Referendum To Decide $1,000 Aid To 18-Vote

ASMSU's $1,000 allocation to the 18-year-old vote campaign will be subject to an all-University referendum Nov. 1.

The move came when the board was presented with petitions calling for the referendum. According to the ASMSU constitution, if 10 per cent of the undergraduate student body petitions an action of the board, the action must be referred to the students in an all-University election.

The petitions, circulated by Pat Terry, former president of Snyder Hall, received 2,962 signatures, andwere informally validated at the board meeting. This figure exceeds the required 10 per cent of full-time undergraduate students by approximately 35 signatures.

"If a group redefines its role," Terry said of the board's action in the 18-year-old vote issue, "without its constituency, they are making a grave mistake. They are taking power which should not be in their hands."

Since most student board members cannot be threatened by the question of re-election since many of them are seniors, Terry said that petitions were the only answer for interaction between the board and students.

The petitions, he said, reached probably only half of the student body, due to poor organization in the distribution. But the signatures of 10 per cent of the undergraduate student body were obtained.

"I think there is no question that the student body wants to vote on the issue," Terry said.

Most of the board's discussion on the issue concerned wording on the ballot. Members expressed concern that the ballot not be an opinion poll.

Vote will cost $200

The referendum will state: "Motion: that $870 be transferred from Spartan Spirit funds and $130 allocated from the ASMSU general fund for the support of the 18-year-old vote campaign in the Ingham County area. Yes or No. (Initiative effort from the student body of MSU)"

The referendum wording was primarily taken from the petitions.

Mike Levine, elections commissioner, began work on the referendum Wednesday. Costs will probably be around $200.

After deciding upon the referendum, the board discussed informally the question of a student opinion poll in conjunction with the referendum.

The questions they were primarily concerned with were student body support of the 18-year-old vote issue itself and of student government involvement in political affairs.

They finally decided that Student Opinion Research Director Ted O'Neill will conduct a survey on goals of ASMSU, which would include these questions. The content of the survey will be decided upon by the ASMSU agenda committee.

A committee consisting of two members who voted Oct. 11 in favor of the allocation and two who voted against it will conduct an educational campaign to inform students of both sides of the issue.

This committee is composed of Larry Owen, president of Interfraternity Council (IFC); Jim Carbine, vice chariman of ASMSU; Anne Osborne, president of Women's Inter-Residence Council (WIC) and John Mongeon, president of Men's Hall Assn. (MHA). Hank Plante, secretary of ASMSU, will act as a non-voting chairman.

Action was also taken to prevent further commitment to the 18-year-old vote campaign, pending the results of the Nov. 1 referendum. This would exclude commitments already made, since approximately $400 of the appropriated $1,000 has already been committed to the Michigan Citizen's Committee for the Vote at 18 for various campaign materials.

Ky's ministers retract charges of corruption, rescind resignations

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (P) - Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's hopes of presenting a united Saigon front at the Manila conference rose Wednesday night with an unofficial report that five of seven Cabinet ministers who resigned had torn up their resignations.

The Cabinet walkout had been a blow to Ky because the ministers charged the predominantly military regime was corrupt. This would have damaged the regime's image at the Manila summit meeting on Viet Nam opening Monday.

Ky's press office, told about the report from unofficial sources that five ministers had rescinded their resignations, announced a news conference will be held today to clarify the situation.

The sources said Ky had agreed to rebuke the national police director, Nguyen Ngoc Loan, accused by the seven ministers of ruthless action. They said the premier may also have made some other concessions. A U.S. spokesman had said earlier in the day the crisis "should be regarded as seriously" unlikely to be solved before the Manila meeting. But the situation over-all seemed more an embar-rassment to Ky than a threat to the rule of his military junta.

The resigning ministers said there is corruption in the regime and that they were "concerned that the nation is becoming a police state."

They said the military leaders should "stop poking their noses into business they know nothing about," and that they had insisted "the government show some signs of accomplishing something to better the life of the people in general."

The ministers' statement asserted "corruption is so rife they find it impossible to carry out their duties with any degree of efficiency."

Instead of making concessions to win over the discontented officials, the premier apparently intended to split their opposition.

The ministers who quit were all southerners. They cited a regional feud with Ky and other northerners.

It was understood that southern dissenters had as an immediate target the ouster of the police director, whom they accused of ruthless acts.

The long-range point at issue, sources said, was southern efforts to establish a political foundation for the future at the expense of Ky's inner circle of northerners.

The Ky regime has lasted 16 months longer than any other since the fall of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem.

The 35-member Cabinet contained 12 southern ministers before the resignations. But real power rested with Ky and others who came originally from what is now Communist - controlled North Viet Nam.

WIC against compensation for ASMSU

Women's Inter-Residence Council (WIC) reversed its decision to support the ASMSU compensation committee's proposal by voting 15-2 against the issue Tuesday night. This brings the stand of the committee to a 3-3 tie which must be broken by Ralph Faust, chairman of the ASMSU committee.

The members of WIC presented a mandate to Pat Stone, representative to the compensation committee, because of lack of information among the student body.

Anne Osborne, president of WIC, said

Anne Osborne, president of WIC, said sufficient facts had not been presented to the students on campus, and that the representatives therefore were incapable of accepting or rejecting the plan. On this basis. 13 voted to abstain from decision during a preliminary vote.

Since a positive or negative stand from WIC must be presented to the committee, the proposal was defeated in favor of a fact sheet being prepared and circulated before approval of the committee's draft of the plan.

Pat Stone, president of Mason Hall, opposed the stand. "My understanding was that the distribution of the money is largely a committee responsibility — one checked by the changeover in the compensation committee each term. I personally can't agree with WIC's rationale in making its decision, but, naturally, will vote as mandated," she said.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (P) - President Johnson and Prime Minister Keith J. Holyoake exchanged pledges Thursday to fend off aggression and search for peace in Viet Nam.

The declarations highlighted a 24-hour presidential visit which also included a brief meeting between Johnson and Norman Kirk, the New Zealand Labor party leader who opposes New Zealand's use of troops in Viet Nam. It has 200 artillerymen there under Australian command.

Johnson and Holyoake, whose National party battles the Laborites in elections Nov. 26, sounded their parallel themes at a state luncheon in Parliament House.

As Johnson put it, "for free men, for responsible men, for men of conscience, there is no acceptable alternative but to resist this aggression."

Holyoake said "New Zealand is among that company of those countries which

Profs pondering freedom threats

The faculty committee on student affairs is working out an expedited judicial procedure for meeting immediate threats to academic freedom and replacing the injunctive power suggested to the academic council.

INNOVATIONS

MSU not overboard on gadgetry

EDITOR'S NOTE: Discussions which over - emphasize recent technological and methodological innovations at Michigan State may have led us to believe that adialogue concerning the University's educational system is too late to do any good. So maintains executive reporter Andrew Mollison in this, the fourth of five articles on stereotypes which cripple students, faculty and administrators in their efforts to educate each other.

The language laboratories, Justin Morrill College, the living-learning complexes, the increasing use of programmed texts and closed circuit television, the punch - card - ization of the library--all these show that Michigan State has long been interested in educational innovations.

So much so, in fact, that many people have decided that it's too late to control the direction in which MSU is going.

Indeed, to the student who watches a veterinary operation on CCTV, or to the professor who finds out that his new lecture hall has a movie screen and microphone but no blackboard, or to the administrator who suddenly realizes that he's assembled a small library of photo-copied reference material, the entire question of technological innovation may reasonably appear to be moot.

"If you wish to behold a beautiful technologia, look about you."

But we still have with us the data-deluged director, the professor without enough dimes to copy articles he needs from the library's single copy of an obscure quarterly, and the freshman who discovers that if only he'd learned to type in high school he'd be getting better grades.

I compiled a list of 200 educational innovations -- including methods, models and machinery -- which, as far as I know, have not yet been used extensively at MSU. Then it occurred to me that it would be easy for anyone else to do the same thing.

(Take five minutes to do this,)
We just saved a lot of news space, didn't we?

For the benefit of those who couldn't think of a single new device which we still have a chance to evaluate before putting it into action, here's an example:

Last September at Ohio State University a computer-processor called DATA-GRAM was installed. It is a dial-access learning system, say the manufacturers; in other words, boys and girls sit in booths and dial the lecture they want to listen to

The system has has averaged more than 6,000 calls a day. It has 60 varying instructional programs, 267 students positions, and nine campus locations. The equipment is available 15 hours a day, five days a week, and ten hours a day on weekends.

In other words, friends, we ain't seen nothin' yet.

This series of articles will end tomorrow with a peek behind the facade of pseudo-controversy by which the academic community conceals its basic concurrence.

Tip toeing towards evaluation

The question of student evaluation of courses and professors is not new. We approach it somewhat like a father taking his son to get a drivers license: willing but somewhat skeptical.

Currently under consideration by ASMSU is a pamphlet that would answer objective questions about University College courses. Questions asked would include: How many quizzes are given? Are they announced? Is a paper required? While the efforts are properly cautious, we believe their objectivity goes too far.

First, the evaluation will be made of only University College courses and professors; professors teaching University College courses are not listed in the time schedule. Secondly, the questions asked only skim the surface and do not touch the question of how well a professor communicates with his class, of how well he follows the catalog's outline of the course, etc.

The ASMSU committee apparently plans to use this first attempt at student course evaluations as a spring board to broader studies. But in doing so, its initial proposal should also be meaningful.

Ideally, an evaluation of a professor and the course taught should include a survey made of a large number of students who took the course. Such a survey would require a computer, time and a great deal of money.

Questions asked would be both objective and subjective and students would be expected to rate a teacher in various areas on a fivepoint scale. The booklet would then give the percentage of students that felt a certain way on a particular question.

Answers given as a percentage of those interviewed would put the burden of source interpretation on the reader, rather than the editors. The meaningful question would be there; it would be up to each reader to interpret whether his opinions would lie with the majority in the survey.

Such a large evaluation is, obviously, out of the realm of possibility on ASMSU's first attempt. The important thing is that the attempt is being made and that the attempt is headed in the right

Open door policy, Big Brother style

Mass participation in the multiversity: all students living in residence halls are expected to take part in open houses. It's the thing to do.

Rules developed by MHA require that during an open house "all doors must be open except in cases where all occupants of a room are absent from the room."

In other words take part or leave for the afternoon.

What about the student who wants to close his door and study or take a shower or a nap? His only recourse is to get special permission from his hall's head adviser.

One student recently asked his head adviser for permission to close his door during open house to take a shower. Permission was granted.

Parking tickets shock students

To the Editor:

On every weekend since the beginning of the term, we have parked our cars in the parking bay on Chestnut Road across from East Wilson Hall, safe in the assumption that this was legal parking according to the Michigan State University Student Motor Vehicle Regulation number 16, Section F 4, paragraph "c."

Then on the morning of October 16, we were given a rude awakening. Every car parked in the bay was ticketed. Upon an interview with the Campus Police, we learned that over 130 tickets were issued on that night, the majority of which were for similar violations.

The justification that we were given is that it is an East Lansing city ordinance that no one shall park in any street or adjoining bay from 2 a.m. to 6 a.m. This is to allow for snow removal.

The Michigan State University Student Motor Vehicle Regulation number 16, which is distributed to each student upon registration of his car, makes no reference to this ordinance. And there are no warning signs in the Chestnut Street area. As students of this university, we try to follow the dictates of our law enforcement agencies. However, we feel that student respect for the law would be increased if our Student Motor Vehicle Regulation would clarify all such fine points

JMC students sincere?

To the editors:

On October 14, 1966, the United Nations Association of MSU held their initial meeting of the academic year. In attempting to increase interest and participation in this organization, the students of Justin Morrill College were encouraged to attend. Our interest aroused by the reminders sent out by JMC, we decided to go to this meeting. To our surprise and disappointment there were only approximately thirty people from the entire student body of 40.000, and a mere four of the thirty were from JMC. Since Dean Rohman, Dean of Justin Morrill College, has said many times. "We pursue an international theme in the college," one would expect an interest and participation in international organizations on campus by JMC students. However, this is obviously not the case. We wonder just how sincere JMC students are in their dedication to the international theme of the college.

Russian Christians

To the Editor:

In reference to Dr. Graham's thoughtprovoking letter of today:

While it is morally justifiable for a Russian Christian to work, as a Communist, for a more "just and humane" Communist society, wouldn't it be equally justifiable for the same Russian to work for the abolition of the system, if he thinks it inhumane and unjust in the first place?

It would seem in this case that the Christian is morally bound to work for a socially -better society by the most effective and pratical means, no matter what name these means might bear.

In such cases I feel that we should admit, that compared to Communism, our society isn't so bad after all.

Genesee GOP hits Dem's action

By MARCIA COURTNEY State News Staff Writer

A public apology has been demanded from the Genesee County Democratic party by the county Republican committee chairman for turning an educational seminar into a "political circus."

Dr. F. W. VanDuyne, Republican committee chairman, referred to the appearance of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, (D-Mass.) at a Flint Federation of Teachers institute, Oct. 14.

VanDuvne said he is not criticizing Kennedy's appearance, but is criticizing the auditorium being jammed with Democratic candidates, and several of the candidates making speeches asking for political support.

'The Genesee County Democratic party forcibly took over this meeting," he said.

Democratic candidates on stage included Zolton Ferency, former governor G. Mennen Williams, U. S. Rep. John C. Mackie, Michigan Supreme Court Justice Otis M. Smith and the state representatives from Genesee county.

VanDuyne said when Rein the audience to hear Kennedy realized what was happening, they went backstage to see if the Democrats were taking over the meeting. "They were physically blocked from the stage by a plain-clothes policeman and members of the local Democratic party," he continued. He also charged that people were parading with signs advertising Democratic candidates on the school property, in the halls and in the auditorium itself. Kennedy was in Michigan Thursday and Friday to aid Williams's Senate campaign.

He opened and concluded his remarks at the meeting by saying the Senate needs men like Williams whose concern is the welfare of the people.

Kennedy discussed accomplishments and goals in the area of education.

He said the recent education bill increased funds to all school districts with $55 million going to Michigan.

He outlined a three-point program for improvement of education: increasing commitments of time and money, raising teacher salaries, and improving the quality of teachers especially in poverty districts.

Once upon a time there was a myth that business was the best of all possible careers. No more. Today there is a new myth: That business is a dirty word.

But the fact behind the myth, says the president of a major U.S. corporation, is that today business is moving toward flexible, non-bureaucratic, organization that will give people the opportunity for self-realization and service.

So Ted Doan, president of Dow Chemical Corporation, added another view to the growing "bus-

Graham requests full progress report

ASMSU Chairman Jim Graham received student board approval Tuesday night to write each member of the Academic Council concerning the Academic Freedom report.

Graham will ask on behalf of Council will publish a calendar the students of MSU for a progress report on the Academic Freedom report, since the Academic Council has not published a statement since fall classes concerning the status of the report as well as when acceptance can be expected. This calendar would probably be submitted to the State News, Graham said. Although the Council has a tentative schedule, Graham believes they should announce publicly a definite calendar. The Academic Freedom report is a series of recommendations made by the Faculty Committee for Student Affairs after approximately six months of research. The committee submitted its report to the Academic Council in June. The Academic Steering Committee researched faculty opinion over the summer and presented its findings to the Academic council in September.

After making recommendations, the council returned the report to the faculty committee last week for revision. It will return to the Academic Council

Big 10 not 'big cheese'

By ROBERTA YAFIE State News Sports Writer

Q: WHAT'S HAPPENING TO THE BIG TEN? A: NOTHING.

That's the word from Bill Reed, Big Ten Commissioner. The conference's critics, however, seem to disagree.

The commentary runs like this:
While Michigan State is ripping Penn State apart, Wisconsin is being terrorized by Big Eight champ Nebraska, 31-3. Indiana gets a beating from Texas, 35-0, and Northwestern gets knocked off by Florida, 43-7, while Ohio State is being plowed under by Washington 38-23 Washington, 38-22.

In other words, the Big Ten should stick to its own kind. The Spartans, and perhaps Purdue, offer a glimmer of hope, standing 3-0 and 2-1, respectively, out of the conference.

In an article last week, Sports Illustrated expressed the way things are and why through a dozen interesting reasons:

1) Big Ten teams do not take non-conference games seriously; 2) It's too hot in Gainsville, Fla. for a Chicago boy to play football there in September; 3) There's an ability gap, because high school football in the Midwest is not what it used to be; 4) Texas backs run faster; 5) Texas linemen run faster;

6) The Big Ten ought to get more players from Texas; 7) Restrictions on numbers, scholarships, traveling squads, redshirts and academic standing combine to make the Big Ten more Ivy League than big league; 8) Big Ten schools ought to schedule Ivy League schools and drop Big Eight schools; 9) West Coast teams have a superabundance of junior college transfers; 10) They should a) build more junior colleges in the Midwest or, b) bar junior-college transfers; 11) Desegregation is breaking up that old underground railroad of southern Negro talent; and 12) There is, across the country, a Great Leveling Off, and no conference or team will ever dominate again.

Perhaps the absurdity of some of the above is indicative of the real problem here. Yet, according to Commissioner Reed, the Great Leveling Off is the crux of the problem.

"I don't think you can read anything deeply significant into the events of one year, or even five," Reed said.

"As long as schools are playing each other on such a broad basis as today, no area is going to be dominant, just on the law

So far this season, the Big Ten is 10-15 against non-conference opponents, with three more non-league games to be played this

Last year, the conference had a 10-13-3 mark out of the Big Ten. The slip has been from 19-2-2 in 1960 to records of 15-7, 14-10 and 13-13.

Whether it be a general upswing throughout the nation or a sharp decline in the Midwest, it's evident that the Big Ten has ceased being the "Big Cheese." 'Some of the restrictions we have are stricter than in other conferences," Spartan Coach Duffy Daugherty said, "but our conference teams are not as bad as it's been made out. "We're not as tense in our play as in conference games," he said of non-league contests. "Big Ten teams get stronger as the season goes on, and we play non-conference teams the first three weeks." Daugherty is looking for NCAA legislation requiring traveling squads of 44. 'In that way," he said, "you could carry two men for each position on both units. You could utilize your squad to a higher degree and safeguard against injuries.'

The conference may very well be out Ivy-Leaguing the Ivies. The minimum GPA in the Big Ten is 1.70--the blanket minimum

The Big Ten has a ban on redshirting--putting players on a five-year program. Scholarships in the Big Ten are limited to are composed of 40 men; some others go as high as 55.

Still, Reed considers all the existing league policies sound ones, although he was quick to say that if there is anything in the program that represents a dissipation of athletic strength and doesn't affect principles of athletic standards, it will be taken under

The Big Ten takes athletics seriously," he said. "We have always considered ourselves leaders." Leaders they may still be--in the Great Leveling Off--which could be especially beneficial to the home folks in lowa City, Bloomington and Evanston. Perhaps a 1.7 and a room in Case, rather than the Bear Bryant

I read the sport's column in last Wednesday's paper at first humorously and then with unbelief. Baseball may not be today what it once was, but the examples the writer cites seem to have been written more out of ignorance than out of justification.

dance? The New York Mets? Before they arrived, how long had it been since Willie Mays or Sandy Koufax, two heroes of National League fans in the Big City, had been in town? How long had it been since any National League club had appeared in New York, save in the World Series?

These facts the writer seems to East and I have noted that Detroit have overlooked. I hope in the future he will be more aware about the leg.

"Cynical" Tiger fans? Maybe that's cause the team is so dull.

Fans going to see the Mets? If they'll accept that kind of anti-baseball, I wouldn't be proud of it. Face it, Steve, baseball has degenerated into a checker game.---DC

Faculty committee report

State News should be a studentrun, student - operated publication, but implementing that principle in details of organization is a knotty problem," John Reinoehl, chairman of the faculty committee for student affairs, said.

Part of the question of State News control arises from the University's position as publisher of the paper, subsidizing it partly through student fees.

Using suggestions sent to it by the academic council, the faculty committee is revising its original report on University rules and structures affecting academic freedom. The revised report will be presented to the
