Senate Restricts Study To Central

By JoANN MIKOLUSKY
 State News Capitol Writer

After two days of debate and delay the state Senate decided by a vote of 19 to 13 Thursday to take MSU and eight other state-supported colleges and universities off the hook and center its attentions on Central Michigan University.

According to a resolution introduced by Edward Robinson, D-Deerborn, a special committee would have been created to investigate faculty-administration relations at all state-supported colleges and universities.

After the resolution was passed once, re-referred to the Senate Business Committee twice, and discussed in a two-and-a-half hour Democratic caucus, final amendment action Thursday limited the investigation to only CMU.

The limitation amendment to the resolution was introduced by the Senate Business Committee and adopted by the Democratic caucus before any action was taken.

The whole business of investigation was brought up because of reports that the faculty at state schools, specifically Central, were being left out of decisions concerning appointments and policy.

Sen. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Cadillac, who had strongly opposed the resolution since its introduction, said it was improper and irresponsible to pass such a resolution.

"It's a shame to have the Senate tied up in knots when the entire matter could have been cleared up by Sen. Robinson merely visiting the campus," he said.

"Then if there really was a problem, it should have been referred to the Board of Trustees. If they couldn't handle it, it should have been referred to the state Board of Education, but not to the legislature."

The investigation committee, according to the resolution, is authorized to subpoena witnesses, administer oaths and examine records of any person and agency of the state in order to carry out its duties.

Members of the committee are expected to be named next week.

"Sen. Robinson, in all probability, will head the committee," said Raymond D. Dzendzel, D-Detroit, and chairman of the Committee on Committees, which appoints all committee members.

Senior Seats To Martin, McQuitty

By JO BUMBARGER
 State News ASMSU Writer

Charles (Chuck) Stoddard and Jim Graham won Thursday's election for two junior seats on the first student board.

Stoddard was high man with a total of 3,675 out of 5,278 votes cast. Graham had 3,487 votes.

They defeated Dick Sanderson, who received 1,882 votes, and Marshall Zumberg, who had 1,512 votes.

The turnout of 20 per cent was about half of the record 39 per cent voting in the referendum passing the constitution winter term.

Sanderson is a former president of West McDonel Hall. Zumberg who has had no student government experience, based his candidacy on the idea that experience is not necessary for effective leadership.

"I think this is one of the fairest elections that has ever been held," said Pete Gromer, elections commissioner.

"There have been no complaints whatsoever," he added. The Student Board, adopted winter term, will become the major student governing group at the all-University level.

It is composed of the four elected representatives, two appointed members, one of whom must be a woman, and heads of the major living unit governing groups, such as Men's Halls Association (MHA).

Elected to the senior positions without opposition were Webb Martin, All University Student Government (AUSG) director of inter-University affairs, and John McQuitty, AUSG executive vice president and former sophomore class president.

The other two have also served in student government positions. Graham, although a leader of opposition to the new constitution, said he hopes a student body united behind the board will make it effective.

Stoddard, an Honors College member, has suggested increased use of the student travel bureau and more popular entertainment.

ASMSU Moves Into Action

ASMSU will move into action today with the first of three meetings to determine officers in the new student government.

Today at 1 p.m., board members will consider petitions for the office of chief executive of the cabinet, for about five cabinet vice-president positions, and for from 10 to 12 cabinet directors.

Another meeting is scheduled for 5 p.m. Sunday to review petitions for the six ASMSU at-large appointments.

The chairman of the ASMSU board and the president of the cabinet will be selected at 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

Mississippi Nearing Top Crest

CHICAGO (AP) -- Thousands of weary flood volunteers battled swirling waters of the rampaging Mississippi River Thursday as it neared a record crest.

Out of their banks more than a mile in Minnesota--now getting the brunt of the spring flooding--the muddy waters of the Mississippi and its tributary streams engulfed sections of Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and North Dakota.

The raging flood waters--with the worst yet to come--drove additional hundreds of families from their homes Thursday, swelling the thousands evacuated earlier.

Twelve deaths have been attributed to the floods thus far--10 in Minnesota and two in Wisconsin. Damage has been estimated upward of $20 million in Minnesota alone.

The Mississippi is expected to reach a crest of 27 feet, highest in history, at St. Paul Saturday. This is 13 feet above flood stage. The Minneapolis crest is placed at 21 feet, five feet above flood level.

Red Missiles In Viet Nam?

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Official Washington sources indicate that the Russians are setting up a high altitude anti-aircraft missile site near Hanoi in North Viet Nam.

These sources say that a site apparently destined for the installation of the missiles has been under construction and may have been completed by this time.

Britain Supports Viet Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)--Prime Minister Harold Wilson voiced strong support Thursday for President Johnson's Viet Nam policy but indicated Britain can not do much more now in stepping up material aid.

"I think everybody understands we are now heavily committed with 50,000 troops in Malaysia and in an important peacekeeping role in the Middle East," Wilson explained when asked about aid to the guerrilla-pressed Saigon regime.

Johnson and Wilson spoke to newsmen after an hour's discussion highlighting a one-day visit by the British chief.

The United States has been soliciting support from other free world-countries in the Viet Nam campaign, and Britain has been among the two dozen nations providing some non-combat assistance.

But basically Washington and London agree that Viet Nam is of prime concern to the United States while Britain bears the major role in defending Malaysia, her former colony, against Indonesian attacks.

Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin, also in town for talks with officials, told newsmen West Germany is giving moral support to the U.S. policy in Viet Nam but expressed doubt of German ability to do much in a military way outside the Atlantic Alliance.

Brandt expressed also his view--unofficial since he is not a member of the Bonn government--that West Germany will help in Johnson's plan for the economic development of Southeast Asia.

The main emphasis of Wilson's brief stopover at the U.S. capital was in the economic field. The British Labor leader and former professor is an advocate of international economic cooperation and improvement of the monetary system in financing trade. It was his second visit here since taking office last October.

He had separate appointments with Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor and a general meeting with top government financial officers at the British embassy before heading back to London Thursday night.

He sandwiched in a session with two visiting West German leaders, Brandt and Fritz Erler, foreign affairs specialist for the Social Democratic Party.

Posing with Wilson for pictures in the presidential office, Johnson described the talks as cordial and fruitful and voiced appreciation for "the friendship and support of our allies, particularly the distinguished prime minister and the British people."

Negroes And Whites In Battle Of Signs

BOGALUSA, La., (AP)--Negro pickets and white counterpickets marched Thursday in front of midtown stores, bringing a stir of apprehension from the state capitol.

In Baton Rouge, Gov. John J. McKeithen said his talk before a civic group Thursday night had been upgraded to a major address, touching on the racial situation.

"Equal job opportunity" pickets were posted by the Bogalusa Civic and Voters League at seven stores. At three of them, white pickets, spurred by rebel yells, surged forward with their placards.

Negro signs were on the theme, "We don't buy where we can't work."

The counter-picket signs read, "White man, give this merchant your business." "All these natives need is a witch doctor and drinks" and "Support this business place. Fight Communism."

The "buy-in," an attempt to increase sales at stores being picketed, resumed.

The Negro pickets marched with solemn cadence with unchanging expression. City law limited each side to two pickets per store.

Columbia Road, the main street of this lumber mill city of 22,000, was jammed as curious residents drove past to view the scene.

130 Headed To Protest

One-hundred-and-thirty members of the MSU Committee for Peace in Viet Nam are to leave at 3 p.m. today for Washington as part of a nationwide student protest against the U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

A convoy for Detroit will depart from the parking lot south of Wilson Hall. In Detroit, the students will transfer to three buses for the trip to the nation's capital.

In Washington the students will join an estimated 10,000 participants in presenting a petition to Congress and picketing the White House.

A last-minute solicitation among the faculty raised money for the third bus.

Faculty Has Effective Channels For Policy

Editor's Note: Final of a three-part series.

By CARMY BALLATO
 State News Staff Writer

Does the Michigan State faculty have a voice in University policy?

Although many members of the faculty don't know it, they have the power of the major policy tactic of persuasion, which is especially effective in large numbers.

The three kinds of policy at a university concern the college level, the university level and the student affairs level.

The faculty is most directly concerned with college level policies such as decisions within departments as to courses, professors and questions of tenure.

Many of the deans use this power of persuasion as the most useful method that the faculty has in policy making.

Paul A. Varg, dean of the College of Arts and Letters, says his faculty recommends all promotions and decides all questions of tenure.

All of the courses of study originate in each department, Varg said, but are reviewed by the College Faculty Committee. Any idea or problem which faculty members feel should be discussed can be presented to the dean of the college to which the faculty member belongs.

Moon Expert Finds Possible Ice Sheet

WASHINGTON (AP)--One of the nation's leading lunar experts suggested Thursday that a vast sheet of ice may underlie most of the moon's surface.

Thomas Gold of Cornell University told a conference on the lunar surface that recent radar and optical studies, combined with analysis of photographs from the Ranger Moon Probe, strongly support this conclusion.

Gold said the new information indicates that much of the moon's surface consists of fine material only a fraction of the density of rock.

Gold said this sediment may have accumulated and compacted in the depressions in the moon's surface, and thus may have blocked the escape of water working toward the surface.

Gold said water could not penetrate freely to the surface because the extreme cold on the surface would freeze it.

Extension Head Named To Post

The appointment was made at the spring meeting of the committee in the nation's capital.

Michigan To Get Twister Aid

Federal officials started the disaster relief wheels rolling Thursday with promises of sweeping aid to storm damaged areas to clear debris from the Palm Sunday tornadoes and restore vital public services.

Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken, acting chief executive in the absence of Gov. George Romney, held a briefing Thursday and outlined steps being taken.

Charles Woods, regional director of the Office of Emergency Planning, said the OEP was establishing an emergency office in Lansing to coordinate efforts.

State Police Commissioner Joseph Childs presented a preliminary damage report covering the five counties that bore the brunt of the storms. He qualified the report by indicating it was preliminary and "conservative."

"We estimate total damages between $20 million and $40 million," he said.

The damage breakdown showed: Branch County, $10 million to $12 million; Lenawee County, $4 million; Hillsdale County, $7.5 million; Ottawa County, $566,650 and Kent County, $6.5 million.

President Johnson Wednesday night declared 10 Michigan counties that were hit by the storm federal disaster areas. The declaration came after the President spent the day touring the storm-stricken Midwest.

That Splendid Little War

What's the matter with Viet Nam? Everyone seems to be wondering these days, looking for a solution to what has seemed for a long while an insoluble question.

But this paraphrase of William Allen White's famous question, 'What's the matter with Kansas?', might be supplemented with another paraphrase:

Everybody talks about Viet Nam, but nobody does anything about it.

Unlike talk about the weather, the talk about Viet Nam--and it is getting louder and more persistent--is aimed at doing something about it. The question is what to do.

What will be the best solution for the Vietnamese people? What will cut the fighting and the brutality short? What can help prevent embarrassment to the United States? What can be done to help Viet Nam develop a stable economy and a strong government?

Frankly, we don't know. There are too many factors involved and too much information that just isn't known to the public to allow for a simple solution.

The policy-makers of the United States, while better informed than most citizens, must consider even more questions before deciding what to do.

What is the intent of the United States in Viet Nam? In Southeast Asia? What is our obligation to the Geneva agreements of 1954? How much power do we really have in South Viet Nam, and can the government there exercise any real control? If we pull out, can we allow, or tolerate, a Communist government over the whole nation? If we escalate the war, what will be the effect on the rest of Southeast Asia?

And further: What power does Communist China have in Viet Nam? Will it step in full-scale if we escalate; will it take over if we leave?

And, possibly most important, will the United States tolerate a loss in Viet Nam?

These questions must be answered, or we must decide not to require all the answers, before a definite policy of either pull-out or escalation can be announced.

Some are saying it may already be too late, that we may have lost already. Possibly.

It is more than time to sit down at the conference table, and to do so not with the attitude that the people in the opposing chairs are all evil or intent only on grabbing everything they can get.

We must negotiate, but we can not negotiate as long as we insist on conditions which the other side, both indigenous and external opposition to the U.S., will refuse to meet.

It is time to seek a new solution, whether from the "position of strength" which we would like or from the tenuous position in which we may already be. Beyond this realization, it is difficult to take a firm stand.

Abba Lerner, professor of economics, asked at the teach-in last week, can the President not know? He asked if it were not possible that average citizens, knowing less than the President about the situation, might not be able to make a more reasonable judgment than can the strategists who are bombarded with reams of one-sided military and diplomatic information. Lerner decided that citizens can.

This is a good point, and it touches on one area in which significant steps can be taken right away. The American people just do not know enough about Viet Nam, and it is not through laziness or lack of interest that this has come about.

There are reports of censorship on the scene, and of news management in this country. The messages we hear--the State Department's White Paper and the President's speech--leave more than a feeling that the whole truth is not being told. The atrocity reports heard from the anti-war factions on both sides and the smug way in which government statements are made provide more than a slight hint that there are things going on we don't know about.

Wartime is not usually considered appropriate for experimentation in pure democracy. But the Viet Nam war has inflamed too many otherwise placid minds and aroused too many emotions to be left to the discretion of a few questionable intelligences.

The American people have a right to decide where their government will go in a situation that still looks as though it can be controlled. And the Vietnamese people have a right to decide how much external control they want, from the United States or any other source.

Thus, while we realize there are stronger positions on both sides which could be taken at this time, the State News calls only for negotiations aimed at finding a reasonably progressive and democratic settlement in Viet Nam and for immediate revision of the information policy which allows for secretive and insulting management of news about this extremely important issue. Democracy is never a bad thing to experiment with.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Never Fear To Negotiate'

To the Editor:

In 1966, over 50 percent of the population in the United States will be this generation. We are Tomorrow's American.

The time brings with it only one ultimate challenge and that is to think. The word PEACE should be occupying much of our thought and challenging our ideals.

Peace for Viet Nam is unquestionably an agreed-upon goal on this very day. The price for peace seems to be very high and soon it may no longer be for sale.

The students on this campus should be advocating a negotiating policy and not be protesting a certain policy of staying in or moving out. That formulating of an idea for such a policy to be taken to Washington should be undertaken by the students of this campus--this is a very definite challenge.

But to protest the policy of "staying in or moving out" would only serve to agitate people, confuse the ultimate issue at hand, that being to discuss and initiate a common agreement for Viet Nam, and to disregard the faith in democracy by not adhering to the President's informed decisions.

It seems quite obvious that if we do not "stay in," the Communists will "move in," and what then will it take to negotiate with Red China? It must be understood by the Vietnamese that the United States is fighting for the Vietnamese and not for the United States.

The students at MSU will no longer just protest in a mass at Washington, but will help the President propose a negotiating policy.

We are still challenged by the right problem, that being the Communist idea, but this generation will need to fight and find the answer that goes beyond the use of the wrong weapon, a gun, and attack with the right weapon, an idea.

This will prove to be one that is superior enough to bring peace to the world, peace to the nations, because it first gives peace to man, which is the essence of democracy. The revolution within man is big enough to remake the world.

President Kennedy said, "Let our patriotism be reflected in the creation of confidence rather than crusades of suspicion." The students from Michigan State must accept the challenge of this generation and go to Washington reflecting such patriotism, without only a passion in their heart but also a purpose and a plan.

Hey, Whose Dorm Is This?

To the Editor:

We, the residents of Snyder-Phillips dormitories at Michigan State University, request of the administration a formal explanation as to why Snyder and Phillips have been chosen to house the new liberal arts college to the exclusion of students with other majors.

We demand an explanation in light of the fact that Snyder and Phillips have no classroom facilities and were not intended to be used as a "live-and-learn" dormitory as were Fee, Akers, McDonel, Holmes, Wonders, Wilson, Case and Brody.

We also demand an explanation in light of the facts that Snyder and Phillips have the second highest grade-points on campus and that they are perfectly located on campus.

Why, we ask, are freshman students, with a single major, huddled together with little if no possibility of contact with the "outside world"?

Last term we read in the State News of a controversy between liberal arts majors and science majors. An experiment such as this one, which intends to take over Snyder and Phillips, would only tend to enhance this type of narrow-mindedness.

We sincerely resent this infringement on our "civil rights." We would appreciate a formal reply from the administration.

The "We love Snyder-Phillips" Committee

Viet Nam: Freedom, How?

To the Editor:

A lot of the Viet Nam issue would be more easily discussed if people would understand what the two "opposing" issues are. These are not whether we should take risks to defend freedom, but whether Saigon or the Viet Cong reflect this freedom.

Johnson-Goldwater supporters assume that Saigon is reasonably representative of South Viet Nam; that Communist aggressors are trying to take control of it all. If this is true, of course, it shouldn't be allowed.

The other side asserts that Saigon is a dictatorship which, with U.S. support, violated the Geneva agreement by not allowing its stipulated free elections.

They claim, then, that Saigon is not the legitimate government, and that the Viet Cong are trying to do something about it; that the leader of the Viet Cong is a civil liberties attorney whom Saigon imprisoned for being too vocal; that whatever Communists are involved are fighting against tyranny, whether for good or bad reasons; but that the Viet Cong are outspokenly non-Communist, and so is the government they hope for.

This is the issue. Would Saigon's overthrow be in the interests of South Viet Nam or of northern aggressors? No American (practically) advocates retreating from the bad guys. The difference is in who the bad guys are.

The "teach-in" didn't make this clear. The "saboteurs" missed the point completely.

'But I Just Know Hannah Exists'

To the Editor:

Last term columnist Don Sockol accused several of the classical arguments for the existence of Hannah--the argument from design, the first cause argument, and so on. The trouble with these arguments is that they are today all considered invalid, and no longer hold sway in philosophical circles.

To clarify this confusing matter, then, I offer a traditional proof which is still current, the so-called "Ontological argument."

1. Hannah is that, a greater than which cannot be conceived;

2. That thing, a greater than which cannot be conceived, must exist, since if it did not, we could conceive a greater;

3. Therefore, Hannah exists. Although the validity of this proof is still in doubt, there are at least some living philosophers who consider it plausible.

But the controversy is still open and raging in professional circles, and until it is clearly resolved, I suggest that the interested layman hold his belief in suspension.

Unconditional Negotiations

By John Van Gieson

What should we do about Viet Nam? Most of us are either convinced that we know or else we are deeply concerned because we don't. Either way, the bloody battles now being fought in far-off rice paddies are pregnant with implications for our future.

Viet Nam is a vital issue and should be of deep concern to all of us. For these reasons it is imperative that we inform ourselves and convey our opinions to our leaders so that they will bear the responsibility of truly representing the American people when the time comes to make the final choice between escalation and negotiation.

Movements such as the teach-ins held recently on this and other campuses and the forthcoming march on Washington serve an important function in the dissemination of information--as far as they go--the trouble is that they don't go far enough.

We refer specifically to last week's teach-in. The teach-in was organized by a group of faculty members to protest current U.S. policy in Viet Nam and was so advertised.

Opponents of the committee's viewpoint organized a counter demonstration. As most students are aware, the counter-demonstrators (whether acting as individuals or through the committee) chose to express their opposition in widely varied ways.

Some sought only to picket and display their views on signs, others hoped to question the speakers and possibly expose weaknesses or fallacies in their arguments. But other immature individuals tried to disrupt the teach-in through heckling and bomb scares.

Obviously, the former are to be commended while the latter are to be condemned.

But valid criticisms of those who ran the teach-in have also been expressed. It seems as if questioning of speakers was tightly restricted and passage of a resolution at the end of the session was done hastily and in a manner unacceptable to some.

For these reasons we urge that public discussion of the Viet Nam situation be continued and even expanded on this campus.

There has been talk of a counter teach-in, which would be an excellent idea, but we would like to propose what we think would be an even better one.

We challenge faculty members and students with views on both sides of the Viet Nam issue to meet in public debate. This could be one large meeting in the Auditorium, similar to the teach-in, or a series of debates in smaller arenas such as residence hall or classroom building auditoriums.

We urge knowledgeable members of the Faculty Committee for Peace in Viet Nam, chaired by John D. Donoghue, and the group that wrote a letter to the State News Monday protesting the teach-in (presumably led by Wesley R. Fisher) to reply to the State News so that arrangements for such a debate may be undertaken immediately.

BIG 10 SUMMER BASEBALL?

Poll Supports Expansion

By DUANE LANCASTER
State News Sports Writer

Spartan baseball coach Danny Litwhiler is not fighting a solo battle in his efforts to expand the present spring schedule to include summer competition. A poll of the Big Ten baseball coaches and athletic directors found that only Dick Seibert, Minnesota's managerial messiah, was satisfied with the present schedule, while six were for the plan and three were undecided. The athletic directors were less favorable with only three backing the extension.

Another survey taken in 1963 of the 26 players in the Big Ten (seniors being excluded since this would have no bearing on them), exposed an interesting program for the summer.

The players wanted at least 50 extra ball games tacked on a present average schedule of 20-25 games, making some kind of expansion inevitable. In order to play 75 games under the present system, the teams would have to commence play during the middle of the basketball season.

The proposed program set up by the players calls for the season to start May 15 and to continue through Aug. 3. The regular Big Ten season, 15 games for each club, would of course be played, with the remainder of the season including local amateur and semi-pro teams within a fairly reasonable distance from the University.

"This would not be hard to arrange," said Pellerin, "for we could have State play other colleges in Michigan."

This brings up an interesting possibility. A whole summer schedule between the colleges in the state does not seem entirely out of the question.

Taking Michigan as an example, the major colleges in the state, the University of Michigan, Michigan State, Western Michigan, University of Detroit, Central Michigan and Wayne State, could form a class A league.

The smaller schools could then compose a class B league and so on down the line for as many schools as would want to participate.

Scheduling semi-pro and amateur teams poses no problems as most of these units are always looking for extra games.

With the brand of ball at a higher level than the usual, summer league standards, and the coaching extremely better, the players felt they would be able to improve more under the extension than the summer leagues. With more games, tougher opponents and top-notch coaching, the ball players would become better and develop faster.

The minor leagues would also be overjoyed at the thought of more good players available.

The fans would be able to see baseball at least on the level of Class C or D minor league ball—and at more convenience and less cost.

Red Wings Lose

DETROIT—The Chicago Black Hawks defeated the Detroit Red Wings 4-2 Thursday night to win the semi-final playoff series for the National Hockey League's coveted Stanley Cup.

Chicago will meet the Montreal Canadiens Saturday night in the first game of the best-of-seven finals.

The Red Wings took an early lead with two first-period goals, but Chicago came back with two goals in each of the remaining periods to eliminate the favored Wings.

Forest Akers Sets Monday Tee-Off

Forest Akers Golf Course will open for play Monday, barring any further weather complications.

The course is drying out nicely, says Manager John Brotzmann. There are still some low-lying areas with standing water, but they should be gone by this weekend.

The same price policy which applied last season will be in effect again, Brotzmann said.

Full-time employes and students of the University will play for $1 during the week and $1.50 weekends. The alumni rate will be $2.50. For the general public, the charge will be $4 until the end of spring quarter of school in June. From then on it will be $3.

Better than 10 percent of the male enrollment of Spring Arbor College will be on hand Saturday when the Bluejays invade Old College Field for a double sampling of baseball starting at 1 p.m.

It will be the first time the two schools have ever collided on the diamond.

The tiny school, located west of Jackson, is to be reckoned with, however. The Bluejays, winners of four of seven games this season, dumped MIAA defending champion Hope College in its last outing.

Coach Danny Litwhiler, who saw his Spartans drop an 11 inning contest to Central Michigan last week after winning the first game of the double header, has indicated a lineup shift.

Leftfielder Bob Speer, who has been showing a lot of power for his rather small size (5-9, 175 pounds), will hit cleanup in place of rightfielder Dick Billings. Billings will be dropped to the fifth spot.

Southpaw John Krasnan, the leading Spartan hurler a year ago with a 6-2 mark, will pitch the opener with Dick Kenney, of football bare-foot kicking fame, scheduled to throw in the second game.

Howie Miller is slated to start at first base with Jerry Walker at second. Bruce Pettibone, the senior switchhitter, will be at short.

John Biedenbach, a .385 hitter this spring, will be at third and Dick Kilbourn and Bill Steckley share the catching duties.

Kilbourn, who hit a three-run home run to ice State's victory over Central last week, has eight hits in 19 at bats to lead the Spartan hitters with a .421 mark.

Billings is hitting .392 and Pettibone is at .353 to rank among the top Spartan swingers.

State, an explosive team at times, will have to play steady ball to improve on its 11-4 season mark.

The Spartans scored 10 runs in their twin bill last Saturday but nine of the tallies came in the first inning. State scored six times in the opening stanza of the first game to win 7-2 and tallied all its runs in the first inning of the second game but lost 5-3 in overtime.

State has failed to score in 13 innings now and scored in only three of 20 innings against Central.

"We made some mistakes in the second one with Central that cost us heavily," Litwhiler said, "but they are the kind of mistakes I think we can correct."

"We know we'll have to correct them in order to do big things in the league games we've got coming up."

The Big Ten opener is not far off. A single game with the University of Detroit at Detroit Tuesday will be their last game before plunging into conference competition against Northwestern next Saturday in East Lansing.

Golfers Loosen Kinks At Ohio State Links

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

State's golf team takes its first step toward climbing the Big Ten ladder Saturday in a quadrangular match at Columbus, Ohio.

And for coach John Brotzmann it couldn't have come at a better time.

Since arriving back from his squad's tour to Miami, Fla., Brotzmann has had nothing but problems staring him in the face. A diversity of conflicts, ranging from the weather to other coaches, have added new shades of gray to Brotzmann's already faded hair and dulled the color of his once glowing Florida tan.

Essential to the troubles plaguing Brotzmann has been the unseasonable weather conditions. When a late spring snowstorm blanketed the Forest Akers Golf Course, the golfers were forced to the shelters of Jenison Field House. There, however, difficulties failed to cease.

While his linksters were driving golf balls the length of Jenison, Brotzmann was approached by a woman HPR golf coach, who protested that her class was being interfered with by flying balls. Brotzmann delayed the course, saying, "Where else can we go?" Outside, the temperature was 22 degrees.

Fortunately, a problem was averted when the spring weather returned to normalcy. Had it not, the golfers would have had to compete with the football team in Jenison.

"I'll be relieved when that quadrangular is over," said Brotzmann. "At least, I can start thinking about golf again instead of football teams and where to practice."

Brotzmann is hopeful that three top players will lift the Spartans from last year's seventh place finish in the Big Ten. With the addition of three other returning lettermen, he hopes to build a first division team.

Junior Ken Benson rates as the top player. A year ago he finished with a 77-stroke average and placed 21st in the Big Ten Tournament. He hails from Crete, Ill., where he was the champion of the Chicago District Golf Association in 1963.

Other top prospects include Doug Hankey and Doug Swartz, who is the most consistent golfer on the team. Hankey won the Michigan Amateur title last summer, but is fighting for a starting position on this year's squad. He was unimpressive in the recent spring training trip.

Lacrosse '10', Rugby Home

MSU's rugby club dropped another game to the University of Michigan Wednesday afternoon, 3-0. The Wolverines beat the Spartans by the same margin when the two clubs clashed for the first time in Ann Arbor, last Thursday.

State's club is now 1-2 for the season, gaining its lone victory last Saturday when it defeated Palmer College in a close 5-3 battle. The Spartans are scheduled to meet Indiana University here this Saturday afternoon at 2:30 on the field adjacent to the soccer field.

State's lacrosse team will open its home schedule Saturday when Michigan's club invades Old College Field. The game will begin at 11 a.m.

Celtics Nip 76'ers

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Celtics have advanced to the championship round of the National Basketball Association playoffs by scoring a 110-109 triumph over the Philadelphia 76'ers.

The victory gives the Celtics the best-of-seven series, four games to three.

OPEN SEASON AT COLUMBUS

Trackmen Get First Crack At Outside

Fran Dittich would just as soon leave his stopwatch at home as would the Beatles cut their hair. As his trackmen ran through their paces Thursday afternoon at Ralph Young Field, the timepiece was firmly grasped in his left hand, recording marks to be bettered or maintained.

That workout was the final one for the Spartans before they kick off their outdoor season tomorrow in the Ohio Relays at Columbus. Bad weather conditions have kept them from working outdoors until last week, and this factor may put them behind some of the teams that have already seen outdoor competition.

"The boys are rounding into shape," Dittich commented. "With the weather warming up they've been practicing pretty well. With everyone working well we should do well."

The relays will feature representatives from most of the Midwest. Dittich named Western Michigan as a chief foe, noting that they should give the Spartans some really good competition in the shuttle hurdles.

The Spartans will go in four relay and 12 open races in this initial meet, which serves as a proving ground for coaches to see just what their boys can do. There is no team champion, and freshmen also can compete, independently and in open races.

Gene Washington and Jim Garrett, NCAA high hurdle champ and Big Ten broad jump titleholder, respectively, will be moving outdoors to see if they can continue their record-breaking streaks. Along with those events, Washington is entered in the 480 shuttle, 880-yard relay, and 330 intermediate hurdles, a new event for him. Garrett is scheduled to go in the hop-step-jump, spring medley and 880 relay.

The 480 shuttle looks to be State's best relay bet. The foursome of Bob Steele, Fred McKay, Clint Jones and Washington won indoor titles at the Michigan State Relays and Michigan Federation Relays.

The sprint medley quartet of Daswell Campbell, Garrett, Norm Sinclair and Keith Coates looks to be a good one. Coates and Campbell, along with Mike Kaines and Dean Hunt, are set to go in the distance medley relay as well, with Eric Zemper, George Balthrop, Jack Amle and Paul McCollam, who do double duty in cross-country during the fall, entered in the three-mile run.

The field events list Mike Bowers and Fred McKay in the high jump, Tom Herbert set for discus and shot put, and Dennis Radke ready to go in the pole vault.

Jan Bowen marks his return to the track in two long races. He'll team up with Amie and McCollam for the 3,000-meter steeplechase and with Kaines, Zemper and Balthrop for the mile run. Dean Hunt and Dick Tompkins are entered in the 880-yard run, with Tompkins running unattached.

Chevy II. No car so trim has a right to be so thrifty. But thrifty it is, with money-savers like brakes that adjust themselves and a long-lived exhaust system.

Faculty Voice

University Presents Brahms' 'Requiem'

The University chorus and orchestra, under the direction of Gomer L. Jones, professor of music, will present the Brahms "Requiem" at 8:15 p.m. today, Good Friday, in the Auditorium. There will be no admission charge. The work will be performed in English.

Sharon Koelsch, East Lansing graduate student, soprano, and Rudolf Strukoff, East Lansing graduate student, baritone, will sing the solos that Jones describes as adding to the rich choral and orchestral texture of the "Requiem."

The "Requiem" is the work with which the Good Friday observance began at President John Hannah's request in 1950.

Since that year the observance has become something valued by both the University community and the general community, Jones said. The University has presented the choral performance whenever Good Friday falls during spring term.

Jones described the "Requiem" as a work for the living. Unlike the requiem masses of Mozart or Verdi, which are settings of the ancient rite, the Mass for the Dead, the Brahms work uses texts from the Bible and the Apocrypha.

The resulting expression of unsectarian religious feeling creates a two-fold theme of present sadness and joy to come, Jones remarked.

The 140-voice chorus and the 60-member orchestra have been preparing the "Requiem" for the Good Friday observance since January.

Italian Life Depicted In Travelogue

Kenneth Richter turned his Hollywood camera techniques to producing a travelogue on Italy that will be run at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Auditorium as part of the World Travel Series.

In this Italian travelogue he traces the Italian civilization from the days of the Rome of the Caesars to the Italy of the Renaissance and finally to the scenic and industrialized Italy of today.

Venice, the Alps, and the Monte Cassino monastery get their due, but he also reports on the life of an assembly-line worker, land reclamation on the farms, the heads of government, the modern Italian art and on the Communist menace in a land where 49 per cent of the voters supported Communists in the last national election.

Richter, who has filmed subjects from the head hunters of Ecuador to Tito of Yugoslavia, has traveled over a million miles and has covered 60 countries since he left Hollywood.

Trip To Art Institute Has Room For More

More students can join the members of a class in baroque painting for a trip Wednesday to the Detroit Institute of Art. Besides viewing the exhibition of Italian baroque art at the institute and visiting the museum, the students will attend an evening lecture by Robert Engass, professor of art history, from the University of Pennsylvania. Engass will speak on Roman baroque ceiling painting as a mirror of papal Rome. He recently published a book on Gaudi, a baroque ceiling painter. Those interested in the trip should contact Charles Meyer, assistant professor of art, 107 Kresge, 355-7635, for information on registration, cost and transportation.

More than 200 works of art, including paintings, drawings and sculpture, are on display in the Detroit exhibition, which make the display one of the largest ever collected by the United States, Meyer said.

The students will also have time to see the buildings at Wayne State University built by the contemporary architect Yasuaki.

Traditional Passover Near For Jewish Liberation Feast

The first Passover was celebrated 31 centuries ago when, according to the Bible, the Israelites were preparing for their flight from Egypt.

all over the world have celebrated the freeing of their people with the Seder, or Passover meal. More than a celebration of this ancient liberation, the Passover is also a prayer that someday men throughout the world might be free.

This festival begins the eve of the 14th day of the Hebrew month of Nisan, or April 17th this year. On this evening before the celebration actually begins, the household is searched for any leavened bread which has not been eaten. This is set aside and covered to be disposed of the next day.

At this time, before darkness sets in, the festival table is set. The choice linen, pewter, silverware and crockery, which is saved especially for the Passover, is set out. A cup of wine is placed at each place, and cushions for reclining are set to the left of each chair.

Three matzoth (unleavened bread) are each covered with a dolly and placed one on the other. A roasted egg representing spring, a roasted shankbone of a lamb with some meat on it symbolizing the Paschal lamb, haroseth made up of apples, almonds, raisins and wine, horseradish, parsley and salt water or vinegar representing bitter herbs are set before the one who will lead the reading of the Haggadah or narration.

The purpose of the narration is to pass the story of the celebration on from generation to generation. This story precedes the meal.

Following the ceremony of the meal, the blessings are given and hymns are sung.

Lord who dost dwell in the heavens sublime, Cause us to flourish as grass of the field.

Oh, be Thy people redeemed in our time, In freedom to sing and Mount Zion to build.

Then the wish of all the Jewish people is voiced: Next year in Jerusalem!

VEILING THE CROSS--In anticipation of Good Friday today, members of the All Saint's Altar Guild are veiling the altar crucifix to mourn the death of Christ. The practice is also done in Roman Catholic and Lutheran churches.

Vatican Says War Possible

VATICAN CITY (P)—A Vatican newspaper said Wednesday the United States may find it necessary to fight a full-scale war in Viet Nam to prevent the Communists from taking over Southeast Asia.

Suggesting that internal rivalry is undermining the South Vietnamese army, the weekly newspaper L'Osservatore Della Domenica said in an editorial: "It seems inevitable that the United States substitute itself for the South Viet Nam forces to prevent the Indochinese world -- worn and dissolved by a real war going on for more than 20 years -- from being filled and saturated by the Chinese brand of communism."

"The day may soon arrive when the Americans will find themselves face to face, without intermediaries, against North Viet Nam and its Peking supporters in an encounter perhaps more dramatic than in Korea 15 years ago."

Good Friday Message Appropriate Today

Today is Good Friday, the day when Christians the world over pause to remember the death of Jesus Christ on the cross of Calvary many years ago.

Crucified in ridicule and shame, the "King of the Jews," who had never done an evil deed in His life, died for the sins of us all.

He could do this because He was more than man. Jesus Christ was the Son of God, a member of the Holy Trinity.

On this day all men, all Christians, at least, (though Christ died for all men), should stop and examine themselves.

We should ask ourselves, "Am I worthy of this great love of God? Jesus gave His life for me; what have I done for Him?" Think back to the Biblical account of Christ's agonizing death on the cross. Read it again in the Gospels. Try to put yourself there to witness the scene. Try to imagine yourself suffering on the cross in Christ's stead. Would you undergo the torture without crying out in pain? Would you say, "Forgive them, Father, for they know not what they do?"

I am sure none of us could honestly answer "Yes" to these questions. Yet, what about the little things we could do to please God?

What about the little things we could do . . . and we don't? Jesus preached Love while He ministered on earth. He left us the admonition to love one another, not with a superficial romantic or selfish love, but with a sincere, self-giving love.

If we love God and accept Christ as the Son of God, if we admit our guilt and accept Jesus as our Saviour, then we will be able to realize the real meaning of Easter.

Then we will be enabled to become "workmen that needeth not to be ashamed."

Solar Display On Campus

A display of our solar system which has been set up on the south campus by four students from Lincoln Pettit's Natural Science classes will remain up until Monday.

The distances are scaled so that two million miles is equivalent to one foot. The Earth model is 4 1/2 ft. from the scaled 6 in. sun located in the lobby of Wilson Auditorium.

Other planets are similarly located throughout campus. At the location of each planet is a tripod with a sign containing information about the planet and a scaled drawing showing the size.

I am sure none of us could honestly answer "Yes" to these questions. Yet, what about the little things we could do to please God?

Events Of First Easter Recall Disciples' Actions

At Eastertime, most attention centers on the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ, yet the events which followed that world-shaking weekend are almost as dramatic.

To the supporters of Jesus, terrified and driven into hiding, it seemed that the whole cause had terminated in cruel, degrading defeat. The disciples' first attempt to reorganize was the selection of a replacement for Judas Iscariot, Christ's betrayer. Matthias was chosen by lot to fill the vacant position.

The company could not rest, but was haunted by Christ's parting words: "Tarry in Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high."

He also had said, "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me . . . unto the uttermost parts of the earth."

The entire group of disciples spent all night in prayer and on the next day, the Day of Pentecost, something earthshaking occurred.

"There came a sound as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting." The Holy Spirit was outpoured on all, and they "spoke in other tongues, as the spirit gave them utterance."

People in town heard the goings-on in the house, Jews from far and near, who were gathered in Jerusalem for the Feast of Pentecost, heard these various languages and were able to interpret them.

The stirring of the company moved the disciples out-of-doors to preach. Someone, observing the actions of the group, accused them of being drunken.
