules at Michigan State to those of another school very similar in many respects.

Both the University of Michigan and Michigan State are Big Ten universities, both are located in the same area and both have excellent academic records.

At the University of Michigan as of this year, girls no longer have to sign out, regardless of class standing.

Junior girls have no weekend hours, and senior girls have no hours any day. Beginning next year, junior girls are to have no hours any day.

Last year freshman girls were not allowed in men's apartments, but this year the ban has been lifted so that any coed may go into any man's apartment.

Next year junior girls will have apartment privileges (unapproved) regardless of their age. The only liquor laws the students must obey are those prescribed by law.

One can easily see the difference. At U-M they choose to treat the students as adults, while at State most students have less freedom than they had in high school.

Since most of these rules are easily broken, and often are, all they really accomplish is causing resentment against the administration by a great number of students, besides the fact that some students do get in trouble for being caught breaking one of the many rules.

I, like many other students, am waiting for either some good reasons for all of these rules, or for some much needed change.

Intermarriage A Problem
Which Must Be Faced

To the Editor:

As a result of the recent speech delivered by Jackie Robinson to the University Methodist Church and the subsequent review of it in your newspaper, I feel it incumbent upon me to comment on what I believe is a totally naive view which the former baseball player took concerning American race relations.

I refer specifically to his alleged statement that, "we (Negroes) want to be your brother and not your brother-in-law." Popular and intrinsically comforting as this statement has been in recent years, as a Negro, I believe it is fraught with hidden dangers and pregnant with inevitable consequences which can only lead to an increase in the kind of muddled thinking which Mr. Robinson so ably represents.

As far as I am concerned, if you (white America) are not willing to accept me as your brother-in-law, I am not so sure that I want to be your brother. To accept the latter relationship, it seems to me, and to reject the former is at best, a different kind of "tokenism" and, at worst, a sanction of a double standard which will again eventually split the country.

What such a proposition does, in effect, is to say to the Negro that "you can go just so far and no further." -- and this is, I believe, the essence of second-class citizenship.

That the majority of Negroes and Whites do not desire intermarriage is totally irrelevant. But when a person, consciously or unconsciously, accepts this limitation on a fundamental right he is not truly free, nor is his "brother".

My only point is that when such people as Reverend Martin Luther King, Jackie Robinson, et al., presume to talk for the American Negro race, they are, in this particular connection, talking only for that segment of the Negro population which has suffered from a chronic amnesia which can only be diagnosed as tunnel vision.

Until white and Negro Americans consider the fundamental issue of intermarriage in their repertoire, all other pronouncements are devoid of any real meaning. Thus far, only Elijah Muhammad and Governor George Wallace, and their respective ideological adherents, have given this subject the attention which it deserves. And, too, only they have offered practical solutions -- repugnant as they seem to most Americans.

Undoubtedly some of your readers will interpret what I've said as a not-too-well-concealed bid for increased intermarriage and even may go so far as to suspect me as having designs on some white MSU coed.

To convince these people (both white and black) to the contrary is not worth any effort; I direct my comments only to those students and faculty members who are concerned enough with the problem to exercise a minimal amount of rational thought and, as Senator Fulbright insisted in another context, "to think the unthinkable."

What Price Psychologists?

To the Editor:

The study of psychology is a good course for the understanding of the people who inhabit this earth. Unfortunately, the study of one or two related subjects doesn't make that student a licensed psychiatrist. I say unfortunate because there are many such students who believe that it does. These people prey on us with their half-baked philosophies, and put their education to good use "helping" their neurosis-ridden fellow students.

Although their educations depend largely on experience--must they use us as their guinea pigs? Does the dramatic misconstruing of technical theories and terms really help the unknowing student? No, but it does help the ego of the psychology students. And that is usually all the good it does do.

If these ostentatious authorities actually do wish to help us who are confused, misguided and impressionable, they should leave us alone. A little knowledge on their part can be, and is, a dangerous thing.

'Faith' In Science Renewed

To the Editor:

I was deeply moved to find that someone else has that deep, abiding faith in Science. Mr. McFarland has found the true essence of life in the facts.

Surely there is nothing more relevant to life than that the moon is a reflector of light rather than a light itself, or that metaphors such as "four corners of the Earth" can no longer work in our modern society. Truly, we should all join together in putting our trust in Science.

But yet there is one thing that pricks at my side, that makes me uneasy, and sometimes undermines my faith. Oh, if only Science would once and for all time prove away the fact of Jesus Christ, I could rest easy.

tion reservation request forms in the Union last month, departments have been adjusting course sections whenever possible to satisfy the student demand recorded in the Union.

Class lists for each course section were arranged by the departments involved, giving top priority to graduating seniors, followed by Honors College and special groups, graduate students, juniors, sophomores and freshmen.

Each class was compiled in reverse alphabetical order, meaning that freshmen whose names begin with A came at the bottom of class lists.

Department representatives determined the limit for each section and dropped the excess number. This total is comprised of students who will need to reserve other sections in the IM Building next week.

Assessment and payment of fees will be made during registration Jan. 4-5. Students will secure permits to register, enrollment cards and section reservation reports from their major departments before registering according to a schedule to be mailed with term-end grades.

No Rebel Bases Here, Says Sudan Minister

KHAR TOUM, Sudan—Foreign Minister Mohammed Ahmed Mahgoub said Wednesday his government has no plan to turn Sudan into a Congolese rebel base.

Mahgoub commented in an interview on widespread reports that this northern neighbor of the Congo would become a logistics and training center for Christophe Gbenye's self-styled Congolese People's Republic.

"I don't think it is the intention of my government to use part of its territory for military operations in the Congo," the foreign minister said.

Revisions Of Compensation Laws Asked

LANSING—The Director of the State Department of Workmen's Compensation has recommended sweeping revisions of the Michigan Workmen's Compensation Law.

Director Yeager's proposals included a big hike in the maximum pay allowance for an injured worker - to two-thirds of his weekly wage or 100-dollars, whichever is smaller.

McCone Reportedly To Resign As CIA Chief

WASHINGTON—John A. McCone reportedly has told President Johnson he would like to be released from his duties as director of the Central Intelligence Agency in order to return to private life.

The reports, being heard in official circles here, listed former Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric, as the most likely choice to succeed McCone. Gilpatric resigned a year ago to resume his law practice here.

Johnson Dedicates Cultural Center

WASHINGTON—President Johnson dedicated the National Cultural Center Wednesday to the memory of the late John F. Kennedy—"a valiant leader who never swerved from duty."

Under cloudy skies and in freezing temperature, some 1,000 persons attended the ceremonies on the banks of the Potomac, half a mile upstream from the Lincoln Memorial and across the river from where the slain President lies buried.

AMA To Stick To Medicare Opposition

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Rule makers of the American Medical Association stuck by their firm opposition to Medicare Wednesday, cast aside all thought of compromise, and pledged to fight.

They also named a new president-elect—a man who sees the AMA's Medicare battle as a long-term one if it is not lost this year. He is Dr. James Z. Appel, 57, of Lancaster, Pa.

Force To Fight Communists Urged

NEW YORK—Thailand's Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman Wednesday urged creation of an international force to carry on the fight against Communist rebels in South Viet Nam.

"While the United States has the power to win this fight, it would be better for the United States and for Southeast Asia if the responsibility could be shared with as many nations as possible," Khoman declared.

Port Huron JC Student Dies

MARYSVILLE—One Port Huron College student was killed and five others were seriously injured Wednesday when their car skidded on an icy county road and crashed in Marysville.

The six were going to class when the accident happened.

Yeah, Yeah, Ringo Loses His Tonsils

LONDON—A surgeon went in Wednesday and snipped out two bits of lymphoid tissue from Ringo Starr's anterior and posterior pillars of the fauces.

Hours later all you could get from Covent Garden 2332, a special number set up for inquiries about the condition of the Beatles drummer, was a busy signal.

However, the people who took Ringo's tonsils out said all was well, and that the 24-year-old stick man would recover to utter many another year, yeah, yeah.

California Students Agitate For Campus Political Rights

BERKELEY, Calif. (P)—Led by a defiant campus rebel, several hundred demonstrators invaded the University of California's Sproul Hall Wednesday. Their leader declared they would remain until disciplinary action was dropped against four self-styled free speech leaders.

Mario Savio, the rebel leader, was joined by folksinger Joan Baez in leading the march by demonstrators into Sproul Hall after they talked and sang for nearly an hour to a rally crowd of 3,000 to 4,000 outside the building. Sproul Hall is the Berkeley campus administrative center.

Savio, 21, New York East Side Manhattan-born philosophy junior, told the crowd:

"We're not going to break this up until we get what we want."

Campus police made no effort to stop the demonstrators from entering the building.

A police spokesman said no immediate action was planned. He noted, however, that the building normally is closed at 5 p.m.

Savio, who was arrested last

March as a Sheraton-Palace Hotel sit-in demonstrator for more Negro jobs, made clear that the demonstration's major demand is the withdrawal of disciplinary action against four leaders of the Free Speech Movement (FSM).

Savio and the three others were notified this week that they would be summoned before the faculty committee on student conduct for violation of university regulations.

The three others are Arthur Goldberg and his sister, Jackie Goldberg, and Brian Turner. All participated in the Oct. 1-2 sit-in demonstration in Sproul Hall during which demonstrators occupied a police car through the night and used it as a speaking rostrum.

Other demands outlined by Savio in the new demonstration included:

An end to regulations "which needlessly restrict students or their organizations in the exercise of on-campus political rights."

No further disciplinary action be taken until the administration reaches a settlement with the Free Speech Movement.

The university's board of regents last Nov. 19 declared this policy for campus political activity:

"Certain campus facilities, carefully selected and properly regulated, may be used by students and staff for planning, implementing, or raising funds or recruiting participants for lawful off-campus action, not for unlawful off-campus action."

The regents in another resolution reaffirmed their policy that all students and student organizations "obey the laws of the state and community."

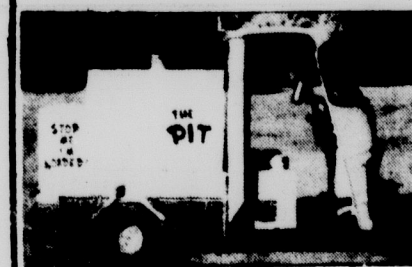

Savio and his supporters last year recruited students for the series of San Francisco demonstrations demanding more jobs for Negroes.

Savio, a campus representative of the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, spent the summer in Mississippi helping in the drive to register Negroes for voting.

Bureau Badly Baffled By Credential Caper

We've got a mystery on our hands.

There's an invisible hand at work in the Michigan State Placement Bureau.

A mystery which is, to say the least, "highly improbable."

Someone, or something is switching credentials behind everyone's back.

Joseph G. Levy, Battle Creek junior, and psychology major, applied for an interview at the placement bureau. He filled out the proper credentials and was interviewed by a representative from the Corning Company of New York.

With what he thought were the same credentials, the representative went back to New York.

But, somewhere between the interview and New York the credentials were switched—switched with those of Jay J. Levy, a journalism major.

As a result J. J. Levy received a letter from the Corning Company and not J. G. Levy, while

J. G. Levy sat in his apartment and waited.

And waited.

Fortunately, J. J. Levy called J. G. Levy and told him the results of the interview.

But, the mystery still remains.

Who or what, where and when were the credentials switched?

Quiet Problems To Be Explained

James Stepleton, of the Department of Philosophy, will deliver an explanation, "On Being Screwed Up," of the psychological and philosophical problems associated with quiet and creativity tonight at 8:30 in 21 Union.

Stepleton is a former Woodrow Wilson fellow and University Scholar at MSU.

Members are being requested to attend a short business meeting at 8 before the lecture.

Unity Asked By Romney

(UPI)—Gov. George Romney cautioned Wednesday that the Republican governors who will meet in Denver this week won't be able to provide all the answers needed to permit a thorough rebuilding of the GOP.

"I'm concerned about the meeting and the high expectations that have been built up," Romney said.

He emphasized that in his opinion the 17 governors and governors-elect form just one element of the national Republican leadership group and that many others will also have to contribute to the effort to rejuvenate the party.

"I'm hopeful that the Republican governors can initiate recommendations that can lead to meetings that will accomplish the full purpose," Romney said. Romney, holding his first news conference since returning from an 18-day California vacation Tuesday, declined to disclose any of the suggestions he might make to the meeting of the Republican governors.

Economics Authority Voices Hope For Free World Trade

A note of optimistic hope was voiced for free enterprise in Europe's Common Market by Ernst Mestmaecker Tuesday.

Mestmaecker, a leading European authority on anti-trust, competition and monopoly, explained some of the major problems of competition in Europe to an MSU economics colloquium in the Union.

He pointed out that these problems center around three areas—private mergers, governmental community.

"Although strong measures have been adopted to prevent cartels and monopolies," he said, "companies are still able to control large areas by buying stock in other concerns."

He cited an example of the French cigarette monopoly as being a governmental restraint on free trade in the market. The French are able to sell their cigarettes on the open market, yet they control the market in their own country.

He said that although the United States has solved a great deal of its monopoly problems, some of these problems are now being exported into the European market.

"The American Telephone and Telegraph company has been restricted to common carrier service in the United States since 1956," he said. "However, this has not prevented its expansion into other areas in the Common Market."

This presents an ironic situation, he said. European businesses want to form combines in order to be competitive with American giants and American businesses want to expand in the market in order to be competitive with the European companies.

Mestmaecker's optimism stemmed from the efforts of the commission that regulates the market to abolish the abuses of free trade.

He said that it will only take time for the member countries to come to accept this idea. He pointed out that it took several years to abolish monopolies in the United States after the laws were in effect.

Mestmaecker is currently a visiting professor at the University of Michigan law school. He is professor of economics and law at the University of Muenster, Germany.

Extensive Expansion In Store For ICC

The AUSG International Co-operation Committee is being expanded into the office of international student affairs, according to Bob Harris, AUSG president.

"The ICC has been connected mainly with tours and hosting social events," Harris said. "It's work will expand so much that the former name is no longer appropriate."

The office will work with such programs as orientation, housing, social activities such as foster relatives in the area for all international students, educational programs such as tours of industry and capital buildings, a speakers' bureau to bring speakers to the students and make student speakers available, a library with free native newspapers, public relations, newsletters, a travel bureau to plan vacation trips and assist American students planning overseas travel and an employment bureau.

Congo Problems Explained In Talk By Missionary

The basic problem among Congolese is the lack of unity, Miss Madeyn Albrecht, a missionary to The Congo said in a talk at the American Baptist Students Center Tuesday.

Miss Albrecht, a former MSU student, is a member of Saginaw Baptist Church.

She said that to unify a nation is not an easy task, especially when the people have different languages, customs and culture. "There are 200 different groups and each feels that the rest of the people or groups are its enemy," she said.

Miss Albrecht said that there are two main elements that cause trouble among Congolese:

First, the agitation by Communists, especially, Chinese Communists. And second, there are certain elements, such as urbanization opportunity for better education and better standards of living, which have been promised by rebel leaders.

Also, she feels that Algeria is another element of agitation, but she said that she is not definitely sure about that.

The rebels want to establish their government in all The Congo, she said. And, as a matter of fact, they have founded their government in Stanleyville, she added.

Miss Albrecht said that she has been in The Congo 12 years as a missionary educator. Her job is "Bush Station" which means rural work. She has spent most of this time in Sona Bata, a city 60 miles southwest of Leopoldville.

She said that after independence, the Congolese had but a few primary and secondary schools. At that time it was very hard to open a school because there were no buildings or teacher educational equipment, she said.

But at any rate, she added, "We tried to establish schools and educate the people. This is why today we see that there are Congolese who took the jobs of administration and most of them are teachers."

"As far as education is concerned," she said, "the challenge for us is a challenge for higher education."

The Congolese need experts and knowledge in agriculture, health, education and other aspects of life, Miss Albrecht said.

She said further that it is much better if they get their college education in one of the developed countries and work back in Congo. Because, in this case, the environment and other aspects of a university in the United States or some other country affect them and train them much better than the schools of their own country, she added.

She also said that other countries work for Congolese education too, and UNESCO works and advises the educators in Congo. She did not know whether Communist countries have some projects for Congolese education and other developments or not, she said.

But, at any rate, the rebels are entirely against education and knowledge; they mostly kill those who are educated and know something, she said.

Recreation Platform Discussed

MSU will entertain members of the Michigan Recreation Assn. (MRA) who will salute the new Outdoor Recreation Resources Planning Section of the Michigan Dept. of Conservation today and Friday.

Ralph McMullen, director of the Conservation Department, will speak on "Ten Planks in the Platform of the Michigan Department of Conservation." A report will be given by Malcolm J. Elliott of Saginaw, MRA member and a planner for the recreation section of the conservation department.

Chase Hammond of Midland will propose the question of creating a parks section in the MRA to accommodate the parks members of the municipal parks and recreation departments.

Expanded recreational activities for women and girls will be proposed by a panel of women headed by Mrs. Loy Whitehead of Lansing. Another panel with educators from MSU, Wayne State, Central Michigan and Eastern Michigan universities, will discuss utilization of student field workers in municipal recreation

Young GOP Slates Party

MSU Young Republicans will sponsor a party at the East Lansing home of Gov. George Romney at 8:30 Friday night.

Members and non-members are invited, providing they make reservations by calling 351-5226. Rides may also be obtained.

Gov. Romney will be present to greet guests, according to Al Harnisch, Deckerville junior and president of the group.

The governor's son, Scott, a special programs student at Michigan State, will host the party.

HPER Holds Skiing Clinic

The Women's Health, Physical Education and Recreation (HPER) Club will sponsor a winter skiing clinic tonight at 7 in 127 Women's Intramural Building.

Instructor will be Charles W. Davidson, assistant director of athletics for the Grand Rapids school system. Davidson will present a film, and demonstrate conditioning exercises, positioning on skis and use of equipment.

Students should dress for participation. There is a 25 cent charge to all non-members of the HPER Club.

HRI Conference Scheduled Today

All students in the Department of Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management are invited to a conference on the proper procedures for job interviewing.

The conference, sponsored by the Placement Bureau, will be held at 7 p.m. today in Kellogg Auditorium.

Star Of Bethlehem To Shine Over MSU

"Star of the Magi," the new program being presented at Michigan State's Abrams Planetarium will have its first presentation this Friday night at 7 and 8:30.

This special Christmas program is designed to permit MSU students and visitors to view the Star of Bethlehem as it lit the sky on the eve of the first Christmas.

A large portion of the program will be devoted to possible explanations for the appearance of the bright star which, according to the Bible, led the Wise Men to Bethlehem at the time of Christ's birth.

An added feature of the program, designed especially for the youngsters, will be Santa Claus and his reindeer sleigh flying across the sky.

For the special Christmas program, the planetarium will have presentations at 7 and 8:30 each Friday night and at 2:30 and 4 each Saturday and Sunday afternoon of this month. Also, these additional programs: 7 p.m. Dec. 12 and 19; 8 p.m. Dec. 14-17; 8 p.m. Dec. 21; and 1:30 and 8 p.m. Dec. 22 and 23.

Banquet 'Busted' By Bus's Breakdown

The food in Brody Hall was being prepared. Fifteen men from Bryan Hall stood in the lobby, waiting to serve and guide their guests.

In the meantime, the coordinator of the MSU Student Education Corps (SEC), Frank Blanco, graduate in sociology, and Robin Rulif, senior in theater arts, stood at the north end of Spartan Stadium waiting to greet the guests and welcome them to MSU.

"They're supposed to meet us here at 11 a.m.," Blanco said. He was talking about 25-30 retarded children from the Detroit Vocational Rehabilitation Projects who were invited by SEC Wednesday to tour MSU and the state capital.

The group was scheduled to visit Abrams Planetarium at 11:15, then eat at Brody Hall at noon. The lunch was planned and paid for by the men of Bryan Hall.

After lunch, the group was to tour the campus by bus and visit the capitol.

At 11:45 a.m. the groups had not arrived and Blanco, who was still standing in the cold outside the stadium, decided to call Detroit.

"The weather probably slowed their trip, but they should have been here by now," he said.

Blanco and Miss Rulif walked to the IM Building and Rulif watched for the bus while Blanco telephoned.

"These kinds of trips give the kids a new perspective and it is good for them to get out of their everyday environment," she said.

Blanco came back about five minutes later and announced that the trip had been canceled.

"The group was supposed to use the YMCA bus for the trip and it wouldn't start. The man on the phone said it probably wouldn't have made it to East Lansing and back anyway," he said. "They said they were thinking about rescheduling the trip next spring."

Blanco and Miss Rulif hurried to Brody Hall to stop dinner preparations.

MSU And U-M Frats Combine Ceremonies

Delta Phi Epsilon, professional foreign service fraternity will hold joint initiation ceremonies for MSU and University of Michigan candidates Saturday at the Union.

Speakers at the ceremony will be Richard Wheeler, U-M professor of political science and H. Theodore Hoffman, professor of economics at the University of Detroit.

Candidates from the fraternity's U-M chapter include Dr. Robert B. Klinger, director of the international center and current president of the National Association for Foreign Student Affairs, and graduate and undergraduate students in international relations, comparative linguistics, international business and comparative education. Faculty advisor of the MSU chapter of the fraternity is Baljit Singh, assistant professor of political science.

Youth Aid Continues

MARQUETTE (UPI)—Northern Michigan University's program to aid disadvantaged rural youth entered its second phase this week, school officials said Tuesday.

The 31 young men and women from the Upper Peninsula taking part in the 15-month experiment are assigned to their vocational interest areas that include machine tooling, auto mechanics, TV and radio repair, secretarial work, sales and welding.

The program, called a new approach to the problem of high school dropouts, is being conducted under a $197,000 federal research grant to the Marquette University.

State, Army Vie For Soccer Finals Today

Disregarding a well-known adage, MSU's soccer team will attempt to prove today that "life begins at 70." State holds a 19-5 all-time record to date, and needs one more victory to reach the magic number.

The booters hope that it comes today, when they battle Army in the semi-finals of the NCAA Championship, 10:30 a.m. at Brown University. A victory automatically elevates them to the finals with the winner of the St. Louis-Navy semi-final game slated for this afternoon.

The coveted NCAA title has always been a frustrating goal for MSU. This is the farthest that the booters have ever advanced in playoff competition.

The NEWS In

SPORTS

Last year, St. Louis dumped the Spartans 2-0 in the first round of the tournament and went on to capture the championship. Should both of these midwest teams make it to the finals this season, it would set the stage for an exciting climax to a long-time rivalry.

Both MSU and Army enter today's game with impressive records. The Spartans are 9-0-3 for the season, sharing the Midwest Conference title with St. Louis.

The Cadets earned a 9-1-0 record, capturing the top position in the East. Charlie Dedich, who has been bothered by an ankle injury, will start in the net for MSU. He is looking for his eighth shutout of the season.

The four teams participating in the playoffs arrived in Providence, R.I., early Wednesday afternoon.

Spartan Hockey Foe Young To The Sport

By LARRY MOGG
State News Sports Writer

The action-packed, fast moving atmosphere of college hockey whirled into the home sports picture this weekend with the Spartans facing Ohio University in a two game non-conference set. The back-to-back Friday and Saturday night encounters at the MSU Ice Rink will start at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Students may view Spartan home ice action for 25 cents with a student ID.

Coach Amo Bessone's sophomore-loaded squad opened their season last weekend with two victories in a three game holiday road trip. A 3-2 overtime setback to Clarkson marred an otherwise perfect trip.

State chalked up half its eight-victory total last season at the expense of Ohio, sweeping four straight from the Bobcats. The Spartans also hold the upper hand in life-time series records with Ohio, eight victories to none.

Ohio is relatively new to hockey circles, competing on the varsity level only in the last several seasons.

Friday and Saturday's contest will mark Ohio's initial start of the season, although they split a couple of exhibition games with semi-pro clubs in the Cleveland area.

A cast of veteran skaters dot the Bobcat lineup. Ohio can count on a veteran first line trio composed of wings Ken Arvidson and Mike L'Heureux and center Ted Martin to supply a strong scoring sting.

The nets will be in the capable hands of another letter winner, Dick Homovec.

MEN'S

All-University Final

The winner of Cache and A.T.O. will meet the winner of Sigma Chi and Red Trojans on one of two dates, due to a conflict of class schedules. Should A.T.O. win, the all-University final will be played at 6 p.m. Thursday, or Friday at the same time if Cache wins the semi-final. All of the above teams advanced to the semi-finals by scoring 30 points or better in the first round of the tournament.

A.T.O. easily defeated Brutus of Bryan Hall 33-0 while Sigma Chi outlasted Shark of Snyder Hall 47-0. Cache also won rather handily beating the independent runner-ups Bacon's Hams 32-6. Red Trojans on the other hand had the toughest game of the first round as they saw their powerful offensive machine being held to a standstill in the first half 21-20.

They came from behind and scored 19 points in the second half while holding the Wildcats of Wilson Hall scoreless, and went on to win 39-21.

Handball Doubles

The doubles team of Vincent Marando and Carl Asmus swept through the field of 21 teams to capture the Intramural Handball Doubles crown.

'S' Asks: Anybody For A Swim

Even in the Water Wonderland, swimming may not seem appropriate with snow on the ground but fans will have a chance to see the top college swimmers in the state perform Saturday at the IM Pool.

The occasion is the Michigan Collegiate Meet, an event that will bring together the best swim athletes from seven Michigan colleges and universities.

Starting time is slated for 1 p.m. with MSU, Michigan, Western Michigan, Flint Community College, Grand Rapids Junior College, Jackson Junior College, and Henry Ford Community College each sending representatives to the meet.

Spartan coach and meet director Charles McCaffree reports that 137 varsity and freshman performers have been entered for the 15-event program.

There will be 14 swim events, all individual, and diving competition. There will be many entries in diving so diving preliminaries will begin at 11 a.m. with the finals flight going with the other races at 1.

This is one meet no coach need worry about losing.

There will be no team champion crowned nor will there be any relay events. No swimmer will be allowed to enter more than three races.

General admission for the meet is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students of high school age or under with MSU students being admitted by showing their ID cards.

Most of the races will be contested by heats, with all lanes timed, with the final six placings made according to the clock. The Spartans will enter 34 athletes in the meet in an attempt to determine their strength and weaknesses prior to the opening of the Big Ten season.

There are several veterans on the MSU team this season and a sophomore who has already become known to swimming fans throughout the country.

The soph is Gary Dilley who placed second in the 200-yard backstroke of the Olympic Games in Tokyo. He enters school at the start of winter term.

Heading the list of returnees are Jim MacMillan, Bob Gretzinger, Darryle, and Robert Sherwood who formed the Big Ten champion 400-yard relay team last season and who were also strong individual performers.

MacMillan, a junior from Detroit Eastern, was named the best swimmer on the squad for the 1964 season.

Last year's squad compiled six victories against two defeats and placed fifth in the Big Ten meet at Minneapolis. MSU lost its only dual meets to Michigan and Minnesota.

Coach McCaffree is beginning his 24th season at MSU where he has compiled one of the finest swimming records in the country. Under McCaffree's guidance, Spartan squads have posted 141 dual meet wins against 49 setbacks and won the Big Ten title in 1957.

UPI Taps 3 Spartans For Honorable Mention

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dick Gordon was one of three Michigan State gridmen to be named to United Press International's All-America honorable mention list. Gordon was the Spartans' most valuable player this year and second in total rushing in the Big Ten with 571 yards.

Also named were Jerry Rush, tackle, who has signed to play pro ball with the Detroit Lions, and sophomore end Gene Washington.

Chosen as the nation's finest in balloting by broadcasters and sportswriters were: Ends—Jack Snow of Notre Dame and Larry Elkins of Baylor; tackles—Larry Kramer of Nebraska and Ralph Neely of Oklahoma; guards—Rick Redman of Washington and Tom Nobis of Texas.

Center—Dick Butkus of Illinois; Backs—John Huarte, Notre Dame; Gayle Sayers, Kansas; Jerry Thome, Tulsa; and Jim Grabowski, Illinois.

DOWNTOWN-LANSING

TAKE ON NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Cagers Open Season Tonight

Some fans have little regard for early-season non-conference games but they can mean the difference between mediocre season and a good one.

That was the story of MSU basketball last season and the Spartans are hoping they'll be able to get off to a running start again this year when they meet Northern Michigan at 8 p.m. tonight at Jenison Field House.

The contest will be the first of six non-league games, plus a holiday tournament, in which the Green and White will participate before beginning the Big Ten campaign against Iowa on Jan. 9.

Last season the Spartans started the year with a record-breaking 109-80 triumph over Northern Michigan and went on to win their first four games.

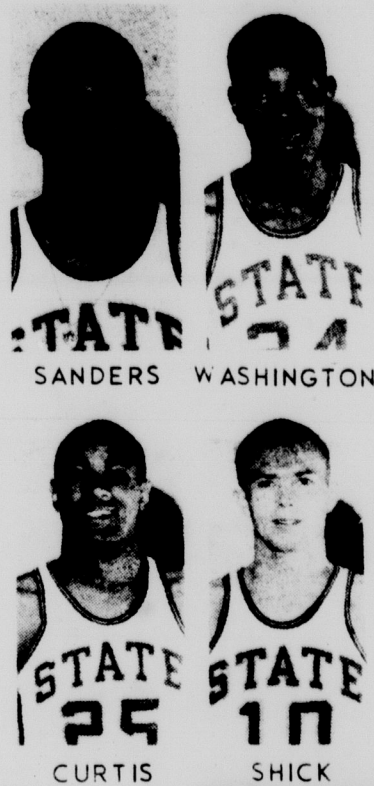

The four victories proved to be one of the keys to a good record for the Green and White who finished with a 14-10 season slate.

Included in the record were victories in their last five games of the year which helped MSU complete its best season since 1959.

But this is a new season.

Pete Gent and Fred Thomman, the top scorers of 1964, have departed and the Spartans are faced with a major rebuilding job.

In Northern Michigan, they'll be facing a team that dropped a 97-81 decision to Bradley at Peoria Tuesday night.

The Wildcats led 53-52 at the half but were unable to hang on the rest of the way.

The contest will mark the fourth basketball meeting between the schools with MSU holding a 2-1 advantage in the series.

The lineup for tonight's game will feature five starters who can not only claim to be representing Michigan State but the state of Michigan as well.

Forward Joe Johnson and center Bill Curtis are both graduates of Grand Rapids South and were all-state picks during their prep days.

Forward Marcus Sanders played high school ball at Detroit Pershing, and guards Stan Washington and John Shick played at Detroit Northwestern and Okemos, respectively.

Washington is the top returning scorer from last year's squad. During the 1963-64 season he hit 144 baskets and added 67 free throws for 355 points.

In addition, he accumulated 245 rebounds to lead the team in that department.

Sanders was fourth in MSU scoring in 1964 with 332 points. He scored 110 rebounds and chalked up a 14.4 scoring average.

This season's Spartan roster consists of six sophomores, five juniors, and five seniors.

U-M Favored To Win Bowl

Michigan has been rated an 11-point favorite to defeat Oregon State in their Rose Bowl meeting on New Year's Day.

The favorable prediction for the Wolverines has stimulated the spread of Rose fever among the student body and alumni.

Long lines of students were already forming on campus to await an opportunity to reserve tickets and airline tours to Pasadena.

Reservations had to be discontinued temporarily after the original six airplanes were filled.

University officials are now trying to obtain additional transportation.

Altogether, 1300 seats for the game will be made available for Michigan students, faculty, and alumni.

Wrestlers Meet Air Force In Season Debut Saturday

The Michigan State wrestling team opens its season Saturday night against the Falcons from the Air Force Academy. The meet will be held in the IM Sports Arena and will start at 7:30.

This is the first meeting between the two schools on the mats, and the Spartans are hopeful of getting off to a successful start. Last season, State finished with a 5-5-1 mark, last in the conference, and a host of injuries.

Head Coach Grady Peninger, hoping for relief from this siege of hurts which has plagued his squad for the past two seasons, faces a Falcon team of unknown quality, coached by his former high school mentor, Karl Kitt.

There will be some new names in the Spartan line-up Saturday night, a line-up which has already been hit by the loss of standout Heavyweight Homer McClure. McClure is out with a leg injury and will be replaced by junior Jim Maidlow.

The rest of the squad will be composed of four returning regulars, and at least one sophomore, Gary Smith at 123 pounds. Dick Cook at 147 and Terry Leonard at 167 are among the returnees, along with Cecil Holmes, who missed all of last year with a stomach operation. Holmes will compete at 137 pounds.

Morey Villareal, whose only collegiate experience came in the Big Ten Meet last March, will be at 130 pounds, and is expected to add strength at this position.

C&O Passenger Run May Be Discontinued

(UPI)—The State Public Service Commission Wednesday ordered a general investigation into the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway's efforts to discontinue passenger service between Detroit and Grand Rapids.

Peter B. Spivak, chairman of the PSC, ordered a hearing for Dec. 21 in the commission's Lansing office.

Spivak said the commission wants to check into such questions as the demand for service, whether the present schedule and the opening of highway I-96 have discouraged the use of trains and whether the railroad is obtaining sufficient total revenues in Michigan to warrant retention of the service.

The trains the C&O hopes to abandon are No. 14 and 15. The former leaves Grand Rapids daily at 7:30 a.m., arrives in Lansing at 8:45 a.m. and arrives in Detroit at 10:30 a.m.

Train 15 leaves Detroit at 5:20 p.m., arrives in Lansing at 7:12 p.m. and arrives in Grand Rapids at 8:25 p.m. The trains are used mainly by shoppers and businessmen going into Detroit for the day.

Spivak noted the travel between the two largest populated areas in the state and he expressed shock at the possibility of loss of the service.

He said the commission has received objections to the proposed discontinuance from the cities of Detroit and Lansing.

Mademoiselle Entries Due

The first entries for Mademoiselle Magazine's annual Guest Editor Competitions are due Saturday.

The magazine is sponsoring a variety of competitions in several different fields for college women of ability. Contests are in fiction, poetry, art, photography and one-act playwriting in addition to the guest editor competition.

The 20 guest editor winners will go to Mademoiselle offices for the month of June as regularly salaried employees to help edit the August college issue.

The specialized contest winners will receive money and the publication of their winning work.

Due Saturday is the guest editor project to show abilities for magazine work. The project is taken from a list provided on the magazine's entry blanks.

Urban Planners Meet Scheduled

Arnold Zellner, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin will address the econometrics Workshop and the econometrics Faculty - Graduate Colloquium at 2 p.m. Friday in 32 Union. His topic will be "Bayesian Inference in Econometrics: a Survey of Principles and Some Recent Results."

Zellner is currently Ford Foundation Visiting Professor at the University of Chicago.

Spirit Sheets Due

All Spartan Spirit criteria sheets from off-campus living units must be returned to the Spartan Spirit office in 318 Student Services by 5 p.m. Friday, according to Sharon Waters, off-campus director.

Final judging will be at 5 p.m. Sunday. The meeting is open to the public.

GUARANTEE

Some people think we're much too fussy about our beef — perhaps they're right . . . but for us, the added effort is well worth making. We can guarantee COMPLETE Satisfaction and do it unconditionally on every piece of meat we sell.
