MSU Offers 'Mutual Problems' Talks

By JIM STERBA
Administration Writer

President John A. Hannah said Tuesday that the University is willing to meet with East Lansing city officials to discuss mutual civil rights problems if the city is willing.

"It has been the University's long-standing policy to talk over problems of mutual concern with the City of East Lansing," he said.

"We are all members of a University community, and as members, we should all have an opportunity to buy, rent or live wherever we choose," he said.

Earlier, East Lansing Mayor Gordon L. Thomas said civil rights demonstrations would have no effect on the City Council's effort to end discrimination.

"I do not think the demonstrations will retard or speed up our efforts," he said.

Thomas made the statement at 1:45 a.m. Tuesday, after about 30 East Lansing and Lansing policemen spent over an hour carrying 70 demonstrators out of City Hall.

The demonstrators, mostly MSU students, staged a sit-in at about 9:10 p.m. Monday in the hallway outside the second-floor council chambers after what they termed was "hesitation and avoidance" by the City Council on the city's housing discrimination problem.

The City Council unanimously approved a resolution reaffirming its position in favor of ending discrimination and complying with all state laws in that regard during the meeting. The meeting lasted about four hours.

The City Council also voted to attach a non-discrimination clause to all city contracts.

During the meeting, several civil rights supporters accused the council of putting off effective action and not using its power to the fullest extent.

Several heated arguments took place between council members and civil rights spokesmen.

Byron Peterson, president of the Campus NAACP, demanded that the council meet with rights leaders directly after the council meeting ended.

Peterson charged that the City Council had done nothing to comply with proposals suggested by him two weeks ago in regard to an open occupancy ordinance.

"I'm sure, Mr. Peterson, that you don't expect things to happen overnight," said City Attorney Raymond R. Campbell.

"We want you to act now," Peterson said.

"I will have an opinion on the legality of an open occupancy ordinance two weeks from tonight," Campbell said.

"We've waited for two years, and we don't want to wait two more years, two months or even two weeks," Peterson countered.

"Mr. Peterson, you push my patience," said Mayor Thomas.

Marchers Return, Claim Moral Win

By FAYE E. UNGER
State News Staff Writer

East Lansing Mayor Gordon L. Thomas will soon meet with civil rights demonstrators, Byron Peterson, Campus NAACP president, told over 100 pickets massed before President Hannah's house Tuesday afternoon.

The pickets had begun parading silently at 1 p.m. before the East Lansing City Hall in demand for strong, specific anti-discrimination and open occupancy laws in East Lansing.

Singing freedom songs, they threaded their way through East Lansing streets to protest before the offices of several city realtors. The march ended at Cowles House.

During the afternoon demonstration leaders worked to arrange a private meeting with Mayor Thomas. There will be no more demonstrations until after the meeting, Peterson, Peckskill, N.Y., sophomore, said.

"With the mayor we plan to go back over the proposals we presented at the city council meeting Monday night," Peterson remarked.

"We are working for the tightening of realty licensing and the prevention of handling of discriminatory listings by realtors as much as for an open housing ordinance."

The demonstration Tuesday, a joint effort of the campus NAACP, the Friends of SNCC, the Committee for Student Rights, and the Episcopal Canterbury Club, was a continuation of the demands voiced through the torchlight parade and sit-in at City Hall Monday.

The groups will continue demonstrating until the City Council meets their demands for strong legislation, Peterson said.

The demonstrators have won a moral victory with this week's protests, he commented. The East Lansing council has been stubborn, he said, but now the citizens will begin moving.

National civil rights organizations are waiting to help if the East Lansing demonstrators call, Peterson said. John Lewis of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, James Farmer of the Congress of Racial Equality, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., and author Louis Lomax have pledged their support.

"We would rather handle East Lansing discrimination ourselves, however," Peterson said.

The pickets marched silently before the City Hall. Only the leaders would talk to reporters.

6-Day Lull Ends

U.S. Resumes Bombing

SAIGON, Viet Nam P-U.S. warplanes resumed bombing raids against North Viet Nam Tuesday after a six-day lull marked by Washington diplomatic efforts, apparently unavailing, to nudge Ho Chi Minh's Communist regime toward peace talks.

Twenty Navy fighter-bombers and 10 F-4 Phantom jets from the 7th Fleet carrier Coral Sea hit a petroleum storage area at Phu Qui, 125 miles south of Hanoi. Pilots said they left the area severely damaged and burning.

A U.S. military spokesman said the strike was made through light ground fire. He reported the planes hammered the target with 25 tons of bombs, rockets and missiles in a 30-minute attack and all returned safely.

A State Department spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, told a Washington news conference the U.S. government was disappointed at the failure of North Viet Nam to respond in any way to the suspension.

"If the other side saw anything in it," McCloskey said, "we've had no evidence of it."

The break had given President Johnson time to step up diplomatic moves to get Hanoi to alter its policy of support for the Viet Cong and move toward a cease-fire. The North Vietnamese reaction was negative. Publicly the Hanoi regime has voiced defiance of what it calls "American aggression" ever since the bombing campaign was launched Feb. 7.

There was speculation that the attacks—which have centered chiefly on barracks, ammunition depots, air fields and communication lines—may be broadened to new types of targets and edge farther north toward the industrialized Hanoi-Haiphong area.

Hanoi has been immune so far. The closest raid was 65 miles south of the capital. That was made by 60 Navy planes on a bridge at Dong Phuong April 3.

Within South Viet Nam there was a resurgence of ground action. U.S. Navy and Air Force jets flew 153 sorties against suspected Viet Cong positions.

Over a 48-hour period, South Vietnamese troops and U.S. helicopter crews killed 128 Viet Cong fighters and captured 31 in three operations.

On the other hand, a Viet Cong company killed 11 government militiamen and wounded 17 in a clash at a hamlet 100 miles east of Saigon in Binh Thuan Province. Fifty-eight other militiamen were reported missing.

Lt. Gen. Victor K. Krulak, U.S. Marine Corps' Pacific Commander, and Vice Adm. Paul P. Blackburn, Commander of the U.S. 7th Fleet, conferred at Da Nang on what they called routine problems.

Benington Speaks At Shaw Banquet

John Benington will make his first public speaking appearance since being named new head basketball coach, tonight at 5:45 before residents of East Shaw. He will return this afternoon from a recruiting trip to Sheboygan, Wis., to speak at the hall's annual awards banquet.

Awards will be made to precinct officers and hall directors and officers for their work in hall activities throughout the year.

Pickets Support Council Sit-In

Signs reading, "Think Big, Not Bigot," "2,4,6,8, City Council Legislate," and "Discrimination Is Bad Business," led some 200 torch-carrying pickets at Monday night's demonstration in front of East Lansing City Hall.

The marchers, about a third of them Negro, met in three locations to discuss the purpose of the demonstration and receive instructions before the march began.

They were told there was to be no talking, laughing, giggling or disorderly behavior. Questions from bystanders were to be referred to two of the leaders.

Marchers were to be attired in classroom dress to represent respectable college students—no white levis, sandals, tennies or bermudas.

Above all, they were told that this would be a peaceful, orderly demonstration.

They marched from their various meeting places, carrying torches and singing softly, and converged in front of City Hall where the City Council was meeting.

Seventy-five of their friends were sitting in at the meeting to present proposals for an open housing ordinance in East Lansing. There was a good chance that they would be arrested, but no arrests were made.

The students were joined by faculty members and East Lansing residents in their march.

At one point, while the 75 students were sitting in the council chamber upstairs, in the City Hall, a tear-gas bomb was thrown into the street.

A police officer said that no one was sure who threw the gas or why it was thrown.

One couple standing on the sidewalk said they had heard there was to be trouble at city hall and they had come to see the fireworks.

Another man said he wanted to see if the "council would be intimidated by these people."

Another, a fraternity member, a man from Theta Chi, had an opposite opinion, though.

"It's a funny thing. The people in this demonstration are the same type as those in all the others—you know, the kooks, the weirdos."

"Yet it makes me wonder... if we're supposed to be such good, concerned Americans, why aren't we taking part?"

One observer commented, "I don't think a demonstration like this serves any purpose. The thing to do is to change people's attitudes."

When asked how he would go about this he replied, "I don't know, but this isn't the way."

"They're students and should be learning, not telling older people what to do," one Phi Kappa Psi fraternity member said.

"We have a Negro cook and a foreign student member of our house, so we're not prejudiced," one of his brothers added.

Greeks Confirm Missile Purchase

NICOSIA, Cyprus P--The Greek Cypriot government of President Archbishop Makarios confirmed for the first time Tuesday that it has purchased Soviet-made anti-aircraft missiles.

The confirmation came in the form of an official denial of a report in an ultra-rightwing Greek Cypriot newspaper that "the missiles were obsolete and 'practically useless.'"

The daily newspaper Patris also claimed that no Soviet missiles had arrived on the island

yet. Its report said that the missiles had cost "the exorbitant sum of 3.5 million pounds sterling... (about $10 million)."

The government statement by Defense Minister Polycarpus Georgiadis made no specific mention of whether missiles already had arrived on the island, but said of the Patris statements that "the report in question is altogether unfounded." He said the missiles were purchased along with other Soviet military hardware.

The purchase of the missiles by the Makarios government came after Turkish military jets attacked Greek Cypriot positions in support of cut-off Turkish Cypriot villages last August.

The United States, fearing that a new Cyprus outbreak might involve its easternmost Atlantic alliance allies, Greece and Turkey, in a war, warned last March 19 against the importation by Cyprus of anti-aircraft missiles.

Referring to the Patris statements, Georgiadis said, "I do not wish to make any comments on the object of this report, but I consider it proper to restore the truth on the matter."

His statement continued: "The rockets were purchased along with other military equipment from the Soviet Union under favorable terms on the basis of an agreement signed between the Soviet and Cyprus governments on Sept. 30, 1964.

"The rockets, as provided in the agreement, were sent to Alexandria (Egypt) about the end of December, where they were received by the duly-authorized representative of the Cyprus government for shipment to Cyprus."

"We had obtained beforehand expert advice concerning the type of rockets purchased."

"In any case, the nature of the matter is such that I cannot divulge more particulars."

Patris had claimed the Russian rockets purchased by the Cyprus government were what it described as "practically useless material" sent to the United Arab Republic 10 years ago.

The Cyprus government had never before admitted purchase of Soviet-made anti-aircraft missiles, though an authoritative military source stated last month the rockets had arrived on the island and were ready for use.

Advisers Finishing Up Scheduling

Academic advisers are now completing meetings with their students about next fall's schedules.

In the College of Communication Arts, the Departments of Speech and Communication are the only ones not yet finished. Students in the Department of Communication should see their adviser no later than Thursday. Speech Department students should see their adviser Friday. Students in the College of Education should call the Student Advisement Center at 355-1900 for information about seeing an adviser.

College of Natural Science students should see their advisers this week and next week.

Those students in the College of Social Science who have not yet been notified, should call their department or school office about seeing their advisers.

All pre-veterinarian and first-year students should see their advisers by May 28 in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

No-preference students should see their advisers this week according to the advisers' schedules.

Thant Seeks Dominican Settlement

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. P--Secretary-General U Thant made a personal appeal Tuesday to rival factions in the Dominican Republic to end hostilities and seek a peaceful settlement.

Thant's move came amid new clashes between the rebels and the rival junta and rejection by the junta of a peace plan offered by top U.S. officials in Santo Domingo.

"Peaceful means are the only ones which can bring about a lasting settlement of the conflict now besetting the Dominican Republic, and no effort should be spared to put an end to the fighting which has caused already so much bloodshed and destruction," Thant said.

Thant said he wanted to convey "my most pressing and earnest appeal" to all involved in the conflict to heed the call by the U.N. Security Council on Friday for a cease-fire.

He declared this was an essential step "in bringing about a propitious atmosphere in which a solution may be found to the grave difficulties facing the Dominican Republic."

Pictures At An Exhibition

Monday night's full-scale demonstration for open occupancy at the East Lansing City Hall leaves us with many impressions--some clear, some not so clear, about the current state of the civil rights movement here.

Foremost among these is the very pleasant impression that virtually every person involved in the demonstration, on any side, conducted himself admirably.

The presentation to the City Council, the torchlight picket outside, every aspect of the complex demonstration was handled with dignity and a sense of purpose. Similarly, the performance of the East Lansing city government and particularly the East Lansing police was characterized by patience, calmness and what might best be called an understanding of the roles each group had to play.

If it is taken as a fact that civil rights action must sometimes be precipitated by protest demonstrations then the most unacceptable hoped for is judicious use of protest tactics, a concern for individual safety and a proven desire to reach satisfactory ends. With noticeably few exceptions, all these were shown in the demonstrations Monday night and in the reaction to them.

The 300 to 400 marchers who picketed outside the City Hall for over five hours in sympathy for their 70 compatriots inside displayed exemplary behavior. Their march was safe, pointed and quiet--except when it rang with freedom singing. The marchers were almost all well-dressed and polite.

Monday night's events should prove that despite the frequent criticisms, it is possible for student protests to be peopled by people and not just by the proverbial beards and to be manned by men and not just by the kids demonstrators are often accused of being.

The people in charge inside City Hall were as striking as those outside in their maintenance of decorum, respect and respectability. Almost no voices were raised throughout the discussion of the highly emotional issues of open occupancy and city powers to enforce it, and there was real concern shown for the ideas and welfare of the demonstrators.

The demonstrations Monday, like most of the current projects of the rights groups here, were designed to resemble a Southern civil rights campaign. This is in line with the civil rights movement's national theme of bringing the Southern conflict to the North.

The fact that East Lansing took its first major sit-in and freedom-singing picket line gracefully points up both the tactical cleverness of the "rightsers," a Southern characteristic, and the adaptability of the city, a distinctly un-Southern characteristic. This distinction could be seen through the entire scene Monday.

The City Council remained steadfast in its reluctance to follow other than normal procedure in dealing with the rights demands, and held to its implicit positions that the city's actions in human relations are adequate and an ordinance for open housing would be inappropriate, Southern.

But the council also allowed the demonstrators time on the agenda they had not previously sought and took part in more than an hour of open debate on the demands. Not so Southern.

Some of the special police had axe handles with them and others were clearly disgusted with the proceedings. Just like Birmingham.

But none of the police at any time were rough with the demonstrators, and tempers showed only toward the end of the 70-man carry-out. Just like our ideal of the North.

The State News holds to its position that more action than has yet been taken by the city is necessary to solve the human relations problem in East Lansing. We continue to believe that most of the demands of the student demonstrators are just and justified, and while we cannot endorse either violent or non-violent lawbreaking we welcome the indications of their maturity that Monday's protests afforded.

If opposing sides of the issue continue to respect each other and remain open to debate and criticism, a solution to the civil rights problem will be brought much closer.

Right, several of the 70 sit-in participants join hands in singing freedom songs in the corridors of the City Hall.

The 'Movement' Comes To East Lansing

Civil Rights Leaders Inside... And Out

119 On Faculty Support Action

We, the undersigned, are convinced that discrimination in housing exists in East Lansing. Discrimination is morally wrong and in direct violation of the American principle of equality.

It is now two years since the City Council of East Lansing set up a Human Relations Commission charged with alleviation of this situation. In our opinion it has not produced effective results. It is still much too difficult for minority group members to find housing in this city.

We therefore support the direct action taken by the students Monday night designed to petition the City Council to act decisively on this matter.

We call upon the City Council to implement the requests presented to it by the students.

Queen's German Reception Cool

Elizabeth

BONN--Queen Elizabeth II got a reserved, undemonstrative welcome Tuesday from the people at the start of her state visit to West Germany.

Crowds were smaller than those that greeted President John F. Kennedy when he came to Bonn in June, 1963.

Many spectators complained that the Queen was being kept from the public in a closed limousine which passed swiftly through the streets.

LBJ Backs Union Shops

WASHINGTON--President Johnson stepped squarely into the middle of a major fight between big business and big labor Tuesday. He urged Congress to legalize union shop contracts in the 19 states that now forbid them.

Setting the stage for an expected bitter congressional fight starting next Monday, Johnson called for repeal of federal legislation that now permits any state to ban the union shop under "right-to-work" laws.

Union shop contracts requiring all workers to join a union after they are hired are legal in the 31 states that do not specifically outlaw them. The closed shop, requiring union membership before a man is hired, is banned in all states under federal law.

Democratic Dominican Government Needed

WASHINGTON--Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., said Tuesday the United States cannot merely oppose communism in the Dominican Republic. It must also solidly support creation of a democratic government.

While the rebels may include some Communists, O'Hara said they also include a sizable cross-section of Dominicans who want a non-Communist, constitutional government.

O'Hara

Barreras Refuses To Retire

SANTO DOMINGO--Junta leader Maj. Gen. Antonio Imbert Barreras Tuesday defied reported United States efforts to get him to resign as a step towards political peace here.

Imbert said he was willing to negotiate with rebel leader Col. Francisco Caamaño Dueno but added he would never agree to "step aside in favor of Communists."

He made the statement after conferring with the 10 top Dominican military leaders in the country.

Does Nuclear Power Cut Military Strength?

Walker

SOUTHAMPTON, England--Former British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker said Tuesday the military power of the United States and the Soviet Union would be greater than it is now if they did not have nuclear weapons.

"Not only can they not use their nuclear weapons, they cannot even make full use of their conventional weapons in areas where this might lead to a direct confrontation between them," he said, in a speech prepared for delivery to the Southampton International Affairs Society.

North Viets Attack Lull

LONDON--Senior western officials reported Tuesday night that the United States, through a third country, made an official approach to Communist North Viet Nam during a six-day lull in bombing raids. The effort apparently was fruitless, the informants indicated.

The secret moves by President Johnson's Administration to stop the Viet Nam War and to get peace talks going evidently halted with the resumption of air strikes against the northern Reds.

North Viet Nam Rejects Peace Talks

WASHINGTON--North Viet Nam scornfully denounced as a deception the six-day suspension of bombings of its territory after the United States expressed disappointment Tuesday that the gesture had brought no response from Hanoi.

But Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who had long urged such a trial suspension, told a reporter:

"Certainly no harm has come to us because we did and there may be beneficial effects from the action."

Air Pollution Bill Passes In Senate

WASHINGTON--The Senate without objection Tuesday passed and sent to the House a bill designed to reduce the air pollution from car exhausts.

The program would take effect starting with the 1968 model domestic and imported autos but would not affect used cars.

The bill would provide that the Health, Education and Welfare Department determine what amount of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide could be ejected through car exhausts. The car manufacturers then would decide how to reduce this, either through engine modifications or an exhaust device.

$1,981,345 Budget Passed By East Lansing Council

East Lansing's budget for the 1965-66 fiscal year was approved at the City Council meeting Monday night.

An increase of $16,500 from the budget recommended by the city planner brought the total to $1,981,345. The increase was primarily for the addition of an executive-secretary to aid the Human Relations Commission, and to help support the Capital City Airport.

A letter from three East Lansing High School students requested that an area be designated for skateboarding. Doug Campbell, speaking for the students, said students aren't breaking the law just to break a law when they skate in illegal areas.

"People who treat skateboarding as a sport and a skill want somewhere to skate legally," he said.

"The police have more important things to do than chase skateboarders all day," he said.

Expansion of the Human Relations Commission from 9 to 11 persons was referred to the city attorney for proposal of an amendment to the city ordinance.

Michigan State petitioned the council for authority to cross the tracks and right-of-way of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway by an extension of Bogue Street, in order to alleviate traffic congestion in the area. A meeting between the city, MSU and the railroad will be held soon to discuss the matter.

The council also approved a non-discriminatory clause to be inserted in all future city contracts.

Mayor Gordon L. Thomas spent most of Monday in Quincy as a part of the mayor exchange day of Michigan Week.

Luxembourg Peace Group Denied Permit To March

The "Ad Hoc Committee for Peace in Luxembourg" is preparing a sidewalk demonstration in Lansing soon, the committee chairman said Tuesday.

Carl Stensel, MSU freshman from Loraine, Ohio, chairman of the group, said the purpose of the march is to show the foolishness of demonstrations.

The Lansing City Council refused a committee request to parade in the streets because the group has not submitted in time for council consideration before the requested date. So Stensel decided they would demonstrate on the sidewalks.

Viet Nam demonstrations received the main thrust of Stensel's remarks at the Lansing City Council meeting. "Of course, there is no war in Luxembourg," he said. "The group is poking fun at demonstrations, especially those on Viet Nam."

"The right to demonstrate has been abused," he said. "Our group hopes to show this by marching for a silly cause."

John T. Harriman, representing the Committee for Peace in Viet Nam, protested the "prejudiced" action of the Luxembourg committee. He said the Luxembourg committee wants the right to march but wants to deny the same right to others.

Civil Rights

"You allow no go will on our part, and there is good will." "Everything we have asked can be done as quickly as the council wants it done," Peterson said. "Outside, 300 to 400 students and citizens are demonstrating peacefully and quietly. Seventy-five persons are sitting in the halls quietly and peacefully asking you to act."

Peterson had earlier proposed that the council amend its rooming-house licensing permits, make it illegal for realtors to list persons with houses for sale who discriminate, publicize in the mass media that East Lansing was a free and open town, put billboards at the entrances to the city stating that East Lansing was an open town, arrange meetings with the University to come up with solutions to the problems of discrimination and meet with local civil rights leaders to iron out problems.

Thomas said he would meet with any group at any time to discuss problems.

"The whole country has its eyes on East Lansing," rights spokesman Ron Brown said.

"We want you to act now. I have lived in East Lansing for six years and I have been rebuffed. So have others of my race. They have made many concessions. They have been humiliated and defeated and they walked away," he said.

An East Lansing woman stood up to defend the council.

"The place for you students is on the campus, not in East Lansing," she said. "Are students telling us as property owners in East Lansing what to do? There are places they should be besides telling us what to do."

"The impression you give is one of hesitation and avoidance," East Lansing resident Alan Schaffer, assistant professor of history, said. "Why the legal holdup? Why don't you pass an open occupancy ordinance, then see if it's legal."

$60.6 Million Building Bill Passed By State Senate

A $60.6 million appropriation bill for capital outlay construction in Michigan during the fiscal year 1965-66 was passed Tuesday afternoon by the State Senate.

Included in the planning bill for MSU are an Administration Building, Library, Social Science Building and Communication Arts Building.

Oakland University is listed in the bill for an Engineering Building and Learning Resources Center.

The bill was below the $67 million recommended for capital outlay by Gov. George Romney, but topped the current expenditure of $57.4 million.

The Senate started working on appropriations bills Monday night by passing six budget bills worth $149.3 million by 33-0 margins.

Other state buildings included in the preliminary planning budget were a suburban state office and service building complex surrounding a new State Police headquarters.

Also given the nod by the Senate were studies and plans preliminary to complete the Supreme Court and state Library in the downtown Capitol Development Area project.

There is no actual construction money in the bill, however, which is designed to move the state ahead in its long range construction planning.

Planning funds are also listed for two new children's cottages at the Michigan School for the Blind.

Fulbright Grants Open

Competition for the 1966-67 Fulbright scholarships is now open to MSU students.

Full or partial grants for academic study or research abroad and for professional training in creative and performing arts are available to qualified American citizens.

"This competition is especially applicable to current juniors and graduate students," commented Kenneth G. Stone, Fulbright advisor.

Stone suggested that only the better students apply, although any one is eligible. Prospective applicants should talk to their advisors and then must see Stone, 205 Kedzie Chemical.

Spartan 'Cinderella' Story: If The Shoe Fits, Wear It

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

They may not make the top 10 best-dressed list and perhaps their clothes don't come straight from the pages of GQ, but their accumulated bills look as though they were rung up by a staid old gentleman from Brooks Brothers.

Who are these expensively-clad men about town? Why, the Spartan track team.

To look at them, you'd think that their equipment was the cheapest of the lot. Their baggy, grey sweatsuits and scanty uniforms hardly seem worth much money.

Quite the contrary. In the trackmen's case, looks are very deceiving. They are the only squad that runs two full seasons, and each requires a new suit of clothes.

The green warm-up suits worn during meets range from $25 to $30 and last through both seasons.

The NEWS In

sons. Those grey practice suits sell for $8, with each man getting two per year. Uniforms—T-shirts and shorts—run about $6, with socks a mere pittance—50 cents—and other sundry items tagged at $1.50.

Each man gets six pairs of shoes, two each of three different types. Warm-ups are $7.95, practice shoes sell for $15 and meet shoes cost $17.95. Those figures total to $40.90; double that and you get $81.80...for shoes.

Added to the other items, the final tab for outfitting one man comes to $175.80. Now figure that for an 100-man team and it rounds out to a mere $17,580.

Clothes may not always make the man, but in this case shoes do make the runner. A man who is competing in a number of events may go through as many as four pairs of shoes a year, and each one must fit him perfectly.

The question, "Should I or shouldn't I wear socks?" is a decision made by each man. A sprinter or hurdler needn't wear them, for he doesn't run long enough for his feet to sweat or blister. Distance men, on the other hand, are more prone to these hazards and would wear them for this purpose.

Although they're not "in," white socks are a must. Colored ones can cause blood poisoning if any of the dye comes in contact with a blister or open sore.

"I never wore socks," commented Dittrich, concerning the vogue in track wear when he was running the sport. "They added too much weight."

With such cumbersome equipment and high budget, can you blame him?

Heads It's _____; Tails It's _____

By JERRY MORTON
State News Sports Writer

Solid hitting and tight pitching have been Big Ten trademarks this season, but they might not ultimately determine the conference baseball champion.

The winner could be selected by the toss of a coin.

That's the situation MSU, Ohio State and Michigan will be trying to avoid this weekend when the hectic Big Ten race comes to a close. All will be trying to win the title on the field but that may not be possible.

Ohio State heads into the crucial weekend with an 8-2 mark and first place in the league standings. Michigan is 9-3 with the Spartans standing 8-4.

The Green and White meet Indiana at Bloomington Friday and play Ohio State at Columbus twice Saturday. Michigan plays the

State Downs Western, 3-2

Michigan State readied itself for a big weekend baseball series with Indiana and Ohio State by downing Western Michigan Tuesday night 3-2 at Municipal Park in Lansing.

It was the last home appearance of the year for the Spartans, who are now 27-8 overall and 8-4 in the Big Ten.

Buckeyes Friday and faces Indiana in a doubleheader Saturday.

The race became complicated last weekend when the Ohio State-Minnesota doubleheader was rained out at Minneapolis. Since games are not re-scheduled under such circumstances in Big Ten play, the winner is determined on a won-lost percentage basis.

In case of a tie for the title the champion is decided on the outcome of the games played between the schools during the season.

If the teams split during the year or did not play, the coin toss goes into operation.

The only Big Ten games rescheduled are Friday games when the same two teams are to meet in a double bill the following day. Three seven-inning games are played on Saturday in such a situation.

In 1961 an MSU-Michigan Friday game was washed out and the teams staged a tripleheader on Saturday. The venture was disastrous for the Spartans as the Wolverines, led by Bill Freehan, won all three contests.

Because most games are not re-scheduled, the Big Ten has had only three champions in the past 13 years who have played a full conference schedule and in 1957 Northwestern won the title with a 5-2 record.

Travel expense and loss of school time are cited as the major reasons for the failure to re-schedule games.

Kresge Loses Wood Figure

A wooden sculpture, a table lamp and an amplifying system speaker taken from Erickson Hall are among missing items that have kept campus police busy since Monday morning.

The sculpture, a birch figure six feet high, was taken from the rear of Kresge Art Center. Its owner, Thomas R. Stanley, Greenville, Pa., sophomore, told police the sculpture was worth $150.

The Coca Cola Co. lost a $30 soft drink dispenser from the Water Carnival area. The speaker taken from Erickson Hall is valued at $25.

The table lamp, worth $35, was removed from the music room of Rather Hall.

Two minors arrested on campus for being in possession of alcoholic beverages pleaded guilty in Lansing Township Municipal court Monday.

Kenneth M. Walsh, 20, Pontre Verde, Fla., sophomore, and Donald R. Black, 20, 1148 East Grand River Ave., paid $25 each in fines and costs.

Negro Said To View Police As Ills Symbol

"The Negro, more than any other segment of the body politic, comes to view the police as the symbol of almost all his ills," a California Negro human relations leader told 350 police executives from across the U.S. and nine foreign countries.

"The policeman is a symbol of the community's method of control, a symbol of the community's attempt to reinforce the status quo," John A. Buggs, executive director of the Los Angeles County Commission on Human Relations, said Tuesday in Kellogg Center.

"All of the Negro's experience as a minority group come into play when he sees a blue uniform," he said.

Negroes in America have always rebelled against slavery--against the "plurality of humanity" idea which makes whites 100 per cent human, and the Negro something else--and have always sought to become a part of the mainstream of American life, Buggs continued.

The problems of the Negroes in the Northern city are the same as those they had in the South. Segregation is a barrier to communication, a vehicle for reinforcement of old prejudices and antipathies, he continued.

It takes a great deal of intellectualization, he said, for even the educated Negro to get over the emotions of a lifetime. "The Negro looks on police as a threat--the process by which the community exercises control over him, reinforces the status quo."

The first picture-licenses were issued last week in a long-term program to switch all Michigan drivers to the new color-picture permits. The enabling legislation was passed in 1957, but no funds were appropriated for the program until last year.

Rep. Rosetta Ferguson, D-Detroit, claimed the picture requirement was "just another stick to whip the Negro people over the head."

"When you set up a file of pictures," Mrs. Ferguson said, "you're setting up a file for the police. The Negroes are the whipping boy of the police departments."

The amendment will have to be voted on again later this week before the bill can be sent on to the Senate.

Campus Briefs

South African To View Apartheid

A graduate student from the Union of South Africa, who wishes to remain anonymous to protect his family, will discuss his viewpoint of his country's Apartheid policy at the last meeting of the International Relations Club at 7:30 tonight in 33 Union.

Following the discussion will be a question and answer period. After the speaker, a recent film on the mountain people of Vietnam, "Operation Montagnard," will be shown. The public is invited.

Management Club

Ralph L. Gillen will speak to the Management Club on "A New Approach to Business Planning" at 7:30 tonight in the Union Tower Room.

Gillen, a principal of McKinsey & Co., Inc., has been a management consultant since 1954. He has also provided consulting services to business organizations, government agencies and institutions and his work has included assignments for a number of major U.S. and Canadian companies.

Chemical Society

Peter Yates, professor of chemistry at the University of Toronto, Toronto, Canada, will speak to the MSU section of the American Chemical Society at 8 tonight in 138 Chemistry Building.

His topic will be "Organic Reactions in Concentrated Sulfuric Acid: Some Oxocarbenium Ions."

International Picnic

The deadline for reservations to the International Club's picnic has been extended until Friday. This last event of the year will be Sunday at Kensington Park, near Brighton.

Both American and foreign students are invited. The cost is $1 per student with gas money provided by the club.

Reservations may be made in the U.N. Lounge or by calling 355-3490.

Angel Flight

Wonders Has 3rd Campus Radio Station

A first-floor house's idea has given Wonders the third residence hall radio station on campus.

The station began broadcasting popular music after dinner until 1 or 2 a.m. about two weeks ago. Like the Shaw and Brody group stations, it uses the hall's electrical system to reach residents with standard radios.

"A man on the hall with a small transmitter built from a kitted this experimentally last year, and some of us decided to put it on a permanent basis," said Jim

Dave Albery, Muskegon sophomore, built the studio and Jim Bedore, of East Lansing, built the transmitter.

The studio is in the ironing room of Woodbridge House, or Kelly's Boys, on first floor east.

The station plans to continue broadcasting until finals week, Bever said.

Home Economics Awards Given At Ceremonies

The College of Home Economics presented its honor awards at Home Economics Honors Night Ceremonies Monday.

A grant of $800 was received by Karen Smith, Farmington Junior, The Julia P. Grant Award is given to Detroit area high school graduates showing financial need.

The William H. Danforth Leadership Training Scholarship went to Karen Gordon, Dowagiac freshman. Debby Greenwald, Seattle, Wash., freshman was named as alternate.

This award is given by the Ralston Purina Company and covers a two-week leadership training scholarship at the American Youth Foundation Training Camp on Lake Michigan.

Two juniors, Linda Carman, St. Clair, and Edna Abel, Cedar Springs, were named respectively as recipient and alternate for the William H. Danforth Summer Fellowship Award. In addition to two weeks at the American Youth Foundation Camp, this award covers the student's expenses for two weeks of study in St. Louis.

The J.W. Knapp Co. Awards went to Lillian Greens, East Lansing, and Diane Aven, Taylor, both seniors. The awards were given for leadership in extra-curricular activities and interest in retailing as a career. The award covers tuition for one year.

The S.H. Heller, Jr. Award went to Merrydy S. LaGrasse, Hermosillo Junior, for attaining the highest standing in clothing courses during her sophomore year.

Linda Carman, St. Clair Junior, received the Marjorie Judson Award for her scholastic achievements in foods and nutrition courses.

East Lansing senior, Sally Dussan, received the Bayha

Award for showing unusual ability in the field of clothing and for her high academic standing.

A $100 Campbell Award went to Barbara Jarman, Crozet, Va., junior for her high scholastic standing.

Dianne Fraser, Dearborn sophomore, received the Snyder Cup Award. The Snyder Cup Award goes to the sophomore making the best scholastic record during her freshman year.

Shirley Toles, Romeo Junior, received the Elizabeth I. French Award. This $50 award goes to the student who, in the opinion of the dean, has the ability necessary to combine the duties of homemaking and civic responsibility.

The $100 Heller Pratt Share Award went to Elizabeth Miller Davey, Niles, for her outstanding leadership abilities and 3.0 grade-point average.

The twenty-first Borden Award went to Marcia Leslie, Capac senior.

JULES CERN

Board Slates Atom Lecture

Jules Cern of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship will speak at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in 14 Bessey Hall on "Christian Science: Dominant Over the Atom."

The lecture is being sponsored by the Campus Christian Science Organization and is open to the public.

Cern began devoting full time to Christian Science healing many years ago. He has lectured in nearly all parts of the world. A former advertising manager and actor, he has appeared in plays in Broadway and throughout the United States and Canada. He currently resides in Scarsdale, N.Y.

Islam, Christian Concepts Share Common Tradition

"Islam and the West" are concepts of different origin, Islam being a religion of the West a geographic location, but they have many elements in common dating back to the use of made of Greek tradition, says G. E. Von Grunbaum.

Von Grunbaum, who spoke Monday night in Bessey Hall, is one of the leading Islamic scholars in the country. He is professor of history and director of the Near Eastern Center, University of California at Los Angeles.

The similarities between Christianity and the religion of the Arabs, he said, both are monotheistic, worship a God who wishes man to know and save himself, have a messenger and place emphasis on "the Book" (in Christian terms, the Bible).

During the middle ages when the two religions were growing simultaneously, he said, it was "the thing to do at the time to state concepts in Aristotelian terms." This was owing to the superiority of the Greeks' well-established set of beliefs and concepts, he said.

"The Islamic messenger, Mohammed, was a mere man," Von Grunbaum said. "The Arab man is not corrupted in this way. According to his spiritual beliefs, he is ignorant and has lost his way. He needs guidance to lead him back to the right path."

"All distinctions taken into consideration, the basic structure of mentality in terms of scientific interests, solutions and problems of the mind engaged in by Islam and the West were shared," he said.
