AT STRING CONCERT

Top Conductor To Direct

The final concert of the American Federation of Musicians' Congress of Strings will be directed by one of the nation's most prominent American-born conductors.

Iowa, Johanos studied violin and conducting at the Eastman School of Music, and was later a protege of Eugene Ormandy.

After his studies in America, Johanos went to Europe under a Rockefeller grant to study with prominent European musicians.

Johanos has held teaching positions at Pennsylvania State University, Southern Methodist University and the Hockaday School.

In 1957, he won an international competition sponsored by the Netherlands Radio Philharmonic which led to a concert at the Holland Festival and other performances with the Netherlands Radio Philharmonic.

Before beginning his association with the Dallas Symphony, the 38-year-old conductor worked with the Altoona (Pa.) Symphony and the Johnstown (Pa.) Symphony.

He has guest-conducted the Pittsburgh and New Orleans Symphonies, and in 1962 conducted the Amsterdam Concertgebouw.

Just before coming to East Lansing in June for the Congress, Johanos, an avid fisherman, visited Alaska where he caught a 38-pound king salmon, the second-largest of its kind ever reported caught.

Johanos, with his wife and family, has been living in East Lansing this summer while he worked with the congress.

DONALD JOHANOS

In his MSU concert, Johanos will conduct Pergolesi's "Concertina No. 1 in G Minor" and Mozart's "Serenade No. 6 in D Major, K. 239 (Serenata nocturna)" with double string orchestra and tympani.

Action Expected During September

By LEO ZAINEA State News Staff Writer

Hope that a MSU law school request would gain quick approval from the State Board of Education was expressed Wednesday by the chairman of the Board of Trustees.

A formal request was submitted to the Education Board in March and Warren M. Huff, D-Plymouth, said he expects action on the proposal sometime in September.

Huff said a member of the Democratic-controlled Board of Education is studying the request and would probably base a decision on a demonstrable statewide need for a law school, student interest, curricula plans and overall scope of the program.

If the program is approved this fall, the law school would begin accepting students in September 1967, he said.

State senate lawmakers suggested the program to MSU officials more than a year ago and provided for its establishment in MSU's 1966-67 appropriation bill.

But after lengthy conference committee session last June, all mention of a law school here was stricken from the measure. Instead legislators, dissatisfied with the wording of the law school request, recommended the University study the project.

University officials had studied the law school idea the past five years, according to Huff, and yielded willingly to lawmakers' suggestions that a program be established "in the Lansing area."

Approval from the State Board of Education would make MSU the fourth law school in Michigan, joining schools at the University of Michigan, Wayne State University and the University of Detroit.

Initial plans include formation of a law library and recruitment of law professors. There are currently no plans for construction of any physical facilities for the school.

Any additional information regarding curricula, campus location of the school and future funding "will be disclosed as they materialize," Huff said.

Meanwhile the Board of Education continues study of MSU's request for a full degree-granting program in human medicine with approval hopefully expected this fall.

Upon direction of the Board of Trustees, President John A. Hannah asked the education board to seriously consider expansion of MSU's new two-year Medical School which accepts an initial class of 25 students this fall.

No mention was made of legislative funding of the medical school program, but additional monies would be needed by 1968, Huff said, when students begin their third year of the program.

Bomb Filed At Offutt SAC Base

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)--A homemade black powder bomb was found Wednesday in a filing cabinet at the headquarters building of Offutt Air Force Base...

The crudely-made device was disarmed and shipped immediately to the Office of Special Investigation in Washington.

The headquarters building where the bomb was found is not part of the famed underground control center where SAC operations around the world are directed.

An Air Force spokesman said the bomb was found by Lt. Benjie J. Wilson III. It had been placed in a small carton and put in a filing cabinet in the base personnel office.

Wilson disarmed a small dry cell battery attached to a bottle which was part of the device. Air Force spokesmen refused to comment on the exact size and type of bomb. They said they were not permitted to say how big an explosion could have occurred if it had been detonated.

"We have no reading," one spokesman said. Base explosive experts, however, did confirm the device contained a black powder. There was no indication of the type of triggering device used.

Judicare-U.S. Aid For Poor's Trials

By TOM SEGAL State News Editorial Editor

The federal government is experimenting with a new legal aid program for the poor. The project, called Judicare, is an arm of the war on poverty program.

Under Judicare, the government will pay the legal fees for people involved in civil suits who cannot afford a lawyer.

The main Judicare project is in Wisconsin, but smaller experimental programs are being conducted in areas of California, Montana and North Carolina.

The Wisconsin program, which involves 26 northern counties, will probably last two years. It is being financed by a $240,181 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Any resident of the 26-county area may qualify for the program if he earns less than $1,540 a year. But this income scale is graduated so that a person with six or more dependents may earn $5,090 and still qualify.

Basically, Judicare operates as follows: Once a Judicare client has applied for and received an identity card certifying his right to legal aid, he may select any lawyer he wishes from his county or an adjoining county.

The lawyer handles the case as he would any other, but receives his fee from the government.

Joseph F. Preloznik, Judicare's director, said, "This gives the client a wide range of lawyers with a wide range of experience to choose from."

A lawyer receives about 20 per cent less for handling a Judicare case than he would receive from a regular client.

Just as the client may select his own lawyer, the lawyer has the choice of taking the case. (continued on page 2)

Two of the most prominent persons in the arts were scheduled to appear at the annual banquet of the American Federation of Musicians' (AFM) Congress of Strings Wednesday night. Hermin Kenin, president of the AFM, and Roger L. Stevens, special assistant to the President on the arts, arrived in East Lansing Wednesday to speak to the young musicians at their annual dinner. The dinner climaxes the eight-week congress. They also heard the students at a special performance of their concert Wednesday afternoon in the MSU Auditorium. Kenin, the 65-year-old president of the AFM, is a native of New Jersey, and a graduate of Reed College and the Northwest College of Law, and holds an honorary doctorate of music degree from the Philadelphia Academy of Music. Kenin's first profession was music, but in 1931 he turned to law. He has been president of the AFM since 1958, and was vice president of AFL-CIO in 1963. When asked why the AFM chose to have a Congress of Strings, instead of, perhaps, a Congress of Brass or a Congress of Tympany, Kenin had a simple answer ready. "There is a shortage of string players," he said. "There are two or three big orchestras that haven't found enough string players and play short a violin or so." Kenin also had an explanation for the shortage. "In my day," he said, "almost all schools had orchestras, not just bands as they have now with clarinets, trumpets, trombones and so on. "There have been changes in public habits. There was a time when hotels had a little string group in each room and every cafe had a violin." Kenin remarked that the problem with the Congress is to keep it down to 100 persons each summer. "It would get out of hand with more," he said. "But it's been so successful and the locals are so happy about it that it's been troublesome to keep the total down." Stevens, also chairman of the National Council on the Arts and a member of the Board of Trustees of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, has the job of encouraging all branches of the arts and recommending ways to maintain and increase cultural resources of the United States. Stevens was born in Detroit and holds degrees from the University of Michigan, Wayne State and Tulane University. Before becoming active in the arts, Stevens was a real estate broker specializing in hotels and investment properties. He has been producing partner in over 100 Broadway shows in the last 10 years, including "West Side Story," "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," "Bus Stop," "Tea and Sympathy" and "Mary, Mary." Stevens believes that the National Council on the Arts, just created by Congress in 1964, will be able to propose varied methods to encourage private initiative in the arts, but not computerize them. "Due to the new foundation" he said, "we can now use federal funding to stimulate local private effort, whether it be the artist, entrepreneur or cities and states, to get such efforts over the humps that now stand in the way of their becoming self-supporting and self-directing." The venture on which the national council has embarked, said Stevens in his report, "The State of the Arts," poses one of the most interesting challenges American society has faced. "We are about to find out," he said, "whether we have the sense and the spirit to give aid from our taxes." Stevens' council has aided the American Ballet Theatre, a Laboratory Theater Project for Education, and has created the American Film Institute to train directors and writers for the movie industry.

Christos Kazanis, who had already spent two years in prison for disobeying draft orders, appealed the death sentence and higher military authorities agreed to review it. Another unidentified Jehovah's Witness was given the death sentence six months ago, authorities disclosed, but it was later commuted to seven years imprisonment.

"Sooner or later," said Lionel Alonso, 34, Castro will be toppled. He said that the plans against Castro are notable "particularly in the armed forces." Alonso, who left Beirut with his wife and daughter last week, became the third Cuban diplomat to break with the Communist government during the past four months, according to exile sources here.

No Rehabilitation For Trotsky
MOSCOW (AP)—The memory of revolutionist Leon Trotsky will not be rehabilitated, Pravda said Wednesday. The Communist party paper criticized Western sources for suggesting such a thing might occur during the 50th anniversary celebrations of the revolution. Trotsky was perhaps second only to V.I. Lenin as a leader of the 1917 Bolshevik revolution that brought communism to power. He lost out in a struggle with Josef V. Stalin and was later murdered in Mexico. He is denounced in the Soviet Union as a traitor.

FIRST PHOTOS TODAY
Moon's Backside Exposed

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—America's Lunar Orbiter spacecraft focuses its television camera on the backside of the moon today for the start of its picture-taking mission to find possible manned landing sites. The 850-pound photographic laboratory was scheduled to take 352 pictures of nine possible landing sites on the front of the moon, but scientists here would like to match Russia's feat in obtaining pictures of the backside for scientific purposes. Lunar Orbiter, launched on its 235,466-mile journey last Wednesday from Cape Kennedy, is circling the moon every 31 1/2 hours on an orbital path that brings it as close as 126,2 miles from the moon as 126,2 miles and 1,150.2 miles respectively. The picture-taking session was slated to start during the spacecraft's 26th orbit at 10:42 a.m. with the first photo to be received on earth during the 27th orbit at 3:43 p.m. "All systems are working as planned for Thursday," said a spokesman for the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory here. Scientists anticipated no problems. The first picture was expected to be televised directly to the public as it is received and converted at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's deep space network at JPL. The first series were slated to be transmitted in partial frames which, when pasted together, will be composites of 16 photographs covering an area of the lunar landscape 78 miles wide and 1,472 miles long. Lunar Orbiter's initial pictures were not expected to reveal too much lunar detail to the naked eye.

Stocks Dip Moderates

NEW YORK (UPI)—Late bargain hunters helped take some of the sting out of another decline on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday. Trading was moderately active. Prices drifted slightly lower in the first two hours in reaction to an increase in the "prime" interest rate by First National City Bank of New York but dropped sharply after noon as many leading banks across the country followed the move. Buyers, apparently attracted by the low prices created in the slide on Tuesday and early Wednesday, moved in during the final hour and helped cut losses substantially. Glamour shares benefited most from the buying wave. The United Press International Stock Market Indicator dropped nearly 1 per cent before the buying started but by the close its deficit was slashed to 0.77 per cent. Of 1,420 issues traded, 883 retreated, 320 to new 1966 lows, while 278 advanced, only three to new highs. Using April 1, 1966 prices as a 100 base, the UPI indicator stood at 90.92.

ROME (AP)—Authorities Wednesday counted more than 40 dead from auto accidents and from weekend storms that raked northern Italy with lightning, torrential rains and winds that caused many auto accidents. At least 12 persons perished when waves swamped small sailboats on northern Italy's picturesque lakes. Lightning killed at least eight others, including four mountain climbers struck as they scaled peaks in the Alps.

Movie Producer Purged
HONG KONG (AP)—Red China's top movie producer has been purged because his film advocated "human love" between a rich man and a poor girl, a Hong Kong newspaper said Wednesday. "This lack of class struggle is a clear case of revisionism," the independent newspaper Ming Pao said in reporting Tsai Chu-sheng was the latest Chinese leader to be caught up in Peking's purge. The newspaper said Tsai, chairman of All China Federation of Motion Picture Workers, and his magazine, Motion Picture Arts, had been under severe attack from newspapers in Communist China for anti-party activities.

UNION AND NON-UNION

New Policy Covers All Employees

By ANDREW MOLLISON State News Staff Writer

Injured employees, union and non-union alike, are covered by the University's new "full pay" policy for the period of recovery.

Under the "full pay" policy, accumulated sick leave and vacation time will be credited on an hourly basis to pay an employee the difference between his regular wages and payments required under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The "full pay" policy, specified for union members in the contract which went into effect July 1, also applies to non-union employees, including students, who are eligible for payments under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Paul V. Rumpsa, comptroller, outlined the new policy in a memorandum sent to divisional heads last week. He said the Manual of Business Procedures is being revised to reflect the new policy.

The Workmen's Compensation Act requires the University to make certain minimal payments to employees who are injured while working. Michigan State, unlike many private employers, does not buy insurance to cover such payments. Instead it makes them directly to the injured employee. The Act provides no payments for the first seven days of an employee's absence from work unless the absence exceeds 14 calendar days. Its payments are below a worker's regular wage.

The "full pay" policy was adopted to offset this drop in earnings at the very time that the employee may have additional expenses.

In some cases, for example that of a student employee who misses only a few days work, the employee's supervisor and the University Business Office may decide that it is easier and cheaper to continue regular pay than to file reports under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

But in all other cases in which the injured employee has earned sick time or vacation credits, the "full pay" policy will automatically apply. But Kenneth Schram of the University Business Office said Wednesday afternoon that as far as he knew no claims had been filed yet under the new policy.

2 U.S. Brothers Held In Hungarian Prison

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Dept. confirmed Wednesday that two young Americans were jailed in Hungary last June.

John Savko, 25, and Michael Savko, 23, brothers from Van Nuys, Calif., wrote the U.S. legation in Budapest from prison that they were arrested June 30 on a "small political crime." The letter, which passed the prison censor, did not give a charge.

The letter was received Aug. 8 and the legation immediately requested the Hungarian Foreign Ministry to spell out the charges and to permit a U.S. consular official to visit the brothers.

The State Dept., press officer Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference, has notified Mr. and Mrs. John Savko, parents of the brothers.

Marines Disperse Anti-War Pickets

PORT CHICAGO, Calif. (UPI)—Several wild melees erupted Wednesday as rifle-carrying U.S. Marines humped, shoved and knocked anti-war demonstrators from a highway entrance to Concord naval weapons station.

The incidents occurred after Marines, ordered to keep the road open to the primary shipping point for munitions sent to Viet Nam, dragged and pushed single demonstrators from the highway as napalm bomb trucks approached.

In Atlanta, meantime, soldiers forcibly ejected about 20 Negroes who infiltrated a group of Army recruits and staged a shouting demonstration. Several of the demonstrators carried signs, including one which read:

"No Viet Cong ever called me nigger."

The same slogan appeared recently in Cleveland, Ohio. It was on a lapel button of a leader at the JFK house, a militant youth center near the riot-torn Hough district.

Atlanta police were not called because the demonstration occurred inside 12th Army Corps headquarters. Civilian authorities stood by at Port Chicago where the early morning incident involving the Marines also occurred on federal property.

After one girl was shouldered into a water-filled ditch when she sat in the path of a truck, many of the 200 pickets swarmed onto the highway. They were met by Marines who forced them to the side of the road.

Two television newsmen were roughed up during one melee. The American Broadcasting Co. newsmen, from KGO-TV in San Francisco, were shoved from the base gate by Marines when they attempted to take photographs. One camera was broken and a microphone cord cut.

Ten persons were arrested by Marines on charges of trespassing on government property. It brought to about 50 the number arrested since picketing began on an around-the-clock basis earlier this month at the station 25 miles northeast of San Francisco.

The pickets have been from several organizations, including the Viet Nam Day Committee, a militant anti-war group.

'Frustration' Caused Riots - Not Agitators

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach testified Wednesday that an investigation showed big city riots had been caused by frustrations of ghetto life—"not Communists, black nationalists or terrorists."

"I don't want to be predicting where there will be new violence," Katzenbach said. "But there are 30 to 40 cities with the same problems, same frustrations, the same tensions that need only some unpredictable event to set them off."

"Negroes are on the short end of the stick," Katzenbach testified before the Senate Subcommittee on Executive Reorganization. The panel is seeking the underlying cause of racial explosions in U.S. ghettos and is trying to determine what federal aid programs do to combat urban ills.

In the Hough area of Cleveland and in the Watts district of Los Angeles, Katzenbach said, a Justice Dept. investigation uncovered evidence that extreme left wing groups had attempted to exploit racial violence.

"But they didn't succeed," Katzenbach said. "There's no indication that these riots were planned, controlled or run by extreme left wing elements."

The attorney general said he disagreed with a Cleveland grand jury report last week linking the causes of the Hough riots with agitators.

Sukarno's U.S. Blast Cheered

JAKARTA (UPI)—President Sukarno won cheers Wednesday when he told a vast crowd the U.S. should "get out of Viet Nam." But he got unprecedented jeers when he claimed he had made Indonesia a better place to live.

Giving a typically emotional address marking the 21st anniversary of Indonesia's independence, the 64-year-old "father of the country" also publicly condemned for the first time the abortive Communist coup last October and disclaimed responsibility for the conditions leading up to it.

But when he said he raised Indonesia's living conditions, whistling and jeering students shouted, "Let's go home."

At least one thousand did leave before police sealed the exits to the square in which an estimated 100,000 persons were jammed.

Police said another million persons were in the area surrounding Jakarta's Freedom Palace to hear Sukarno. The two and a quarter hour speech was carried throughout the nation on radio.

Sukarno backed off from an apparent collision course with military strongman Gen. Suharto to whom he signed over sweeping executive powers last March, although he still claimed to be "president. . . great leader of the revolution. . . mandator of congress."

Sukarno said he delegated to Suharto responsibility "to safeguard the government, to safeguard the authority of the president and to safeguard the teachings of Sukarno. Suharto has done a good job and I thank him for it."

"There is no difference between the president and Suharto," Sukarno added. "There is no tripping up each other. There is the gift of strength from the supreme commander to the peace negotiator."

Suharto, looking tired, also was on the speaker's rostrum.

In his reference to Suharto as a peace negotiator, Sukarno was referring to the accord signed last week with Malaysia, ending a three year border war. Sukarno had opposed the signing of the agreement, but explained Wednesday he had done so because there were "still matters endangering the republic," which in the end were removed.

He implied that because of this, he allowed the agreement to go through. He did not say what the matters were.

Sukarno's reference to the October coup was not a long, nor a very strong one. He referred to it as "a crucial period that almost destroyed the unity of our nation. Thank God, we were able to prevent the destructive results." He said the chaos inherited from previous regimes caused the coup attempt.

"It was not my fault," he declared.

As in the past, however, Sukarno attacked the United States.

"I implore America, leave Viet Nam," he said. "Please America, please get out of Viet Nam."

At this, students shouted, "Correct, correct."

Police Nab Second Murder Suspect On Underworld Tip

LONDON (UPI)—Acting on an underworld tip, police Wednesday seized a scar-faced, tattooed man as the second of three men wanted in the slaying of three London policemen.

John Duddy, 37, was captured in a tenement only 50 yards from a police station in Glasgow, Scotland. He surrendered to unarmed police without resistance. Duddy, tattooed on the arms with a pierced skull and heart and the words "True Unto Death," had no weapons. He was hustled to London within hours.

He was formally charged "in connection with the murders" of three unarmed police officers last Friday near Wormwood Scrubs Prison in London. The officers were shot to death.

A force of 18,000 police throughout Britain was searching for a third suspect, Happy Maurice Roberts, 30. Like Duddy, he bore scars from years in the underworld and was tattooed.

Police have already charged one man, John Witney, 36, with murder in the slaying of the three officers when they stopped a car near a prison to question the occupants.

Witney was behind bars in a London prison pending completion of investigations into the slayings—the worst involving police since 1910 when three officers were killed by anarchists and two were injured.

In London, where third suspect Roberts was thought to be hiding, frogmen groped through the murky waters of the river Thames in search of the murder weapon. They gave up after several hours, unable to see in the swirling mud.

At a nearby police laboratory, scientists minutely examined the killers' getaway car in the hope of finding evidence to convict the men who shot the detectives from point blank range.

Despite Duddy's reputation for violence, the Scottish flying squad officers were unarmed when they swarmed into the tenement building on Stevenson Street Wednesday.

"The public response has been extremely good," said a senior officer at Shepherds Bush police station to which the three detectives were attached.

This public response has been good in another respect—assistance for the dead officers' families.

More than $14,000 has already been handed into Shepherds Bush police station and most stations throughout Britain reported growing contributions.

A separate trust fund established by the lord mayor of London to aid dependents of policemen killed on duty is expected to reach $700,000. It includes one $280,000 donation.

An old age pensioner sent in one pound ($2.80) and apologized for not being able to afford more. "It is times like these," said metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir Joseph Simpson, "that the police realize so much more clearly the great volume of goodwill and support they receive from the bulk of the people. . ."

Top Golf Facilities For MSU Compliments Of Forest Akers

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

Michigan State used to be the only Big Ten school without a golf course. Then they got the beautiful Harrison Road layout.

Many Big Ten universities now have more than one course, and MSU will be no exception when the new nine-hole course, now under construction, opens its fairways next spring.

MSU can thank one man for its excellent golfing facilities—Forest Akers.

Akers is 79 years old and has been ill of late, but he still continues his occasional visits to the University which he has helped build and of which he has been a major benefactor.

Akers and MSU were not always so friendly. Akers was asked to leave Michigan State while attending classes in the early 1900's.

After receiving his walking papers for what he termed "raising too much hell," Akers attained great success as sales manager of Chrysler Corporation's Dodge division. He served as a member of the governing board of the University for 18 years and, after retirement, among other gifts to MSU, provided the excellent Forest Akers Golf Course.

"The golf course was something the University lacked," Akers said. "Michigan State was the only school in the Big Ten without one."

"The legislature didn't like the idea of the University building a golf course, so I told John Hannah I would pay for it."

Akers didn't want just any golf course. He wanted a very special course, and the Forest Akers layout is recognized today as one of the state's finest.

"I wanted trees on the course, and not just willows or evergreens," he said. "I wanted all of the trees which are native to Michigan."

"I wanted a course that would be beautiful in the year 2000. It is getting to be beautiful."

As far as Akers is concerned, he built the course for the people of MSU.

"This course is for two groups of people—the students and the faculty," Akers said.

Interest in golf has mounted in recent years, and the student body has grown. Those who have been unable to play on the Forest Akers course due to crowded conditions can appreciate the need for additional facilities.

Akers realized this also, and, as a result, is financing the building of another course.

Located directly across Harrison Road from the present 18 holes, the new course has been seeded and should be ready for play by sometime next spring.

The new course, which has not yet been named, will be different from the long, somewhat-difficult Forest Akers course.

"The new course will be shorter, in order to interest women and beginners and those who wish to play a game of golf in a short time," Akers said.

Plans call for a driving range and an additional nine holes to be added when the first nine are completed.

"My last desire is for Michigan State to have two 18-hole courses, one on each side of Harrison Road," Akers said. "I want the two courses to fit everyone. Then, that will be my last contribution and my monument."

Why does a man want to give so much to a school from which he was expelled?

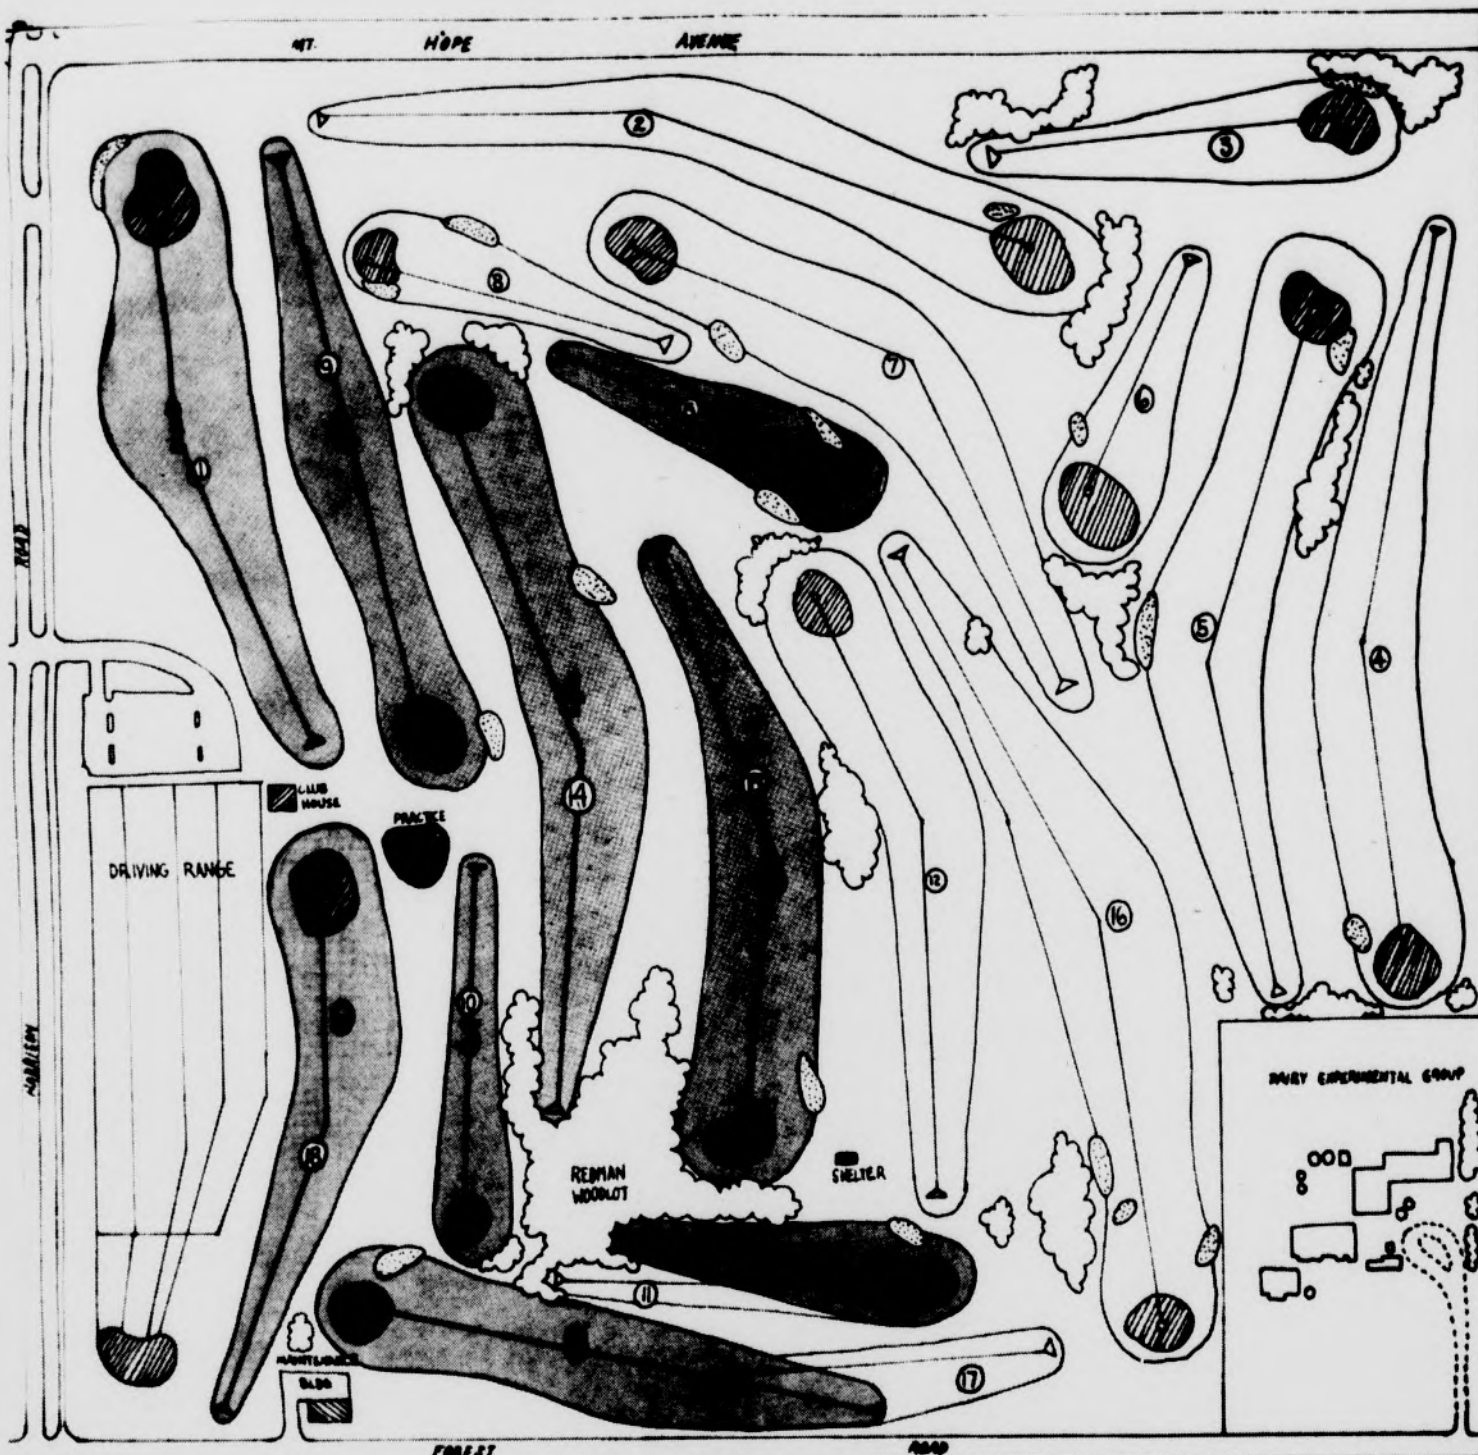

"I was accused of some misdemeanors which I was innocent of," Akers said. "But there were things which I did that they didn't catch me at."

He added that Michigan State was completely justified in expelling him.

"Being on the board for 18 years gave me a focal point," Akers said. "Michigan State has served as an outlet for my energies and has been my chief interest for years, and will remain so as long as I live."

One would expect that a person who donates two golf courses would be someone adept and close to the game of golf.

"I was a dub golfer," Akers said. "A golf course was just something which Michigan State needed."

To Open Next Spring

Above is an artist's conception of the layout proposed for MSU's new golf course. Forest Akers is financing the course, which will open as nine holes next spring, with nine additional holes to be added at some later date. The new course is located on Harrison Road, across from the present University course, Forest Akers.

BIG 10 PREVIEW

Iowa: New Coach, Offense, But Even More Problems

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

Iowa is in the worst situation of any team in the Big Ten. The major problems for the Hawkeye gridgers in '66 are having to adjust to a new coach and a new offense and replacing 13 starters lost from last season's team.

Jerry Burns was selected by the famous ex-Iowa coach, Forest Evashevski, to succeed to the Hawkeye job when Evy became athletic director. After last season's 0-7 Big Ten mark, Evy decided that it was time for another change.

Ray Nagel left the head coaching job at Utah to take over the sick remains of Burns' '65 club. Nagel plans to use the winged-T formation with a split end, utilized so well by his boss when Evashevski led Iowa to a pair of conference titles.

It takes players to run any kind of offense, however, and the Hawkeyes not only lost 13 starters, they lost what were probably all of their top players.

Seven Hawks signed pro contracts, which means, of course, that Iowa suffered seven big losses.

Gary Snook, who had an outstanding junior year, but flopped last season, signed with the St. Louis Cardinals. He has since been drafted into military service.

Despite Snook's troubles, Iowa has lost a fine quarterback, and the replacements are anything but experienced.

Phil Schooley filled in when Snook wasn't quarterbacking last fall, but after spring drills, Schooley has slipped down into the "also at quarterback" role. Junior Chuck Roland played in five games last season and has shown intelligence, and sophomore Ed Podolak has competitive spirit, the coaching staff says.

Iowa fans are hoping that one of the candidates has talent to go along with these other niceties. Fullback Silas McKinnie, from Inkster, led Iowa rushers with 286 yards in 89 carries. McKinnie was injured and missed two games. His return and that of part-time halfback starter Jerry O'Donnell are two of the few good signs for '66.

A certain coach, after losing every game on his season's schedule, was notified that he was being replaced.

In parting, he said, "They say that defeats are stepping stones to victory. Well, my successor sure has a lot of stepping stones." That is about all that Burns left Nagel—a lot of stepping stones.
