New Draft Criteria Begins For Students

By STEVEN GATES
State News Staff Writer

Male students will be ranked by Selective Service boards according to a new set of criteria beginning this summer.

On the basis of the new national guidelines, freshman males will need approximately a 2.35 grade point to be in the upper half of their class; sophomores, a 2.09 for the upper two-thirds; and juniors, a 2.06 for the upper three-fourths.

These grade points do not guarantee draft exemption, however. According to Col. Arthur A. Holmes, Michigan Selective Service director, the local boards will each use their own criteria in determining draft status.

He said that the boards will consider the Selective Service

Qualification Test scores, class standing, and any other items that the local board considers to be in the national interest when determining a student's draft status.

He stated, however, that the national Selective Service system has suggested to the local boards the following criteria for receiving student classification:

--A minimum score of 70 on the Selective Service Qualification Test, or 80, if a senior planning graduate studies.

--Status as a full-time student (12 or more credits each term, not including classes taken as a visitor).

--Rank in the upper half of the freshman class, upper two-thirds of the sophomore class, or upper three-fourths of the junior class.

Holmes emphasized, however, that these guidelines are in no way binding on the local boards and that the determination of a student's draft status was "up to the local board and the student and nobody else."

The student's grade-point will not be reported to the Selective Service, but the student will be ranked according to whether he is in the upper one-fourth, upper one-half, upper two-thirds, upper three-fourths or lower one-fourth of his class.

Overseas Projects Issue To AAUP

A proposal submitted by the MSU delegate to the American Assn. of University Professors (AAUP), would support the involvement of American universities in overseas projects. It was turned over to standing on academic and governmental affairs.

The proposal, which was drawn up in answer to the current issue about the involvement of institutions of higher learning and their faculties with government agencies, was accepted at the AAUP's annual meeting held recently in Atlanta, Ga.

Participation in international programs must be judicious, and decisions must be based upon careful exploration of all the implications, the report said.

American universities must make their resources available throughout the world because the U.S. plays such an important part in world affairs, the report continued.

If a project cannot pass certain criteria, the university should decline the proposal, without, by such action, prejudice to the proposal itself.

Also at its meeting, the AAUP defeated a resolution that would condemn all involvement of universities or individual faculty members with government-sponsored projects.

The MSU proposal offers questions which a university may ask before it decides to get involved in a government-sponsored project.

Will the proposed program seriously deplete the faculty on the campus and thus reduce the opportunity of the university to offer the highest kind of instruction to its students?

Will it retard or adversely affect any planned programs of instruction or research?

Is the proposed program educationally sound, defensible and worthy of the respect of a university?

Is there any danger that, by the association with the project or with the country in which it is to be carried out, the name of the university may be held up to scorn or professional disrepute?

Will the educational reputation of the university be enhanced by participation in the proposed program?

Will it, directly or indirectly, require the expenditure of funds which might otherwise be available for campus activities?

Will participation in the program significantly add to teaching and research on campus by broadening the knowledge and training of the faculty involved?

Written Request Can Stop Release

More light has been shed on the official University policy of releasing information from student records in a new statement issued Tuesday by Registrar Horace C. King.

According to the statement, students may request their academic records not be released to almost any person or group simply by asking the Registrar's office in writing.

The statement contains no new policies but only a change in format of the statement designed to make it more easily interpreted.

Text of the statement follows:
Written approval (date of birth and/or MSU student identification number requested) of the person concerned is required before a transcript or information from his or her academic record may be released.

Exceptions to the above statement include:
The Office of the Registrar may release transcripts or information from academic records, including Reports of Standing, to:
High schools, junior and community colleges and other institutions of higher education.

Parents and legal guardians of students who are under 21 years of age and unmarried.

Individuals or organizations providing scholarship support to a student.
Academic and administrative faculty members of MSU.

State Dept. of Education.
Public information from student records includes name, student number, marital status, sex, program level, curriculum, class, local address, local telephone number and permanent address.

In addition, unless the student objects in writing to the Office of the Registrar, his or her course and grade record may be released to prospective employers.

Information pertaining to honors achievements may be released for publication.
Upon proper identification, a student may be shown his MSU permanent academic record card, transcript(s) from another institution in case of transfer and report of standing, if not yet posted to his academic record card.

A student at MSU should not be shown his or her processed admission records to the University.

A student's identification photograph is available to University personnel only.
A hold may be applied to the release of a transcript or other information requested from an academic record for a student who has an overdue indebtedness to the University.

A Chug In Time... Or - BURP!

Hedrick House chugged its way to victory Monday night in the all-University chugging contest held at the Gables.

The three-man team of Roland E. Krauss, Seabawing Junior, Ted Dodge, Mt. Morris Junior, and Don Reithel, Unionville Junior, downed a total of six 10-ounce glasses of beer in 21 seconds.

Hedrick House survived a weekly elimination tourney which began with 32 teams over a month ago.

They are the first "Turk" team to win the Greek sponsored event.

120 Injured By Detroit Plant Blast

DETROIT (UPI)--A soap factory explosion rocked a mile-square area Tuesday, shattering windows at an elementary school two blocks away and showering nearly 100 children with flying glass.

At least 20 workmen were injured, 11 of them critically. The huge blast shattered windows and ripped roofing from houses four and five blocks from the scene. Clouds of smoke rolled through the streets.

The explosion's shock wave rolled across the playground of Morley Elementary School and hit the two-story building, blasting in every window as the children sat in class.

Jagged glass flew through the classrooms. Ralph Sturmer, assistant principal, said six children were "in bad shape" with severe cuts. Most of the others required first aid only. Sturmer said.

It was the second explosion in 16 months at the Wayne Soap Co. The blast left the two-story plant a ruined shell filled with broken glass and twisted iron beams.

Windows were broken and chandeliers ripped from the ceiling at a second elementary school three blocks from the blast, but no injuries were reported there.

A huge panel of corrugated iron from the factory was found in the schoolyard three blocks away.

Police sealed off the area to keep looters from entering shattered storefronts businesses and homes. Alex Dysas, who has operated a grocery across the street from the factory for 29 years, said he was standing in front of his store when the plant exploded.

Fire Commissioner Glen Thom said a solvent fertilizer "which has a flash point of near zero" exploded during processing. Neighbors said the blast sounded like a bomb.

Experimental Bus Service Discontinued

Lansing City Council voted Monday night to discontinue the Lansing Suburban Bus Line experimental service on campus retroactive to May 7.

The reason given for discontinuing the route was lack of revenue.

The local bus system was operating on a 30-day trial basis with a tentative license authorized by the city.

A bus system official said last week the passenger loads were averaging only 11 per day.

It cost the company $23 a day to pay the campus route driver. The line figured a loss of $20 a day on the salary of the driver alone, plus the mileage on the bus.

"We will probably try the route again in the fall," said a bus spokesman. "We'll try to re-route the bus and make a new time schedule to satisfy the students."

Until the new route is worked out, students can continue to use the Kalamazoo-Campus bus, which leaves Shaw Hall once an hour.

'Death Has Ironies' For Wehman

Death has many ironies. Thomas C. Wehman, Chicago, Ill., graduate student, placed an advertisement with the State News last Thursday to sell his small foreign sports car. The ad was to run every day this week.

On Friday, his wife Sue, and three-year-old son Mark were killed in the car.

The Jolly-Aurelius Road intersection where the accident took place had been considered dangerous. Traffic signals for the intersection had been ordered, but had not arrived yet.

They will be installed within 90 days.

Wehman remained in critical condition at Sparrow Hospital late Tuesday afternoon.

Mich. State Writers Win Money, Jobs

Three present and former State News staff members were honored by the Detroit Press Club

Foundation Tuesday with awards of $250 and summer internships with news media.

Jo Bumbarger, Hickory, N.C., junior; Linda Rocky, East Lansing senior; and Jim Sterba, Owosso senior, won three of the eight awards presented by the foundation.

The other winners were from the University of Detroit, University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

They received the awards at a dinner in Detroit Tuesday night. Miss Bumbarger, State News campus editor, won the prize for her story on a campus forum on birth control.

Sterba, former campus editor, was honored for his series on the U.S. Civil Rights Commission hearings in Jackson, Miss.

Another winning series was Mrs. Rocky's comparisons and contrasts of regulations at MSU and U-M.

This is the first year the newly-formed foundation has held its awards competition, which it plans to make an annual event.

Cool Campus: Arctic Air Slipped Southerly.

The primary cause for the unseasonably cold temperatures MSU students have been weathering for the past five days can be blamed on an arctic air mass which slipped southward through Canada and into the United States.

Tuesday's morning temperature of 19 degrees set the coldest record ever for May in Lansing, according to Harold Julien, Lansing Weather Bureau employee.

The nation's lowest official readings were 18 degrees at Lexington and Walnut Hills, Ohio, and 17 degrees at Flint, Mich.

Monday's snow flurries were not as unusual as most people think," said Julien. The Lansing area usually observes two small snowfalls in May according to the weatherman. The average fall is four-tenths of an inch.

Recent local temperatures have been 19 degrees below normal. However, a slow, moderate increase in temperature is expected within the next two days, according to Julien, as the cold air mass, which currently extends from the Hudson Valley to the Gulf States, moves southeast over the Atlantic Ocean.

Horticulture experts estimate Tuesday's low temperatures dealt a multi-million dollar blow to the nation's fruit and vegetable crops. Loss in southwestern Michigan alone is estimated at 10 million dollars.

Dirksen Breaks Hip In Fall

early Tuesday in a fall at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. The fracture was set in a successful one-hour operation.

Dirksen had entered the hospital Monday evening, after a full workday, for what his office described as the latest in a series of routine checkups. He fell while getting out of bed at 3:30 a.m. He emerged from mid-morning surgery in good shape with no complications.

A hospital statement issued at 3 p.m. EDT said: "Surgery has been completed and Sen. Dirksen is now in the recovery ward."

"Vital signs are within normal limits. Excellent results were achieved with the pinning procedure. The fracture was in the neck of the femur."

The accident occurred when the senator awoke, sat on the edge of the bed and then slipped, falling to the floor.

"The senator rang the call button and the nurse on duty responded promptly. Immediate treatment, including x-ray studies of the fracture site, was instituted."

The Illinois Republican, one of the most colorful and hardest working members of the Senate, has been hospitalized several times in the past two years for treatment of painful abdominal spasms of apparently unexplained origin.

Faculty Voice Needed In Overseas Projects

OUT OF THE CONTROVERSY over MSU's Viet Nam project has come a proposal from 14 history professors that would secure greater faculty control over future international projects.

The 14 historians suggested that a temporary committee be formed to establish a set of guidelines for future programs. They also proposed that an all-University committee composed of faculty members not involved in overseas projects be elected to advise the faculty and administration on such projects.

CLEARLY, THE PROPOSAL is aimed at avoiding circumstances like those that resulted from MSU's ill-fated Viet Nam project. And it's time that the faculty became interested and actively involved in the nature of MSU projects in foreign lands.

Regrettably, it has taken 11 years and a sensationalized magazine article to initiate any concrete faculty activity. With the wide spectrum of projects that MSU sponsors the faculty should definitely have a voice in what and where MSU's personnel should be involved.

UNDER THE HISTORIANS' proposal, both the temporary committee to establish guidelines and the all-University elected committee would be composed exclusively of faculty members. But since ultimately the faculty and administration will have to agree on the nature and scope of four international programs, we think it more effective to establish a committee equally representative of both faculty and administration.

If guidelines are to be established for future international programs, a faculty-administration committee would be preferable to one composed only of faculty members. And any committee judging the propriety of present and future programs should also include equal faculty and administration representation.

IN RECENT YEARS, MSU has had many valuable projects and has sponsored many programs in a number of foreign countries. But to prevent future problems like the ones resulting from the Viet Nam project and to better speak for the University at large, a representative faculty voice is needed.

For the benefit of future international programs and for the sake of our status as a respected university, let's hope the faculty and administration can come to a workable agreement.

Be A Part Of MSU; See Water Carnival

UNFORTUNATELY, MANY STUDENTS pass up the biggest event of the year--Water Carnival.

Last year a record crowd of 8,750 attended. But this is on a campus of 30,000. Of course, a turn out of 8,750 for anything on this campus except registration is unusual, but Water Carnival is something special.

WE HAVE HOMECOMING, pop entertainment and many other social activities.

In 1960, only 3,800 people attended Water Carnival. But from 1952 to 1959 attendance averaged in the 6,000 to 7,000 range. The sharp drop in attendance in the early '60's was because students were not satisfied with the production, and spread the word that it wasn't worth seeing.

But since then, attendance has been on the rise. Last year's crowd was a record. And attendance trends are the best barometers of satisfaction with an event.

THIS YEAR'S PERFORMANCE promised to be better than last year's. A record of 37 floats are entered, and more choreography will be included.

The entertainment offered at Water

Carnival is far different than a movie or other usual weekend activity. It only comes once a year. Enjoy being part of MSU--see Water Carnival.

LBJ And Space

PRESIDENT JOHNSON ACTED too presumptuously when he announced that the United States will present a treaty to the United Nations which would proclaim that no one could claim sovereignty to the moon or any other celestial body.

How does he know that some beings don't already own the moon? Or Mars? Or Betelgeuse?

NO ONE CAN deny that life might exist on other planets somewhere in outer space. For all we know, we mere earthlings may belong to a backwater planet that is part of some giant already-claimed system.

WELL, PERHAPS it's understandable that the President should suggest that no one be allowed to claim the moon. After all, it does revolve around us. But by extending his mandate to all the heavens, he is attempting to make his Great Society a little too great.

OUR READERS SPEAK

We LIKE It Here!

To the Editor:

Just in case anyone is beginning to wonder about it, maybe we'd better confess. There are at least a few of us around here who like MSU.

We doubt that the 200 Merit Scholars among next year's freshmen are misinformed, and we doubt that they have been enticed. Most universities are interested in good scholars, and a few universities take the trouble to display that interest.

Should MSU follow the path so many other schools have taken, simply say, "Oh, you're a Merit Scholar. That's nice," and pursue the matter no farther? MSU's enthusiasm may be overdone a bit, but at least it's extant--and this is of some importance to the prospective student.

Everything isn't perfect here; but is it perfect anywhere else? We wonder how much of a student's dissatisfaction is the University's fault, and how much of it is his own fault--his own failure to adjust to a new type of society.

Anyone who is educated enough to find the University College courses boring should also be educated enough to waive or comp them. Anyone who finds the atmosphere unacademic just hasn't looked around him. Anyone who criticizes the University for its students' activities--such as the student newspaper, the student demonstrators, etc.--simply hasn't grown up enough to accept the fact that people will be people, regardless of where they are.

We admit that MSU has a selling campaign. Some of us didn't really believe all we were told; some of us found the whole thing a bit distasteful. But we're glad we came, and we intend to stay.

'Real Target' Next On List

To the Editor:

There is one point that Dick Clark failed to note in his column concerning safety critics last Thursday in the State News.

When Senator Ribicoff began his investigation last summer by calling representatives of the four major auto manufacturers to testify before the Senate Subcommittee on Executive Reorganization last July, he declared, (as can be verified by the transcripts of the hearings), that the auto industry was only one of three targets in a long-range investigation into auto safety.

The other two, the road and the driver, are as much concern to the senator as the auto industry and will undoubtedly be investigated thoroughly. Order of investigation does not necessarily imply the importance of that which is investigated.

Thus, the senator's subcommittee is not as short-sighted as Clark would like to believe. It will not be long before the "real target," defined in Clark's column as "auto buyer apathy," will be hit.

Criminal Assault Can Happen Here!

To the Editor:

Rape, criminal assault: words unreal, distant-but it can and has happened here in this sheltered womb of Michigan State. The incident was kept out of the papers to protect the innocent, however it does not protect the ignorant--those who won't believe this could happen to any girl, anytime-you, now.

How does one describe the helpless terror of seeing four drunk young men flipping coins to see which one takes your virginity and which one follows and follows....

Watching a world go by from a hospital window, wondering when-if-one can ever fully participate again. Looking down an empty corridor--feeling the emptiness of that corridor.

Now another fear looms very real in the foreground--the fear of pregnancy--of having to give birth to a child whose father will probably never be known.

The physical wounds soon heal, the psychological ones will take much longer. I earnestly hope that no other girl on this campus will ever have to experience this horror--an hour and an eternity. The knowledge that criminal assault is real danger will, I hope, make some wary.

PROFILE OF A POET

Hollander's Dark And Milder Stream

By ANDREW MOLLISON
State News Staff Writer

The birds are coming.

New trends in American literature and art will be demonstrated and discussed Thursday evening by a song writer, a Yale professor of English, a junior fellow of Harvard's Society of Fellows, a literary critic, an editor, an anthropologist and a younger poet, a winner of the Poetry Chapbook Award and a scholar who is noted for his studies of Renaissance music and poetry.

Their name is John Hollander.

He will read some of his poems in Spiro's Cafeteria at 8 p.m., admission one dollar. Hollander will be the second poet to appear in Zeitgeist magazine's "profile of a poet" series.

Hollander has improved greatly since his first book of poems, "A Crackling of Thorns," was selected by W. H. Auden as the 1958 award volume in the Yale Series of Younger Poets.

"A Word Remembered," the one poem which stands out among the copybook exercises in his 1958 volume, weaves a world-weary tapestry of Yeatsian nonchalance.

... All of which has made me think
Of the time that Mary was being very pregnant
And would take no beer, but quietly watched us drinking;
Then, mentioning some event of the past April
She had recourse to name the general season,
But stopped suddenly, as if she had forgotten
A street address she had written down somewhere:

It seems they all sat there unbelievably, presumably beneath a pale, worn-out moon, until

'Oh, Yes, Spring.' I mention this
Only because we cannot remember now
Who, or what, we felt was outraged.

Can't you just picture the University College professor dictating the assignment to his S section? "Compare and Contrast John Hollander's 'A Word Remembered' with William Butler Yeats' 'Adam's Curse.'"

Luckily, Hollander's third book of poems exhibits a much more youthful and universal appeal than does the one he wrote at age 29. His second book, "Movie-Going and Other Poems," was favorably reviewed in 1962, but will not be discussed here due to space limitations. (Also, it's been two years since I read it, and the single copy in the MSU Library was checked out by somebody else.)

In 1965 Hollander came up with a very readable book of poems, "Visions From the Ramble." The Ramble is the section of New York City's Central Park south of the 79th St. transverse and north and east of The Lake. "From parts of it," Hollander writes, "none of the surrounding city is visible."

The themes of "Ramble" are many and mingled; young Love (requited and unrequited), the time-space continuum, metascapes, and four-seasonal appraisal of the human conditions. In these poems he achieves what Auden premaritarily (or, perhaps, presciently) perceived in 1958, "...in a poem there are no strangers...there are no secrets...there is no chance...and there is no time but the present."

In the taping poem two lovers--strangers still and wary of the future--spend a hot July evening on a bank of the Hudson River.

Breathing itself is unrefined,

Being, accomplishment
Enough, as we two sit
On the grass along the river.
"This lawn for passive use
Only," the dark sign (foolishly
Invisible when the action,
Whatever it is, will happen)
Reads, some yards behind us.

The final passage is from "Helicon," in which the man and his friend Allen are donating blood at a commercial blood bank. (It is, I cannot resist pointing out, in a somewhat lighter vein.) The speaker watches his own blood flowing into the plasma bottle.

Darker and milder the stream
Of blood was than the flashing, foaming spray I remembered
Just then, when, the summer before, with some simple souls who knew

Not Allen, I'd helped to fill Columbia's public fountains
With some powdered detergent and concentrated essence of grape.

Having discovered the circulation of water between them
To be a closed system. The sun of an August morning fired
Resplendently overhead; maiden teachers of English
From schools in the south were moving whitely from class to class

When the new, bubbling wine burst from the fountain's summits
Cascading down to the basins. The air was full of grapes
And little birds from afar clustered about their rims,
Not daring to drink, finally, and all was light and wine.

'Holy Toledo' Says Old Arn

Through force of habit and an interest in happenings in My Town, I subscribe to Detroit's Free Press--despite the "action line" gimmick which seems to be permanently anchored on page one. Perhaps one of these days--soon, huh?--the FP will discard the tab-sized front page and remand the games back to the comic page with the crossword puzzle and other games.

At any rate, there is a columnist on that newspaper, a fellow by the name of Judd Arnett, who likes to take his place among the Defenders of The Common Man.

Last Sunday, "Ol' Arn" got right to the heart/purse strings of the common man in a nostalgic piece about the old days in Toledo. It was just a comfortable swipe at one of our institutions of higher book learnin'.

Poor old Michigan State; first Ramparts and now Ol' Arn. It seems our hero heard that some students working full-time on the State News this summer will pull in the whopping sum of $80 a week.

Well, after a "Holy Toledo" or two, Ol' Arn caught his breath and confided that he had been born 30 or 40 years too soon. In his day, boy, you went over to the Willy-Overland plant in Toledo or pursued the rural activities of that era "to earn an honest dollar or two." Honest work was rewarded at $22 a week then.

Wasn't until 15 years later that he came upon a newspaperman who was making $80 a week. And then this stunning conclusion: "Which shows you how times have changed."

Having observed Mr. Arnett in person on more than one occasion, I would estimate his years at about 50. (If I've overshot the mark, sir, no malice intended.)

These figures would put his high school days somewhere in the early 1930's and nicely in the Depression. Thankfully we were not lectured on those times even though I have the greatest admiration for that generation which heroically survived the Depression. There is confidence, however, that my generation would have made it, too.

Back then, it's suspected that anybody making $80 a week must have been thought to be a successfully retired bootlegger. Why the idea, indeed, that today's college student should aspire to such heights.

But why do today's older folk insist on comparing the wages of today with wages of 30 years ago? Strange how they never tell us about the price of houses and cars or food back then. Might be a good question for someone to send into the "action line" game.

It is suspected that Ol' Arn's impression of a student newspaper is typical of most "real" newspapermen.

It would be interesting to know if his first newspaper job was on a paper that had a circulation of 35,000, maintained a state capitol beat, published five days a week, sent correspondents anywhere in the country or had full wire coverage?

No wonder it took 15 years in the old days--even at those wages--to pull down $80 a week.
Holy Toledo!

Stock Market Rallies

NEW YORK @—The stock market Tuesday staged a vigorous rebound from more than two weeks of sharp decline. Trading was heavy.

Brokers said they were pleased with the upswing. They said it helped relieve some of the jitters but couldn't determine whether the upswing was merely a technical rally or a decisive break with the sharp downtrend of the past three sessions.

U.S. Says Cong Sparked Panic

SAIGON (UPI)—An American spokesman Tuesday blamed Communist terrorists for a Saigon machinegun street battle in which panicked U.S. and South Vietnamese police fought only themselves and civilian bystanders after a terrorist bomb exploded near a U.S. officers billet. The American spokesman called the incident "tragic" and the mission is "deeply sympathetic to the victims, the innocent victims."

Kosygin Seeks Stronger Egypt Ties

CAIRO @—Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived Tuesday on a mission aimed at solidifying Soviet relations with President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Kosygin was hailed as a "Hero of Peace," in a triumphal welcome from a crowd of 50,000 on his first visit to Africa.

California Court Backs Open Housing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—California's highest court Tuesday struck down the nation's only state law—passed 2-1 by voters—that specifically sanctioned racial and religious discrimination in the sale and rental of property. The State Supreme Court ruled 5-2 the proposition was unconstitutional, basing its position on the "equal protection" clause of the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

RED CHINESE VERSION

'U.S. Rejected Bomb Ban'

TOYKO @—Premier Chou En-lai of Red China said Tuesday night the United States turned down a proposal by Red China that the two countries agree never to use nuclear weapons against each other. He asserted this foreclosed the Chinese to develop the weapons.

Commenting on Red China's third nuclear blast Monday, Chou told a banquet for a visiting Albanian delegation in Peking that "nuclear weapons can save neither U.S. imperialism nor the revisionist leading group of the Soviet Union." Albania supports Peking's feud with Moscow.

"All reactionary forces are doomed to extinction, whatever new weapons they wield," the New China News Agency quoted Chou as saying.

"China has proposed to the United States that the two countries undertake the obligation of not being the first to use nuclear weapons against each other, but U.S. imperialism has rejected China's proposal."

He did not say when or where the proposal was made. He said that instead, the United States "continued to develop and mass produce nuclear weapons of various kinds, further expanded its nuclear bases all over the world, particularly those around China, and stepped up its nuclear blackmail."

The nuclear blast sent waves of apprehension among nations on Red China's perimeter.

Nationalist China and South Korea said the explosion showed Red China's aggressive intentions. Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's government in Japan, the only nation to feel the atomic bomb in wartime, protested the test, saying "it ignored the fervent wish of mankind."

Foreign Minister Swaran Singh of India, whose nation is threatened by Red China along the northern border, called the test "arrogant defiance" of worldwide wishes for an end to nuclear testing.

Sorority Rezoning Request
Approved After Opposition

A sorority requesting rezoning of property on East Grand River Avenue faced opposition from several citizens Monday night before East Lansing's city council approved the request.

The lots—13, 14 and 15—which had previously been classified B-1, or business, were rezoned to R-4, or residential, to enable Alpha Omicron Pi sorority to build a new house on two of the lots.

The city's planning commission recently recommended that five lots in this location be rezoned R-4, which includes sorority housing. The additional two lots are owned by the East Lansing Investment Co.

Several letters from citizens were read aloud asking the council not to adopt the ordinance.

"Property will suffer a severe loss in value if this area is rezoned," wrote John Coffman, 149 Spartan Ave.

"Any increase of population in the area is undesirable," he continued. "A sorority would present problems in traffic and cleanliness."

H. James Starr, an attorney, said his clients opposed rezoning the area, but suggested that the sorority asking the zoning board of appeals for a variance.

Walkout Idles Long Island Line

NEW YORK (UPI)—Long Island Railroad trainmen struck the nation's busiest passenger line at the Tuesday evening rush hour, accusing company executives of drinking on the job.

Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen walked off their jobs on some sections of the 334-mile, state-operated railroad shortly after 5 p.m. EDT as the first wave of 90,000 evening commuters descended on the line's New York City Pennsylvania station terminal.

Thousands of passengers were stranded in trains at the terminal and on loading platforms by the wildcat walkout. Others who heard advance reports of the strike sought alternate transportation to their homes in Brooklyn and Queens and scores of Long Island communities.

A railroad spokesman announced at 5:30 p.m. EDT that all diesel service to several North Shore and Central Long Island stops was suspended, but electric trains operating out of New York and Brooklyn—accounting for 75 per cent of the line's service—were unaffected.

Harold J. Pryor, president of the line's branch of the union, announced the walkout about an hour in advance, saying that executives had violated a company rule by drinking cocktails at a Tuesday luncheon honoring Thomas Goodfellow, Long Island Railroad president.

Pryor said that since many of the executives were responsible for issuing operating instructions later in the day, the strike was called "in order to protect the safety of both commuters and employees."

Goodfellow reacted by calling the walkout "blatant blackmail."

"Once again, Pryor is hauling out the red herring of safety in an effort to blackmail the railroad, and, once again, the commuter is caught in the middle," he said. "If Pryor was so genuinely concerned about the safety of passengers and employees, it is strange he didn't stop the trains at 12:30 p.m. rather than waiting until 5 p.m."

"A Case for the Ivory Tower" will be the topic of a lecture by Sir Eric Ashby, Master of Clare College at Cambridge, 4 p.m. Thursday in Conrad Auditorium.

The position of master corresponds to the presidency of a liberal arts college in the United States. Ashby recently served a term as president of the British Assn. for the Advancement of Science.

The lecture is sponsored by the Office of the Provost and Spartan Roundtable.

Chrysler Plans Break
In Production May 31

DETROIT (UPI)—Chrysler Corp. joined General Motors and Ford Tuesday in announcing a car production cutback, part of industry plans to trim about 160,000 cars from assembly schedules.

Chrysler, the nation's third largest auto maker, said it would close its assembly plants at Newark, Del., and Los Angeles for four days starting May 31, laying off about 6,000 workers and eliminating 4,700 cars from original June production schedules.

The firm said its five other car assembly plants and its one truck factory would run regular five-day schedules through June. Even with the reduction, Chrysler said its June car output was scheduled at 136,000, a record for the month. Last June Chrysler built 134,485 cars.

Ward's Automotive Reports, an independent trade publication, said Tuesday the auto industry planned to cut 34,000 cars from May schedules, 57,000 from June and 70,000 from production schedules for July, final month of the 1966 model year. Ward's said the industry had no choice but to reduce its final quarter build-out of 1966 models because an enormous buying rush earlier in the year had settled back to a normal level.

Netters Shutout Western, 9-0

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

MSU's tennis team kept a perfect record against smaller Michigan schools with a 9-0 romp over Western Michigan here Tuesday.

Unlike their match with Wayne State, however, the Spartans were forced to go three sets twice before winning.

Both Capt. Mike Youngs at No. 6 singles and the No. 3 doubles team of Jim Jakubiec and Doug Volmar were forced to go the distance before emerging victorious.

1 singles with a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Gene Havrilenko. The victory makes Monan 5-4 overall.

Mickey Szilagyi handed previously undefeated Ken Germain his first loss of the season with a 6-3, 6-3 decision at No. 2 singles. The sophomore from Milwaukee is now 6-3 in regular season play.

Laird Warner scored his sixth win against three losses for the season with a 6-4, 6-0 win over Ron Seifert at No. 3 singles.

Jim Phillips matched Monan's victory string with a 7-5, 6-0 win over Glen Sykes. The win boosts Phillips' overall record to 6-3 at No. 4 singles.

Vic Dhooge continued his fine play at No. 5 singles and extended his victory string to six with a 6-1, 6-1 romp over Tom Essenburg. The 6 foot, 190-pounder is now 7-1 for the season.

After losing the first set, 1-6, Youngs bounced back with a pair of 6-2 victories to defeat Tali Ripelis. Youngs is now 6-3 overall.

Monan and Szilagyi had no trouble with Havrilenko and Seifert at No. 1 doubles and took a 6-1, 6-0 victory. The pair are now 6-2 overall as a doubles team.

Warner and Youngs were moved from their normal position at No. 3 doubles to the second slot and responded with a 6-3, 6-2 win over Germain and Sykes. The senior duo is 6-1 overall and undefeated in five starts in league play.

Spartan Coach Stan Drobach had promised Jakubiec and Volmar a chance at No. 3 doubles if the Spartans won five singles, and he kept his word.

The pair dropped the first set, 3-6, but came back with 7-5 and 6-4 victories to dispose of the team of Ripelis and Mike Austrins. Jakubiec and Volmar are 2-1 as a doubles team.

The Spartans netters are now 7-2 in regular season dual meets.

Spartan Linksmen Second In Four-Team Tournament

By DAN DROSKI
State News Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND--MSU's golf team was defeated by Notre Dame as the Spartans finished second in a quadrangular meet here Monday. Notre Dame finished with a team score of 748, while the MSU linksmen totaled 777 shots.

Northwestern took third place with 783 strokes, and Illinois State University was last with 786. The tournament was held in 30 degree weather, and this had a definite effect on the overall caliber of play.

Junior Doug Campbell led the Spartans' golfers as he carded a two-round total of 154. Sophomore Al Thiess and junior Geoff Lyon were both two shots back at 156.

Three sophomores rounded out MSU's top six as Steve Benson fired a 157, John Bailey shot a 158 and George Butch carded a 161.

Head Coach Bruce Fossum took along his younger players to South Bend, leaving Captain Ken Benson and regulars Sandy McAndrew and Rick Mackey at home in an attempt to give them a rest.

"The team has been playing at a pretty torrid pace, and I felt a rest would do Ken, Sandy and Rick more good than anything else," Fossum said.

The Spartan golfers did not play up to their potential, but the cold weather probably had a lot to do with it. "I expected the boys to score a little better, but the scores weren't really that bad, considering the weather and the fact they had never seen the course before," said Fossum.

The Spartans' next match will be Thursday when they travel to Ann Arbor for a tournament against arch-rival Michigan. The Wolverines have faced MSU once earlier in the year, when they finished nine shots ahead of the Spartans at the Northern Intercollegiate Tournament.

'S' Fencer Haskell In Championships

Spartan Big Ten Sabre champ and NCAA runnerup, fencer Mark Haskell, will take part in the Michigan championship finals at Wayne State University Friday.

The matches will begin at 7 p.m. at the McGregor Center on the Detroit campus. Spartan sabreman Mel Laska was eliminated in the preliminary round, placing seventh.

Fossum also announced the six-man team he will be taking to the Big Ten championships, May 20-21. The squad consists of Ken Benson, Rick Mackey, Sandy McAndrew, Steve Benson, John Bailey and Doug Campbell.

SPORTS

The night was mighty cold but the cause was worthwhile, so the Spartan baseball team went out and defeated Notre Dame, 5-0, in a benefit game at St. Joseph Monday.

MSU pitcher Jim Blight picked up a snappy two-hit shutout, despite the 37-degree temperature, in a game that only went seven innings. Blight's record now stands at 2-2, and he holds a 3.09 ERA.

Outfielder Bob Speer broke open the game in the fifth inning, when he blasted a three-run homer over the left-field wall and through a car windshield.

Sorry about that, sir.

This was Speer's second home run of the season and boosted his over-all batting average to .348.

Actually, one run would have sufficed Blight, as he struck out nine batters and walked only four. The two hits he allowed came in the first and second innings.

Shortstop Steve Polisar, batting .358, contributed MSU's other two tallies, driving in two runs on two hits. Catcher Bob Steckley also collected a hit and then came in to score. His average is .333.

The game was played as a benefit for the widow of Alton Stover, who umpired MSU and

Notre Dame games on his time off from his job as a deputy sheriff.

Stover was killed during a bank robbery last fall at Benton Harbor.

Coach Danny Litwhiler was pleased with the Spartans' display against Notre Dame. MSU's season record is now 19-11-1.

"We couldn't have gotten more timely hitting than we did Monday," Litwhiler explained.

"It was a well-played game, with only one error committed in it by Notre Dame," he said.

"That error came when John Biedenbach lined one off their shortstop's shin.

"I think it should have been a hit, anyway," he added.

This won't be the last the Spartans will see of Notre Dame this season. The Irish will face MSU again Monday night in an exhibition game in Lansing.

The following night, the Spartans will play Western Michigan under the lights.

"The team is in as good shape as it ever will be," Litwhiler said. "The Big Ten race will certainly be an uphill battle from now on, and it's a matter of having to win every day."

The losing pitcher for the Irish was Tom Cuggino.

Cepeda's HR Aids Cards

CHICAGO (AP) - Orlando Cepeda slammed his first home run for St. Louis and Bob Gibson scattered six hits in pacing the Cards to an 8-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday.

Cepeda, obtained from San Francisco in a trade for pitcher Ray Sadecki Sunday, walloped his fourth homer of the season with no one aboard in the sixth.

Gibson, Curt Flood and Mike Shannon also hit bases empty homers for St. Louis, the pitcher's an inside-the-park home run in the seventh.

Gibson also helped his own cause with a single that touched off a three-run rally off Cub starter Bill Faul in the third. The single was followed by a walk to Shannon and Flood's two-run triple. Flood scored on Cepeda's sacrifice fly.

Knicks All-But-Sign Caz

NEW YORK (AP) - The New York Knickerbockers, needing a big, strong backcourt man to get out of the cellar, eyed All-America Cazzle Russell of Michigan as the No. 1 pick in today's National Basketball Association draft.

Russell, 6-foot-5 1/2 and 218 pounds, was regarded as a can't miss prospect by the pro scouts, many of whom downgraded Rick Barry a year ago.

Barry became a sensation player for the San Francisco Warriors and was named Rookie of the Year and was voted to the league All-Star team. Some thought Barry might be too frail for the pros but they never will say that about Russell.

New York had won first pick by the flip of a coin with the Detroit Pistons after the two teams finished last in their respective divisions. San Francisco, St. Louis, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Boston, Philadelphia and the new Chicago entry followed in that order. Chicago got the third and fourth picks in the second round, behind Detroit and New York.

The draft was scheduled to start at noon, EDT.

The old territorial draft that gave the Knicks the rights to Princeton's Bill Bradley a year ago has been abandoned. Bradley passed up the pros to continue his studies in England.

Russell, Dave Bing of Syracuse and Dave Schellhase of Purdue were among the most highly regarded pro prospects. Bing, 6-3, 185, made all the All-America teams by scoring 749 points and excelling as an all-around performer. Schellhase, 6-4, 205, led the nation's major colleges in scoring with a 32.5-point average and also made every All-America team.

Perhaps the best of the big men available was Walt Wesley, 6-11, 235, of Kansas, an excellent rebounder.

Historian Reveals Himself Says Prof

By SUSAN SILK

The historian reveals more about himself and the time in which he writes than the time of which he writes, Robert Brown, professor of history, told the History Club Monday.

"Historography as Intellectual History: the Case of Carl Becker," the paper which Brown presented, is a critical analysis of the "intellectual" history of historian Carl Becker, who wrote from 1907-1944.

This intellectualized history was a theory that the conservatives do not believe in progress and therefore it is for the liberals to arm themselves with a useful history and set civilization on the path to progress.

"From 1907 until the late 1930's Becker followed a perception of history which placed facts as a source of history, interpreting the past in terms of current social objectives," Brown said.

The historical facts of Becker were highly subjective, founded not in documents, but creations of the historian.

"According to Becker each age interprets the past for its own purpose. History and mythology are alike in this respect that the historian has been entrusted with the useful 'myths' of society, these myths are the once valid but now discarded or re-interpreted views of events," Brown said.

This purpose of intellectualizing history determines the precise meaning the historian gets from any event, Brown said.

"The historian, as Becker models him, works from a concept and the concept determines the facts, not the facts the concept. The facts are not the paramount ingredient in history, facts will not speak for themselves," Brown said.

Voltaire, like Becker, conceived of history as a useless pack of tricks played on the dead, he said.

"If history is everything Becker said it was, why study history? The purpose here is that history shows the social function of history in any age. Its validity is found only in terms of the value it has in serving human improvement. Such was the philosophy of Becker and this is how he wrote," Brown said.

Through the study of this historian we may determine how his age (pre-World War II) perceived the historian and the history he recorded, Brown stated.

He said the Becker philosophy of history, before the 1940's, was one of cynicism in a hope of creating liberal thinking, but in reality the result of his movement was the creation of new, and stronger, cynics.

Becker's cynical perception of American history reflected a modern cynicism far more accurately than the age of which he wrote, Brown said.

"The dream world that came from the concepts and images of history created a philosophy that every man was his own historian," said Brown, "which is a rather tongue in cheek attitude toward historians and history on the part of the creator Becker."

This dream world which Becker was promoting was in fact a hope for social democracy in the face of World War II.

"Carl Becker was not a historian at all. His contempt of history as a discipline and historians as scholars forced him to avoid the scholarly, factual approach. What Becker wrote was not history but a chronicle of the concepts he held of American history viewed through the ideals he held for modern, pre-World War II society," Brown concluded.

New Hum Course To Have 4 Sections

The Dept. of Humanities is planning to expand its new course, Humanities 250, from two to four sections in the fall.

The course, "Traditions of the Orient," is intended to serve as a synthesis of the major traditions of the East and is based mainly on the cultural human experience as reflected in India and China.

The class was offered for the first time this term. Warren Gunderson, instructor of humanities, and Joseph Lee, assistant professor of humanities, have each directed half of the students for the first five weeks of the term and will interchange for the remaining five weeks. The general method of instruction is similar to basic humanities courses. Students are provided with an outline, texts, original readings, lectures and slide showings.

Four sections will be offered in the fall, two in the morning, and two in the afternoon.

Surjit Dulai, and Joseph Lee, both assistant professors of humanities, will teach the course.

This is an elective one-term course giving students an opportunity to view life and to examine values held by cultures differing from our own western traditions.

150 CITIZENS QUIZ OFFICIALS

City Council Adopts $2.28 Million Budget

By BOBBY SODEN
State News Staff Writer

Almost 150 citizens filled the Council Chambers in East Lansing's City Hall Monday night, May 9, to protest the proposed budget for fiscal year 1966-67 in a public hearing.

The budget of $2,287,389 was adopted by the council later that evening. This amount is an increase of $23,833 over the budget recommended by City Manager John M. Patriarche last month. A $24.10 per thousand assessed property tax is a chief part of the budget. This figure is an increase of $1.40 over last year.

Patriarche's proposed budget has been on file with the city clerk since April 11 and available for the public.

Citizens' objections to the proposed budget included everything from the city manager's salary increase to the public library allocation.

Herb H. Streukens, 926 Westlawn St., protested the raise in the city manager's salary from $20,000 to $21,200.

Only two other cities in the state have equivalent salaries for their city managers, Streukens said.

"Would you believe a 27 per cent increase since last year in the salary of Assistant City Manager Art Carney?" continued Streukens. "I protest these changes, because I don't think the city manager or his assistant merit these increases."

The city council is not very representative when it ignores our requests for change, Streukens said.

Councilwoman Mary Sharpe explained that the city council, not the city manager, initiated the steps for salary increases for the city manager and his assistant.

"I am protesting the 10 per cent increase in the budget over a period of one year," said Willard White, 532 University Dr. "The 10 per cent includes several thousands of dollars obtained through assessed valuations."

"East Lansing's city government is getting lopsided," he said. "Our city manager is getting a far higher salary than the mayor of Lansing, a city three times as large."

"Poor old President Johnson set up a 3.2 per cent guideline. I guess he's way out of date," White said.

Mayor Gordon Thomas explained the budget and the problems of a rapidly growing city.

"We've got to realize we're living in a different city than we were five years ago," Thomas said. "The city is faced with the task of adjudication--on one side, the people protesting the budget, and on the other, providing the services the city offers."

"I think the city does an admirable job of keeping the budget down," Thomas said.

One citizen apparently didn't think the city was providing more services, despite budget increases.

"I'm not getting any more services than the day I moved here five years ago," he said. "I got my trash taken away once a week then, and I get my trash taken away once a week now."

"The average citizen doesn't notice the increased services of the city," Thomas explained. "Using trash as an example, we used to only have to take it a couple of blocks away to dispose of it. Now we have to take it 10 miles away."

Police Officer Dean Tucker asked the council to see a breakdown of the money allocated to the city police department to determine whether there had been salary raises and benefits allocated.

East Lansing police previously requested salary increases of $1,000 per man. The department also requested $6,000 life insurance policy and full Blue Cross coverage by the city for each officer.

Mayor Thomas and members of the council hinted strongly at police salary increases, but said that they could not say at that time the exact amount because they were still negotiating the matter.

When asked if the council anticipated giving the benefits police had requested, Patriarche said, "No determination has been made at this time. They are all tied up in one package."

Several police officers said they wanted to be kept informed on what the council was deciding before it was too late to do anything.

Harold Forst, 511 Ann St., asked why the council recommended $84,000 or $3,000 less than requested, to the East Lansing Public Library.

"Every penny is a very worthwhile investment," said Forst. "The extra $3,000 would help us buy many more books."

A councilman told him that the sum recommended to the library was an increase of $7,000 over last year and they felt it was "substantial enough."

Field Studies Better, English Genetist Says

Greater scientific progress can be made by experiments in the field than by study in the laboratory, said Edmund B. Ford, professor of zoology, All Souls College, Oxford, England.

Ford, past president of the Genetical Society of Great Britain, spoke of "The Experimental Study of Evolution" in McDowell Kiva.

The most beneficial approach to science today is to carry laboratory work out into the field and study evolution as it occurs, Ford said.

Ford discussed his studies of ecological evolution, the relationship between organisms and their environments in the Scilly Isles, southwest of England.

"We concentrated our studies on butterflies and moths," Ford explained. "We chose butterflies which were in isolated populations because they were subject to change in number and genetic variability."

Ford and his colleagues discovered that an increase in the size of a population would bring about an increase in the amount of genetic variability. This variability would cease as the population became constant.

Ford also discussed polymorphism, the existence of an organism in several forms or color variations.

Black forms of certain species of butterflies and moths have spread into the industrial areas of the United States and Great Britain, Ford said. These forms are monomorphic, controlled by a single, major gene. The blackening which occurs on certain parts of the body can be seen when experiments are made in the field.

"A lot can be done by theoretical study," Ford said, "but much more can be done by actually going into the field."

Smacks Snacks

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—A move by the Kentucky State Board of Education to curb nibbling between meals is bogged down in a gumbo of protests.

The board recently forbade future sales of snacks in schools taking part in the school lunch program.

Anguished beefs quickly snowed down from all over Kentucky.

Snacking, asserted one school official, is "a part of society and the American way of life."

"It is a practice that is historically established," declared another.

Women Plan Theater Trip

The MSU Women's Business Club is planning a summer theater trip to see Ethel Merman in "Annie Get Your Gun" in Detroit on July 16.

The trip will be by bus and will cost about $15. All women living on campus this summer are welcome to attend. For additional information contact Mrs. Virginia Ross in 132 Anthony Hall.

Dinner reservations can be made for either the Top of the Flame, the Elmwood Casino or the new Pontchartrain Hotel.

10th Annual Jazz Show Tonight At Music Building

Phi Mu Alpha, professional music fraternity, will present its 10th annual jazz show at 7:30 tonight in the Music Building Auditorium.

The program, featuring Michigan State alumni and students, will include four small groups and the MSU Jazz Ensemble directed by Bob Curnow.

Small groups that will perform include the Buddy Spangler Quartet, the Mike Grace Quartet, the Larry Wojcik combo and the Ray Ricker Quintet.

Spangler formerly played with the Ralph Flanagan band and is now with WKAR radio. Wojcik has performed with the Ralph Marterie band.

The 20-piece jazz ensemble will perform 10 numbers including compositions by J. J. Johnson, Shorty Rogers and Henry Mancini. Several arrangement-compositions by student band members Denny Urlick and Tex Arnold will also be presented.

Admission will be 50 cents.

The Phi Mu Alpha fraternity originated the first organized jazz program at MSU in the 1950's. The project has since become a university function and now includes music classes in such areas as writing for jazz bands and improvisation.

In 1960 the project was headed by Eugene Hall who came to MSU from North Texas State where he originated a jazz program after World War II. North Texas State's jazz program is regarded as the finest in the country.

Through Hall's influence, Stan Kenton held summer jazz clinics for high school students at MSU from 1961-63.

The jazz ensemble or lab band has appeared at several jazz shows throughout the country and in 1962 won the Notre Dame Intercollegiate Jazz Festival.

The campus jazz program is now headed by Bob Curnow, graduate assistant in the Music Dept. He is one of several alumni of the MSU jazz band who have played with the Stan Kenton band.

Other former members have gone on to play with the Buddy DeFranco band and the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

Musical Recital By Students Set

A selection called "Fugue for Temple Blocks and Cowbells" will be one of 15 compositions to be performed at 3 p.m. Thursday at a student recital in the Music Auditorium.

The compositions, which were written by students enrolled in MSU's Materials of Music course, include an oboe solo and a composition for violin and tamboourine.

The compositions make use of various techniques, such as thematic metamorphosis or repetition of the theme with variations, and polyphonic. Strings, woodwinds and pianos will be among the instruments used.

There is no admission charge, and the public is invited.

Pride Basic To Mental Health

Mentally "patting oneself on the back" is one useful way of building self-respect and good mental health, Recovery, Inc., panelists said Friday night at an open panel discussion at Pilgrim Congregational Church in Lansing.

Recovery, Inc., offers a systematic method of self-help after-care for former nervous and mental patients, said John McDonald, executive director.

The 10-member panel included McDonald, Mrs. Kitty Schumacher, mid-Michigan area leader, and local leaders from the Lansing area. Phil Crane, national director of leadership training for Recovery, moderated.

The Recovery method was developed by the late Dr. Abraham A. Low, who served as associate director of the Psychiatric Institute of the University of Illinois Medical School for almost 10 years and later as acting director.

Dr. Low founded Recovery in 1937 for the purpose of preventing relapses in former mental patients and chronicity in nervous patients.

The Recovery principles were developed after years of experience and study. These principles, set forth in his book "Mental Health Through Will Training," provide simple yet effective methods for acquiring self-leadership, overcoming the fear of nervous symptoms and strengthening self-confidence.

The panel illustrated the procedure followed at a regular Recovery meeting, which lasts about an hour. A topic is selected from Dr. Low's literature and each member presents a relevant example from everyday life, showing how he applied the Recovery method to it.

Comments by other members follow each example. After the panel discussion there is a question period, free will offering and informal mutual-aid period.

One member gave an example of how the Recovery method of "spotting" helped him. He had forgotten to check whether he had packed some important tapes before leaving his hotel. This might have led to tension and temper, but he "spotted" the developing tension and realized he could easily call and check when he reached his destination. He could then "pat himself on the back" for a successful effort at control.

Before Recovery, the member said, he would have been predisposed to distrust his mind and be afraid of it. Now he had the insight that such forgetfulness is disturbing but not dangerous.

Recovery, Inc., began as an organization professionally supervised by Dr. Low, but is now a

Kresge Exhibit Offers Variety

By LENORE STREET

Variety of media, variety of approach and variety of success characterize the current graduate show at Kresge Art Center.

Among the works on display by printmaking specialists, Connie Bishop's drawings and serigraphs have a quietude and subtlety that contrasts with the more bold and explosive forms exploited by Barbara Strong.

The painting students reveal a medley of personal styles. Flora Nyland devotes her paintings and serigraphs to landscape subjects in which identifiable natural forms are juxtaposed in a dreamlike fashion.

Dave Hessler limits himself to purely abstract canvasses, with added materials to produce an enriched surface. James Dulembe ranges from black and white to brilliant color in his striking drawings, prints and oils.

Most arresting of the paintings in this exhibition are those of Jack Semelbauer. He paints the human figure, stylized as a flat cut-out, in broad areas of solid color which move tellingly across the surface and into depth.

The only sculptor in the show is Edward Kaspricz, whose ambitious work, a life-size polished bronze bather, will dazzle visitors to the North Gallery this week with its gleaming surface and fluid pose.

The application of artistic skill to practical problems is demonstrated in the work of industrial design graduate George Z. Brown and graphic designer William Gilmore. Gilmore's contributions achieve clarity and impact in their arrangements of words and pictures on the printed page.

One of Brown's projects, which also include a chair and lamps, is a group of designs for display cases.

'The Plague'

A readers' theater production of Albert Camus' "The Plague" will be presented at 7 p.m. today, Thursday and Friday in Anthony Hall, and at 2 p.m. Thursday in Fairchild Theatre.

The play was adapted from Camus' novel by Miriam A. Duckwall, speech instructor.

non-profit corporation. It is an association of the members and is managed by a nine-member board of directors.

Recovery's first extensive self-help organizational development took place in Michigan with the founding of the Michigan Recovery Branch in 1947. The Michigan style is the style commonly practiced and taught in Recovery today: self-help and mutual-aid.

Second Holland Plant Closed By Strikers

HOLLAND (P)--Roamer Yacht Co., a division of Chris-Craft Corp., was struck today by some 220 members of a Christian Labor Assn. local in a new contract dispute.

Employees of Local 67, United Boat Builders Union, walked out at midnight Monday after expiration of their former contract and rejection of a company offer.

The new strike follows one which began March 17 at the Chris-Craft plant in Holland where 546 employees of three unions seek new contracts. Also on strike are the same three unions at Chris-Craft plants in Algonac and Cadillac.

SAGINAW (P)--Laborers employed by Saginaw County contractors voted Monday to end a week-long walkout and ratify a three-year contract providing a reported total $1.10 hourly raise.

Painters and carpenters remained on strike in the Saginaw Valley. Mediators sought a Wednesday meeting between contractors and painters.

A spokesman for Laborers Local 1098 said the pact contained an immediate 27-cent raise and other increases later.

Opposing attorneys asked the court to decide whether McDonald was a state officer, coming under Romney's dismissal powers, or strictly a military officer, to be tried only in military court.

WASHINGTON (P)--Dedication of the $1.4 million Bureau of Commercial Fisheries Research Laboratory on the University of Michigan's north campus in Ann Arbor will be Thursday. The Interior Dept. announced Stanley A. Cain, assistant interior secretary, is to speak.

4 MSU Geologists Co-Author Article

Four MSU geologists have co-authored an article, "Aeromagnetic Studies of Eastern Lake Superior," to be published this summer in the Geophysical Monograph of the American Geophysical Union. The monograph is entitled, "The Crust Under the Continents."

The authors are: William J. Hize, professor of geology; James W. Trow, professor of geology; Norbert W. O'Hara, graduate student and assistant professor at Grand Valley State College and George B. Secore, graduate student.

Both Secore and O'Hara are doing doctoral dissertations on a portion of this study.

The article is a report on an intensive study determining magnetic fields associated with eastern Lake Superior. The field work, however, entailed Lakes Superior, Michigan and Huron. The report includes findings and information on the structure and tectonics of the lakes.

The survey, which was supported by a grant from the National Science Foundation, was conducted from an airplane from June to September of 1964. O'Hara did some of the flying which totaled 33,000 miles. They flew across the lakes 154 times at six-mile intervals.

Each irregularity discovered in the earth's magnetic field offered a clue to the structure and composition of the basic (pre-cambrian) bedrock. This knowledge in turn could be useful in locating mineral wealth.

Milton Rokeach, professor of psychology, has been named to serve on a newly organized advisory council for the midwest division of the International Studies Assn.

guage, has been appointed an examination consultant for the Foundation for European Language and Educational Centers. He will serve in Switzerland this spring and summer.

Herbert Garfinkel, professor of political science, now on leave in England, is the co-author of a new textbook for college government courses, "The Democratic Republic," published by Rand McNally and Co.

Marvin L. Tomber, acting chairman of the Mathematics Dept., will direct the second annual Research Participation Program for College Teachers on campus this summer.

William T. Sledd, Daniel A. Moran, Thomas McCoy and Chester Tsai will also participate.

Leonard Falcone, professor of music and director of bands, conducted the combined bands of Okemos and Chelsea High Schools in a concert at the Okemos High School gymnasium Saturday.

Ernest O. Melby, dean emeritus of the College of Education, New York University, and currently a distinguished visiting professor at MSU, will visit Northern Illinois University's Taft Campus during the 1966 summer session.

Melby's visit will inaugurate a new field campus policy of bringing nationally outstanding educators for informal stays during summer session.

Julian W. Smith, professor of administration and higher education, will also participate at Northern Illinois University's Taft Campus summer session classes, July 21 and 22.

Smith is director of the Outdoor Education Project of the American Assn. for Health Education and Recreation. Smith is one of Taft's distinguished visitors for this summer session.

Beatle Battle: MDA 'UFO's'

Reports of unidentified flying objects may be common throughout southwest Michigan during the next two or three weeks, according to a Michigan Dept. of Agriculture official.

Bathub-size balloons, low-flying aircraft and a brilliant white flashing beacon will be hovering over the tree-tops in association with MDA's 75,000-acre aerial treatment to overcome the cereal leaf beetle, a plant pest.

These instruments will be in use very early in the morning, as well as at dusk. Winds then are generally lower, making for better spray conditions.

The battle against the grain destroying beetle may take until mid-May or later, MDA officials predict.
