'Speak-Easy' At MSU Tickets Now On Sale

The card duly certifies the bearer entrance behind the orange doors of the speak-easy where the dance band of Les Elgart plays a pop tune.

The decorations, valued at $22,000, are being rented from LeVann Displays, a local theatrical supply company.

U.N. Averts Debt Clash

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. General Assembly Monday averted a U.S.-Soviet showdown over voting rights of debtor nations by agreeing to a week's recess while additional efforts are made to resolve the issue through negotiations.

Now that there is a recess we hope it can be used to resolve the problem so that the Assembly can get on with its business and the influence and usefulness of the United Nations can be strengthened.

Weather All Same

The Winnipeg weather bureau put things simply today. It issued the following: "The past present and future weather once again can be described best by the terse expression—clear and very cold."

Spring Schedule Now Available

Time schedules for spring term courses will be distributed in residence halls and the Union Concourse this week.

MINEX Program Gets Grant

The U.S. State Department will contribute $40,000 toward this summer's MINEX student exchange program between MSU and the University of Nigeria.

The two universities involved, and students are also contributing to the exchange, said Irving Wyeth, director of the MINEX program.

There has been quite a bit of student interest in this project. We would like to encourage student groups to contribute to the financing of the Nigerians to make this truly a student exchange.

The Nigerian students will take a specially designed course in American living during the summer and, to complement classroom work, they will also tour throughout the state while they are in Michigan.

The Michigan State students going to Nsukka will take a course program in African studies taught by Nigerian professors.

This is the first such mass exchange program in which the University of Nigeria has participated. The land-grant style institution was founded in 1960 and Michigan State has had close ties with the school since its opening.

The total expense for MSU students participating in the program will be about $800 per person, Wyeth said.

Further information and student application forms may be obtained in the Nigeria Program Office, 109 International Center.

ceive time schedules in their living units by Wednesday. Off-campus students may pick up schedules in the Union Concourse Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. They will be available after Friday in 107 Administration.

All students now attending Michigan State who plan to enroll spring term should follow the procedures for enrollment in the new time schedules, King said.

Each student should complete the advising and enrollment process according to the schedule in his particular college. After the adviser and the student determine the courses he will take spring term, the student will record them on a student schedule card.

Population Meet Set For Kellogg

By JO BUMBARGER State News Staff Writer

Students, faculty and population experts from across the nation will gather at Kellogg Center this weekend for what has been called "the biggest and best" conference on the population explosion ever held in the United States.

The second annual Winds of Change conference on world population pressure and resource potential will bring such speakers as Dr. John Rock, a Roman Catholic and co-discoverer of the oral contraceptive pill; Lady Rame Rau, president of the International Planned Parenthood Federation; and Dr. Edgar Berman of United States Agency for International Development (AID).

Discussion groups Saturday afternoon will explore the following areas: natural resources and population trends; economics of the population trend; the role of education; programs of control in Japan, India, Latin America, China and Africa; the role of the United Nations and the private citizen in the community.

Sunday sessions will include speeches on the special problems in China, by S. Chandrasekhar, director of the Indian Institute for Population Studies, and a talk on "People: The Challenge and the Promise," by Philip Hauser, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago.

Admission to everything except the banquet is free, but students must register by Wednesday in 308 Student Services or the United Nations lounge in the Union.

The seminar is being sponsored by All-University Student Government (AUSG) and the National Student Association (NSA).

About 300 Jailed

Selma Police Arrest King

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—The largest civil rights demonstration in a two-week campaign in Selma sent Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and about 300 other Negroes to jail Monday and brought hundreds of Negro students parading through the streets in protest.

King was arrested by city police while leading a march to the Dallas County courthouse where other Negroes tried again to register as voters as they have for the past two weeks.

Arrested together with the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize winner was one of his top aides, the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, King, Abernathy and their followers were charged with parading without a permit after disregarding a warning from Selma's public safety director, Wilson Baker.

While the integration leader and the others were being booked at the city jail, Negro students by the hundreds began picketing the courthouse where the voter registration board was in session for a one-day term.

Approximately 30 Negroes were arrested for contempt of court by sheriff's deputies because, Sheriff James G. Clark said, they were interfering with a session of circuit (state) court.

Circuit Judge James A. Hare, who was presiding over the court, fined the Negroes $50 and sentenced them to five days in jail for contempt after they refused to disperse when the sheriff ordered them to cease the picketing.

After the first group of 15 pickets marched in front of the courthouse and ultimately were

Big Cache Uncovered In Trailer

By JOHN ELMER State News Police Writer

Campus police cracked a string of thefts early Monday morning when they arrested a student at Wonders Hall who led them to $5,000 in stolen goods stashed in the trailer home of an accused accomplice.

James C. Anderson, Temperance freshman, and David W. Ellis, Belding sophomore, demanded examination in Lansing Township Justice Court Monday on charges of breaking and entering. Bond was set at $5,000 each and examination scheduled for Mar. 4.

Police are still cataloging hundreds of stolen items, some of which were electronic devices taken in the Abrams Planetarium robbery Jan. 25. Stolen mechanical and electronic equipment from recent thefts at Conrad and Bessey Halls and the Cyclotron Building was also recovered.

Police said they arrested Anderson as he was entering the mechanical room area at Wonders about 12:35 a.m.

Information obtained from the suspect led police to a trailer park at 3407 W. Mt. Hope Road. Upon entering trailer 12, officers discovered the equipment and arrested Ellis, police said.

In addition to expensive electronic equipment, a cash box containing $250 and about $600 worth of tools were recovered, police said. These were items included in an inventory of goods stolen from Abrams Planetarium, and raised the total loss to $3,800 in that theft.

Included in the theft from Conrad Hall was $500 in toy trains, delivered there by mistake but stolen before the shipper could pick them up.

Other goods recovered included a copying machine from Bessey Hall, and an oscilloscope and a radio from the Cyclotron building.

Anderson and Ellis, both 19, were classmates at Belding High School. Ellis is in electrical engineering, while Anderson is on a no-preference program.

MSU Visited By Liberian

Christian Baker, President of Cuttington College, a traditional liberal arts college in Liberia is making a short visit here.

Baker, an alumnus of Michigan State has returned to East Lansing to confer with President John Hannah and Dean of Instruction at Cuttington College, Melvin J. Mason, a doctoral candidate here.

President Baker also plans to interview prospective physics and engineering faculty for Cuttington College. He plans to hold discussions with former Cuttington College students now enrolled in graduate school here.

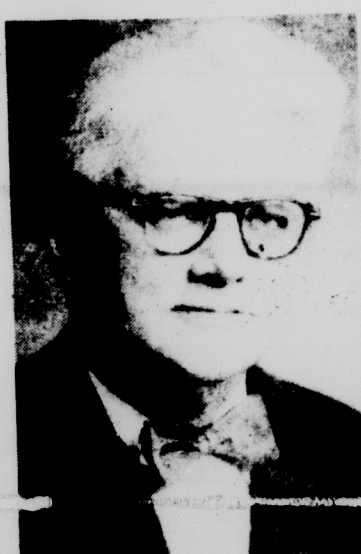

A 1965 graduate of the College of Veterinary Medicine, Baker was president of the International Club while studying here.

Shoplifters Pay Fines

Two MSU students pleaded guilty to shoplifting charges in East Lansing Municipal Court Thursday and paid fines totaling more than $100.

Richard M. Finkbeiner and Ford Henry, Jr., both Wayland freshmen, were ordered to pay $50 fines and $2.15 costs each or serve thirty days in jail.

East Lansing police said the thefts involved address books valued at $1.70, and occurred at the Student Book Store, 421 E. Grand River Ave., Jan. 19.

Big STEP Forward

The Student Education Project which will be sponsored by All University Student Government and Student Education Corps this summer is an example of the kind of down-to-earth yet visionary idealism which represents the newest re-direction of the American dream.

The project will operate at Rust College in Holly Springs, Miss. Rust, located in the hilly country of northern Mississippi, in a 75 per cent Negro, heavily agricultural area, is a small, not-yet-accredited liberal arts college. Its all-Negro student body is composed of determined persons who have managed to break the routine of growing up, quitting school, harvesting cotton and contributing to the next generation of cotton harvesters.

Almost all will be teachers, and all need help in building their dream of providing more and better education for Southerners, Negro and white. The goal of STEP is to direct the energies of 20 to 30 MSU students and up to 10 faculty members toward helping the college build its facilities and helping local people realize the benefits of education.

High school students will be helped in basic skills and cultural concepts to help them overcome the deficiencies that could keep them out of colleges they would like to attend. Other aspects of the project will coordinate enrichment programs for local elementary and secondary schools, will help strengthen ties between the college and the community through cooperative programs and will help build reading and writing skills for students.

Schools in Marshall County, of which Holly Springs is the county seat, are behind the national average of achievement. Negro schools are run on split session to allow the students to help harvest cotton, and the Negro students' achievement level is three to four years behind that of white students by the time they graduate from high school. Many never graduate.

Rust College was picked for the project because it is in an area with a relatively calm history of racial protest, and can provide a framework for the program in its dormitories and campus facilities.

The STEP project is completely non-political, and will stress the social obligation of the "haves" to help the "have nots." It is this aspect of the program, appealing to the new idealism of this generation, which will probably help it succeed.

The next development in the STEP program will be the fund-raising speech by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. in the Auditorium Feb. 11. King has endorsed the project by accepting the invitation to speak, presumably because it will help the cause of civil rights in Mississippi.

But STEP will do more than that. It will, with proper student and faculty support, concentrate the idealism of MSU students on a specific problem which their energy can solve, and will demonstrate that there is another alternative to the expediency of this technological age than directionless, blind "protest."

'Farm School,' 1965

If there ever was a stigma attached to being a "farm school," MSU has overcome it, by eliminating the negative aspects of teaching farming and by building scientific agriculture to its highest level in history. The emphasis in this week's Farmers Week activities is heavily on science and recent technological developments.

The days are long past when students at MAC spent half their day working on the farms just south of the Red Cedar, and MSU is now a "farm school" only in the sense that farmers, industrial managers, food scientists and processors look to East Lansing for the latest advances in their industries.

Thomas K. Cowden, dean of the College of Agriculture, acknowledges the trend away from agriculture among today's students, but hails this as proof of a job well done.

The societies with the lowest standards of living in the world, Cowden said, are those with the largest percentage of the population in agriculture.

The most significant accomplishment of modern agriculture, he said, is the release of millions of people in the United States from active production of food.

When MSU was founded, more than three fourths of all the people in Michigan were engaged in food production and processing. Today, only one fourth of the population is involved in industries related to agriculture, Cowden said, and only 8 per cent of the people of the state are on farms.

One farmer in 1965 can produce enough food for 30 people. "All modern farming is based on science," Cowden said.

Students in agriculture spend most of their college careers studying general science areas and other background to prepare for specific work in agriculture. "A good agriculture college is part of a good university."

Agriculture is becoming a smaller part of the University. But this does not mean the college is becoming any less important.

The College of Agriculture is one of the main drawing factors for foreign students coming to MSU. For many years, MSU has been a major center of agricultural research, and the excellence of agricultural facilities here has helped build the University into the more diverse institution it is today.

Cowden said, "No branch of activities in the United States has made more improvement in the last 40 years than agriculture." This improvement has helped build the wide-open consumer economy of the country and has widened our horizons far beyond the scope of food production and traditional industrial methods.

Letters To The Editor

The Society For Political Realism'

To the Editor:

Virtually at the capitol, the political center of the state of Michigan, one would hardly expect to find the Michigan State campus a political void. Rather, one would expect to see signs of a great interest in state and national political affairs.

Much to the contrary, more importance is attached to the outcome of a Big Ten football game than a presidential election. In addition to the lack of any direct involvement, there is an even more deplorable ignorance of state, national, and world affairs and their significance.

The existence of this apathy is hardly a new discovery, people have been talking and complaining about it for some time. As usual, however, everybody's talking about the weather, etc., etc.

At this point we of the Society for Political Realism have decided to try to do something about the problem. We believe in the importance of the individual's role in politics, and we believe it vital to increase the level of individual political involvement and consciousness.

The Society for Political Realism is non-partisan and non-ideological. Our only "doctrines" are belief in the importance of the individual as the fundamental unit of political society and in the validity of the pragmatic, empirical approach to political and social problems.

We are not yet chartered by AUSA, and our organizational meeting, Wednesday at 7:30, Union, will be primarily devoted to matters necessary to gaining the charter, adopting a constitution, election of officers, etc. In addition the interim committee on programs will report.

Anyone interested is invited to attend, and may become a member simply by attending this first meeting. At the second meeting,

Feb. 17, we expect to have a speaker on the subject of students and politics. In the future we anticipate monthly meetings featuring speakers, panel discussions, etc., in analyses of significant national and international problems. At this time, we extend a general invitation to all who may wish to attend these or any future meetings.

The Bleating Herd

To the Editor:

As a new member of the bleating herd, I too deplore the sheep dogs, the pilgrimages to Lansing and petitioning for the forgiveness of car trouble.

However, Mr. Witt is only fooling himself if he actually believes that the restrictions of the University can be reduced to the indulgence of oppressed masses under a monarchy. I doubt very much whether President Hannah seeks personal pleasure when distributing his meager allowance among his constituents; nor can he change the laws of respectability he is bound to.

Mr. Witt speaks of the personal freedom of the student as if there were such a thing. He has not yet faced the fact that he is a student at MSU by his own choice and pays for a degree by restricting himself academically and socially.

Perhaps when he graduates this spring he will also denounce the president of IBM for regulating his coffee breaks.

Students Live, Shop In East Lansing Area

To the Editor:

Let me begin by quoting a statement from a letter by Mrs. Joanne Richland which was printed in a recent issue of the State News. That statement: "College students have no place in local affairs."

I cannot help but wonder if she has expressed the sentiments of a majority of East Lansing residents. My wife and I have spent over $3,000 at the establishments of local merchants. I'm sure that many other students could quote similar figures. Other students rent homes or rooms in East Lansing, thus providing income for other local residents.

The question seems to be: Does Michigan State exist and flourish because of East Lansing or does East Lansing owe its prosperity and its very existence to MSU? Possibly, East Lansing residents are in serious need of re-evaluating their attitudes toward students and the life-blood which they provide for the community.

May I draw upon the enlightenment of my five years at MSU to impart some wisdom to the disputants involved in the "Dissection on Raw Oyster." Excrement is excrement -- what's the difference?

Point of View

Student: A Citizen In The University

By Perry H. Engstrom III

Editor's Note: Perry H. Engstrom III, Wahpeton, S. Dak., sophomore, is a classical studies major and a member of the newly-formed Committee for Student Rights.

We, the students of Michigan State University, have formed the Committee for Student Rights (CSR), to defend and promote our legitimate interests as students. We unite to affirm an educational philosophy that is fundamental to the needs of students and consistent with the rights of man.

We state our firm belief in "the doctrine that man is meant to live, not to prepare for life"; democratic participation, not "training for democracy"; the understanding that there is no conflict in being a man and being a student; an atmosphere in which there is no True Value, but one in which there is an unencumbered search for Values; a society in which the administration serves the vital and changing needs of students and faculty, not one in which the scholars are subordinate to the University.

Inherent in this doctrine is the conception of the student as a human being fully capable of assuming responsibilities in the here-and-now, quite prepared to suffer the consequences of making mistakes; not as a child to be pampered, and spanked when he is naughty; not as an incidental and troublesome element injected into an otherwise smooth-flowing process; not as an apprentice training to take his place in a strictly defined society.

The University is not a "nice setup" as administration personnel have quaintly put it; it is exploration, it is tension, it is conflict; it is the peaceful but intense resolution of common problems by those who are most immediately concerned with the given society.

Our beliefs imply the need for the University to facilitate--but not control--the development of each individual student. Facilitation involves devoting primary attention to the individual student's academic needs, to the material and intellectual resources at his disposal; not to the winning of government contracts, not to projecting a favorable public image, not toward the creation of a Multiversity.

When we distinguish between facilitation and control, we reluctantly object to the policy that students can realize their potentialities when they suffer special deprivations because they are students.

In essence, what we resolutely oppose is the doctrine of "in loco parentis," which asserts that "the college stands in the same position to its students as that of a parent...and it can therefore direct and control their conduct to the same extent that a parent can."

The University administration will quickly point out--and correctly so--that the doctrine of in loco parentis has remained substantially intact when legally challenged. But we deny that this is the paramount issue.

Rather, we ask: Does this doctrine serve a beneficial educational purpose? Does it express the most desirable relationship between the students and the administration of the University?

Our reply is an emphatic NO! This doctrine permits an administration to formulate a True Value and impose it upon a diverse group of students--forcing them to conform or to forego a University education.

Arbitrary rules and regulations which enforce conformity in the personal and social aspects of life inevitably dull individual creativity and an inquisitive spirit in the intellectual sphere.

Thus, CSR arises not only to change the most offensive paternalistic regulations, but also to challenge the University's claim to be paternalistic, and to initiate a fresh dialogue regarding the student, the University and society.

The Present's Tense

MSU Supports East Lansing

By Jim Sterba

"College students have no place in local affairs."

The above statement from Mrs. Joanne Richland's letter to the editor in Wednesday's State News has brought a wave of reaction from many MSU students.

And Mrs. Richland's statement referring to Linda Rocky's position on the proposed open housing ordinance leads some students to believe that Mrs. Richland is not very aware of the role of MSU in her community of East Lansing.

Mrs. Richland said: "If she (Linda Rocky) is not a qualified resident (of East Lansing), as many (students) are not, why is any of this her business?"

Perhaps Mrs. Richland should ask some of the local merchants if they think MSU students have a place in local affairs.

She would probably be told that without MSU, there would be no local affairs.

She should ask local merchants how business is in the summer months when most of the MSU population is spending its money elsewhere.

After all, student spending money that goes to local merchants is in part collected by the city in taxes to build schools and pay for street lights.

In fact, money from student pocketbooks probably helped to keep Mrs. Richland's street in good repair.

MSU is this area's biggest industry. There seems to be little reason to doubt that without MSU, there would be no East Lansing.

Mrs. Richland is probably right in saying that "many college students are so intelligent, and have learned so much out of their books, that by all means we must listen and learn from them."

It is a pity that she does not care to incorporate all this intelligence into an advisory group for the city of East Lansing.

It is also a pity that she does not recognize the student pocket book as a force in city affairs.

Many communities near universities and military bases resent "outsiders" mingling with the local citizenry.

Perhaps MSU students should follow an example set by a military base to show local citizens the extent of student influence.

The payroll officer at the base handed out silver dollars at the end of the month instead of folding money. Local merchants only needed to consult their cash registers to see the influence the military men had in the community.

Two surveys taken recently show that 60 cents out of every dollar spent in East Lansing comes from MSU students.

In the greater Lansing area over $29 million was spent by students.

Perhaps East Lansing could adopt an altered version of a national food company jingle to say: Students are our business--our only business.

Surely both MSU and East Lansing can progress together by strengthening the free exchange of ideas, instead of turning their back on each other.

Appalachia Bill Passes

WASHINGTON (P)—The Senate yesterday passed the $1,092,400,000 Appalachia bill carrying funds for highways and other projects to aid an economically-depressed 11-state region. The vote was 62 to 22. The measure, strongly backed by President Johnson, was sent to the House, where similar legislation died at the end of the last session after passing the Senate 45-13.

Bundy To Visit Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (P)—President Johnson is sending his White House adviser on international security affairs, McGeorge Bundy, to Viet Nam today for consultations on recent events and conditions.

In announcing the mission for Bundy, the White House disclosed the President held one high-level meeting Monday at which the Vietnamese situation was a prime topic, and had scheduled another with the National Security Council for 6:30 p.m. EST.

Laotian Coup Defeated

VIEN TIANE, Laos. (P)—Loyalists quietly suppressed Monday an uprising by a group of young officers who said they wanted to reform the army high command. Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma called the incident a misunderstanding, here was no bloodshed. Plans of the young officers, headed by Col. Bouleuter Syccosse, faded under the combined pressure of a government show of force and a two-hour conference at the royal palace with Souvanna and his generals.

LBJ Appeals For Dock Strike End

WASHINGTON (P)—President Johnson appealed Monday for a quick end to the 22-day dock strike that has tied up shipping along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts at an estimated cost of $60 million a day. Relaying his request through Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, Johnson asked the 60,000 striking longshoremen to go back to work at all ports where agreements have been reached and for an early settlement at other ports.

Senate Starts On Succession Bill

WASHINGTON (P)—A Senate subcommittee Monday took the first steps to provide a way to fill a vacancy in the office of vice president and insure leadership if a President becomes disabled. It approved and sent to the full judiciary committee without change a proposed constitutional amendment urged by President Johnson. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who heads the subcommittee, said he hopes the whole judiciary body will approve the measure this week. If it does, Democratic Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana has said he'll try to call it up for final senate action before weekend adjournment.

Brezhnev, Kosygin Travel

MOSCOW (P)—Leonid I. Brezhnev paid a secret, three-day visit to Hungary last week and there were hints in Moscow today that Premier Alexei N. Kosygin would make his trip to North Viet Nam in the next few days. Behind these developments were indications that the two new Kremlin leaders may be on the verge of making a major Soviet move in the Soviet-Chinese ideological dispute. Brezhnev, leader of the Soviet Communist Party, went to Budapest Friday for talks with the Hungarian party chief, Janos Kadar, on what Tass called "questions of interest to both sides." Brezhnev had met Kadar last month in Poland at a Soviet bloc summit conference.

Senate Urged To Tone Down Ban

WASHINGTON (P)—The Senate appropriations committee was urged by a State Department official Monday to tone down a House-voted ban on surplus farm commodity shipments to Egypt. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball told the senators that the situation in the Middle East is volatile and dangerous and President Johnson "will need all possible flexibility" in dealing with it. The House ban was added to a $1.6-billion emergency agricultural appropriations bill after President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic invited the United States in effect to "go to hell" with its economic aid.

Maddox Stand Explained

ATLANTA (P)—Attorneys defending Lester G. Maddox in a contempt of court action contended Monday that he was refused to serve Negroes at his restaurant because of political belief, not because of racial origin. "His policy is not to serve integrationists, regardless of race, color, religion or national origin," argued Attorney William G. McRae. "This policy is directed at all persons who hold such political belief." That was the defense at the opening of a hearing before U.S. Dist. Judge Frank A. Hooper who ordered Maddox to show why he should not be held in contempt for violating an injunction. Hooper was on a three-judge panel that ordered Maddox to comply with the 1964 Civil Rights Act last July.

Year Of Serpent, Arrives

The year of the serpent, 4663, has arrived. The Chinese New Year starts today and kicks off a celebration that lasts up to 10 days in some areas.

Each Chinese year is represented by one of 12 symbolic creatures—the tiger, hare, dragon, serpent, horse, ram, monkey, rooster, dog, boar, rat, and ox.

The past year, 4662, was the year of the dragon. The dragon is one of the most sacred and benevolent of the Chinese mythological monsters.

Although the serpent is not to be trusted, it still must be revered for its close kinship to the beneficent dragon, and because it also has powers of healing and renewing life.

The Chinese Club at MSU usually has a big dinner party every New Year's, according to their chairman Daniel Kung, Taiwan, China, graduate student. "There will be no formal celebration this year," said Kung, "because mid-term exams fall at the same time."

A dinner party was held last year at St. John's Student Center at 327 M A C. About 200 students took part in the celebration.

An old Chinese legend says that each New Year a monster named Lang (Year) comes down to earth to devour the people, said Kung. To protect themselves the people ban together and shoot off firecrackers to scare the monster. After Lang has been scared away the people congratulate each other and hold a celebration.

In China the coming of the New Year is similar to our Christmas, said Kung. Houses are gaily decorated and the children are given presents. The door to each house has a red streamer hanging down each side with some sort of good will slogan on it. Over the top of each door are four red letters also wishing good will.

There will also be huge celebrations in New York and San Francisco—the two largest Chinese settlements in the U.S. The traditional dragon parade will be held in San Francisco's Chinatown on Feb. 13. This event always draws hundreds of thousands of visitors.

Parks Chief Okays Dogs

Conservation Commission Director Ralph A. MacMullan Friday said dogs should not be banned from state parks.

His statement followed recent and sometimes heated debate over the issue.

The Commission had tentatively approved a canine ban last February, but withheld final action until the park users and the general public had their say.

Possible dog bites and communicable diseases were the reasons for the proposal.

However, MacMullan said only 32 per cent of the people at the public hearings were for the ban. Mail received by the Commission was 10 to one against the ban.

The Commission will meet February 12 for final discussion and action on the proposal.

Calendar of Coming Events

Socialist Club meeting—Thursday, 8 p.m., Old College Hall in the Union.

Baptist Student Fellowship—MSU Ski Club—7:30 p.m., 100 Engineering.

College Life Meeting—Sigma Chi Fraternity, 729 East Grand River.

German Russian and Spanish Clubs Combined Meeting—7:45 p.m., 34-35 Union.

N.A.H.B. Convention—Tuesday—Thursday, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Pomology—7:30 p.m., Seminar room, Horticulture.

Poultry Science—7:30 p.m., 233 Anthony.

Conservatives Study Leftists

The Conservative Club will discuss the role of Communist and left-wing groups in the presidential defeat last November of Sen. Barry Goldwater, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in 31, Union.

The program, first in the club's winter series, will begin with the film, "By Their Fruits Ye Shall Know Them," produced by the Church League of America, followed by an address by GOP District Chairman Richard Durant.

The film is a documentary study of the literature of left-wing organizations and a description of its authors and their affiliations. It includes comments on Walter Reuther, Fred J. Cook, the Committee for a SANE Nuclear Policy, Methodist organizations, the United Church of Christ and the Communist Party, U.S.A.

Durant, Republican chairman of the 14th Congressional District in Detroit, will comment on the film and suggest future prospects for the conservative cause from the perspective of the Church League's study.

He has been involved in Michigan politics for a number of years and has been widely recognized as a leader of conservative forces in the state. He lectures frequently and heads the investment firm, Durant and Co. of Detroit.

Language Clubs

A joint Russian-German club meeting will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in room 34 of the Union Building. Both presidents urge 100 per cent attendance.

ANDERSON SEES NO LINE-UP CHANGE

'Can't Replace No Scoring With No Scoring'

By DUANE LANCASTER
State News Sports Writer

Success won't spoil Fordy Anderson—it hasn't come his way much this year. After first not succeeding, the veteran basketball coach tried and tried again, applying the old cliché, but it hasn't come.

His cagers have dropped five of five conference games but were badly beaten only once. The last three contests have been decided by one, five and two points, and the Spartans lost their league opener by only seven. However, the won-lost column makes no such distinction.

Anderson won't give up but what is there left to try? Fielding the question, Anderson said, "We'll go back to the fundamentals and work a little harder this week." Moments later he said his team was doing as good a job as can be done. This exemplifies the fact that there really is little more he can do.

"We did everything we could do with the talent we have," he said. "If they hadn't tried hard it would be different but what they need now is a pat on the back instead of a kick in the pants."

Anderson said he is not planning any lineup changes for Saturday's home contest with the University of Minnesota. "You can't replace no scoring with no scoring," he added, referring to the fact that State's two starting forwards Bob Miller and Mark Vander Jagt are averaging 5.7 and 3.6 points respectively.

The averages can be misleading since both have seen only limited action but it still remains that the two starters scored only seven points between them in last week's 77-75 loss to Northwestern.

More than three quarters of the teams points this season have been scored by just three men. Guard Stan Washington has tallied 284 points for a 20.3 average, center Bill Curtis is right behind with 280 for an even 20 points a game and Capt. Marcus Sanders, who tossed in 28 against the Wildcats Saturday, totals 230 points and a 16.4 average.

Almost 10 points separate Ted Crary, the fourth highest scorer on the team, from the top three. Crary a sophomore forward has scored 96 points for a 6.8 average.

Curtis has been the big gun for the Spartans in recent weeks, hitting a career high of 36 points a week ago against Michigan, but Sanders has come on strong in the last two games and cannot go unnoticed.

The Spartan captain was picked by Anderson for recognition after scoring 48 points in his last two games.

The road appears a bit rough in the next few weeks for the last place cagers. After Saturday's game with highly touted Minnesota, the Spartans move to Bloomington for a Monday contest with fourth place Indiana. Then it's on to Ann Arbor five days later for another battle with second-ranked Michigan.

Illinois comes to East Lansing a week later. But Anderson said even though team morale was a bit low after three straight close defeats the ball club would not call it quits for the season.

"We can't sit around and feel sorry for ourselves, we'll just have to work a little harder," he said.

Although Anderson said he felt the newspapers had been a bit down on the club, he said he was pleased with the size and enthusiasm of the crowds at recent games.

BOOST BY BILL--Marcus Sanders (31) appears to be receiving help from teammate Bill Curtis (25) as he goes up to block a shot in last week's 76-75 loss to Northwestern. Both have boosted their own scoring averages in recent games.

Heavyweight On A Rampage

Jeff Richardson Cops Two Pins, Three Wins

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

Don't ever tell MSU wrestling coach Grady Peninger that good things come in small packages. He'll probably prove you wrong.

Peninger's prime example would be the likes of Jeff Richardson, State's 6-3, 235-pound sophomore heavyweight, who is tearing up opponents as if they were paper sacks.

Since taking over the heavyweight duties from injured Homer McClure, who held that position for the past two years, and Jim Maidlow Richardson has gone on a rampage. He's led the grapplers to victories with pins over both his Illinois and Pittsburgh opponents. Last Saturday he won his third match but failed to do it with a pin.

"At this rate," said Peninger with a gleam in his eye, "Richardson could become one of the highest—if not the highest-scoring players in Spartan wrestling history."

Last year McClure reigned as State's leading point producer with 29. Despite the fact that the season is half over, Richardson could still surpass McClure's total.

With his two pins, Richardson has demonstrated his powerful capabilities and potential. Few heavyweights record pins in their initial matches.

"Only the good heavyweights win on falls," explained Peninger. "Because of the keen competition, most victories are not usually won by more than two points."

Richardson's corpulent frame lacks nothing in muscle. Considered one of the strongest members of the wrestling team, he can lift and press 220 pounds.

"There's no doubt about it," related Peninger. Jeff has everything that a good heavyweight must have—strength, speed and agility. He's capable of beating anybody."

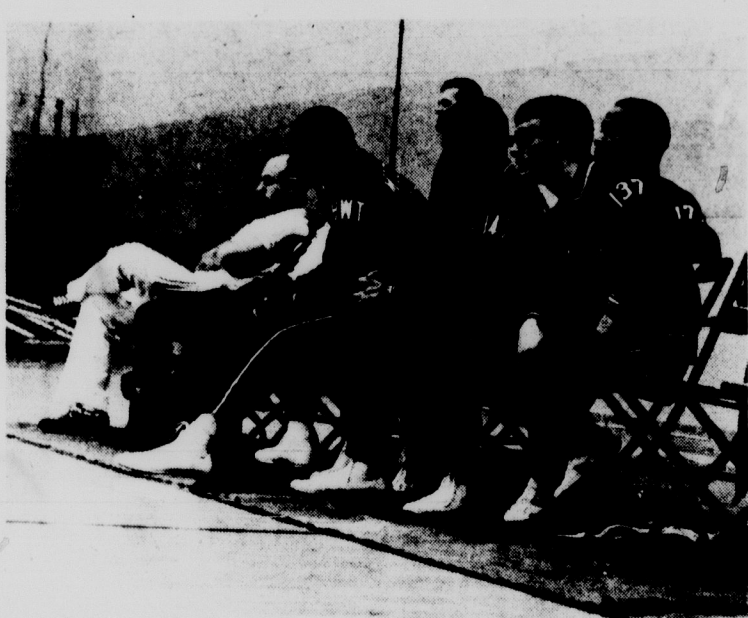

Only McClure, at 250 pounds, outweighs Richardson. Richardson, however, confessed that this doesn't bother him.

"If he (McClure) gives me any lip about weight," gestured Richardson in a humorous tone, "I'll just pick him up and sit on him."

And he has, too! One of the biggest heavyweights in the Big Ten, Richardson is probably the fastest of the heavys. In fact, with the exception of his

Rowing Meeting

MSU's rowing club meets Wednesday at 7 p.m. in 216 Men's IM. There will be a discussion of this year's plans for regattas, including a trip to Florida during spring vacation. Films will also be shown of last year's regattas. Membership is open to anyone and no experience is required.

great strength, speed is his finest attribute. He relates that because of his overall quickness, he is best at escaping from an opponent's hold when on the bottom.

As a Johnstown, Pa. prepster, Richardson received several athletic honors, including the state heavyweight championship in his junior year. As a result of his performances on the gridiron, MSU granted him a football scholarship.

Last fall Richardson was rated as one of State's top sophomore tackles. With the graduation of several of last year's tackles, he could emerge a starter on this year's squad.

Cage Star To Speak On Faith

Cazzie Russell, basketball All-American from the University of Michigan, will speak at a meeting tonight at 8 at the Varsity Club meeting room, south side of the stadium. Russell, who will discuss the importance of faith in his playing career, sponsored by the Varsity Club and College Life.

Bill Krisher, football All-American in 1954-55, from the University of Oklahoma, will also appear on the program.

Russell was here a week ago when he led U-M to a 103-98 overtime victory over State, scoring 40 points. He is an education major and hopes to become a sports announcer.

Boxer To Speak To Men's Club

Chuck Davey, former Olympic and professional boxer and Michigan's new boxing commissioner, will speak to the Men's Club at its regular luncheon meeting at 12:15 p.m. today in the Union Parlors.

Davey is an alumnus of MSU.

Team Cool As Cucumber As Puck Picture Pickles

Take heart, Spartan hockey fans! The "no vacancy" sign hasn't been strung up for the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs as yet.

Although North Dakota appears to have first place honors wrapped up in the WCHA, the three remaining playoff positions are still up for grabs.

And it might come as a surprise to some, but the MSU hockey quintet is among those yet in the running for a berth. The Spartans are currently clinging to the fifth rung of the conference ladder, but are within striking distance of a coveted playoff position.

Of the seven league games remaining, five are with teams that are settled slightly above the Spartans in the WCHA. The other two are with lowly Colorado College, a team that doesn't figure to give State too much trouble. Five of those seven games are on State's home ice, which brightens the Spartan outlook considerably.

On the immediate agenda for Coach Arno Bessone is the Michigan Wolverines, whose 6-5 league mark includes a win over State. The puckmen will tangle with Michigan in a home-and-home series this weekend. A series sweep is almost a must for State.

After non-conference games with Wisconsin, the Spartans face Michigan in Ann Arbor for a single game, then close out their regular schedule with a pair of home games each against Michigan Tech and Colorado.

The Spartans have made the WCHA playoffs only once in their 11 years in the league. Following a third place finish during the 1961-62 season, State lost to Michigan Tech in the playoffs.

Before the student goes to the Union, the registrar suggests he take time to carefully enter the section and sequence numbers on his schedule card. If he waits until he goes to the Union to leaf through the time schedule, he may record the numbers inaccurately in his hurry to finish.

If the student uses a straight edge in the time schedule to identify sequence numbers, King said, he will select the course he wishes to take, not the one listed just above or below it.

"How to Register More Easily" will be outlined in a State News series Feb. 8-10.

The College of Social Science announced its advising schedules as follows:

Anthropology students are to meet with their advisers and enroll Feb. 9 and 10.

Geography majors will enroll according to the following schedule: A-G, Wednesday; H-O, Thursday; P-Z, Friday.

Political Science majors must see their advisors by Friday and should call 355-6591 for an appointment. All students must enroll at the department office, 457 Berkey, Feb. 8 through 12.

The Psychology Department is mailing advising schedules to its majors and will post the schedules outside Room 109 Olds Hall.

Sociology undergraduates will be notified by letter. Graduates will enroll with their major professor Feb. 8 and 9.

Social Science will be sent a letter and those who don't receive one should call 355-6678.

Landscape Architecture will enroll Feb. 9 and 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Department Office.

Police Administration and Public Safety students will enroll as follows: A-C1, Feb. 8; Cm-Grn, Feb. 9; Gro-Kz, Feb. 10; La-Oz, Feb. 11; Pa-Sm, Feb. 12; and Sn-Z, Feb. 15.

ONE WAY CHANGES--This is a map of the changes made in the one-way street system in Lansing. The new routes took effect Jan. 31.

New One-Way Streets

The city of Lansing initiated a major change in the one-way street system traversing its downtown area Sunday.

Four north-south streets, Grand Avenue, Capitol Avenue, Walnut Street and Pine Street, were reversed in direction.

Grand Avenue became one-way north from Main to Oakland, Capitol Avenue one-way south from Grand River to Main, Walnut Street one-way north from Williams to Willow and Pine Street one-way south from Willow to William.

In addition, a new westbound street, Oakland Avenue, was opened from Center to Logan, with a new bridge over the Grand River. Its direction is one-way west.

SWINE TIME--Among the many visitors from Michigan farms who will be on campus this week are these pigs which will be exhibited during various Farmers Week programs.

Economist Discloses Changes In Farming

Recent technological advances resulting in hundreds of new fruit and vegetable products have revolutionized the American farmer in his production and marketing techniques. This was the report of a University agricultural economist Monday at Farmers Week on the MSU campus.

Many of these developments have meant a change in the location of production of several fruit and vegetable industries, said W. Smith Greig. Because of the development of frozen concentrated orange juice, for example, the orange growing industry which used to be located in California is now in Florida.

Greig noted that before concentrated orange juice there were hundreds of buyers and shippers of fresh oranges. "Now over 50 per cent of the crop is probably bought by five or six processors," he said.

The potato industry is another example of shifting production and distribution, the economist said. Four or five firms distribute most of the 10-12 million hundredweight of dehydrated potatoes and about 10 firms produce the majority of the 20 million hundredweight of frozen potato products.

Onion marketing is also changing. "In a recent survey, over 12 per cent of the onions sold to hotels and restaurants were dehydrated trench fried onion rings," Greig reported. "However, only 10 per cent of these were bought in prepared form."

Waste and spoilage of fruit and vegetables is much less than previously. Today's new processes can utilize more of the total crop than ever before. Cull oranges which used to be discarded are now used in juice, while the bigger oranges can be sold directly at the supermarket.

"Marketing prices of the fruit and vegetable industry has increased tremendously in recent years," said Greig. "Potato and orange growers' organizations have been developed to work with large processors to determine price."

Weaving Permits Expression

Color design of paint on canvas by the artist is only one mode of expression. Weaving, as an art, has many types of expression; and, the loom permits the open display of ideas. Interior design students are learning that weaving can produce more than just color in objects. Color can be used to produce feeling in such things as pile rugs, draperies, upholstery and cushions, according to Grace R. Martin, instructor of textiles. The students also learn how to put color design in ponchos, beach bags and purses, she said. Wall hangings are made more contemporary by weaving such things as weeds, goldenrod and shells through the fabric. With the increase of glass space in today's modern buildings, the students also make casement cloths, which are sheer curtains for very large windows.

The emphasis is not so much on weaving as on the design of color and its use. This can be useful in the field of interior design when a client orders an unavailable design and the interior decorator can produce it for them.

Asian Center Holds Talk

An English professor will speak on "The Indian Dominant Party System" at an open meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Student Services lounge. The speaker, W. H. Morris-Jones, is a professor of politics at the University of Leeds, England. He is currently a visiting professor of political science at the University of California. The meeting is sponsored by the Asian Studies Center.

Nassau Vacation

If students act now, they can spend the nine days of spring vacation in Nassau. A chartered Eastern Airlines jet will leave Willow Run Airport March 19, the night flights are over, and return March 29, the night before registration. Round-trip fare for the trip to the Bahama island and a room for the eight nights total $199. Plane fare alone is $145. Deposits of $50 each from 90 people must be paid by this Saturday in order to reserve the hotel rooms. More information concerning the plan can be obtained by calling Dave Conlin at 332-0119 or Belmont Speroni at 351-4353.

Delhi Professor Speaks

"Economic Development as seen From Delhi, Cambridge (England) and Berkeley" will be the topic at an Economics department colloquium in 33 Union at 3:30 p.m. today. Speaking will be A.K. Sen, a professor of the Delhi School of Economics, who has contributed to the formulation of India's economic policy. He is currently a visiting professor at the University of California's Berkeley campus. Sen is the author of several works in development theory, his most widely known being "Choice of Techniques: An Aspect of the Theory of Planned Economic Development." The public is invited.
