

Coed Tells Role In State Senator's Arrest

By DOROTHY LASKEY
State News Staff Writer

From an Olin hospital bed Friday, Marion Lukens told her story.

The slender blonde senior explained the aid she gave police that led to the arrest of Michigan legislator Bernard F. O'Brien Jr. (D-Detroit).

O'Brien was arrested May 27 on charges of soliciting and accosting Miss Lukens and two other Butterfield Hall coeds.

Miss Lukens, 22-year-old music therapy major, said that after her initial encounter, the incident was reported to University authorities by the head adviser of Butterfield. She was then asked to meet "the man," O'Brien, so that police might make a positive tie-in.

She explained that University Police told her they had been investigating reports of obscene phone calls and could arrest a suspect on a minor charge, but asked for her cooperation in assisting them.

After working directly with Detective Sgt. Daniel E. Hankins of the University Police for a week, her assistance led to the arrest of O'Brien in the Capitol two weeks ago. The senator stood mute in court on the morals charge.

The coed, hospitalized during the term break, is recovering from the strain of that week.

Unless the 31-year-old legislator pleads guilty to charges of "lewd and indecent conduct," Miss Lukens will be prosecution's chief witness when the case goes before Lansing Township Justice Court on July 28.

O'Brien, who contends the girl was turned down for a secretarial position, was quoted as telling a friend, "It's a frame."

Miss Lukens said she didn't realize that "the polite, business-like man," who initially asked her to model sportswear and later suggested she pose nude and engage in intercourse, was a Michigan legislator until the investigation was completed and she had signed the complaint.

"I never saw him before that afternoon," she said.

The incident occurred May 27.

Miss Lukens, who said she hadn't been previously contacted for public comment, gave this account:

"I was walking along Abbott toward Grand River when a man, seemingly seeking directions, gestured to me from his car and pulled over.

"As I approached he said this was a coincidence because he was a photographer who was looking for girls of my description to model sportswear on campus. I told him I wasn't interested, but he said it wouldn't take much time.

"He began to talk about time and salary. He was quite pleasant and business-like. I asked for his card, but he said he left his material at the ad building.

"We talked along this line for eight or 10 minutes and I gave him my phone number.

"Then he began to say things . . . I knew something was wrong. I thought he must be sick."

State News Exclusive

She said all this time he made no physical advance toward her. People were coming and going by during the discussion, she added.

"When I returned to the dorm my ride to Detroit, where I was spending the Memorial Day weekend, was waiting. I was hurried, so I briefly mentioned what had happened to my RA.

"In Detroit I told a policeman friend what had happened and asked him what authorities would do to the man. I said I thought the man was sick and needed help.

"My friend said that he would probably be given the opportunity to seek psychiatric help before court sentencing."

"It was then," she said, "that I decided to report the incident to police."

"But," she continued, "when I returned to the dorm the RA notified me that the head resident and the police wanted to talk with me."

The RA, she assumed, went directly to the adviser when she learned of the encounter.

"The police," she continued, "told me they had an idea who the man was and asked me to accept his calls, if he did try to contact me, and to agree to meet him."

She said the police told her two other girls were involved but she didn't know anything about them.

Miss Lukens said she then waited nervously for any calls. "In a few days it began. He would call a few times, sometimes he was polite, almost pleasant, and other times. . .

"Whenever I got a phone call," she said, "I typed up a formal report for the police. I was upset, and I was trying to study for finals and write a paper that week, too."

"The next day he called, and I agreed to meet him. Campus (continued on page 3)

Poles Crush Catholic Riot

WARSAW, Poland (UPI)--Truncheon-swinging riot policeman broke up an attempt by 1,000 demonstrating Polish Catholics to march on the headquarters of the ruling Communist party Sunday night.

Other Catholic demonstrations continued late into the night elsewhere in the Polish capital following a tense evening of confrontation between supporters of Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński, the Catholic primate, and party workers out in force to block the streets.

Warsaw's sharpest civil violence in perhaps a decade flared briefly at the corner of Nowy Swiat and Oly Cross streets when two dozen helmeted police charged into a chanting crowd of mostly young men advancing on the party headquarters 300 yards away.

There were minor injuries and newsmen saw at least one woman and a child struck by the flying rubber clubs.

The demonstrators regrouped and marched off in the opposite direction still chanting and singing.

Their slogans included "Catholics, Unite," "Pri-mas, Pri-mas (primate)" for Cardinal Wyszyński and "We forgive, We forgive."

The forgiveness chant apparently was in support of Cardinal Wyszyński's appeals for forgiveness to the Germans over World War II and also to forgive Communist authorities who in recent weeks have restricted the movement from city to city of a religious painting, the "Black Madonna of Czestochowa."

POLICE WARY

Cleveland Mobs Riot

CLEVELAND (UPI)--Special police riot squads were keeping a wary eye on the downtown Negro ghetto Sunday, hopeful the racial violence of the past four nights had come to an end.

Hundreds of Negroes milled through the area Saturday night in the latest outburst, hurling rocks, bricks and fire bombs at the police, newsmen and passersby.

The roving mobs apparently set fire to a grocery store in the area, causing an estimated $45,000 damage. Officials said the cause of the fire was not known, but it seemed likely the blaze was touched off by a flying fire bomb.

Six "molotov cocktail" firebombs were hurled into an intersection, but caused no harm.

Two men were shot Saturday night, but police maintained the incidents were not "directly" connected with racial disorder.

Neither man was seriously hurt. At least 12 persons were arrested, but police said 10 of those were charged with disturbing the peace. Eight were juveniles.

It was the youths in the city's Hough section who started the weekend of violence after one of their group allegedly was beaten by white youths.

A white motorist fired a shotgun blast from his car window Thursday night, wounding a 10-year-old Negro youngster.

Special riot-trained police squads cordoned off the area and moved in to break up groups before they could grow out of hand.

Javits Not For Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Sunday scratched former Vice President Richard M. Nixon as the possible Republican presidential candidate in 1968.

Javits, who has been widely mentioned as a possible vice presidential candidate, called Nixon "a distinguished Republican who had his chance."

"I think the public now wants new fresh faces on the part of the Republican party," Javits said in a television program for New York stations.

"We've got lots of new people coming along and they may rate consideration."

Javits said these included Ronald Reagan, the GOP gubernatorial candidate in California. Reagan, the senator said, "may be Sen. (Barry) Goldwater's (continued on page 5)

500 Guard With Riot Guns As March Reaches Climax

15,000 Swarm On Miss. Capitol

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)--Fifteen thousand screaming, chanting demonstrators surged toward the tense, heavily-guarded State Capitol Sunday to climax the "freedom" march that James Meredith began nearly alone three weeks ago.

The marchers streamed through a Negro section enroute to the Capitol and when they emerged into a white residential section, their ranks had tripled and they appeared to be barely under control of their leaders.

The marchers streamed through a Negro section enroute to the Capitol and when they emerged into a white residential section, their ranks had tripled and they appeared to be barely under control of their leaders.

Meredith Hits Racism In South

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)--James H. Meredith told nearly 15,000 Mississippi civil rights marchers Sunday "the fear that grips the Negro in America to his very bones" must be erased if civil rights are to be won.

He spoke at the climax of the marathon march--a great rally behind the state Capitol, an imposing limestone structure ringed by heavily armed police and National Guardsmen.

Officers estimated 16,000 Negroes, with a few hundred whites, flowed through the streets like a river of humanity to pack a portion of the Capitol grounds and adjacent areas.

They were led by Meredith, the slender, intense man who is a hero figure to Mississippi Negroes, and a cluster of national civil rights leaders who included Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

"There's a thing in Mississippi that is preventing white people from being decent," cried Meredith, speaking into a forest of microphones set up on a big flatbed truck which served as a platform.

"That thing is white supremacy. The purpose of the march that I started three weeks ago today was to point up and challenge the thing; at the base of the system--fear. A fear that grips the Negro in America to his very bones."

Meredith pointed out that he was shot on the second day of his march "but as you can see here, that didn't end a thing."

The rally, he added, would let Gov. Paul B. Johnson and President Johnson know that "we are not going to let it--white supremacy--live on, being blamed on a few whites in Mississippi."

There were persistent reports that the more militant groups would try to storm the "ring of steel" that 500 heavily-armed State Troopers and National

Cool Spots Are Scarce

Thousands of over-heated students looking for a cool time on campus this week found it at the Library and the IM pools.

With temperatures shooting up into the 90's, students lined the Library stacks and the poolside to duck the heat.

"It's fantastic," Carl Sharr, lifeguard at the Men's IM Pool, said of Saturday's 2,385-man crowd. The average class day this week has had 1,700 poolside gatherers. The average for finals week spring term was 1,500.

The Library, Kellogg Center, Bessey Hall and the Union should prove to be popular spots this summer, since they are among the few buildings on campus which are air-conditioned.

A spokesman for the weather bureau cited temperatures rising gradually from 87 degrees Monday to 94 degrees Friday. But the hot spell seems to be over, she said, beginning today with a high of 80 degrees.

Although the week's temperatures were not record-setters, for this time of year, they were unusually high. Two years ago the record highs were in the mid-90's, and the highest ever recorded for this time in June was 98 degrees in 1913.

U.S. Reds Re-Elect Old Heads

NEW YORK (UPI)--Gus Hall and Henry Winston, two old-line Communists who once served prison terms, were elected the top leaders of the American Communist Party Sunday and called upon the American people to "defend our right to function."

The restoration of titles to the leaders of the party for the first time since it went into a shadow existence in 1961 opened the way for federal prosecution of Hall and Winston as agents of the Soviet Union.

But Hall announced: "I do not anticipate arrest."

Hall, 55, owns a $30,000 suburban home and is driven to work by a chauffeur, said he was elected "co-equal" with Winston--but it was clear he was first among equals. He did almost all the talking at a news conference.

Hall was named general secretary of the Communist Party, USA, Winston, a blind Negro, was elected national chairman. Hall's title was his old one, but he had dropped it and became known merely as "party spokesman" to avoid prosecution.

Hall was vague about the election process. At one point he said his election was not unanimous, although he was unopposed. Later, grinning, he said, "We were elected by acclamation to thunderous applause."

The applause and stomping of feet on the floor of the Communist convention could be heard from it and who waited in the basement 2 1/2 hours for the results to be announced.

Christine Has Baby

LONDON (UPI)--Christine Keeler, who has sought anonymity since her love life nearly toppled the British government in 1963, was in the limelight again Sunday--as the mother of a six-pound, 11-ounce boy.

Miss Keeler, 24, was reported to have given birth to the baby last Wednesday at London's Princess Beatrix hospital and then returned home to her husband, James Levermore, before news of the birth leaked out.

Patrolmen on horseback joined them to help maintain some order in the section. Detectives said the two shootings were "just regular Saturday night calls."

Alphonse Henry, a Negro who was shot in the leg with a shotgun blast, was intoxicated, according to detectives. Three hospitals refused to treat Henry's wounds because of his alleged "abusive" behavior. Police obtained treatment for him at a fourth hospital, but Henry became so angered there that he ripped bandages from his bruised face and stalked out of the emergency room.

In the second incident police said, David Mayes was shot in the leg with a revolver after a dispute over a radio. No charges were filed.

'Worse Than Watts'--Hannah

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

Just three months after the federal Commission on Civil Rights tried to plumb Cleveland's civil rights problems, that city is getting a taste of discrimination-rooted violence.

Hundreds of Negroes milled through the Negro ghetto in the central city, throwing rocks, bricks and fire bombs.

Negro youths from the city's Hough section touched off the violence after one of their group was allegedly beaten by white youths.

The Hough area of Cleveland is one of the most segregated in the United States, President John A. Hannah, commission chairman, said when he got back from Cleveland.

Hough's problems outdistance Watts' and Harlem's, he said. Hough, and the rest of Cleveland's inner city, is paintless, grassless and garbage-littered. Hough is an urban renewal area. Homes have been razed. Little rebuilding has begun.

People, mostly Negroes, have moved out, often to areas as segregated and as sub-standard as Hough.

Unskilled and deskilled, many of them can't get jobs that pay enough to buy better housing. They can't find public housing large enough for their large families.

As the richer white residents leave the central city to live in the suburbs, the poorer Negroes move in. But the landlords raise rental prices for deteriorating buildings.

In the inner city live people like Mrs. Cornelia Turner, a Negro. She lives at the Alhambra, an apartment building furnished with sewage running open in the basement, old stoves that blow up and tubs that take four hours to empty.

RIGHTS GROUP

Urban League Meet Opens

Thirty-four executive directors of Urban League, a civil rights organization known for being more interested in efficiency than militancy, began a five-day conference Sunday evening in Kellogg Center sponsored by MSU's School of Labor and Industrial Relations.

Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of Urban League, was scheduled to speak Sunday evening on "From Civil Rights to Human Rights," but conference officials said he probably wouldn't be able to leave Mississippi for the conference.

Ella Campbell, assistant director for personnel and training for the National Urban League, said that there will be no policy changes at the conference.

"There will be internal training changes because the Urban League affiliates are undergoing expansions in their programs," Mrs. Campbell said.

The conference will be the first cooperative effort of the Urban League with a university, she continued.

MARCH FOR FREEDOM--Freedom marchers waving flags and wearing hats colored red, white and blue set out on the final leg of their trek to the Mississippi state capital at Jackson Sunday.

UPI Telephoto

ARRIVES HERE--Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, was expected here Sunday from Detroit to address the four-day Institute of Executive Directors of Urban Leagues meeting at Kellogg Center. Young flew to Detroit from Mississippi, site of the Meredith Freedom March.

The league hopes to create a meaningful dialogue in matters of agency administration and managerial skill, she said.

"The Urban League is frequently regarded as one of the organizations in the civil rights movement," she said. "We are interested in improving the total community life by closing the gaps between minority groups and the total society."

Young was recently quoted as saying: "Demonstrate only if necessary. Demonstrations are not enough."

Concerning the differences between the Urban League and other civil rights organizations, Mrs. Campbell said, "Each of them has a separate role to play. The organizations often are in concert and work together towards a common goal."

Placing Negroes in jobs is a direct service of the league, she said. The league is also concerned with total economic opportunities, including the small businessman, and equal opportunities in housing.

Law Should Support Journalistic Ethic

A UNIVERSITY OF Oregon coed editor is caught in the midst of a battle over journalistic ethics.

Annette Buchanan, 20-year-old managing editor of the University of Oregon's Daily Emerald, goes to trial today and faces a possible six-month prison sentence. Her crime? She is charged with contempt of court for refusing to divulge the names of seven student marijuana smokers she interviewed for a story on the use of the narcotic.

JOURNALISM IS A profession, just as is medicine and law. Neither doctors nor lawyers are required to disclose confidential information about a patient or client in court. The information they obtain in performing their work is privileged because of the nature of their work.

This creates a better professional relationship between doctor and patient, lawyer and client. It helps both perform their work better by increasing the amount of information their clients are willing to give them.

THEIR SITUATION PARALLELS the journalist's. Often a journalist can obtain information that a free society should have only by promising to keep his news source secret. He makes the promise because he deems the information essential to his readers. The identity of his news source should also be privileged information.

Journalists have long followed the unwritten ethic of protecting news sources. But they have the legal right to do so in only 12 states, including Michigan. And the constitutionality of several of these laws has not been tested. Quite often, journalists have served prison sentences for withholding the identity of a news source in court.

MISS BUCHANAN'S INDICTMENT by a grand jury is one more chapter in the long fight to legalize the journalists' right to protect confidential information.

We support her in what we consider is a suppression of necessary journalistic ethics.

WANT TROOPS TO STAY

Dominicans Fear Pullout

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—More than 75 per cent of Dominicans surveyed on the decision to withdraw the Inter-American Peacekeeping Force (IAPF) from this island republic are against the move, results of the poll showed Sunday.

The average resident viewed the move by the Organization of American States (OAS) with dismay, doubt, pessimism and fear.

About 50 per cent of those questioned said they felt OAS intervention in the Dominican revolt 14 months ago was justified.

The survey was conducted by four reporters in a cross section of neighborhoods in Santo Domingo and outlying districts. Several of the more than 40 persons interviewed lived in areas normally associated with deep anti-American feelings.

"A month after they leave we will have fighting again," said one housewife. "We don't like intervention, but we know it cannot be any other way."

At first, she and several others interviewed refused to believe the news reports reaching here—that the first of the 8,000 men in the IAPF will begin to leave before July 1. The lift will follow within 90 days.

Said a waiter, "It is just a grandstand play by the U.S. to help (provisional President Hector) Garcia-Godoy save face. They will not go."

A man standing beside him interjected: "If they do leave,

MARINES REPORT ESCAPE

2 Shake VC Detention

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (UPI)—The U.S. Marine prisoner made a desperate leap, grabbed the carbine of one of his captors, cocked it, and looked straight down the barrel at the three surprised Viet Cong.

And then it was a whole new ballgame.

This was part of a harrowing tale revealed Sunday—the story of how two leathernecks, captured in separate incidents in early May, escaped from their captors and walked for four days before finally reaching friendly lines.

The Marines are Sgt. James S. Dodson, 23, of York, Pa., and Lance Cpl. Walter W. Eckes, 20, of New York City.

The two met for the first time on May 12 in a Communist detention camp where they had been led—bound and barefoot—at the end of ropes.

They were suffering from hunger, minor lacerations, infections and near exhaustion when they made contact with a Marine unit June 20 at An Hoa, 20 miles southwest of Da Nang.

They had survived the last four days of their ordeal on water from streams and rice paddies and three pieces of candy a day. Their over-all condition was described as good.

On one occasion they came within a few feet of being recaptured.

Dodson, who arrived in Viet Nam in July, 1965, is a member of the 3rd Engineer Battalion, 3rd Marine Division. He holds the Purple Heart for a leg wound sustained last December. He has a 10-month-old son he has never seen.

He was working on a road-building project seven miles southeast of Da Nang when he was captured.

He said there were six Viet Cong and they subdued him and bound his hands with rope, then removed his boots.

After a while, he said, four of them led him off in a southwesterly direction. They walked for three days and nights until they arrived at the detention camp.

Dodson said his captors did not treat him roughly during the trip and that they gave him rice and water. He said they arrived at the camp in the mountains on May 9.

Eckes, a radio operator with an artillery forward observer team attached to "Charlie" Company, 9th Marine Regiment, was hitch-hiking back to his company from regimental headquarters at the time of his capture on May 10.

He said three armed Vietnamese, whom he thought were South Vietnamese soldiers, leveled rifles at him.

"I was stunned and it was too late to do anything," said Eckes. The Viet Cong took his .45-cal. automatic, bound him and took him to a nearby village.

He later was led toward the south. Two days later he reached the camp where Dodson was held.

Both men reported that when they arrived at the camp their feet were blistered, cut and swollen. They said a Vietnamese doctor treated them. They were also taken to a stream to wash and given more rice.

Each evening, the Marines said, the Viet Cong leader of the camp came to the hut where they were held. They were taken from the hut and forced to listen for a half hour to an English-language newscast from Radio Hanoi. They also were given Communist newspapers and pamphlets to read.

The Marines said that on occasion they were questioned about military matters but refused to answer. They said there were no attempts to force information from them.

Dodson and Eckes said they often discussed the possibility of escaping.

On June 14 they were being taken to another camp.

"They said they were going to take us there to school us about the National Liberation Front and other things," Dodson said.

"I told Eckes we were heading North, toward Da Nang," Dodson said. "Then after some time we could even hear the artillery firing and I knew we were heading toward Da Nang."

Dodson said that on the evening of June 16 he and Eckes were seated in a circle with three Viet Cong guards eating rice. He said their captors had left their carbines against a tree about 10 feet away.

"I kept looking over there toward the carbines, trying to figure the distance, how quick I could jump over there," Dodson said. "For a while I almost backed out of it."

But Dodson said he jumped up and grabbed a carbine.

"They looked at me," the sergeant said. "I looked at them. And then they ran."

Legislature Finished With MSU's Budget

Michigan legislators are going into overtime again Wednesday, but the MSU budget is already out of the game.

All mention of an MSU law school has been eliminated from the state-wide education appropriation bill.

If Governor Romney approves MSU's $55.5 million budget, it will go before the Board of Trustees in mid-July for final approval. It includes $44 million for the East Lansing campus; $4 million for MSU Oakland; $4 million for the Agricultural Experiment Station; and $3 million for the Cooperative Extension Service.

Student fees and grants are expected to provide an additional $20 million revenue on the East Lansing and Oakland campuses.

MSU will also receive more than one-third of the $24 million in state and $7 million in federal funds for capital outlay in state construction projects.

The University will receive: 1—$2.1 million toward completion of the $10 million new power plant;

2—nearly $1.2 million for the $4 million Conservation-Forestry Building;

3—$1.3 million for the $4.5 million food science structure;

4—$2 million for the $5.4 million Math and Statistics Building;

5—$1.9 million toward the building of a new $5.4 million Administration Building;

6—$1.5 million for work on the $4.3 million library addition;

7—$480,000 for the renovation of the Kedzie Chemistry Building; and

8—$1.7 million for a pesticide research center ($1 million coming from federal funds and the balance from overhead revenue to be received from its research projects).

The total capital outlay comes to over $12 million. Joined with the regular budget and tuition fees, MSU will be spending just short of $100 million during the next fiscal year.

Maritime Strike Nears Settlement

LONDON (UPI)--Britain's crippling strike by merchant seamen completed its sixth week Sunday amid signs a settlement may be reached this week.

For the first time since the strike began May 16, the striking National Union of Seamen (NUS) has indicated a willingness to sit down for some serious bargaining.

The NUS spent Sunday reviewing statistics in preparation for negotiations Tuesday with the ship-owners federation under the auspices of the rating's panel of the National Maritime Board--the industry's normal bargaining machinery.

Vatican Resumes Relations With Yugoslavia

VATICAN CITY (UPI)--The accord reestablishing relations between the Vatican and Yugoslavia may prove to be the first step in a general resumption of official links with the Communist regimes of Eastern Europe, Vatican sources said Sunday.

It may take years. But with hard work and patience the Vatican hopes to establish eventual diplomatic or near-diplomatic channels with all Communist states--except perhaps the Soviet Union, and almost certainly except Red China.

Communist China Termed Belligerent

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Undersecretary of State George W. Ball said Sunday belligerency in foreign policy is among the factors at issue in a "power struggle" within Communist China.

But it is "hard to tell" how the struggle will affect the Vietnamese war, Ball said in a television interview (Meet the Press--NBC).

Ball said the present regime on the Chinese mainland is undergoing a period of "self-criticism... in addition to that, there is a power struggle going on."

As to whether Chinese support of North Viet Nam is a factor in the struggle, Ball said "support of other regimes in belligerent acts is a factor."

Sailor Terrorizes Mates

TYNEMOUTH, England (UPI)--An apparently berserk crewman locked himself inside the engine room of a 138-ton British trawler Sunday and terrorized his mates for several hours, threatening to blow up the ship, before finally surrendering to the skipper.

The tense drama occurred in the North Sea about 78 miles off Tynemouth, the coast guard reported.

The unidentified crewman, after locking himself inside the engine room, kept working the throttle and directional control up and down, sending the trawler Wilson Line alternately backwards and forwards. The rest of the crew was helpless to stop him.

Coed Tells Story

"The evening he picked me up he seemed very nervous. He drove through campus like a maniac. I wondered if perhaps his driving was the minor charge the police said they could arrest him on."

"I was apprehensive about being with him, so I told him I was upset from preparing for finals, and asked to stop for something to eat. He let me off by the Big Boy and I went inside while he was to park the car. I waited there, but the next person to come in was Sgt. Hankins."

"He told me that the man drove off, but that they would be able to make an arrest because they recognized him. I went back to the dorm and arrangements were made for me to sign a formal complaint the next morning."

The coed said the complaint was for two counts, the morals charge and disorderly conduct. O'Brien, father of four girls, was released on bail after he was brought before Justice of the Peace Conway Longson.

The senator, from Detroit's fifth district, is a member of the State Insurance Committee.

A primary, in which he seeks nomination for a second legislative term, is set five days before the present trial date.

"This will be the greatest demonstration for freedom ever held," King said. Asked about rumors that followers of SNCC would try to crash the police lines, King said that Stokely Carmichael, head of SNCC, had "some ideas diverse to mine." But he said "I think he's calmed down now."

It was learned that march leaders, in a meeting Saturday night, voted to exclude the NAACP from the march because it had not supported the trek previously. A few NAACP signs, prominent when the march began Sunday, soon disappeared.

Mississippi Freedom March

Guardsmen threw up around the Capitol. Also at the Capitol were nine green-clad members of a Ku Klux Klan group called the Knights of the Green Forest.

The throngs trampled on lawns, cursed and jeered as they swept through the white section.

"Black power! Black power!" they chanted--for the first time in a week, after Dr. Martin Luther King urged them to discard the slogan as offensive.

Meredith and King left the line about halfway to the Capitol. Meredith, his wounds still healing from the shotgun ambush that felled him June 6, the day after he started the march from Memphis, began having leg pains. He got into a car which crept along briefly with the march, then pulled away and disappeared.

King also left the march after it stopped at a schoolyard for a lunch break. He drove on to the Capitol to survey the 300 State Troopers and 200 National Guard MPs, with carbines, riot guns and tear gas equipment, who stood two feet apart all around the building.

"This will be the greatest demonstration for freedom ever held," King said. Asked about rumors that followers of SNCC would try to crash the police lines, King said that Stokely Carmichael, head of SNCC, had "some ideas diverse to mine." But he said "I think he's calmed down now."

It was learned that march leaders, in a meeting Saturday night, voted to exclude the NAACP from the march because it had not supported the trek previously. A few NAACP signs, prominent when the march began Sunday, soon disappeared.

A number of whites lined the highway, but they appeared merely curious. Every time the march passed a soft drink machine, dozens of Negroes darted out of the line and came back with bottles of cool drinks. To do this they had to mingle with the whites around the machines, but the whites ignored them.

Near the head of the half-mile column marched Burt Lancaster in a purple polo shirt, and Marlon Brando with a handkerchief on his head. The actors were part of a contingent that entertained the marchers on the campus Saturday night.

Nearly all the marchers waved small American flags and bore buttons proclaiming "Freedom Now" or "James Meredith Mississippi March." The flags and buttons were being vigorously peddled by hawkers trotting up and down the line.

City Hall At Gilchrist

"Operation Bentley," a three-week project involving 100 high school seniors with a knack for politics, has transformed Gilchrist Hall into a city hall.

The project, an outgrowth of 38 annual MSU sponsored Senior Government Days in which 18,000 seniors participate, is co-sponsored by the Alvin M. Bentley Foundation and gives participants practical experience in government.

Bentley, former U.S. congressman from Michigan and delegate to Michigan's 1961 Constitutional Convention, recognized the important background students were getting in Senior Government Day and decided to enlarge the idea.

Under the tutelage of township, city and county officials these select student delegates simulate governmental processes at all levels: city, county, village, township and state legislative. The seniors are selected on the basis of performance during Government Day.

A highlight of the operation will be an address delivered to a student delegation by Gov. George Romney during a legislative session this morning.

Stanton Todd, MSU's representative in the project, said because of last year's interest in legislative proceedings more emphasis has been placed on state government.

The innovators of the operation, now in its fourth year, feel it will yield a better future government and better future citizens of government.

Todd, coordinator of activities, said the students' agenda includes formal voter registration, political campaigning complete with primary and general election, administrative meetings, court procedures and monitoring a bill through legislature.

He added the students end each workshop day with an after dinner address from state and university officials.

Included on the speakers' roster are Alvin M. Bentley, initiator of the sponsoring foundation; Mrs. George Romney; Justice John R. Dethmers of the Michigan Supreme Court; Secretary of State James M. Hare; Attorney General Frank J. Kelley; State Treasurer Allison Green; Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken; and D. Hale Brake.

Brake, a former state senator and state treasurer, is the educational director of "Operation Bentley."

Four university presidents are on the roster. They are: John A.

Hannah, MSU; James W. Miller, Western Michigan University; Edgar L. Harden, Northern Michigan University, and Harold Sponberg, Eastern Michigan University. Laurence Taylor, Hillsdale, will also speak.

The students, upon arrival in East Lansing, were given a detailed map of the district and accounts of all pertinent meetings so that they would be knowledgeable in their assigned area. They are urged to act individually and be self-expressive.

Todd said that the students are divided into three political parties: Alphas, Omegas and Independents to insure vigorous campaigning. They are also assigned offices to run for.

He adds that some students, the uniformed "sheriff" and his deputies, are kept busy with duties in the hall.

Todd said they were currently recruiting a student to act as the corpse in an inquest case.

The students spend most of the three weeks in the simulated government offices in Gilchrist, but do have a few panel discussions in Kellogg Center. Their concluding session Thursday will be held in Constitutional Convention Hall, International Center.

Soviets Laud N.Y. Soprano

MOSCOW (UPI)--American soprano Jane Marsh of New York City has won the first singing competition in the history of the Tchaikovsky Musical Contest, the jury announced Sunday.

Miss Marsh, who turned 24 Saturday, made her singing debut as Desdemona in a 1965 Italian Arts Festival performance of Othello.

Victory in the contest brings her 2,500 rubles ($2,775) and a gold medal.

The Tchaikovsky contest catapulted another American, Van Cliburn, of Texas, to fame when he won its first piano competition. It originally had only competitions for pianists and violinists.

Every Science, Engineering and Math student should know about CSSTP before he makes up his mind about a career.

Sign up now at your placement office to get the story on CSSTP--from the IBM interviewer

June 29-30

CSSTP means Computer Systems Science Training Program. It's an extraordinary IBM program that enables you to use your technical knowledge and problem-solving skills in new, exciting ways. Ways that may never occur to you unless you talk to the IBM interviewer.

He'll show you how CSSTP leads to exceptional career opportunities with IBM Data Processing.

He'll tell you about the vital role of IBM's Marketing Representative. How he goes into major businesses to help solve their urgent management and control problems. He'll spell out the challenges which face IBM's Systems Engineer.

How he studies customer needs and computer requirements, and develops systems solutions to their problems.

In short, he'll describe all the unusual assignments in IBM's more than 200 offices from coast to coast. All are places where you can grow with IBM, leader in America's fastest-growing major industry: information handling and control.

So don't miss your IBM interview. Visit your placement office and sign up now. If for any reason you can't make it on campus, feel free to visit your nearest IBM branch office. Or write: Manager of College Relations, IBM Corporate Headquarters, Armonk, N.Y. 10504.

Whatever your plans, before you hit upon a career, see if IBM doesn't make a hit with you.

Whatever your area of study, ask us how you might use your particular talents at IBM. Job opportunities at IBM lie in eight major career fields: (1) Marketing, (2) Systems Engineering, (3) Programming, (4) Research and Development, (5) Engineering, (6) Manufacturing, (7) Finance and Administration, (8) Field Engineering. Cleveland Riots

Mrs. Turner organized a rent strike with the help of the Freedom Fighters, a Cleveland civil rights group. She was later evicted.

When the Freedom Fighters called up her landlord to set up a meeting between him and the tenants, the landlord, David Kaplan, refused to talk to them. Other landlords warned him that the Freedom Fighters taped interviews with landlords and then spliced them to incriminate the landlords, Kaplan told the commission.

The Freedom Fighters are known to have made extravagant demands once a landlord gives on one point, he went on.

Kaplan said he tried to keep up with the complaints but it is possible he overlooked something.

"This isn't a one-way street. The occupant has a responsibility, too."

After the testimony commission member Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, put his feelings about central city housing in one short sentence:

"I've seen better pigpens." The housing division in Cleveland doesn't have the staff to enforce the housing code. Until recently they hadn't bothered enforcing it in areas slated for urban renewal.

Welfare and education, as well as housing, are problems in the inner city.

The central city doesn't have the tax base to attract good teachers or build good schools. To meet overcrowding one school used a windowless attic room as a classroom.

"We were separate in Georgia, but at least we were equal," one schoolteacher from the south said.

Mothers on monthly Aid to Dependent Children checks find they can buy only enough food for two weeks. There is no money for extra supplies like detergents. One mother complained she can't afford a babysitter if she wanted to work.

If an ADC mother works, her already substandard check is cut. Since she often has little education and can't get a good-paying job, a job does not put her further ahead.

Whether or not the middle class part of Cleveland thinks the inner city residents' grievances are valid, those grievances can still breed violence.

ATTENDANCE SOARS

IM Pool Cools Hot Days

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

"Hot" has been the word for these past few summer days. And the place where students have found some sort of relief from the weather is the IM outdoor pool.

With temperatures reaching above the 90-degree mark for over a week, more than 1,500 students have flocked to the pool daily.

Saturday, over 3,385 people were counted soaking up the sun and refreshing themselves at the pool.

In just a little less than a half hour after its summer opening, Sunday, 436 people, including students, faculty members and visiting guests, had entered the pool area.

Since its opening, May 15, the outdoor pool has been overwhelmingly popular.

But the recent hot weather has made the pool even more popular and attendance has soared over spring term totals.

So says Charles McCaffree, Spartan swim coach and one of the men responsible for the IM outdoor swim program.

"We've had splendid attendance," McCaffree said. "It all depends, of course, on the weather. Whenever you have sunshine, people will come out."

MSU's outdoor pool, built with the other intramural buildings in 1959, is generally considered one of the best in the nation.

It was the site of the Pan American tryouts in 1959 and several other swim meets have been held there.

"Before it was built, the administration, President Hannah and others decided that we needed a fine place for our students to swim," McCaffree said. "The facilities are possibly the best in the nation and we are so happy that students are using them."

The pool and the surrounding area offers a variety of swimming and sun bathing opportunities to its users.

There are seven diving boards, including a two-meter board, a one-meter spring board and a one, three, five, nine and 10-meter platform on the tower.

The length of the pool itself is 55 yards and the diving area is 20 feet by 25 feet.

The pool slopes to a six-foot depth until it reaches the diving well where it is 16 feet.

For sun bathers, there are three grass areas and many people often sit on the ridges of the pool.

"The big thing about the pool is the swimming space," McCaffree said. "We could have about 500 people in the pool at once and our top load for the complete pool area is close to 2,500 a day."

"I think our pool is adequate for its size," he continued.

McCaffree said that the high wall surrounding the pool is an added feature that most outdoor pools do not have.

"It was purposely built," he said, "so that people couldn't peek in."

"It is just a nice clean healthy pool. We don't allow any smoking, drinking or shoes in the pool area and that helps us keep it clean."

To insure people's protection there are three lifeguards at all times standing watch over the area. In addition there are "cruisers" who continually walk around the pool watching for any mishaps.

"This is a very good pool to guard," said Gary Dille, a life guard and a member of the Spartan swim team.

"It's shallow enough to allow people to swim at their own leisure, the water is calm and smooth, and it's clean due to the filtering system."

Dille said the pool's water is maintained at a constant 78 degree temperature in the summer and 40 degrees in the winter.

"We've had complaints that the water is too warm in the summer," he said. "But really sun bathers should have no gripes about it. I should think. It's good for leisure swimming."

CAUSE AND EFFECT--It's that lazy, hazy, crazy summertime again, and thousands of students are heading for the IM outdoor pool daily. Here MSU coed Delores Brenner, Des Plaines, Ill., junior, gets into the summer act, attempting to walk the pool abutment. She causes a little "eye" reaction from John Clancy, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., senior. Miss Brenner failed to make it across the length of the pool, but Clancy continued to look on.

Twin Sluggers Bomb Tigers In Dual Detroit Disaster

Minnesota's Jim Perry hurled a three-hitter at the Detroit Tigers in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader to score a 7-1 win and complete a double shellacking of the Bengals. Minnesota took the first game by a 7-5 score.

Mickey Lolich started the nightcap for Detroit and took the loss, bringing his record to 7-5. Bill Monbouquette, Fred Gladding and Orlando Pena also took their turns on the mound for the Tigers.

In the opener, Harmon Killebrew rapped three hits, leading the Twins to victory over Detroit.

The Twins won the game with a five-run uprising in the fifth inning. Killebrew doubled home one run and scored another in the rally. He also contributed two singles to the Twins' 14-hit attack.

Dave Boswell was the winner, and Joe Sparma took the loss.

Hastings Driver Finishes Second

ATLANTA--Gordon Johncock, of Hastings, drove his rear-engine Ford to a second-place finish in the Championship 300 at Atlanta International Raceway, Sunday.

Johncock, who finished fourth in the Indianapolis 500, was given the runner-up spot when Billy Foster, originally awarded second, of Victoria, British Columbia, was penalized three laps for passing two cars under a caution flag.

Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., led all the way to win the race.

NEW YORK (AP)--University of Kansas ace Jim Ryun won the mile run at the National AAU Track and Field Championships in New York Sunday. The 19-year-old miler turned on the power in the last 200 yards and won by eight yards. His time was 3:56.6.

Dyrol Burleson of Eugene,

Oregon, was second. And Jim Crelle of Oregon was third. Burleson was timed in 4:00.

Grelle was clocked in 4:00.6. Ryun's time for the last quarter was a sizzling 0:52.6.

ATLANTA (AP)--Sandy Koufax won his 14th game--tops in the major leagues--as the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Braves, 2-1, before 51,275 fans--the largest crowd ever in Atlanta stadium.

Koufax, who has lost twice, scattered seven hits and struck out 11.

Coed Wins Golf Crown

COLUMBUS, OHIO--Joyce Kazmierski, Detroit senior, used her powerful driving game to win the Women's Collegiate Golf Championship here Saturday.

Miss Kazmierski was the winner of the MSU intramural golf tournament, last spring.

Michigan State has no extensive women's golf program and no women's team. According to Women's IM Director Carol Harding, Miss Kazmierski had "a minimum amount of coaching" at MSU.

Dorothy Parker of the physical education department did instruct the newly-crowned champ somewhat in play at Forest Akers Golf Course.

CHICAGO (AP)--Third baseman Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs suffered a double fracture of his left cheek bone when he was hit by a pitch in the first game of Sunday's double-header against the New York Mets. Santo will undergo surgery today. It is estimated he will be out of action for 10 to 12 days.

Santo was hit by a pitch thrown by Jack Fisher in the third inning. He was carried off the field on a stretcher.

Santo was playing in his 390th consecutive game and had extended his hitting streak to 25 games with a single in the first inning.

Santo was the third player to be hit by a pitch in the first three innings. Chicago outfielder Adolfo Phillips, who had homered in the first, was hit above the left elbow, also by Fisher, in the second. And Mets second baseman Ron Hunt was hit in the back by a pitch from Curt Simmons in the top of the third.

choice rather than Richard Nixon come tomorrow."

Goldwater has said Nixon currently appears to be the leading contender for the GOP presidential nomination two years hence and public opinion polls generally rate him ahead of Michigan Gov. George W. Romney.

"The battle lines are being drawn and I am in the fight all the way so that my party becomes a true challenge to the Democrats and so it becomes a viable alternative for a national mandate," Javits said.

Javits called Romney a promising moderate aspirant but added, "He can't be considered a serious candidate unless he is re-elected."

"There are others, of course...I don't think you can say that the moderates are confined even to one possibility, to wit Romney even though he seems to be the leading man at the moment."

MSU Graduate Student Mich. Amateur Golf Champ

CHARLEVOIX (AP)--Bob Meyer, of East Lansing, is Michigan's new Amateur Golf Champion. The Michigan State graduate student defeated Cliff Taylor of Spring Lake 5 and 4 in the championship match, here, this afternoon. Meyer is a former Miles City champion and was co-medalist with Jim Gilteman of Alma in the State Amateur which pitted two outstates in the final for the first time in 20 years.

Meyer advanced to the championship round with a 3 and 1 victory over 1960 champion Don Stevens of Birmingham, and Taylor eliminated Jim Smith of Detroit 3 and 1 in their semifinal match.

Computer Used In Library

By DON SOCKOL
State News Staff Writer

The computer has finally caught up with Shakespeare, Chaucer, Freud and Sir Isaac Newton.

It began spring term and by September, 1968, all the books in the MSU Library will be computerized along with the students who use them.

About one-quarter of the Library's 1,250,000 volumes are already being handled by the computerized method, according to Richard E. Chapin, director of libraries.

This is the way the new system works. The library clerk places the book "pocket card" and the student's identification card into a data transmitter. The transaction is automatically recorded on tape and the card returned to its pocket in the book. When the book is returned the card is again placed in the transmitter which cancels the checkout entry.

The computer prints notices to patrons whose books are overdue and automatically assesses fines. It has even been adapted as a timeclock for Library employees.

Use of a computer makes Library operations faster and cheaper, said Chapin.

"The old methods are just not going to work any more," Chapin said.

He pointed out that the number of books in the Library has increased 25 per cent over the past three years. He also noted that since he took over as head of the MSU Library in 1959, the number of books circulated has doubled.

Roughly 900,000 books were taken out of the Library during the past year. In addition, there is at least a one to one ratio of books used in the Library to books actually taken out, he said.

The turnstile exit from the Library has tabulated about 1.5 million turns during the past year, Chapin said.

In addition to the computer cards being placed in the books, each student must pick up a matching card with his name and student number on it at the Library. Only about half of these cards have been picked up, Chapin said.

New students may begin picking up their cards Friday, he said. Books already being processed by computer cannot be taken out without these cards.

The computerized system will cost the Library about $35,000 a year for checking books in and out. This is more expensive than the present $30,000 outlay, but it has two advantages.

First, it is about four times as fast, said Dale H. Pretzer, assistant to the director of libraries.

Second, the cost will remain steady as the size of the Library collection increases. Up to now, circulation costs have increased with rising circulation. The difference in costs of the two systems is pictured below:

Chapin pointed out another advantage of the computer. When ordered to do so, the computer will print a report noting which books are being frequently used and which are not being circulated. Extra copies of high-demand volumes can then be ordered and little-used books can be put in storage.

Another feature being added to the Library will be a magnetic "door check," Chapin said. Each book will have a magnetic device in it that will lock the Library exits if the book has not been checked out properly. This will eliminate the time consuming employee checker at the door.

Other steps are also being taken to improve the Library. A $4 million addition to the existing building is not under construction and will be completed in the summer of 1967. It will be utilized as a library for graduate students.

Graduate-level reference materials will be increasingly in demand here, as the graduate group is growing in percentage figures faster than any other group on campus. MSU now has about 8,000 graduate students.

An extensive remodeling is also to be done on the current building. By eliminating wide hallways and making other alterations, an additional 26,000 square feet of working space can be made available, Chapin said.

Still further in the future, a science library located in the science complex on the southern part of the campus is being planned.

MSU librarians are also seeking to eventually set up an automation system for the 200,000 periodicals, brochures, pamphlets etc., which are sent to the campus each year.

In addition to special construction budgets, the overall library budget this year is expected to top $2 million with grants. Three years ago it was

Secretary Hurt In Car Accident

A State News secretary was injured Friday around 8 a.m. in a two car collision at Mt. Hope and Harrison Roads, East Lansing Police said.

Dorothy A. Ross of 525 Irvington Ave., Lansing, was driving east on Mt. Hope when a west-bound car driven by Lynn James Shaffer, 44, of 8889 Weston, Moroni, made a turn to Harrison Road. Mrs. Ross told police she did not have time to stop.

Mrs. Ross was treated at Sparrow Hospital for bruises to her right arm and shoulder. Her daughter, Barbara, 18, was also treated and released at Sparrow.

CHICAGO (UPI)--Dr. James Z. Appel, outgoing president of the American Medical Assn., Sunday warned militant foes of Medicare within the AMA they will "only invite hostility" from the mass of Americans by denying patients care under the new law.

Appel, who is openly branded an "appeaser" by some physicians unreconciled to the Medicare Act, which goes into effect July 1, told the AMA's policy making house of delegates:

"Refusal of care, or deprivation of the patients' legal rights will only invite hostility for the profession in the very people who are the only ones who can change the present erroneous course of the nation."

"Even under the harmful atmosphere created by Medicare, the profession's first concern must be to the patient. It must continue to render the best quality care that is possible," Appel said.

Appel, speaking on the opening day of the AMA's 115th annual convention, said that since Medicare placed a "foot in the door" toward government control and regulation of health care, "efforts are being made to open the door wider and wider until complete socialization of health care will be upon us."

"The health care of the people is no longer a personal matter between the patient and the physician. It is now a political issue, the merits of which will not be determined solely on scientific grounds but also on vote getting appeal by individuals not at all well informed on quality health care," Appel said.

"If the medical profession wishes to contain or roll back the present socialistic trend in this country, its members must participate in the ranks of both political parties and have a voice in the determination of party policy. . . . Better yet, the medical profession should have more of its own membership sitting in the seats of Congress," he said.

Appel warned physicians to "restrain any inclinations to suddenly raise their usual fees" at the start of Medicare.

However, he said, "under Medicare, the patient's low income should not be taken into consideration in estimating the usual and customary fee. . . . The present usual fee for services you render to non-beneficiary patients should prevail."

Appel also:

--Criticized the Food and Drug Administration for "precipitous action taken (and) non-scientific judgments made" in enforcing federal legislation, and questioning "the competency of practicing physicians to pass judgment on either the safety or efficacy of the drugs they prescribe."

--Warned against allowing racial or religious discrimination within the medical profession or within hospitals. "Race should not be a criteria on which membership in medical societies, physician privileges in hospitals nor patient assignment to hospital facilities is based."

"In those communities where strict compliance is difficult, consideration might be given so that those who need hospital care but refuse to remain in the room assigned will be required to sign a statement. . . . (waiving) . . . any claim for benefits under Medicare."

Doesn't See Tax Hike Now

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Commerce Secretary John T. Connor said Sunday it was still "an open question" whether the administration would ask a tax rise this year.

Asked during a television interview about his recent prediction that there would be no tax increase unless there were wide-ranging changes in the economy, Connor said he still thought a tax hike unlikely this year.

Connor added, however, that President Johnson has made it clear he would "take whatever fiscal measures are necessary if this situation looks as if it might get out of hand."

While still concerned about inflationary pressures, Connor said the economy had "settled down" during the last three months, as shown in the slower rise of consumer prices in May and slackening retail sales.

Nixon Urges AMA On To Political Power

CHICAGO (UPI)--Former Vice President Richard Nixon told physicians Sunday that extension of Medicare to persons under 65 is inevitable "unless the make-up of the present Congress is changed."

Nixon urged the American Medical Assn. to "redouble its efforts" to become a major political force.

Nixon, speaking to a meeting of officers of state medical associations, said the AMA should not be "discouraged" by the passing of the Medicare bill in the face of protests by many doctors.

Physicians, through the AMA, should go on to exert their influence in other areas of American politics, Nixon said.

"We need the brains of this profession in both parties," he said.

Nixon said that he was in favor of "free medicine" as opposed to socialized medicine. But he predicted further steps toward socialization by a "one-party Congress."

In a television appearance early Sunday, Nixon said the only way to bring about peace in Viet Nam is to convince aggressors that aggression won't work.

Nixon repeated his view that heavier bombing of military installations in North Viet Nam would convince the Viet Cong that they could not win the war--and thereby lead them to negotiate.

Chapin would also like to charge non-University users a fee for use of the Library. This service is provided at no cost now.

"In spite of the tremendous growth of the Library I am against any fee for students," Chapin said.

"I view the Library as a service and something the University must provide as part of the student's education," he said.

RESEARCHERS POOL EFFORTS

New Center Battles Pests

By BEVERLY TWICHELL

Seventeen MSU departments are pooling their knowledge and efforts in a "battle of bugs"--a Pesticide Research Center.

"The center may well make MSU the hub of pesticide research in the Midwest," said Gordon Guyer, chairman of the Entomology Dept. and director of the research program.

This interdisciplinary approach to research enables scientists of various areas to battle pests while measuring side effects on animals, crops, soil and water.

"Growers, chemical companies and others will get fast, workable answers to pest problems," Guyer said.

"The program will be housed in a $2.2 million central facility to be located south of the Plant Science Research Building. It is a top priority item on the University budget."

The center will include greenhouses, laboratories and controlled environment chambers for testing pesticides and insect behavior under all conditions.

There will also be special rooms for offices, spray testing, bioassays, material storage and cold storage.

"Such a setup would provide the most efficient means of conducting research on diversified but related pest problems," Guyer said. "Specialized and expensive equipment can be provided at much less cost than under present conditions where several laboratories must be equipped," he explained.

The center has actually been in existence for about three years. Some 20 staff members from various departments have been working on research problems in 15 on-campus and two off-campus locations. The Pesticide Research Center will provide one large centralized facility to house the program.

V.L. Vandenberg, physical plant construction superintendent, said that construction should begin this week on a greenhouse and an environmental control structure (headhouse).

A precontract bulletin was signed last week for $558,972, which is $17,400 over the budget. Philip J. May, vice president for business and financial affairs, and the contractors have been working on change orders to reduce construction costs to $541,500.

The buildings are scheduled to be completed March 15. Plans for the financing and construction of the main building of the center have not been finalized.
