EDP Attempts To Redevelop Course Format

By JOHN C. VAN GIESON State News Editor-in-Chief Consider the progress toward instituting new and improved undergraduate curricula and instructional methods has been made by the Educational Development Program (EDP), according to its director. John E. Dietrich, EDP director, made that assessment in a progress report to the Board of Trustees Thursday at Kellogg Center. He defined curriculum as the educational format of both the course offerings a university has for its students and the courses they actually take. "Any curriculum changes that we make should have the approval of the faculty," Dietrich said. Currently his office is gathering and analyzing data on curriculum developments in the immediate past to show trends within the University. A booklet presenting the findings of EDP concerning curriculum trends should be available for distribution to academic departments this spring. Dietrich listed two examples of particular programs EDP is working on in its efforts to improve curriculum. The first is an attempt to establish basic guidelines for curriculum development. "We found a body of common practice--you might even call it common law--has developed over a long period of time but has never been codified. We are trying to codify it now and communicate it to the faculty." The second example he gave was of numerous voids in current practice. A liaison committee will lay the issues on the table of the Educational Policy Committee or Curriculum Committee of Academic Council to come to grips with unresolved issues. Dietrich said that all colleges are now working on revising curriculums. He mentioned mathematics and biological sciences as areas where interdepartmental duplication exists which could be eliminated by curriculum revision. He said that EDP's business is to function as a research committee, to make suggestions to the Academic Council and not to decide any issues. Turning to instructional development Dietrich said: "For a hundred years America (continued on page 7)

Budget Causes Dispute

By BILL PRITCHARD Language in Gov. George W. Romney's budget message has caused confusion over whether he excluded any funds for MSU's proposed medical school. The part of the budget message concerning state: "No increased funds are specifically included for the proposed curriculum in human medicine at Michigan State University." Romney's press secretary, Charles E. Harmon, said there was no specific amount set aside for the school and there was no compulsion in the budget for the establishment of a medical curriculum at MSU. MSU Provost Howard R. Neville said as he understood it, money for the medical school is included in the general appropriation for the University. We have not been led to believe that we should shell the program or put it under wraps," he said. Neville added that the governor knows the medical needs of the state and it is not likely he would ask MSU to discontinue the medical school program already under way. Dr. Andrew D. Hunt, dean of the yet unformed medical school said he is not too concerned about the language in the budget and that there will be no delay in planning. The school was originally scheduled to open next fall but was delayed because of space and curriculum problems. Part of Giltner Hall, which houses the College of Veterinary Medicine, was to be made ready for the School of Human Medicine, but enough space is not yet available. Also Neville said a curriculum has not yet been completed. Difficulty in assembling a teaching staff and a construction strike on the campus also delayed opening. Dr. Hunt said the University plans to apply for federal money in May to aid in construction of a Life-Science Building which will eventually contain the medical school. Last year the W.K. Kellogg foundation contributed $1.25 million toward the school's development. University President John A. Hannah said the school will open when the dean, Dr. Hunt, recommends it, possibly sometime in 1966.

Costar Named To Post

James W. Costar, a member of the Michigan State faculty since 1955, has been named chairman of the Department of Counseling, Personnel Services and Educational Psychology in MSU's College of Education. Costar's appointment, effective immediately, was approved Thursday by the MSU Board of Trustees. He succeeds Raymond N. Hatch, professor of education, who is serving currently as chief-of-party for MSU's Thailand Project. Hatch had headed the department since October 1963, when it was created as part of an overall reorganization within the College of Education. Costar joined the MSU faculty in 1955 as an assistant instructor. Prior to that he was a graduate assistant at MSU, and a teacher and later director of public school guidance in Canton, S.D. He became professor of guidance and personnel services last July. Costar holds B.S. and M.A. degrees from the University of South Dakota, and the Ph.D. degree from MSU. He has served as executive secretary of the Michigan Counselor's Association, and is a member of the American Psychological Association and Phi Delta Kappa education society. Costar and Hatch are co-authors of two books, "Guidance Services in the Elementary School" and "Guidance Services in the Secondary School."

Romney's Budget Hit By Varner

Dr. David L. Varner, chancellor of Oakland University registered "strong disapproval" of his school's share of the state education appropriation in Gov. George Romney's budget Thursday. He compared Oakland's proposed increase of $300,000 with a $500,000 increase for Grand Valley State College. Oakland expects an enrollment increase of 2 per cent next year, Varner said, which would give it a student body between 2,300 and 2,400. He said Grand Valley would probably have only 770 next year. Varner told the trustees Oakland needed a 23 per cent increase in appropriations from last year, an additional $500,000. Romney's suggested figure is about $200,000 less than Varner wanted. Grand Valley has a current budget of about $1 million. The $500,000 appropriation suggested by Romney represents a 50 per cent increase if approved by the Legislature. Oakland University is an affiliate of MSU. Its appropriations are included with Michigan State's in the legislative budget. The total University appropriation recommended by Romney, including Oakland's, is $46.5 million. He was never truculent or insistent. He developed his opinions in long explanations delving into the historical development of each problem and added briefly how he thought they could be solved. Throughout a 75-minute news

LBJ Irked About Alabama

WASHINGTON (AP)--President Johnson expressed indignation over voting rights to many Alabama Negroes and challenged Charles de Gaulle's view of United Nations problems in a Thursday afternoon news conference. The 33-minute session produced these other highlights: --American and Soviet diplomats are discussing a possible presidential trip to Moscow, and details "will be made public as soon as they are definite." --"I may have made a mistake" by asking Chief Justice Earl Warren, rather than Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, to head the U.S. delegation at Sir Winston Churchill's funeral. --"I judge it of the highest importance" that the House accept a Senate amendment that would permit the President to continue sales of surplus farm commodities to the United Arab Republic, if he deemed that to be in the national interest. --"Most of the symptoms of the infection I had are gone, although I don't feel as bouncy as I did before I went to the hospital." --"There has been no change in the position of this country in regard to our desire or our determination to help the people of Viet Nam preserve their freedom." Giving 45 minutes advance notice, Johnson met 147 newsmen in the small, cramped White House movie theater shortly after French President De Gaulle suggested, at a Paris news conference, a five-power conference including Communist China to discuss possible changes in the U.N. charter. Asked about this, Johnson said he would be glad to give "due consideration" to any observations by the French President. But Johnson took issue with the basis of De Gaulle's suggestion by asserting, "The problems of the United Nations are traceable not to the United Nations charter, but to those countries which have violated either the spirit or the letter of the charter." In one of a series of statements read at the beginning of the conference, which was broadcast live by some television and radio networks, Johnson said: "All Americans should be indignant when one American is denied the right to vote."

De Gaulle U.N. Plan Includes Red China

PARIS (AP)--President Charles de Gaulle Thursday suggested a five-power conference including Communist China to resolve the crisis in the United Nations. He also declared that the role of the dollar in international finance should be de-emphasized, and that the problem of German reunification can be solved only by Europeans. Bid Awarded Reluctantly MSU's Board of Trustees awarded a contract for piping and mechanical work on the new power plant at Thursday's meeting, but only after disappointment was expressed by University officials over bids much higher than had been expected. The contract was let to Lorne Co., Inc., which bid $1,619,412. President John A. Hannah told the board that the higher bids may cause some financial problems before the power plant is completed. The structure is scheduled for completion in October.

Bus Passes Need Signatures

Campus bus drivers will be checking student passes starting Monday to see that they are valid, Henry Jolman, head of the bus service said Thursday. Starting Feb. 8, no student will be allowed to ride the bus unless he displays the entire signed bus pass, he said. A number of passes are turned in each day and Jolman said he has no way of returning them to the student unless they are signed.

Viet Journalist Urges Cutting Military Aid

Gradual withdrawal of the military and a replacement of more American assistance in agriculture, health and education is needed in Viet Nam, according to Tran Van Dinh, chief Washington correspondent and bureau chief for the Saigon Post. Speaking at Fairchild Theater Wednesday, Dinh said that massive American military aid will not resolve the war in Viet Nam. "The issue is not a choice between communism or democracy," he told an audience of over 500. "The basic issue is the independence of the country, the unity of Viet Nam and social justice for all." According to Dinh, Americans see only two solutions to the Viet Nam problem. One is to completely get out of Viet Nam and the other alternative is to carry the war into North Viet Nam. If the war were carried into North Viet Nam, Dinh said that the U.S. would defeat its own purpose and would run into the same problem that it is facing in South Viet Nam. Dinh suggested that the U.S. should not withdraw completely, but should reduce the military commitments and increase the social commitments. The Vietnamese pro-U.S. or pro-communist, but to make a Vietnamese a Vietnamese," he said.

Returns Show MSU Payroll

Tax return figures for calendar year 1964 indicate a total University payroll of more than $50 million, Philip J. May, vice president of business and finance, told the Board of Trustees Thursday. May said that $5.4 million in taxes were withheld by the University. W-2 income tax forms have been sent to 22,841 employees. Of that figure 10,353 were regular employees with a total income of over $44 million. Student employees numbered 12,488 and earned a total of over $5.2 million. May said that about 1,500 of the student employees were graduate assistants.

Happy Days Are Here Again

Gov. Romney's record request for a $46.5 million allocation for MSU in the state's 1965-66 general fund budget -- part of a $168.6 million higher education request -- can only promise a bright year for the University.

Moreover, the tone of the governor's budget message means that the record prosperity the state is enjoying can be expected to continue.

Michigan has as usual benefited disproportionately from the prosperity which has blessed the United States for more than four years. The automobile industry, a barometer of the national economy, has reaped more than its share of the profits, and Michigan--and, incidentally, the governor's political career--have felt the pleasant effects.

At least two of the three major automobile manufacturers recorded their highest profits in history in 1964, and the trend looks like it will continue.

Romney's request for record expenditures for higher education were part of a general fund budget that totaled $788.5 million, the highest in Michigan's history, and an increase of $94 million from the current general fund budget, the highest increase ever.

The budget surplus predicted by the end of this fiscal year, June 30, is $105 million, up from a $57.1 million surplus last June 30. The state has been so prosperous that even with record budgets each year the tax system has produced more money than the state has been prepared to spend.

The governor's message said: "As I recently warned in my State of the State message, we must use our surplus prudently in this coming fiscal year and the year following if we are to meet essential needs progressively without increasing taxes or going into debt."

The governor's message includes vastly increased expenditures for many areas of public welfare.

These include a tremendous increase in education expenditures on all levels, a total of $711 million as compared to $617 million this year (this is part of $1.7 billion total state expenditures including previously earmarked funds not included in the general fund budget); a tripled state scholarship program; and a one-fourth increase for community college spending.

Every major area of the governor's budget indicated an increase in spending except for debt service and transfers.

Administrators expressed confidence that the major part of the recommendation for MSU will pass the legislature, meaning 1965-66 will be a good year for the University.

Last year the legislature approved a $39.4 million budget for the University, less than $250,000 below Romney's total recommendation. The state appropriation has increased significantly each year of the four-year period of prosperity the nation is still enjoying.

With what promises to be a more liberal legislature and with an executive branch extremely concerned about the importance of educational spending, Michigan looks ready for another year of generous budgets for education.

For MSU, a record state outlay would probably mean that a record total budget will follow. This is doubtless a key portion of the University's expansion plans.

Clearly, there is no need to discuss the value of legislative passage of major educational expenditures. It is generally recognized that it is the responsibility of government on every level to support education as it sees fit, and Michigan's state government has been a leader of progressive educational policy for a number of years.

The entire state will be awaiting quick legislative approval of the governor's budget, and particularly those portions of it designed to build up the state's educational system.

Letters To The Editor

Hall's Critics Distort His Argument

To the Editor:

The crudely constructed straw man, blatant ad hominem arguments, and muddled reasoning which largely dominate the "Point of View" column in Friday's State News so distort the proceedings of Gordon Hall's recent visit to the MSU campus that some response is in order, not for the purpose of attempting to influence the writer of the column, but rather as a means of clarifying the situation that he has so grossly distorted.

The straw man which serves as a foundation for the entire diatribe is the assumption that Gordon Hall came to this campus to "save" someone, to preside over an ideological revival meeting. Nothing could be further from the truth; in fact, Hall himself clearly stated that this was not his objective.

As a recognized authority on the workings of extremist political organizations, Hall's major role was that of a sharer of information. For those who believe that such a commodity is an essential ingredient for sound judgments, this undertaking is to be applauded, while for those who refuse to allow such mundane matters to cloud their evaluative horizons, the meeting may have lacked the messianic zeal and dogmatic certainty to which they are accustomed.

Were it not so pitiful, one would be struck by the humor of one line of attack pursued in the column. As one who claims to be of a political persuasion which supposedly places great stock in "first principles" and "immutable truths," it is to be expected that the author might reflect this frame of reference in his remarks. Instead, he resorts to the crudest form of relativity.

Thus, it is perfectly acceptable to label individuals as "wops" and "guineas," as long as there are several proper-sounding foreign names associated with the crusade. It is proper to defame and to slander others without providing one shred of factual evidence to support these allegations, just as long as the movement occasionally terminates formal contractual ties with a few of the worst of the hate-mongers.

Such a posture conflicts with the views of every thoughtful conservative who ever wrote or spoke on the subject.

Finally, the author expresses concern that Hall spent considerably more time analyzing the tactics of the far right than he devoted to discussing the movements of the extreme left. Hall expressed his reasons for this choice of emphasis.

The workers of the left clearly express their desire to overthrow the system, to establish a new order. In keeping with this objective, their symbols are those which provoke disgust on the part of most Americans; the "Communist Manifesto," the hammer and sickle, the Daily Worker, the bearded Castro.

By contrast, the malcontents of the extreme right clothe their hatred and bigotry in the symbolic garments of patriotism, of commitment to the traditional social, economic, and political order; in short, they pervert many of the values which, when placed in proper context, serve as the ideological bedrock of our democracy.

The unwary and the naive thus become more susceptible to the wiles of the extreme right, a factor which makes these movements a potentially greater threat to democratic institutions than are the movements of the left.

While other questions could be raised regarding Friday's "Point of View," the points discussed above should suffice to demonstrate the complete lack of substance in the author's "clever" remarks. In the future, more responsible dialogue is to be keenly hoped for.

The President Blinked Today

To the Editor:

Just a short note to protest against the monumental news coverage of the President's cold. So persistent and so detailed were the TV and radio reports that by Saturday evening I was numb to the very mention of the name Johnson.

By Sunday, however, the numbness gave way to amusement as I waited in awe to hear what aspects of the President's cold they would report on next.

The examples were numerous: The President's temperature is hovering at 99.9. The President's nose is a bit red. The President is wearing his bunny-blue all-in-one PJs; yesterday he wore his favorite fire engine pajamas. The President is sucking on black throat lozenges.

The President's temperature was hovering at 98.8. The President's nose is no longer dripping. The President has consumed three boxes of Puffs. The President is looking out of his bedroom window this morning.

On and on it went. I was thoroughly disappointed when they didn't show a close-up of his hard palate on TV or put his heartbeat over the air.

Unfortunately, TV has once again driven a good thing into the muck. To keep Americans informed, but to harangue them with hourly reports on such a trivial matter as a common cold is a bit ridiculous.

certing is that the President allowed himself to be manipulated by those newsmongering reporters.

Has he no concept of perseverance and dignity as was so magnificently displayed by the late John Kennedy?

I must say, it's going to be a long four years. And let us all pray to God that our dear President doesn't come down with diarrhea.

Johnson's Health

To the Editor:

In Monday's State News there appeared a poem, a funny one, which noted the concern given President Johnson's cold.

I don't want to sound morbid or condemnatory, but it disturbs me to see that subject treated lightly.

One line which appeared some time ago in Newsweek made the presidency something very meaningful to me, and so, when I read "On Lyndon's Cold," that solitary line came back:

"...Then the Governor and Mrs. Connally observed brain tissue splattered on the inside of the car."

For some intangible reason, I worry about our President's health.

Point Of View. Education More Than A Speciality

By Girard E. Krebs

Editor's Note: Girard E. Krebs, East Lansing graduate student, holds a bachelors degree in mathematics and physical sciences and is now majoring in sociology.

The following comments are meant to be an addition to the current discussion between the liberal arts people and the science majors.

The discussion so far seems to have been carried on between representatives of the two areas of emphasis. A strong tendency toward bias is inherent in any such discussion from the sheer fact that vested interests are involved.

There is a need for personal justification by the individual, be it rationalized or not, for his commitment to spend his life in pursuit of any one area of interest. This is true of anyone who actively goes through the educational process.

Rest at ease, people, for there is no need for the justification of the liberal arts or the natural sciences; they are justified because they exist. Each discipline in these fields is not only valid, but valuable because it seeks, implicitly or explicitly, to add to the human understanding either of man as an existing phenomenon or of his environment, or of some combination of the two.

However, I am concerned about you aspiring scientists. It is easy to get bogged down and enslaved to your discipline. The tone of the letters written to the State News by several of you prompts me to speculate that this is happening already, and you are still novices.

Do not shrug this indictment off by falling back on the old argument of having taken the basic University College courses. Considering yourself as having a rounded education for having done this could not be farther from wrong.

Liberal education cannot be quantified. Saying that you have taken a given number of courses in specific disciplines does not make you liberally educated.

Liberality reflects a frame of mind or a point of perspective from which you view the world. One of the greatest fallacies and dangers in our educational system is extreme compartmentalization and departmentalization.

In this age of vastly increasing stores of knowledge it is impossible for any one person to know that which exists in his own field, let alone in several fields. But this fact excuses no one from the necessity of exposure to, and a working acquaintance with, the ramifications of his own existence.

This is especially true today, and becomes more imperative as time passes. If the physicist, the chemist, the doctor, the theologian, the nationalist, or what have you, does not soon take on a concern for the problems he is creating along with the ones he is attempting to solve, there may come a day when homo-sapiens will have destroyed himself.

The immediate conclusion you have likely jumped to is that I am thinking of a nuclear holocaust. I do not deny its possibility, but that is not my intended meaning.

I am concerned with the destruction of man through such negative or seemingly neutral forces as sheer numbers of humans, deprivation, apathy, demagoguery, and ignorance, to name a few. It may well control such forces, there would be no need to be concerned with nuclear holocaust, or to squander tremendous wealth on military activity.

Just think of what could be done with the vast amounts of wealth now wasted in this world on military preparedness.

Man is perhaps the one animal now existing on earth which may have some real potential to extend himself far into the bosom of nature. If he blows his chance, narrow-minded people who cannot see farther than the confines of their own discipline will be to blame.

A colleague has hypothesized that in this age of specialization there is the impetus to learn more and more about less and less until the point may be reached when the specialist will know absolutely everything about absolutely nothing.

God, Man And Mrs. Richland

To the Editor:

I would not feel obliged to reply to Mrs. Joanne Richland's letter-to-the editor ("Home Owner Attacks Open Housing") if she had not asked the Almighty to assist me with my duties in instructing the young.

I am always gratified to see private citizens take an active interest in what goes on in the classroom, and help from any quarter is usually appreciated.

But after reading Mrs. Richland's simple thoughts on the complicated matter of an open housing ordinance it occurred to me that all of professors might well ask the Deity to assist Mrs. Richland with her exercises in logic before he comes to the aid of those students at MSU whose defective thinking she deplures.

I say!

8-Per Cent Bill Killed; AUSG Allots King Funds

By JO BUMBARGER State News AUSG Writer

Student Congress defeated Wednesday night a bill that would require an 8 per cent "yes" vote in future elections and approved money for Martin Luther King to kick-off an MSU educational project in Mississippi, in a meeting which lasted past the coeds' 11:30 curfew.

King, Nobel Peace Prize winner and civil rights leader, is to speak here Thursday to start a fund-raising drive to aid Rust College in Holly Springs, Miss. Present to back the bill were Warren Platt, All University Student Government (AUSG) vice president for special projects representing AUSG president Bob Harris, who is in Washington, D.C., for the annual White House presidential prayer breakfast, Laura Leichter, director of academic affairs; Frank Blanco, Student Education Corps co-ordinator; Stanley Idzerda, Honors

MSU President John A. Hannah has reassured Michigan farmers that agriculture will remain an essential part of MSU. But he added that increased emphasis would be placed on serving urban citizens.

Hannah, speaking Thursday at a special program to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Farmer's Week at the Auditorium, said that as long as MSU endures, the College of Agriculture will be an integral part of the University.

"At no other university has so adequate a provision been made for the future service to agriculture," he said. Hannah said that many services now being geared to rural residents will be aimed at urban people in the years ahead.

"There has been a mounting demand for these services for those living in suburbs and crowded city neighborhoods alike," he said. Cooperative Extension Service programs will not be diminished in the years ahead, but will be expanded to serve more people, he said.

"After all, MSU's primary responsibility is to serve the needs of the people by whom it is supported," he said, "and that means everyone in Michigan, no matter what his role in life." Hannah urged farmers to support the war on poverty.

"It occurs to me that people in agriculture should look upon the war on poverty with understanding and sympathy and perhaps even contribute from their own experience to help prevent extravagant excesses and to achieve its success," he said. Hannah pointed to the changing role of the University in educating the farmer. "Today's farmer, and more so tomorrow's, must be a broadly educated man," he said.

Gophers Shoot For First With Win Over State

By DUANE LANCASTER State News Sports Writer

The NEWS In SPORTS

State's winless basketball team faces even more trouble Saturday when title-conscious Minnesota invades Jenison Fieldhouse with a chance of grabbing a share of first place in the Big Ten.

The Gophers have lost only to Illinois in five conference outings and pose a serious threat to league-leading Michigan.

The Wolverines, 5-0 in the Big Ten and the number one team in the nation, meet second place Iowa (4-1) and a win by the Hawkeyes coupled with a Minnesota victory would mean a three-way tie for the Big Ten's top spot.

So coach John Klumda's Gophers won't be fooling around

Saturday and the Spartans will have their hands full. Minnesota brings a veteran-loaded team into the game and will also carry a distinctive height advantage over State.

Lou Hudson, a 6-5 junior forward, has led the Gophers to an overall 12-3 record and has received strong scoring help from Mel Northway, Archie Clark and Don Yates.

Hudson has scored 298 points for a 19.8 average and three other Gophers are in double figures. Clark, a 6-1 junior guard has a 14.3 mark, Anthony (6-8) is at 14.5 and Yates, a 6-2 guard has 13 point average.

Junior Dennis Dvoracek handles the other starting forward post and sophomore Paul Presthus (6-5) will see much reserve duty.

The hard-luck Spartans, losers of their last three games by a total of eight points, stand 0-5 in the Big Ten and 4-9 overall.

Coach Fordy Anderson indicated that it would be back to fundamentals this week in an attempt to shake the losing habit.

"We can't sit around and feel sorry for ourselves, we'll just have to work a little harder," he said.

Anderson said he was planning no lineup changes so it'll probably be Mark Vander Jagt and Bob Miller at the forwards, Bill Coker at center and Capt. Marcus Sanders and Stan Washington at the guard spots.

Washington and Curtis are running virtually dead heats for scoring and rebounding honors.

Washington, a 6-3 junior, has tallied 284 points for a 20.3 average and Curtis is only four points behind with 250 and an even 20 points per game.

Curtis, the shortest center in the Big Ten at 6-4, is the top rebounder with 148 and 10.5 average and Washington is following close with 145 rebounds and a 10.3 average.

Sanders has been coming along strong in the last two weeks. The 6-3 senior dumped in 25 points in a 77-75 defeat to Northwestern Saturday to up his average to 16.4 per game.

But Anderson gets little help from the rest of the team. Miller, who replaced 6-1 John Schick in the starting lineup two weeks ago, is averaging less than six points a game while Vander Jagt, a 6-6 senior, is at 3.7.

Sophomore Ted Crary, State's number six man, has scored 96 points for a 6.8 mark.

Anderson said his squad would be stressing defense this week in addition to the fundamentals. The Spartans have given up 59.2 points per game and have allowed 100 or more points on four occasions.

"Minnesota's balanced attack makes them tough to defend against so we'll have to work extra hard to keep their scoring down," he said.

The Gophers are riding a three game winning streak and seemed to hit their peak against Purdue when they sunk 53% of their shots to topple the Boilermakers.

Spartans Battle U-M In Vital Hockey Set

Michigan and Michigan State collide this weekend in a vital two-game series in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

The Spartans journey to Ann Arbor for the series opener tonight, then return to entertain the Wolverines at the MSU Ice Arena Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

State will be out for a "split personality" complex that has hounded them of late. All through the conference portion of their schedule the packmen have divided two-game sets, losing one and winning one.

Now into the concluding part of the season the Spartans are forced to boost a 3-4 WCHA mark in order to make the league playoffs.

With a sweep of the Michigan series this weekend State could take over third place, a spot which the Maize and Blue currently hold down.

Cladding the situation for State, however, is the uncertainty of whether goalie Jerry Fisher will be in the nets against the Wolves.

Fisher was injured in practice Tuesday and spent the rest of the week in Olin. Coach Arno Bessone labeled the little goaltender as a doubtful starter in the series. Spare netkeeper Alex Terpay will start in the goal, if Fisher is unable to play.

Bessone is counting on the return to the scoring column of his second line. The Mike Jacobson, Gary Goble and Sandy McAndrews unit has come up blank on the scoring sheets in the last three games. Before the drought this threesome had accounted for 35 goals with winger Jacobson leading the way with 22.

Defensesmen Bob Brawley will play although a leg injury will effect his play.

Offensively Doug Roberts, Willie Faunt and Tom Mikkola, will compose one line while wings Jim Lawrence and Doug Volmer and center Mike Coppo will make-up the third line.

7-1 RECORD THE TARGET

Swimmers Aim For Gophers, Buckeyes On Weekend

By LARRY MOGG State News Sports Writer

State's ambitious swimming team will be out to cushion their dual-meet record this weekend with back-to-back home matches against Minnesota and Ohio University.

Minnesota, who can match State's 5-1 dual meet record, will bring another top-notch squad into Friday night's bout that will start at 7:30 in the Men's IM building.

Ohio will follow the Gophers into the Spartan headquarters for a Saturday afternoon meet. The Ohio University meet will start at 1:30.

The Big Ten Gophers, always a little nervous, are in for the brunt of the Spartan fury. The northmen have edged out State by close margins in the last three outings. To add salt to the Spartan wounds, the Gophers have finished above State in the Big Ten championships during those same years.

"We're sick and tired of being beaten by Minnesota," said Coach Charles McCaffree, "and we're going to correct that situation Friday night."

McCaffree will counter the Gopher powerhouse with practically the same lineup he employed against Michigan.

The 50- and 100-yard freestyle should be the most closely contested events. Gopher Mike Stauffer is one of the best at these sprint distances in the conference. But McCaffree has soph Gary Dille and junior Jim MacMillan ready for the Stauffer in the 50.

Darryl Kiter and MacMillan, along with Stauffer, have posted times around 48 seconds in the 100, where prospects for another tight match are in the making.

With Big Ten record-holder Walt Richardson on hand for the butterfly, the Gophers can figure to dominate that event. Jim Pellessier puts the breaststroke down as a Gophers strong suit.

Host Gymnasts Want Pleasant Company

By ROBERTA YAFIE State News Sports Writer

The Spartan gymnasts will be entertaining at home again Saturday at the I.M. Arena with the hope of providing some food for thought for their guests, the Hoosiers of Indiana.

After evening their season's standings against Ohio State and advancing to a 2-1 mark in the Big Ten State is hoping to forge ahead and stay in the race.

Although some may think the "big one" is Feb. 12 at Ann Arbor, this weekend's contest will be more than a tune-up. The Hoosiers have improved greatly from their seventh-place Big Ten finish last year, and should pose a stiff challenge for the Green and White.

Indiana stands 2-2 in Big Ten competition. Their last outing was a triple dual meet with Wisconsin and Indiana State. The Hoosiers dropped the first contest to the Badgers, 82-35, while tying 59-59 in the second meet.

The top man in the Indiana line-up is Joel Sutlin. A sophomore, Sutlin works all-around for the Hoosiers. Another standout is Keith Ruggles on side horse, whom Coach George Szypula says will be tough to beat.

"With a good day, we can beat them," he commented. "They'll be pretty tough, especially on trampoline, rings and long horse."

AT FEDERATION RELAYS

Clock State's Main Foe

By MIKE BROOKS State News Sports Writer

State's track team will get a chance to measure its early season condition Saturday when the Spartans travel to the University of Michigan to compete in the Michigan Federation Relays.

Daswell Campbell will run the lead - off quarter of the sprint relay, and the 220 legs will be taken by Jim Summers and Norm Sinclair.

The hurdle quartet of Jones, Washington, Steele and McKay has looked sharp in practice.

State has four men entered in the individual 2-mile run. Besides George Balthrop, winner in last week's dual meet, Dittrich will also be testing Jack Amie, Paul McCollam and Rick Zemper.

Zemper was third in the mile and second in the 1000-yard run last week while McCollam and Amie completed a Spartan sweep of the 2 mile.

In other individual running events, Greg Syfert, Ken Johnson, and Roger Stewart are entered in the 600-yard run, while Mike Kaines will try the mile.

Greg Rugg and Tom Herbert, second and third last week in the shot put, and Bill Schnarr, Spartan pole vaulter who set a personal competitive mark, are also entered.

'Battle Of The Unbeatens' Pits Wrestlers At Minnesota

By JOE MITCH State News Sports Writer

In week's past week's 12-6 victory against Purdue, State's wrestling team ventures to Minnesota this weekend with hopes of maintaining its winning ways.

The Green and White grapplers, undefeated for the season with a 5-0-1 mark, seek their fourth consecutive victory in Big Ten action, but mat coach Grady Penninger is quite conservative about the possibility.

"The boys must really show their ability this week," said Penninger. "Last Saturday they spent a lot of time in the gymnasium, while I was in the field."

Penninger wouldn't be so concerned about Saturday's match if it was a non-conference meet. But, he feels Minnesota is a strong team, comparable to the university of Michigan.

"Next to Michigan," said Penninger, "Minnesota is as tough as you'll find in the Big Ten. Several of their players were conference champions and runners-up last year."

State and Minnesota battled each other in the Northwestern Quadrangle earlier in January but the Spartans finished in first place.

Terry Leonard, State's 167-pounder, lost to John Kleine for the Quadrangle division championship, while Spartan Bob Pickens was unable to beat Larry Loyd in the 190-pound weight class. Loyd later went on to capture fourth place.

Considered to be the top attraction of the meet is Gary Smith's return bout with Gopher Dor Henry at 123 pounds. Smith, a senior with a 5-1 dual meet record, lost to Henry two years ago.

Minnesota, unbeaten in conference action, has indicated its strong potential with several impressive wins. Their most resounding victory to date was a 31-0 rout of the State College of Iowa. The Spartans face this same team in two weeks.

Also on the agenda for the Spartans is a non-conference engagement with Mankato State College, immediately following the Minnesota match.

STATE LABELED 'GREEN' Fencers Meet Champ Illini

By PHIL LOOMIS State News Sports Writer

It's ironic that State's inexperienced fencing team could get its first taste of Big Ten competition against defending champion Illinois Saturday.

The Spartans possess a team which boasts only four returning lettermen from a team which tied for second in 1964.

Five other fencers had their first taste of intercollegiate competition last weekend.

This is a team which Coach Charles Schmitter feels can be a threat in the Big Ten, if it progresses and develops as it has in the past two weeks.

This same optimistic team however, must kick off its conference competition against a team which went undefeated last year in the Big Ten to cop its fourth title in five years.

From this squad, Illinois' coach Maxwell Garrett will enjoy the services of nine seasoned fencers.

Heading the list is Craig Bell, 1964 NCAA sabre champion, and Big Ten sabre king Rudy Bartha.

Besides sabre, their longest weapon with four lettermen leading the list, the Illini boast three veterans in foil competition.

Roger Gossett, third place fencer in the conference last year, holds down the top spot.

Illinois, along with State, can claim epee as its weakest weapon. Graduation took Garrett's top three epee fencers last year, leaving him with only two in that category. The Spartans have only one monogram winner, captain Joel Serlin.

Speculation on the campus of the Fighting Illini is that the team's success in 1965 depends on the development of the epee squad.

Two seldom-used lettermen, Mike Gates and Roy Neisz, now hold down the top spots in that department. Coach Garrett has five other members with which he can bolster the epee contingent.

In regards to Illinois' having three of the conference's top sabre fencers, Schmitter feels that this won't decide the outcome of the meet.

Off-Campus Roomers Complain About Leases

By LORETTA BLOOM
State News Staff Writer

It won't be too long before the State News wants a department flooded with offers to sublease new apartments for the summer.

Students who had to sign 12-month leases for their apartments will have to sublet, unless they plan to remain for summer term.

"These 12-month leases give the student a feeling of insecurity because he doesn't know where to find someone who will sublet his apartment," said John Altomare, Allen Park junior, living at Cedar Village.

A coed who lives in a Burcham Woods apartment, complained that she had to sign a 12-month lease. The manager told her that only 12-month leases were offered.

A few weeks later, she discovered that other Burcham Woods apartments were rented on six- and nine-month leases. Now she is responsible for 12-months' rent.

EDP Report

can universities have taught by the traditional instructional model of one teacher in a classroom with 25 to 30 students. "As a university grows it can no longer teach solely by these traditional methods."

He mentioned three possible alternatives to the large sections that inevitably result from large enrollments.

"We can proliferate the faculty, or we can add more graduate assistants, or we can seek new methods of teaching."

Dietrich indicated that all three measures are being used.

Craig Johnson, assistant director of EDP, told the trustees how concentration in a relatively small number of academic departments creates problems in instruction.

He said 40 per cent of all undergraduate student credit hours are taught in 50 of the university's 900 undergraduate courses.

The 50 largest courses are concentrated in 17 of the University's 70 departments. These include University College, College of Education and Departments of Mathematics, Psychology, Foreign Languages, History, English, Chemistry, Economics, Sociology, Accounting, Political Science and Philosophy.

"We feel that by introducing methods of keeping quality high in these areas we'll be taking care of the largest number of students," Johnson said.

He said that EDP aimed at helping an instructor answer three basic questions:

—"What do I want the student to be able to do after taking my course that he couldn't do if he didn't take it?"

—"What is the best way to get the student to do it?"

—"How do I know if the student can do it?"

On the other hand even though there are parking problems, complaints about service, long leases and high rents, all the students said that they were relatively happy where they were.

Most of the students thought that studying was easier in an apartment. The men in a Cedar Village apartment boasted of a 3.2 average for last term.

Apartment dwellers enjoy their new-found freedom and responsibilities, plus eating "uninstitutionalized" food.

The women who now live off campus enjoy freedom from curfew most of all.

So, all those students who will be eligible for off-campus living would do well to consider all the advantages as well as the disadvantages.

Love Alone Not Cause Of Marriage Happiness

Marriage, as leading a goal for adults and not an end in itself, was the theme of the first of a series of marriage seminars held Wednesday night at the Lansing YMCA.

Leading the discussion was Mrs. Wave Granger, director of Home and Family Living for the Lansing Public Schools and professor of social work at MSU.

Cited as deterrents to happiness by a film that began the program, were the constant threat of war, housing shortages, lack of jobs and an environment of chaos and pressure.

The film gave several criteria for successful marriages. An intangible bond between husband and wife comes without speaking. A happiness is created from giving without reserve. There comes the realization that understanding and thoughtfulness toward one's partner leads to the same treatment of others.

Not every man and woman knows what to look for in a marriage partner, the film said. Not all know that the answer is to be found in themselves.

In leading the discussion Mrs. Granger posed the problem of changing concepts of marriage. Young people today want more from marriage than their parents did.

Cazzie A Follower

By MARY FISCHER
State News Religion Editor

This week's meeting of College Life, held at the Sigma Chi fraternity house, featured Cazzie Russell, basketball player at the University of Michigan, and Bill Krisher, All-American and All-Pro football player.

Krisher presented two questions to the group which he felt follow the crowd. The person who is most respected is the one who stands up for his beliefs. Because this is the generation which is going to take over the nation it should begin to set the example now.

"Our generation, in our silence to the church and in our silence to the people around us, is saying Crucify Him, Crucify Him because we are afraid to stand up for our beliefs."

It was then, however, that he decided that he was living in order to tell others about Jesus Christ.

Where are you going? Krisher knew then that his goal in life must be to do God's will, as the only way to live a happy life. He then promised that if he were ever asked to speak to a group for Christ's cause he would do so.

Russell invited Christ into his life through the encouragement of his parents. That was before he began to play basketball and he feels that he is in his present position because of Christ.

He now sings in the church choir. "If I don't participate in church, I feel I'm not doing everything I can."

Following Christ is not just for old women and children. It is nothing to be ashamed of. "I would personally stake my life that He is true and that He is the Son of God."

He told the group that each person sets an example more than he will ever know. Because of this it should be evident that one is a Christian by his actions in everyday life.

People have commented that they never have seen Cazzie lose his temper on the court. His explanation for that is simple. He tries to keep his temper because he knows that if he does lose it, he will be back to apologize later.

He told the students it is not necessary to be a person of fame and fortune to influence others toward Christ. He wishes he were known more as a follower than an athlete.

Hunger War Speech Set

The United Christian Fellowship Group will meet Feb. 7 at 7:30 p.m. at the Mt. Hope Methodist Church. Sponsored by the Lansing Council of Churches, the group is non-denominational and open to single adults 20 years old and over.

The speaker this week will be the Rev. Mr. Robert McComb, a member of the Board of Michigan Freedom From Hunger Council which is under the National United Nations Program on Food and Agriculture Organization. Gov. Romney is honorary chairman of the board.

Rev. McComb is a former Presbyterian minister from Linden, Mich. He will speak on hunger as an undeclared war and a serious problem.

A social period will follow.

UCF Officers

The newly elected officers of the United Christian Fellowship are: president, Donna Pettit; vice-president, Brad Conklin; secretaries, Marilyn Spalding and Margaret Wygant; and treasurer, Emily Marks. They will serve a four-month term.

Congo Survivor Sets Talk At Faith Church

The surviving member of a Baptist Mid-Missions team at the Mangungu Mission Station in Kwilu Province of the Congo will be the guest speaker at the morning service of the Faith Baptist Church, 522 Maple, Lansing, Sunday.

Miss Ruth Hege is a veteran of 33 years of missionary service. She will tell how she barely escaped with her life after her co-worker, Miss Irene Ferrel, was slain by the Irenues in January 1964.

According to the Rev. Paul Aardsma, an MSU student and pastor of the church, the public is invited to the service and transportation will be provided. Arrangements can be made by calling IV 4-6401.

Fellowship Speech

What are college students' responsibilities concerning the juvenile delinquency problem in our land? Should we fight them, join them or help them, and how should we do it?

This is the question Chuck Roost, state director for Youth for Christ, will be asking at tonight's Spartan Christian Fellowship meeting at 7 p.m. at Bethel Manor, 303 E. Grand River.

Roost has done much work with juvenile delinquency in the Lansing area. He hopes to acquaint college students with the problems involved in dealing with troubled teenagers, and to awaken in the students a desire to help wayward youth.

H.S. Girls
To 'Synch'
And Swim

There will be a big splash in the women's intramural pool Saturday when 800 high school girls jump into it for the annual Green Splash Clinic.
The clinic, a money-making project of the Green Splash Honorary, is to teach synchronized swimming to girls from about 25 high schools in lower Michigan. The cost for each girl is 25 cents.
The girls who come to the clinic want to learn something new to take back to their schools, said Penny Pritchard, Pontiac sophomore in charge of the clinic.
Green splash is planning four activities for the girls. Miss Pritchard said.
The first activity will be lessons in new stunts, strokes and proper methods. The second will be a lecture on the chronography and staging of a water show.
"Holiday for Landlovers" is the theme of the third activity. It will be a demonstration by Dolly Graening, MSU cheerleader, of training and exercises that can be done out of the water.
The final activity will be a show of movies of past Green Splash water shows.
Before the girls go home they will have the opportunity to do routines of their own. These will be discussed and criticized by professional swimmers from the Physical Education Department.

clues three dramatizations. In the first, "Old Milon," a Prussian colonel is insulted and an old Frenchman pays with his life.
The second, a macabre tale called "The Twelfth Night Party," deals with a troop of re-treating French Hussars looking for a night's entertainment. Concluding the program, an ironic comedy entitled "The Duel" tells the tale of a timid Frenchman and his contest with a Prussian braggart.
De Maupassant is considered by many to be the greatest master of the short story. His short stories have been adapted for television by England's Granada Television. Produced by Phillip Mackie, the series is being broadcast for the first time in this country through the National Educational Television network.
Among those appearing in the series are Jean Kent, who played in the musical, "Marigold," and in "A Shred of Evidence;" Maxine Audley, who has appeared in a number of stage productions and in the film version of "Anna Karenina;" and Thorley Walters, who played in "Under the Counter."

Some of the De Maupassant short stories to be dramatized are "A Family Business," "The Devil," "Hautot and Son," "Boiteille," "The Legacy," "The Orderly" and "Graveyard Lovers." Two longer stories, "Yvette" and "The Inheritance," will also be presented.
