

DaNang Revolt Ends In Marine Takeover

DA NANG (UPI)—A company of rebel troops Monday night surrendered an ammunition dump near the Da Nang River to U.S. Marines who moved in when the dissidents were reported preparing to blow it up in a last stand against the South Vietnamese government.

The leatherneck takeover ended the last serious threat to Loyalist forces, who earlier crushed the heart of armed rebel resistance in the city itself, capturing 350 anti-government troops who, with Buddhists, had fought them for nine days.

Representatives of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said the rebellion in Da Nang, 380 miles north-east of Saigon, was "90 per cent under control."

In Saigon, elite government troops Monday pushed Buddhist rioters back into their pagoda command post and surrounded it with heavy artillery and barbed wire. A shooting incident earlier had sparked wild anti-American street demonstrations in the capital.

Their revolt crumbling under the onslaught of military power, the Buddhist leadership in Saigon nonetheless called for a mass demonstration in the streets of the capital Wednesday.

A Vietnamese army enlisted man was killed by shots from an American military vehicle in front of the Viet Hoa Dao pagoda Monday morning. A U.S. investigation showed the shots were fired by a Vietnamese in the vehicle but Buddhists refused to accept this and swarmed angrily into the streets.

Two U.S.-owned vehicles—a military jeep and a civilian-operated pickup truck—were overturned and put to the torch. U.S. authorities quickly ordered all American vehicles off the streets and also imposed a city-wide 8:30 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew for U.S. servicemen.

The revolt in Da Nang ended when the government rolled tanks with 90 millimeter cannon and .50 caliber machineguns up to the Tien Ho pagoda. The dissidents inside, under an ultimatum to surrender, did so four hours prior to the deadline.

"We have the city 90 per cent under control," said Brig. Gen. Du Quoc Dong, commander of the Loyalist paratroopers in Da Nang.

Finally...

The weather cleared after too many gloomy, soggy and just plain cold spring weeks, and sun-starved students were able to pool their resources and give blanket coverage to vitamin D causing radiation of the Men's IM Building.

LBJ Has Popularity Test Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson, admittedly troubled by events in Viet Nam, was reported Monday to have the lowest popularity rating among the voters since he entered the White House 2 1/2 years ago.

Pollster Louis Harris, in a copyrighted public opinion survey published in the Washington Post, reported that only 55 per cent of the public thinks Johnson is doing a good job. He noted that former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy had recorded even lower ratings.

Harris attributed the recent decline—12 per cent since January—to public concern over the way Johnson is handling inflation at home and the war in Viet Nam, two of the Republicans' biggest campaign issues this year.

Today, the President's Viet Nam policy gets its first real political test at the polls when Oregon Democrats nominate a candidate for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Maurice Neuberger, D-Ore., after a primary campaign fought mostly over the American stand in Southeast Asia.

Drivers 'Eye' Test Tonight

The new 1966 National Drivers Test will be telecast in color at 10 tonight over CBS stations to offer people across the nation an opportunity to evaluate their driving skill and to learn defensive driving techniques.

Promoted as a more comprehensive examination than the broadcast last year, the new test will include more questions, new films, new situations and will cover greater areas pertaining to fatal accidents.

It will deal with expressway, urban and foul weather driving. Participants of the test will be able again to compare their results with those of a sample of drivers according to sex, age, geography and driving experience.

Coed Is Michigan Queen

An MSU coed has been selected College Queen for the state of Michigan. It was announced recently.

Kristina L. Hensley, 20, of 605 MAC Ave., East Lansing, is one of the 50 finalists in the National College Queen contest.

Miss Hensley, formerly from McLean, Va., and now a resident of Riverside, Calif., was a National Merit Scholarship finalist.

She is an Honors College student majoring in mathematics and business administration and hopes to go on to graduate school in management upon graduation in June 1967.

The state queens are 50 among approximately 15,000 girls who entered from every state, including Alaska and Hawaii.

Among her activities, Miss Hensley was a member of Frosh-Soph Council her freshman year and holds an office in her sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

ROTC Commissions To Be Given Today

The annual joint commissioning ceremonies of the Army and Air Force ROTC will be held at 4 today on Demonstration Hall Field.

Army Maj. Gen. Kenneth G. Wickham, commanding general of the Combat Service Support Group, Combat Developments

Command, Fort Lee, Va., will be the speaker for the ceremonies. Second lieutenant commissions will be awarded to 34 Army and 25 Air Force cadets. Commissions to another 19 cadets will become effective upon completion of summer school.

President Hannah will present the President's Cups to Army Cadet Brig. Gen. James M. Harris, of 2406 Strathmore Road, Lansing, and Air Force Cadet Col. Larry L. Shriver of 3008 Sheffer Ave., Lansing. The awards are given annually to the outstanding cadets in the Army and Air Force ROTC units.

Also participating in the ceremonies will be Col. Robert G. Platt, professor and chairman of military science, and Lt. Col. Gerald T. Heyboer, professor and chairman of aerospace studies.

Lt. Col. George R. Myers, Air Force reserve, will give the invocation, and both the MSU Marching Band and the ROTC Cadet Drum and Bugle Corps will provide music. There will also be a review of the entire cadet corps.

The speaker, Gen. Wickham, is a native of Hayti, Mo. He attended the University of Missouri and West Point and was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1938.

Botanist Gets Position At Nigeria University

Visiting professor Eni Njoku has been appointed vice chancellor of the University of Nigeria at Nsukka.

The Nigerian botanist, whose appointment is effective July 1, will succeed Glen Taggart, dean of MSU's International Programs.

MSU has assisted in development of the African university since it began in 1960.

Njoku came to the campus last year from his spot as vice chancellor of the University of Lagos.

He received his B.S. degree in botany from the University of Manchester, England, in 1947, and B.A. degrees in mathematics, economics and philosophy from the University of London in 1948, the same year he earned his M.S. degree from Manchester.

Njoku served as legislator and minister with the portfolio of Mines and Power in the Central Government of Nigeria.

He received his Ph.D. degree from the University of London in 1954 and was appointed dean of the faculty of science at the University of Ibadan in 1960.

For the past few months, Njoku has been meeting with Taggart to prepare for his new role at the University of Nigeria.

'M' Student 'Not Hired For Faxon'

By LEO ZAINEA
State News Staff Writer

The hiring of a University of Michigan student primarily to assist a house subcommittee probing the MSU-CIA affair was denied by an aide to House

Speaker Joseph Kowalski, D-Detroit, Monday.

Richard Miller, executive secretary to the speaker, said Monday the political science major was hired as a research assistant and any insinuation to the contrary was "a lot of garbage."

The student, Mark Levin, a day editor for the Michigan Daily, the U-M student newspaper, was hired by the legislative service bureau May 15, at Kowalski's request. As a full time research assistant he would receive $150 per week.

Rep. Vincent J. Petipren, D-Wayne, who is trying to wrestle control of the investigating committee away from Rep. Jack Faxon, D-Detroit, said last week he would "be interested in hearing" about the hiring of the U-M student.

Donald J. Hoenshell, director of the bureau, said temporary student assistants were normally hired at a rate of $2 per hour -- for office and clerical work.

Miller said, however, that Levin was hired as a research assistant, a job which he estimated earned full-time state employees $10,500 per year.

Apparently, said Miller, the reporter put a number of unrec-late facts together to manufacture a story.

He said Levin, an honors student, applied directly to the house speakers' office and Kowalski, chairman of the legislative service bureau, felt the research position merited more than $2 per hour.

Levin was then assigned full time to the investigating committee at the request of Jack Faxon, D-Detroit, the committee chairman.

Hoenshell, who said he understood Levin was hired only as a researcher, indicated the sophomore would receive other assignments before his appointment expires Aug. 15.

An attempt is now being made to take away Faxon's responsibilities for investigating the MSU case and transfer it to the house committee on colleges and universities.

Rep. Vincent J. Petipren, D-Wayne, is trying to have the case transferred following admissions by house leaders that Faxon acted individually and not as chairman of a house subcommittee in calling the investigation.

Fund Raising Drive Starts For Adopted Viet Village

A fund raising drive to provide a medical clinic for the adopted village of Long Yen, South Vietnam, began Monday.

The drive is part of a joint effort of the people of Long Yen, the village adopted through the Michigan State University People to People Assn., and the community of MSU to provide essential medical aid to 3,000 people.

The villagers will provide the labor involved in constructing the physical plant and provide, as staff, a medical technician.

The clinic actually will be a combination clinic, medical dispensary and maternity-care station.

Karen Radom, chairman of the MSUPPA clinic project, said that the goal of the drive is set at $2,000.

Canisters are in most stores on Grand River Avenue, just across from campus, and some stores in downtown Lansing, as well as fraternity and sorority houses. The canisters will be collected at the end of the week.

MSUPPA, an organization which revolves around a working core of 20 people, has already implemented the construction of a centralized village market building which will enable the hamlet to quadruple its economy as well as assist the surrounding area.

The villagers repaired or rebuilt produce stalls near the main market, repaired the main road, expanded its wharf facilities and completed a small park in the village with their own resources.

Thus far the organization has also provided two young men with scholarships to the only secondary school in the province.

Long Yen is located in Tay Ninh province, on the Oriental River, 60 miles northwest of Saigon and 20 miles from the Cambodian frontier.

The village is made up of $35 each provide transportation, lunches, tuition and textbooks for the student for one year.

Looking in perspective, MSUPPA hopes to assist in an irrigation project which will allow the people of Long Yen to begin truck farming and possibly change from the one-crop rice economy to two-crop farming.

Miss Radom says the projects are constructive outlets for people interested in the Viet Nam involvement.

Anyone interested in contributing more than a coin in a canister should contact Karen Radom, or her co-chairman, Judith Rice, at the MSUPAA office at 212 River St., East Lansing.

Telephone Service Halted By Bad Fuse

Telephone service was discontinued for 40 minutes in parts of the campus and in a few East Lansing stores Monday.

The cause of the telephone failure was a fuse which blew in the East Lansing telephone office, said Herbert R. Shaw, manager of the telephone company for MSU.

Shaw said that a possible explanation for the blowing of the fuse was that the new equipment being installed for Hubbard Hall and the Library extension overloaded the circuit. But this is indefinite, Shaw said, and the real cause cannot be determined.

Any other failures reported are usually slow dial tones, said Shaw. He also said that there had been no actual failures since Centrex, a campus-only telephone system, was installed at the telephone company.

The equipment of the campus telephone operators, located in the Museum basement, stopped functioning Nov. 25, 1964, the day of President Kennedy's burial, said Eva M. Beckley, chief telephone operator.

Board Meets To Establish Gift Standard

The ASMSU Student Board at its meeting tonight will discuss establishing definite standards for donations by ASMSU to student organizations. The board at present has no definite policy in this area.

Last Tuesday, the board gave $200 each, plus free mimeographing and silk screening, to two organizations, the MSU People to People Project and the Strike City project.

Also up for discussion is the board's budget for next year. This may be the subject of a good deal of discussions, because one of its items is $70 expense money for Jim Graham, chairman of the board, to attend a workshop on student government of the controversial National Student Assn.

Abstentions Kill Move For Force

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The Security Council Monday rejected African demands for economic isolation of Rhodesia and the use of force by Britain to overthrow its rebellious government.

The vote was 6-1 in favor of the resolution with eight abstentions. Nine favorable votes, including those of the five permanent members, are required for approval.

Only New Zealand voted against the resolution sponsored by the council's three African members—Mali, Nigeria and Uganda. Voting in favor were the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, Jordan and the three African sponsors. The United States, Britain, France, Nationalist China, Japan, Netherlands, Argentina and Uruguay abstained.

The three African sponsors, acting in close concert with the other members of the 36-nation African bloc in the United Nations, insisted on pushing their resolution to a vote despite unmistakable indications during the past week that it would be defeated.

Both the United States and Britain appealed for time for private talks between the British government and the breakaway white supremacy Rhodesian regime of Premier Ian D. Smith to succeed. The talks were broken off last weekend and Rhodesian delegates returned to Salisbury from London.

But Chief S.Q. Adebo, Nigerian ambassador looked upon by the Africans as a leader both by tribal and diplomatic standards, told the council just before the vote:

"The African nations cannot wait."

Adebo also confirmed that the Africans had rejected an informal approach by U.S. ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg to have the council create a watchdog group to keep an eye on British-Rhodesian talks.

"We came to the conclusion that while we had no doubt about the sincerity of the distinguished gentleman who put forward the proposal," Adebo said, "we did not think it would be in the best interests of the people of Zimbabwe"—the African name for Rhodesia.

Smith's regime represented a quarter-million whites whose government, without representation of Rhodesia's 4 million Negroes, last Nov. 11 declared its freedom from Britain in the first such declaration of independence since that of the United States in 1776.

In April, the council authorized Britain—for the first time in recent history—to use force to "arrest and detain" on the high seas tankers carrying oil destined to keep Rhodesia's economy viable.

ASMSU Spends Student Tax Dollars Unfairly

ASMSU USED STUDENT tax money to purchase publicity aimed at getting students to vote favorably for ASMSU salaries.

The board appropriated $88 for an ad in the State News and spent more for posters and handouts.

IT IS UNFAIR for ASMSU to use student tax funds for this publicity. The passage of compensation directly benefited ASMSU board members, not the students whose taxes were used for the publicity. Since the referendum would benefit only ASMSU board members, it is only fair that the board pay for the publicity.

We have always favored compensation for student board members, and still do. But the board has no right to take advantage of the student body by using tax dollars to publicize favorably a proposal that will directly benefit them, and not the University community.

THOUGH OSTENSIBLY THE publicity money was spent by the ASMSU compensation committee, the committee's funds were appropriated by the board itself.

Some people may argue that it is an accepted practice for ASMSU to purchase publicity for a referendum before the voting. Inherently there is nothing wrong with ASMSU using student tax funds for publicity. It is the object of the referendum that makes the use of tax dollars for publicity unjust.

ASMSU WAS CORRECT in purchasing publicity for the all-University radio referendum because the object of the referendum, the radio network, would benefit the University community if it passed.

But the compensation amendment benefits only a handful of the students, all members of ASMSU.

SINCE COMPENSATION was passed, 2 per cent of the general funds are now available for student board salaries. ASMSU should pay for the publicity with this money.

If the board does not pay for this publicity out of its own pocket, it will be guilty of using student tax funds for its own benefit. And this doesn't sit well with anyone—especially students.

National Driver's Test, A Program Worth Seeing

THOUGH A RECENT congressional investigation has focused much attention on the unsafe mechanical features of autos, drivers should not forget that poor driving is still the main cause of auto injuries.

But poor driving cannot be corrected as simply as can mechanical imperfections. Good drivers are the result of good education. And good education is a difficult task.

IN AN EFFORT to reach all drivers, CBS televised a national drivers test last year. The object of this program was to improve the viewer's defensive driving skills.

And this year, CBS will televise another national drivers test. The new program will not be a repeat of last year's test. But the purpose will remain the same: familiarize drivers with the principals of defensive driving and illustrate when they should be used.

POTENTIALLY, THIS TEST could be the best use of television time during the entire year. But its effectiveness depends on audience participation. Only if a large portion of the populace takes the test, could it be considered a success.

Certainly, one television program a year cannot create a nation of safe drivers. But just as certainly, if the average driver does take the test, he is certain to pick up a few pointers that might save his life.

ALSO, REPEATED INTEREST in these drivers tests may encourage a more permanent and more thorough national driver education program.

People always complain about the carnage on the highways. This test offers every driver the opportunity to help reduce the bloodshed.

Take and hour tonight and see the program—it may save your life.

Did You Know . . .

ONE OF BARRY Goldwater's former economic advisers, Milton Friedman, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, said recently that half the politically active students on college campuses are conservatives.

Looking around the large universities in the country, there appears to be no evidence to support such a statement. On this campus at least, there is no such mass movement from the right that is.

Perhaps Friedman used the same method of estimating the conservative strength on college campuses as did those who estimated the size of the heralded "silent conservative vote," which was supposed to have won the '64 election for Barry.

Planned Tuition Hikes?

To the Editor:

Concerning the proposed "massive fee hike", I feel that the majority of the legislators do not want a tuition hike at MSU. However, some apparently feel that MSU does not need the $1.7 million that was cut. Let's have some facts, please.

The Senate committee should make it clear just why the cut was made, and our University administrators should tell everyone what programs would "suffer" if the cut is not restored. Then if the people of Michigan decide that the Legislature is really being unfair, I'm sure that public opinion will demand a correction.

We have had several tuition hikes since I began here, and I, for one, can't afford another one! What about those of us who are already working as much as possible and will be unable to earn the extra $150 necessary for next year? Scholarship programs are already inadequate, and there won't be much chance of getting increased NDEA loans.

Some might say, "If they can't afford it here, they can go elsewhere". What about those in graduate programs or well along on their curriculum? A change would mean a great loss of time and effort.

It also is ridiculous that we won't know if there will be an increase until July, when it will be too late to do anything about it. There must be a better way to plan appropriations for a "community" of 40,000 than reaching a decision only two months before fall registration!

My point is that it would be more sensible to have planned, regular (low) tuition increases, which would apply to only that particular group of entering freshmen.

Then students could more accurately plan budgets, summer and school jobs, etc., and not be faced with the shock of big tuition increases "out of the blue", simply because the legislature disagrees with the administration on the necessity of certain expenditures.

This plan seems fairer than irregular "across-the-board" hikes, since the tuition increases are mainly a result of increasing enrollments. Thus the extra cost would be borne by those actually causing it.

Regrets Error

To the Editor:

In the May 18 issue of the State News you published a piece of news received from the UPI on the U.A.R. It indicated that Mr. Kosygin, Premier of the U.S.S.R., has urged the U.A.R., Syria, Algeria and Iraq to unite to face the hostility of the traditional regimes in the Middle East.

To my surprise you inserted the following headline above: "U.S.S.R.-U.A.R. Unity Closer". I believe that this represents a dishonest, imprecise and irresponsible presentation of the news. I believe some sort of correction is due. Don't you?

EDITOR'S NOTE: You are correct; it was an error on our part. A mistake was made in writing the headline. It should have read something like "USSR Urges UAR Unity."

Weekend 'Date' Was Too Blind

To the Editor:

We enjoyed every minute of Parent's Weekend and Water Carnival. However, we had absolutely no idea what had been planned in the way of activities until we arrived on campus Saturday morning and obtained a copy of Friday's State News.

We suggest for next year, that a simple list of times and events be mailed with tickets and also listed in an earlier edition of the paper.

'Sorry Mom, Gotta Study'

WHEN PARENTS drive hundreds of miles to MSU to see their darling son or daughter graduate, it must be discouraging to be dismissed shortly after the ceremony with "Sorry, Mom, gotta go study for finals."

But if son or daughter happens to graduate fall or winter term, that's likely to be the scene.

Scheduling commencement before finals evolved from the days when almost everybody graduated in the spring, says Kermit Smith, assistant provost. Only a brief, informal ceremony without caps and gowns recognized students in the term they actually completed their work.

But when as many students graduate fall and winter term now as graduated in the spring 25 years ago, it seems self-defeating to continue the policy that worked for a few hundred students.

THE MAIN REASON for holding commencement before finals is to keep a semblance of activity when parents come for a lingering look at the place their child spent several years and several thousand dollars.

The other reasons for starting this procedure were simple. Seniors were not required to take final exams the term they graduated.

But this led to complaints from professors whose senior students refused to study after midterms and complaints from underclassmen whose senior friends disrupted their studying. So, since 1958, all students have been required to take finals.

Today, with both finals and an increasing number of students who live a day's drive from MSU, the policy is still adapted to the past situation. Many parents are faced with either sitting in an East Lansing motel room for a week or leaving their son or daughter to follow them home five days later.

ALTHOUGH IT MIGHT be more convenient for the student who lives 60 miles away not to finish finals Thursday and return to campus on Sunday, it just doesn't seem that it would be that much of a problem for him. Assuming that his parents would like to see him graduate, it shouldn't be any more trouble for the family to come for the afternoon on the Sunday following finals than to come on the same day a week earlier.

The need seems obvious for a commencement policy consistent throughout the three terms. Holding it the Sunday after finals enables both families and students to enjoy the activities there are without the pressure of exams.

Salaries Needed For Underlings

In the wake of Thursday's vote supporting payment of student government personnel comes one or two observations in regards to ASMSU compensation.

Expected from the Committee on Student Government Compensation is a proposal to pay the highest student board members.

Thus the committee's allotted 2 per cent would go first to the board's chairman and vice-chairman and then filter on down to the remaining board members: IFC president, pan hel, MHA, Members-at-Large, etc.

As it appears, the trickle would end as the last board member's name is scrawled onto the payroll chart.

But if compensation is dealt in this manner, the meager funds spent will be doing less than yeoman's duties. The money can be put to more efficient use.

Because too little money is available, payment of student government officials should begin at the vice-president level and push downwards.

Student Board members receive other benefits beside money for their work. These benefits do not accrue to their underlings.

They have the prestige and status of being presidents of the largest campus organizations and at the head of the student government machinery.

With this prestige go the dinners, trips and contacts made as representatives of MSU students.

These attractions wither away, however, as one moves down the ASMSU hierarchy. The vice president for special projects does not have the prestige or benefits that the chairman of the board has. In turn, the director of public relations lacks the status of a vice president. The situation multiplies throughout the organization.

Whats more, the work at these lower levels is most often as rigorous as that of the board members themselves.

The point is this: compensation is needed in student government to attract persons to the positions having lower status and fewer benefits.

Since not enough money is available to pay most government officials (and this situation should be rectified), the small amount should be put to the most efficient use.

Membership on the Student Board is a drawing card in itself. Qualified persons naturally seek a seat there.

It is at the lower level that the pitch for qualified persons must be made. Compensation, it was heralded, would stimulate the quality of person in student government. It is at these lower levels that this point of view should be put into practice.

Later, as compensation pays its way, money could be extended to members of the Student Board.

Rejoice Diogenes, MSU Has Charity

To the Editor:

Attention: Miss Cobbley and Friends of the Howell State Hospital:

Although you deserve the praise and the gratitude of all our patients for the energy and the heart which you have put into the commendable program of cleaning and redecorating of an unused hall, so that it can be used by patients for recreational activities—you know very well that these patients are unable to express their feelings and to thank you for what you have done for them.

I, then, take the opportunity to act as their exponent and I wish to tell you that they enthusiastically acknowledge your wonderful job and appreciate it very much. They enjoy immensely every minute of their stay in this now bright and colorful hall where they play games or simply play with the toys which you also have provided for them. How much joy and happiness you have given to these poorest amongst all human creatures one can only appreciate by watching their behavior during their stay in the hall. What a pity it is that Diogenes isn't alive today. He could throw his lantern in the air, jump around and rejoice, for the character he was looking after can be found today by the hundreds on the campus of East Lansing's alma mater.

May I add also my personal thanks for having given so freely of your talents, good will, of your time and even money, which in a student's purse is never too abundant, for this truly charitable cause.

Your example restored my faith in the "a priori-goodness" of the human race and for this I thank you above all.

Bankrupting Plan

To the Editor:

The dispensing of scholarships has come to be based more and more on the concept of "financial need." And now two trustees of MSU propose to carry this concept to its ultimate conclusion with a graduated tuition increase based on family income. I refer to the proposal of Trustees Stevens and White that the tuition charged a Michigan resident range from 0 to $1,020, according to the income of his family. (State News, May 19, 1966).

White justifies his proposal by saying, "A flat-rate increase financially discriminates against an individual's right to go to school." But it is his proposal that introduces the worst kind of discrimination, for it penalizes success.

The nature of such discrimination has been aptly stated by one of Michigan State's most distinguished graduates, Dr. F. A. Harper: "If parents, by using ability and industry and thrift, have saved enough to be without need, their attainment becomes a matter of merit—some sort of sin—so far as the child's position is concerned."

But what Stevens and White forget is that, while they can make the tuition paid for attendance at MSU dependent upon a discriminatory means test, they cannot compel attendance in the first place. Those with the requisite resources to pay the maximum tuition, upon whom the Stevens-White proposal counts for the subsidizing of the less well-endowed, will tend to by-pass MSU in favor of institutions with a non-discriminatory fee structure.

At the same time, a zero tuition for those from families with incomes under $5,000 will draw individuals who will contribute nothing towards defraying the operating expenses of the University. The Stevens-White proposal, if enacted, will bankrupt MSU both morally and financially, and turn this institution into a "pocket of poverty."

World News at a Glance

Britain--National Emergency

LONDON (UPI)--Prime Minister Harold Wilson declared a state of national emergency Monday and asked Parliament to ratify 35 broad-based regulations that would authorize the government to intervene in the nationwide maritime strike.

Under the regulations, Wilson would be empowered to call in the Royal Navy to clear the island nation's cluttered ports--a move union leaders said would produce a general strike.

Cuban Refugees Refused Flight

MIAMI (UPI)--Tensions between the United States and Cuba mounted Monday when the Castro regime, charging that gunfire from the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo killed a Cuban sentry, refused to put any refugees aboard the regular Cuban airlift plane to Miami.

It appeared that the flights, which were launched last Dec. 1, would be interrupted Tuesday. A total of 21,474 refugees have been airlifted from Cuba during the past six months.

U.S. Boat Hit, Sinks

SAIGON (UPI)--Communist guerrillas knocked out a U.S. Navy patrol vessel with heavy gunfire and forced it to run aground just 20 miles from Saigon, an American spokesman said Monday. The 50-foot "swift boat" sank later during salvage operations.

Spokesmen said the six-man crew of the American patrol craft--similar to the PT boats of World War II--suffered "moderate" casualties in the attack that occurred Sunday night along the Dinh Ba River.

Some 300 miles to the north, U.S. Air Cavalry troops tracked down Viet Cong through 12-foot-high elephant grass in a valley and killed 47 more of them, raising to at least 207 Communists killed in week-long "Operation Crazy Horse."

Berlin Wall Open

BERLIN (UPI)--Thousands of West Berliners streamed through the wall in the Communist sector of the divided city Monday for holiday visits with relatives.

It was the eighth time since the wall was built in August, 1961, the East Germans have allowed West Berliners to visit relatives in the Communist sector.

Launch Delayed, Prepare Gemini

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)--Technical trouble Monday forced a day's delay in Tuesday's planned launching of an Explorer satellite but technicians maintained a quick pace of work for a four-shot extravaganza next week.

The booming shooting schedule is keyed around the May 31 rerun of the Gemini 9 rendezvous and spacewalk flight of astronauts Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan. Officials said preparations for the three-day mission were moving smoothly.

U.S., Poland Play Game Of Diplomatic Retaliation

WASHINGTON (UPI)--The United States disclosed Monday that it and Communist Poland had expelled three of each other's military attaches as a result of what the State Dept. called "severe harassment" by the Polish Secret Police agents.

The State Dept. charged Poland with "flagrant violation" of the diplomatic immunity of American officials, citing a series of incidents involving U.S. military attaches at the Warsaw Embassy during the past two months.

When the smoke from the diplomatic exchange of gunfire cleared, one colonel was left in the Polish Embassy here and one colonel remained as the sole U.S. military representative in Warsaw.

State Dept. Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said there was a "serious incident" the night of April 6-7, when Polish officials "used physical force to remove two officers from an embassy auto about 20 miles west of Warsaw." He said they were refused permission to telephone the U.S. Embassy and were taken "against their will to the local police station."

Repeated attempts, including a formal protest, failed to produce a "satisfactory solution," he said. The United States then retaliated by notifying Polish Ambassador Edward Drozinski in Washington May 4 that Col. Stefan Starzyski, his assistant Polish air attache, "was no longer acceptable to the United States government in view of the fact that he had engaged in activities incompatible with the norms of official conduct."

East Lansing Dems Uphold Open Housing

The executive committee of the East Lansing Democratic Club has endorsed recommendations of the Human Relations Commission pertaining to a fair housing ordinance in the city.

The HRC has proposed amending the city's ordinance to prohibit discrimination in housing by race, color, creed or nationality.

In a letter sent to members of the City Council by James A. Harrison, club chairman, the executive committee urged swift passage of Section 1-8.5 and Section 1-8.6 to city ordinance 130.

"We believe that the passage of these amendments by the City Council will contribute substantially to the progress achieved by the council, the HRC and the hundreds of East Lansing citizens who have struggled with the problems of fair housing in our city the past three years," the letter stated.

"I believe," the letter continued, "that the members of the HRC represent a cross-section of residents in the city. Their unanimous recommendation to the City Council reflects the fact that East Lansing residents believe in fair housing for all persons, and want the council to take decisive action on the problem."

Indonesian Students Storm Parliament In New Protest

JAKARTA (UPI)--Thousands of Indonesian students, demanding a return to constitutional government, swarmed over fences Monday to invade the grounds of the Parliament building. Troops kept the students at bay by firing over their heads.

At least one student was reported injured, nicked in the shoulder by a bayonet.

The demonstrators arrived at the Parliament building in trucks after an estimated 5,000 students held a rally at the university campus demanding that the People's Provisional Consultative Congress (MPRS) convene June 1.

The MPRS, originally slated to open May 12 following Lt. Gen. Suharto's assumption of power from President Sukarno, was postponed.

The congress is the highest constitutional authority in the land with legal power to withdraw Sukarno's leadership and limit the presidential term. Before the power struggle Sukarno had proclaimed that he was Indonesia's president-for-life.

After the university rally, the students headed for the Parliament building. They ignored the warning of marines and air force troops, and surged over a four-foot high fence in an attempt to invade the main building.

Troopers with fixed bayonets held the students back and finally fired a volley of shots over their heads.

The demonstrators fell to the ground.

Peace was restored when Parliament Speaker Achmad Sjaichu and Deputy Speaker Sjarif Thajeb emerged from the building and invited a delegation of about 10 students inside to discuss their grievances.

TV Counseling Profitable

(Editor's Note: Hugh Dillon is an inmate at Southern Michigan Prison.)

By HUGH DILLON

As Southern Michigan Prison inmates go about their daily routines these days, it is not unusual to hear them comment, "Smile, you may be on candid camera."

They are referring to the work of an MSU research team, headed by Norman Kagan, associate professor of education, that has been studying videotape recordings of several SMP inmates.

The men have not been subjected to hidden cameras, however; 12 inmates agreed to allow portions of their counselor interviews to be observed openly by a closed-circuit TV camera.

Termed "Interpersonal Process Recall," the researchers tape a 15-minute portion of each hour-long interview. One of the segments, out of a series of five, is selected by the research team for a "recall session."

In a recall session, the inmate is quizzed about the reasons behind a particular statement or action, and his thoughts at that precise moment in the previous interview.

These sessions are conducted by Kagan or one of three MSU graduate students assisting him: Norman L. Story, Alan Goldberg and Robert Campbell.

"These men are more than assistants," Kagan said. "Actually, they're research colleagues."

The research team and the SMP counseling staff combined, monitor all five segments of each inmate's interviews when a series is completed. The sessions are criticized during this stop-and-go viewing and written evaluations are made for further study at MSU.

"We're getting as much out of it as the inmates--maybe more," said SMP Counselor Donald Mendelsohn. "Like the inmates, most of us are seeing ourselves as others see us for the first time. This in itself is enlightening--and sometimes startling."

Therapy Value

Supported by a grant from the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, the theory, formulated by David R. Krathwohl, William Farquhar and Kagan, was originally intended to develop a student counselor's training aid. When tests showed therapeutic value possibilities, the IPR research was expanded.

Before a field study could be made, many variables had to be investigated. Pilot tests were made at MSU of over 100 normally functioning high school students with relatively simple, everyday problems. In addition, extensive testing was made of one girl from this group; a schizophrenic, alcoholic, high-school-age boy; a male college student who was having trouble with his courses; a married woman who suffered frequent anxiety; and a middle aged couple concerned about whether or not to marry.

The pilot tests results encouraged the present field testing at MSP.

During the recall sessions in the pilot tests, the subject's ability to remember his thoughts with detailed accuracy was noted. Unlike movie film, used in earlier tests, videotape permits immediate replay.

While the experience is still fresh in the subject's mind, what he was thinking during the initial interview is drawn out when he is questioned about his non-verbal communications.

Body Language

Non-verbal communications, sometimes called "body language," are the movements of the hands, eyes, legs or body while talking. Tugging an ear lobe, rubbing the nose, wiping an eye, crossing and recrossing the legs, all have a possible subconscious meaning.

When a subject uses the same body language each time the same person or situation is mentioned, it's a strong indication of underlying conflict.

"Prior to this project," Kagan explained, "we had various methods of determining a person's physiological responses. But when we came right down to it, the only person who could accurately tell us what he is feeling, was the subject himself."

During an SMP session, one man persistently tugged at his wedding band while praising his wife and declaring how much he loved her. Further sessions brought out that he didn't feel this way about her at all; secretly, he wanted out of the marriage.

"I thought it would sound like I was making excuses for myself if I tried to explain some of the things she's put me through," he finally admitted to the counselor.

Another man was asked how many children there were in his family. In chronological order, he counted them on his fingertips.

"There's my brother George, my sister Mary, my brother Henry," and, pointing over his shoulder with his thumb, he concluded, "my kid brother Roger."

The counselor picked up the clue. The conversation was steered to the younger brother several times. Each time the man mentioned Roger's name, a similar "out of the hallway" movement was noted.

Sees Resentment

This was pointed out to the man during a recall session. As is usually the case, he didn't realize he had been doing it. He and the counselor then discussed the younger brother candidly and at length. Finally, the man became aware of a resentment he harbored for his brother. He then talked freely about this hostility. He had always felt that Roger received more attention and affection from their parents; Roger was wanted, he wasn't, he thought.

Sometimes the inmates are not pleased with what they see when viewing themselves. One man stopped the tape, turned to the counselor and said, "I just did something that really bugs me when I see someone else do it."

"I raise my eyebrows and wrinkle my forehead every now and then when I talk. When someone else does that, it looks to me like they think they're superior like they're looking down their nose at me. I never realized that I do it."

IPR Popular

Prison inmates sometimes view suspiciously any attempt to "study" them. An opposite reaction has been noted in the attitude toward the MSU project. Soon after the research began, the volunteers were besieged with questions from other inmates.

So much interest was generated by word-of-mouth "advertising," the counselors received dozens of requests for inclusion in the project.

They all may eventually get an opportunity to face the cameras. Because of the already obvious aid IPR could lend the counseling program, the project is being considered for expansion and continuance at SMP.

Presently, the SMP counselors participating in the IPR project are technically taking part on their own time. In what would normally be their off time, the counselors are making up for the hours spent in interview and evaluation sessions.

"I would like to see IPR utilized in alcoholic and narcotic addict counseling," said E.R. Barham, SMP special activities supervisor. "I think they could readily gain an insight into their problems sooner and more effectively than any method we have available now."

Kagan and his assistants hope to see the technique incorporated in other penal institutions, high school and college counseling programs.

Faculty members from many universities have visited MSU to study the IPR technique and the research team members have traveled to more than a dozen other campuses, demonstrating their findings. Recently, Kagan demonstrated IPR at Harvard University. In early April, he will conduct demonstrations at the National Education Association meeting in Washington, D.C.

Currently, plans are being made for its use in Rochester, N.Y., city schools.

"We fell we're on the threshold of an area with tremendous possibilities," Kagan said. "The final results of this research will no doubt present facets that will warrant further study."

Pilot tests have been made at MSU in other areas where IPR appears feasible. Further tests of teacher-pupil, foreman-worker and parent-child relationships are planned. It may also be possible to explore group structure and interaction.

When one of the older SMP inmates was told about the project, he just shook his head in disbelief.

"Counselors and TV cameras? How about that! Things are really moving. It wasn't too long ago when we didn't even have counselors."

Michigan Medical Schools Gear To Growing Needs

The first class of 25 medical students will be admitted to the College of Human Medicine fall term.

Total admissions for the medical schools at Wayne State University, the University of Michigan and MSU will number 325 new students this fall. The total will be increased to 474 by 1969 in light of many scheduled expansions.

Medicare, which will take effect July 1, is one of the factors causing the need for more and all types health personnel, said Don Marshall, chairman of the Michigan State Medical Society's liaison committee.

The nation is steadily confronted with the needs of an increasing population, Marshall said, as well as the rise in numbers of people over 65 who need more care than the younger population. Preparation must also be made for the drain of doctors, nurses and technicians needed for military purposes, he added.

All three medical schools agree that training more doctors will not be an adequate solution to the problem. Nurses, therapists and laboratory technicians must also be trained in greater numbers.

Technicians and therapists do not require as much training and can be ready sooner, Marshall said. This will help alleviate the shortage by freeing physicians from some of the unnecessary work that they do now, he said.

Medical school expansion depends on appropriation by the legislature of funds for more buildings and teaching personnel.

Marshall is confident that the legislators are aware that qualified professionals must be trained now if they are to be ready in future years.

The entering class at MSU will hopefully be raised to 64 by 1969 when new buildings are scheduled to be completed.

Currently entering classes of 125 will be admitted to Wayne State University. The admission class will number 200 by 1969 if operating and building funds are available.

Already one of the largest medical schools in the country with entering classes of 200, the University of Michigan will increase this to 210 by 1967.

Cagers Are Scholars, Too

Recruits for MSU's basketball team must qualify academically in addition to being good players, Gus Ganakas, assistant basketball coach, said at the third annual Snyder Hall Scholarship and Athletic Awards Banquet last week.

Ganakas, former director of the Ralph H. Young Scholarship Fund, praised John Bennington, head basketball coach, for being an individual as well as a great coach.

At the banquet scholastic awards were given to the five precincts with the highest grade-points and to those men with a 3.00 or better all-University grade-point average.

Athletic awards for each sport were given to the winning precincts. Leadership and service awards and awards for Snyder Hall Honorary were also presented.

George E. Cole, head adviser of Snyder Hall, presented the Jonathan L. Snyder Award to Elliot M. Gold, Oak Park senior, and Albert J. Koeving, Woodstown, N. J., senior, in recognition of their contributions to the hall.

LACK INDIVIDUAL EFFORTS

Team Depth Aids 'S' Runners

By DAN DROSKI
State News Sports Writer

MSU's track squad won its second straight Big Ten title Saturday, but it did it in a little different way.

In previous seasons, the Spartans have relied on a few individual efforts to carry them past the challenges of their opponents, but this year it was the overall depth that brought MSU the crown.

In 1965, for instance, the Spartans dominated the hurdles and placed first in such events as the long jump, high jump, mile run and the two mile run. These firsts gave MSU enough points to win the championship by 13 points.

This year's team had four lettermen back to defend their titles, but the conference was more balanced and only hurdler Gene Washington successfully repeated in the 120-yard high.

MSU's great team depth was evident in the 220-yard dash, if which Gene Washington, Jim Garrett and Das Campbell placed second, third and fourth, respectively.

Mike Martens also played a major role in the Spartans' victory, finishing second in the 660-yard and then returning to start the MSU mile relay team on its way to victory by running a 0:48.4 quarter mile.

Experience also helped the Spartans as their predominantly junior and senior squad had already participated in a Big Ten conference meet. Co-Captain Gene Washington felt experience played a large part in a team's overall success.

"I think experience was a big point in our favor," said Washington. "Most of the squad had competed in a conference meet, and they knew what to expect."

MSU had 13 point-makers back from last season's team, and all but five of this year's squad had competed in a previous conference meet. Iowa, the second-place finisher this season, had only seven returning lettermen who scored in last year's meet, and this lack of experience could have made the difference.

The Spartans should continue to finish high in the conference standings, with a majority of their top men returning next.

MSU will lose sprinter and long jumper Jim Garrett, two-miler Dick Sharkey and a few other runners, but such top point scorers as Gene Washington, Clint Jones, John Spain, Das Campbell and Jim Summers will return to bolster the Spartan chances for an unprecedented third straight crown.

NCAA-AAU Sports Feud Nears Close

WASHINGTON, D.C. - An end is in sight to the long-simmering feud between the Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Assn., arbitrator Theodore W. Kheel said Monday.

At the same time, he asserted that amateur track and field cannot have two masters.

"Athletics are an organized activity," the New York labor mediator said after opening a two-day hearing here with the warring factions. "There must be rules. There must be an administration. There is no place for dual administration."

One key point in the dispute has been an attempt by the U.S. Track and Field Federation, an arm of the NCAA, to gain dual sanctions with the AAU in the promotion of open events. The AAU insists on maintaining sole rights to such events, as granted it by the international federation.

"I think I have detected here this time a sincere desire of both sides to get the matter resolved," Kheel said.

"We have narrowed the points of difference to a few hard issues. I think we will have a solution by the middle of the summer--and I mean a solution that will stick."

Speer Picked For District Team

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

Spartan outfielder Bob Speer was named Sunday to the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. District 4 all-star team.

Speer, a senior, who played left-field three years for Coach Danny Litwiler, was named to the right-field position.

He is one of six Big Ten players picked for the team and the only Spartan representative.

Speer is one of 13 seniors who will be playing their final game as Spartans today when MSU meets Western Michigan at Kalamazoo.

Others are pitchers Fred Devoreux, Jim Goodrich, Dick Holmes, John Krasnan, Tom Phipps, and Roland Walcott; catcher Dick Kilbourn; infielders John Biedenbach, Dennis Maedo, Steve Polisar and Jerry Walker; and outfielders Steve Juday and John Frye.

Frye is a junior but has finished his three years of college eligibility. He is a transfer student from Manatee Junior College in Florida.

The Western Michigan-Spartan clash is the first of the year between these two schools. A scheduled game between them was rained out last week at Lansing's Municipal Park.

The Spartans could end the season today with their 23rd victory of the year. They have lost 13 and tied one.

State finished fourth in the Big Ten Conference with 8-5 mark, after being eliminated from the title race Saturday by dropping two of the University of Michigan. This ended conference play.

The Broncos are undefeated against Big Ten competition this year, having beat Big Ten competition Ohio State three times and Michigan twice.

They come into the contest with an 18-2 record and had a game with Notre Dame Monday. They won a berth in the NCAA district playoffs after winning the Mid-American Conference with an 8-1 mark.

Last year State split a pair with the Broncos, winning the first game, 3-2, and dropping the second a week later, 3-1.

In all games, Western Michigan holds a 45-29 edge over the Spartans. The series between the two schools dates back to 1916.
