

Itinerary Set For Visit Of Martin Luther King

Martin Luther King's itinerary will allow him three hours in East Lansing Thursday.

The Nobel Peace Prize winner will speak in the Auditorium at 4 p.m. to kick off a fund-raising drive for the All-University Student Government (AUSG) summer educational project in Mississippi.

King will land at the Capital City airport at 2:44 p.m. and will leave at 5:40 p.m. Prior to his speech he is expected to help make a tape for the department of social science.

A five-car caravan, courtesy of Oldsmobile, will escort King to and from the airport. AUSG president Bob Harris will introduce him.

Tickets are still on sale for $1 each. The speech is open to the public.

"I'd suggest that everyone get a ticket as soon as possible and get to the Auditorium early," Charles Stoddard, AUSG director of internal affairs, said.

Only 3,000 tickets are available and the overflow crowd will sit in Fairchild Theatre which can only carry sound from the Auditorium. There are no reserved seats.

Tickets are available at the Union Ticket office, Student Book Store, Paramount News Stands in Lansing and East Lansing, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the International Center, and from 5 to 7 p.m. in Conrad Auditorium, Brody Hall and the Wilson Auditorium.

King will speak in connection with the new STEP project which will provide funds and personnel to help Rust College in Holly Springs, Miss.

The main project will be a summer clinic to raise the reading ability of high school juniors and seniors in the area.

Hannah Heads South For 'Rights' Hearings

President To Preside At Study

By JIM STERBA
Administration Writer

The problems in Mississippi most eventually be solved by Mississippians, MSU President John A. Hannah re-emphasized Tuesday.

Hannah spoke at a press conference on the eve of his departure to preside over Civil Rights Commission hearings today in Jackson, Miss.

The commission is making its fourth attempt in the last five years to hold hearings today in Mississippi, he said.

Hannah, chairman of the Civil Rights Commission, said the group will hear testimony in two specific areas during its two-week stay in Mississippi: alleged voting discrimination and the administration of justice by police.

"We are going to Mississippi to determine if it is a fact that persons are being denied the right to vote because of race, creed or religion," he said.

Over 100 witnesses will be called by the commission to testify on the denial of voting rights and the action of police in handling Negroes.

"There isn't any question," Hannah said, "that if you are white and are arrested you get different treatment than if you are a Negro and get arrested for the same offense."

"This doesn't apply to Mississippi exclusively," he said.

The first week of the hearings will be closed in order to protect some witnesses who could be endangered during open hearings, Hannah said.

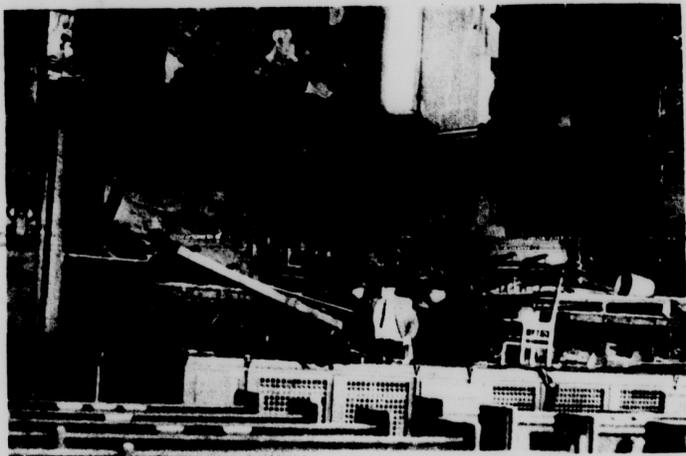

"You can't jeopardize the lives of these people," he said.

He related an incident where a Negro farmer who stood up for his voting rights was unable to sell his cotton or buy feed for his cattle in the area afterwards.

Hannah said the commission is limiting itself to probing two specific areas because it doesn't want to open any old wounds in Mississippi.

"We already know the facts in other areas," he said.

Also, the commission will not

City's Worst Fire

Loss Set At $150,000

By JOHN ELMER
State News Police Writer

Damage to Peoples Church has been estimated at $150,000 in what is believed to be the worst fire in East Lansing history.

"It loss estimates hold up, this fire will prove to be the most expensive we've ever had," East Lansing Fire Marshal Arthur P. Patriarche said Tuesday.

Fire broke out at the historic landmark about 4:45 p.m. and quickly gathered force as units from four fire departments battled thick smoke and flames for more than an hour and a half.

"We're definitely satisfied the fire was a result of an electrical failure under the organ loft," Patriarche said.

The organist, Corliss Arnold, was giving a lesson when the organ suddenly stopped. Arnold notices smoke coming from beneath the console area, and immediately alerted Rev. Wallace Robertson, pastor, who phoned the Fire Department.

Firefighters numbered 35 men and seven units from East Lansing, Lansing and Meridian Township joined to fight the blaze.

The fire marshal said that when firemen opened the access door to the area beneath the organ they were engulfed in thick clouds of smoke.

Warren Pierce, business manager of Peoples Church said Tuesday the staff was operating as usual in the building.

Sunday worship services, however, will be held at the State Theatre for an indefinite period. Services will be at the regular times, 9:30 and 11 a.m.

Church school will still be held at the church, also at 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday.

Pierce said the building committee, already working on a proposed half million dollar expansion program, will meet with the architect Friday to accelerate plans for renovation, including the new expense of repairing fire damages.

Offers of assistance from other churches, places of business, and MSU have been received, Pierce said.

He estimated that about 600 MSU students attend services at Peoples Church each Sunday.

Fire Marshal Patriarche said he wished to thank students who helped move heavy fire hoses Monday.

"We're always undermanned, and the students have never failed to help when we needed help," Patriarche said.

LBJ Plans Voting Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson was quoted Tuesday night as saying he plans to submit legislation to Congress to secure voting rights for Negroes.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. said that after a 15-minute session with the President.

But the Negro civil rights leader said he was given no details of the proposed legislation beyond the fact that it would be accompanied by a special message to Congress from the President.

1,000 Moscow Students Storm U.S. Embassy In Viet Protest

MOSCOW (AP)—Nearly 1,000 screaming, sign-waving students marched on the U.S. Embassy Tuesday, smashed windows and splattered walls with ink to protest American air strikes in North Viet Nam.

Led by 250 North Vietnamese, they strung anti-American signs on the iron fence outside the embassy and tussled with police who prevented them from mounting a second assault.

U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler protested to the Foreign Ministry, demanding and receiving Soviet assurances that the Russians would repair the smashed windows and ink-stained embassy walls. Such demonstrations cannot take place without the consent of Soviet officials.

Kohler also demanded long-term measures to guarantee Soviet protection of American embassy property and personnel in Moscow. The demonstration was the second destructive attack on the U.S. Embassy here since November.

Kohler told Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin that 200 windows were smashed and the embassy was "grossly defaced" by ink splashes.

He said hundreds of missiles, "some of which were of a deadly nature" were hurled into embassy offices and living quarters.

An embassy spokesman said this was a reference to pieces of steel hurled through the windows.

About 100 Soviet police, shipped in by bus at the last minute, kept the mob from getting out of hand.

Police had let the students, including 300 Chinese and several hundred Russians from Moscow University, pelt the embassy with rocks and bottles of green and blue ink and scale the fence to hang signs.

Windows on the first three floors of the nine-story embassy building were smashed. They had been boarded up from the inside in advance to prevent injuries from flying glass.

The Vietnamese students chanted "Down with imperialism." Marchers carried signs saying "We resolutely condemn the bombing and strafing of DRV (Democratic Republic of Viet Nam) territory by the American imperialists."

The Vietnamese student leader tried to read a speech but was drowned out by the noise of the crowd screaming insults and anti-American slogans.

Police blocked students trying to reach the barricaded embassy gates in a second assault.

Viet Nam War Reverts To Familiar Channels

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—A battery of 36 U.S. Hawk anti-aircraft missiles helped tighten northern frontier defenses Tuesday. American dependents slowly moved out. The Vietnamese war otherwise reverted to familiar bloody channels.

The Hawks, fitted to home in on aerial intruders, were set up by Marines at the Da Nang air base as a precaution against possible Communist retaliation for the retaliatory U.S.-South Vietnamese raids Sunday and Monday on North Viet Nam.

U.S. Air Force F105 fighter-bombers struck again at communist supply lines in neighboring Laos, maintaining a campaign launched more than a month ago to stem the flow of recruits and munitions for the Viet Cong. A U.S. helicopter crewman and nine Vietnamese soldiers were killed and three helicopters were shot down in assaults on Viet Cong positions near Binh Gia, a Roman Catholic settlement 40 miles east of Saigon. The toll of American combat dead rose to 266. Eighteen of the guerrillas were reported slain.

Heavy fighting with undetermined results was reported near Pleiku, north of Saigon, where a Viet Cong attack on U.S. installations early Sunday prompted President Johnson's administration to order the air strikes at North Vietnamese targets.

The guerrillas, which have North Viet Nam's backing, had killed eight Americans and wounded 126 and destroyed planes and helicopters worth millions of dollars.

Qualified sources at Da Nang, on the South China Sea 80 miles south of the border, said the retaliatory phase has at least temporarily ended.

But the Communists persisted in a storm of protest.

Federal Aid Granted For Teacher Institutes

Federal assistance for summer institutes for teachers in history and English has been granted, announced Paul A. Varg, dean of the College of Arts and Letters.

"This is the first time the government has put money in the field of humanities in the same amount that it has put in the sciences," said Gordon Kolman, associate professor of English.

The four institutes will be in applied linguistics, U.S. history, East Asian history and English composition.

Congress amended the National Defense Education Act (NDEA) last October to include additional national defense institutes for advanced study in history, English reading, geography, library science, educational media specialists and teachers of disadvantaged youths.

The institutes are presently limited to guidance and counseling personnel and teachers of modern foreign languages. There have also been institutes under the National Science Foundation.

The departments of History and English and the Humanities Teaching Institute applied for grants last fall and have just now been notified of their acceptance.

Director of the English Composition Institute will be Kolman. Struck assistant professor of English.

Hearing the applied linguistics institute will be Elizabeth Risk, director of the Humanities Teaching Institute. Associate director will be Roger Shuy, assistant professor of English. Justin L. Kertchum, asstant professor of history, will direct the U.S. History Institute. This institute will take place at Traverse City in the facilities of Northwestern Michigan College this summer.

Walter R. Fee, chairman of the History Department, will be director of the East Asian history institute.

The four institute directors will go to Washington Feb. 18 to negotiate arrangements for the institutes.

Clues To Atlantic Plane Crash Sought

NEW YORK (AP)—The placid sun-dappled surface of the Atlantic Ocean Tuesday hid the cause of an airline disaster that claimed 84 lives. But investigators hoped to wring the hulk of an Eastern Air Lines plane from beneath the sea and solve the tragic mystery.

William L. Lamb, supervisor of air safety investigation for the Civil Aeronautics Board, said that to venture an answer to the riddle at this time, "I would have to have connections with another world."

Navy divers with sonar underwater detection equipment began operations of Jones Beach at the scene of yesterday's crash, seeking the main section of the ill-fated Boston-Atlanta Flight 663. Cables also were dragged beneath 75 feet of freezing water to locate wreckage of the wrecked fuselage.

Once the hulk was found, CAB officials expressed confidence it could be raised with grappling hooks or buoy equipment. Then, as near as possible, the four-engined DC7B would be put together again, in a search for the factor that sent it plunging 3,700 feet into the sea.

"But we're going to have a tough time," conceded CAB regional supervisor George Van Epps, citing the coldness and depth of the water.

The propeller-driven plane took off from Kennedy Airport at 6:30 p.m. yesterday, with Richmond, Va., as its next stop. It carried a crew of five and 79 passengers, one of them a baby boy. All but one of the passengers had boarded the aircraft in New York.

Five minutes later and about 14 miles from the airport, the plane plunged into the sea without a reported word of warning. A pyre of flame, marked its grave eight miles off Jones Beach on Long Island's South Shore 35 miles from New York.

Despite Objections

Early Sign-Up Helps Most

Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of articles explaining "How to Register More Easily."

Disapproval is usually the first response one receives when he tries to introduce a change.

So it was when the registrar introduced modifications in enrollment and registration procedures for winter term.

"It takes too much time during mid-terms."

"How can I know what I want to take next term this early?"

"I don't want students disturbing me during the middle of the term."

"It's just too complicated. It will never work."

Only after an innovation has been tried can its success or failure be measured. Statistics on winter term enrollment and registration tell some of the story.

Of the 28,663 students who completed registration for winter term at the Men's IM Building in January, 26,017 participated in enrollment in November. Out of the 2,646 who did not take part in the early procedures, 619 were new students and 884 readmitted after not attending MSU fall term. Most of the other 1,143 were advanced graduate students.

Those who enrolled fall term for winter courses made 136,560 individual section requests for courses offered winter term. About 93 per cent (127,153) of these requests were granted.

Full schedules went to 72 per cent (18,618) of these students. Of the 28 per cent (7,399) who did not receive complete schedules, about 5,000 were lacking only one section reservation. Just 33 students did not reserve any of the sections they requested.

If you participated in early enrollment in November, you probably wonder who determined whether you were granted or denied a section request.

After you enrolled in November lists of the names of students who registered requests for each section were sent to the various departments. After student demand was recorded, 80 class sections were added, 385 enlarged or split, 156 dropped, and 131 rooms changed.

If you were denied a section, it meant the department was unable to accommodate all the students who requested that section, and your name was one of those dropped from the class list.

A priority system determined the order of the class lists. Graduate students were given top priority, followed by seniors, Honors College students, juniors, sophomores and freshmen. Each division was arranged in reverse alphabetical order.

This means if you were a freshman whose last name started with A, your name fell at the bottom of each class list. But if you were a graduate student or senior, who does not have over 100 letters, you take all the courses he needs.

3,000,000,000+

The Winds of Change seminar held here last weekend as expected raised a number of important questions in the discussions led by top population experts from around the world.

The consensus of the various speakers, almost inevitably, was that the world's population has exploded to such an extent that even immediate implementation of strong controls may not prevent disastrous results in the near future. The crush of three billion people in the world--and a possible seven billion by 2,000--poses a threat to all attempts at civilizing the less developed nations and curbing the forces of nationalism.

Alarming facts were cited by some speakers.

George A. Borgstrom, MSU professor of food science, blamed the current starvation diet of half to two-thirds of the world's people on the still-rising intake of food among the remainder. He said the increase alone in the intake of animal protein among the minority of people in the last several decades is greater than the total intake of animal protein among most of the world's people.

Lady Dhanvanthe Rama Rau, president of the International Planned Parenthood Federation, described the effort launched in her native India more than a decade ago to coordinate efforts at bringing birth control information to parents. She said that she and a small group organized a program before the government began its birth control measures.

"We could not wait for discussion--the matter was urgent and we realized something should be done about it now."

Something was done, and India launched a birth control program that has made slight inroads into the 11 million annual increase in the country's population. Lady Rama Rau proposed similar action in other nations immediately.

Dr. John Rock, the Roman Catholic inventor of the oral contraceptive pill, was more explicit. He advised all future parents in his audience Saturday to limit themselves to "two and-a-half children" per couple, unless they want to see the world overpopulated within their time.

David Booth, associate professor of political science at the University of Kentucky and a former MSU faculty member, warned that existing international programs are not equal to the demand on them of population presures. The United Nations as yet has no power to deal with the problem, and foreign aid programs have not kept up with the demand.

Dr. Edgar F. Berman, of the Agency for International Development, explained American interest in spreading birth control information to other nations in an attempt to curb populations. But this attempt cannot succeed without adequate information services. A similar program of providing information to United States communities will be available in the future, Berman said.

Clearly, there is almost unanimous agreement among the diverse experts participating in the conference that population pressures are an increasingly serious problem for the consideration of the entire world.

Probably the major dissenter is the Roman Catholic Church, which steadfastly opposes any method of birth control other than the "rhythm method." Father John O'Brien of the University of Notre Dame spoke at the seminar, giving his fairly liberal views on the subject.

O'Brien's position is that further medical and scientific research could come up with more effective birth control methods that would not violate the moral precepts of the Church.

The others as a rule were not willing to be so patient, although all further research is bound to add significantly to the fund of knowledge regarding families and family planning and the effects on total population.

The "population explosion" is indeed a serious threat to the welfare of the world, particularly at a time when national boundaries are being redrawn and governments are being reshaped according to the needs of an increasingly technological world. International cooperation on all levels of research and implementation is needed, since population pressures unleashed would doubtless lead to dangerous outbreaks of expansive nationalism.

This is the importance to the world of population research and control. We are living in an age whose goal is to make the entire world civilized and livable, and this goal cannot be reached or even envisioned if we are faced with the threat of masses of people overflowing boundaries and facilities, using up food supplies and resources, and crowding onto one another in endless numbers.

'Conscience-Stricken Right' (CSR)

To the Editor:

In the Conservative Club's "Conscience," which appeared Feb. 8, Mr. Dellera, the president of the club, felt sufficiently conscience-stricken to warn students of MSU of the dangers of the newly-formed Committee for Student Rights.

Mr. Dellera explains that "all such a movement needs to capture the necessary minimum of student support is one good example of administrative stupidity or perhaps more relevant, some publicity on dusty old rules which are no longer enforced..."

Mr. Dellera has evidently not yet seen the 10 initial recommendations which CSR would like to make to the administration. The 10 are not all concerned with "one good example of administrative stupidity"--paper costs would make it prohibitive for CSR to publish one recommendation written 10 times. And all the recommendations concern regulations which are currently being vigorously enforced.

Our "Conscience" then tells us that "when the movement has begun, it inevitably gathers more courage and more recklessness from the energy of the growing number of participants who find pickets, sit-ins, marches and maybe library strikes more gratifying than complaints to a roommate."

CSR does not want demonstrations (pickets, sit-ins, marches, library strikes or any other kind). CSR simply wants to gather enough student support so that it can present its recommendations (as amended by new members at its meetings) to the administration.

C. Of C. Aid Asked

To the Chamber of Commerce in Lansing:

Recently I bought a used cabinet from an office furniture and equipment company for $25, which was delivered to the breezeway of my house (but not further, which is against usual procedure established by furniture companies).

The man wanted an additional $25 (0) for delivering the piece down to the basement room, a straight distance of 8 to 10 yards with 9 steps downward. Of course, I refused.

The Chamber of Commerce should take a hard look at what is going on in the Lansing area. It is one of the tasks of this Chamber to protect citizens against the abuse by local stores and companies. Many young people are being misled by giving full confidence in the honesty of local stores.

Bed Of Thorns, With Roses

To the Editor:

I feel that some people may have been misled by Loretta Bloom's article, "Of Campus Apartments: A Bed Of Roses With Thorns."

The implication under the accompanying photograph was that only one parking lot sticker is given per apartment. This I found to be false in relation to each of the apartments Miss Bloom mentioned in her article.

Miss Bloom starts her article by stating that the "off campus rose bed" has thorns. She then suggests that one compare the advantages and disadvantages of living off campus. (With this I concur with Miss Bloom).

I then expected an article on off-campus living; instead I found an article on off-campus parking. I am sure the coeds in West Circle Drive, who have to walk over by the State Police Post to get to their parked cars, were very sympathetic with the student who had to park two or three blocks away.

Having exhausted the first of the three "gripes" listed, parking, Miss Bloom ends her article without again mentioning poor service on repairs or sky-high rents.

Poor service? Compared with what? If you want to compare it with home you will probably find that service is poor. But if you want to compare it with toilets that run or dormitories without heat, as last fall on campus, I think that service, while maybe not good, should not be called poor.

The last "gripe" gave me a laugh. Sky-high rents! If my costs are sky-high what are the costs of the dormitory? For a total of $720 I could live in my apartment two blocks from campus for a full 365 days. This includes three or more meals a day seven days a week. (Even Sunday supper.)

I invite a comparison of dormitory prices. For slightly more money the student has the privilege of living in a dormitory during the times of school for three terms.

There are disadvantages to living off campus. But there are also advantages; the advantage of being someone, an individual, a person--not a number.

I feel that a comparison of the advantages and disadvantages of living off campus will show that off-campus living is a more meaningful experience than being an occupant of Room 4, 5th floor, west wing, Hannah Hall.

Point of View

Individual Dignity And 'Basic Values'

By Frederick Fidura

Editor's Note: Frederick Fidura, East Lansing graduate student, is majoring in psychology.

President Hannah has said that "the fulfilled individual must somehow be taught, trained, motivated, to use his knowledge and his skills for the benefit of his fellowmen, not for his selfish benefit alone."

Hannah suggests that among the basic values that distinguish our society from Communist ideology are--a belief in the basic dignity of every human being...a respect for truth."

These remarks beautifully typify the fundamental values of our present society. But one should keep in mind that words have a precise meaning and logical implications beyond themselves.

If a statement stands as true, its implications must necessarily do likewise. To pursue Hannah's remarks to their logical end--if it is "good" to give the products of my mind, hands, and learning to the benefit of my fellowman, is it not "better" to give more of these products to his benefit?

Is it then not "best" to give all the products of my mind and hands to the benefit of others? Is it not obvious that if you follow this philosophy to its logical end, you will find communism, that theoretical Utopia where everyone works for the benefit of everyone else and has no "right" to keep selfishly or otherwise the products he himself has produced?

Is this not also the logical end of the whole Christian ethic? Oh yes, the information and knowledge required to produce are given by one's intellectual predecessors; but not as a gift.

It is the individual who must put forth the effort to acquire this knowledge, and it is the individual who will transform this knowledge into a product.

But Hannah says that our society is distinguishable from communism. But unfortunately, this is a half-truth.

If our ideology is distinguishable from that of communism by a belief in the basic dignity of the individual; if not the most fundamental part of that basic dignity, the right to hold for one's own use and disposition, the products of his own mind and hands? If this is so, why do you call such a man guilty of an evil selfishness?

How can a man be guilty of evil for exercising his rights as part of his basic dignity? How can dignity even exist where good is defined as another's need?

And if we were to follow this morality of sacrifice to its logical end and say, "From each according to his ability, to each according to his need," where is the dignity of the individual in a state where the needs of everyone else have first claim on a man's achievements in the name of brotherly love?

Is the contradiction not perfectly obvious in spite of the righteous-sounding words?

You can have one or the other: human dignity or unearned brotherhood, but not both. One or the other can be valued as good, but not both.

Changing the words, making them righteous, does not change the fact. This society holds two standards of good which are contradictory. Can a genuine "respect for truth" exist in such a society?

I wonder if it would be wise "to make certain that all of our students are required to try and think through for themselves what they believe the fundamental values of our society are." People don't like contradictions; their inherent faculty of reason rebels against them.

The non-thinking student may never discover the contradiction; or if he does, he will attempt to change the nature of the world around him by merely changing the words for the event--hoping, like every existentialist, that he can change the nature and existence of the world outside himself just by not thinking about that outside world, or by giving it some righteous verbal symbol in the name of morality.

The thinking student may begin to doubt that two opposing values can both be adjudged as good and be forced by reason to choose one or the other. This choice by reason among contradictory alternatives is a genuine respect for truth.

Whichever he chooses, by your own standards, he will always be ascribed some unearned built for respecting this truth (a respect which of course, is valued as good). Which is to say, he will be considered evil for being good.

But then, perhaps there is no problem. No man can require another man to think. And in this instance, perhaps this is very good.

call witnesses from counties in Mississippi where federal court cases are pending, Hannah said.

Hannah said the Civil Rights Commission can do nothing about the abuses it finds, but immediately refers complainants to the proper agency where something can be done.

He added the commission will also try to encourage the white lawyers, clergy and businessmen in Mississippi who want justice to take a stand for civil rights.

Hannah also stated that he would like to be relieved of his duties as chairman of the Civil Rights Commission after the Mississippi hearings.

King Leads Vote March

MONTGOMERY, Ala.--Martin Luther King Jr. led a widely publicized right-to-vote march within the shadow of the state capitol Tuesday, but failed to get the turnout he had hoped for. He met no resistance from voter registration officials. Fewer than 200 Negroes joined the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize winner in the four-block walk along Dexter Avenue, and only 100 of them got in line to apply for registration.

Disagreement Threatens Recess

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.--East-West disagreement over the makeup of a committee to examine all aspects of the U.N. peace-keeping crisis threatened Tuesday to upset plans for the General Assembly to recess Friday. U.N. diplomats conferred privately in an effort to find a solution that would permit the assembly to recess for an indefinite period, perhaps until Sept. 1.

North Viet Nam Protests

TOKYO--Foreign Minister Xuan Thuy of North Viet Nam sent a note Tuesday to Britain and the Soviet Union, co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference, protesting against U.S. retaliatory air strikes into North Viet Nam, Radio Hanoi said. The broadcast quoted the note as saying: "The government of the Democratic Republic of (North) Viet Nam earnestly requests the co-chairmen and the participating countries of the 1954 Geneva Conference on Indochina to take an effective measure with a view to checking the hands of the warlike and aggressive U.S. imperialists."

Disease End Seen

WASHINGTON--Surgeon General Luther L. Terry said Tuesday night there are grounds for hope that a brigade of killing and crippling diseases can be eliminated from America "well before 1985." They include, he said, diphtheria, whooping cough, polio, tetanus (lock-jaw), rabies, measles, typhoid fever, syphilis and gonorrhea.

Steelworkers Vote

PITTSBURGH--Members of the Steelworkers Union cast ballots Tuesday for a president and other top officers in an election of national economic import. The voting climaxed a bitter power struggle within the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers, which bargains for most production employees in the basic steel, aluminum, can and steel fabricating industries. Nearly 980,000 members were eligible to vote, choosing a president from between incumbent David J. McDonald, 62, and Secretary-Treasurer I. W. Abel, 57.

Forces On Alert

WASHINGTON--Certain military forces in the United States and the Pacific area have been in varying degrees of alert during the events of the past few days in the Far East. Officials refuse to talk about any alert of forces, since these details are classified. However, air defense units in the United States are reported to have gone on a form of alert in connection with the weekend Communist attacks in South Viet Nam and the retaliatory air strikes by the U.S. and South Vietnamese against Communist North Viet Nam.

Goldfarb Okayed

NEW YORK--A five-man court reversed a lower court ban Tuesday on the motion picture and book, "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home." The University of Notre Dame had objected to fictional references in the story to its football team. The court held that the story was a broad farce and that no rational viewers or readers would associate the antics in it with the University. "They know," said the appellate division of the state supreme court, "they are not seeing or reading about real Notre Dame happenings or actual Notre Dame characters."

Air Mail Concept End Asked

WASHINGTON--Postmaster General John A. Gronouski said Tuesday he plans to ask Congress to abolish the concept of air mail to allow the Post Office Department to move first class mail "the fastest and cheapest way we can." He said the nation "is on the verge of overnight mail service anywhere in the country." But he told a news conference that goal can't be realized until what he termed outdated thinking about postal transportation is modernized.

Needy Students Receive Help Through Work-Study

Incoming high school students will have more of an opportunity to attend MSU under the work-study program.

The opportunity is a result of federal work-study program legislation and new MSU help, said Henry C. Dykema, director of financial aids.

MSU's work-study program has been allotted about $55,000 for the remainder of the year. Dykema explained that the amount was low because there are not that many students now in college from low-income families.

However, he said, MSU is now getting applications from needy high school students. If they qualify, they will receive "almost total support."

Those who qualify will be paid 90 per cent from the grant funds and 10 per cent from University funds.

Next year, Dykema said, MSU anticipates receiving a larger federal grant which will support jobs for many more students. Under the work-study program a student will be guaranteed a job before he comes to school.

Total allotment for MSU this year under the National Defense Education Act (NDEA) is $1,094,381. This will be indirectly tied to the work-study program.

In addition, MSU will provide other help. Beginning this fall, Michigan students from low-income families, eligible for the work-study program, may qualify for MSU grants-in-aid.

Spraying Is Fruitful

Use of chemicals to aid fruit growers in quality production is not as new as the recent furor would tend to imply.

Michigan State officials note that this is the 70th year of the fruit spraying calendar, the so-called "bible" for spraying Michigan trees, has been in use.

The calendar is prepared at MSU and distributed to interested growers by county extension agents.

Horticulture Department chairman John Carew says the spray calendar has earned the reputation of being one of the best of its kind in the world. It is written to specifically meet the needs of Michigan growers.

The calendar provides complete information on the selection of chemicals--known only in recent years by the special term pesticides. It also describes the best time of application for all fruits and the pests for which the chemicals are used.

"Fruit growers who follow its recommendations deliver unblemished, residue-free fruit to stores and processors all over the country," Carew said. "Chemicals are recommended only if they will not leave harmful residues on the fruit at harvest time."

The first calendar was prepared by Levi Rawson Taft, who headed the Michigan Agricultural College's Department of Horticulture in 1894.

This predecessor of Carew's was a pioneer in the use of orchard sprays.

Heat Pops Blacktop

What happened to our roads? Actually, nothing out of the ordinary is happening except for an early heat wave.

The occurrence of the ever-increasing potholes has been described by Burt D. Ferris, superintendent of the MSU grounds, as a normal spring break-up in mid-winter.

This northern problem of potholes, bumps and ridges is caused by the moisture that has seeped under the blacktopped roads. This water then becomes frozen until thawed. At this point the expansion forces the road upward and it "pops," causing the irregularities.

The roads are temporarily being patched with a cold patch, an asphalt mixture, which should last until this summer when the roads will be surveyed. Up to 50 tons of patch may be used in a season here.

Best Artist 'Draws' Honor

Spartan Spirit is inviting campus artists to compete for the cover picture of its new traditions booklet.

The booklet, to be titled "A Tower and Its Traditions," will explain campus traditions, firsts and historical highlights to both present students and incoming freshmen.

"The cover will be signed and the winning artist will have his name before approximately 15,000 persons," Cindie Letman, traditions book editor, said.

The cover will be printed in two colors and is 9 by 6 inches in size.

Entries are due in 25 Student Services by Feb. 19. The office is open 3 to 4:30 p.m. weekdays. Students should attach their name, address and telephone number to their sketches.

Polish Professor To Give Lectures

Przemyslaw Mroczkowski, head of the Department of English at Jagellonian University, Krakow, Poland, will present two lectures here today.

Mroczkowski will present "The Mystery of Lord Jim" at 4 p.m. in Hill Berkeley, and the lecture on "Humanism and Humanistic Studies" at 8 p.m. in 104 Kellogg.

He is sponsored by Continuing Education, the Program in Comparative Literature, American Thought and Language, and by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the U.S. Department of State.

Tickets Limited

Students who wish to attend the International Club's International Dinner to be held Feb. 20 are urged to get their tickets before Friday because of the limited number left.

Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Naome Wold at the Union Lounge at $2.50 per person for members and $3 for non-members.

Any members who would like to help in the reception are also asked to contact Betty Grosskopf, chairman of reception, at the U.N. Lounge.

Power Talk Set

Harold Walsh, associate professor of philosophy, will speak tonight in 32 Union on buying power with money.

Walsh's speech is sponsored by the Young Democrats and following the speech there will be a brief discussion of spring convention plans.

Oarsmen Join Association

If you're an oarsman or a coxswain looking for a crew to put in with, the MSU rowing club can use you.

An annual regatta was one of the first things decided upon after the formation of the Mid-America Collegiate Rowing Association at a meeting, Saturday, at LaFayette, Ind. The meeting was attended by coaches from Michigan State, Wisconsin, Marietta, Purdue, Minnesota, Kansas, Wayne State, St. Johns and Notre Dame.

The regatta will take place at Purdue, May 15, and races will be held in the classes of varsity, junior varsity and freshman. At least 20 crews from the nine schools are expected, three of them from MSU.

The MSU rowing club is presently training in the Men's IM in preparation for its opening regatta in Florida this spring.

Adedire Transplant Given Green Light

ANN ARBOR (UPI)--University of Michigan medical experts said Tuesday tests show that Mrs. Asabi Adedire will make a satisfactory donor for the proposed kidney transplant to her hospitalized son.

Had the finding been negative, Abraham Adedire would have been doomed to almost certain death. His kidneys are gradually failing and there have been more recorded instances of a successful kidney transplant from outside immediate families. Most kidney transplants are from twins and even a transplant from mother to son is without precedent.

Preliminary tests made on Mrs. Adedire in Ibe, Nigeria, indicated she had the correct blood type. But additional tests were made at the University Medical Center to be certain.

The exact date of the operation has not been set, but it possibly may take place within the next 10 days.

A final decision will hinge on Adedire's strength and condition. The mother was flown here Feb. 2 in a last attempt to save the life of her 26-year-old son.

The green light for the operation to proceed marked yet another hurdle passed in a series of obstacles which have faced the family since Adedire was admitted to a Boston hospital a year ago.

Congress Meet

Student Congress will meet at 7 in 151 Brody tonight as part of its program to bring the meetings to the residence halls.

Registration

Only 17 sections were added during the final registration period in January.

Perhaps most significant was a 27 per cent decrease in course drops and adds winter term as compared with fall term. Under the new enrollment system, you can add or drop a course when you register and during a period at the beginning of the term.

You will receive a schedule with your term-end grades telling you when to go to the Men's IM Building March 30-31 for assessment and payment of fees and validation of your ID cards.

Indian All-Star Joins Lacrosse Club

By MIKE BROOKS
State News Sports Writer

The Lacrosse Club will get a professional touch this spring with the addition of Mahabala Rashti to the squad.

Rashti, a second term freshman, is a native of New Delhi, India.

In current workouts at the I.M. dirt arena, Rashti has led the way for the inexperienced team. Most of the club members had never seen lacrosse played before coming to State.

"In India, we play lacrosse all day long," Rashti said.

"It was a pleasant surprise to see that students at State take an interest. It was something I did not expect."

As a student at India's Saraswati Institute, Rashti averaged two goals a game for three years, twice leading his team to New Delhi championships.

For his part in his team's 54 straight wins, accumulated during his last two years, Rashti was named to the All-India lacrosse team.

Upon graduation last year, Rashti was chosen to the squad representing India in the Pakistan Cup Matches.

Although by far the youngest player on the team, Rashti accounted for six of his country's 18 goals in their six matches, and India finished third in the field of 15 countries.

In appreciation of his play he was awarded a Pakistan Horn at a post-tournament banquet.

This is the highest honor Pakistan can give a foreign athlete.

An economics major, Rashti originally intended to enroll at Princeton on an athletic scholarship, but friends here persuaded him to come to State instead.

Princeton, traditionally the lacrosse power of the Ivy League, is the only American school offering a lacrosse scholarship.

The Spartan Club will hold its first practice tonight at 7 p.m. at the Men's intramural building. A short meeting in room 215 will precede the drills.

It may take only two to tango but it takes more than that to win basketball games.

Michigan State guards Marcus Sanders and Stan Washington went out on a scoring rampage Monday night in Bloomington against Indiana but they may as well have taken Bill Curtis and left the rest of the club in East Lansing.

Sanders and Washington combined for a total of 60 points and Curtis added 19 but a well-balanced Indiana offense dealt the Spartans their seventh straight conference loss 112-94.

Ski Day Slated For Saturday

Tickets are still available for J-Council ski day, which will be this Saturday rather than Jan. 31 as originally scheduled.

Key weather forced the council to switch to the rain date.

Buses will leave from the Union and possibly Abbot Road for the Mt. Holly ski area at 8 a.m. and will be back about 5 p.m.

Tickets cost $57 and include transportation and tow fees. They are on sale at the Union ticket office.

"We are sponsoring the trip to give students who want to learn to ski an opportunity to try it out," said Paula Allman, J-Council member in charge of the ski day.

Sanders, who is scoring more while opponents are enjoying it less, pumped in a career high of 32 points. Washington broke out of a recent scoring dip Monday with 28 but the rest of the team was held to 15.

Dick Van Arsdale led the Hoosiers with a modest 23 points but had the support of four teammates in the double figures and Indiana had little trouble handling the last place Spartans.

The win put the Hoosiers into the Big Ten title scramble with a 4-2 mark—only two games behind league-leading Michigan. The Wolverines brushed aside challenger Iowa 81-66 Monday for their sixth win in as many conference games.

The Hawkeyes fell to fourth with a 5-2 mark.

Illinois moved into a second place tie with idle Minnesota by beating Ohio State 86-71. The victory was their first in Columbus since 1957 and raised their conference record to 5-1.

Monday's action created a schism between the Big Ten's haves and have-nots.

Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota need only to worry about each other in the conference title chase, while the remaining half of the league will fight it out to avoid the basement.

The top five have won a total of 25 games while losing only four in the Big Ten and three. Michigan, Indiana and Illinois, are among the top 10 teams in the nation.

No team in the second division has beaten any of the contending teams.

The Spartans, 0-7 in the conference, face the number one team in the nation—Michigan—this Saturday and will have to come up with a better-balanced attack if they are to match their performance two weeks ago when they pushed the Wolverines into overtime before bowing 103-98.

The lack of balanced scoring has plagued Coach Fordey Anderson since the departure of forward Joe Johnson. Curtis, Washington and Sanders have completely dominated the scoring all year with little support.

State just might become the only cellar-dwelling team in the nation with three men on the all-conference team.

Annual Michigan High-Jinx Haunts Gym Title Chances

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

Not the athletic department at Ann Arbor does not employ little gremlins who hide behind pieces of apparatus, casting spells on the opposition at gymnastic meets.

Spartan partisans might have begged to differ last year when State met the Michigan gymnasts at Ann Arbor, in what was dubbed the "big one" of the season for both teams. Despite the fact that the contest was with "that other school," there was more that accounted for the tension and anxiety than mere intrastate rivalry.

Dale Cooper was starting on still rings for the Spartans, something he'd been doing constantly all season long. Cooper was winding up his varsity career, and this was to have been the last opportunity for the Michigan fans to get a glimpse of his artistry. They were looking forward to this treat.

There was a sophomore named Jim Curzi who, despite a shoulder separation suffered earlier that season, was doing upsetting things on horizontal bar, creating up honors in that event—upsetting, indeed, for the coaches who were looted into the realization that they would have to face him for another two seasons.

There was Dick Gilberto, a

The NEWS In SPORTS

standout in floor exercise, Dave Price and Ted Wilson.

Then there were the Wolverines. They wanted the Big Ten title, and weren't about to let Michigan State or Dale Cooper upset their plans. After winning the title for three straight years they had grown accustomed to the honor, and weren't ones for breaking with tradition.

The contest read like a James Bond thriller. Floor exercise started things off with an 8-5 tie, followed by a Wolverine sweep in trampoline, 13-3. Not to be outdone, the Spartans cleaned up the three top spots in side horse, with Jim Curzi leading the charge at 8.6.

That gave Michigan a three-point edge, but State bounced back to take horizontal bar with a 9.35 tie for first, between Wilson and Price, repeating the score for the event at 12-4.

Totals stood at 35-29 in State's favor as parallel bar competition got under way. The event went to Michigan, 9-7, but State still held onto a slim lead. Then it was time for rings.

Dale Cooper sat with his teammates, watching first a Michigan man and then a Spartan go through his routine. When he was announced, he mounted the apparatus and registered a 9.75 performance with great ease.

Cooper's victory, along with a strong 9.25 second place finish for Ted Wilson, gave the event to the Spartans, 11-5. It also gave them a commanding lead of 53-43.

But it wasn't enough. The final event, tumbling, proved to be State's undoing. It went to the Wolverines, 13-3, with outstanding performances by the top three Michigan men. The scores read 9.55, 9.5, and 9.2 for the Wolves, with the Spartans finishing fourth and fifth at 9.05 and 8.55. Despite the closeness of the scores, the damage had been done. It was all tied up, 56-56.

Last season, the results of the meet would have been important only in respect to the rivalry involved and the national ranking. The Big Ten champ was determined solely by the results of the Big Ten Meet.

This year, however, a new Big Ten rule stipulates that dual meets contested during the season will be the sole factor deciding who becomes gymnastics king in the conference. The Big Ten champ will be in possession of his crown when he enters the meet, which will serve only to determine individual title-winners.

For State to remain in contention for top honors this season, "Beat Michigan" will have to be more than a cry of encouragement. It's an order.

Two photographs by an MSU photographer are among 42 prize-winning pictures on display in the Union until Tuesday.

The pictures, by William Mitcham an MSU graduate and now University staff photographer, are part of a traveling exhibition of top photographs by members of the University Photographers Association.

Mitcham's photos are a black and white portrait study of economics professor Abba Lerner and a color print of the Spitz projector in Abrams Planetarium.

The pictures were among 13 chosen for honors awards from some 100 entries in a competition at the association's meeting last year at Harvard University.
