

MSU Presses State For $39 Million

Legislature Has Answer To Library Problem--Money

Editor's note: Last of a five-part editorial analysis of the MSU Library.

By COLLEEN O'BRIEN
State News Staff Writer

The MSU Library has one big problem--lack of money.

It needs more space, more books, more professional librarians and clerical help. All these things are expensive.

But progress is being made. President Hannah has said the University is aware that the library is not adequately fulfilling the needs of students and faculty. Plans for expanding the present building, increasing the library's operating budget and reorganizing existing facilities will become realities in the near future.

What lies ahead for the MSU Library? According to Richard E. Chapin, director of libraries, automation, highly centralized resources and possibly a science library will come next.

Will this be enough? If the library is not keeping up with demand now, will it catch up in the future? This is up to the legislature.

The administration and library officials are doing all they can to build a good library. The legislature has repeatedly cut down and cut out plans for expansion and improvement of library facilities as well as other educational projects.

When the original library was built in 1955, the legislature chopped off plans for two additional wings which were considered necessary by University administrators at the time.

State-supported colleges and universities all across Michigan have had similar problems getting funds from the legislature, if not for their libraries, for some other projects.

Before Michigan's institutions of higher education can take their place among the nation's best, they must have the support of the legislature.

U.S., Viet Offensives Press Cong

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)--U.S. supported South Vietnamese troops, trying to nail down territory before the rainy season in May, pressed offensives against the Viet Cong on three sectors Thursday.

Spokesmen estimated U.S. aircraft and Vietnamese ground forces have killed 200 of the Red guerrillas in the midweek strikes, ranging from the Mekong Delta in the south to the plains and mountains near the Da Nang air base in the north.

Two U.S. Army advisers were killed in one of the actions, a heavy fight in Vinh Long province 80 miles southwest of Saigon. This brought to 353 the toll of American combat fatalities in Viet Nam since December 1961.

U.S. Marines patrolling outside the Da Nang Air Base, 380 miles northeast of Saigon, killed a guerrilla who chose to run. A dispatch from the scene said he fell under a single shot from Cpl. Pleas Davis of Tuscaloosa, Ala., who holds the sharpshooter badge. One of the Marines was wounded in the thigh by a sniper's bullet.

Oakland U. Wants Raise

Oakland University asked the Michigan Senate Appropriations Committee Thursday to increase appropriations by $497,000.

Durwood B. Varner, chancellor at Oakland, requested $2.6 million which is a 23 per cent increase from last year. Student enrollments increased 28 per cent.

Varner said this was one of the mildest requests of any of Michigan's state-supported institutions. Gov. Romney has recommended $2.4 million for Oakland in his budget.

Talk Set On British Universities

Sir Edward Collingwood, F.R.S., a noted British mathematician, will speak today at 2 p.m. in the Erickson Hall Kiva. He will discuss "Growing Pains of the British University System."

The lecture, sponsored by the Department of Statistics and the Continuing Education Service, is open to all interested students, staff and faculty.

Sir Edward is chairman of the Council (Board of Trustees) of the University of Durham, England, and is a member of the court of the neighboring University of Newcastle. He is also a lecturer at Cambridge University, and is currently the treasurer of the London Mathematical Society.

He is a fellow of the Royal Society, a member of the Medical Research Council and chairman of the Central Health Service Council, which is the principal advisory body to the Minister of Health.

Viet Debate Set May 11

The ASMSU debate on Viet Nam will be May 11 and four State Department representatives will explain U.S. policy here that afternoon.

The Student Board of Associated Students of MSU approved plans Wednesday for an evening debate between faculty members on both sides of the question.

Faculty associated with the recent teach-in opposing U.S. policy, as well as professors supporting present action, have agreed to have two representatives at the debate.

The International Relations Club is sponsoring afternoon lectures by the State Department representatives.

Blood Drive Goal Set At 2,500 Pints

The annual spring term Blood Drive will be next Monday through Friday at Demonstration Hall.

The drive is being sponsored by the Army ROTC and the Lansing chapter of the American Red Cross. This year's goal is 2,500 pints.

Parental consent slips for students under 21 are available at all living units, Room 6 Demonstration Hall and the information desk at Olin Health Center.

'She Came And Didn't Tell Me'

By LINDA BOYLE
State News Staff Writer

"The little girl came and didn't tell me--that is what hurts," said Mrs. Walter A. Gibson, whose home was picketed Thursday by campus civil rights groups.

In an interview Wednesday, Mrs. Gibson explained why she refused to allow Sandra Jenkins, Birmingham, Ala., junior, to rent a room from her.

Mrs. Gibson rents the upstairs rooms of her white frame house at 217 Beech St. She agreed to rent a room to Prudence Dickinson, East Grand Rapids junior, and to Miss Jenkins, who she never saw.

Miss Dickinson did not say that her friend was a Negro, Mrs. Gibson said.

When Miss Dickinson returned two days after their agreement, Mrs. Gibson said she decided to ask about her friend.

"I asked her if her friend was a Negro and she said yes," Mrs. Gibson said.

"I asked her then why she didn't tell me before, and she said it wasn't important," Mrs. Gibson went on. "I told her it was important to me because I had other in my home. I felt I had to consider that."

The interview followed a church circle meeting of 27 women at Mrs. Gibson's home.

"Before they left they said a prayer for me to help me through my days of trouble," she said.

"It's awful hard to take to be treated this way," she said. Mrs. Gibson said she had never thought too much about the racial problem but had never held anything against Negroes. She said she was angry because Miss Dickinson had "tried to trick her into renting to a Negro."

She will never consider renting her rooms to Negroes after this treatment, she said.

$30 Million Sought For Buildings

University officials Thursday renewed their plea for a $39.7 million state appropriation for the University's operating fund in hearings before the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Their request, part of a proposed total University budget of $53.2 million, is about $2 million more than Gov. George Romney's recommendation. The difference between the state funds and the total budget comes from student fees, federal grants, interest and other sources.

The request is $8.3 million higher than last year's record state allocation of $31.3 million. Last year's total budget was $43.5 million.

Warren Huff, chairman of the Board of Trustees, told the committee the request represents the "real rock-bottom need of the University."

President John A. Hannah and other officials repeatedly told the senators that if the budget request is cut, Michigan youths will suffer by the loss of essential programs. They said an increase of about 4,000 students can be expected next year on the Lansing campus.

The budget request covers Oakland University and Cooperative Extension programs as well as the main campus.

In addition to the operating fund request, the University asked for $9.2 million to continue current building projects and for $21.4 million for five new projects.

Both Hannah and Provost Howard R. Neville emphasized the importance of providing funds for the planned library expansion and for salaries for the equivalent of 332 new full-time faculty members. A request for $1.175 million for new and replaced equipment, $300,000 was ear-

Quake Rolls Through Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)--A rolling earthquake rumbled through a wide area of the Pacific northwest Thursday, killing at least two persons, injuring many and damaging hundreds of buildings including the state capitol at Olympia.

Three women died of heart attacks possibly triggered by the quake. A warehouse man at Fisher Flouring Mill here, Ray Haughton, 52, was crushed to death when a 50,000-gallon wooden water tank atop a 200-foot water tower was shaken apart.

Three other persons in the mill were injured. Adolphus Lewis of Seattle was injured fatally when debris from a downtown building fell on him.

The quake knocked the needles off of seismograph scales here, but stations elsewhere measured its magnitude at 6.5 to 7 on the Richter scale. It struck at 8:29 a.m. (PDT).

"It was just like riding the top of a flappole," the manager of Seattle's 608-foot-high space needle restaurant said after the earthquake.

"All we lost was a couple of bottles of booze," reported manager Basil Mautulis. "This place is built to take it."

The earthquake did not generate a tidal wave but was felt from the Pacific coast to western Montana and from Coos Bay, Ore., to British Columbia. The series of three shocks lasted 45 seconds to a minute.

Mayor Dorm Braman of Seattle made a 45-minute low altitude helicopter inspection of the city and said it came through the quake with relatively little damage.

"There is no need to declare any state of emergency or take any other drastic steps," the mayor said.

At Olympia, Gov. Dan Evans, a civil engineer, ordered evacuation of the capitol while a damage inspection was made. The dome was severely damaged. Skylights above the Senate and House chambers crashed down onto the desks of the legislators, who had not arrived for the day's sessions.

At Grand Coulee Dam, on the Columbia river in eastern Washington, some communications circuits were knocked out. Near Gig Harbor, on the Kitsap peninsula southwest of here, a road sank out of sight under a lake. The cross toppled from Holy Rosary Roman Catholic Church in Tacoma. Boulders rolled from Mt. Persis onto the Stevens Pass highway in the Cascade mountains northeast of here. A state patrol radio tower collapsed in Everett.

The University of Washington seismologist, Norman Rasmussen, fixed the center of the quake in the northeast corner of Mason County, Wash., near Hood canal. This is about 40 miles southwest of Seattle.

Next Year-20 Minutes Between Day Classes?

Students may have 20 minutes between classes instead of 10 next fall, Provost Howard R. Neville has suggested.

"The University is considering this plan to allow students more time to get to classes located in buildings a great distance apart," he said.

As the campus has expanded, it has become increasingly more difficult for students to get from one class to another class in a distant building in the time now allotted, he said.

As a result, Neville said, some professors have been saying that they can teach for only 40 minutes of the 50 minute period because of students coming in late and leaving early.

The 50-minute class period would be maintained if the proposed plan becomes effective, he explained, but one daytime class period would be eliminated.

Classes would begin at 8 a.m. and run until 12:20 p.m. There would be no classes between 12:20 p.m. and 1 p.m. Afternoon classes would run from 1 p.m. to 5:20 p.m.

Night classes would remain essentially the same as they are now, Neville said.

With this new system, classes in the outer campus complex would begin at the same time as classes on the central campus, he said.

"It is conceivable that a student could have classes in buildings ranging from Brody to Fee by next year," he said.

Although a 15-minute break might be sufficient now, Neville said, plans for classrooms south of the Grand Trunk railroad tracks would require a 20-minute break within two to five years. The administration will give formal consideration to the plan next week, he added.

Most students asked seem to be in favor of the increased time between classes.

JAH Seeks Alternative Financing

President John A. Hannah and other University administrators Thursday urged the Senate Appropriations Committee to consider finding alternative ways to finance higher education in the state if tax funds are not available to meet universities' needs.

Presenting what they called a "rock-bottom" request of $39.7 million in state allocations for 1965-66, officials said that if the request was not met vital programs for the education of Michigan students would have to be cut.

They proposed a state bonding issue or state authorization of self-liquidating University bond issues similar to those used to build dormitories to help meet classroom, office and laboratory needs. They reacted favorably to a suggestion that state colleges and universities push for a state income tax and other fiscal reforms.

"There isn't enough money available," Hannah said. Some program is urgently needed, he said, to provide necessary facilities for higher education throughout the state, not just at Michigan State.

He said the 10 state-supported colleges and universities may submit a unified budget request next year, similar to that submitted by the four state institutions in Indiana, so that the legislature could allot a grand total sum to be divided up by the institutions themselves.

"Education is too important," he said, for colleges to continue fighting among themselves. "There is only one public."

EDITORIAL

Library Week: Library Weak

Today, not inappropriately, is the last day of National Library Week, as well as the last day of the State News' editorial analysis series on the MSU Library.

These three circumstances, plus the announcement this week that MSU is still at the top of the National Merit scholar recruiting list and the state Senate hearings Thursday on the University's budget, all point up the urgency of improving the library now.

University administrators are well aware of the needs of the library, as they have been outlined in the Sullivan Committee report earlier this year and in a number of articles in the State News.

Planning is under way for improvements. Secretary Jack Breslin, for instance, said Tuesday that the $3 million library addition is near the top of the building priority list.

Herein lies the dilemma: Solutions are being found to problems, but many are solutions which will not solve problems fast enough to help students here now, and almost none will prepare for the great rush of students expected soon.

The library addition will provide the 2,000 additional study seats needed now, for example, but by the time they are ready more will be needed, and by the time more are added years in the future the crush is likely to be as bad as it is now.

The hundreds, or thousands, of top undergraduates and graduate students now in or soon to come to the University need better facilities, and can't wait for them to come along when they can be squeezed into the University's budget.

Some answers can be found which will help provide more of the needed improvements for the library now. A few suggestions and comments:

Alumni Aid

Breslin said Tuesday that the MSU Alumni Association might be willing to build a faculty-alumni clubhouse south of the campus in the near future. While this would be a fine gesture, the money would be much better used to develop the facilities badly needed by the library.

Many of the improvements needed will not be costly, and the funds which the alumni could make available immediately would relieve a great deal of pressure from administrators wrestling with a difficult budget.

William H. Combs, dean of the University Services division which is in charge of the library, said the alumni donated the funds with which the fourth floor auditorium, offices and study areas of the library were built. A similar move now would be of tremendous help, and much more useful than a clubhouse.

Charles F. Wrigley, director of the Computer Institute for Social Science Research, is the new chairman of the Faculty Library Committee, a standing University committee. He has indicated a strong interest in hearing opinions on the library, and has suggested open meetings of the committee for this purpose.

Through devices such as open meetings and the new suggestion box which Library Director Richard E. Chapin said is to be installed in the library, members of the University community can express their thoughts on the library, and hopefully action can be taken on their suggestions.

Chapin said non-credit library resources courses might be taught next year. Why not have faculty, graduate, and Honors College students experienced in library use, teach such courses, starting this term if it can be arranged?

Assistant Library Director Henry C. Koch said the library's book purchasing funds are allotted at the beginning of each year to various departments and colleges for their needed purchases during the year.

Toward the end of each fiscal year, he said, the funds start getting low, and the purchases decline. Departmental aid to the library could alleviate this situation, and keep book purchases on a constant level all year.

Perhaps academic departments could offer some of their funds for particularly urgently needed purchases in their fields.

Utopia, '67-'68

The plans for the library addition about to be wrangled through the legislature, while they are still in tentative stages, sound as though they will make library use easier and more efficient in the future.

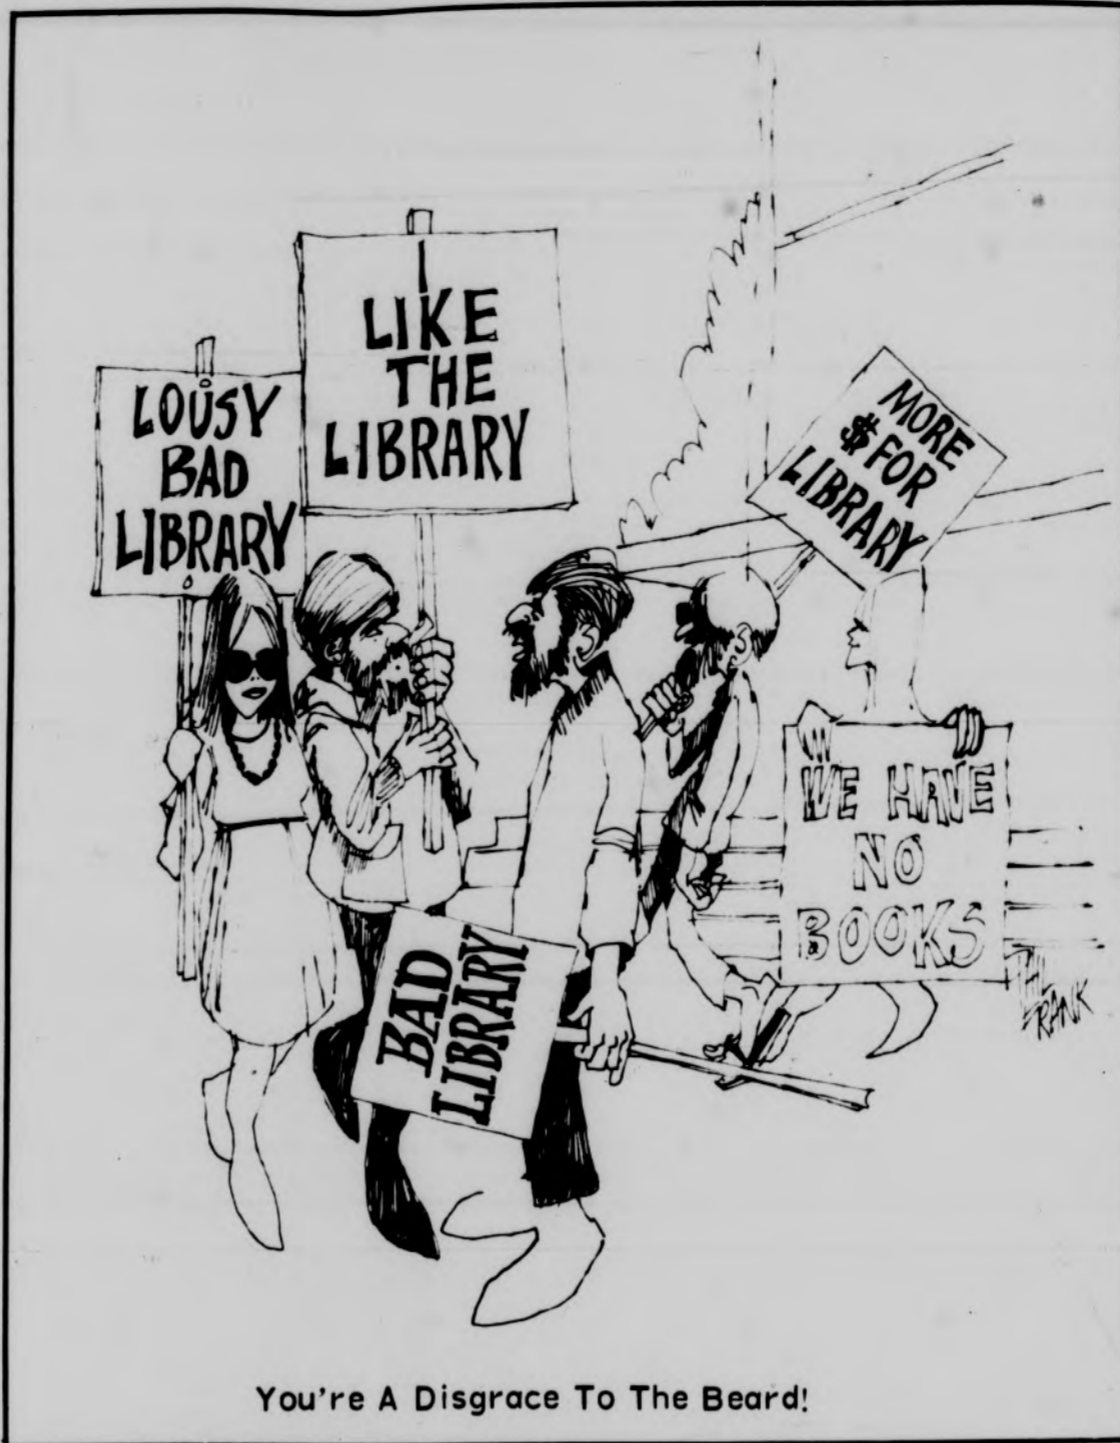

They include more open reading areas for undergraduates, more faculty and graduate carrels, and closed but easily accessible stacks in the addition which will hold the majority of research materials. Combs said that between 100,000 and 150,000 volumes will be stored in the old building, which will be primarily for undergrads. There will be more office space, more work space, more cataloguing and reference room.

None of this, however, will be finished before late 1967 or early 1968. The rearrangement of the old library cannot begin until the new building is completed. It won't be begun, Combs said, until early 1966, and then only if the legislature provides planning money right away and building money in time for the work to begin. The urgency of doing so cannot be emphasized too much.

Responsibility

The state legislature should take this into account in determining the University's appropriations, but even more important is for the administration--the same people who so eloquently defend library needs to the legislature--to provide the maximum amount possible for the library within the total they receive from the state.

They must not neglect their responsibilities to the students here now and to the students who will be here soon.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The 'Hearts' vs. The 'Sciences'

To the Editor:

Professor Pinner's attack on his colleagues, Fishel et al, concerning the "teach-in" on Viet Nam (4/22/65) requires a rebuttal. Perhaps it is useful that this comes from one who is not an expert on Viet Nam since Pinner seems to view first-hand familiarity with the subject as a disqualification.

Two aspects of his position trouble me: he does not confront what Professor Fishel et al, complained of, and he espouses a rather frightening view of the relation of science to public policy debate.

The complaint about the failure of the "teach-in" to share its rostrum with those opposed to the views of the organizers of the meeting explicitly acknowledged the right of those opposing American policy in Viet Nam to hold a rally for their cause--to explain their view, to arm their supporters with arguments, to instill enthusiasm and to recruit "marchers on Washington" protesting American involvement in Viet Nam.

Rather, the complaint was that a one-sided rally was billed as a "teach-in" which would "educate" through "discussion" our understanding of this issue of American foreign policy. Intentionally or not, this was misleading, and those with competency in this area of policy dispute are an appropriate group to bring this into the open.

But Professor Pinner denies the "old Viet Nam hands" are competent--they are "inside dopesters" rather than scientists.

Well, that is a two-edged argument, since the claim to expertise of those presiding at the "teach-in" surely was not that of scientific certainty. In addition to the disputed facts concerning the history of the Viet Nam war, their claim is importantly drawn from their feeling of the moral rightness of their position.

Few philosophers of science would dispute the relevance of value differences to such public-policy decisions. Nor do empirical scientists claim any special authority in resolving such value issues.

It is rather alarming to be told by a social scientist that education on the Viet Nam issue permits only one side--the "true side"--to be presented.

By this view, the "authorities" at MSU would have a perfect right, indeed the responsibility, to prohibit the "teach-in" rally, since they believe that it taught a fallacious view of the Viet Nam situation. Fortunately, a clearer view of academic freedom prevails supporting the propriety of hearing a diversity of positions on this and other controversial political issues.

The logic of science, modesty concerning our competency as social scientists, and a commitment to democracy require us to reject the claim that there is a single authoritative view of the Viet Nam issue which precludes hearing "both sides."

Does MSU Really Exist?

To the Editor:

I submit to some bright young reporter a topic for a State News report which should have interesting potentials: "A Critical Survey of University College Courses". Lest this sound forbiddingly pedantic, the title could be adapted to catch the attention of even the sleepiest early-morning reader. For example: "Does ATL Really Exist?"

To be specific, I have just calculated how much work is required for my four-credit humanities course, not including "The Plague," the entire term requires less than 300 pages of rather easy reading, and absolutely no writing. Less than 200 of these pages are from original sources (these badly mutilated) while the remaining material is from texts apparently aimed at the high school market.

Are courses like this worth my while, or they merely tenth-grade subjects taught by an administration obsessed with the spectre of efficiency?

By praising the merits and analyzing and publicizing the faults of these courses, the State News stands to do MSU a great service; at the very least, it would provide a running commentary on the hidden costs of a mass education.

The Excuses Of The University

To the Editor:

I guess I am just too old-fashioned. I came to Michigan State University last fall with some idiosyncrasy that this was to be a great place to further my education alongside other mature people.

But what I find instead is a college (run by a president who spends his time in Nigeria or the South) about so-so. 'So' many are drunk and seemingly irresponsible every week that there are 'so' few left to call this a college of mature individuals.

The state of Michigan will soon prepare to face before the people the decision as to whether the 18-year olds of this state should have the franchise. If the total student population of supposedly better informed individuals at MSU are representatives of their age, God have mercy on Michigan.

This place is lucky if it can dig up 25 per cent of its students to vote on campus issues which have a very direct effect upon each one. Yet this small minority is said to be an overwhelming election compared to the average turnout. Even though this is quite a common fact some people clamor for the right to tell East Lansing what to do in the next election, whose results most likely won't affect them anyway. These 18-year olds are not irresponsible for being in their teens but for their foolishly unsuccessful attempts to show the world that they are grown up. Isn't liquor just a part of this attempt? Its after-effects make the consumer look as foolish as one who puffs at a burning wad of leaves wrapped in a paper, especially the female gender.

Sure, all the liquor may take the mind off the present problems and dull the mind so as to seem to raise the spirits; but how are the young people of today ever going to cope with the realities of the world after the Aika-Seltzer takes effect the morning following a spree if they constantly try to hide the truth from themselves?

Besides this, I have seen many wonderful dates ruined by having to cart 'friends' up the stairs because they couldn't stagger up to bed themselves. Is this to be looked forward to after every date? I should hope not.

Maybe someday I can be proud to give my friends a tour of this campus and introduce them to a few mature people.

Life is not a toy to be played with; but there are certainly too many youngsters attempting a hand at the controls.

Point of View

Mickey Mouse Marching Society

By Phyllis Helper

Stand up and be counted and you have a stand-in. Sit down and protest and you have a sit-in. Lie down and refuse to move and you have passive resistance. But by whatever name it is called, it amounts to the same thing -- a demonstration.

Within the past few weeks numerous stand-in, sit-down protests have occurred on the MSU campus.

The participants in these protests claim to be individuals, yet all look alike. To be acceptable and present the correct image, coeds must have long uncombed hair, sandals, dark clothing and sunglasses, and must carry a bookbag. Men must have uncombed hair, long stretched-out sweaters, sandals or dirty tennies, sunglasses and the most important thing -- the beard.

They must parade solemnly in a line, never smiling, and when they finally reach their destination, they must all argue fluently about whatever cause they are picketing for.

Some of these people are known as the "Permanent Pickets." They will picket anything and everything. They all have a cause and feel everyone must hear about it.

I'm not sure what the pickets cause, but supposedly they represent opinion and interest.

Each of the demonstrators wears a button to show what he is for or against. Some of these people have more buttons than others, and this shows their rank. The more buttons one wears, the higher his rank among the demonstrators.

I overheard one graduate student say that he is in the process of patenting an invention called the Portable Placard. Making and carrying various signs for different protests becomes expensive, so the Portable Placard would solve these problems.

Designed as a placard stick, with several signs on it, all the demonstrator has to do is push a button on the stick, and the sign, and cause, changes.

Therefore, if a student had a demonstration to attend at noon to protest U.S. policy in Viet Nam, he could carry a "Peace in Viet Nam" sign. Later, as he hurried to a 2 o'clock protest of housing rules, he could simply press the button, the sign would switch, and he would be ready to carry a sign saying "More Freedom for Students."

Also included in the Portable Placard would be signs ranging from "Tear Down the Library" to "Widen the Bicycle Paths" to "Let's Clean Up the Red Cedar."

The pickets could even have their own special place to meet. Our University fathers had enough foresight to plan for their arrival, and appropriately named a building for them--Demonstration Hall.

This could be the official location of protest headquarters. If any student wanted to see a particular demonstration, he would know that Dem Hall would have pickets going on at all times, and this would be the place to go.

With a place for demonstrations, and the same group performing them, a union is the next step in organization. It should be named "Demonstrations, Ltd."

Students would have to apply for membership, dress a certain way, pay a fee, (for the Portable Placard, buttons, and other incidentals,) and develop three ideas on new subjects to protest.

Then, if accepted and initiated, they would march along with the others, singing the group's theme song, sung to the tune of the last two lines of the "Mickey Mouse Club" song:

Now's the time to march along and carry a sign with me, D-E-N-I--O-N-S--T-R-A-T-E!

Castroism In Dominican Revolt?

Castro

WASHINGTON--Behind official U.S. policy in the present Dominican crisis runs a strong current of suspicion that Cuban Communist chief Fidel Castro may be trying to turn the bloody insurrection to his own advantage.

The Johnson administration is authoritatively described as being on the alert for action to meet any Communist threat. President Johnson is said to be determined not to tolerate either another Cuba in the Caribbean or a Vietnamese-type war on the American doorstep.

Crest Causes Decay

BURLINGTON, Iowa (UPI)--Destructive cresting waters of the Mississippi River idled riverside industries in southeastern Iowa cities Thursday and spread seven miles wide over western Illinois lowlands.

Flood fighters stepped up the tempo of dike-strengthening work at Muscatine, Burlington and Keokuk, Iowa, as the highest crest in the history of the upper Mississippi bore down at a 1-billion gallon per hour pace.

Snipers-Marines Battle

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic--U.S. Marines guarding 1,000 American citizens in this embattled capital city shot and killed two of five snipers who fired on the American Embassy.

The Marines fired from behind cars on the tree-shaded lawn in their first action since they landed here Wednesday on orders of President Johnson to protect Americans while civil war rages between Dominican factions.

While armed civilians roamed the streets of downtown Santo Domingo, other rebel forces violated the diplomatic immunity of at least five foreign embassies by entering the grounds of the embassy buildings.

BB Has Bronchitis

TECOLUTLA, Mexico--Brigitte Bardot is recuperating from a siege of amoebic dysentery and bronchitis and will resume filming of the movie "Viva Maria!" Monday, a spokesman for the French film company said Thursday.

Production halted two days ago when the French star fainted and was ordered to bed by doctors. The company has about 10 more days' shooting to do on location near this Gulf coast town.

France-Russia Want Settlement

PARIS--France and the Soviet Union called Thursday for enforcement of the 1954 Accords of Geneva on Indochina as the basis of a settlement of the Vietnamese conflict.

A joint communique issued on the talks between Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville said the two nations agreed that the problems of Southeast Asia should be solved on that basis.

The joint statement referred to the 1954 agreements on Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos, and to the 1962 accord on the neutrality, independence and territorial integrity of Laos.

India Admits Loses

NEW DELHI--India claimed Thursday a victorious Pakistani brigade was advancing deeper into the disputed Rann of Kutch on the western frontier despite heavy shelling from Indian guns.

An official spokesman said the Indian army, which has fallen back repeatedly, would make a stand "at a place advantageous to us."

Frenzied diplomatic moves were underway to head-off another major clash in the barren western region.

Britain has proposed to both sides an immediate ceasefire and has the full backing of U.S. diplomats here and in Pakistan. But there is no sign that any negotiating proposal was being accepted.

Prelude To Summer?

MALVERN, Pa.--About 25 adults and teen-agers, white and Negro, battled Wednesday night with fists, clubs and knives near the Chester Valley Country Club in what a police official called "a small race riot."

Three persons were injured and 15 arrested by police in nearby East Whiteland Township, Chester County.

Police Chief William Eason said the fighting had no connection with Monday night's rock-throwing, window-breaking demonstration by Negroes in nearby Parkesburg after a Negro boy was shot and killed, allegedly by a white boy, following an argument in a garage.

ASMSU Board Approves Fall Entertainment Series

The ASMSU Student Board approved a popular entertainment series for next fall term and heard a report on an all-University radio station at Wednesday night's meeting.

The entertainment series will be similar to this year's Homecoming show, which featured the Gateway Trio and the Village Stompers and drew 4,100 students.

The proposed schedule is for shows following the Ohio State football game on Oct. 16; another on Oct. 29 before the homecoming game with Northwestern, and one after the Indiana game on Nov. 12.

Three types are planned: jazz, rock 'n roll and folk singing, probably in that order.

With a probable cost of $16,000 for the entire series, tickets would be $1.50 per person.

"We are doing this as a service, not to make money," said Dave Jensen, vice president for special projects, in his report to the board.

"We think students would like to have good quality entertainment at low prices."

In presenting the report on the radio station, War on Platt, past All University Student Government vice president for special projects, said that a station would cost around $13,000.

A network system to allow present residence hall and complex stations to continue local programming will probably be the most useful plan, he said.

He gave no definite date as to when such a station could begin operation.

The board recommended that Jim Cherry, East Lansing graduate student, continue as head of the radio project.

In other action, the board interpreted a constitutional section saying the Student Judiciary chief justice be a senior member of the court to mean seniority in length of service, rather than class standing. In effect, a junior with a year's experience could hold the post.

Greek Week Closes With Work And Fun

Greek Week will finish with an action-packed weekend beginning with a street dance in the parking lot behind the Sigma Chi house tonight at 8 p.m.

A joint community project between the fraternities and sororities will begin Saturday. The project this year will be in connection with the Council for Exceptional Children (CEC).

Viet Peace Committee Plans Capitol March

A student-faculty march on the Capitol Building in Lansing to protest the United States' stand in Viet Nam will highlight a week of activities planned by the MSU Committee for Peace in Viet Nam for next week to emphasize its protest against the war.

The activities have been planned in response to a nationwide call issued by the Students for a Democratic Society, the group which planned the April 17 protest march on Washington, a Peace Committee spokesman said.

The MSU May 2 Committee, a chapter of a national student group protesting what it calls U.S. imperialism, is co-sponsoring the events. The May 2 Movement takes its name from the date of an anti-war demonstration last year.

The week of activities will include:

- Sunday, May 2: A film on the war produced by the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) will be shown.
- Monday: A Hyde-Park-type open forum on Viet Nam will be held in the afternoon near Beaumont Tower.
- Tuesday: A debate between students on opposing sides of the Viet Nam issue, moderated by a neutral party, is scheduled.
- Wednesday: A faculty forum will be held between professors with opposing views of the war.
- Thursday: The Capitol march down Michigan Avenue, with a student and a faculty speaker expected to talk at the Capitol.

Times and places have not yet been set for the three indoor activities, the spokesman said. For further information call Reinhard Mohr at 337-9551.

Irish Down Netmen, 7-2; Iowa Next For Spartans

By RICK PIANIN
State News Sports Writer

Spartan Laird Warner was the sole singles victor, defeating Raul Kattlain, 7-5, 7-5. Bill Brown, Notre Dame's number one man, stopped Dwight Shelton, 7-5, 6-4. State's Captain Charlie Wolff lost a tough, see-saw match to Pedro Rossello, 6-3 and 9-7.

Jim Goetz proved to be too much for Jim Phillips, beating him 6-3, 6-2. Vic Dhooge had his problems with Vince Chinn, dropping the match 6-1, 6-3. State's Mike Youngs went the full distance of three sets, but couldn't manage to pull out a Michigan State's tennis team will have to quickly pick up the pieces in the aftermath of a shattering 7-2 loss to Notre Dame here Thursday, and prepare for its encounter with Iowa this Saturday. State's record now stands at 5-5 for the season in dual meet competition.

A strong wind whipped across the tennis courts, but its power was only a fraction of that displayed by the "Fighting Irish," who swept all but one singles match, 5-1, virtually making doubles play unnecessary.

win, losing to Ruben Carriedo, 6-2, 0-6, 6-2. In doubles play, by then merely a formality, Shelton and Wolff teamed up to defeat Rossello and Kattlain, 6-2, 6-0. The team of Brown and Bruce Vosburg dumped Phillips and Dhooge, 6-2, 6-3.

Goetz and Chinn took the third doubles match from Warner and Harold Shelton, 6-3, 6-2. Coach Stan Drobac had little to say following the match, "I guess the score about sums up everything," he said.

"I think that some of the matches, especially the one between Wolff and Rossello, were quite good," added Tom Fallon, coach of Notre Dame. His team is now 9-1 for the season.

The Spartans will leave tomorrow for Iowa City for the weekend match.

After a light workout this afternoon, Coach Fran Dittrich is hoping that his cindermen will be "heavy" for Saturday's home opener of the dual meet season.

The Spartans will be facing Ohio State at Ralph Young Field. Field events are set to begin at 12:30 p.m., with the opening gun for the races going off at 1 p.m. Headlining the day's card should be the hurdle events, with State's shuttle relay team of Gene Washington, Bob Steele, Clint Jones and Fred McKay looking to repeat their victory in the Drake Relays.

"It should be an interesting meet," Dittrich said as he walked around the track watching workouts. "I'll be looking for improvement all along the line. Some of the boys will be running extra hard; they need the conditioning work."

Dittrich is looking for better performances in the field events, which have been a weak spot for State.

"Tom Herbert is improving in the discus," he went on. "I expect better performances from Mike Bowers and Fred McKay in the high jump. Jim Garrett is jumping pretty well, also. Ohio State looks like they have quite a bit of strength in the middle-distance races. We should be able to handle them, though, because we're a more balanced team."

The Buckeyes, coached by Larry Snyder, have top men in Erwin Sellers, 440; Mike Cavotta, shot; Mike Alexander, 880; and Jim McGeorge, broad jump.

Along with his broad-jumping duties, Garrett will be entered in the 100 and 220 - yd. dashes. Rounding out the field events for State is Dennis Radke in the pole vault.

Other top entries include Eric Zemper in the two miles, Jan Bowen and Keith Coates in the 880 and mile, Daswell Campbell in the 220 and 440.

SHORT SEASON?--From the looks of things the Spartans will be playing one of the shortest schedules in school history next fall. By the time the Green and White finish the Purdue game they will have met the top four teams in last year's Big Ten race on successive Saturdays. Photo by Jerry Cantina

Duffy Dealt Double Duties

Spartan coach Duffy Daugherty will perform a double role this weekend as his gridders complete their fourth week of spring practice.

Besides putting the Green and White through their paces, Daugherty will serve as a leader at the 12th annual MSU football coaches clinic which will run from noon today through an intrasquad scrimmage Saturday at Spartan Stadium.

Daugherty and his staff will give coaching tips to some 400 high school, college and junior college coaches with the aid of the Spartan varsity.

The featured-guest coach at the clinic will be Jim Strangeland of Long Beach (Calif.) City College. Strangeland has guided his teams to national junior college titles in three of the last six seasons.

The intra-squad scrimmage will be closed to all but clinic registrants.

Next week the Green and White will finish spring drills with the traditional Green-White game Saturday afternoon at the Stadium.

Admission for the Green-White game has been set at $1 for adults and 50 cents for MSU students.

Drills have been held Wednesday through Saturday since April 7.

'Help Wanted' Sign Posted In New Spartan Backfield

By JERRY MORTON
State News Sports Writer

A football backfield consists of four men, but at present the Spartan backfield contains three backs and a question mark.

The Green and White will have three veteran regulars on hand to open the 1965 season and the question mark should be erased by the time UCLA invades Spartan Stadium in the fall.

With Steve Juday at quarterback, Clinton Jones at halfback, and Eddie Cotton at fullback, MSU has the nucleus to form a strong offensive punch. . .but there's still something missing.

The biggest problem facing Coach Duffy Daugherty is to find a replacement for Dick Gordon who gained 741 yards last season. His total rushing yardage was equal to the output of the next six Spartan backs.

The vacancy at halfback could be filled by a sophomore, and Daugherty has spent much of the spring inspecting the current freshman crop.

Sophomore candidates include Dwight Lee, Mitch Prulett and Bob Lange. Prulett has run well this spring after playing a defensive role last fall. Lange caught a touchdown pass from Jim Raye in Saturday's intrasquad scrimmage.

Top veteran contender for the position is John Grogan, who saw limited action last season. The backfield could have good speed, but the picture still hinges on the choice of the fourth man.

"A lot depends on how well he is able to replace Gordon," Daugherty said. "Our backfield could be fast this year but it was also fast at the end of last season."

The loss of Juday and Jones to spring sports has hindered full development of the backfield, but it's given others a chance to display their ability.

Daugherty said he considers John Mullen the best passer of the spring drills but had plans for the running ability of sophomore Jim Raye who played last year when injured. Mullen and Eric Grogan are also being considered.

James 23 the ball carrier among the Spartans. He logged 137 yards in 14 carries last year. He was injured in the 1964 season. He was injured in the 1964 season. He was injured in the 1964 season.

Booming Bats Greet Illinois, Purdue

By LARRY MOGG
State News Sports Writer

The Spartan baseballers, currently the hottest club in the Big Ten, take to the road this weekend for a single game with Illinois on Friday and a Saturday doubleheader with Purdue.

State has nailed down two victories in three games so far, which puts them right in the thick of things in the early conference race. That's the way they would like to stay.

Coach Danny Litwiler will stick with his Big Three moundmen against the Illini and Boilermakers. Junior John Krasnan, who hasn't given up an earned run in 18-plus innings, will get the call for the Illinois bout. Doug Dobrei and Jim Goodrich will face the Boilermakers.

The Illini can match State's 2-1 record and aren't the pushovers they were last year when they finished in the Big Ten basement. Jack Secret, unbeaten this season, will do the pitching for Illinois. Top hitters for the Illini are outfielder Trenton Jackson and third baseman Dan Humay. The Illini didn't make a southern trip, but have an overall mark of 7-2.

Purdue has several fine pitchers this season, but has run into a hitting drought. Only veterans Tom Pugh, an outfielder, and Del Wilber, shortstop, have hit the ball with any consistency. Bob Purkhiser, who beat State once last year, and either Steve Cunningham or Mike Purvis, will get the starting duties.

After the first full week of conference action the Spartans have rapped the ball around the diamond at .301 clip. However, the offense and White has shown little extra base power. Only two of their 25 conference hits have been better than singles. Last year's team was noted for its power, something that seems to be lacking this season.

Litwiler, who will start the other side of the tilt, leads the Spartans in strikeouts. The left-handed senior has whiffed 31 enemy batters in 22 innings. Dobrei has been particularly effective the last few times out. He has hit two home runs in 143 at-bats and has earned 1.43 earned-run average in seven appearances.

Litwiler is especially good with the same lineup he has utilized since from the beginning of the spring trip. Shortstop Steve Jolley, the Spartans' top hitter at .406 for the season, will lead-off. Batting in the second position will be centerfielder Bob Manning, whose average is just a shade under .300.

John Dusenberry (.392) will hit third and play third. Outfielders Gab Speer and Dick Hillings, both hitting over .300, will follow Dusenberry in the lineup. The college first baseman Howard Miller (.287), either Bill Newberry (.219) or Dick Kilbourne (.157) catching, and Jerry Walker (.128) at second base.

Walker, the little switch-hitting second baseman, has come on strong since the conference season opened.

Rugby, Lacrosse Busy Bees

Two of State's spring clubs will be in action this weekend. The lacrosse team is home Saturday and Sunday afternoon games with the Ohio State club, while the rugby club travels to Chicago Saturday for the Midwest Tournament.

The lacrosse club will be looking to improve its 1-2 record at the expense of a Cleveland crowd on a Saturday. A Columbus star will move into the college field Sunday afternoon for a 3 p.m. game.

Walker, the little switch-hitting second baseman, has come on strong since the conference season opened.

Coach Paul Caldwell's club will have had some difficulty with Ohio schools of late, losing two games to other Ohio clubs. The club opened its first first-year all-college competition will compete in a rugged field of 21 teams for the coveted Midwest Trophy.

Captain John Thompson leads the spring contingent, which has won the contest in four losses so far. Coach Neville Dobrei expects his team to finish "about in the middle of the pack." State has a bye on the weekend.

Walker, the little switch-hitting second baseman, has come on strong since the conference season opened.

She's Too Venomous

Reds Rebuke Atheist

MOSCOW (AP)—One of Russia's most virulent anti-religious propagandists was sharply criticized in public Sunday for insulting religious believers. The rebuke came -- of all places -- from the official atheist magazine "Nauka i Religiya" (Science and Religion).

Parish Elects New Officers

The Activities Council's president's gavel at St. John's Student Parish has been turned over to a Louisville, Ky., graduate student. Joseph Kelly, a masters candidate in zoology, assumed his new responsibilities on April 11. Other new officers are first vice president, Patrick Tyrrell, Bancroft junior; second vice president, Mary T. Thompson, Brooklyn, New York, graduate student; secretary, Kathleen Fojtik, Dundee sophomore; and treasurer, Mary Polkowski, Dearborn senior.

nikova's crude abuse of religious believers was a vulgarization of atheist propaganda. The sharply worded attack appeared on Soviet newstands on the eve of the Russian Orthodox Easter. Its appeal for a more sophisticated, less hostile approach to believers has been expressed here before -- but rarely as forcefully. The magazine told the woman writer: "Reading your articles, one gets the impression that having taken up the anti-religious theme, you haven't bothered to consider properly what modern religion represents and why many Soviet people at the present time still believe in God, how people come to believe and what attracts them to religion."

B'nai B'rith Sets 2 Films

The B'nai B'rith Hill Foundation is having a Film Festival featuring the films "Laughter Through Tears" and "Anatomy of a Murder." These will be shown in the Forestry Cabin Saturday. 7 p.m.--"Laughter Through Tears" was filmed in the U.S.S.R. in 1933. This gem of Jewish folklore by Sholom Aleichem envisions the life of the shtetl, the poor Jewish village in old Russia. 8:30 p.m.--"Anatomy of a Murder" was produced and directed by Otto Preminger.

"Or we regard him as an inferior being, politically unreliable and as an enemy of the other side of the barricades with whom it is necessary to unceremoniously expose and ridicule without regard to methods. "Everything you have written on anti-religious subjects shows that you are guided by the second point of view," they said. The magazine clearly indicated that Soviet propaganda authorities are becoming increasingly concerned about the spread of religion in Russia -- especially among young people. It also appeared to express growing sensitivity to foreign criticism of anti-religious -- particularly anti-Jewish -- propaganda.

20 Years After War's End

Hitler's Legacy Examined

The German people of today are taking another close look at Adolf Hitler and what he did to their country--and the majority doesn't like what it sees. Germans now realize, 20 years after the end of the war Hitler started, that Hitler was at best a maniacal genius and at worst a cold-blooded killer who wanted to take them all with him.

One of the last statements Hitler made before he killed himself as the Allied troops closed in still has a harsh sound to most Germans: "The German people were not worthy of me."

Marking the 20th anniversary of the end of the European war, West German newspapers and radio and television this week have been re-examining the Nazi leader. He's also the subject of much private conversation.

Not one good word had been said for him, at least in the public discussions.

This is not surprising. No one expects praise for Hitler. The ruins still scattered around Berlin and the presence of Russian and Western Allied troops testify that he was a complete military and political failure.

Old films being shown on television, Hitler's voice rings out again and even his worst enemies must grant that he was a great orator who held audiences and carried them with him.

The awkward, unnatural movement of his arms and hands as he speaks still has a frightening, hypnotic quality.

The films show that he did hypnotize. The faces of German men, women and children lighted up

Scholars Celebrate Birth Of Poet Yeats

More than 100 scholars attending the 5th Annual Conference on the Study of 20th Century Literature at Kellogg Center this weekend will mark the birth of the great Irish poet William B. Yeats.

Speaking at the Yeats centenary will be Thomas J. Flanagan and Thomas F. Parkinson, both of the University of California at Berkeley. Flanagan will present his paper at 10 a.m. today and Parkinson his paper at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Thomas R. Whitaker of Goddard College will speak at 1:30 p.m. and Russel K. Alspack of the U.S. Military Academy will speak at 3:30 p.m. today.

The conference is sponsored by the Department of English, the College of Arts and Letters, the School for Advanced Graduate Studies, the Commonwealth Council of Humanities, and the Continuing Education Service.

Faculty and students interested in attending conference lectures should contact the continuing education service at Kellogg Center.

MSU Works Performed

Compositions by three Michigan State composers will be performed at the 7th Annual Symposium of Contemporary American Music Sunday through Tuesday at the University of Kansas in Lawrence.

The University of Kansas Choir will perform "Three Motets for a capella Choir" by Theodore Johnson, assistant professor of music.

The other MSU faculty contribution is "A Whisp of Time," for string orchestra, by Paul Harder, associate professor of music.

A composition by Gary C. White, MSU graduate assistant in music, "Toccata and Fugue for Carillon" will be performed on the University of Kansas carillon.

Asian Studies Sponsor Lecture

Miss H. L. Nieh, associate professor of literature at National Taiwan University, will lecture at 4 p.m. today on "Today's Literature in Taiwan, China" in 204 International Center.

Miss Nieh is presently consultant at the writers' workshop at the State University of Iowa. Her lecture here is sponsored by the Asian Studies Center.

SNCC Slates

The newly reactivated MSU chapter of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee will sponsor a folk-sing at 8 tonight at St. John's Student Center on MAC Ave.

Honoraries Tap New Members Saturday

One of the oldest traditions of the Michigan State campus will be observed Saturday--the changing of the Beaumont Tower Guard.

At 8 a.m. the members of Mortar Board and Tower Guard will tap the coeds who will take their places in the coming year.

The tapping ceremony, May Morning Sing, will begin with a concert on the Beaumont Tower carillon and a performance by the Men's Glee Club.

Provost Howard R. Neville will open the official proceedings with a short talk.

Following Neville's introduction, each Tower Guard and Mortar Board member will announce her "little sister"--the girl who will take her place next year.

Tower Guard is a service honorary, and each "little sister" will have a long list of activities to fit into her schedule.

She will read to blind students about four hours a week, help at registration and perhaps tutor other students in her major field of interest. She may also serve as hostess for the Alumni Distinguished Scholarship Banquet, J-Day or the Freshman-Principal conference.

Mortar Board is the only nationally recognized senior women's honorary. Membership in this organization is a culmination of three years of active participation in campus life, service to the University and academic achievement. Mortar Board offers two scholarships to outstanding underclass women. The money for these scholarships comes from sales of the Mortar Board calendar.

If it rains, the ceremony will be held in the Music Auditorium.

(continued from page 1) marked for increases in library purchases. "There is almost nothing more important than the library and the faculty," Neville said, in building a better university. However, the library addition is not in the top spot on the building priority list. The proposed $5 million classroom-office building is at the head of the list, with the library and the new administration building close behind.

In seeking $4.2 million for more work on the new $8.9 million power plant and $2 million each to continue work on the forestry and conservation and food science buildings, Hannah said the University would prefer adjusting funds internally in order to make up any unfilled requests to cutting down on the projects.

He said it is "hard to say" whether the most important aspect of the building program is the library, the classroom and administration buildings or the continuation of the three projects now under way. All are urgently needed, he said.

Frat Fetes 4 Alumni Tonight

An auto company vice president, a brigadier general and two nationally known accountants will be given honorary membership in Beta Alpha Psi, national honorary accounting fraternity here tonight.

The occasion is the ninth annual alumni banquet of the Department of Accounting and Financial Administration in the MSU graduate school of business. It will be in the Union.

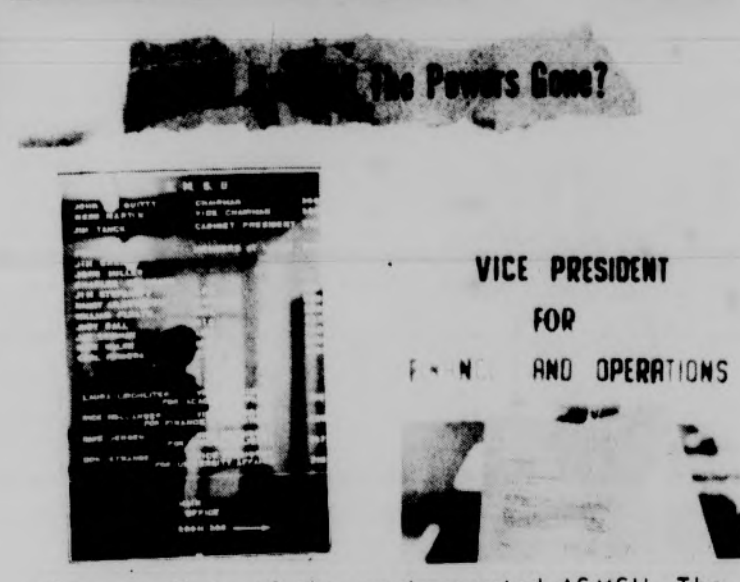

Some 300 students and alumni are expected for the event which is held to honor accounting students who have made outstanding academic records.

A total of 60 graduate and undergraduate students will be initiated into Beta Alpha Psi. In addition, eight other students who have been awarded fellowships and scholarships will be honored.

The four executives who have been selected for honorary membership are: Erwin Graham, vice president and controller of Chrysler Corp.; Brig. Gen. Wendell E. Carter, controller of the Systems Command of the U.S. Air Force and former assistant director of the Air Force Budget; Frank Weston, partner of the Arthur Young and Co., an international accounting firm, and member of the accounting principles board; and Robert Wisner, a partner in the international accounting firm of Touche, Ross, Bailey and Smart of Detroit.

ASMSU Takeover Keys Office, Facility Switches

Student government re-arranged affairs last Friday in less time than a military coup might have used for a takeover.

Members of the new Associated Students of MSU spent 34 hours, from noon last Friday until 10 p.m. Saturday, re-arranging desks and offices for the new set-up.

With integration of living unit governing groups into the structure, the Panhellenic Council, Associated Women Students (AWS) and Women's Inter-Residence Hall Council (WIC) moved into the student government wing on the third floor of Student Services.

The Organizations Bureau and Student Services department were moved to the Student Services basement so all their activities could be contained in larger rooms.

"We were already operating the silk-screening and distribution services out of the basement rooms, so it seemed more logical to put all the student services in one room," said Webb Martin, Flint junior and student board vice - chairman, who directed the move.

The administration of small loans to students has been moved to the Comptroller's Office, now in 334 Student Services.

Student board members have moved into the suite of rooms formerly used for meetings, the Campus United Nations and the National Student Association. Members - at - large will have office hours each afternoon.

Along with several new telephones, an intercom system using short telephone numbers will connect the offices.

office has been changed to 308 Student Services.

Casino Night

A Casino night, "Millionaire Dance," will be at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in 21 Union. It is the first social function for Spartan Helot members and their dates.

Everyone will be given $1 million in game money to participate in such things as black jack, poker, casino, craps and roulette.

There will be a disc jockey for dance music.

At the end of the evening, students with game money left will be able to bid for floor prizes.

At least one member of each couple must have a Spartan Helot I.D. card to attend. The admission charge will be 25 cents.

Marine Guard Reinforced

Dominican Exodus Begins

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic - Reinforced U.S. Marine units supervised the withdrawal of Americans to ships off shore Thursday from Santo Domingo, torn by civil war.

The 400 Marines who came ashore Wednesday were reinforced by 100 others who landed at the polo field next to the Hotel Embajador, evacuation point on the city's outskirts.

Most of the Marines guarded the evacuation of Americans through the port of Haina, 12 miles from Santo Domingo. But 100 of them were assigned to duty at the U.S. Embassy in the capital.

There are about 2,000 Americans remaining in the Dominican Republic. None has been hurt so far in the fighting that may have taken a toll of 400 lives.

Fighting seemed to die down in the capital after the forces of Brig. Gen. Elias Wessin Y Wessin captured the presidential palace. The palace was wrested from armed civilians and soldiers who executed the coup that overthrew the U.S.-backed civilian junta Sunday.

Wessin proclaimed victory over the coup forces, who want to return ex-President Juan Bosch from his exile in Puerto Rico.

But the pro-Bosch radio in Santo Domingo went back on the air after a day of silence and declared morale among the Bosch forces still is high.

Col. Francisco Caamano Dero, commanding pro-Bosch forces in the city, said two of Wessin's tanks were disabled and four others that entered the city were captured. There was no confirmation.

At the presidential palace, Lt. Col. Jose Manuel Perez Aponte was in command. He said a mob looted the palace Wednesday of silverware, rugs and china and his soldiers drove out the looters.

The palace was not much damaged. No shells from Tuesday's naval bombardment struck it, and most of the damage appeared to be from strafing attacks by Wessin's air force.

Perez said Wessin's forces were not mopping up the last of the pro-Bosch rebels.

However, shooting could be heard in the direction of Ozama fortress, a police stronghold. The police there are behind Wessin.

Students may visit between 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. daily.

Vet Wives Sponsoring Pet Clinic

Not since "Lady and the Tramp" have animals enjoyed such equality.

The Vet Wives are treating all on an equal basis at their pet clinic and show, open to all kinds of pets of all children.

Helping youngsters understand pet obedience and community pet laws and how to groom and take care of their pets is the purpose of the clinic in Giltner Hall auditorium from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday.

The showing will be May 8 at 10 a.m. in the Livestock Pavilion.

Animals will be grouped into categories and judged not according to breed but on obedience, grooming and other hints taught at the clinic. Youngsters will be asked what they learned at the clinic.

Mrs. Gordon Thomas, wife of the East Lansing mayor, will award grand champion and reserve champion ribbons to the two winners of each group.

Hamtramck School Sit-In Continues

HAMTRAMCK - A teachers' sit-in demonstration kept Hamtramck's six public schools closed for the fourth day Thursday as negotiations over a salary dispute continued.

Talks between representatives of the school board and Local 1052 of the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) were resumed after the union's bargaining committee rejected the latest wage offer.

Meanwhile, a ruling was awaited from Circuit Judge John Swainson on a board request for a restraining order to force the teachers to return to their jobs.

Resumption of the bargaining was worked out by Lynn Bartlett, state superintendent of public instruction, who got both sides to sit down together despite an earlier board resolution not to negotiate while the teachers remained out.

Pickets

for years," said a neighborhood couple about Mrs. Gibson. "She's a very nice lady."

"I think she has her rights to rent her rooms to whomsoever she chooses," one man said.

"I don't think this is the way to solve the problem at all," he said. "I don't think you can coerce people to change their hearts and minds."

He said he would refuse to rent to Negroes too.

"Anywhere the colored people move in, the property values go down," he said. "Even if they are just renting."

Organizations participating in the picketing were Canterbury Club, Committee for Student Rights, East Lansing Action Committee and Friends of SNCC, (Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee).

Other participating organizations were the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, MSU May 2 Committee and the MSU Socialists Club.

A few faculty members also marched with the pickets.

A HISTORY LESSON THAT ISN'T DRY

It all started with cold cream; way back in 150 A.D., Galen, a Greek physician, first thought it up.

Next, manufactured soap came along. That happened in England, in 1641.

Then, Eureka! Camay put them together in 1953. Gentle soap, plus moisture-rich cold cream. And Camay has been improving that blend ever since.

No wonder washing with Camay leaves skin moist and soft.

You say your skin's a bit dry? Try Camay. You may make a little history yourself.

Save those Camay wrappers! Win big prizes!
