Student Should Have Voice In Classroom

By ANDREW MOLLISON
State News Staff Writer

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs Tuesday released the first draft of a statement saying that the student should have a voice in the most important part of the University, the classroom.

Sometimes a student suspects that one of his courses is required only because it is so poorly organized and pointless that nobody would take it if it weren't required. Or he thinks that he has an incompetent instructor, an inaccurate grade or an uninformed adviser.

Sometimes a student is shocked to find out in his last (sic) term that the graduation requirements in his department aren't what he thought they were. Or he thinks that a faculty member who hasn't published many articles should be promoted anyway, because he is an excellent teacher.

Guideline 11 of the "tentative statement on the academic rights and responsibilities of students" READS:

"In order to effect the rights identified and defined in the preceding guidelines, students shall have channels for communicating to the faculty and to the administration their concerns for and recommendations relating to courses, systems of grading, methods of instruction, programs of study and other matters pertaining to their education."

A subcommittee on classroom rights and responsibilities, under the chairmanship of John H. Reinhold, professor of humanities, conducted months of investigation and analysis which led to this statement. After long hours of debate in the parent committee, the tentative statement was hammered into its present form and released.

Comment from the entire academic community, including students, is invited. Letters may be addressed to chairman Frederick Williams, 406-B Morrill Hall, or to any of the members of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

In June the guidelines in final form will be submitted to the Academic Council as part of the committee's final report on its six-month study of the structures and rules of the University which affect the academic freedom of students.

The tentative statement on classroom rights and responsibilities is divided into two

Mansfield Idea Gets LBJ Support

Southeast Asian Initiative Needed Before More Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI)--The State Department said Tuesday it would welcome "any Asian initiative" to convene a Viet Nam peace conference as proposed by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

Mansfield, in a Senate speech Monday, proposed talks in Japan, Burma, or some other Asian setting.

State Dept. Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey welcomed Mansfield's proposal and said the sites he suggested would "not pose any difficulty."

Further administration backing of the Mansfield suggestion came from Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, after a 45-minute meeting with the President.

Johnson held a series of discussions on Southeast Asia. He met with Lt. Gen. Jesus Vargas, secretary general of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), and also had an appointment with Eugene Black, who is leaving for Asia for discussions on the Asian Development Bank.

Goldberg told reporters at the White House that Johnson was as desirous as ever for a meeting anywhere that would lead to peace in Viet Nam.

He said, however, that there has been no concrete evidence that North Viet Nam was willing to help set up peace negotiations.

Mansfield suggested "a direct confrontation" across a peace table between the United States, Hanoi, Peking and South Vietnamese "elements" which would be "essential" to making a peace.

This was generally interpreted as veiled proposal for Viet Cong participation. The State Dept. declined to go that far in endorsing the Montana Democrat's speech.

"We, of course, consider the government of the Republic of Viet Nam as being the directly interested party," McCloskey said. He added that the department was not clear what Mansfield meant by "essential" elements.

But the State Dept. repeated the U.S. position, stated by both Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, that the Viet Cong would have no difficulty having its views represented at peace talks. This has generally been taken to mean there would be no U.S. objection to including Viet Cong personnel in a North Vietnamese delegation.

Law Advisor Succumbs To Heart Attack

Glenn M. Schultz, 52, specialist in traffic law enforcement at the MSU Highway Traffic Safety Center, died at 1 p.m. Tuesday of an apparent heart attack.

Funeral services will be at 1:30 p.m. Friday at the Gorsline-Runciman East Chapel, 1730 E. Grand River, East Lansing. Friends may call beginning at 7 p.m. tonight at the funeral home.

Mr. Schultz served two positions at Michigan State. His present appointment began in August, 1964. He had previously been a lecturer here from 1957 to 1962 in the MSU School of Police Administration and Public Safety.

Mr. Schultz was a contributor to "Man and the Motor Car," a textbook used in high school driver education courses across the nation. His duties here were concerned primarily with stimulating improvements in traffic law enforcement in Michigan.

Mr. Schultz was associate director for the State Traffic Council of New York during 1963. Before coming here in 1957, he was director for safety, Consolidated Freightways, Inc., of Indianapolis, Ind.

In 1930, he joined the Montana Highway Patrol as a patrolman

ATL Criticized By Instructor

An instructor in American Thought and Language criticized the ATL program of sacrificing vital and creative aspects of education to purely mechanical ones, thus reducing the quality of education.

Frederick Feied sent a letter to Edward A. Carlin, dean of University College, as an explanation of his decision not to return to MSU.

Dean Carlin said he received the letter last week but had no comment.

Feied said in his letter, that

Blood Drive Scheduled For Early May

The spring term blood drive goal will be 3,000 pints, almost 1,000 more pints than the record of 2,006 set in 1964, the AF-ROTC has announced.

The drive will be held May 2-6 in Demonstration Hall. Donors should find that the procedure is easy and takes less than one class period, according to Jeff Coy, Owosso senior, who is chairman of the drive. Background music is being played to provide a more pleasant atmosphere, he said.

Trophies will be awarded on the basis of the highest percentage of participation of a living unit in the drive. The groups that will be awarded trophies are: fraternities, sororities, men's halls, women's halls and independent housing. A certificate will be awarded to the top house in each dorm.

Coy said that permission slips are necessary for students under 21. These slips will be available in living units today so that students will have over 10 days to send them home to be signed. Donations made to this drive will go to the 73 hospitals in the Lansing area. Blood donations may also go to whomever the donor wishes.

MSU students are considered residents of Ingham County by the Red Cross so that they can receive as many pints of blood as they need, according to Coy.

Ferency Kicks Off Drive With Blasts

Zolton A. Ferency opened his campaign for governor here Tuesday with a blast at Gov. George Romney.

He attacked the 1963 State Constitution, saying that "ambitious, narrow and selfish interests--with our governor as a willing pawn--rode roughshod over the warnings of minority delegates and drafted a document designed to serve the interests of the few against the needs of many."

Ferency, presently Democratic state chairman, accused the Constitution of impairing the filling of judicial vacancies, bogging down government processes, setting up inadequate public finance and taxation provisions and destroying previous excellence in highway management.

Ferency noted that major campaign issues will include "the plight of our senior citizens, farmers, farm workers and others."

"Our greatest contribution to the economic well-being of senior citizens, farmers, homeowners, consumers, and small business men might very well be in the area of tax reform." Taxes should be based on the "ability to pay--not the ability to dodge," said Ferency.

He later stated that desirable tax revisions included a graduated state income tax, decreased taxation of small businesses and lower consumer taxes on cigarettes, beer and whiskey.

He also mentioned the problems of "death and destruction on the highways and crime on our streets" and noted that too often politicians will use these issues to gain political advantage instead of making a serious effort to solve the problems.

"We have already used up two-thirds of the 20th century. It's the 1970's and 1980's that we must face now, Romney has no programs for the future of Michigan. He only has programs for the future of Romney," said Ferency.

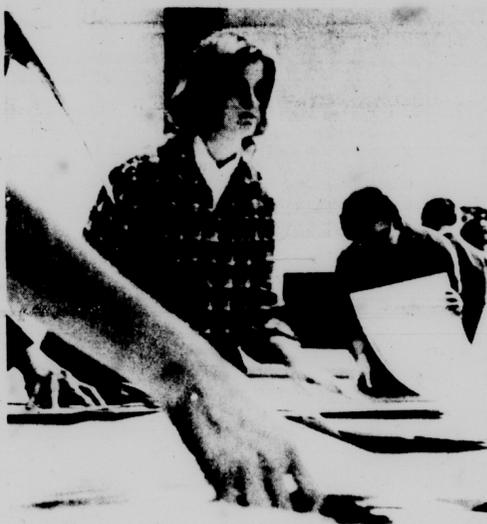

"But I intend to force him to talk about tomorrow's programs in time for today's voters to look behind the false

MSU-Viet Nam Debate Today

An open forum on the current controversy over MSU's technical assistance project in Viet Nam and the broader implications of American university involvement overseas will be held at 8:30 tonight in the Union Ballroom.

The participants, all of whom were connected with the Viet Nam project and cited in the recent article in Ramparts Magazine, include Wesley Fishel, professor of political science; Adrian Jaffe, professor of English; Robert Scigliano, professor of political science; and Ralph H. Snuckler, acting dean of international programs.

ASMSU Lost $10,400 On Pop Entertainment

By ANDY MAREIN
State News Staff Writer

ASMSU reported losing an estimated total of $10,400 on the John Gary and Al Hirt popular entertainment concerts.

Richard Hollander, ASMSU vice president for finance and operations said the last two losses yield a total loss of the second popular entertainment series at $14,400, however the $11,500 profit from the first series fall term reduces the total loss to only about $3,000.

Of the four concerts of the second popular entertainment series, Jay and the Americans broke even, Bobby Vinton lost $4,000, John Gary lost $7,400, and Al Hirt lost $3,000, reported Hollander.

The first popular entertainment series, featuring the Serendipity Singers, Dave Brubeck and The Kingsmen returned an $11,500 profit.

"We couldn't get the kind of entertainment we wanted to provide so we settled for second best and tried to compensate by offering two attractions," Hollander, who is also chairman of a committee investigating the popular entertainment series, said.

"Next year we are going to try to provide the best possible entertainment we can find, and it is only too bad we misjudged the quality of this year's entertainment," Hollander said.

Hollander said other factors

Buddhists Join To Support Ky

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (UPI)--Diehard anti-government elements in the northern provinces Tuesday joined fellow Buddhists in the south and gave up demands for the immediate ouster of the military regime of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

The easing of the potentially explosive political crisis followed the stumping tour of the dissident strongholds by Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang who urged that the junta's pledge of elections in three to five months be accepted with good faith.

In Hue, Nguyen Huu Giao, president of the Student Struggle Committee, said Ky's resignation still would be the "best thing." But he made it known his group would no longer press its demands for Ky's immediate ouster.

Feied said that he does not question the assumptions of a general or liberal education or the need or desirability of mass higher education, but he does have "serious reservation as to the social and academic acceptability of some means employed to accomplish that end."

Jackie Upset By Rumors Of Marriage

SEVILLE, Spain (UPI)--A "very upset" Mrs. John F. Kennedy Tuesday emphatically denied reports she planned to marry Spanish diplomat Antonio Garrigues.

Garrigues, 62, who arrived in Seville Tuesday afternoon to join a party which included Mrs. Kennedy, scoffed at the romance reports.

"We are just good friends," he said.

But the 36-year-old former First Lady said in a statement issued through U.S. Ambassador Angier Biddle Duke that "I want to make it crystal clear and completely understood that there is no basis in fact in rumors of an engagement."

Friends of the late President's widow said Mrs. Kennedy, in Seville to attend the Andalusian city's annual spring fair, was "very upset" over the reports of romance between her and Garrigues, Spanish ambassador to the Vatican.

The distinguished looking diplomat told UPI upon his arrival in Seville that he had no idea how the reports got started.

"It's so simple," he said. "We are just good friends."

Earlier, Duke summoned newsmen to tell them on behalf of Mrs. Kennedy, "She deserves one's respect and understanding and should not be subjected to false rumors of any kind."

OSCAR WINNERS--Julie Christie, English star of "Darling," and Lee Marvin, who played the lead in "Cat Ballou," shared the top honor Monday night at the 38th annual Academy Awards. Martin Balsam and Shelley Winters were named best supporting actor and actress, respectively.

Challenge To Profs: Tell Us Why, Not Just How

THE POISONERS OF mass education are the teachers who present the material to students strictly by the outline the department issues. These "teachers" follow the form, but miss the essence. They show the students "how" but never "why."

Several years ago Dr. Max Beberman, of the University of Illinois, and several colleagues sought to develop a means of teaching mathematics by answering the "why's" and not merely showing "how."

A TEACHING METHOD called the "new math" was developed. Potentially it was supposed to give students insights into mathematical procedures. Practically, it has bogged down in trivia.

A new orthodoxy has replaced the old. Dr. Beberman laments that an old set of rigid procedures has been replaced by a new set.

THE INABILITY OF the new math procedures to create insights indicates that insights result from good teachers, not just effective procedures.

Dr. Beberman must realize that only a good teacher can explain the "why's". No matter how enlightening a procedure, no matter how potentially fascinating a subject, a lazy or inept "teacher" can reduce the matter to a lesson in regimented trivia.

The new math is a graphic example of a situation which clearly exists at this university. Many courses that could be fascinating are ruined by professors with a passion for trivia. Others are ruined by "teachers" who follow the department guidelines so closely and present the matter so insipidly that the course never comes alive. Instead of inspiring students, these academic poisons make education a task for the student.

TEACHERS SHOULD BE evaluated on their ability to teach--to impart knowledge, for this is their function. Unfortunately, the criteria for judging professors is academic achievement and authorship. But no logical connection ties academic ability and teaching ability together.

The creative, talented teacher is a rarity. Many highly regarded professors are abominable teachers. This unfortunate situation stifles intellectual curiosity.

PERHAPS THE QUALITY of teaching ability would improve if every teacher at MSU would re-examine his teaching methods, and listen to a tape recording of one of his lectures. Then he should ask himself: "What did I tell those kids today that was really worthwhile?"

Faculty Committee Sets Needed Guidelines

STUDENT PRIVACY is being protected and at the same time, student rights are being expanded. The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs emphasized these concepts in its most recent report.

Now two-thirds finished with its six-month study of student rules and regulations affecting academic freedom, the committee listed 13 guidelines to follow regarding access and extent of student records.

The many hours put in by the members of the faculty committee are now beginning to pay dividends, as the needed rule evaluation takes shape. Several of the recently proposed guidelines deserve special comment.

IN THE FUTURE no records will be kept concerning a person's religious or political beliefs, unless the student gives his consent. During previous years, such records could be used against a student in attempting to obtain a job or other position after graduation. A person's political and religious beliefs should be as private as the individual wishes to keep them. This guideline will assure him that right.

While most of the guidelines establish limitations on the extent of student records, who should be responsible for them, and who should be allowed to see them, one guideline gives students easier access to their own records. In the past, faculty members, administrators and other personnel had access to students' records, but students themselves had little opportunity to view their own records.

UNDER THE NEW GUIDELINE, students will have the right to inspect their official transcript and reports and evaluations of his conduct--except for letters of recommendations. In this way, students can better know where they stand, both in academics and conduct. Hopefully, the days of student records occupying dark and mysterious realm known only to counselors and advisers are over.

No drastic steps have been taken in establishing new guidelines on student records by the faculty committee, but constructive improvements have been made. In the remaining months of its study, the faculty committee must implement the guidelines, if they are to be meaningful.

If this task is accomplished, students stand to gain increased privacy, and protection from record keeping abuses and rightly so.

Do You Believe All That CIA Stuff?

OUR READERS SPEAK

College: Time For 'Apathy'

To the Editor:

I am tired of being constantly shamed for my "apathy." I guess you could say I was apathetic. I am not involved in any campus organizations. I do vote in elections, but usually I am completely uninformed about the candidates. I am otherwise uncommitted to anything on campus, including church which I no longer attend. I am not ashamed, however, of my inactivity.

I came, a year ago last fall, to MSU as a typical high school graduate who was absolutely sure that there was a definite answer, a definite solution, a definite right and wrong in every possible situation. Most of my definite answers were parrotings of my parents' views. This is normal, I think, of most 18-year-olds. I came with a lot of romantic notions about love and sex, and a huge inability to communicate with other people, to understand other people as "thou's" rather than "it's".

In my year and a half at MSU I have learned through many painful experiences that Answers don't exist with TV clarity, that every relationship is far more complex than my black and white conceptions. And yet, I am still basically uncommitted to anything. I have learned in some measure, and only very recently, that people who are my friends actually do have the same fears and angers and happinesses as I. Yet, I am still basically uncommitted to anyone.

SN Stand Unjust

To the Editor:

Along with the other students on this campus I am taxed to support The State News. Because this publication is financed by a student tax I object strongly to any attempt by The State News to influence students in casting their ballots... even though I may personally agree with their choice. Each candidate and his supporters pays the same tax, and it is totally unjust to use their tax money to oppose their election.

I realize that to be of service to the students The State News must often take a stand on issues over which students disagree. But it is my contention that in the final analysis personal opinion as to who will do the best job decides for whom a vote is cast.

By trying to influence this personal opinion The State News crosses a fine line and becomes an organ of propaganda instead of an information service.

In the future I would like The State News to limit its coverage of elections to a presentation of the men, their platforms, and their qualifications.

It is the responsibility of the individual student, not The State News to decide who will represent him best. I think that given this information the student is capable of making that decision without help.

Late News Is Bad News

To the Editor:

The other day when I went to the library to read a newspaper from my home, India. I was rather surprised to see a tag on the "Statesman" that due to certain reasons the newspaper has been ordered by sea-mail rather than by air mail. The person in charge of the room was not sure whether it reflected a change in the policy or an unwitting mistake.

If it were a mistake, I am sure it would be rectified very soon and I have no complaint to make. But if it is a matter of policy, may I know as to why has this change been made? Was it for saving a few pennies or to discourage the Indian students to know as to what is happening in their home country?

And now this change. A newspaper will take about two and a half months to reach here from India by sea-mail. How far would one be interested in knowing in the month of April what happened at home in February? Perhaps I would know earlier by writing a letter to my kin rather than depending on the library. May I suggest, for a change, to the concerned people to just read a newspaper of the last week only, and see the taste in their mouths?

Directory Disgusts

To the Editor:

I am thoroughly disgusted with the University's policy in publishing the Student Directory. First of all, I am a first-term freshman and this presents a problem when any student in this university attempts to reach me. He fumbles through the Nov. '65 directory and finds that I don't exist. In some cases this makes me lose a date.

Secondly, I get only four hours of sleep each night because I spend half the time answering the phone and telling the shocked caller that so and so dropped out or has moved.

Why isn't there a more recent directory printed and thus simplify this whole mess?

He Lives Where The Action Is

Editor's Note: The following article is the first of three written by State News Staff Writers Faye Unger and Ron Karle, who covered the recent hearings of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission in Cleveland.

It was the day prior to the outbreak of the Ramparts thing and John Hannah's thoughts, for an hour at least, turned to Cleveland and the U.S. Civil Rights Commission hearings he had chaired the week before.

The dark paneled office of the president with its gold carpeting and floor-length draperies is a far cry from Cleveland's Hough area which Hannah visited on his own one night.

This heavily Negro section is located in the tough Fifth Police District.

Miss Unger

Some of the "furnished" apartments rent complete with refrigerator and stove; and that's it.

There are homes in which sewage runs open in the cellars. Garbage is scattered across grassless lawns providing food for the rats who share their homes with human tenants.

The rats, in fact, have private entrances; these are not unobtrusive holes in the wall.

Ron Karle

Your human neighbor may be a prostitute. And she's not shy about peddling her wares.

It's like one Negro minister from Hough testified: "It's where the action is."

"It is unbelievable," said Hannah, "that people would pay rents up to $85 a month to live in that. I can still smell those places." Hannah's and the commission's job in Cleveland was to put such conditions on record; conditions people from such northern metropolitan cities generally seem to ignore.

But it doesn't end there. The commission's findings will be appraised and recommendations made to President Johnson and Congress in areas of federal concern.

Still Vague?
In previous activities, the Civil Rights Commission has a record of 19 laws being enacted from 25 decisions.

"The commission has done a lot of unpopular things," said Hannah, "but none of our findings have ever been proved to be untrue."

He called the commission "a conscience of the American people" and he thinks that more than one-half of the American people would like to be "fair."

He sat back in the green swiveled chair and at times appeared to be thinking out loud; he'd almost mumble, but then the pointed finger would swing around and he'd say something like:

"We've got a job to do here, too--at the University. We've got to train people to go in and teach in these core areas; not just in the middle-class white communities."

The man hunched over the desk now and the knuckles were rapping out ideas.

"All the other immigrants and under-privileged groups like the Irish, the Poles and so on, could see that if they helped Johnny get a good education, he could rise to the top even if his parents didn't."

"But until the last decade a Negro couldn't get a job even if he was trained. He said 'education doesn't work for me.'"

Hannah said the long range goal for helping Negroes must be an education that includes the assurance of opportunity. The Negro, Hannah said, must realize that opportunity exists.

"We haven't actually gone down to the ghettos to find out how to stimulate the Negro."

But the Negro has to live today and he is entitled to self-respect in a job that will earn him a decent living, said Hannah.

"And I don't mean raking leaves."

POINT OF VIEW

'MSU Hamburger Hoax'

Editor's Note: The following article is written by Marlene Wagner, East Lansing graduate student, in parody to the Ramparts controversy.

"MSU--A Huge Hamburger Hoax" was the title of an article in Ramparts magazine, voice of the Left of Horizontal Mediators. The author, T. Attletale, revealed that "Hamburgers have been on the menus of local restaurants for years. Until now they've been a small yet significant menace. However recently the hamburger pushers have come out in the open." He somberly noted that "There are at least three establishments adjoining MSU which are devoted almost exclusively to the sale of hamburgers."

Attletale went on to state "My personal research has disclosed that there is little room for first class garbage in MSU's trash cans. They are filled with paper hamburger wrappers and carryout bags. A university that doesn't have room for garbage certainly doesn't have room for students."

"I personally observed," said Attletale, "three MSU professors entering one of the hamburger establishments, they admitted never having met before entering the building. One further admitted he was sent by a superior. He hesitantly confessed 'The Head of my Department wanted me to bring him, uh... two hamburgers and a chocolate shake.'" those onions make the eyes water." The manager of the Union Grill replied "No comment."

The University's president was called for comment on the charge that "the president's nephew is a short order cook." The secretary replied that the president was "Out to lunch."

Rumors of Communist subversion were disproven. "However," hints Rumpus "Everyone knows that a truly American lunch consists of a peanut butter sandwich."

Why Guilt Flurry?

To the Editor:

What, precisely, would be wrong with MSU being a "front" for the CIA in Viet Nam? I realize that I do not understand the situation, but I cannot see a reason for the flurry of guilt that seems to be the tenor of the News articles. The CIA IS an American organization, after all, and I had supposed that we were, too.

SECOND CAPE KENNEDY STRIKE AVERTED

WASHINGTON (UPI)--The Boeing Co. and the International Assn. of Machinists settled a contract dispute early Tuesday and ended the threat of a second strike at Cape Kennedy's man-on-the-moon space complex.

At the same time striking rocket workers ignored a government plea to reduce picketing, hampering construction of America's moonport for the second consecutive day.

Electricians maintained pickets at all four main gates again Tuesday and turned away about 40 percent of the 1,161 man construction work force. Two big Apollo moon base building projects were again crippled.

USSR DISARMAMENT REJECTION CHIDED

GENEVA (UPI)--Canadian negotiator E.M.M. Burns Tuesday chided the Russians for their "obsession with secrecy" and hinted the West knows the locations of Soviet nuclear weapons material plants.

Burns told the 17-nation disarmament conference that it was senseless for Moscow to reject nuclear disarmament measures for fear of disclosing the sites of nuclear-producing plants.

and protect such opportunities and conditions is shared by the academic community and the University. The primacy of the faculty's role, functions and responsibilities and its essentiality in the educational process must be recognized. The core of the University's purpose, its intellectual content and integrity, is expressed by the faculty.

It is the instructor's role to encourage free discussion, inquiry and expression among his students in their quest for knowledge. He should hold before them the best scholarly standards of his discipline. By rigorous self-scrutiny, by fairness and courtesy, he should conduct himself in keeping with the dignity of his profession. He should adhere closely to his proper role as intellectual guide and counselor. He should make every reasonable effort to foster honest academic conduct and to evaluate his students fairly and accurately. He should respect the confidential nature of the relationship between instructor and student. He should avoid any exploitation of students for his private advantage and acknowledge significant assistance from them. He should protect students' rights as defined herein.

The establishment and maintenance of the proper classroom relationship between instructor and student are fundamental to the University's function, and require both instructor and student to recognize those rights and responsibilities which derive from it. The relationship between instructor and student as individuals should be founded on mutual respect and understanding; it assumes a common dedication to the educational process. If problems arise from these relationships, whether of a personal nature or related to instructional materials and methods, both student and instructor should make efforts to resolve them in informal, direct discussions with well-intentioned, reasonable persons.

In order to identify and define the academic rights and responsibilities of students at Michigan State University, the following guidelines are established:

- The Responsibility of the Faculty
  - Faculty shall have final authority and responsibility for course content and classroom procedure.
  - The student is responsible for learning the content of a course of study according to standards of performance established by the faculty.
  - The student's conduct in the classroom shall be of a quality conducive to the learning process for all concerned.
  - The Protection of the Student's Rights
    - The student shall be free to take reasoned exception to data and views offered in the classroom, and to reserve judgment about matters of opinion, without fear of penalty.
    - The student has a right to competent and informed classroom instruction.
    - The student has a right to fair and competent academic evaluation.
    - The student has a right to competent and informed academic advice.
    - The student has a right to protection against improper disclosure of information concerning his grades, views, beliefs, political associations or character, which an instructor acquires in the course of the academic relationship.
    - The student has a right to accurate and clearly stated information which enables him to determine:
      - The general qualifications for establishing and maintaining an acceptable academic standing.
      - His own academic relationship with the University and any special conditions applying thereto.
      - The graduation requirements for his particular course of study.
    - The student has a right to be governed by academic regulations that are educationally justifiable.
    - In order to effect the rights identified and defined in the preceding guidelines, students shall have channels for communicating to the faculty and to the administration their concerns for and recommendations relating to courses, systems of grading, methods of instruction, programs of study, and other matters pertaining to their education.

And You Thought Sign-Outs Were Bad

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)--The classified advertisement placed by a Radcliffe coed in the Harvard Crimson read:

"One year marriage? Seems to be the only way for a Clifflie to get out of the dorm. I'll share expenses, am a good cook. Other details? We can work it out. Contact Crimson Box 2,000."

The ad was placed in the university's student daily newspaper Monday by an attractive Radcliffe coed who is sick and tired of living in a dormitory. The girl, a 20-year-old junior, says she has just learned she will not be one of the 30 Radcliffe seniors granted permission to live off campus next year.

"I have to get married or I don't have a reason for living off campus."

Miners Stay Off Job, Defy Union

PITTSBURGH (UPI)--Representatives of 10,000 miners in eastern Kentucky defied union leaders Tuesday by voting to stay off the job until a new contract is signed with the soft coal industry.

The Kentucky miners joined thousands of others who took similar action earlier. The vote came as negotiators in Washington were reported virtually deadlocked in efforts to end a nine-day mass coal strike.

The action by leaders of about 100 locals of the United Mine Workers (UMW) district 30 came at a mass meeting in Pikeville, Ky. The locals cover 11 counties in the eastern part of the state.

About 1,500 miners in western Kentucky also remained away from the pits in a strike which has idled up to 41,500 men in Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Alabama.

It was difficult to estimate accurately how many of the 58,000 men who staged a wildcat walkout April 11 were back at work.

The action by the Kentucky miners was a slap at UMW President A.W. (Tony) Boyle and the miners' regional chief, district 30 president E.C. Bean. Bean had issued a personal appeal for the men to go back to work.

"None of the district local unions are inclined to return to work," Bean said after the meeting. "They were emphatic that they did not intend to go to work until the contract is signed."

Prof Imports New Thinking

A new set of rules and an unconventional kind of logic were proposed to a group of students and faculty here Monday night by Joseph Lambert, chairman of the Dept. of Philosophy at the University of West Virginia.

Lambert, who received his Ph.D. here, spoke on the topic, "Existence and Validity in a Logic Without Existence Assumptions."

The phrase "free logic," as opposed to standard logic, was coined and developed by Lambert.

"Free logic makes no assumption about whether words label things," said Lambert.

He used formulas as devices to exhibit the advantages of his new system. Lambert said he used the formulas because they helped him "to analyze statements which talk about the existence of something or the other."

Lambert referred throughout his speech to the works of his former professor, Henry S. Leonard, professor of the Dept. of Philosophy.

'Water-Logged' Batsmen Take On Albion

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

An early morning shower soaked the baseball field at Old College Field Tuesday and wiped out the Spartan game with Albion College scheduled in the afternoon.

The game has been rescheduled for today with the starting time set for 3:30.

Though a tarpulin covered the complete infield diamond with only a small patch of grass behind the pitching mound unprotected, the rain thoroughly drenched the outfield and other areas.

The rain continued through the morning and on into the afternoon until it subsided about 12:30. The decision by coaches Danny Litwhiler and Frank Pellerin to postpone the game was made at 11 a.m.

"We had to make a decision," Pellerin said. "The weather reports said rain throughout the afternoon and we didn't want Albion to come all the way up here if it was to continue."

By mid-afternoon several unwary fans who had not heard of the postponement were at the field, expecting the game to be played since the weather had cleared and the sun had occasionally peeked out from under the clouds.

"We would liked to have played it," Pellerin said, "and actually we could have with the weather like it is now. But you never know. We could have gotten a shower just like that."

"But we decided to postpone it, hoping we'd get a better day tomorrow," he added. "Then, too, it would be pretty easy to fall on this wet grass. We just couldn't afford to get one of our top players hurt with the Big Ten opener coming up Friday."

Even though rain continued to threaten in the afternoon, the Spartans went back to practicing for today's game and Friday's conference clash with Ohio State.

Each pitcher took his turn on the pitching mound in the Spartans' bullpen along the left-field line, while the rest of the team warmed up running and throwing.

Due to the postponement, the Spartans will make a change in their starting pitcher for today's game. Jim Goodrich was scheduled to pitch, but will wait until the Ohio State game.

Instead, Dick Kenney will get the nod from Litwhiler while John Krasnan, Fred Devereux and Dick Holmes may see some relief.

"It would be too close to Friday's game to let Goodrich start," Litwhiler said. "Before he would have had two days rest, but one day's rest is just not enough."

Bengals, Bosox Split Patriots' Day Twin Bill

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Red Sox shut out the Detroit Tigers, 7-0, Tuesday in the opener of a Patriots' Day doubleheader for their first victory of the season, but the Tigers took the second game, 6-4.

Dave Morehead and Ken Sanders combined for the Boston shutout.

Bill Monbouquette, making his first start against Boston since being traded to the Tigers, suffered the loss, giving up six runs and six hits.

Right-hander Dennis McLain held the Red Sox hitless for 5 2-3 innings in the second game before Lennie Green poked a single between first and second into right field.

McLain was driven out in the eighth inning as the Red Sox rallied for four runs on five hits, including four doubles. Orlando Pena came on to try to stop the rally but gave up a single and a walk before Larry Sherry finally fanned Bob Tillman to retire the side for the final out.

Taking It Easy

... Here two Spartan baseball players, Steve Polisar (left) and Tom Binkowski (below) appear to be doing just that in a game against the University of Detroit last weekend. The two had it "easy" again Tuesday when the game with Albion was postponed due to rain. It has been rescheduled for this afternoon.

MONAN AND SZILAYGI:

Soph Netters Set Goals High

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

While neither is planning on a professional career, both Richard Monan and Mickey Szilagyi, sophomore regulars on the MSU tennis squad, are determined to add their names to the Big Ten record books. And the sooner the better.

Monan and Szilagyi are wasting little time and are currently playing first and second singles respectively, and teaming up for No. 1 doubles for the Spartans. A graduate of Coral Gables Senior High School in Coral Gables, Fla., Monan earned the No. 1 singles job after it was vacated by the graduation of Dwight Shelton.

Monan was 2-4 on the team's trip to Texas this spring and, despite dropping his first two Big Ten matches last weekend, is expected to be a challenger for the conference singles crown this season.

The 6-1, 170 pounder got his start in tennis at the age of 10 when his father taught him the game. In his senior year in high school he captained the tennis team and led them to the No. 1 ranking in the state.

During his senior year, he was ranked 12th nationally in doubles and also maintained a high singles ranking.

Monan cites his two main goals in tennis as becoming Big Ten champion and winning a national amateur tournament. "I went to Austria for a tournament last summer," Monan said, "and I would like to return to Europe this summer and see if I have improved any."

"Playing No. 1 is certainly an advantage for me," he continued, "because I'm playing some of the finest players in the U.S. and gaining valuable experience each meet."

Szilagyi's tennis career closely parallels Monan's although they both started at opposite ends of the country.

"Sledge" as his teammates call him, got his start in tennis when his father taught him to play at the age of five. Like Monan, he led his Nicolet High School team to No. 1 ranking in the state.

He was singles and doubles champion in high school, and was ranked 22nd in the nation in singles.

The smallest man on the Spartan team, Szilagyi depends heavily on speed and hustle to win and has been quite successful this season. He was 2-4 on the trip to Texas and is 1-1 in Big Ten competition.

Coach Stan Drobae called Szilagyi a "good competitor," who has a good serve, volley and overhead. But Szilagyi is still not satisfied with his serve. "I double fault more than I should," Szilagyi said. "It was the only thing that lost me that Michigan match."

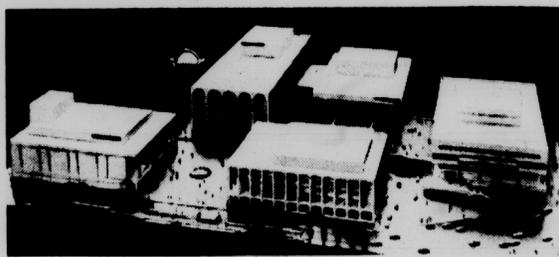

If he lacks anything, it is only experience. "If we just get Mickey to use his head out there he'll be Big Ten champ," Drobae said. "His only loss came to his roughest competition at No. 2 singles, and he could have beaten him."

As a team, Monan and Szilagyi are 1-1 in conference play, having defeated Minnesota's Jerry Noyce and Denny Chez and lost to Michigan's Karl Hedrick and Jerry Stewart.

But they have high hopes in the doubles category also. Monan echoed their sentiments when he said, "We want to be Big Ten doubles champs real bad, and I see no reason why we can't."

Hiring Russell:
A Smart Move

By RICK PIANIN
State News Sports Editor

The Boston Celtics made a smart move Monday when they named Bill Russell to replace Red Auerbach as coach of the club. The fact that Russell is a Negro is purely coincidental.

Russell, if you haven't already heard, will be the first Negro in history to coach a National Basketball Assn. club. Some observers will tab this as another "breakthrough" in sports—like when Jackie Robinson broke "the color line" of baseball.

The civil rights minded will probably consider it a feather in their caps. The commercial backers of pro basketball (i.e. the TV sponsors) may view it with some alarm, for it may begin a new trend in coaching which conflicts with the mass's "image" of a coach.

The Celtics are not crusading for civil rights, nor are they overly concerned about their Neilson rating. Their phenomenal success in the past has assured them of an avid TV following.

The Celtics have merely made the logical choice for a successor to Auerbach. And that's it. Period.

Russell, the former All-American from San Francisco College and a former Olympic star, has been the major factor in the Celtics' story-book success since he joined the club in 1956.

Russell, an excellent rebounder, teamed up with Bob Cousy and Bill Sharman that year to win Boston's first NBA title.

Since then, the Celtics have reigned supreme in the league, and are presently seeking their eighth straight league title, playing Los Angeles in the playoffs.

Russell is aggressive, outspoken and a natural team leader. How successful he'll be can only be determined next season, when he assumes the role of player-coach.

Russell had earlier denied any coaching ambitions, saying that it involved too much aggravation and frustration. The Pistons' Dave DeBusshere has tried it as a player-coach, and thus far failed miserably.

Possibly DeBusshere could give Russell an ear-full of anecdotes about the frustrations of coaching. However, the quality of players Russell will be handling is hardly comparable to DeBusshere's squad.

In fact, it's difficult finding any professional team comparable to the Pistons while we're on the subject. The way things are shaping up, one can't even draw a parallel between the success of the Pistons and the New York Mets.

Ah! But I digress.

'Mad Dog' Thornhill Has 'Fun' On Gridiron

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

Football is a game of heavy, if not brutal, body contact, frequently resulting in broken bones and serious injuries.

For junior linebacker Charlie Thornhill, football is a game of fun. In fact, Thornhill feels that the action-packed game of football would be monotonous if it were not for the fun involved.

Thornhill was singled out by Head Coach Duffy Daugherty for his hard-nosed play in last Saturday's scrimmage. He tackled viciously and hit with reckless abandon—and even got slightly shook up himself when he collided with frosh fullback Reggie Cavender.

However, hitting is Thornhill's idea of fun.

"Hitting is the best part of the game," said Thornhill. "It's fun, and I think football is a fun game. It's not all fun, but without it, football is a boring game."

"Mad Dog," as the muscular 5-10, 210-pounder has been tagged by his teammates, has been a regular linebacker since his sophomore year. However, he had not played the position earlier. Thornhill was a star fullback during his high school days in Roanoke, Va. He enjoyed playing fullback and wasn't overjoyed with the switch.

"When they first switched me, I thought I wanted to quit," said Thornhill. "But I wanted to play football and wanted to play where I could be the highest asset to the team."

"I decided to try linebacker and found out that I really enjoyed hitting. I know I'm playing the right position now."

As one of MSU's two interior linebackers last fall, Thornhill played next to All-American Ron Goovert.

"Playing next to Goovert was great," the Mad Dog said. "Goovert had a lot of spirit. He would keep talking to me during the game and wouldn't let me get down on myself if I made a mistake. I'm going to miss Ron."

Junior Bob Brawley is hoping to fill in for Goovert and much of Brawley's success will depend on Thornhill's experienced help.

"I think Brawley is coming along fine," Thornhill said. "I think we'll do well together, and I hope to help Bob like Goovert helped me."

Brawley is somewhat short of experience, since he has had two outstanding linebackers ahead of him. Brawley sees the advantage of teaming up with Thornhill.

"Charlie is a very hard-hitting linebacker," Brawley said. "He is also one of the quickest linebackers I have ever seen and is a great guy to play next to."

Defensive Line Coach Hank Bullough is charged with the responsibility of correcting the mistakes that Thornhill is still making and, likewise, did an excellent job in adjusting the spirited junior to a new position.

"Thornhill is strong because of his physical makeup and also has good speed to overcome mistakes that slower players make," Bullough said. "I expect him to be a team leader and one of the best linebackers in the conference this fall."

Thornhill's physical makeup is reminiscent of an inverted pyramid on a solid foundation. He is one of the most muscular players on the team and uses his strength to apply crushing tackles to ball carriers.

Offensive Backfield Coach Dan Boisture was faced with running his backs for gains against Thornhill and the first defensive unit in last Saturday's contact session.

"Thornhill hit our backs all over that field on Saturday," said Boisture.

Halfback Dwight Lee was on the receiving end of several Thornhill tackles. "Mad Dog is one of the hardest-hitting guys I've ever come across," Lee said. "He's in on every tackle. I hate to scrimmage against him; he hits hard every time."

'S' Crew Meets Purdue

MSU's crew club will open its home season with a match against Purdue at 5 p.m. Friday. The race will be held on the Grand River along Moores River Drive.

The Spartans will have Dave Drummond in the bow position, with Mike Venus in the No. 2 slot, John Jerome in the third spot and Jim Woodward in No. 4 position.

Gary Jesky will handle the No. 5 slot, with Jeff Kreger, No. 6, Bill Wenk, No. 7 and Paul Hozian, No. 8. Dick Somerset will be the Spartans' coxswain.

Thor Set For World's Games;
To Compete On USGF Team

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

Spartan gymnastics ace Dave Thor will join five former NCAA champions, three of whom are Olympians, as a member of the United States Gymnastics Federation team which will compete in the World's Games at Dortmund, Germany, this fall.

Thor qualified for the berth Saturday at the USGF Championships held at the Air Force Academy. He was the only collegian to gain a position on the team.

A sophomore from Reseda, Calif., Thor tied Bob Lynn, former star and past NCAA University of Southern California all-around, floor exercise, parallel and high bar champion, for fifth place. Both had scores of 104.90.

Top qualifier was Olympian Rusty Mitchell, a two-time floor exercise champ, formerly of Southern Illinois, who scored 115.50. George Weiss from Penn State, '61 NCAA all-around champ, another Olympian, was next at 110.20, with Ray Hadley, '60 national floor exercise winner, of California, third at 105.80. Mike Jacobson, who competed at Penn State as an undergraduate, was fourth at 105.30. He was the NCAA '65 high bar and all-around champ.

In order to qualify, Thor had to complete the six compulsory Olympic routines, as well as six optional routines. In the finals, he placed fourth on side horse with a combined total of 9.1375, and sixth on parallel bars at 9.2375.

In the compulsory competition, Thor totaled 50.95 for the six events. Individually, his scores by event were: floor exercise, 8.8; side horse, 8.8; rings, 8.8; vault, 8.7; parallel bars, 9.3; and high bar, 8.85.

Thor's optional scores were: floor exercise, and side horse, 9.15 each; rings, 8.8; vault, 8.7; parallel bars, 9.3; and high bar, 8.85.

"Dave's compulsory scores were excellent, considering the short time he had to work on them," MSU's coach, George Szypula, said. "He amazed everyone when he got into the select circle of the top six, along with five very experienced performers, all of whom have completed their college careers."

Thor is the present Big Ten all-around, floor exercise and side horse champion. In the National Collegiate, he placed third all-around.

From the USGF Meet, Thor goes to Bartlesville, Okla., to compete in the World's Games Trials May 5-7. The trials will select a team of six to represent the United States at the Games.

Latin America Needs Reform

The main emphasis of the Alliance for Progress program has been on combating communism rather than on social reform, an American University Field Staff (AUF) Latin American expert said.

Richard Patch, AUF member, has recently returned from a three year stay in Bolivia and Peru. He has made Latin America the subject of his research since 1951. Patch will be delivering lectures on campus for ten days.

A renewed emphasis is needed in the Alliance for Progress program after the United States' intervention in the Dominican Republic and the passing of the Seldon Resolution in the United States Congress. Patch said. "It had ceased to be an alliance," Patch said.

During the period when Thomas Mann, then Jack H. Vaughn, were secretary of state for Latin American affairs, "The main emphasis of the Alliance for Progress was the combating of communism rather than the hard work of real social reform," he said.

This emphasis may well change, Patch said, under the leadership of the new appointee to the secretary of state for Latin American affairs position, Lincoln Gordon. Gordon had some trouble receiving Senate approval though, Patch said.

Concerning student involvement in national politics in Latin America, Patch said, "there is no real parallel between U.S. student protest groups and Latin American groups. In Latin America, students are usually against the government," he said, in the sense that for most students the major pursuit at the college level is training for a political career.

The students form segments of the national political parties and conduct campaigns, usually to unseat the government, he said. This is their method of training for a political career later in life.

Patch said in large American universities the larger the university grows, the more lost the individual becomes in it and rebels against authority.

During his recent stay in Latin America, Patch said his studies have focused around land tenure, land reform and development of agricultural production in South America, among other related subjects. Among general Latin American problems, the foremost are: illiteracy, distribution of the land and tax structures, Patch said.

In explaining his position as an independent researcher in Latin America, Patch said that he and 11 other people are sponsored by the AUF, a private association of 11 American universities, to spend three years in various countries around the world.

In these countries the field staff members pursue their own particular field of study as applied to the particular country. "Some people are in English literature and others are political scientists," Patch said.

After the three years, the people return to the United States, where they give a series of lectures at the member universities concerning their findings.

AUF has no relations with the U.S. government, Patch said. It does have some affiliations with the U.S. AID plan though, he added.

"True land reform is the key to political and economic reform in Latin America," Patch said. "This is what was originally contemplated when the proposals setting up the program for 10 years, were set up in 1961," he said. Today, the only Latin American countries that have achieved land reform are Mexico, Bolivia and Cuba, he said.

Goldberg Ponders Peace

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg proposed Tuesday that the United Nations, rather than the United States, act as policeman in Viet Nam once a settlement is reached for ending the war.

One implication of his suggestion in a National Press Club speech was that the United States did not want to keep great numbers of troops in Viet Nam after the fighting ends.

The Communists have demanded a U.S. troop withdrawal from Viet Nam as part of any peace settlement.

Goldberg also reported that the administration was reconsidering its past opposition to Communist China's admission to the United Nations.

He said that "The facts have not warranted a change in our policy, but a matter of this consequence is always under constant review."

Goldberg said it was Peking itself which was keeping China out of the United Nations. Its "long and unrealistic" list of conditions for accepting a seat, Goldberg said, includes ejection of Nationalist China.

Goldberg declared that "along many avenues, even in the face of numerous rebuffs," the United States is trying to get Red

China to "come into the mainstream of the international community."

He spoke at a club luncheon after a 45-minute White House discussion with President Johnson. After the meeting, he told newsmen the administration welcomed Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's call for an Asian peace conference including the United States, China, North Viet Nam and "essential" elements of South Viet Nam.

In his press club speech, Goldberg gave no indication that the Viet Nam war was any closer to the peace table. But looking to the future, he said "The United Nations can and should play

Yanks Bomb Plant Near Haiphong

SAIGON (UPI)--U.S. Navy jets, dropping 15 tons of explosives in a daring low-level night attack, bombed a key power plant in the suburbs of North Viet Nam's main port of Haiphong, leaving the installation exploding in a "shower of sparks," U.S. military spokesmen said Tuesday.

The raid, made Monday by two carrier-based Intruder jets, was the first time this year American planes have penetrated into the Haiphong suburbs to strike at the Uong Bi Plant, which generates 15 per cent of North Viet Nam's electric power and about 30 per cent for the vital Hanoi-Haiphong industrial complex.

(Communist North Viet Nam claimed four U.S. jet planes were shot down and many others damaged over North Viet Nam Tuesday, according to a Communist New China News Agency dispatch monitored in Tokyo. The report said one of the planes was brought down by anti-aircraft "over Haiphong City.")

In ground action, American troops reported killing 52 Viet Cong in a series of operations in South Viet Nam. The ground operations were supported by a raid by giant Guam-based B52 bombers that hit two Viet Cong base camps and a training area in Quang Nam Province, some 365 miles northeast of Saigon.

The widespread air and ground action coincided with an easing of political unrest in South Viet Nam.

Dem's To Elect Officers Tonight

Members of the East Lansing Democratic Committee will meet tonight to select four new officers and plot strategy for the upcoming campaigns.

The group's chairman, Delores Brownell, has already announced she would not seek reelection.

Vying for that position will be James Harrison, 28, an MSU graduate and public relations director for the Democratic State Central Committee. Harrison is also editor of the Michigan Democrat.

Head Start Gives Positive Attitudes

Project Head Start, if given the proper support, will break down the income, social, ethnic and racial barriers that so often inhibit the educational performance of children, according to its Lansing supervisor.

Hazel Turner, professor of student personnel, told the MSU Men's Club Tuesday that the program has been demonstrated as an effective approach to giving the underprivileged child a favorable background for learning.

Mrs. Turner described the Lansing Head Start project launched last summer in a seven-week course.

The Lansing program was conducted in 22 different centers throughout the city with 317 four and five-year olds participating, she said.

Breakfast was served to the group as it was found that a full stomach made things much easier on both the children and the teachers.

According to Mrs. Turner there was a teacher for every 15 children with a teacher-aide, often a mother from the local neighborhood.

Some of the project's innovations included train rides for the children, farm visits, and landmarks tours of the city.

This gave the children a situation to express themselves and their opinions, she said.

This behavior, necessary for a positive learning experience, is often lacking in underprivileged children, Mrs. Turner explained.

Parents were often taken along on the train excursions to develop a more positive parental attitude towards school.

Three project co-ordinators also spent every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon discussing with parents the child's role in school.

A questionnaire recently conducted by Mrs. Turner, revealed that teachers now handling Head Start children felt that the program had given the youngsters confident attitudes toward school and people.

"Our nation," said Mrs. Turner, concluding her speech, "simply cannot afford a public school system which fails to educate 50 to 80 per cent of its students from impoverished environments."

CASE IMPORTANT TO CROWN

Killers Wanted Audience

CHESTER, England (UPI)--The Crown charged Tuesday that a young couple accused of three thrill murders stage-managed one of them so it would take place before the eyes of a man who doubted their capacity to kill.

Sir Elwyn Jones, the attorney-general, an impressive figure in his white wig, told an intent courtroom in historic Chester Castle how teen-ager Edward Evans was hacked and strangled in the presence of the skeptical friend.

Ian Brady, a 27-year-old clerk, and his 23-year-old mistress, Myra Hindley, are charged with the slaying of Evans and the murders of 10-year-old Lesley Ann Downey and 12-year-old John Kilbride.

The bodies of the children were discovered in shallow graves on the desolate Yorkshire moors and the case will go down in British criminal history as "The Bodies on the Moor" case.

Brady and Miss Hindley, sitting in a bullet-proof dock under heavy police guard because of reports they might be assassinated, pleaded not guilty to the murder charges. In addition the bleach-blond stenographer pleaded not guilty to a charge of sheltering a murderer.

Sir Elwyn's presence underlines the importance placed on the trial by the crown. It is the first time in nine years the chief law officer of the government has personally conducted a prosecution.

Reporters from many countries and curiosity seekers have filled every hotel in this ancient walled city, once the headquarters of a Roman legion.

Three-Dimensional Study Of Business District OK'd

East Lansing's City Council authorized a three-dimensional urban design study of the central business district by a professional designer.

The study will be a "mass relationship study," said City Planning Director Michael Conlisk. Instead of just showing where things are to be located, this study will show how high a building should be and what it will look like.

The study is designed to determine "a theme of development for the city," said Conlisk. Included will be the possibility of a mall and parking ramps.

"The cost of a reasonable study will be $5,000," Conlisk said. "This figure could be expanded to as much as $15,000, however."

During the period for persons to be heard from the floor, Roger Jones, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, suggested that due to the excessive proposed cost the city use the free help of interested citizenry, instead of a professional designer.

"The city's budget is too tight to call in someone from outside," said Jones. "We should make use of our local talent."

City Manager John Patriarche answered that the city would be "very reluctant" to turn the study over to the citizenry, due to the time element involved.

"The study must be done in very short order," said Patriarche. "We know through experience that citizens would not have that time."

Any help offered by local people will be welcomed, however, Patriarche said.

Entertainment

may have contributed to the losses.

"We must co-operate with the athletic department to secure concert dates, in Jenison Fieldhouse, and we don't always get the best dates," Hollander said.

Hollander said the fact that the Al Hirt concert was held the week of fraternity rush, and the John Gary concert was held on the Thursday before Easter, may have been factors contributing to the losses.

The fall series may have been successful because concerts were held on football weekends, Hollander said.

Hollander said another factor may have been students' general lack of money winter and spring terms.

Next year, performers and performance dates will be made known in advance and distributed to dormitory residence advisers so that if students seem unhappy with a concert, or date of a concert, changes can be made in advance, Hollander said.

Hollander said that, to his knowledge, people who attended concerts which returned losses seemed satisfied with the quality of entertainment. He also said many people felt the second series, which lost money, was as good as, or better, than the quality of entertainment of the first series.

Humorous Opera Set Friday And Saturday

Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury," a one-act opera, will be presented by the MSU Opera Workshop at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Erickson Kiva.

"Trial by Jury" has as much humor today as it had for the audiences in the 1870's, when it first began. The topicality of "Jury" (British navy, court system, aestheticism and the Victorian society in general) has made it as popular and as uproarious as a political drama of today.

Gilbert, with his insight into what makes a human laugh, and Sullivan, with his knowledge of what kind of tune projects that humor best, have combined their talents to create a very enjoyable opera, according to Director Dan Wright, instructor in music.

"Audiences will find the spoofs at the British jury system in 'Trial' much less amusing than the basically human foibles of the characters in their attempts to contain their dignities," Wright said.

Angelina, portrayed by Carol Robson, East Lansing senior, has been left at the church steps by an obvious playboy type, Edwin, played by Robert Peppel, Port Hope senior.

The unfortunate rake is summoned to court for the breach of promise and off arriving he attempts to win the jury on his side through the use of his guitar.

This doesn't work, and when Angelina arrives with her bridesmaids in wedding attire, it is obvious where the jury's sympathies lie.

After pulling the judicial scales one way and then the other, an unusual compromise leaves all in a state of happiness.

Also cast in "Jury" are Carl Fanghoner, East Lansing freshman, David Schallert, Grand Rapids junior, and John McIntire, Coral junior.

The first half of the statement contains a description of ideal student-faculty relations. The primacy of the faculty's role in the educational process is reasserted.

Students and instructors are urged to resolve as many conflicts as possible through "informal, direct discussions as between well-intentioned and reasonable persons."

The second half contains 11 guidelines. They assert that the faculty controls course content and classroom procedures, but that students have a right to an advisory role in the educational process.

Performance standards established by the faculty must be met as far as course content goes, according to the guidelines. But a student's right to "take reasoned exception to data and views offered in the classroom" is also pointed out. According to the guidelines, a student has a right to competent instruction, fair and competent academic evaluation, competent and informed academic advice, and clearly stated information on a student's academic requirements, his present standing and graduation requirements.

"Improper" disclosure of a student's grades, views, beliefs, political associations or character must be prevented, the guidelines say. "Improper" is not defined.

London Graphica Arts Sale 'Disappointing'

Paul Love, director of Kresge Art Center, described the work offered for exhibit and sale there Tuesday as disappointing.

Lithographs, etchings and wood cuts by famous artists were presented by the London Graphica Arts Co. of Detroit.

Love said that the quality and selection of the work was generally inferior to previous similar exhibits at Kresge.

Most of the work was unsigned and represented prints made from the original drawing or plate but without the personal supervision or presence of the artist.

Approximately 500 people visited the exhibit but sales were slow. Only 15 pieces had been sold by 3 p.m. Tuesday. Prices ranged from $12 to a $900 signed and numbered Chagall lithograph. The London Graphica Arts Co. is an art dealership which shows and sells art work in colleges and universities all over the country.
