Teach-In Keys Viet Policy Criticisms

NEW YORK (AP)—"I voted for Johnson and I'm sorry I did." "The administration is hiding under excuses." "It showed me how much more complicated the situation is." These were some of the comments by students and teachers around the country who listened Saturday to a 1 1/2 hour national teach-in debate on U.S. foreign policy.

Ford Raps Johnson's Viet Critics

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., said Sunday that placard-carrying critics of President Johnson's course in Viet Nam may be inviting a Communist miscalculation on American soil.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., appearing via Ford on a taped television-radio program, said he thinks President Johnson is following the proper pattern of action in both Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic. He added, in reference to the latter:

A number of college listeners criticized McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's adviser on national security, for cancelling his scheduled appearance. Bundy sent word at the last minute that "other duties" would prevent him from taking part. Douglas Ireland, student coordinator at Goddard College, Plainfield, Vt., where 200 students from eight colleges assembled, said:

"Bundy's cancellation clearly represents the administration's refusal to confront openly and frankly the critics of its policy. The administration is hiding under excuses that it creates to prevent open consideration of American policy." Dennis Oliver, 23, of Urbana, Ill., a graduate student in English at the University of Illinois, commented:

"The fact that Bundy didn't show up is typical of the administration's frivolous conduct of the whole situation. I voted for Johnson and I'm sorry I did. Since we're here (in South Viet Nam) we should try to win, but not by bombing Hanoi." His wife, Carol, of Decorah, Iowa, also 23 and a graduate student, said she wasn't swayed by any of the arguments presented in the teach-in.

"We're not in Viet Nam to help the Vietnamese people; we're there to enhance our own world position and until we admit it we won't win," she said. At Indiana University, where some 200 teachers and students heard the debate, Ruth Harriell, 18, a freshman from Bloomington, Ind., said "it showed me how much more complicated the situation is."

Michigan Week MONDAY--Our Government Day

AGRICULTURAL AMBASSADORS--Two MSU coeds, Michigan Cherry Queen Elaine J. Sanford and Michigan Bean Queen Francine A. Weaver, left Saturday with Michigan Apple Queen Diana Dwan to promote Michigan's leading agricultural products.

Coed Queens Touring West

Two Michigan State coeds are in Los Angeles today to publicize Michigan agricultural products and highlight Michigan Week, which began Sunday.

The trio then left Chicago for Tucson, Ariz., where they were guests of the Michigan Society of Tucson at a picnic Sunday.

The queens are scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles at 7:55 a.m. today. At 10 a.m. they will appear on Marineland of the Pacific TV show press conference. "Porpoise to Porpoise."

At 2:30 p.m. they will pose for press pictures at the Los Angeles Farmers Market.

Tuesday the queens will be on the Truth or Consequences television show to be shown here May 28. They will also have an interview with the Los Angeles Times food editor.

Wednesday a press interview with Mayor Sam Yorty is scheduled. The party will then leave for San Francisco where they

Specialists To Probe Bien Hoa Base Blasts

BIEN HOA, Viet Nam (AP)—A special team of U.S. Air Force investigators was flying here from Washington Sunday to probe the devastating series of bomb explosions which ripped this vital U.S.-Vietnamese air base, killing more than a score of Americans.

Force inspector general, immediately after hearing of the blast. They were expected here today. At least 21 American airmen were dead, 95 wounded, and 40 aircraft destroyed or damaged. One Vietnamese was known dead and seven injured.

Although the huge base 12 miles north of Saigon is a prime Viet Cong target, Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Moore, commander of U.S. Air Force operations in Viet Nam and Thailand, said the disaster was "definitely accidental."

Investigation. A special team was expected to continue the probe. U.S. officials said the bomb that went off had been loaded aboard a B57 jet bomber for an attack against the Communist guerrillas.

Disaster operations were still in progress when an ammunition dump exploded at 11 a.m. No new casualties resulted.

Poll Tax Ban Said Possible

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite President Johnson's cohesiveness, Congress may well enact an outright ban on poll taxes as a state voting requirement.

House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., has firmly endorsed the ban. So far, Johnson has taken the counsel of Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, who questions the constitutionality of a statute outlawing poll-tax requirements.

E. Lansing City Hall Dedicated

Dedication ceremonies officially opened East Lansing's new City Hall Saturday. Mayor Gordon L. Thomas spoke at ceremonies dedicating the two-story building located at 400 Abbott Road. He said the new City Hall "is symbolic of the dynamic growth of East Lansing, of the progressive spirit of its citizens, and their willingness to solve civic problems along with city officials."

10,000 Dead In Pakistan

South Bend Teachers Still Out On Strike

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Striking South Bend teachers who have been away from classrooms four school days in a salary dispute with the school board are "determined as ever" and holding out for "something to break."

They said over the weekend they had not received notes of dismissal, reportedly mailed Saturday. George T. Bull, President of the local American Federation of Teachers, said support was gaining rapidly for the 360 union teachers whose boycott is nearing a week's run.

number had been changed and, at his request, the new number was not available. However, he had reported earlier dismissals had been expected to be mailed to the striking teachers Saturday.

The teachers want a starting base pay of $5,400 instead of the $5,200 approved by the school board. John L. Eaton, a sixth grade teacher at Brown school, said "I hope my children want me back, and I want to go back, but if this doesn't go through, I don't want to stay in the community."

'Adam To Atom' Best Greek Float

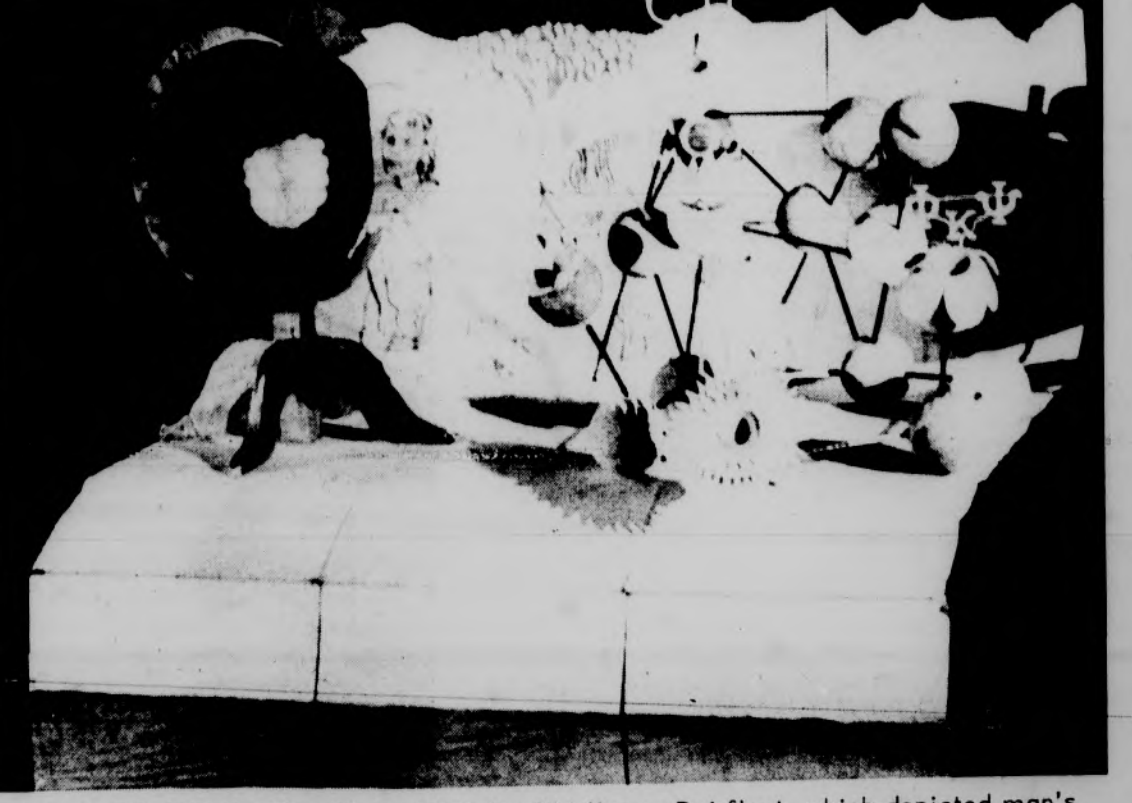

"De Losers of Grandeur," were not de losers, but de winners of grandeur Saturday night at MSU's 43rd Water Carnival. The winning Greek houses and residence halls and the new members of Excaliber were announced at the Carnival.

Winning floats in the Greek division were: 1. Alpha Xi Delta and Phi Kappa Psi, "Adam to Atom" 2. Alpha Delta Pi and Evans Scholars, "Mister Lucky Goes to MSU" 3. Delta Tau Delta and Kappa Alpha Theta, "Horse to Horsepower"

Winning floats in the residence hall division were: 1. Mayo and West Shaw, "C.B.S." 2. East and West McDonel, "Cure-all" 3. East and West Fee, "Elegy of Anne Boleyn"

The first place float in the Greek division illustrated a cycle from the beginning of time with Adam to the present time and the atom showing the circle that man lives on.

The Mayo and West Shaw float, "Campus Bus Service," otherwise known as "C.B.S.," was a satire on MSU's bus service. The dialogue was presented to the music of the "M.T.A." and illustrated the plight of a frustrated student on the bus system.

ADAM TO ATOM--The Alpha Xi Delta-Phi Kappa Psi float, which depicted man's progress from the apple Adam ate to the atoms currently forming the basis for powerful nuclear weapons, was the first place winner in the fraternity-sorority division.

'LEAVE THE DRIVING TO US'--This float, depicting the plight of a poor student who was shoved to the back of a campus bus and was unable to get off won a first place trophy for Mayo and West Shaw Halls in last weekend's Water Carnival.

Democracy In Action

Compromise, the lifeblood of democracy, will have to work in East Lansing if a civil rights crisis is to be averted.

There can be no question about the "rightness" of the issue. Negroes and other non-whites have consistently encountered humiliating discrimination when they have attempted to buy or rent homes in East Lansing.

The fact that few non-whites attempt to purchase houses here is irrelevant to the central issue. East Lansing's reputation as a "closed" town undoubtedly discourages many financially qualified Negroes from trying to live here.

James O. Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), Thursday said he will lend "the full strength of CORE" to student demonstrations aimed at persuading the East Lansing City Council to pass an open occupancy ordinance.

But the City Council has no power to pass such an ordinance under present Michigan law. This was made clear at the teach-in by a Lansing representative to the Civil Rights Commission, Don Holtrop.

Ordinance Unconstitutional?

State Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has issued a formal opinion which states that under the present Michigan constitution, municipalities do not have the power to pass laws relating to civil rights.

Kelley's opinion is now being tested in the courts in regard to a fair housing ordinance in Ann Arbor.

It is our belief that if Kelley's ruling is not overturned by the State Supreme Court, the constitution should be amended to specifically give municipalities power to pass civil rights laws.

However, as the law now stands, East Lansing cannot pass an open occupancy ordinance with legal validity.

The central question then seems to be: is the East Lansing City government doing all it can to eliminate housing discrimination?

We do not believe that it is.

It might be possible, for example, for the city to publicize the names of realtors or homeowners who have been found guilty of racial or religious discrimination after a formal investigation by the Human Relations Commission.

Robert L. Green, assistant professor of education, pointed out that the city requires various health and sanitation qualifications before it grants a rental license to homeowners. Why couldn't the city make non-discrimination on the basis of race or religion another qualification for a rental license?

The East Lansing City Council has gone on record as being in favor of "equal opportunity for persons of all races" to live in the city.

But a mere statement of intent is not enough. It must be backed up by action.

If the City Council hopes to avert mass demonstrations here, it will have to chart a much firmer course of action in regard to open occupancy.

We earnestly hope that a compromise can be reached between the student groups which are planning demonstrations and the City Council.

It is not comforting to face the prospect of the kind of action the rights groups seem to be planning.

But it is less comforting to face the prospect of another year or two or ten of discriminatory sales and rentals.

Student Non-Violation

If attempts at compromise fail, we urge the students not to violate any civil laws in their demonstrations. A sit-in at City Hall is not illegal. Blocking entrances and exits is. Picketing is not illegal. Lying across the street and blocking traffic is.

The East Lansing police will not arrest any students for exercising their right of peaceful assembly. They will undoubtedly arrest students if they break the law.

Mass arrests will not add luster to the cause of civil rights in the eyes of the people of East Lansing. The headlines will read "Students Carted Off to Jail" rather than "Students Demonstrate for Fair Housing."

The city could have a difficult time maintaining its "cool" against an onslaught of nonviolence, the first action of this sort ever threatened here. National publicity would almost surely result, and East Lansing would be put on the spot.

This seems to be what the groups want, and the city has done little lately to give them reason to back down.

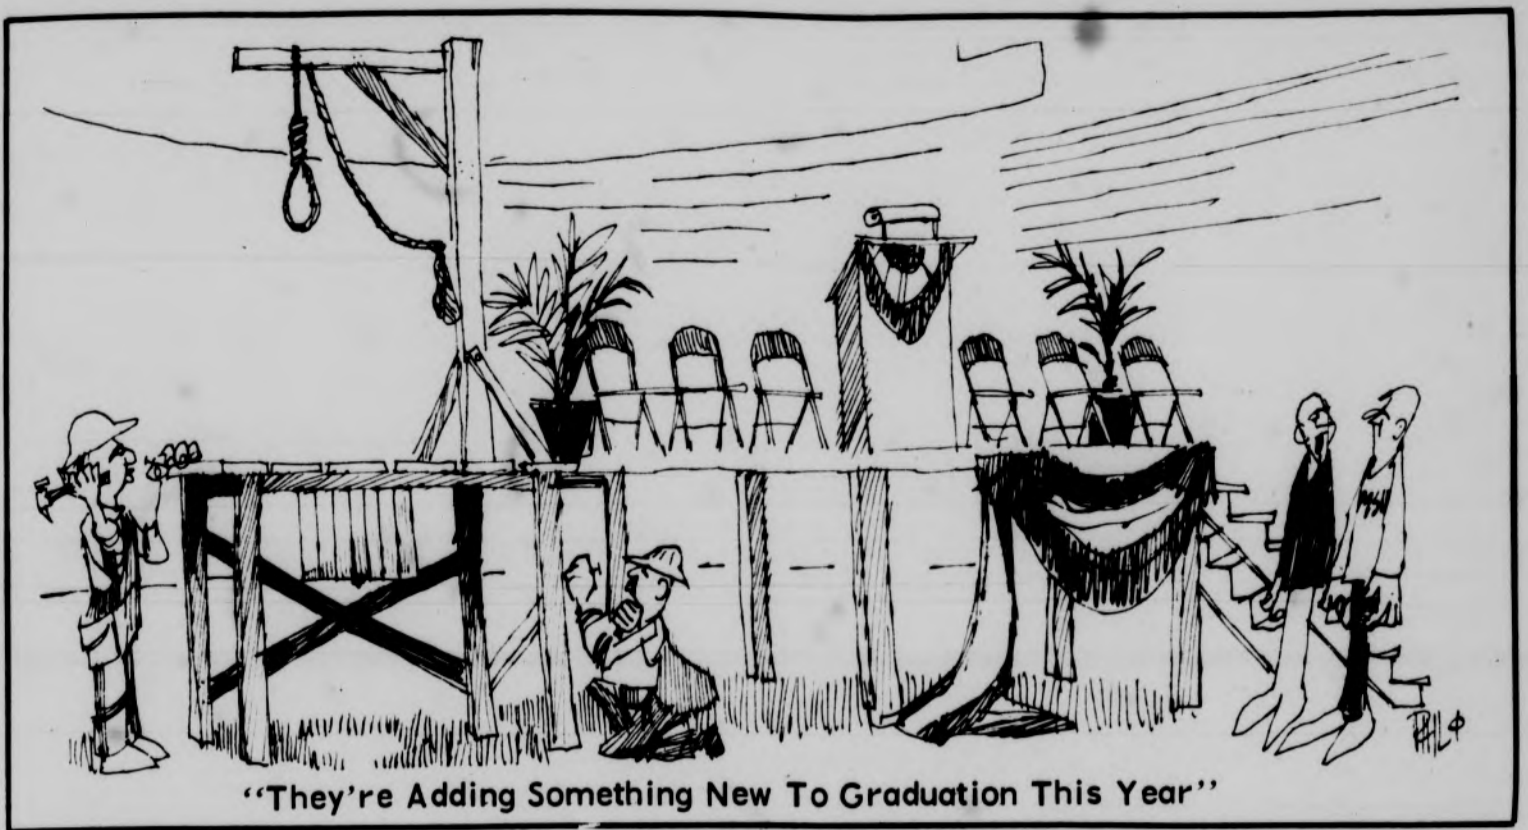

The Ruling Groups

Farmer's Thursday afternoon speech accused the Lansing Board of Realtors of playing the major role in maintaining segregation here. But he also blamed the ruling groups of the city and the University for neglecting the issue for too long.

Robert L. Green, assistant professor of education and Farmer's East Lansing host, said Thursday night:

"The power structure of this community has a unique opportunity to eliminate the kind of prejudice and bias that humiliates students and faculty members."

Green knows that the students he has pledged to follow into jail if necessary know this. They are waiting for the city to take its stand, and are prepared to act if it does not.

Campus Summary To Friend And Foe Alike

Dichotomy

By Michael Kindman

The variety of viewpoints brought out in last Thursday's civil rights open hearing on campus accentuated, perhaps for the first time here, the great dichotomy between the moderate and the extreme position on civil rights.

Tonight's confrontation between the campus activists and the city government should provide further evidence that there is a broad area of disagreement.

I should state early that I tend to favor the "extreme" position as I have labeled it above. It is unfortunate that it is "extreme" to favor freedom now and to hope to look at Negroes and all other men, white or non-white, as the same. Yet, this is the case.

The students who shouted and occasionally jeered and rose to sing "We Shall Overcome" Thursday night were the extremists. East Lansing is a city of moderates, and sometimes worse.

Robert L. Green, assistant professor of education, began his speech at the teach-in:

"I find it difficult to understand why there is so much dissension in regard to open occupancy.

"There is no problem here. East Lansing is an open community. There are five Negro homeowners here.

"Any qualified Negro, any well-meaning Negro can buy a home in East Lansing."

Coming from Green, MSU's leading civil rights fighter, this sounds odd. Green is an extremist. Coming from some other types of extremists this would sound strange and probably immoral, but not odd. That is their position and they stick to it.

There is, however, a wide range of moderate opinion between these two positions, and it was the juxtaposition of this range of opinion with the "extremist" view that made the teach-in so enlightening. The moderates were represented in various ways by Democrats and Republicans, professionals and laymen, and particularly by Mrs. Mary Sharp, the newly-elected pro-civil rights member of the East Lansing City Council.

Mrs. Sharp came under attack from the audience not because the students disagreed with her more than with the others, but because she almost agreed with them, but not quite...

For the "extremists" the person who says Negroes are all right and we should take steps to insure them equal rights is shirking his responsibilities not much less than is the outright bigot.

It is not up to the whites to concede the equality of the Negro; it is up to the whites to stop blocking the way to this equality. Without realizing it—and this is the sad part of what happened Thursday to Mrs. Sharp—the "moderates" are allowing discrimination to continue and prejudice to remain a fact merely by calling for fact-finding and negotiations and moderation in a situation where the usefulness of these things has worn out.

Anyone who opens his eyes in East Lansing knows the facts of discrimination here; the only fact that is relevant now is that something must be done to combat discrimination, and it doesn't matter whether it is an ordinance, a statement, a hearing system or what.

Mrs. Sharp lost esteem in the eyes of the audience Thursday when in the light of this single fact and the consequent moral imperative she denied the need of action now. She said the temper of the community has changed and is changing. It is to be commended for this.

But Negroes still lack homes, and they do not want to wait for 30,000 attitudes to change before they find homes.

The "extremists," white or Negro, don't want to wait for complete integration to be brought about quietly. They lack that patience. It is easy neither to be a Negro nor to be the minority dissenter. These are people who want to get in the last licks, because they know they are right.

When the moderates agree not only that they are right in their understanding of discrimination but also in their awareness that the problem must be brought out in the open and treated right away, then there will no longer be the agonizing dichotomy.

But for now, from the "extremist" point of view the moderates, all of them, are no more dynamic in the movement than are the people who have not yet even admitted that Negroes deserve consideration as people.

Consensus

By Susan Filson

Random observations about Thursday's civil rights teach-in and the demonstrations which are planned this week...

The teach-in was extremely well-planned and well-run. The student committee sponsoring the event had obviously made an intensive effort to present a wide variety of viewpoints on the problem of housing discrimination in East Lansing. The whole affair stood in favorable contrast to the one-sided Viet Nam teach-in several weeks ago...

The only jarring note in the evening was the constant heckling of Mrs. Mary P. Sharp, a newly-elected member of the East Lansing City Council. A few boorish students had their own smart-aleck replies for every comment Mrs. Sharp made from the podium. Mrs. Sharp, a lady with a fair amount of guts, handled herself extremely well—as usual. It is always difficult to understand why some persons are in favor of free speech only insofar as it does not clash with their own ideas, or maybe their mothers never told them that it isn't polite to interrupt...

If national civil rights leaders aren't after Robert L. Green to play an important part in their organizations, they must be deaf, blind and dumb. Green, an assistant professor of education, is one of the most forceful, articulate, dynamic spokesmen for the cause of civil rights I have ever seen. And most of the major leaders of the civil rights movement have been on this campus during the past three years.

Green made a remark at the teach-in which provided a poignant illustration of the racial sickness which permeates our society. He said, "When a Negro student comes in and tells me he can't find a place to live, I don't even feel like teaching the next day, knowing that is happening here." Suddenly, I didn't feel very much like studying...

Through it all, several students kept up their "sidewalk surfing" on their skateboards near Beaumont Tower. If you don't wanna think, you've gotta do something...

I seem to change my mind about the Committee for Student Rights every week, but it is a puzzling group. In observing preparations for civil rights demonstrations this week, I have concluded that some CSR members actually want to get arrested.

I get the feeling that they want to "test" the University to see if it will suspend students who are arrested in a civil rights demonstration. Sorry, boys and girls. The University does not automatically suspend students for arrests, even if they are charged with a felony. No disciplinary action would be taken against students involved in a civil rights demonstration unless they had actually threatened the lives and limbs of others.

The campus NAACP members who will participate in these demonstrations are deeply committed to ending housing discrimination in East Lansing. CSR may be planning to use these demonstrations to advance its own influence on the campus.

A LETTER

To the Editor

I find it ironic that the business of the University, i.e., teaching, should be halted for a full day to allow students to pre-enroll for courses, especially since so many of them will have to do it all over again anyway.

This Has Nothing To Do With That

The Spring Of Our Discontent

By DAVE HANSON

A thoughtful proposal has been made to merge MSU tradition with the new and disquieting spirit of today's student body.

Some time this term, plans are still in the formative stage, students at MSU can look forward to the 1965 Panty Raid for Peace in Viet Nam.

This novel approach to campus demonstrations takes the best of both the old and new and provides an outlet for pent-up emotions of students with wide ranges of interest.

Picketing and discussion, the new, have been criticized by some students because, even though they serve to bring attention to a cause, they do not do enough for the individual participant.

A good old-fashioned panty-raid, on the other hand, has the element of illegality and the thrill of being chased by the cops that makes the normal student feel alive.

Combining the two into one mass demonstration will serve to unite the student body and make all feel a part of what is going on at campuses around the country.

The average, unconcerned student, fated to spend his nights studying or marking time at the Gables, feels left out.

He knows that he should be a part of what is going on at school but he can find no cause worth getting in on.

He can't see demonstrating for Viet Nam or the library because those sorts of things are not within his sphere of interest. They are not really important.

But this new proposal, modest but sufficient, will make the student of MSU feel that he is part of the national scene. He will be able to send clippings home to Mom and say "we" are doing something.

If the demonstration works out as planned, one can visualize this sort of thing spreading to Berkeley, Ann Arbor and even to Harvard.

Where are the Mario Savio's of the movement to come from? There must be many who would take up the pennant and charge ahead for this bold new plan.

Recruiting posters are now being circulated in the dorms and off-campus watering spots.

A new spirit will pervade our campuses. Discontent spiced with fun.

Penn People Dislike LBJ Policy

Scott

WASHINGTON--Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Sunday his constituent mail is running heavily against his support of the Johnson administration's policies in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

Scott, appearing on a weekly television show, said "I think he's right in Santo Domingo, although my mail is running against my policy or against my support of the President's policy in Viet Nam."

He added that his conversations with the voters have been running against the President's policy in the Dominican.

Flooding In Texas

TEMPLE, Tex.--Violent spring weather caused serious flooding in Central Texas and flash floods in parts of South Dakota Sunday. The floods in Texas in the Killeen and Belton sections flooded scores of homes, and swirling waters in South Dakota damaged bridges, utility lines, railroads, streets and commercial and residential properties. Most of the South Dakota damage was in Deadwood and Spearfish.

Gromyko-Murville Confer

VIENNA, Austria--Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko sat down for two hours with Foreign Minister Maurice Couve De Murville of France Sunday and talked about the war in Viet Nam. Gromyko refused to discuss the same topic with Secretary of State Dean Rusk Saturday.

The meeting took place after Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart departed for home. The four ministers came here for the 10th anniversary of Austria's postwar independence and there had been hopes Gromyko and Rusk could discuss prospects for a Viet Nam settlement.

Evidence Shows Communist Influence

WASHINGTON--Averell Harriman said Sunday the United States has "good solid information" of much more Communist involvement in the Dominican revolution than it has made public.

"Oh yes, there's further evidence....," he said. "We can't give up all our information.... this will all come out in due course."

Harriman, former undersecretary of state and now an ambassador at large, said President Johnson acted on the judgment of a number of people and had information from a number of sources of the Communist influence when he ordered in American Marines.

Makarios Rejects Settlement

NICOSIA, Cyprus--President Archbishop Makarios Sunday rejected any settlement of the Cyprus crisis that would provide for a Turkish base to be established on the island.

Speaking at Larnaca, in southeast Cyprus, the Greek Cypriot leader said:

"There is a lot of talk about backstage moves to close the Cyprus issue with territorial exchanges to Turkey. No power can close the Cyprus issue. We shall keep it open and never close it under conditions dictated by others until we achieve genuine enosis (Cyprus' union with Greece) without exchanges."

Russia May Move To Halt Berlin Parliament

MOSCOW--The Kremlin has hinted in a new diplomatic note that the Soviets may move to prevent the West German parliament from meeting again in West Berlin.

It was disclosed Sunday that the Foreign Ministry told the United States in a note delivered here Friday that "the Soviet government has never assumed a commitment to guarantee free access into West Berlin for revenge-hungry militarists of the federal republic who have nothing to do with the city."

Council Attitude Toward A-Bomb Changing

VATICAN CITY--A reported change of attitude in a Vatican Ecumenical Council document dealing with the use of nuclear weapons was seen Sunday as a victory for Roman Catholic Bishops from the United States and Britain.

Vatican sources said the change, contained in the Council's draft document on modern world problems, states that a nation may be forced to stockpile and use nuclear weapons to insure its own survival.

This represents a drastic shift in emphasis. The previous text, debated at last year's council session, urged that nuclear weapons be "utterly destroyed and banned."

Lambda Chi Alpha Junior 500 Set For 18th Annual Running

This year's 18th annual Lambda Chi Alpha Junior 500 will be the biggest ever, with 75 entrants from sororities, fraternities and on-and-off-campus living units scheduled to compete in the race around West Circle Drive on Saturday.

The event will be preceded by a parade through East Lansing led by the official starting car for the Indianapolis 500 and including the Junior 500 queen, her court and campus queens from living units entered in the race.

The 1965 500 queen is Cinda Scandling, Lansing freshman.

The Junior 500 was originated by Lambda Chi Alpha in 1948 and is a small-scale version of the Indianapolis 500. The idea has since spread to other Lambda Chi chapters across the country.

Each living unit is allowed to enter a pushcart built to certain specifications and manned by a driver and four pushers. Each man runs for a little more than a quarter-mile.

Omega Phi Psi won the 1964 500 with a time of 2:58.7. Alpha Tau Omega was second and Delta Tau Delta came in third.

This year's starter will be Sam Williams, MSU Class of '68 and currently defensive end for the Detroit Lions football team.

Past starters have included former Gov. G. Mennen Williams; Pete DePaulo, the first man to exceed 100 miles per hour in the Indianapolis 500; MSU Athletic Director Clarence (Biggie) Munn; and Duffy Daugherty, MSU football coach.

Indian Five-Year Plan Stresses Output, Justice

An improved standard of living for the masses and social justice are the main goals of India's fourth five-year plan, S. K. R. Bhandari said Thursday.

Bhandari, who attended Harvard for one year, is chairman of the Department of Commerce of Banaras Hindu University and director of India's relations research project.

"There has to be a planned effort to reduce India's dependence on foreign countries in the coming five-year plan. India must increase its national output, provide economic and social justice for all of India, and become self-supporting," Bhandari said.

A 1961 census showed that India's rate of growth of population was 2 per cent, and it will be 2.3 or 2.4 per cent during the fourth plan.

"This increase is to be admired, because it has been brought about by the drop in the death rate. Therefore, one cannot blame the country for this increase in birth rate," Bhandari said.

He said that the past three plans have set up many new machine building, oil, chemical and steel plants.

"Because the total number of unemployed persons has not gone down, this is going to have to play its part in the fourth plan," he said.

Bhandari suggested that there is a definite need for adopting a different administrative approach, and that the bureaucracy in India has to change or the plans are bound to fall behind.

He indicated that there has been no opposition from the Hindu people to the plans. "They have been accepted, and now they have to be put to work," he said. "If the past is any sign, the increase in industrial capacity will be far greater than it has ever been before," he said.

Managing Program For Hospitals Planned

The nation's only undergraduate program in hospital administration will be established this fall at Michigan State.

The program will be sponsored by a $99,480 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek.

The program will be on an experimental basis in Michigan State's School of Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management.

It will emphasize administrative training on the departmental levels, such as dietary service, accounting, admitting, house-keeping and laundry.

"There is a real need to create what we call the 'middle-management' positions," says Henry Ogden Barbour, HRI School director. "Hospitals and other health-care facilities have surpassed hotels and motels in number of employees. This alone indicates a need for trained, secondary-level administrators."

Michigan State also plans to initiate a series of continuing education programs related to hospital management. These programs will be designed for individuals whose basic training has been in a profession or in a highly technical area, and who have not had the benefit of formal management training.

An authority in the hospital administration field will be selected by MSU to head the new program.

Latin America Rise To Extract High Cost

In the next decades the high rate of urbanization in Latin America will extract a high cost, both human and financial, according to Wilbert E. Moore, president-elect of the American Sociological Association.

Moore, speaking in the Con-Con room of the International Center Thursday evening, stated that there is an ecological structure to the traditional Latin American city.

"The central city is organized around a central plaza. The plaza is surrounded by the homes of the wealthy. But now, the city offers a new sight, the urban slum," Moore said.

The economic problem of over-urbanization is that people are pouring into the city faster than they can be absorbed.

"Countries embarked on programs of economic modernization lack capital and trained manpower. Urban problems are multiplied because money can't be used for long term investment in services for growing urbanization," Moore said.

"There is a high potential for mob action, temporary violence. There is a tendency for these people to be manipulated by leaders of both the right and the left," Moore said.

The revolutionary potential is low in urban slums because slum inhabitants have very low political expectations.

Moore was addressing a colloquium on Latin America sponsored by the MSU Latin American Studies Center.

Murder Rate Down, Says FBI

WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI crime statisticians have compiled some fascinating facts and figures about murder. They contradict many popular beliefs. For example, nearly everyone "knows" that the murder rate has gone up sharply in U.S. cities in recent years. But FBI figures show just the opposite. The murder rate has declined by 40 per cent since the 1930's.

What has gone up 50 per cent is the serious assault rate. FBI analysts conclude that the lower murder rate may be the result of quicker and better medical care. "The victim remains an assault statistic rather than becoming a murder statistic," says an FBI official.

The FBI figures also shed light on such interesting questions as where, when, by whom and by what you're most likely to be murdered.

If you live in a city of more than 250,000, you're twice as likely to become a murder victim as a person who lives in a rural area, small town or suburb.

Over-all, summer is the worst season for murder. But the peak monthly rate almost invariably occurs in December.

This may have something to do with the approach of Christmas which leads to an unusually large number of family rows and hold-ups.

Only about 12 per cent of all deliberate killings are so-called "felony murders"—that is, those committed by robbers, sex offenders or other felons. The vast majority of killings take place as a result of personal animosity between people who are relatives or acquaintances.

Nearly a third of all willful homicides take place within a family unit. Husbands kill wives slightly more often than wives kill husbands.

In killings outside the family, lovers' quarrels are involved in 17 per cent, "drinking situations" in 14 per cent, and revenge is the motive in 4 per cent.

500 Persons Hear Rights Discussion

About 500 persons Thursday night heard talks on various aspects of the civil rights problem in East Lansing and then cheered plans for an open occupancy campaign here.

Robert L. Green, assistant professor of education, and James O. Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) pledged their support of the campaign expected to begin at tonight's City Council meeting.

Green and Farmer spoke at an open hearing on civil rights held near the Music Building.

Other speakers were Don Holthrop, a Lansing representative of the state Civil Rights Commission; Zolton Ferency, state Democratic chairman; Charles Orlebeke, an aide to Gov. George W. Romney; state Rep. James Starr, D-Lansing; and Mrs. Mary P. Sharp, newly elected member of the East Lansing City Council.

Several University administrators and representatives of the Lansing Board of Realtors declined to participate. The realtors sent a statement which was read to the crowd.

Arriving late from another date with Farmer in Lansing, Green challenged the University to extend its moral leadership into the area of open occupancy.

He mentioned several cases of discrimination in East Lansing housing, and said, "The power structure of this community has a unique opportunity to eliminate the kind of prejudice and bias that humiliates Negro students and Negro faculty members."

Green introduced Farmer, who received a standing welcome. Farmer said, "I am glad that the ferment of the civil rights movement has reached East Lansing."

He said college students have been the leaders in nearly every step of the nationwide movement. "There is no room in America for a town of exclusion," Farmer said. He repeated his pledge to return to East Lansing if student arrests result from the campaign here.

Mrs. Sharp, who has gone on record as favoring open occupancy but not an ordinance to enforce it, was taunted by some members of the audience as she explained her views.

She said continued pressure may help bring open occupancy, but violence or threats of violence could "set the cause of civil rights in East Lansing far back."

2 Weekend Visitors Stricken

Thieves Grab Projector

A movie projector and three fans were removed from University buildings over the weekend.

The projector, valued at $450, was taken from 110 Anthony. One fan worth $30 was removed from the third floor of Erickson and two fans valued at $37 were taken from the Erickson Kiva.

Campus police are investigating a hit-and-run accident near Brody Sunday morning. A car owned by Jerry Barnes, Fenton sophomore, was struck on the left rear fender. Officers estimated the damage to be slight.

University police took two campus visitors to area hospitals over the weekend.

Saturday night they took Luke Shannon, 19206 Woodlawn, Lansing, to St. Lawrence with an ulcer attack. He was stricken while attending Water Carnival.

Elmo Seibert, 1208 Bryse, Grosse Pointe, was taken to Sparrow from Williams Hall with a heart attack.

Friday morning an MSU laundry truck and a car driven by James D. Sanderson, Peoria, Ill., junior, collided near Williams Hall. The truck was attempting to back into a loading zone when the car struck the truck's bumper.

There was no damage to the truck. Sanderson's car was damaged slightly.
