CARBINE, SINK ELECTED TO ASMSU

Premier Ky Willing To Go All Out

SAIGON (UPI)—Authoritative sources Wednesday said Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has stiffened in his determination not to surrender to Buddhist demands for the immediate capitulation of his military regime and is prepared to use all the force necessary to remain in power.

The report coincided with an official Saigon radio report that Buddhist church leaders today will end their boycott of the National political congress called by the junta to pave the way toward the return of civilian rule.

There was no confirmation of the broadcast by Buddhist leaders who have pledged to carry their campaign against military rule "to the last drop of blood." The Buddhists have called a massive protest demonstration in Saigon today to show popular support for their case.

The congress marked time during the day, setting up committees, while a seven-man delegation visited Buddhist leaders to plead with them to take their seats.

Informed sources said that even if the Buddhist leaders have decided to attend, the decision does not necessarily mean an end to the crisis. They said the Buddhist representatives may well be planning to take their seats to use Ky's congress as a platform for further denunciations of him and the junta.

Sources said Ky hoped to avoid the use of military force but will not hesitate if necessary to prevent his government from being toppled.

"We simply can't afford to have another government overthrown by demonstrating beatniks," sources quoted Ky as telling friends earlier this week.

"If I backed down, I would be a coward; and if I stepped down, I would be a traitor," he also was quoted as saying.

Ky brought in a 1,200-man combat-ready regiment from the war front to bolster paratroopers and other security forces in Saigon and has alerted a second regiment for movement into the capital in the event it is needed to preserve order.

Men Of Emmons See UFO Move

Residents of Emmons Hall reported that they observed a bright moving object which changed colors in the sky Tuesday night. From their vantage points on hall balconies, the object appeared to be stationary over University Village for a period of 10-15 minutes.

"Then it moved away and disappeared," said Joseph Pleva, Cedar senior. The object moved in a westerly direction.

Pleva said that the object was continuously changing colors, from red to white to green. "In about five minutes it returned into view, not as bright as before but still changing colors," he said.

Campus Police said they received three calls about the object, all from men of Emmons.

A police lieutenant said the occurrence "was a common thing caused by a diffusion of light from the atmosphere." He said, however, that the object in question remained stationary.

Eric Steil, Grosse Pointe Farms sophomore, said he thought everyone was crazy until he saw the object move himself.

Reuther Warns Of Bloodshed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Labor leader Walter P. Reuther warned Wednesday of possible riots and bloodshed unless there is a sharp increase in spending on federal antipoverty programs.

Reuther charged that President Johnson had made a "mistake" in asking Congress for only $1.75 billion in spending authority for the war on poverty next year. He called on the nation's poor to "mobilize a counter thrust to stiffen the political backbones in Washington and get the kind of legislative decisions we need."

Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers (UAW) and an AFL-CIO vice president, spoke at a "Poor People's Convention" of the Citizens Crusade Against Poverty, a private organization financed in part by a $1 million UAW grant.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, speaking at the luncheon meeting, echoed Reuther's view that the United States must continue the war on poverty despite rising costs in Viet Nam.

"A nation that can afford to spend $30 billion to put a man on the moon ought to be willing to make a sizable commitment to put a man on his feet here at home," Humphrey said.

The crusade's goal is to build a nationwide network of groups representing the poor that provides a political counterbalance to the influence of big city officials on antipoverty programs and leadership.

"If the advantaged do not move with boldness, then reason will yield to riots and bitterness will yield to bloodshed, and we will tear asunder the fabric of our society," Reuther said.

The United States cannot afford to make the poor pay for the rising war costs in Asia, he said.

Recount Jr. Board Results

An estimated 5,000 undergraduates turned out for the ASMSU Board elections Wednesday and elected James E. Carbine, Muskegon Junior, and James R. Sink, Chicago, Ill., junior to the senior seats.

Carbine polled 2,926 votes and Sink 3,952. Runner-up Robert A. Musmanno, Holbrook, Mass., junior, polled 1,739 votes.

The unofficial returns at 11:10 p.m. showed that Arthur Tung, Midland sophomore with 2,266 votes and Louis Benson, Miami, Fla., sophomore, with 2,171, were elected to junior member-at-large seats on the board.

However, an automatic recount will take place since the margin was not greater than two per cent of total votes cast.

Robert Niemi, Northville sophomore, trailed Benson unofficially with 2,108 votes. William Lukens, Chicago, Ill., sophomore, followed with 2,038 votes.

At 11:15 p.m. there were no official returns for Senior Class officers.

In the Off-Campus Council race, six members from East Lansing and five from the Lansing area were elected.

Student Board members-at-large have full voting privileges on the board. A vote from a member at large is equal to the vote of a representative of a major governing group.

Student Board, according to the ASMSU constitution, has decision making responsibility of an all-university nature effecting the operations of all MSU student organizations.

This year's campaign, the second in the history of ASMSU, has not focused on specific issues, but rather has aimed at policy revisions designed to increase the effectiveness of student government.

Most member-at-large candidates focused on what they consider to be ASMSU's need for better communications. They differed only with reference to what has to be better communicated with—students, faculty, administration, other student governing groups, the press and ASMSU itself.

A few candidates supported such things as compensation, popular entertainment, legal aid and Winter Carnival, but these were not made key issues in the campaign lacking, for the most part, any issues at all.

New members-at-large take office upon the official announcement of election results. Their first duty will be the selection of the two appointed members-at-large, a board chairman and vice chairman, and cabinet president, at a closed meeting of the full board to be held at 6 p.m. today.

Under the ASMSU constitution, the board will select two members-at-large, one of whom must be female, from those students who have submitted petitions by 4 p.m. today.

Williams Takes Initiative In Senate Seat Campaign

By LEO ZAINEA
State News Staff Writer

Former Governor G. Mennen Williams, candidate for the Democratic Senate nomination, Wednesday made his first pledge of what is expected to be a free-swinging campaign.

At a press conference in the office of House Speaker Joseph Kowalski, D-Detroit, the tanned Williams, sporting his legendary polka-dot bow tie, said if elected he would open a full-time office in Lansing.

The new office would keep him in close touch with legislative action here and would provide a liaison between his Michigan constituents and his hoped-for office in Washington.

Williams will also maintain an office in Detroit, as Michigan Senators have in the past. Williams said the action was prompted by the U.S. Senate recently making it possible for Senators to have two state offices instead of one.

"My experience as Governor has taught me the need for better working relations between the state and federal governments," Williams said.

"Members of the Legislature have told me they find frequent need to gain information and action from federal agencies. The Lansing office would work closely with the Legislature and the state executive agencies in efforts to improve Michigan's participation in President Johnson's Great Society programs."

Presumably the office would be in Lansing's Federal Building. In answer to reporters' questions on whether he would debate the rival Democratic candidate, Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, Williams said he would, but "only after he resigns as mayor and becomes a full-time candidate."

Cavanagh and Williams have been trading verbal swipes the past few weeks and Cavanagh included in his remarks a challenge to a face-to-face debate on the "great issues of the day."

Williams anticipates the subject of Viet Nam will creep into the campaign and said he was prepared to discuss it. However, he indicated that he will make no

'Soapy' Says Talks Out Until Fighting Ends

By DENICE ANDERSON
State News Staff Writer

Negotiations are impossible while there is fighting between the Communists and the South Vietnamese, but the United States should continue to help strive for peace, G. Mennen Williams, former six-term governor of Michigan, said Wednesday.

Williams, who addressed the Campus Young Democrats as a part of his campaign for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, said that if Viet Nam is to become a democratic country, it is going to have to solve its problems itself.

But the U.S. must help Viet Nam develop economically and socially if the Vietnamese are to solve their confusing problems, he said.

Williams said that the way to open the door to Red China is to convince the Chinese that it is in their interests to allow people of other countries to enter Peking.

The U.S. has not been encouraging people to visit Peking because Peking has not been issuing visas, he said.

Red China has too many conditions and reservations that the rest of the world won't readily concede to, Williams said. Those countries that already recognize Red China are not getting any place, anyways, he said.

China is a potential threat, said Williams. It is not as great a threat as the Soviet Union, though, because the Soviet Union has greater industrial powers, he said.

Williams sees no immediate solution to the Viet Nam problem. In response to a question, he said that bombing definitely could not solve the situation.

He concluded that the U.S. must continue to make strong and vigorous efforts to end the war in Viet Nam.

1 Quart Of Help Rhodesia Bound

DALLAS (UPI)—W. Barney Johnson, who disapproves of the oil embargo against Rhodesia, mailed a quart of oil today to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

"I just decided to do it as a protest," he told the Dallas Times Herald. "I'm not anti-British or anti-U.N., I'm pro-Rhodesia, I think. I'd like to see everyone who feels the same as I do send a quart, too."

'Makes Me Think--' Says UFO Watcher

By FRED PALM
State News Staff Writer

I don't know what it was that I saw in the sky Tuesday night. It was brighter than the stars near it, and tri-colored. First red, then white, then green, as if colored lights were attached to the ends of a rotating white stick.

The object was too far away to distinguish if it had a definite shape, but the pattern in which the lights appeared suggested that it moved in a counter-clockwise direction on its own axis.

When I first saw the object it was stationary in the southwestern sky over University Village. It was motionless except for the changing light.

I visually framed it in a "V" formed by tree branches so I could tell if it moved. It remained in the same position for about eight minutes, continuously changing from red to white to green.

Then it began to move, going behind one of the branches and reappearing on the other side of the "V". After 15 minutes it had become so dim I couldn't see it anymore. During this period it constantly moved westward, farther and farther away from the tree branches.

It was gone for about five minutes. Then it became visible again, moving eastward and steadily growing brighter. The colors continued to change.

After 10 minutes it changed course again and disappeared behind the tree tops on the horizon.

About seven other guys from my floor in Emmons Hall watched the phenomenon with me, and agreed that the object had moved.

I don't think it was a shooting star because it moved too slow and changed its direction. I don't think it was swamp gas either because there were no headlights up there to illuminate it. I don't know what it was.

I do know, however, that it makes me think--and wonder.

Officials To Ignore Charges

By JOAN T. SOLOMON and
ANDREW MOLLISON
State News Staff Writers

A University official said Wednesday that Michigan State had no plans to answer charges made about its seven-year technical assistance project in Viet Nam in this month's Ramparts magazine.

Other persons involved in the Viet Nam project and mentioned in the Ramparts article have answered the accusations with replies ranging from complete denial to "no comment."

James H. Dennison, assistant to President Hannah, called the 12-page article "scurrilous," and said the University does not plan to do anything about it.

"It (the article) is filled with half-truths, distortions, misinterpretations and outright lies," Dennison said.

Included among the "outright lies" were:

1. President Hannah is not the son of an Iowa chicken farmer.

(His parents did operate a hatchery and greenhouse in Grand Rapids).

2. It is possible to find a parking space on campus. (According to the article, "...it is hard to find a parking spot on campus because so many police cars are occupying the stalls...")

3. The four men who had made the initial inspection tour at the request of President Hannah in 1954 met and had been briefed together before "they fastened their seat belts" on the flight to Viet Nam.

"There are so many statements to refute that if we were to answer charges it would be as lengthy as the article itself," Dennison said.

"Their (the authors of the article) basic criticism is that a university should be devoted only to teaching and research. This is contrary to our basic philosophy."

Asked why the university has

Field Workers Now Have Key To 'Great Society'

THE DOOR IS now open for farm field workers finally to join American society. After occupying the bottom rung of the economic scale for years, their recent recognition as a union makes it possible for them to raise their economic and social status.

The union, which went on strike after California grape growers refused to grant wage hikes to grape pickers, has been recognized by one of the larger growers. The potential consequences of this action could revolutionize the field workers' lives.

NOW THAT THEY have the power of bargaining as a unit, the grape pickers' pay scale is not as subject to the whims of the growers as before. This is important, for in the past the whims of the growers have not always been in the best interests of the workers. And if the workers are ever to regard themselves as first-class citizens, their economic level must be raised.

But the impact of the recognition of the union is not limited to California grape pickers. It has set a precedent that could lead to formation of unions by other field workers in other parts of the country.

THE MAIN REASON that field workers have not been recognized before can be attributed mainly to the interesting fact that the Wagner Act, often dubbed "labor's Magna Carta," excludes field workers from the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board. This means that the board cannot hear complaints of field workers or force growers to recognize field worker unions.

As a result, field workers could do nothing to better their situation. And their situation, as Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz has said, is that they are the most exploited group in America.

THE RECOGNITION of the field workers' union, the National Farm Workers Assn., will not bring the workers instant riches. But it is a tool which they can use to make their dream of a "great society" come true.

Though Still Imperfect, Russian Economy A Threat

THE SOVIET'S SOB STORY that their economy is lagging far behind the economic goals set in 1961 indicates once again that the managed economy still leaves much to be desired.

Regardless of who the leaders blame for the setting of unreasonable quotas (and the blame has been foisted on Khrushchev this time) the real problem lies in the structure of a system that is exceptionally vulnerable to poor planning.

THOUGH KHRUSHCHEV is taking a verbal beating for his unrealistic economic goals, Soviet leaders realize that the structure of the economy must be altered somewhat if the basic problem--vulnerability to poor planning--is to be overcome.

Psychologically and economically the repeated failure of meeting quotas can be disastrous. In an effort to bring quotas more in line with production, the Soviets have naturally revamped their goals, but, quite unnaturally, they have started on a course of introducing a little more capitalism into their system.

PRIVATE FARMING PLOTS are sprouting vegetables under the approving eye of the state. Workers' bonuses have been expanded, and factory autonomy has been increased.

Americans scoff at the Russians and claim that at the present rate of Soviet capitalizing, the Soviet Union will be a capitalistic nation within a few generations. Such cries are outlandish. Though central management still remains the basis of their system, the Russians are constantly searching to find the most productive blend of managed economy and individual initiative.

AND HERE LIES the greatest threat to America. The Soviet Union has ample natural resources and population. If its people could perfect a system more efficient than ours, they could quite possibly outstrip us economically and, eventually, militarily.

It has long been the wish of the Soviets to catch up with America. A nation has the choice of devoting its industrial production either to consumer goods or capital goods. Capital goods, such as steel mills, dams and heavy farm equipment increase the nation's potential to raise its gross national product in future years.

THE SOVIETS ARE attempting to catch up with the U.S. by devoting a very large share of their production pie to capital goods. Still, their system has tremendous inefficiencies.

Though today the Soviet economic system leaves much to be desired, how will it operate in a generation? The Russians were the first to try a totally managed economy on a large scale. The first five-year plan taught them many things about a managed economy. The second taught them even more, and the third, even more than the second.

SLOWLY THE SOVIET UNION is perfecting its system. Even in its imperfect state, the Soviet economy has made startling gains since World War II. A managed economy has the advantage of having the ability to concentrate the wealth of a nation into strategic fields. And more important, a managed economy is not susceptible to depressions as is a free enterprise system.

The conclusion is chilling. Today we jeer the Soviet economy. But in a generation, as more and more of the bugs are worked out of their depression-free system, we may be the ones running to catch up--and running for our very lives.

U-M Draft Move Applauded For Easing School Pressures

To the Editor:

I have to loudly disagree with your editorial, "U-M Draft Move Doesn't Help It's Students," Friday, April 8.

I cannot think of a better move for a major university to make. It has helped eliminate what could and will be very poor learning situations in the nation's centers of higher learning.

Under the present set-up the taking of a test will literally mean the difference of life and death to some borderline students. Can you imagine the types of reactions this will cause among the student populations.

You note in your editorial that you do not favor the outstanding students being placed on draft par with others. If you think seriously about this there is really no valid reason why all young males shouldn't be equally subject to military service.

There's quite a bit of social change going on around us now based on the 14th Amendment--something about equal protection of the laws.

In the end each student educates himself. The system imposes barriers. But he finds out sooner or later the grades got him started; the education keeps him growing.

So I say your editorial was nice but put it where it belongs--in the hell-box.

Grade Point That Wasn't

To the Editor:

In regards to your article on fraternities Friday, I would like to congratulate FarmHouse fraternity for winning the State News award for having the highest grade point average fall term. However, I would like to point out that, according to the IFC lists that were published, FarmHouse had the highest overall grade-point average, Sigma Chi was second, and FarmHouse was third.

Editorial Idea Not Admired

To the Editor:

I read with interest your lead editorial entitled "U-M Draft Move Doesn't Help It's (sic) Students" in the State News for April 8, 1966.

The first sentence in the last paragraph reads: "The U-M attempt to protect its students from the draft is admirable." May I ask what is admirable about "protecting" anyone from service, military or otherwise, to his country?

It may be pertinent to recall what John F. Kennedy, so greatly admired by many young people today, said in his inaugural address: "Ask not what your country can do for you. Ask rather what you can do for your country." The theme of your editorial hardly seems in keeping with this spirit.

WEST LAFAYETTE, IND.--A "No Hours System" for Purdue coeds went into effect Friday evening. Under the new plan, freshmen women will still observe the regular closing hours: 11 p.m. Monday-Thursday; 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday; midnight Sunday. The doors will be locked at these hours and no men allowed in the housing units. For upperclass women coming in after these times, "passports" will be checked.

To the Editor:

Some misinformation regarding the transfer of MSU credits to other collegiate institutions seems to be prevalent on campus, especially in regard to transfer of University College courses.

According to "Report of Credit Given by Educational Institutions," American Assn. of Collegiate Registrars and Administrators Officers, edited by W. A. Cox, University of Iowa, 1966 (the bible for transfer credits), MSU's "transcript of record (is) given full value." This rating is as high as or as complete as any college or university in the United States.

'Suggestion' Ineffectual

EAST LANSING is a paradox. It's part small town, U.S.A., and part cosmopolitan city. Cosmopolitan means different kinds of people. Different cultures and beliefs. Light people, dark people. People who talk funny and have funny customs. People from all over America and the world.

But the few ethnocentric inhabitants of small town (and in East Lansing they are few) do not always jump at the opportunity to mix with people of different cultures and colors, especially when it comes to housing. The small town attitude of these few but effective people produces tension in the cosmopolitan environment.

In an effort to please both small town and cosmopolitan city, the Human Relations Commission of East Lansing has requested that the City Council not pass an open housing ordinance as was originally considered. Instead, it has recommended that the council should establish legal means for providing for "conciliatory procedures" in the settling of discrimination disputes. In effect, it is asking that a weak procedure be adopted rather than a strong law.

This is a classic example of trying to please everyone, and actually pleasing few, if any. The "conciliatory procedure" gambit will satisfy the people who are most likely to practice discrimination, for it entails no criminal charges as would an ordinance.

It will also be acceptable to the people who demand that the city take action against discrimination, for they now will have the official word that the city opposes discrimination. How tidy. How ineffectual.

CLEARLY, AN OPEN housing ordinance that would make discrimination a criminal act would be more effective in preventing discrimination than the milk-toast proposal the commission suggests.

In a nutshell, the commission suggests that the council adopt an amendment that would allow the commission to turn over to the city attorney any alleged cases of discrimination that it cannot conciliate itself.

If the commission feels that no discrimination exists, it can dismiss the case and not turn it over to the city attorney. If the attorney is given the case, and cannot conciliate it, he can take the case to a court, where the court can issue a cease and desist order if it so desires.

The commission clearly states in its report to the City Council that "the proposed amendment is not punitive." This is wrong. The commission should realize that for a law to be effective, it must have teeth.

THE HUMAN RELATIONS Commission must also realize that it has an obligation beyond East Lansing. MSU is proud of the work it is doing in foreign lands. Projects sponsored by this university have aided many underdeveloped nations in their efforts to develop their economies. This work helps create a decent American image among people who have known the white man only as an imperialist.

Many students from these nations study here. And these are the people who are subjected to the MOST discrimination. Standing face-to-face with American-style discrimination can burn a permanent imprint into the minds of these visitors. They will return to their countries and speak of America's wealth, knowledge and discrimination.

IN VIEW of the overall situation, it seems senseless that the Human Relations Commission should push for an obvious appeasement, an obvious attempt to avoid any trouble. People seem to preach a fair shake for everyone. Yet, when it boils down to action, they prefer the safety of a toothless proclamation.

trips to the Southeast Asian country.

While not openly endorsing a Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Williams praised Democratic State Chairman Zolton Ferency as "one of the most capable of public servants," and added, "Ferency would make a good candidate for governor."

Williams said he would support Ferency if the party chairman received the nomination.

Ferency has already been considered by Kowalski and Congressman Neil Staebler, D-Mich., as a good opponent for incumbent George Romney.

Although Williams had indicated Viet Nam would be a campaign issue, he hedged on the question of whether he supported the Johnson administration's policy in that country.

Williams pointed out the Viet Nam issue is a complicated one, evolving out of what he called the imperialistic and expansionistic policies of China.

Williams held that the administration's three-pronged Viet Nam program of (1) protecting Viet Nam against aggression, (2) economic development and rehabilitation and (3) continued efforts toward a negotiated settlement, appears the only one that can successfully combat the Chinese expansion into Viet Nam.

U.S. Bombs North Viet Nam

SAIGON (UPI)--America's first B52 raid against Communist North Viet Nam delivered a bomb load between 1.2 and 1.8 million pounds which sent whole mountainsides crashing down onto the approaches to the Ho Chi Minh Trail, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Air Force officials called it the greatest single bombing raid since World War II, far surpassing any raids of the war in Korea and probably the most destructive since the atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki in August, 1945.

Dirksen Opposes Compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Senate GOP leader Everett M. Dirksen said Wednesday he will stand or fall on the present form of his constitutional amendment on legislative reapportionment.

The Illinois Republican made his statement as the Senate returned from its Easter recess to deal with Dirksen's move to bypass the Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" ruling.

Officials Deny Rumors

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)--Government officials denied Wednesday that they plan either to proclaim an emergency or to devalue the cruzeiro as a means of solving Brazil's "austerity crisis."

"The country is calm. There is no trouble inside the barracks or out, and there are no strikes," said Justice Minister Mem De Sa. "These rumors of a state of siege (emergency) are an insult to a newspaper reader's intelligence."

War Depends On Viets

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., told the Senate Wednesday that "if the people of South Viet Nam do not want to continue the war, the United States should not continue it for them."

Cooper said that the struggle between the political factions in South Viet Nam could mean the eventual withdrawal of South Vietnamese forces from the war effort and "force withdrawal of U.S. forces."

issued no official statement, Denison said such action was not considered to be wise at this time.

Milton Taylor, professor of economics on leave in London, England, refused to comment early Thursday morning (7:45 p.m. E.S.T.) on charges that "his reports were often rewritten by the Project head."

Taylor also refused to give his view on the MSU project.

"The essential query" which must be asked according to the Ramparts article, is "what the hell is a university doing buying guns anyway?"

The answer to this question, Ralph T. Smuckler, former chief adviser to the project in Viet Nam, said Wednesday, is "Michigan State University never bought imported, maintained or provided any guns or ammunition or anything of the sort."

Smuckler also said Wednesday that the MSU project did not provide a front for a unit of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

The Ramparts article states that CIA agents whose "instructions were to engage in counter-espionage and counter-intelligence" staffed the five-man "VBI Internal Security Section" of the MSU project.

During the time that he was chief adviser to the project, Smuckler said, "Those men were not acting as CIA agents. They were not doing cloak and dagger work of any kind.

The VBI was the Vietnamese Bureau of Investigation, successor organization to the old Surete, the Vietnamese special police. To strengthen its contention that three of the men--Daniel Smith, Arthur Stein and William Jones--were CIA agents, Ramparts quotes a former campus coordinator of the Vietnam program, Stanley K. Sheinbaum. Sheinbaum, who wrote the introduction to the article, is said to have recalled that "he was proceeding to investigate the background of the three applicants before accepting them" when Smuckler told him "that it wouldn't be necessary to check out these guys."

Smuckler said Wednesday, "That is an example of a typical distortion used in the article. First of all, I don't remember having said any such thing. Secondly, I can't conceive of any circumstances under which I would have said any such thing."

"Sheinbaum would not in any case have been concerned with screening applicants for any of the advisory programs."

Many of the men in the MSU program, particularly those in the police administration advisory portion, were recruited from outside the University.

Crashed Soviet Mystery Jet
Is New Yak 28, British Say

Berlin (UPI) -- A Soviet mystery jet that crashed in West Berlin a week ago was identified Wednesday as the new Yak 28, which had never been closely examined by the West.

The Yak 28, first of its type ever to fall in Western hands, is an improved version of the Yak 25, a two-engine all-weather jet fighter with a crew of two.

The plane, which went into production four years ago, was said to have unusual equipment and new electronic navigational aids.

One unconfirmed report said the downed plane had a new radar device to allow it to evade detection while in flight.

When the plane went down, the British blocked a Soviet attempt to send a 20-man team to the crash site to take over the salvage operation.

The plane was positively identified Wednesday by Royal Air Force (RAF) experts flown here from Britain to study the modern craft.

While salvage operations continued, the British Wednesday turned over parts of the wreckage to the Soviets, but only after photographing and studying them.

The transfer of the battered parts took place on the Havel River in the British Sector on the border of East Germany. Eight Soviet officers continued to watch the salvage operations but could do nothing to get their hands on the plane without British approval.

The Soviet jet plunged into Lake Stoessensee and its crew of two was killed. The bodies were removed earlier and turned over to the Soviets.

The British had offered to turn over parts already salvaged on Saturday but the Russians refused them, charging that the British were withholding some pieces.

But the Soviets Wednesday agreed to take over those parts already plucked from the lake bottom by British divers.

Two More Tankers
Head For Rhodesia

BEIRA, Mozambique (UPI)--Two more oil tankers believed carrying oil for rebel Rhodesia were reported enroute here Wednesday as two "pirate" tankers waited in African harbors to unload their precious cargoes.

Despite Britain's naval blockade and a U.N. resolution barring oil shipments to Rhodesia, the tanker Ionna V remained berthed at this Portuguese-controlled port while a sister ship, the Manuella, entered the port of Durban, South Africa. They hold a combined total of 34,000 tons of crude oil.

In Lisbon, Portuguese Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar warned that the U.N. mandate had served to make an international crisis of what had been an "exclusive and internal problem of Great Britain."

Appearing on a national television broadcast, Salazar said if the big powers make another "false step" it "could touch off a big fire, involving risk for all those who think themselves safe because they are away from the flames."

Reports in London and Athens reaching here said two more tankers, identified as the Leonidas and the Mikos V, were enroute to Beira where a pipeline runs 189 miles inland to a refinery near Umtali, Rhodesia. The reports said their course would take them into the British naval task force that Sunday boarded and turned back the tanker Manuella from Beira. The Manuella immediately changed course and steamed toward South Africa.

In Durban, Greek consul George Goulacos watched the tanker enter the narrow harbor and said, "As far as the Greek government is concerned there is no objection to a tanker discharging her oil here."

KRASNAN ONLY ACE SOUTHPAW

State's Lefty Shortage

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

Hopes for a Big Ten baseball title may hinge on the left-handed pitching arm of Spartan John Krasnan.

The 5-11, 175-pound senior from Milwaukee, Wis., has had a sore arm for a good part of the spring season and, if he recovers in time for the conference opener in one week, chances for a championship are good.

Otherwise, it may be questionable.

That's the way Coach Danny Litwhiler looks at the Big Ten picture for his Spartans. Krasnan could make the Spartans do or die.

"I need John in there," Litwhiler said Wednesday while his team was practicing for Saturday's home opener—a double-header with the University of Detroit.

"Before the season began, I said we'd be a strong club and that meant if Krasnan was strong. Now, with his sore arm and everything, I don't know what to expect."

Without Krasnan pitching regularly, the Spartans are like the Dodgers without a Koufax or Drysdale.

He's the only left-handed pitcher on the squad who has had experience and in the Big Ten every team needs at least one good southpaw.

MSU found out how vital a lefty is against a left-handed hitting club on its trip to Florida. With Krasnan out, the Spartans threw all right-handers against Florida State and were beaten, 5-0.

Krasnan has effective pitches, though he has had little chance to show them this spring. In 9 1/3 innings he has given up four runs and six hits and has a 3.85 earned run average.

Last season he was one of Litwhiler's top starters, winning three and losing two. He finished with a low 2.01 ERA.

Krasnan was with the Spartans in practice yesterday after being in the hospital earlier with a stomach ailment. He took part in only a light workout.

"I was feeling all right at the first of the year," he said while retrieving balls for infield practice. "But then I hurt my elbow. I was throwing too hard and trying my curve too early."

"I found I could get more speed by twisting my arm but I hurt it instead and had to start all over again."

"I've just been throwing as much as I can to get it back in shape. I feel good now," he said.

That's two weeks away and until then all the action Krasnan may see is brief relief roles. He has yet to start a game this year.

"I'd much rather start," Krasnan said. "That way you get to know the hitters in the first few innings. Coming in to relieve you usually have men on base and have to be at your best control."

Krasnan's control is one of the best on the pitching staff. He struck out 34 last year while walking only 15.

But he said he likes experimenting with his fast ball and curve, something that a relief pitcher can't often afford to do.

HAWK SHOT BLOCKED--Chicago's Doug Mohns (2) is foiled in attempting to slip the puck past Detroit Red Wing goalie Roger Crozier. Wolves, Gophers To Face Netters In Season Opener

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

The MSU tennis team will kick off its Big Ten season this weekend with meets against Minnesota on Friday and Michigan on Saturday at Ann Arbor.

This weekend's meets will be the first of seven regular season encounters for Coach Stan Brobac's squad and should provide a good insight into the team's Big Ten title chances.

The season will be climaxed by the Big Ten Conference Championships here May 19-21.

The Spartans finished fourth in the Big Ten last season behind Michigan, Indiana and Northwestern.

Despite the fact that Minnesota was sixth in the conference last season and was defeated by MSU, 5-2, last year, Brobac is not selling the Gophers short.

"We have to win Friday," Brobac said. "Minnesota is an up-and-coming club which is looking fondly at the Big Ten Crown."

"They have one of the best singles players in the conference in Jerry Noyce," he added.

Noyce, a senior and Gopher captain, is one of five returning lettermen that new coach Joe Walsh is counting on this season.

"I feel we have a good chance of making the top four this season," Walsh said.

Returning lettermen besides Noyce include Tom Boice, Ron Keith, Jerry Krause and Dave Rosenberg. Additional help may come from four sophomores.

Noyce, who lost out in the Big Ten singles semi-finals last year, will be No. 1 singles man and will team with sophomore Denny Chez at No. 1 doubles. Chez is expected to be the second singles man followed by Keith, sophomore Charles Zimmerman and Krause in the 3-4-5 positions. There is a five-way fight for the sixth singles position.

The other two doubles spots are likely to be filled by Keith and Zimmerman at No. 2 and Boice and Krause at the third position.

The teams both participated in the Rice Invitational Tournament during spring training with Noyce advancing to the finals before losing two close matches.

Defending Big Ten Champion Michigan will pose an even tougher problem for the Spartans on Saturday.

The Wolverines lost five lettermen to graduation last year but are potentially strong again.

In winning the championship last season, Michigan racked up 142 points, 16 more than runner-up Indiana. But it lost No. 3 singles champion John Fraser, No. 5 singles champion Hal Lowe and No. 6 singles champ George Russell. Fraser and Lowe also combined to take the No. 2 doubles title.

Returning lettermen include Captain Karl Hedrick, Jim Swift, Jerry Stewart and Bill Dixon while Ed Waite, a junior college transfer from Jackson, and senior Ron Burns are expected to help. Two sophomores, Bob Pristula and Ron Teegarden, are also highly touted.

Last year, the Wolverines defeated the Spartans 8-1 in regular season play on their way to a 10-1 record.

Michigan has won the conference championship eight of the last 11 years, and are always tough on their home courts.

Drobac simply stated that "Michigan is the team to beat this year."

Wilt 'Reprimands' Critic After 76ers Lose Playoffs

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain, the Philadelphia 76ers' huge center, had to be restrained from charging after a sports writer after the 76ers were eliminated from the National Basketball Assn. playoffs Tuesday night.

The dispute between Chamberlain and Joe McGinnis of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin was triggered by the pro star's inept foul shooting.

It was climaxed when Chamberlain went after McGinnis in the 76ers' dressing room and had to be restrained.

McGinnis wrote in last Sunday's Bulletin that Chamberlain had refused Coach Dolph Schayes' plea to report for practices "just to shoot a few fouls."

Chamberlain missed 17 of 25 attempts against Boston Tuesday night as the Celtics won 120-112 and took the Eastern playoff finals four games to one.

When another writer questioned Chamberlain about skipping practice, Chamberlain pointed to McGinnis and said, "Ask him about it."

McGinnis replied with a question: "Wilt, you missed 17 foul shots tonight; don't you think you could have used some practice on the line Monday?"

Chamberlain answered: "All the practice in the world ain't gonna help me at the line."

"Dolph asked you to report for some foul shooting," McGinnis said in the crowded dressing room.

"Yeah," Chamberlain snapped, "and I told him I didn't want to because I felt some rest would do me more good. Now you get outta here."

"I have a right to stand here," McGinnis said. With that, Chamberlain, who stands 7-foot-1 and weighs about 275 pounds, charged McGinnis a 6-2, 175-pounder. A couple of writers and 76ers' scout Vince Miller intervened.

Spartan Brawley 'Championship-Prone'

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

What Spartan athlete played on two national championship teams this year?

Give up?

The holder of this rare distinction is junior Bob Brawley, backup linebacker on MSU's Big Ten and national championship football squad and starting defenseman for the Spartan hockey team, which copped the NCAA tourney.

Several Michigan State athletes participate in more than one sport, but Brawley went one better by picking the most successful '65-'66 Spartan sports in one of the greatest years for athletics in the school's history.

Brawley is currently the No. 1 candidate for the linebacker spot left open by graduating All-American Ron Goovert. Filling Goovert's cleats will be no small chore, and Brawley is battling to prove himself in spring drills.

"Ron was a great linebacker," Brawley said. "It is a great privilege to have the chance to fill in for him, but thinking about starting in football does scare me—I'm afraid of hurting the team with a mistake I might make."

Brawley hails from Sault Ste. Marie, where hockey reigns as the major sport. While confined to substitute roles during his first two years of football, he has played regular on the ice for the past two seasons.

"Football is the biggest sport at State, and it was indeed a great thrill for me to play with such a great group of players," Brawley said. "However, since hockey has been close to me all my life, and since I played regular on the hockey team, the hockey championship probably meant a little more to me."

Linebacker in football and defense in hockey are somewhat similar in that both positions are concerned with stopping an offensive attack. A parallel may be drawn between tackling and body checking also.

"There is probably no other position in hockey which would help me more in linebacking than defenseman," Brawley said. "Football has helped me in hitting on the ice, also. After playing football, I used more of a shoulder check, where I used a hip check, before."

Defensive Line Coach Hank Bullough has respect for Brawley's determined attitude and aggressive play, but is concerned about a possible size problem.

Sail Regatta

The sailing club will participate in the Ohio State Invitational Regatta this Saturday and Sunday at Columbus, Ohio, on the Scioto River.

Captaining the team will be Bill Zemlin, Grosse Pointe junior.

THREE POSITIONS OPEN

Golfers Battling For Berths

By DAN DROSKI
State News Sports Writer

MSU's golf team will open its Big Ten season Saturday, but three of the starting positions are still up for grabs. Only seniors Ken Benson and Fred Mackey and junior Sandy McAndrew are assured of their spots on the traveling squad.

The team had been practicing at Green Meadows golf course at the start of the week, but switched to its home layout, Forest Akers, when given permission Wednesday.

Coach Bruce Fossum is watching his players closely, trying to decide who will make the trip to Columbus, where the Spartans will face Ohio State, Indiana and Purdue.

Fossum's final decision is complicated by an abundance of fine golfers, the entire squad being separated by only four or five strokes per round.

The lack of good golfing weather has not helped matters any. The recent adverse conditions have prevented the candidates from playing up to their ability.

"Monday and Tuesday were both so cold and windy that it was difficult to judge an individual's performance unless you accompanied him as he played," said Fossum.

A player's position on the team is not determined solely by his score, however. "Scorecards are the No. 1 factor in determining who makes the trip, but other factors, such as the weather and who may be on a hot streak at the moment, also enter into the final decision," said Fossum.

Fossum will use today's practice as a tuneup round, as the team will be leaving the campus Friday morning and will have little warmup time in Columbus.

The Spartans may be slight underdogs in their match Saturday, as Ohio State, Indiana and Purdue all finished in the first division last year.

The Buckeyes will be tough on their home course. OSU finished second in the Miami Invitational while placing four strokers among the top 25.

Indiana should also have a very creditable squad, having two lettermen back from last year's third place team. The Hoosiers' title hopes were given a severe jolt, however, when Paul Williams, the team's top scorer, was ruled ineligible earlier this spring.

The team to watch, however, will be Purdue's Boilermakers, who have four players back from last year's championship squad.

Education Internship Programs Expanded

The Elementary Intern Program (EIP), which lets elementary education students work in classrooms while they learn to teach, earn bachelor's degrees and earn money, will be available in the Lansing area for on-campus students for the first time this year.

The students complete two years of regular course work at MSU and then attend the following summer and fall sessions. They then transfer to a local center for winter and spring terms where, under observation, they do methods work, student teaching and laboratory experience with children.

At the successful completion of this phase, the students are carefully screened by a committee composed of elementary faculty and local school representatives. Then they attend a summer session, and the following year they do their paid intern teaching under the direction of the intern consultant, faculty, and principal.

The program evolved from an experimental project begun in 1959 under the direction of W. Vernon Hicks, professor of the Dept. of Elementary and Special Education here.

There will be 35 students participating in the local program. This screening has proved to be of value in that 92 per cent of the graduates of EIP are still teaching, as compared to 50 per cent for the regular program.

Hicks said that the EIP helps determine at an early stage whether the student has the potential to be a good teacher. This screening has proved to be of value in that 92 per cent of the graduates of EIP are still teaching, as compared to 50 per cent for the regular program.

Leland W. Dean, professor of education and director of the School of Teacher Education, says, "Our experience over the past five years causes us to be firmly committed to an intern-centered teacher preparation program. We feel it points an important direction for the future as we seek constantly to improve the quality of teacher education."

He added that participation of public school staff members adds a reality and a practicality which are sometimes lost in the classroom.

FREE UNIVERSITY--Christian thought in a post-Christian World was the topic for this Free University class offered Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. The class is led by Assistant Professor Milton Powell.

PSYCHOLOGICAL EXPERIMENTS INDICATE

It May Be Rash To Repress Emotions

If you have a headache or a skin rash and there is no known physical cause, it may be a sign that you have excluded an uncomfortable emotion from your conscious mind.

The first controlled experiments to support this point of view, long held by psychologists, have been reported by Joseph Reyher, associate professor of psychology.

Reyher's findings, gained through use of hypnosis, indicate that the type of psychosomatic symptom a person has may be related to the degree to which he can repress an uncomfortable emotion.

Good repressors, he notes, tend to have physical ailments whereas the poor repressors tend toward emotional symptoms.

"The idea that a person represses emotions which he is not able to handle is credited to Sigmund Freud," Reyher points out. "According to this theory, repressed emotions become a part of the subconscious and may be vented in other ways."

"A person may suppress, or consciously control his anger or some other emotion, or he may repress it by dismissing it from consciousness. If he represses it, he may find later on that he has a skin rash, headache or some other ailment."

"Some physicians estimate that up to 60 per cent or more of their cases are psychosomatic."

While the theory of repression has been supported by years of clinical practice, Reyher is the first to work with repression and psychosomatic symptoms under controlled experimental conditions.

In his experiments, he hypnotized subjects and told them about a fictitious event in which they had been wronged and felt very angry.

Then Reyher told the subjects that after they were awakened anything which reminded them of the event would make them very angry. Also, he said, they would have an overwhelming impulse to destroy some valuable papers.

When he awakened the subjects, Reyher flashed words related to the event (cue words) before them. He also pointed out to them that the papers lying nearby were very valuable.

Most of the 24 subjects in his first complete set of experiments had no conscious awareness of anger or an urge to destroy, even after repeated exposure to cue words. Only three attempted to tear up the papers.

However, a lie detector device which measures skin resistance indicated that nearly all were reacting emotionally to cue words.

Some subjects said they were annoyed, irritated or had other feelings akin to anger, and some recalled personal experiences similar to the induced experience.

Still others had difficulty in recognizing cue words that were clearly visible, but had no difficulty with neutral words.

Symptoms of the good repressors tended to be physical. Excluding three persons who showed no emotional response at all on the lie detector device, the best repressors complained of autonomic nervous system ailments such as headache, nausea, tiredness, etc. Some actually broke out in skin rashes.

The next best group of repressors had musculoskeletal nervous system symptoms such as pains, aches, tension, tics, etc.

"The subjects repressed their emotions," Reyher explains, "because they were completely out of place and out of character under the conditions. Even under post-hypnotic suggestion, a person will not do something that is contrary to his basic nature. For example, a very timid person would not demand a raise from his boss."

Reyher notes that his theory relating the type of ailment to the degree of repression modifies but does not necessarily contradict two widely held theories. One of these theories, he explains, relates a type of ailment to the type of repressed emotion.

For example, ulcers are supposedly caused by repression of emotions of maternal dependence. These emotions are said to be connected with eating; consequently repression leads to release of excess acids in the stomach and thus to ulcers.

The other widely held theory, he continues, is that the "weak link" in a person's body is the one affected by repression.

Reyher started his experiments as an attempt to determine how emotional conflict affects perception. However, when he learned that his experimental technique was causing psychosomatic reactions, he changed the direction of his experiments.

Persons chosen for the experiment were volunteers who had heard by word of mouth that subjects were needed for hypnosis experiments.

Man Must Cooperate With Nature - Odum

Nature sometimes must struggle to survive man's manipulation, contrary to the popular belief that it is always man who struggles to survive in nature, said Eugene P. Odum at the all-University lecture here Tuesday.

Speaking on the topic "Man and Nature: Cooperation or Conflict?" Odum said that as a part of nature and also as a manipulator of nature, man has a dual role in his relationship with his environment, and should seek cooperation rather than conflict with nature.

Odum was selected as the distinguished lecturer in agriculture for 1966 by the Graduate Faculty, College of Agriculture. He is Alumni Foundation distinguished professor and director of the Institute of Ecology at the University of Georgia at Athens.

Man has a tendency to take from nature and never give to nature. The warlike approach where man beats nature into submission, such as in the destruction of land to build freeways, is less useful than it used to be, and less effective.

This is because man's power is large, and irreversible mistakes can be made, as in water and air pollution, said Odum.

Odum said that man should strive to be a functional part of nature, cooperating rather than conflicting with it, and always keeping in mind that he is a part of nature and largely dependent on nature.

"Man's drive and self-interest lead to certain ways of dealing with nature," said Odum, "when nature has a different way of dealing with the same situation."

As a result, in some instances, nature's harmony has been upset and man is beginning to pay for artificial systems of doing what nature would have done free, he said.

GENTLEMAN CALLER--The Community Circle Players rehearse for a performance of Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie" at Okemos Barn Theatre. Laura, played by Susan Lieberman, Huntington Woods freshman, and Amanda, played by Christine Birdwell, entertain gentleman caller Tom, played by William Seeley, Grand Rapids senior.

Williams Endorses U.S. Policy In Asia

LANSING (UPI)--Ex-Gov. G. Mennen Williams, former assistant secretary of state for African affairs, today endorsed U.S. policy in Viet Nam as the only way to "contain Chinese Communist imperialist expansion in Southeast Asia."

He also credited the United States' strong stand in South Viet Nam with encouraging the growing anti-Communist movement in Indonesia and the overthrow of President Sukarno there.

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI)--Go-go girls have had their last fling in Grand Rapids taverns, courtesy of a ruling of the State Liquor Control Commission and city vice squad Capt. Francis Pierce.

The ruling specifically bans "dancing, monologues and dialogues" at bars which hold a standard Class C liquor license but carry no entertainment permit. No local bar carries the additional license and, according to Pierce, the Go-go girls must go.

JACKSON (UPI)--A Navy officer in Viet Nam announced his candidacy for the Michigan legislature today. He said he would campaign by mail.

Lt. Dan Bruggeman, a native of nearby Lenawee County and a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, said in a letter he would seek the Republican nomination for the 19th district senate seat. He will face the incumbent, Sen. Haskell L. Nichols, in the Aug. 2 GOP primary.

LANSING (UPI)--The small army of citizen advisors on deer shooting policy will be upped from 200 to 280, the State Conservation Dept. reported today.

The department said the additions are being made because of an "overwhelming response" to its program to promote greater public participation in deer management.

The seminar will continue at 2 p.m. with all working groups discussing "The Role of the Student." Evening discussion will begin at 8:30 p.m. with "The Role of the Faculty in the Protest Movement" by speakers from Washington University, University of Michigan, University of California and CONSCIENCE, pro-administration group on Viet Nam.

Sunday's program will begin at 9 a.m. with a student coffee hour. The closing address, "The Student as a World Citizen," will be presented by Robert Engle, Queens College.

Approximately 130 midwestern universities have been invited to the Winds of Change seminar, said Margaret Phillips, co-chairman.

The seminar is designed to provide an opportunity for students, faculty and experts to discuss topic of concern and interest to the present college generation, Miss Phillips said.

Speakers are representatives from a variety of political and social views so the subjects should receive a wide spectrum of thought, she added.

Theta Sigma Phi Award To Be Given At Luncheon

The Alpha Psi chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, women's professional journalism sorority, will present its 1966 Headliner Award at the annual Matrix Luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Saturday in 22 Union Building.

The Headliner Award goes to the coed who has made the headlines most often this year for leadership, scholarship or service.

Finalists for the prize are Janet Seidman, Brooklyn, N.Y., senior and president of Pan Hellenic; Frances Frei, Dearborn graduate student and ASMSU Student Board member-at-large; and Judith Rice, East Lansing junior; and Karen Radom, Birmingham junior, who are co-chairmen of the MSU people-to-people project in South Viet Nam.

$3,000 English Grants Available For Seniors

Seniors interested in English are eligible for newly created $3,000 fellowships offered by the Book-of-the-Month Club beginning with the 1966-67 academic year. There will be 14 grants available, two to each of seven geographic areas of the United States and Canada.

Any person attaining senior status by Dec. 1, 1966, is eligible for the award. The applicant must, however, be nominated by a member of the English Dept. and have his application postmarked no later than midnight, Dec. 1.

The fellowships were designed, according to the club's chairman, to give gifted seniors an opportunity to develop their creative talents in the year following their graduation.

This year's winners will be notified on May 1, 1967, and awards will be given on June 15, 1967. Application blanks may be obtained from the English Dept. or by writing to Donald Sears, director, Book-of-the-Month Club Writing Fellowship Program, c/o College English Assn., Howard University, Washington, D.C., 20001.

More Than Academic

We have an image problem. People persist in thinking the University of Minnesota is strictly an academic institution. Actually, it's one of the largest employers in the state with a payroll of more than 15,000. And only 4,000 of them are faculty members.

We have professional employees in many nonteaching positions. These jobs include the opportunity to study in Minnesota's prestigious graduate programs.

PERSONNEL REPRESENTATIVES-We don't lock our staff in an interview booth all day. Our dynamic personnel program gives you the chance to perform the whole range of personnel services. Degree with major or minor in industrial relations, psychology or related field required. Experience or graduate work preferred. Starting salary over $500; excellent promotional possibilities.

RESEARCH SCIENTISTS--Our finest fringe benefit is the quality of our research. Our scientists work closely with the University's famous researchers. Bachelor's or master's degree in chemistry, biology or medical technology required. We also have openings for experienced research personnel. Salary depends on qualifications.

SPACE ANALYST--Solving space problems for University departments is the prime concern in this job, open to a new college graduate. Degree in business, engineering, educational administration or related field required. Starting salary over $500.

Send resume to: Personnel Office, University of Minnesota, Room 4, Morrill Hall, Minneapolis, Minn. 55455.

Atlantic Storm Ends; 3 Dead, 5 Still Missing

New York (UPI)--A fierce Atlantic storm with waves powerful enough to twist the steel superstructure of the luxury liner Michelangelo apparently took eight lives before abating Wednesday.

Three were dead aboard the Italian liner and five were missing from a British refrigerator tanker, The Chuscal. The Liberian tanker Rokos V, which flooded and nearly sank in the storm Tuesday, was reported proceeding to New Brunswick under its own power for repairs.

A wave 30 feet high and a 100 yards wide smashed into the 46,000-ton Michelangelo Tuesday morning, inundating the bow and knocking many of the 775 passengers off their feet. The water smashed windows in the top deck first class cabins and damaged the superstructure.

John J. Steinbach, 58, Chicago insurance executive, and Dr. Werner Berndt, 56, of Hamburg, Germany, died of skull fractures. Desiderio Ferrari, a crew member from Genoa, died of unspecified injuries.

Ten other persons were injured, including two Americans, Joseph Badger, 67, of Camden, Maine, and Fritz Clanner, of Huntington, N.Y. Badger was reported to have fractured ribs and Glanner was in critical condition with a fractured skull.

Capt. Guiseppi Soletti, who described the storm as one of the worst in his 40 years at sea, said the Michelangelo would probably arrive in New York Friday instead of Thursday because of the storm. The liner and other vessels reported encountering 45-foot seas during the worst of the howler.

Soletti said there was no panic aboard when the super-wave struck.

"The ship was never in danger," he said. "We pitched somewhat but not a great deal. Everything aboard is secure."

A Coast Guard cutter and two Coast Guard planes continued the search for the five crewmen who were swept from the Chuscal's decks by huge waves Tuesday. Authorities said there was little hope for their survival, although the Chuscal's skipper reported that the men might have been able to cling to bits of wooden debris.

The men were washed overboard 400 miles southeast of Newfoundland, about 150 miles from where the Rokos V was disabled by the storm. The 669-foot tanker sent two SOS's and was taken in escort by a Coast Guard cutter.

with which the student does his business, for the loan.

The other program is the United Student Aid, which has almost the same features as the state programs, except that it is available nationwide. Roderick said that there were no National Defense Act loans available for the summer and that the other programs take at least three to four weeks to negotiate. Interested students should apply in the loans office at 257 Student Services Building.

Amounts offered in the programs vary from state to state, but many states have programs similar to Michigan's, which limits the amount to $1,000 per calendar year. Most of the states also extend the repayment period until after the student's graduation from school.

According to Ronald Roderick, assistant director of financial aids, students must apply to a specific bank, usually the bank with which the student does his business, for the loan.

The other program is the United Student Aid, which has almost the same features as the state programs, except that it is available nationwide. Roderick said that there were no National Defense Act loans available for the summer and that the other programs take at least three to four weeks to negotiate. Interested students should apply in the loans office at 257 Student Services Building.

Amounts offered in the programs vary from state to state, but many states have programs similar to Michigan's, which limits the amount to $1,000 per calendar year. Most of the states also extend the repayment period until after the student's graduation from school.

According to Ronald Roderick, assistant director of financial aids, students must apply to a specific bank, usually the bank with which the student does his business, for the loan.

ASMSU Presents Al Hirt

Renowned trumpeter Al Hirt, his sextet, and "The Back Porch Majority" will be on campus Saturday night as the second spring term engagement of ASMSU's Popular Entertainment Series.

Appearing at Jenison Fieldhouse at 8 p.m., Hirt will render a popular combination of jazz, swing and dixieland, hopefully including some of his four golden records: "Java," "Honey in the Horn," "Cotton Candy" and "Sugar Lips."

"The Back Porch Majority," a West coast folk-singing sensation, performed for 3,000 MSU students on the official Rose Bowl tour in January. It has appeared at the "Hungry i" in San Francisco, entertained the President at the White House, and appeared on the "Tennessee Ernie Ford Show."

Hirt received the 1965 Music Operators of America award as "Artist of the Year," as well as the Grammy Award, and Billboard's 1964 and 1965 Disc Jockey Poll for most played and most favorite instrumentalist. He has appeared with the Boston Pops Orchestra, on the "Dinah Shore Show," and the "Steve Allen Show."

Tickets, which are $2, are on sale at the Union, ASMSU Reception Desk on the third floor or Student Services Building, Marshall Music Store, Campbell's Suburban Shop and the Disc Shop.

Hirt's newest albums and souvenir booklets will be sold at the performance.

Countryside Party Theme

"An Evening in an English Countryside" will be the theme of the Holmes Hall term party Friday. Featured at the dinner-dance will be the John Turner Quartet and vocalist Cheryl Chrisman.

The dining hall will be transformed to fit the theme, chosen because John C. Holmes, for whom the residence hall is named, is of English descent. The buffet style dinner includes standing rib roast, shrimp on a skewer and a lemony salmon fish tower.

The dance is also open to those outside the hall and the price for the dinner and dance is $6.

DEFY BACK-TO-WORK ORDER

Union Pickets Close Mines

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Soft coal miners trickled back to work in parts of the Midwest and South, but rebellious roving pickets spread through eastern Kentucky Wednesday, closing non-union mines in the third day of a mass coal strike.

The latest mine closings came as union and management officials resumed contract talks in Washington in an attempt to end the wildcat walkout which has cut off much of the nation's soft coal production.

About 700 roving pickets appeared in four Kentucky counties. State police, alerted for possible violence, arrested three persons at a picket blockade in Pike County.

About 150 pickets took up posts at the Polly mine of the Southeast Coal Co. in Letcher County, but operations there continued while state police stood guard.

About 250 pickets shut down the Massey coal dock in Pike County and about 120 closed operations at several mines in Johnson County. About 280 pickets forced a shutdown at the Perry-Elkhorn mine and Johnson mining camps, both in Floyd County.

More than 20,000 of the 58,000 men who went on strike early Monday in a wage dispute with the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn. (BCOA) have heeded a return-to-work directive by A. W. (Tony) Boyle, president of the United Mine Workers Union (UMW).

All but about 1,000 of the 5,600 striking miners in Virginia reported for work Wednesday and about 2,000 more returned to their jobs in Alabama. About half the 8,000 miners in Illinois also went back to work.

But deep pockets of resistance to the back-to-work order continued in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, northern West Virginia, eastern Ohio and parts of Illinois.

Machine Guides Homework

NEW YORK (AP)—Six Queens high school pupils sit by the telephone, punch out their homework problems on a pushbutton dial and get the answers instantly.

Working with a computer they've never seen, the pupils can solve any math problem from two-plus-two to the square root of a 14-digit number.

The idea behind the project is not to do away with homework—in fact, it's the opposite. The computer takes care of the time-consuming details so that the pupils can handle a larger work load.

"It's not like it's doing your homework for you. You still have to know math and all the rules," says Brian Butler Jr., 17, of Long Island

City, a junior at Mater Christi Diocesan High School.

The "dial-a-solution" project is a joint study being conducted by the Roman Catholic schools of the diocese of Brooklyn and International Business Machines Corp.

The pupils work at home with a 12-button dial that relays commands to an IBM 1710 computer 50 miles away at Yorktown Heights in Westchester County. The answers come back by recorded voice.

Numbers are punched on the dial the same as on an ordinary calculating machine. But the commands are in code—for instance, to order the computer to divide you push the seven button and a button with a star on it.
