

Students apply quickly for new fee reductions

By LAUREL PRATT
State News Staff Writer

The new office of fee determination has received more than 1,350 applications for 1967-68 fee reductions, director Kermit H. Smith said Tuesday.

The applications started coming in Thursday afternoon, three days after the first mailing of the new fee schedule to all students expected to be in school this fall.

Smith said he started getting calls about the new fees July 24, the Monday after the board of trustees meeting at which the new fee system was decided upon.

"We didn't really have any information to give," he said, "We could just talk in general terms."

It is fairly easy to deal with the usual cases, he said. Either the tax forms submitted show low enough income to qualify the student for minimum tuition ($354 yearly) or the per-term tuition can be easily figured by moving a decimal point (per-term tuition is one per cent of gross annual parental income).

The similar "unusual" cases will probably be grouped together when a large enough number of like applications have arrived, he said, and a rule will be made which will apply to a large number of them. Then the rest will be dealt with individually.

"They're going to be looked at fairly," he said. "The University is human and they will look at them in the best light possible."

A notice of the reduction from the maximum tuition will be sent to the parents. Then the reduction figure is sent to Data Processing to be printed on the fall term fee card below the scholarship and other credits line as a deduction. The cards will be ready in September for anyone who has submitted his application material by Aug. 31, Smith said.

On July 31 and Aug. 1, notices of the fee increases and applications for fee reduction were mailed to all students—a total of 42,000—before Smith's operations even started.

Last week the office was set up with a staff of four; a fifth clerk begins work today.

Thursday afternoon the office had about 75 applications, Smith said. Friday he received 200, Monday 740 and Tuesday more than 330.

"Plus innumerable phone calls, and people coming in," he said.

He said there will soon be separate lines and people outside his office to answer questions.

The real work has not yet started, since they are waiting for supplies, he said, but organization and preparatory work have been done.

He added "People have been very nice. They realize it's a difficult situation that we're in, in trying to process these materials. We haven't had anybody really unhappy with us."

Fee refund policy to aid out-of-staters

A new refund policy which reduces the penalty for out-of-state students who drop from one fee group to another while dropping credits will go into effect fall term.

Under the new system an out-of-state student dropping from full-time (10 credits or more, $400) to 7-9 credits ($278), for example, within the first two weeks of the term will receive a refund of $96.50. Under the old system the refund was $61.

The decision was made because there was a feeling that as out-of-state fees got so much higher than in-state fees, it was not fair that out-of-state students should be penalized so much more than in-state students when dropping courses, said Philip J. May, vice president for business and finance.

The new refund system for out-of-state students who change fee levels in the first two weeks provides a refund of the difference in actual out-of-state tuition between the two fee groups, plus half the difference in in-state fees between the two groups.

The actual out-of-state tuition is the amount above in-state fees that an out-of-state student must pay ($233 for the full-time student). All fees in the drop-add situation are figured on the basis of the maximum in-state fees ($167), since that is the base for the part-time in-state rates.

MSU does not charge tuition for Michigan residents; instead, it charges course fees. These fees were formerly listed as a charge to all students in the catalogs with out-of-state tuition listed as a cost that had to be added on.

The full-time actual out-of-state tuition, then, is $233. Out-of-state tuition for 7-9 credits is $162. The difference between them is $71.

The difference between the maximum full-time in-state fee ($167) and the 7-9 credit in-state fee ($116) is $51, and half of this is $25.50.

U-M hikes fees across-board; $72 in-state, $300 out-state

ANN ARBOR—The University of Michigan announced Tuesday tuition increases of $72 a year for in-state students and $300 for non-residents. The $1,300 out-of-state tuition rate made it the highest among state-supported schools in the Big Ten.

Michigan residents will pay $420 a year in tuition.

The Board of Regents, faced with "no alternative" after the Legislature undercut their appropriation request by $13.5 million, voted unanimously to join eight other state universities which hiked student tuition this summer. Regent Alvin Bentley, a Republican, has been hospitalized the past two months and couldn't attend the meeting.

A U-M spokesman called the fee hike, which is expected to bring in about $4.5 million, the minimum needed to operate this year.

Regents met for about 12 hours Monday to examine available tuition systems. They adopted the straight, across-the-board type after Otis M. Smith, a Democrat, rejected a graduated tuition structure as "not worth the effort."

U-M department heads are expected to meet today with Alan Smith, vice president for academic affairs, to determine which programs would be cut under what one official termed "an austerity budget."

In addition to the undergraduate fee hikes, which amounted to about a 22 per cent increase for in-staters and 30 per cent for out-of-staters, the U-M increased in-state graduate fees from $380 to $460 and out-state from $1,200 to $1,500.

The increases, which a U-M official described as similar percentage-wise to those at Wayne State University, take effect this fall when some 36,000 students return Aug. 26 for registration.

At a July 17 board meeting, Regents delayed action on a fee increase until they could study other alternatives and available fee systems. A U-M source indicated that they had considered increases then in excess of $300 but rejected the idea after lengthy talks Tuesday afternoon.

"It's not going to be pleasant, but we will have to lose some of our planned staff and equipment," said Regent Frederick Mattek, Jr., Tuesday.

However, Regents did approve augment-

MSU reaps benefits from NSA affiliation

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series on the National Student Association (NSA), whose 20th National Student Congress begins next week. ASMSU and State News representatives will attend.

By NORM SPERLING
State News Staff Writer

The wide variety of services NSA offers students at member colleges and universities was the major reason ASMSU joined NSA last spring.

In less than half a term, ASMSU used the Student Government Information Service, International Student Identity Cards, Insurance and miscellaneous information from NSA for MSU students and officers.

About 300 NSA International Identification cards were sent here, and within a week half of them were sold for $2 each.

The card is good for discounts in the U.S. and in other countries. Educational Travel, Inc., a branch of NSA, issues them through member schools and in New York and Los Angeles.

The Student Government Information Service (SGIS) provides on request to the national office, free material on other colleges' problems comparable to those at MSU. This gives students background and data formerly available to administrators only, and provides a factual basis for dialogue on issues.

Cooperative book stores, student participation in university governments, and off campus housing have already been researched here through the SGIS. In the coming year NSA Coordinator Beverley Twitcheil expects a number of topics to be ordered, such as course evaluation, book stores, travel programs, and women's hours.

Thieu to seek bombing halt, says more troops needed

SAIGON (P)—South Vietnam's chief of state and leading candidate for the presidency in the upcoming elections, Nguyen Van Thieu declared Tuesday that if elected, he would seek direct negotiations between Saigon and Hanoi and request a halt of U.S. bombing in the North.

But he also said that the planned allied troop build-up would not be sufficient to win the war in the South.

Despite plans to add at least 110,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese men to the 1.2 million in the allied armed forces, Thieu said more allied troops are needed to win the war. He didn't say exactly how many.

"If we have more troops we can shorten the war," Thieu told newsmen while, if troop strength is not increased, "we will lose again what we have captured from the Viet Cong."

Of the 45,000 to 50,000 U.S. servicemen President Johnson is committing to Vietnam by next June 30, Thieu said: "We have to accept that. But if we have more it's better. Any military man would like to have more troops."

Thieu, a candidate for president and apparently the front-runner in the campaign leading to the national election Sept. 3, said Tuesday one of the first things he will do if he wins is to try to get Hanoi to the conference table.

He will even ask the United States to halt the raids on the north, he told a news conference, "If I decide that Hanoi will respond to a good gesture—to a pause in the bombing."

Thieu's regime has launched plans to add 65,000 men to South Vietnam's armed forces, which now have about 650,000. Rolls of the five other allies in Vietnam total 54,000, Thieu's remarks may have been intended primarily for these nations —Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, South Korea and the Philippines.

At the news conference, Thieu said more allied troops are needed to win the war. As for a settlement he reiterated that he doesn't intend to negotiate with the Viet Cong or their political arm, the National Liberation Front. "If we deal with the front it means that this is an internal war and not an invasion from the north, and the presence of the allied countries here will have no meaning," he said.

Questioned by newsmen, Premier Ky said he had been misunderstood when he said the armed forces would overthrow any government or constitution that did not "live up to the aspirations of the Vietnamese people."

"I have no intention of deciding that Gen. Thieu must win and that if a civilian

U.S. IMAGE DAMAGED

Opinions vary on race riots

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Race violence in U.S. cities has delivered a stinging blow to American prestige in the world. American sources admit that damage has been done, but say it could have been worse.

Even among friends there was a tendency to link the race troubles to U.S. involvement in Vietnam and to comment that a nation unable to preserve peace at home hardly could expect to do so 10,000 miles away.

Enemies of the American system pounced on the eruptions as unexpected gifts to their propaganda. The more extreme following Red China's line, professed to regard the outbursts as heralding the downfall of U.S. democracy.

An Associated Press survey indicates that the race violence, coupled with U.S. problems in coping with Communist guerrilla war in Vietnam, has had a eroding effect on the U.S. image. The extent of the damage depends on the area. It is pronounced in the Middle East and Africa, less noticeable in the advanced countries such as Japan and those of Western Europe.

Red Chinese reaction left the reader with the impression Peking would like to contribute to and even direct U.S. racial violence. Fidel Castro's Communist followers in Latin America made similar noises. Moscow propaganda had a field day with news accounts, pictures, cartoons and pronouncedly hostile comment, typified by Izvestia's unusually long front-page editorial recently, entitled "Shame of America."

"In Vietnam," it began, "villages and towns are burning. In America, Negro ghettos are burning." It went on to link the two situations, calling both struggles for "liberation."

In non-Communist countries normally friendly to the United States there are frequent expressions of sympathy for America's problems and attempts to fathom the root causes. There is obvious puzzlement and fear of contagion. But many a friend is sharply critical, too.

Europe watched U.S. developments uncomfortably.

In France, amid evidence of concern and puzzlement, there was a hint of gloating among those remembering France's sanguinary troubles with Algerians. Some French remarked that Americans bomb Vietnam in the name of liberty but cannot assure liberty in their own cities. Others expressed fear that U.S. tensions would inspire trouble for France. The French import large numbers of colored laborers whose communities are potentially explosive.

Britain eyes the situation warily. The British, too, have been having race troubles. The most prevalent British viewpoint was that both Vietnam and America's race problems had gotten out of hand. Remembering their own difficulties, the British often took the view that people in glass houses should avoid throwing stones.

West Germans expressed sympathy for the United States. But Germans criticized U.S. authorities as well as the rioters, basing the criticism on the realities of Negro life amid U.S. affluence.

In the Middle East, Egypt's propaganda machine treated the story as a boon. Already in full cry against "U.S. imperialism" accused by Arabs of aiding Israel in the recent war—Cairo propaganda represented Negro rioting as the result of savage American attempts to oppress all underdeveloped people. Western diplomats say the violence badly damaged the U.S. image in the Arab East, already willing to believe the worst about America.

"The racist fever which has struck the United States is not confined to its own borders," said the authoritative newspaper Al Ahram. "The current American policy against countries of the third world is governed by this racist fever...."

Ford accuses administration of easing Vietnam air strikes

WASHINGTON (P)—House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan accused President Johnson's administration Tuesday of ordering U.S. airmen to spare most legitimate North Vietnamese targets.

Under these circumstances, he told the House, he opposes sending the additional 45,000 to 50,000 troops Johnson has said will be dispatched to the war zone.

"It is my earnest plea that he will reconsider," Ford concluded his prepared speech.

Its theme, repeated eight times, was "Why are we still pulling our air power punch?"

The White House declined comment on the speech.

Ford, who has generally supported the administration Vietnam, told newsmen his statement is a personal one, but that it is in line with positions taken by the national Republican Coordinating Committee.

His statements about high-level orders hampering air operations, he said, have "absolute confirmation" from sources he cannot reveal.

"I believe that ending the war in Vietnam must have the very highest of national priorities, now," Ford said.

His charges included:

—"High level directives for more than two years prevented American airmen from hitting 5 out of 6 of North Vietnam's key industrial targets." He added that "nearly 90 per cent of the targets in the enemy's war-making industrial base remained unscathed."

—"Only 3 out of every 10 significant military targets have by mid-1967 been struck by U.S. air power."

—"About three-fourths of North Vietnam's petroleum storage targets have not been attacked."

—"Roughly one-third of North Vietnam's total power targets and all enemy hydro-electric generating facilities are 'still forbidden targets by orders from on high.'"

—"Sixty per cent of key targets on the transportation network, all seaport targets and canal locks and most repair shops are off limits."

—"Would Americans believe that even in the category of purely military facilities, North Vietnamese army, navy, air force and defense installations, more than two-thirds of the total targets never had been attacked? That only ammunition dumps have been significantly hit? That almost half of these military targets remained officially forbidden by high-level policy restraints?"

Link between Negroes, Red Latins seen doubtful

Education is the key

The American Negro, it would seem, has become vexed and impatient with the progress being made towards insuring him all the civil rights that go along with citizenship.

The recent riots, in part, and the ominous warnings of all-out rebellion preached by H. Rap Brown and Stokely Carmichael are significant indications that promises and platitudes of politicians will not be sufficient.

Because of the suffering and discrimination in the past, most Negroes will not be satisfied with anything but speedy implementation of civil rights laws and edicts.

This week, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights proposed strengthened laws, both civil and criminal, to hasten school desegregation in the South and border states. The six-member commission presented President Johnson and Congress with a 262-page report which said, among other things, that the desegregation of schools since the 1954 Supreme Court decisions has been far too slow.

The commission wants legislation to permit any Negro child and his parents to bring civil action for damages against persons who harass or intimidate them in connection with the child's enrollment at a public school. It proposes that Congress enact legislation to make intimidation, including economic intimidation, a federal crime.

Such legislation would not have a direct effect on the educational problems encountered in the Northern ghettos, but would be useful in the South where the problem of segregated schools still remains unsolved.

It's been 13 years since the Supreme Court made its landmark decision ordering equal education opportunities, and the commission concludes that implementation of desegregation has occurred at a turtle's pace. In essence, a segment of a whole generation has been given less-than-adequate educational opportunities. Consequently, many of these people have been cursed with second-rate job opportunities and living standards.

Obviously, this is a major problem. Mere integration of bodies in a classroom is not sufficient. Vast improvement in the quality of education is mandatory if Negroes are to be given sufficient tools for learning, communicating and obtaining jobs.

As sociologists are quick to point out, this is the area where the breakthrough must come. All the billions of dollars spent in President Johnson's War on Poverty will be wasted if this objective is not attained.

The die-hard social Darwinists who claim that significant changes, such as integration, cannot be rushed have had 13 years to espouse their philosophy.

It appears now that something stronger than mere prompting and pleading is necessary. If it requires civil and criminal suits, as the commission has proposed, then the time is ripe for such action.

As Charles Silberman, journalist and sociologist, has said, concerning the battle for equal rights in America today, the question is not so much what to do, but is there time to do it?

The get together of the redder-than-the-reds Latin-American revolutionaries at Havana (OLAS) achieved a doubtful place in history when its chief publicity came from a youngster named Stokely Carmichael who is neither a Communist nor a Latin, although he insists that he is the genuine article as a revolutionary.

What Castro gave Carmichael, by making him the star of a meeting of the "Organization of Latin-American Solidarity," was a chance to glitter in this supra-revolutionary setting on a hemispheric scale, after having lost his job and much of his standing among American blacks.

What Carmichael gave Castro was a chance to link his Latin-American guerrilla operations with the black ghetto riots in the United States, thus establishing Castro as a double threat to Washington.

I doubt whether either of them got much out of the exchange. The Castro field revolutionaries in the mountains of Venezuela, Colombia, Bolivia, Guatemala, and Peru will not be helped by the declarations of a young American Negro without either an organization or power.

Nor will the task of achieving either Negro identity or power in the United States be helped by having Castro link it with the guerrilla operations in Latin America that are too adventurous even for the Soviet Union.

If Carmichael is trying to say to young American blacks that their hope lies with the little mountain bands in Latin America, and with their capacity to bring down the governments there and enmesh the United States in "new Vietnams," he is cruelly deceiving them. This is the wrong battle for American blacks, at the wrong time, in the wrong place, with the wrong allies.

Wrong or right, the young blacks who have been taking part in the big-city riots have their own grievances and their own problems, which have nothing to do with Castro's drive to prove himself a great revolutionary and extend his power-base from Havana southward, "from Moncada to the Andes," as the Havana posters put it.

The question for the blacks in the big cities is partly how to make a better living, partly how to be cut in on power, but mainly it is a question of identity—who they are and with what and whom they belong.

The riots are intelligible, but not intelligent. Even less intelligent would be any adventure, like Carmichael's, to link the American Negro cause with the movements.

True, there are a few young Negro leaders—H. Rap Brown is one—who see themselves as starting a guerrilla war inside the big American cities, and there may seem to be a linkage between this guerrilla concept and that of the mountain guerrillas to the South. But this is playing with words, instead of being serious about race and class, about nations and power and societies.

The real identity question for American blacks is in what sense they are blacks, in what sense they are Americans, for they must be both in a full and healthy sense. Their problems will be resolved when they feel black with pride, and when they feel American with the hope and intent of helping to fashion an American society in which they can find their rightful place.

Every minority group has had this problem, although it is harder when there is a badge of color.

Slight as is the chance that there will ever be a Castro takeover of the South or Central-American republics, there is even less chance that there will ever be a Castro-Negro takeover of the United States. This is the stuff of the sheerest fantasy.

If the American black wants to go back to the roots of his black cultural identity he can find them in Africa, although even there he will have to distinguish between what a black majority was able to do in liberating itself and capturing power and what he can do in his own country as a member of a black minority.

The American black can find in Africa a new pride in what black people can do as masters of their own majority destinies, and a linkage with his ethnic and cultural past. He can find in many Latin-American countries, including Cuba, better examples of whites and blacks living together than in his own.

But his political and cultural future is in America and nowhere else. On the question of whether the American black wants to belong to America, and fashion America closer to his desire, there can be only one answer—and it is not Carmichael's or Brown's, nor Castro's.

When the riot commission, at its Washington hearings, asked Edgar Hoover whether there had been a political plot in the riots they asked the wrong question. Of course there had been no plot. The real point is that, once the riots have taken place, there are movements that want to make use of them. Castro's is one, but he will not succeed.

As for the left-wing student groups in Latin-American countries, they have no occasion to rejoice in the black riots to the North of them. For their consequence is bound to be not that the United States will move leftward but that the recoil against violence of every sort will alienate many Americans from the necessary tasks of doing what has to be done in the cities.

Freedom of speech a privilege

To the Editor:

The means Mrs. Paul Reichert suggests (Thurs., Aug. 3) to perpetuate freedom in America pose a greater threat to freedom than any "Reds" or "sycophants" (her usage, not mine).

She maintains that the communists operate "under the pretext of free speech." Pretext. It seems that freedom of speech is a privilege for the majority but only a pretext for dissenters.

She insists "that our children are given an education that will make them useful citizens" and that we "keep a finger on what is being taught in our schools." Whose finger? Mrs. Reichert's? President Johnson's?

Lacking Mrs. Reichert's poetic ability, I prefer to paraphrase a "sycophant" of thirty years ago, Clarence Darrow:

"If today you can take a thing and make it a crime to teach it in the schools, tomorrow you can make it a crime to teach it in the church. And next year you may ban books and newspapers. If you can do one you can do the other.

"Ignorance is ever busy and needs feeding; and after a while, it is setting man against man and creed against creed until with flying banners and beating drums we are marching backward to the glorious ages of the sixteenth century."

More likely than an epitaph "Under the dark shadows of sickle and hammer" reading "Here lies freedom. . . Felled by apathy, corruption and greed," the epitaph will read in the shadow of McCarthy's distorted replica of the stars and stripes: "Here lies freedom. . . Felled by ignorance, intolerance and bigotry."

Romney, GOP governors to discuss racial discord

ALBANY, N.Y., (AP)—Gov. Romney will meet with Republican governors in New York City Thursday to discuss an "action program" drafted by New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to deal with urban racial disturbances.

Other governors who indicated they would attend were John Love of Colorado, Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland, John H. Chafee of Rhode Island, Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania, John A. Volpe of Massachusetts and Nils A. Boe of South Dakota.

Rockefeller, chairman of the Policy Committee of the Republican Governors' Association, dispatched meeting notices that declared:

"The American people are deeply concerned. Time is of the essence in terms of both effective action to preserve law and order and effective action to strike at the basic causes of human deprivation in the slum areas of our nation."

Rockefeller also sent sugges-

Fulbright: Viet war hurts domestic life

HONOLULU (AP)—Sen. J. W. Fulbright said Tuesday the Vietnam war is "poisoning and brutalizing our domestic life" with the result that "the Great Society has become a sick society."

America, the Arkansas Democrat told the American Bar Association, is fighting a two-front war: a war "for America's soul" in the streets of Newark and Detroit.

It is winning neither, he said in a prepared address, and "each war feeds on the other."

"Not only does the Vietnam war divert human and material resources from our festering cities; not only does it foster the conviction on the part of slum Negroes that their country is different to their plight," Fulbright said.

"In addition the war feeds the idea of violence as a way of solving problems."

The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee added: "If, as Mr. Rusk tells us, only the reign of bombs can bring Ho Chi Minh to reason, why should not the same principle apply at home?"

The thrust of Fulbright's thesis was that the "two wars" are related, not in a direct way, perhaps, but "in a subtler, moral and qualitative way that is no less real for being intangible."

And, he contended, the nation does not have the resources to win both.

"Administration officials tell us that we can indeed afford both Vietnam and the Great Society, and they produce impressive statistics of the gross national product to prove it," he said.

"The statistics show financial capacity but they do not show a moral and psychological capacity."

"They do not show how a President preoccupied with bombing missions over North and South Vietnam can provide strong and consistent leadership for the renewal of our cities."

"They do not show how a Congress burdened with war costs and war measures, with emergency briefings and an endless series of dramatic appeals, with anxious constituents and a mounting anxiety of their own, can tend to the workaday business of studying social problems and legislating programs to meet them."

Vietnam and Detroit, he said, are making conflicting and incompatible demands upon traditional American values.

The question, he added, is "not whether it is possible to engage in traditional power politics abroad and at the same time to perfect democracy at home, but whether it is possible for us Americans, with our particular history and national character, to combine morally incompatible roles."

House GOP rewrites LBJ's anti-crime bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Recent urban rioting loomed large Tuesday as House Republicans rewrote most of President Johnson's bill to fight crime by taking key authority from the attorney general and giving it to the states.

Anti-riot provisions, and an extra $25 million to train local police for riot control, were inserted as virtually the entire bill was rewritten before the House passed it and sent it on to the Senate.

The roll call vote on final passage was 377 to 23.

A series of nonrecord votes brought one victory after another for a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats as an apparently dispirited Democratic leadership looked on. Late in the day, Democratic leaders finally rallied their forces and won one test.

This was a 111-108 vote against a proposal by Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., who wanted to bring the $50 million measure up to $90 million, rather than to the $75 million level proposed by Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich. O'Hara's amendment then carried on a voice vote.

The bill's major revision came when the House voted for an amendment then carried on a voice vote.

The bill's major revision came when the House voted for an amendment offered by Rep. William T. Cahill, R-N.J., to turn over the bulk of the funds to the states, provided they put together a comprehensive plan with which to fight crime. The administration bill bypassed the states and would give Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark the authority to pass out the funds on the basis of applications by local governments, and states.

The Cahill amendment was adopted by a 188-86 nonrecord vote after the House had accepted 189 to 96 a proposal by MacGregor to give "highest priority" to programs for detection, prevention and control of civil disorders and organized crime.

CUT IN BUDGETS

Money scarce
in state schoolsBy NORM SPERLING
State News Staff Writer

Michigan's state supported colleges and universities faced money shortages this fiscal year when the state legislature severely cut back the colleges' proposed budgets.

A common complaint uniformly made by the colleges affected is that they are forced to raise tuitions and fees because of the cutback. They cite demands of non-academic employees for pay raises and faculty salaries that must be raised to remain competitive as reasons for the hikes.

This table was compiled to see what the actual figures are:

It illustrates that: --Faculty salaries have been cut at MSU, Grand Valley and Central, but have been increased substantially elsewhere. The cuts are in average salaries, not for specific people. Higher-paid faculty members are promoted or leave, while their replacements are paid less than they would be if the school had enough money.

--The budget cuts this year were quite large, and the corresponding increase in tuition was sizeable throughout the state. Three governing boards have not yet decided next year's tuition or room-and-board costs, but the upward trend is obvious.

--There is a rough correlation between the number of out-of-state students and the size of the school, and a closer one between the number of out-of-state students and the amount their tuition was raised this year.

--Faculty salary is highest at the largest schools, lowest at the middle-sized institutions and average at the colleges with less than 10,000 enrollment.

MSU is highest in resident tuition (at $500, it charges more than any other state school except the University of Vermont), as well as out-of-state tuition and enrollment.

Michigan State is second highest in the state in faculty salaries, appropriations and requests, with the University of Michigan being the highest. Room and board expenses are comparable at all schools.

Pill refusal spawns student stir

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) -- University of Iowa freshman Joel Whitaker's protest over lack of contraceptives for his girl will be a short one, it appeared today.

Whitaker, 20, of Iowa City, said Sunday he would refuse to pay his August bill at the university because its student health service refused to prescribe contraceptive pills for his fiancée.

In a letter to the student newspaper, he said: "I ask them which is worse: an unmarried girl taking birth control pills or an unwanted pregnancy or abortion?"

But by Monday, Whitaker said he will pay the bill before he registers for the fall semester next month. He called his action a "token protest."

If he refused to pay, it appeared unlikely the university would allow him to enroll in the fall or transfer the credits he already has earned. Whitaker said a university physician, Dr. Pauline Moore, refused to prescribe a birth control pill because of a school policy against prescribing them for unmarried women.

Folks foul butterflies

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)--A Portland State College professor says butterflies and people cannot live together.

"You can't have progress and a continuing healthful atmosphere for butterflies in the same area," contends biologist Ralph Macy. "One or the other has to go."

E.L. human relations group adds 'U' branch

East Lansing's Human Relations Commission has attempted to bridge the gap between students and city residents with a university relations committee composed of an MSU professor and student.

The committee resulted from new organization of the commission recently initiated by newly-elected chairman Robert L. Moreland. Moreland replaces David Berlo, chairman of the MSU Communications Dept.

Headed by Clinton T. Cobb, coordinator of the graduate student affairs office, the committee

RECORD HIGH IN U.S.

Seasonal jump pushes employed to 76.2 million

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Some 76.2 million Americans were working in July, more than ever before in the United States, the Labor Department reported Tuesday.

At the same time, some 3.25 million Americans in the civilian labor force were unemployed.

The unemployment rate was 3.9 per cent, in the same range it has been for the last year and a half. It was 4 per cent in June and 4 per cent at the end of 1965.

The labor force has increased with the steady rise of the population. Larger numbers of teenagers working this summer have also boosted the total. The June total of 75.4 million was the previous high. In July, 1966 the figure was 74.7 million.

This July, a traditional high employment month, employment increased more than usual, said Harold Goldstein, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Government and miscellaneous services led the increase. All sectors except manufacturing showed small increases.

Despite a seasonally adjusted decline of 40,000 in manufacturing, the department said, "indicators of future activity point to a strengthening of demand."

Some 10.8 million youths between 16 and 21 years of age were working this summer, some 400,000 more than last year. But more youths were seeking jobs,

Explosions rip oil refinery in Louisiana

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) -- Two powerful explosions and 13 smaller blasts shattered portions of the Cities Service Co. oil refinery today, injuring 14 men and causing extensive property damage in downtown Lake Charles. Four workmen were reported missing.

An estimated 50 heavy plate glass store windows were blown out when the first blast erupted at 4:45 a.m., touching off a fierce fire amid the complex of refining towers and storage tanks.

The hazard of continuing explosions was made worse by the lack of power during the early morning hours. The company powerhouse was rendered inoperative by the force of the major blasts, and firefighters lacked sufficient water to cool off neighboring high pressure storage tanks and refining units.

Referring to a large refining unit used to produce high octane products, one spokesman said: "It will level a quarter of a mile if it goes."

The company quickly cut off the flow of crude oil into the refinery from Sour Lake, Tex., and as each hour passed the danger of further damage lessened. Foam was pumped into sewer lines to block the fire from spreading to oil which spilled into drainage ducts.

The series of explosions was started by a leak in a fuel line, a company spokesman said.

MYRIAD OF PROGRAMS

Lindsay aims to aid slums

NEW YORK (AP) -- New York's Mayor John V. Lindsay makes a regular practice of walking through slum areas and talking with residents.

But one Harlemite complained, "Walking through here making pals isn't going to help. This is a whole lot of fanfare and we don't need fanfare. We need action."

Lindsay sometimes wanders through two or three slum areas in one day.

On one recent excursion he covered the Corona section of Queens, the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, East Harlem and the South Bronx--widely scattered areas in a city with 6,000 miles of streets spread over 365 square miles.

The night before, he was in Bedford-Stuyvesant, known to some as the "Harlem Across the River." When rioting began in Negro Harlem in 1964, it jumped the river quickly into Bedford-Stuyvesant.

"Man, I want to work," a Negro told the mayor. And Lindsay wrote down his name and address.

On one walk, a Puerto Rican leaped out of a second story window to shake the mayor's hand. And Lindsay leaped over the hood of a car to talk to him.

A man complained that he couldn't get books to fill his South Bronx library. "You'll be contacted on this," Lindsay promised.

There is another facet to "The Lindsay Tactic," aimed at the city's youth: "Keep them so busy during the day and evening that they're too tired at night to do anything but go home to sleep."

When Lindsay found two children's clubhouses in the South Bronx short of furniture and books, he filled the shortages. When he went back to see how the children were getting along, they thanked him with fresh peaches.

The slum communities also are being treated to free first-run movies on street corners. The motion picture industry donated the films and mobile equipment. A union projectionist donated his time. When the advertisements say, "Cat Ballou now showing on 102nd Street," they mean right on the street.

The New Symphony Orchestra performed Handel's "Water Music," on Pier 17 at the Fulton

Fish Market, and a cigarette company donated $15,000 for a city-wide tennis tournament.

He is forming a business-church-union coalition to assist slum businesses, and a Mobile Action Team to listen to complaints and recommend action on them.

Council plans for harmony

East Lansing Councilmen suggested possible confrontations between city officials and MSU student leaders this fall at the council's meeting Monday night.

Herb Ashley, executive director of the East Lansing Chamber of Commerce, read a letter to the council asking for improved "town and gown" relations and any ideas for "erasing tensions that have resulted in past years."

Councilman William B. Brookover proposed meetings with student government leaders. Mayor Gordon Thomas cited the "town-gown" liaison committee suggested by ASMSU last year, and said no action has yet been taken to permanently establish this committee.

Thomas said he also favored meeting with students and thought this type of contact would help improve MSU-East Lansing relations.

"The more communication there is between two groups, the better the relations will be," he said.

Ashley said one idea suggested by residents was sponsoring a giant Christmas Card decorating contest. Students would create huge cards for display on Grand River Avenue.

The Council also scheduled a public hearing for Sept. 18 to consider vacating the east-west alley between 143 and 151 Bogue Street, next to Farmhouse fraternity. The extra space would be used for parking.

Bill Kostick, secretary of the Human Relations Commission, presented the commission's new brochure explaining recent ordinances and policies.

Councilman Mary Sharp suggested distributing copies of the brochure to foreign students on campus.

Bubba Smith had two problems facing him after he left Friday's College All-Star Game in Chicago --winning a berth on the Baltimore Colts' starting defensive team and a $20,000 suit.

The two-time Spartan All-American had reported to the Colts' camp in Winchester, Mass., Saturday just two days before Celebrities Investment Management Co. (CIMCO) had filed a suit against him for non-payment of a commission on his estimated $200,000 contract with the Colts.

CIMCO, which is a Washington D.C., firm specializing in managing finances for celebrities alleged in a U.S. District Court Monday that Smith violated provisions of a three-year contract, with the firm.

Smith was given two days to show cause why a $20,000 lien against his assets should not be granted by a federal judge.

CIMCO said that Smith had agreed to make the firm his sole agent for negotiations for 10 per cent. The suit alleges that Smith was represented by another firm at his signing with the Colts last June.

Smith claims that he had not contacted CIMCO to negotiate for him, with professional teams. Instead, Smith said he signed with Pro Sports, Inc., of New York, to handle his negotiations.

"We are the firm that negotiated the contract with the Colts," a representative for Pro Sports said.

"We still are taking care of his negotiations and his other business matters. As far as we are concerned the suit has no legal basis."

The Pro Sport representative said that it has been handling negotiations with Smith for three years.

"We contacted Bubba this morning," the Pro Sports representative said, "and he said he has not been informed of the suit."

"If he is sued we will advise him on matters. I presume the Colts will also aid him legally."

Bubba has continued working out with the Colts in their training camp.

The 6-7, 285-pound rookie has been switched to defensive tackle from his defensive end position with the Spartans.

"This is where we need him the most," said the Colts General Manager Harry Holmes. "He could play end, but he'll help us more at tackle."

Holmes said that he saw Smith in the All-Star Game and was firmly impressed with his performance. Smith was named the All-Star's most valuable player.

"Nothing really surprised us about what Bubba did," Holmes said. "We've seen him in other college games down south and in the North-South game. We know he is one of the great athletes to come along in some time."

Reports that Smith was upset over the cutting of his brother, Willie Ray, from the Colts was confirmed by Holmes.

Smith was reported by a Baltimore writer to have said before the All-Star game that he would like to be traded by the Colts if his brother was cut from the squad.

"He was disappointed that his brother was cut but he said that all he wants to do is play for us," Holmes said.

Baltimore Coach Don Shula didn't comment on whether he had a problem with Smith over the cutting of Willie Ray.

"He's in camp working with the team," Shula said. "We're very happy to have him here. That's my only comment."

Warriors win suit against Barry

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) -- A superior court judge Tuesday upheld the validity of the National Basketball Assn.'s controversial

Lucas cut by pros for 2nd time

Ex-Spartan defensive man Harold Lucas was cut Tuesday by the Pittsburgh Steelers, the second team which has cut him since his return to pro football.

Drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals after an outstanding season at MSU in 1965, Lucas walked out of last year's summer training camp, saying he had no desire to compete professionally.

Last June Lucas announced he would like to try out for the Cardinals again, and later signed a contract with the club.

The Cardinals cut Lucas in the early part of practice and then optioned him on waivers to Pittsburgh.

The Steelers cut five other players and Lucas to get down to the 56 player limit.

option clause in a ruling which knocked the props from under the fledgling American Basketball Association.

Judge Robert J. Drewes, in ruling for the San Francisco Warriors in their suit against star Rick Barry, said the NBA's option clause was legal and he was satisfied that Barry was bound to the Warriors for one more year's service.

Barry, the NBA's top scorer last season, jumped the Warriors on June 20, signing a three-year contract with the Oakland Oaks of the New ABA. He contended at the time that his contract with the Warriors had run out after one year and he was free to negotiate for himself.

The NBA's option clause binds a player to a second year of service even if he disagrees with his contractual terms. To free himself of the obligation, though, the player must play out the option year.

In ruling for the Warriors, Judge Drewes granted them a temporary injunction which restrains Barry from playing for anyone else except San Francisco during the 1967-68 year.

The Arabs in the eyes of the U.S. rulers are but colored people who have no right to enjoy the wealth of their countries or reap the benefits."

Americans in Africa express concern about the harm done to the U.S. image there. If Nigeria is a barometer, there has been a strong anti-American reaction. A recent full-page Lagos Daily Times article quoted Kenneth Brown, American Negro lecturer at Lagos University, as saying "every American is brainwashed into doubting that the Negro is equal in any way to white people."

Among nonwhite people of non-Communist Asia, the impact seemed less than what might have been expected.

U.S. Embassy sources in Japan credited Japanese newsmen in the United States with a good job of backgrounding the roots of the U.S. racial situation. At the same time, there seemed a lack of major public interest. This was reflected in a compilation of July letters to the mass circulation Asahi Shimbun.

Among more than 3,000, not one discussed U.S. racial violence. In Singapore and Malaysia, while comment was mostly restrained amid banner headline play, the newspapers in the Chinese, Malay and Indian languages all blamed the rioting on discrimination in the United States.

Although some sources have reported rising anti-Americanism in the Philippines, Communist propaganda use of the U.S. situation seemed to have small effect. The reaction appearing on the surface was one of shock and sorrow. The Manila Daily Mirror noted that while Vietnam was not a forefront factor in the U.S. racial crisis now, it might reach that stage, and "the implications of civil disobedience by blacks over the question of military service are frightful to contemplate."

In Communist Eastern Europe, the harshest criticism came from East Germany, Bulgaria and Hungary, heavily pounding on Moscow themes of "liberation" struggle, police barbarity and ruthless terror.

Thieu

wins we will overthrow him," he said.

"If any future government failed in their task I'm sure the people themselves will stand against them."

He said this included the Thieu-Ky government, if elected.

"As a candidate and as a politician, normally I must not say such things in public, particularly when there are so many foreign correspondents in this country," he added, "but the fact that I said it proves once more that I am honest with myself and that I believe that I understand the aspirations of my 15 million countrymen."

U-M tuition

ing the student aid fund to offset the difference in scholarships awarded last year. U-M officials announced that they would still be able to admit all the students anticipated.

With the approval of increased student financial aid, President Harlan Hatcher expressed confidence that the U-M would be able to respond to "any demonstrated need arising from increased fees."

The Regents transferred about $500,000 from the general fund to student aid, along with $150,000 from gifts and grants.

Tuition rates for the U-M's medical and law schools were also increased.

In the medical school, in-state fees were raised from $820 to $900 yearly and out-of-staters from $1,600 to $1,900, while the law school went from $520 to $620 for in-staters and from $1,200 to $1,500 for out-of-staters.

U-M officials foresee no serious administrative problems, except perhaps, in the area of student loans.

'U' College repeat finals

Students repeating final examinations for University College courses must sign up no later than Friday.

Permission to take the exams may be obtained from the Assistant Dean of the University College, 170 Bessey, or the Student Affairs Office at 109 Brody, 533 Wonders, G36 Hubbard.

But Czechoslovakia in August moved the situation to back pages and comment was sparse. Romania failed to join the chorus to harsh condemnation.

In Poland, the official press made heavy use of headlines like: "America Aflame" and "Black Storm over U.S.A." But among the public, much of it pro-American, there was puzzlement and sorrow. A typical comment from one Warsaw citizen: "What the hell do those Negroes want? Isn't it enough for them to live in the United States?"

Apart from Communists, Latin America's reaction in many areas was one of embarrassment and puzzlement, but U.S. sources conceded the American image had been hurt.

Fidel Castro's followers moved to make the most of it in the hemisphere. Castro has been holding a Latin-American "solidarity" congress of extreme, violence-seeking leftists. Among those attending was Stokely Carmichael, the American Black Power advocate. To the cheers of the extremists, Carmichael said in a speech that "it is obvious that guerrilla warfare must begin" in the United States.

When an NSA investigation or project is announced that might interest someone in ASMSU, that person's name is sent to the NSA group to get the two in contact with each other.

ASMSU's contributions to the SGIS files come when Miss Twitchell compiles information on the ways various matters are handled here. The Experimental Colleges will be the focus of some investigation and discussion before that report is sent to Washington; the overhaul of the student judiciary on campus will also be a major report to the SGIS.

One new service of the NSA is called Alliance for Campus Talent (ACT). ACT will try to make it easier for campuses to get top performing talent for concerts.

Other services include personal insurance for students that can be extended after graduation; the Collegiate Press Service, and a variety of smaller functions.

NSA's Michigan Region voted Sunday to ask the NSA to establish a Vice President for Campus Affairs, to head all the service projects NSA runs. The constitutional amendment needed to accomplish this will be discussed at the Congress next week.

Next: NSA's 20-year history.

Fee refund

In this case the out-of-state student's refund would be $96.50 ($71 plus $25.50).

An in-state student dropping from full-time to 7-9 credits would receive a refund of half the difference between the straight 7-9 credit fee and whatever tuition he had paid; if he had paid $167, he would receive $25.50; if he had paid $130, he would receive $7; if he had paid the minimum $118, he would receive a $1 refund.

Under the old policy any student who dropped from one fee group to another before the fifth week of the term received a flat refund of half the difference between the two fee levels.

In the new system the penalties are equal for both resident and non-resident the first two weeks. After the first two weeks and before mid-term, the in-state student dropping still receives half the difference between the two fee groups.

The out-of-state student also receives half the difference between fee groups (for a drop from full-time to 7-9 credits, a difference of $105, the student receives $52.50), the same as under the old system.

After the fifth week of the term, there are no refunds for anyone.

May said the policy is set up this way to encourage students to do their dropping and adding of courses early.

He said there has been an increase in drops and adds since early enrollment and registration were introduced.

Another official said, however, that only a small number of students would probably be affected by the new policy each term.

An out-of-state student who drops out of school within the first two weeks would receive the actual out-of-state tuition ($233) plus half the difference between full in-state fees, or $83.50—a total of $316.50.

Between the third and fifth weeks, the refund would be $200.

An in-state student dropping out at any point before mid-term would receive as a refund half of whatever fees he had paid.
