

'65 Placement Outlook Good; Bureau Pleases Merchants

Student employment opportunities for the 1965-66 school year appear bright, said Thomas Rand, assistant director of MSU's Placement Bureau.

Rand said that September, October and November are the best months to find jobs.

He said that during this period last year, almost 1,300 employers registered job openings for students at the bureau.

This year there is expected to be at least the same number of jobs available and probably more, he said.

Rand said that every effort is made to match job openings with students who want to work. Notices are sent to Lansing and East Lansing businessmen notifying them that the Placement Bureau will help them get part-time help. Most off-campus employers register with the bureau because they are well satisfied with the personnel they hire through it.

George Prince, owner of two East Lansing supermarkets said he has no complaints with any of the part-time help which he has hired over the years.

Gary Liles, manager of Prince's Spartan Shop-Rite store in East Lansing, said that college student employees' attitudes are good, and that most of them are conscientious about their work.

Liles employs about four part-time college students.

On campus jobs are much more numerous than those off-campus. According to Placement Bureau figures, 12,488 students were employed during the last school year. This figure is expected to be higher this year because of the expanded dormitories' program. Off-campus jobs number approximately 4,000.

Most jobs offered to students require no experience. Jobs on campus include cafeteria employment, janitorial jobs and grounds maintenance work. Clerical jobs require some knowledge of typing and shorthand.

Students with part-time jobs on campus work from 10 to 15 hours a week. Full-time students are discouraged from working over 20 hours per week.

Freshmen are urged not to work until after they become used to University life. University officials suggest two terms as minimum for this.

Students wanting jobs should go to the Placement Bureau in the Student Services Building for more information.

24 Summer Positions Open

About 20 part-time jobs are available in the East Lansing area for students who want to work, according to Thomas Rand, assistant director of MSU's Placement Bureau.

"Although jobs are not as plentiful during the summer as in winter," he said, "many jobs are available in the area now." These jobs include yard work, service station attendants, clerical help, waitresses and waiters, sales jobs and others.

The Placement Bureau notifies area businessmen of available part-time student help. Employers register job openings for students at the bureau. The bureau tries to match the job-seekers with employers.

Most employers pay $1.25 per hour with merit increases coming later after the employee is experienced. Students work about 20 hours a week. University officials recommend that full time students not work over 20 hours a week because it may interfere with their studies.

Most employers are eager to hire college students because they are dependable and conscientious about their work, Rand said.

Students wanting part-time employment should go to the Placement Bureau in the Student Services Building for information about available jobs.

Schools Study Agriculture Aid

MSU will join hands with 10 other universities in cooperating in a study of agricultural education and research programs conducted abroad by American universities.

The study will be supported by a $1,183,000 contract awarded Monday by the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) to the committee on Institutional Cooperation.

The committee, established in 1956, includes MSU, and 10 other universities. They include University of Chicago, University of Illinois, University of Indiana, University of Iowa, University of Michigan, University of Minnesota, Northwestern University, Ohio State University and University of Wisconsin.

Under the grant the committee will study AID-assisted foreign programs in agriculture as a means of strengthening bases for policy, program and operating decisions in the field.

The analysis will include MSU programs in Colombia, Taiwan and Argentina. The first two programs have been completed, and the work in Argentina has just begun.

AID has, over the past 15 years, awarded contracts to some 35 American universities for assistance to agricultural institutions in more than 30 foreign nations.

Ira L. Baldwin, director of the study and special assistant to the president of the University of Wisconsin, said the project's main objective will be to analyze factors believed to influence the progress of foreign institutional development.

In addition to assessing accomplishments of past and current assistance programs, he added, the study will reveal other types of rural development aid that U.S. universities can provide.

The project will take an estimated three years to complete. Co-sponsoring the study with AID will be the International Rural Development Subcommittee of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

BRICK'S THE TRICK--The superstructure on the new Hubbara Residence halls is completed. Now workmen are about one-fourth finished putting the outside brick work on the new high-rise dormitory. The 12-story building will be the tallest on campus and one of the tallest in the area.

Stanford Chapter Under Suspension

By PHYLLIS HELPER
State News Staff Writer

Schools with fraternities practicing discrimination might lose their Federal subsidies, Francis Keppel, U.S. Commissioner of Education, said recently.

The racial issue was one of the hottest discussed at the Sigma Chi convention in Denver. The Stanford University Chapter was suspended.

Harry Hallock, regional advisor for the Sigma Chi Chapters in Michigan, denied that the Stanford suspension involved the pledging of a Negro.

Keppel said that the terms of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title VI requires that individual colleges make certain that fraternities do not discriminate on racial grounds.

any fraternity refusing to admit a Negro on racial grounds could force schools permitting fraternity discrimination to lose their Federal subsidies.

Senator Metcalf raised the issue in Congress on May 1 that a ban on Negroes in fraternities might threaten the institutions right to Federal aid.

The Stanford members of Sigma Chi, as stated in the New York Times, "refused to discuss the situation. They have made it clear, however, that they believe the chapter was suspended."

Resignations Jolt Capitol

President Lyndon B. Johnson Sunday announced the resignation of Carl T. Rowan, Jr. as director of the United States Information Agency.

Rowan spoke on campus last spring at a kickoff program for the MSU People-to-People project in Viet Nam. He held the highest post of any Negro in the government.

It has been reported that Rowan plans to return to newspaper work or free-lance writing.

The resignation of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and the re-appointment of Henry Cabot Lodge as ambassador to Viet Nam last week brought a wave of speculation that Lodge was being groomed for the job of Secretary of State to succeed Dean Rusk.

Lodge, who was ambassador until last year when he returned for the election campaign, will fly to Saigon tomorrow to confer with Taylor and Viet officials.

He was appointed ambassador in 1963 by President Kennedy and was succeeded by Taylor when he returned to put his support behind the candidacy of William Scranton for the Republican nomination.

George Reedy began a leave of absence last week to undergo surgery on his foot. His post as press secretary to President Johnson was assumed by Bill Moyers.

Johnson also announced the resignation of Eugene Zuckert as Secretary of the Air Force, effective Sept. 30. He has named Harold Brown, director of Defense Research and Engineering, to replace Zuckert.

Also recently resigned from the U.S. Information Agency are Deputy Director Donald M. Wilson and Henry Loomis, head of the Voice of America.

Johnson has not announced replacements for the USA heads.

All of those resigning were holdovers from President Kennedy's administration.

Directors In Concerts

The band directors take a turn at playing in the first University summer band concert 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Auditorium.

The performance, under the direction of Leonard Falcone, professor of music and director of bands, will include light musical selections, ranging from Beethoven's "Prometheus Overture" to Morton Gould's "Begin the Beguine."

During summer term many advanced degree students, mainly high school band directors, enroll in music courses, Falcone said. Although the band also contains non-music majors and undergraduate music majors, the summer band is composed mostly of these band directors.

The summer band, counterpart of the regular concert band, was set up six years ago.

Through it Falcone said he attempts to provide the students with an opportunity to study the techniques of playing good band music and to introduce contemporary band compositions.

Robert L. Green, one of the faculty advisers to the STEP project in Holly Springs, Miss., says that local whites have not been noticeably hostile to the MSU group working at Rust College.

Green was in East Lansing over the weekend. He has requested a leave of absence from the University to take a job as educational director of the Rev. Martin Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"Except for a few uncomplimentary names, the local white population seems neutral," Green said.

LOCAL WHITES 'NEUTRAL'

No Hostility Toward STEP

anyone is missing," Green said.

Last summer, three civil rights workers with the Council of Federated Organizations were killed in Neshoba County, Miss. The MSU project is not affiliated with COFO.

The MSU students are teaching classes from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

"We start early because the heat is above 100 degrees every day," Green said.

He said the children attending the classes have "responded very well to this point."

At MSU, Green was adviser to the NAACP and a member of the East Lansing Human Relations Commission. He has been at MSU since 1960.

He has served as assistant professor of guidance and personnel service since 1963.

Pageant Ends The Reign Of MSU's Sally Jane

Sally Jane Nobel, this past year's Miss Michigan, is nearing the end of her reign as Michigan's queen.

The Miss Michigan pageant will be held July 27-30 in Muskegon and MSU will have two entries in the contest.

Julie Sudau, Mt. Clemens, and Miss Lansing, and Ann Lawrence, and Miss MSU are the two MSU coeds vying for the title of Miss Michigan.

Miss Nobel said that she enjoyed the local pageants the most during her reign.

"It was wonderful seeing every girl in the local pageants going through the same experience I went through," she said.

"I felt them win like I had won," she continued, "and I felt them lose like I also had lost in the Miss America pageant."

Miss Michigan said that by working with the girls in the contests she went through the experience of being in it herself and gained poise by working with them.

"Sometimes," she said, "when we would go to a city it all seemed so planned and rushed that I had little time to meet and know people. 'I'd say, 'See you again,' but know that I'd probably never have the chance."

"Sometimes the driving was quite hectic, but I really enjoyed every minute of my year as Miss Michigan."

Miss Nobel said that outside of the Miss America pageant she traveled only in Michigan. Spring term, with the many festivals, parades and local pageants, was hectic and forced her to drop out of school for the term.

An agent, furnished by the Miss Michigan pageant, planned her bookings and appearances throughout the year.

Miss Michigan had some words of advice for any other coeds debating whether to enter a beauty contest:

"I don't think of the pageant as a beauty contest. It takes more than beauty to win. You are judged on talent, personality and a judge's interview."

"The thing that prompted me to enter was the scholarships available."

"I would recommend any girl to enter any pageant because of the experience to gain. There's only one thing disagreeable and that's that only one girl can win."

More Dissent Ahead For Public Colleges

In his speech to the American College Public Relations Association, James H. Denison made a prediction that most University administrators would rather not think about.

The assistant to MSU President John A. Hannah predicted that America's colleges and universities will become centers of controversy. In other words, the forces of social change will be centered in what the American public has come to think of as the "Ivory Tower."

He indicated that there was little criticism by the public of universities when scientific breakthroughs like shattering the atom, conquering polio and planning for lunar travel were being made there. However, he predicts there will be when they become involved in student questionings and demonstrations.

"There is evidence that our colleges and universities are to become centers of discussion and dissent, and consequently targets of public criticism, to a greater extent than we have ever known," he said.

Universities, he indicated, will be increasingly involved with problems like unemployment, the plight of the underprivileged, poverty and civil rights. Already some students and some of the more liberal faculty members have started protesting the social system by marching in picket lines. This is one form of controversy.

However, if picketing were the only form the new era of controversy would take, American college administrators could rest easy. This activity is often easily dismissed as only being carried out by a small vocal minority.

But how does one tell a conservative state legislator that social protest is slight when the whole student body are advocating programs which conservatives call "socialistic" and even "communistic?"

The American college is going to be active in influencing our political process, it is going to be changing many of our outmoded social ideas, and it is going to be taking some unpopular stands in the cause of social and human values. Sometimes these stands are going to be against those who vote their budgets and this is where the real test will come.

If Denison is any measure of the MSU administration's thinking, and he is, his speech is significant. Not only do the heads of Michigan State recognize they will become involved in great controversies, but it appears they stand ready to meet this challenge. And that is a pretty courageous stand when you know that these will come up for judgment before the legislature which appropriates for your operations.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Faculty Growth Lagging

To the Editor:

I was both impressed and distressed after reading the State News article concerning the accomplishments of the University during the decade following Michigan State's name change. In the article, the large amount of physical growth during the last ten years at MSU was emphasized. In fact it appeared that the University's physical growth was growing at an increasing rate every year. The fact that MSU has grown in this area is pleasing because it is obvious that capital investments in buildings and equipment are essential if MSU is to meet the challenge of developing the minds of our state youth.

However, the article paid little attention to the fact that in 1955, Michigan State employed one instructor for every 19.3 students while it employed one instructor for every 29.6 students in 1965. These figures are very disturbing because it seems to me that adequate personal instruction is of equal if not of greater importance than physical facilities in the achievement of MSU educational objectives.

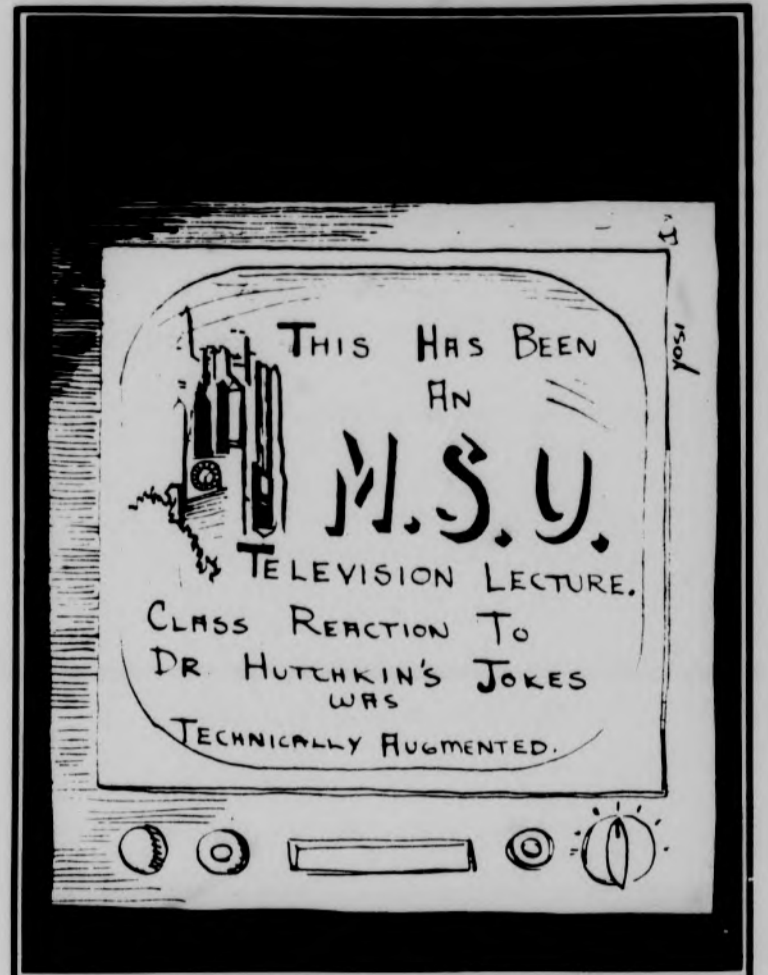

On the basis of the preceding reasons, I would suggest that the administration change the emphasis of our growth from one of increasing physical facilities to one of increasing both the quantity and quality of our intellectual resources.

If the student-professor ratio continues to increase 53 per cent per decade, my great-nephews or nieces, who may attend Michigan State University in the year 2000 may have to share a professor with 125 other students. It will be difficult for them to develop their minds in an institution of that sort. They will be seeking and deserve more than a brick wall and television set.

MSU SIGNS PLEDGE

Warn Greeks Against Discrimination

WASHINGTON - Fraternities and sororities had better have sound, even legally defensible, reasons for not pledging members of minority groups during their rush periods from now on, or MSU could find itself without millions of dollars in Federal funds.

U.S. Commissioner of Education Francis Keppel has warned that colleges and universities allowing fraternities and sororities to discriminate could have their Federal aid cut off.

MSU has already signed a pledge assuring that "no person

(connected with the University) shall be excluded from participation, denied any benefits, or subjected to discrimination on the basis of race, color or national origin.

But if some University student, faculty or staff member thinks he is being discriminated against because of his race, color or national origin, he can file a complaint with the U.S. Education Office or other appropriate agency, and put MSU on the hot seat. Specifically, if a minority group member attends rush at traditionally and historically all-white fraternity or sorority, and falls to get a pledge bid, the Greeks involved might have to answer to the Federal government in MSU's behalf.

Of course, the opposite also holds. If a white student is denied membership to an all-Jewish or all-Negro fraternity, and he thinks he has been discriminated against, he can also file a complaint.

Since MSU doesn't often look the other way when Federal money is being passed out, it might want to take a closer look at its Greek system.

Some interpreters of the 1964 Civil Rights Act have held the opinion that as long as fraternities, sororities, or other social or living units were on private property, Title VI of the Act did not apply.

Title VI says that there must be no discrimination on the basis of race, color or national origin, in any organization that receives funds from the Federal government. And if discrimination does exist, funds will be cut off.

FOR DELIVERY CALL ED 2-0863

Keppel has said recently, in reference to alleged discrimination by the Sigma Chi chapter at Stanford University, that since without a college or university there can be no collegiate Greeks, Title VI applies to them as well. MSU could find its pocketbook pinched if its Federal aid was cut off. The University receives funds from many Federal programs for college facilities construction, college dormitory construction, research grant and equipment, national defense education activities, student loan programs, and extension services.

The question is whether or not MSU can count on its Greek units to comply with the law.

Of course the Greeks can always find dozens of reasons for black-balling minority group members. But finding sound reasons, especially if none exist, could be a problem for them. A Federal agency, which hands out money under the programs it administers, is the sole judge of whether discrimination exists. The agency does not have to prove the fund-receiving organization guilty of discrimination. All it has to do is investigate the complaint.

If, after the investigation, the agency decides that there is enough evidence of discrimination, it has the power to cut off funds. No judge and jury is required. The decision can be arbitrary.

Only after funds have been cut off can the organization appeal the decision of the agency. The Office of Education, with Keppel running the show, doesn't seem to be playing around. Keppel has recently called for a broad investigation of de facto segregation in northern cities. He emphasized that if discrimination was found, those in control better do something about it fast or his office would stop Federal aid.

8 Join Symposium Today On Politics

A workshop on political campaigning began Monday with an orientation and discussion of workshop topics by Jerry M. Anderson, assistant professor of speech and workshop director.

Eight Michigan political leaders are participating in the workshop from Monday through Friday. They will lecture daily 2 to 4 p.m. in the Con Con room of the International Center on "Persuasion in Political Campaigning."

Today's topic, "Campaigning at the Local Level," will feature a symposium with Gordon L. Thomas, mayor of East Lansing; David Lebenbom, chairman of the Wayne County Democratic Committee; Max E. Murningham, mayor of Lansing; S. Donald Potter, Republican State Senator, 24th District; and Mrs. Mahlon S. (Mary) Sharp, member of East Lansing City Council.

The symposium will be followed by a question-discussion period and a reception for the symposium members.

Zolton A. Ferency, chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee, will lecture Wednesday on "Campaigning at the State Level."

Open discussion and reception will follow the lecture.

Kosygin Hails Co-Existence

Russian Premier Alexei N. Kosygin Sunday made the first major speech by a Soviet official in weeks which did not attack U.S. policy in Viet Nam. He said "peaceful coexistence" with capitalistic states was in the interest of all peoples and said the Soviet Union will avoid any "adventuristic, ill-considered policies." Kosygin mentioned U.S.-Soviet cooperation during World War II and said some Americans would like to forget it. He spoke at Volgograd, the wartime city of Stalingrad where the Nazi assault on Russia was halted.

Rusk Warns Red China

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has warned that supporters of North Viet Nam cannot expect immunity from U.S. reprisals if they attack South Viet Nam. The warning appeared to be aimed at Red China. Rusk said it is important for North Viet Nam's allies to know that they cannot send "tens of thousands of men into the south to attack South Viet Nam and still live in comfort and safety at home."

Voting Rights Bill Passed

Over the weekend, President Johnson hailed the passage of the administration's voting rights bill by the Senate. He called for a speedy House-Senate conference to iron out differences, so the bill could be signed into law as soon as possible. The bill was passed Friday by a coalition of Northern Democrats and Republicans. Johnson also said he has been encouraged by public compliance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964 since it became effective last July.

The Food and Drug Administration has announced that all peanut butter must have at least a 90 per cent peanut content. Objectors have 30 days to file their objections and request a public hearing.

Cubans Celebrate Castro Revolt

Throughout Cuba, preparations are being made for celebration of the 26th of July, commemorating the start of Fidel Castro's revolution. Pictures of revolutionary leader Ernesto (Che) Guevara were plastered over Havana's walls this weekend. Guevara has not been seen in public for four months, and Cuban officials have refused to discuss his whereabouts. A magazine recently printed a story portraying President Johnson issuing orders to Superman, Dick Tracy, The Phantom and Tarzan to find Guevara, since the Central Intelligence Agency has not been successful.

Modern Japanese Play To Make U.S. Premiere

Summer Circle scores a double premiere with "The Hero and a Cup of Green Tea," opening at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. It is the first time the contemporary Japanese play has been performed in the English language or in the United States.

James Brandon, associate professor of speech, translated and adapted the play for the American stage in 1962 after returning from a trip to the Far East to study Asian theatrical forms. He is directing the Summer Circle production of the play.

Brandon brought Kabuki theater to the University campus two years ago after another trip to Japan. His production of "Kanjinshi" and "The Zen Substitute" attracted the attention of Life magazine reporters. This coming spring he will direct an Indonesian shadow play he has translated for the arena theater.

Tickets for "Hero" are on sale at $2 apiece at the Demonstration Hall box office, open 2 to 6 p.m. Monday and Tuesday and 2 to 9 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday. Phone 355-0148.

The original "Hero and a Cup of Green Tea," first presented in 1960, was written by Syuntaro Tanikawa, one of the most promising young literary figures to emerge from post-war Japan.

The Japanese ministry of education commended him in 1958 for his production of a television show. He is also noted for his poetry and essays.

"Hero" offers the Summer Circle theater-goer distinctly Japanese ideas in a familiar framework. The story is set in modern post-war Japan and the characters talk and dress like the contemporary American, but much of the similarity ends there.

The characters, with their new-found Japanese freedom, discuss topics our own culture, despite its long tradition of freedom, still taboos. They show a delicate concern for playing one's part in life, a longing to know one's self and a masculine-centered view of life that do not fit with the typical Westerner's view of life.

The play is not a farce, nor a comedy, a tragedy, or even a melodrama, but a blending of many stylistic elements whose uniqueness may leave the playgoer unsure whether he was to laugh or cry.

The lobby exhibit for the run of "The Hero and a Cup of Green Tea" is of scene design work by graduate students of this and other universities and selected work by Michigan State undergraduates.

Retarded Children Need Home Situation In Early Life

By CAROL BACHELLER
State News Staff Writer

Mentally retarded children generally should not be institutionalized until they are five or six years old, Dr. Robert Jaslow, told 150 special education students and faculty Thursday.

Jaslow, medical director of Plymouth State Home and Training School, Northville, delivered the first of three summer lectures sponsored by the department of elementary and special education.

Discussing the Changing Role of the State Institution, he said mentally retarded children are better off in their own or a foster home during their first few years because "they get more stimulation from the home environment."

"Institutions for mentally retarded began in this country with the goal of curing patients," he said. "But since we cannot cure them, the residential center of today is designed to offer specific training programs."

He pointed out that early and accurate diagnosis of mental retardation has been a major contribution in recent years. However, he cautioned about trying to make a diagnosis too early. Extensive testing and observation must precede diagnosis and training, he said.

"Not all mentally retarded youngsters should be institutionalized," he said. "Many cities have adequate day care facilities. Unfortunately some communities are unable or unwilling to provide these services," he explained.

Jaslow pointed out several advantages of institutions over day care centers:

--Greater flexibility and freedom.

--Availability of specialists from different disciplines and more opportunity for them to work together.

--Greater opportunity for research on mental retardation.

In the future, Jaslow suggested that state institutions should make better use of existing community services, and, in return, share their specialized services with the community.

He also called for a more flexible supervisory hierarchy in state institutions.

"Young professionals coming out of colleges have the most advanced knowledge. They should have a greater part in decision-making. This could help reduce the 10 year gap between acquisition of new knowledge and its application," he said.

"Institutions must consider the rights of the child before the rights of the parents or the community," he added.

Relations Committee Set Up

The East Lansing Human Relations Commission officially established a University Relations Committee Wednesday night, with an MSU student as one of its three members.

William Evans, Detroit junior, has been an official member of the Commission for a year. He was appointed for a three-year term by the East Lansing City Council.

Working with Evans on the University Relations Committee will be Wallace Robertson, and David K. Berlo, chairman of MSU's Department of Communication.

Berlo was also re-elected chairman of the Commission for a second term.

Commission member Mrs. Stephanie Barch anticipated that the University Relations Committee would work closely with ASMSU's new Human Relations Commission and its chairman, Carl Friberg.

Friberg's group would have no official connection with East Lansing's Commission, she said, but "I would hope that they send a representative to our meetings who would speak up when we call for speakers from the floor."

The Commission formally established three other committees at its meeting Wednesday: the Community Liaison Committee, the Conciliation Committee and the Committee on Human Relations Week.

The Commission also approved a recommendation by the Neighborhood and Good Will Committee to send letters to department chairmen here, asking for names of new faculty members who might need assistance in finding housing.

Pakistan Seeking New Allies

"Pakistan is disenchanted with India and the United States and is looking for other allies," said a visiting professor from Canada here Wednesday.

Khalid bin Sayeed, professor of political science at Queens University, Kingston, Canada, spoke at the second of four programs on South Asia. His topic was "Recent Political Developments in Pakistan."

He said that the present regime of Mohammed Ayub Khan has popular support, which makes the restrictions of his autocratic government unnecessary.

"Bureaucrats look at all opposing forces as a threat," he said. "But an opposition, when allowed to work in a political framework, tends to modify. The recent Pakistan elections show this."

Ayub, said Sayeed, is paying too high a price for stability. "The former British colonies have inherited the British viceregal system. Everything is toward saving the status quo and 'carrying on the show'."

In disrupting the opposition, said Sayeed, Ayub has alienated the urban intellectual. He is trying to appeal to the young by creating an image of Pakistan as a non-aligned country that has "normalized" relations with the big powers.

Sayeed said that Pakistan is not convinced that the separation with India is a closed issue. And, he said, they feel that the United States is trying to build India into the great Asian power. This, in light of the dispute, is like taking sides.

Bengali Lit Talk Set By Professor

A speech on "Bengali Literature in the Indian Nationalist Movement" will be given Wednesday evening by one of the western world's leading authorities on Bengali and Nepali languages.

T.W. Clark, a visiting professor from the School of Oriental and African Studies at the University of London is teaching classes in Bengali here this summer.

The lecture to be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday in 204 International Center will be the third in the summer's South Asia series.

MSU's Big Back Yard

It could conceivably take one man using a 24 inch hand-pushed rotary mower five months, working eight hours a day every day, to mow Michigan State's 800 acres of lawns.

It takes one week for the grounds department to mow campus grass. There are 42 men working eight hours a day, five days a week with 67 different types of mowers to accomplish the task.

The type of mowers used are of every type imaginable. They have 30 21-inch hand pushed rotary mowers and 11 32-inch rotary mowers for small areas and trimming.

For larger lawn areas they have five three gang riding mowers and three seven gang tractor mowers.

When the field areas need mowing they use two 80-inch rotary tractor mowers and one 100-inch rotary tractor.

Added to these are 15 special mowers used for special grass areas, such as the lawns in the gardens.

Some MSU students are spending an unusual but interesting summer this year.

They are the students that went on field trips with Rollin H. Baker, director of MSU's museum, and Charles E. Cleland, curator of anthropology at the museum.

The four students that went with Baker to Mexico will be studying the ecology of the Cotton Rat.

National Science Foundation grants are paying full expenses for Baker's trip and partial expenses for Cleland's.

The students with Baker receive no college credits for the trip, but do have food and lodging, which is mostly camping out, paid for.

The students are Daniel E. Boyle, Grand Rapids sophomore, Peter Dalby, Flint senior; William Gasaway, St. Clair Shores senior, and John Grost, Lansing senior.

The four students with Baker are zoology majors, and were required to have an interest in knowledge of mamology and/or ornithology in order to be selected for the trip.

The nine students with Cleland are doing digging and field studies of the Indian burial grounds on the Muskegon River.

They are based at Lake City in Missaukee county.

Ten hours of college credit was optional for the students with Cleland.

The MSU students with Cleland are Veletta K. Canouts, Flushing sophomore; Kathryn E. Parker, Decatur senior; Sally M. Lloyd, East Lansing sophomore, and Howard S. Useem, East Lansing high school senior.

Others with Cleland are Janet A. Dunham, Howell senior, and Dal E. Willowghby, Farmington freshman, both of Kalamazoo College; Daniel B. Semrau, Detroit sophomore, and Marla M. Buckmaster, Parchment junior, both of Western Michigan University; and Christina M. Smith, Stanton junior of Grand Valley State College.

ed because it pledged Kenneth M. Washington, a Negro student, son of a Denver urologist."

Harry Hallock of Ann Arbor, regional advisor for the Michigan chapters of Sigma Chi, who attended the national convention, said:

"Regardless of what has been published, the suspension of the Stanford chapter was done for one reason.

"The Stanford chapter has a long history in which it has completely disregarded the ritual requirements of the fraternity.

"The suspension was a matter of discipline on the part of the national fraternity to impress upon the chapter that they must conduct their internal affairs and follow the ritualistic procedure in accordance with the by-laws of the fraternity, if they wish to remain part of the national organization."

"After five days in Denver," Hallock said, "I was firmly convinced that the suspension of the chapter was made before the nation had any indication or information about Ken Washington being pledged."

Hallock said that the MSU chapter of Sigma Chi, Gamma Psi, would not be affected by the suspension of the Stanford chapter.

In the May 1 edition of the New York Times, there is an article which indicates that Stanford University was backing the local chapter.

"Sigma Chi," Harry V. Wade, the fraternity's national president, said, "has never denied that we have a membership committee. We have no gentlemen's agreements, no policies; all we have is a membership committee."

Hallock explained that there are 60 members on this committee and a negative vote of any one of them blocks the acceptance of a pledge.

As a regional advisor, Hallock explained the process he goes through for membership: --receives a list of all the men pledged at all the chapters in the United States and Canada.

--three members of the Grand Council (national executive council) receive complete pledge lists.

--forms on each man pledged become part of a national file at the fraternity headquarters, in this case, Evanston, Ill.

"All I do," Hallock said, "is look over the list I receive. As for the question of whether a Negro has been pledged by our fraternity, as far as I know, there has been no chapter, active or suspended, that has invited a Negro into its membership."

"There is nothing, however," he continued, "in our by-laws that says we cannot pledge a Negro."

Swenson To Train New Administrators

Richard Swenson, assistant dean and director of resident instruction of the College of Agriculture here, has been named as one of 25 participants selected nationally in a new program of the American Council on Education to train college administrators.

As a Fellow in Academic Administration, he will spend the 1965-66 academic year working in administrative offices of the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

Swenson, who has been a member of the Michigan State faculty since 1952, was nominated for participation in the program by President John A. Hannah. He was one of five named from U.S. colleges of agriculture.

Swenson holds a bachelor's degree in agronomy from Brigham Young University, a master's degree in soil chemistry from the University of Massachusetts and a doctor's degree in soil fertility from Iowa State University. He joined the MSU staff as an associate professor of soil science.

In 1956 he was named to his present position in MSU's College of Agriculture. Michigan State consistently ranks in the top ten

109 Young Ballet Students Working Here

One, two, three; one, two, three. These are familiar words to a ballet student and at the Cecchetti Council of America Ballet Conference, being held at Michigan State. They are heard everyday. There are 109 students with the majority between the ages of 11 and 20. They have come to the conference with their teachers from all parts of the United States to learn more about the Cecchetti method of ballet.

The Cecchetti Method is unique because it offers a degree at the end of a long series of steps. There are seven steps consisting of four Childrens Grades and three Professional Grades (Elementary, Intermediate, and Advanced).

To advance from grade to grade a test is given which includes known steps and unknown steps. The unknown steps are used to teach the student to adapt himself to all situations.

The Cecchetti method differs from other schools in its endeavor to reduce the dancer's training to an exact science. The teaching is by formula rather than by chance, and by adhering to the formula a ballet dancer is made.

Teaching at the conference are two well-known teachers of the Cecchetti Method, Carol Hill, from London, England, is known for her appearances as a principle dancer at the Palace Theatre, London, and in several seasons with Robert Atkin's Shakespeare productions at the Open Air Theatre in Regent's Park.

Valentina Pereyaslavac, also teaching at the conference, studied in the Imperial School in Moscow and has been teaching at the American Ballet Theatre School since 1951.

In 1951, because the demand to learn this method became great, the Cecchetti Council of America was incorporated as a non-profit organization.

Since this time it has grown and now has 700 Associate members throughout the nation and over 500 Junior members.

The Council is governed by an Executive Board consisting of 12 Charter Members, the chairman of the General Board is elected by the General Board Members, the Junior Branch chairman and two Elective Board members are elected by the Executive Board from the Associate "A" members.

THE SCIENCE OF DANCE--MSU was fortunate this summer to attract the Cecchetti Council of America American Ballet Conference to campus. More than 100 students have been learning ballet taught by the scientific method.

Chicago Jazz Festival Set In Soldier Field

Dave Brubeck, Miles Davis, Stan Getz, Dizzy Gillespie, John Coltrane, Thelonious Monk and Gerry Mulligan headline jazz groups scheduled to appear at the Down Beat Festival in Chicago's Soldier Field August 13 to 15.

The three-day, five-concert festival is being produced by George Wein, director of the Newport Jazz Festival. Down Beat Magazine and the Illinois Cultural Company are sponsoring the event.

The Brubeck Quartet, Davis Quintet, Getz Quartet and the Newport All-Stars start the Festival Friday night.

Saturday night's concert is built around Count Basie's orchestra, with Gillespie, singer Carmen McRae and the Muddy Waters' Band featured.

Sunday has Coltrane's Quartet, Woody Herman's herd, Thelonious Monk's Quartet and Gerry Mulligan on the bill.

The Saturday and Sunday afternoon sessions will feature the classic and avant-garde movements in jazz. Jimmy McPartland and Pee Wee Russell highlight a performance of Chicago old-timers while Bunky Green, Cecil Taylor and Joe Daley represent what's new.

2 Professors Named To U.S. Groups

Two MSU Professors have been named to national groups recently.

Henry O. Barbour was appointed to an advisory council of the Job Corps and William Seaman was re-elected director of the Service Bureau for Classical Teachers of the American Classical League.

Barbour, professor and director of the School of Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management is one of the four educators appointed to the Hotel and Restaurant Advisory Council of the Job Corps.

The council will structure job descriptions and profiles to develop a training curriculum for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Seaman was one of 125 college and high school classics teachers to attend the Classical League Institute at the University of Miami (Ohio).

South Case 'Showboat' Set To Float On Friday

The residents of North and South Case Hall will present, "The S.S. Showboat", a musical variety show, Friday at 8 p.m. in the Case courtyard.

"The S.S. Showboat", a summer school special, will feature a jazz pianist, folk and pop singers, a performance by the Nigerian exchange students, and the Swan Lake ballet as danced by 25 South Case men.

Sandy Koh, Midland, and Kip Pritzel, Grosse Pointe freshmen, are coordinating the show. Miss Pritzel and Ken Weldaw, Grand Rapids senior, will share the emcee duties.

Initial plans for the special were made at a House Council meeting July 7. Each floor is responsible for one aspect of the "Showboat". The resident assistants are acting floor chairman.

This is an all-campus activity. No admission will be charged.

SKATE SHOW WEDNESDAY NIGHT

A Summer Refresher: Talent On Ice

The 17th annual Talent on Ice show moves into the MSU Ice Arena Wednesday night, featuring 24 numbers in an hour-and-a-half of figure skating pageantry.

Talent on Ice, first of three such shows this summer, will include solo, pair and group routines in an exhibition of freestyle figure skating. Many of the performers are world recognized champions.

The program will begin at 8:15 p.m. Balcony seats are priced at $.75 for all ages, and rink-side seats cost $1. Advanced ticket reservations can be picked up at the Ice Arena box office up to noon on Wednesday.

"This will be a very fast show," explained Norris Weld, summer program director and manager of the ice arena. "We'll lead off with many of the younger skaters and build up to a fast, exciting climax."

Participants in the show are members of the Summer Ice Session that is held here every year. The summer ice clinic is sponsored jointly each year by the Lansing Skating Club and Michigan State University.

Figure skaters, ranging from 4 years of age to about 25, come from all over the United States and Canada. Several from this year's record enrollment of 157 came all the way from Europe. The youngsters are tutored here under professional hands in a nine-week session, which doesn't hamper their amateur status. Weld further explained that the group has put in many long, hard hours in preparation for the first show. The skaters practice from 5 a.m. to 11 p.m., six days a week.

"For most of the kids this show will mark the first time they've worked together," Weld said, "It will be a new experience, but the show should come off real well."

Gary Visconti, a veteran figure skater from Detroit, tops a list of outstanding skaters. Visconti, although only 20 years old, is recognized around the nation and the world as one of the best on figure skates. Visconti is a member of the U.S. world's team and has pulled down such titles in the past year as U.S. Senior men's champion, along with the North American senior crown.

Of local interest is Joey Heckert and Gary Clark of East Lansing and MSU, who are ranked third in the U.S. and ninth in the world in senior pairs. Heckert and Clark have been a part of the summer ice sessions for several years now.

Nic and Janet Burhans, another East Lansing couple, have a dance pair number on the program. World pair entries, Alexts and Chris Shields of Toronto will also be featured on the program. The Shields' are the Canadian senior pairs champions.

MSU's summer ice session has been a training ground for figure skating champions for many years. Such performers as Carol and Bruce Helms, Don Jackson, Ronnie Robertson and Doug Ramsey have entertained figure skating fans in the past.

Nod Given To NL In All-Star Clash

By LARRY MOGG
State News Sports Editor

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—It's the American League versus the National League in the 36th annual All-Star showdown in the Twin Cities today.

But the way most experts look at the game, the AL is already hog-tied and awaiting the butcher.

The AL, with one of the weakest All-Star lineups ever, is given about as much chance this time around as the DA has weekly against Perry Mason. The odds-makers have installed the NL as 7-5 favorites to run-away with the game and nudge ahead of the AL, 18-17, in the all-time series.

Even with the NL as overwhelming favorites, the classic is expected to attract a full house in the Twin Cities. The all-stars will mix it up, starting at 1 p.m., with television stations sitting in on the festivities at 12:45.

NL pilot Gene Mauch of Philadelphia is expected to start either Jim Maloney of Cincinnati or Bob Gibson of St. Louis, both fireballing righthanders. After that Mauch has the enviable task of choosing from the likes of Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale of the Dodgers, Sam Ellis of the Reds, Juan Marichal of the Giants or Bob Veale of the Pirates. All throw bullets and promise to keep the junior circuit boy's uneasy.

Al Lopez, Chicago manager and the AL boss, will counter with either Milt Pappas of Baltimore or Mel Stottlemyre of the Yankees as the starter. Then he can follow him up with Sam McDowell of Cleveland, Eddie Fisher of his own Sox or Bob Lee of Los Angeles.

The Detroit Tigers will have two members in the starting lineup. Willie Horton will be in left field and Dick McAuliffe at shortstop. Both will be playing in the All-Star classic for the first time.

Al Kaline and Bill Freehan of the Tigers are also on the squad.
