

'Dump Johnson' move starts coast-to-coast

News Background

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK — Grass roots movements designed to block renomination of President Johnson in 1968, or to persuade him to abandon the race, are taking shape today in a number of states, coast to coast.

Opposition to the President's policies in Vietnam motivates most of the dissident groups.

Some, as in New York, Illinois, Oregon and New Hampshire, are trying to promote Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York for the Democratic nomination, although Kennedy repeatedly has disavowed their efforts.

Others, backing no specific candidate, plan to challenge Johnson by various methods in presidential primary elections next year. By entering anti-Johnson slates of delegates, they say, they will offer voters the opportunity to register disapproval. Or, in Wisconsin, they can simply vote "no" opposite Johnson's name.

The total size and strength of the "dump Johnson" groups is unclear. The largest however, appear to be in California and New York.

The California Democratic Council, with 33,000 volunteer members, voted recently to oppose pro-Johnson delegates in the 1968 primary with a slate of delegates pledged to make peace in Vietnam.

Dr. Martin Shepard of New York City, national co-chairman of Citizens for Kennedy in '68, said his organization has drives under way in California, Colorado, Illinois, New Hampshire, New York, Nevada, Oregon, South Dakota and Washington state.

In New York City last week, 500 dissident Democrats attended the organizational rally of the Coalition for a Democratic Alternative. Their aim is to elect an anti-Johnson slate of delegates in the New York primary next June.

Leaders of the anti-Johnson groups in some states acknowledge that Democratic party chiefs "are ignoring us," indicating that the regulars are not attaching any great importance to the dissidents at this time.

Said John Burns, chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee, "They will not be large in numbers. All the major party leaders will be working hard for Johnson's re-election."

In Wisconsin, Atty. Gen. Bronson C. LaFollette said the efforts to challenge the President will be "futile, but possibly could be harmful."

The Citizens for Kennedy in '68 is headed in New Hampshire by Eugene Daniel Jr., former mayor of Franklin, who asserts that a Kennedy victory in his state's primary next March 12—the nation's first—will "persuade" Johnson not to seek renomination. "In November and early next year we'll have meetings open to the public, to which all dissident Democrats will be invited, to encourage peace and begin political action to get rid of Johnson," Daniel said.

Many of the state's Democratic chiefs, including Gov. John W. King and Sen. Thomas L. McIntyre, favor Johnson's renomination.

A group calling itself "Concerned Wisconsin Democrats" announced last week it will attempt to defeat Johnson in the state's primary April 2 and send an uncommitted delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

The chairman, Daniel O. Peterson of Eau Claire, is state president of the Americans for Democratic Action, and Democratic chairman in the 10th Congressional District.

"Discontent with the war has really mushroomed," Peterson said. "I'm talking about many county leaders and young Democrats."

In Oregon, another state with a closely watched primary, the Citizens for Kennedy in '68 is headed by Charles O. Porter, a two-term congressman, who was defeated in 1960 and has since failed to win Democratic nomination to the House.

Porter assumes that Kennedy's name will be placed on the ballot by the secretary of state in Oregon. By filing a disclaimer, the senator could have it removed. In that event, Porter said, "We will file a stand-in."

WITHOUT VOTE

Faculty committees get 'interim' grad members

By BEVERLEY TWITCHELL
State News Executive Reporter

Graduate students should be placed on five of the faculty standing committees within the next few weeks.

Non-voting membership to the faculty committees was opened to graduate students last spring when the Academic Council approved the addition of one graduate and one undergraduate student to faculty Educational Policies, Student Affairs, Curriculum, Library and International Programs Committees.

The Office of Advanced Graduate Studies was asked to handle the selection of the graduate students, since there is no student organization representing the 7,661 graduate students at this time.

Students named

Jacob C. Vinocur, associate dean of advanced graduate studies, contacted the deans of 12 colleges and asked them each to submit five names, one per committee. That group of 60 students will meet within the next few weeks to elect from their number the five who will sit with the committees.

Both Vinocur and Milton E. Muelder, dean of advanced graduate studies, expressed regret that the students could not be elected democratically. Thus, until the graduate student organization, which is now in preliminary stages of organization, is capable of handling a democratic election, the students selected under the current process will hold the "interim" positions.

A number of graduate students have complained about the "undemocratic" procedures to Vinocur, Ombudsman James D. Rust, and to Bernard F. Engel, chairman of the Committee on Committees.

The procedure being used to seat graduate students on the committees in interim positions, was established by a newly-formed Graduate Student Welfare Committee, consisting of four members of the Graduate Council. The Graduate Council approved the procedures at a meeting Monday.

The Graduate Council is composed of 20 representatives of the 12 colleges which have graduate programs, and five administrative officers. It serves as an advisory group to the office of advanced graduate programs.

"No one is trying to bulldoze the graduate students," Vinocur said. "We're trying to help them." But he added that "no one can build a good student organization for them," and that the effort must come from the students themselves.

The recommendation to include graduate students on the faculty standing committees came as a surprise to Muelder when it was announced at the June 6 meeting of the Academic Council. Neither Muelder, his staff or graduate students had discussed the question with the Committee on Committees, which made the recommendation.

Engel said the idea was initiated with the Committee on Committees, and was based upon the growing number of graduate students and the growing importance of the graduate school.

Begun in February

The question of student participation on the faculty committees was raised by Provost Howard R. Neville in a speech before the Academic Senate last November. The Committee on Committees was instructed to study the question in February.

In the four-month study which followed representatives of ASMSU, the undergraduate student government, met several times with the committee.

The undergraduate members of the faculty committees were expected to be named soon by the ASMSU Student Board, which has been conducting petitioning and interviewing since early this term.

Draft demonstration

Police shove back 3,500 at induction demonstration

OAKLAND, Calif. — Police shoved back an estimated 3,500 singing and shouting anti-draft demonstrators Tuesday while nine buses unloaded draftees into the Armed Services Induction Center.

Scores of the milling throng, mostly young people, suffered minor injuries before the buses arrived, as flying wedges of officers with night sticks cleared the streets. At least 12 required hospital treatment. A highway patrolman injured his ankle.

More than 25 persons were arrested. Oakland police, Alameda County sheriff's officers and California Highway Patrolmen were directed from a command post set up on the third story of an open-sided parking garage across the intersection from the downtown induction center.

They made it plain they meant business and had their operations precisely planned.

Long before the buses came in sight, officers, moving quickly in double lines and roaring orders over bullhorns, pushed the defiance-shouting demonstrators back at least a block from the center.

The buses stopped two blocks south of the center on Clay Street. A dozen police piled out of the lead bus.

"I want you people to clear the street now," a policeman bellowed.

Demonstrators scurried out of the way as a double line of police marched abreast ahead of the buses. Lines of sheriff's deputies on one side and highway patrolmen on the other formed a protective "U" with a double line of buses on the inside.

Without a halt, the procession moved to the cleared block in front of the induction center. The buses stopped. One by one their doors opened and draftees were directed into the center.

The nearest demonstrators shouted in frustration from 50 yards away, taunting reinforced ranks of officers massed across Clay Street.

Just as swiftly, the buses were backed up, turned on 14th street, a block from the center, and rolled away.

Most of the demonstrators immediately left the area.

Wilson voices belief in U.S. desire for Vietnam peace

LONDON — Prime Minister Harold Wilson declared himself 100 per cent convinced Tuesday of the U.S. government's desire for a Vietnam peace—and warned Hanoi against a power buildup during any new halt in the American bombing of North Vietnam.

The British leader at the same time said his country would be against any American invasion of the Communist North.

British newspapers have reported President Johnson's administration is under pressure to undertake such an invasion. They have publicized congressional expressions of concern that the possibility was under official study.

Wilson said he and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin are ready at anytime to try again to promote peace talks. Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference that brought an end to the French-Indochina war.

Wilson contended, however, it is up to the North Vietnamese government to respond to recent U.S. offers of negotiations.

Wilson addressed some advice to the North Vietnamese: militarily to exploit any one-sided American bombing stand-off would not be "the road to peace."

The prime minister expressed his views on Vietnam and other major issues in an interview with the Associated Press in connection with Wilson's observance of the start of his fourth year in office. A Labor party member, he had been in the opposition for 13 years.

Wilson was asked if his government would expose economic policies when Britain's current application to enter the European Economic Community is examined by the six Common Market members.

"Well, of course, we are always ready to do this," he replied. "We have nothing to hide."

The prime minister nevertheless chided the community's commission for its recent comments on the British economy, saying these had been made "without examination of the real facts" and "ground-level discussion" in London. It was clear he disagrees with the commission's appraisal that Britain's economy is out of balance.

The six Common Market nations are due next week to decide whether to begin negotiating on British entry. President Charles de Gaulle of France, who vetoed a British bid in 1963, has been reviving pressure for the British to settle for associate, rather than full, membership.

NMU faculty demands probe in firing of prof

By LEO ZAINEA
State News Staff Writer

MARQUETTE — The faculty at Northern Michigan University asked Gov. Romney Tuesday to appoint a committee of scholars to investigate the sudden dismissal of a history instructor who had criticized administration policies.

They took the action despite an appeal from interim President Ogden Johnson to wait until next Wednesday when the Board of Control would review the case.

After some heated debate, the faculty split over a resolution to boycott classes until the administration reinstated Robert L. McClellan, a 33-year-old assistant professor of history. About 25 said they would not attend classes anyway.

Meanwhile, student leaders announced they would meet tonight to consider class boycotts and mass demonstrations to protest the firing.

About 40 demonstrators picketed outside the faculty meeting to await their decisions before they determined what action to take this week.

Some faculty members expressed the fear that a total boycott would be too strong, after Johnson assured them the board would reconsider. About 200 attended the meeting. 75 per cent of the faculty.

In what some considered a conciliatory move, they voted instead to punish no student for not attending class, and give no tests. Some said they would devote much of their class time to lectures on academic freedom.

The administration described its reasons Tuesday for the firing, the first public statement it has made since the issue erupted about a month ago.

In a prepared speech, Johnson cited the same issues involving McClellan that many had known since the administration terminated his contract July 28. Heretofore, the university had refused to offer any specific charges. Johnson had said the administration felt "it was in the best interests of the university" to dismiss him.

About a year and a half ago, McClellan in class took issue with the university's four course plan, a series of subjects for freshmen similar to the University College courses at MSU. Since then he has come to accept most of the program, although conceding some shortcomings.

Committee withdraws bid asking Romney to testify

Representative Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, has withdrawn his invitation to Gov. Romney to testify before the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee.

Romney, in a letter to Hays, Monday, accepted the congressman's invitation, saying he felt a full congressional review would be appropriate. Romney said there was a "serious concern about the accuracy and nature of information on Vietnam being made available to the American people by the administration."

Hays, chairman of the subcommittee, said Tuesday that the only concern was whether any State Department personnel had given Romney "false information" on his Vietnam trip. He said that he asked Romney to amplify his brainwashing charges and Romney answered that "he wanted to make a political speech."

Hays told newsmen that Romney himself had "spiked" the brainwashing charge.

Hays later went to the House floor and launched another attack against Romney.

"In view of Gov. Romney's changing positions, I can only conclude that 'Duz' did it or that he took a ride with intensified 'Tide,'" Hays said.

In Lansing, aides to the governor expressed disbelief and seemed to agree that it had the makings of a political trap for the Michigan governor. They did not appear to take Hays' charges seriously.

Romney, on a cruise to the Virgin Islands, was unavailable for comment.

Michigan's Democratic State Party Chairman, Zolton Ferency, openly defecting from administration attitude toward Vietnam, has urged liberal Democrats to rally around a peace candidate to oppose the President's re-nomination in 1968.

In a statement released Tuesday and in a subsequent interview, Ferency charged President Johnson with stifling dissent over the Vietnam war.

Ferency said that a Democratic peace candidate who got into the race soon against the President would serve as a rallying point for liberals, forcing the President to modify his "hard-line" on the war. "My own view is that if a candidate with stature—one that had legitimate support—came forward it might be quite surprising the number that would gather around him," said Ferency. He added that if the President's policy is sound, "he wouldn't have anything to fear."

Ferency was the unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial candidate who lost badly against Romney in 1966. In an interview last January, the 45-year-old attorney is quoted as saying, "Yes, I favor Johnson to head the ticket in 1968. I don't think we have any choice in the matter."

Housing backlash disrupts legislature

LANSING (UPI) -- The bitter beginnings of a white backlash over open housing came Monday night when a dozen suburban Detroit residents were ordered to put down their picket signs or be kicked out of the balcony of the Michigan House of Representatives.

The demonstrators—all white, some Republicans and some Democrats—vowed they would be back. All came from the St. Clair Shores-East Detroit area.

House Speaker Robert E. Waldron, R-Grosse Pointe, bounded up to the balcony just as the evening session was about to begin and sternly told the demonstrators to sit quietly and "listen like normal Americans" or get out.

"We don't allow demonstrations in the balcony," he snapped. "If you wave those signs or even hold them, I'll have to forcibly eject you, and I will do it. We can't allow demonstration. If we do, it will get to be a circus, and it's too much of a circus already."

He then went to the podium to open the session, but interrupted the invocation to order the sergeant-at-arms to remove the signs.

The scene amounted to the only legislative action of the day, as the Senate did not meet and the House adjourned after disposing of routine business.

The group's most outspoken member was Mrs. Madeline Darrow, of St. Clair Shores, who said they had heard there would be a vote on open occupancy Monday night. The bill has not yet been introduced. Mrs. Darrow said she would be back when it came time for debate.

Romney tackles open housing

Gov. Romney finally clarified his stand on open housing last Friday when he voiced his support of a state open housing statute. As many expected, he recommended that the Legislature enact this law at its fall session.

"Nagging doubts persist as to the true nature of the fulfillment of human rights in our state," Romney said. "In no field are these doubts more pervasive than in the field of housing."

It is apparent, as Romney recognized, that a law prohibiting discrimination in housing is no panacea.

The ultimate end to the problem lies in the realm of the individual. Until the individuals in our society are convinced of the validity of the concepts of brotherhood and equality, housing discrimination will most certainly remain.

A law, however, would help to eliminate much of the more blatant discrimination. And even more important, a law providing more than a meager wrist slap for violators can be an effective tool in fighting housing discrimination.

The proposal that Romney has forwarded excepts only two sets of circumstances from jurisdiction.

As in the law recently passed by Lansing, a so-called "tight living" situation, in which the owner is living in part of a duplex and renting the other part, would not come under the law.

The second exception comes when an owner does not resort to "public process." Romney has interpreted "public process" quite liberally. For instance, a person who puts a "for sale" sign in his front yard would be selling by "public process" and subject to the law.

Formerly, Romney had contended that the state did not need an open housing law, since housing discrimination was against the state constitution. But now, either due to a change of heart or because of mounting political pressures, Romney has, characteristically, changed his mind.

--The Editors

Under the constitution, the Michigan Civil Rights Commission is charged "to investigate alleged discrimination against any person because of religion, race, color, or national origin..." The Commission, however, has not had sufficient power or resources to properly deal with the problem of housing discrimination.

By acting promptly on Romney's proposal, the Legislature can strengthen Michigan's stand on open housing and provide the legal means to uphold the principle.

Is the legislature overstepping its bounds?

In a rider to this year's education appropriations bill, the Michigan legislature has apparently extended its power to include active control over university functioning.

Enacting the bill has left the Legislature open to serious charges of overstepping the bounds set for it by the Michigan Constitution.

The lawmakers forbade state colleges and universities from starting any new programs, or expanding any old ones without approval of the Legislature, even if they receive funds for the project from the federal government.

The percentage of out-of-state students is limited to a maximum of 20 percent, and a deduction of $600 per student is made from the appropriation of any school that increases its out-of-state enrollment more than five percent.

Any money received by any school from any source as payment of overhead expenses is treated by the Legislature as a fee received, and is deducted from the school's appropriation.

After the inadequate appropriation forced MSU's trustees to increase revenues from tuition, the House passed a resolution urging the trustees to reverse its ability-to-pay plan.

Without attempting to pass judgment on an extremely complex legal question, it does appear that these regulations do, as the Michigan Constitution states, "infringe on the responsibility and constitutional authority of the governing boards of the institutions of higher education to be solely responsible for the control and direction of all expenditures from the institutions' funds."

While university officials have stated that they can operate within the law, the precedent of constant threatening scrutiny, and the possibility of a stoppage of funds if the legislators disagree with an action, is something that higher education cannot tolerate.

The board of trustees may consider at their Thursday meeting whether Michigan State will participate with 15 other Michigan colleges and universities in a suit to test whether the actions of the legislature are constitutional.

The trustees will, of course, be aware that opposing their source of funds puts them in a delicate situation.

But the serious implications of the legislature's apparent power grabbing, make it imperative that the courts settle this issue as soon as possible.

OUR READERS' MINDS

India today: worse than ever under Britain

To the Editor:

Constructive criticism of one's efforts is always welcome, but when criticism endeavors to "tear down" then it is only natural to reply. I refer to my film program "New Face of India" presented on your Lecture-Concert Series, September 30th which was so disappointing to Sri Surjit Singh Dulai, Assistant Professor of Humanities. Sri Dulai was most correct and within his judgment in that my title did not show many of the "new faces" of his country, but may I take this method to tell him and, no doubt others, why?

It is unfortunate that programs are scheduled years in advance. My brochures were designed months before I went to India and, the title chosen after I was promised full cooperation by the Government of India and Sri S. N. Chib, Director-General, Department of Tourism for India. My itinerary included Bhakara Dam, Tatnagar Tisco works, Rourkela Steel Plant, India's first atomic power plant, Nagarjunasagar Dam and other new developments. This after receiving written permission and approval for my visits to these areas by both the Government of India and GOI Department of Tourism. Unfortunately, my last visit was in 1966, when India was on a war basis with Pakistan and Red China. I was assured in New Delhi by government officials there would be no difficulty in my obtaining motion pictures of these industries but after days of travel and delay I could not get within miles of these projects. In India, and Sri Dulai is quite aware, there is a lack of communication and official permits written on a piece of paper is just that to local officials—a piece of paper which most of them cannot read.

India's determination to "show the world" how she can develop modern industries has brought about two of her major ills (Sri Dulai does give me credit when he writes, "Mr. Moyer did try very hard indeed to point out..."). Had India worked as hard to build fertilizer plants and modernize her agriculture methods instead of building steel mills for armament and huge dams whose cost will keep her paying interest for generations to come and give up her centuries

Not from ACLU

To the Editor:

For the second time I find my name mentioned in your newspaper and again I am embarrassed. The Oct. 11 issue quotes me as reciting the Michigan Public Accommodations Law. This I could not possibly do. Once again I point out to you that I am not an attorney. I am not representing anyone and most important of all, I do not speak for the American Civil Liberties Union.

My chief concern in this matter of what appears to be a series of articles (how many more of these have there been that I have not seen), is not for the protection of my non-existent legal reputation, but for the reputation of the ACLU. The organization just does not operate in this manner.

If you would care to do a series of articles on just what the ACLU is and what it can and cannot do, I suggest that you contact the chairman of the Lansing Branch, Dr. Harold Hart.

If you are so anxious to put my name in print, where were you last year when I was trying to get elected to public office? George L. Griffiths

Affectionately,

JB

And it was only recently, when the problem became acute due to a lack of space in my Gripe Box and my gripes went from "When..." to "When already..." to "For God's sake, WHEN..." that the University did something about it.

They created an ombudsman.

Everybody at MSU knows by now the function of the ombudsman. He is the man who handles student problems and resolves student hang-ups. In other words, he is a walking, talking Gripe Box.

Last week I emptied all the gripes into a grocery bag and went to see him in his office in the Morrill Hall basement.

"Come in, come in," said the smiling man behind the desk. "My name is Rust. What can I do for you?"

Obviously, the man was on my side. I told him just to sit back and take notes. I pulled the first three-by-five card out of the grocery bag and began to read: "This University provides inadequate parking for on-campus students."

"Oh, I agree," he said sympathetically, "but that's out of my hands. I hear Public Safety is doing all they can, though. You should see them about it. Meanwhile, let's hear another one—maybe about stifling Academic Freedom or something."

I reached in again. "Students shouldn't have to pay to see home football games." "Right again," said Dr. Rust. "I was talking to Biggie only the other day, but he just doesn't listen to the faculty. Maybe if you got some students together—Haven't you got anything in there about pregnancy, or our draft policy, or..."

"The buses are too expensive and too crowded." "See Henry Jolman. Now, what about..."

"Grill prices are too high."

"That's a problem for Food Service." "MSU should abolish Women's Hours." --oops, that was one of last year's gripes. Now I was getting flustered.

Dr. Rust took the grocery bag. "I'll look through all of these," he said, "and you can be sure I'll do everything I can. After all, that's what I'm here for—to help the students. Thanks for stopping by."

It's really a lot nicer having an ombudsman instead of a Gripe Box. Now at least I've got someone to talk to. Dr. Rust is a nice man and he smiles a lot. Besides, I'm saving a fortune on three-by-five cards.

Declaration of life

To the Editor:

Pregnancy is a declaration of life, not a scale to measure the morality or immorality of women. Concerning the MSU policy of un-wed, pregnant coeds, I would like to say that requiring such a person to stop her education in order to incubate is utterly old-fashioned (comparable to calling a woman's menstrual period her "sick-time" or having her stay in bed). Asking a pregnant woman to stop her education is uncalled for, unless the particular person sees continuation as harmful to her health as suggested by her physician. I believe this to be true based on personal experience. I continued class-work at MSU as an un-wed, pregnant co-ed and took a final exam 3 days before the birth of my child. I received a "B" in that 5 credit course. The term prior to that, I carried a full-credit load of 18 credits and ended that term with a grade point average of 3.4. I also worked two part-time jobs during the final stages of pregnancy besides taking the 5 credit course to which I referred.

I also believe that reporting such a situation to parents who may not understand would only complicate an already difficult position for such a person.

As far as going to Olin for medical help, any pregnant woman in her right mind should have a private physician care for her needs.

And finally, concerning the statement that such a person becomes a social outcast simply is not true. I dated regularly (including dancing, dinner dates and horse-back riding). I really discovered the true meaning of friendship by this experience, one of the most significant discoveries of my life.

PROFESSORS AGREE

'Serious' negotiations predicted for Ford-UAW

United Auto Workers (UAW) and Ford may accomplish some serious bargaining after a month of just skirmishing, according to Russell W. Allen, professor of labor and industrial relations. Citing "more coordination in the industry" in this year's auto labor negotiations, B. E. O'Beirne, professor of economics, also surveyed the strike situation in a recent interview. O'Beirne said that the perspective has changed because Ford has been receiving support from Chrysler and General Motors.

A labor arbitrator on several occasions since World War II, O'Beirne was Public Panel chairman for the National War Labor Board. Allen was Education Director for the Industrial Union Dept. of the A.F.L.-C.I.O. from 1957 to 1963. "Both the UAW and Ford felt that a strike was almost inevitable and gauged their actions accordingly," Allen said. "The company waited until the eleventh hour before making any offers and Reuther held out for his stated demands."

Ford was selected as the first strike target because it is more vulnerable, he said. It is still number two in the low priced field and it is smaller than the giant, General Motors.

He added that Ford employs about 160,000 workers, while General Motors employs about 400,000.

There has never been a strike at Ford which has lasted more than 14 days, Allen said. The company has to decide which is more important: to get into production or hold out in what they feel are unfair union demands, he explained.

The nature and extent of the backing that Ford is receiving from Chrysler and General Motors is uncertain, Allen said, regarding Reuther's claim of a conspiracy of the "Big Three" against the union.

If a guaranteed annual income is achieved in this year's bargaining, it will be the first instance in which blue collar workers were put on salary, Allen said.

A salary guarantee wouldn't cost the company very much and it would give Walter P. Reuther something to claim, Allen added.

Professor O'Beirne said that Reuther wants to uphold his leadership image to the public and to other labor unions.

He added that Reuther is emerging as one of the most prominent labor leaders in the U.S.

Reuther wants a big package to satisfy all kinds of people, the younger workers want more money, the older workers want a better pension plan and the skilled workers have to be satisfied, O'Beirne said.

The chances of Reuther's getting the same package ultimately agreed upon by a Ford settlement with General Motors and Chrysler is open to speculation, O'Beirne said; however, in the past they have followed suit.

Both O'Beirne and Allen agreed that there is no way Reuther can lose. The company is making profits and the workers know and the company knows.

They agreed that Reuther will receive very close to the six per cent yearly wage increase that he is demanding.

Dorm competition in fall blood drive, goal of 1,812 pints

The Spartan Women's League and Alpha Phi Omega sorority will sponsor their annual fall term blood drive Nov. 13-17 at Demonstration Hall.

"Christmas in November" is the theme for this year's drive. A goal of 1,812 pints of blood has been set by the committee.

In addition to competition between on and off campus living units for the most blood donated, the committee hopes to have house competition in the individual dormitories.

Ice palace

The MSU ice arena is a popular recreational spot for students, faculty and staff. The rink is also used for ice skating classes as well as for hockey games.

Ice palace replaces MSU polo grounds

Any polo ponies that frolicked in the Demonstration Hall arena 25 years ago would hardly recognize it now.

The arena, once used for polo games, 4-H exhibitions and ROTC drills, is now covered by 19,000 square feet of ice.

To keep the ice in good condition, the rink is resurfaced 10 times a day with a "zamboni" machine. Norris O. Wold, arena manager, described the process. "Each time the arena is shaved a small fraction by the machine it also distributes soft water onto the ice."

The floor is chilled by refrigeration units in the basement. Fifteen miles of cooling pipe are imbedded in the all-purpose concrete floor.

According to Wold, approximately 75 per cent of people using the ice are students.

Five beginning figure-skating classes are offered in the physical education department, and 229 students are enrolled. Instruction is given by professional skaters Beryl Williamson and Donald Stewart.

Skaters come from all over the world to visit the rink in the summer for a nine-week training session for amateur competition. This is one of the largest summer figure-skating schools in the world.

"Our ice is used from seven in the morning to twelve at night. This is not enough time to accommodate all the different types of skating," Wold said.

After 10:30 p.m. the ice is rented to people to practice skating for hockey or figure skating.

"We try to encourage many more of MSU students to take part in public skating," Wold said.

The rink is open for public skating from 8:30 to 10:15 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and from 3 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Admission is 50 cents per student.

For students interested in skating, a group of skating enthusiasts meets on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Those who sign up have eight weeks of ice time and instruction for $12.

The ice is also used by outside groups. The Lansing Skating Club meets on Monday nights and lessons are given to children on Saturdays.

Conspiracy trial close to verdict

MERIDIAN, Miss. (P) — After calling 114 witnesses, the defense rested its case today in the conspiracy trial of 18 white men charged in the deaths of three young civil rights workers in 1964. The case could go to the jury by Wednesday.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Harold Cox opened the nine-day-old trial to rebuttal testimony from the Justice Department, to be followed by final arguments.

The defense rested in its third day of testimony after taking less than an hour to produce 16 witnesses who testified to the character of several of the defendants.

The men on trial include the Neshoba County sheriff, the sheriff-elect, a deputy and a Laurel, Miss., man identified as the imperial wizard of the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

They are charged with conspiring to violate the civil rights of three young civil rights workers who were shot to death during Mississippi's troubled racial summer of 1964.

Earlier, defense attorney Travis Buckley of Laurel said, "It could possibly go to the jury late today. But I doubt it. The jury will probably get the case Wednesday morning."

Frank J. Herndon, who sat through the trial in his pajamas and robe, sought mistrial in his case on the basis that he was under medication while recovering from a stomach operation.

Sarah Lou Barnes, his nurse, testified she took him back to the hospital every night after court recessed and had been administering narcotics to him.

The defense renewed its requests for mistrials and a separate trial for each defendant. Cox overruled the motion and said, "I just don't know how anyone could try a conspiracy case separately without involving prejudice."

Gophers have QB problem

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

Minnesota Coach Murray Warmath is playing a game called quarterback, quarterback, who'll be the quarterback?

The winner of the game may also determine the winner of the upcoming football contest between Michigan State and the Golden Gophers this Saturday at Minneapolis.

Quarterback is usually the key position on any football team, but Warmath still hasn't found the man he can trust with the full time responsibilities of moving the offense.

The Minnesota offense has been impressive in only one game, but the Gopher defense has been strong enough to propel the team to three victories in four games.

The Gophers defeated Utah 13-12, Southern Methodist 23-3 and lost to Nebraska 7-0 before winning 10-7 over Illinois last week.

Minnesota ended the spring practice session with four quarterbacks and things haven't improved. Letterman Curt Wilson and Larry Carlson are still battling it out with junior Ray Stephens and sophomore Phil Hagen.

Wilson is a good runner, good enough for Warmath to play him at halfback for most of this season. But the Gophers have been getting good running from sophomores, and Wilson can now be moved to quarterback, where he played last year.

Wilson worked as the first string quarterback Monday. He lead the Gophers in rushing last year, and is considered dangerous on short passes, but not extremely accurate on the long "bombs."

Warmath has said he prefers a running quarterback, and Wilson is the best runner of the four.

Hagen came through in a reserve capacity against Utah and Southern Methodist, and has shown lots of poise for a sophomore. He also played the last half of the Illinois game, which prompted Duffy Daugherty to speculate that he would start against the Spartans.

At 6-2, 185, Hagen is a good runner, and like Wilson can throw well. But he isn't known as a threat to throw long.

Stephens is the brother of former Gopher All-America quarterback Sandy Stephens who led Minnesota to the Rose Bowl in 1961.

A 6-3, 212 pounder, Stephens was expected by many to come into his own this year after playing only briefly as a sophomore.

A good runner and passer, Stephens is potentially the best all-around quarterback the Gophers have, but he hasn't been an accurate passer so far and was number three man Monday.

Carlson has played in several games, and threw touchdown passes against Utah and Illinois. He is not a running threat, but is a good passer, and is usually called on when the Gophers decide to take to the air.

Whoever starts at quarterback will have a good backfield and receiving corps to work with.

Fullback Jim Carter, listed at 6-3, 215, has been the leading rusher for the Gophers. Daugherty said that Warmath considers him the best runner to come along at Minnesota in a long time.

George Kemp has taken over one halfback position as a sophomore, and senior Hubie Bryant will play flanker.

Bryant, at 5-10, 156, runs the 100 yards in 9.5 seconds.

The other major pass receiving threat is Chip Litten, a 6-2, 201 pounder who caught eight passes for 112 yards last year. He leads the team in receiving so far.

Charlie Sanders, a converted defensive lineman, is a 6-2, 234 pounder, who is a good blocker and short pass receiver.

Reports from Minnesota are that the play of the offensive line has been inconsistent. The line averages 238 pounds, three more than Southern California, the Spartans' biggest opponent to date. But the Gopher line doesn't possess the speed Southern Cal showed.

IN WRESTLING

Peninger named 'Coach of Year'

Grady Peninger, coach of MSU's 1967 NCAA and Big Ten championship wrestling team, has been named "Wrestling Coach of the Year" by fellow collegiate coaches.

The award to Peninger was announced by the "Amateur Wrestling News," bible of the nation's mat world. It is printed in Oklahoma City.

Second in the balloting by coaches was Cliff Keen of Michigan, who directed Wolverine wrestlers to runner-up finishes behind the Spartans in both the Big Ten and NCAA championships.

Peninger's Spartans won nine dual meets, lost one (by two points to Michigan) and tied one during the 1967 regular season. They also won the Northwestern Quadrangular Tourney and the Midland Tournament before moving into championship competition.

MSU wrestled perennial national powers Oklahoma State and Oklahoma on consecutive days in the Sooner State. MSU deadlocked OSU and defeated OU, to mark the first time any team had come away from the tough dual assignment without a loss.

Five of Peninger's athletes won Big Ten titles and two of them won national titles.

GRADY PENINGER

The Spartan head man in accepting the award gave heavy credit to assistant Doug Blubaugh for MSU success.

"Any honor that comes to Michigan State in wrestling reflects as much on Doug Blubaugh as it does on me," Peninger said.

Peninger, who is 40 years old, is an Oklahoma State graduate, and became Spartan head coach in 1962.

Booters to meet Ball State today

By NORM SAARI
State News Sports Writer

Another MSU offensive soccer explosion may occur today as the undefeated Spartans meet victorious Ball State at Muncie, Ind.

MSU scored 18 goals in its first two victories, but then in the next four games, they only netted 12 more. The defense has been consistently tough though, allowing only four goals this season.

The Cardinals' offense has been able to score only five times so far this season, while their defense has allowed 26. Trevor Harris, adding two more goals in the 4-2 victory over Akron last Saturday, raised his season's total to 13 goals and two assists, top mark on the team. Guy Busch, scoring leader last year, has five goals and three assists.

Ball State's top scorer this season is Iles Al-lesla, with two goals in the six games.

Other top returnees from the Ball State team that finished 3-5 last year are center forward Dick McCreery, inside left Jerry Rosenberger and inside right Bob O'Bryan.

"I hope we can get by them without too much difficulty," Coach Gene Kenney said. "I would like to get the opportunity to play some men that have not seen too much action yet this year."

Kenney played all men in the first two victories, but has been forced to use limited substitutes in the past four close games.

Kenney has kept the same defense intact all season, with Joe Baum in goal, co-captain Pete Hens at left halfback, Bert Jacobsen at center halfback, Barry Tiemann at right halfback and Tom Belloli and Terry Sanders at fullback positions. On the forward line, however, personnel changes have put Tony Keyes and Trevor Harris on the wings, replacing Tom Kreft and Gary McBrady, and Alex Skotarek at inside left.

Ernie Tuchscherer has switched from an inside left to the inside right position, while co-captain Guy Busch has kept down his center forward post.

Kenney has been using different combinations with Busch going out to the wing and Harris playing inside.

MSU defeated the Cardinals 7-0 last season and holds a 4-0 edge in the series.

200 meters only win for USA

MEXICO CITY (UPI) -- John Carlos, the lean New Yorker who attends East Texas State University, saved the United States from a medals shutout in the pre-Olympics Tuesday by scampering to a narrow victory over a pair of Italian flashes in the men's 200 meter final.

Carlos, who almost didn't make it to the University of Mexico Stadium because his bus from downtown was late, won his gold medal with a 20.7 second race. His time was two seconds slower than his qualifying time on Monday but just enough to edge Italy's Pasquale Giannattasio and Ito Gianni, who were clocked in 20.8 and 20.9 seconds, respectively.

Carlos' triumph -- he also picked up a bronze medal in the men's 100-meter dash on Sunday -- gave the United States a total of three gold medals thus far in the pre-Olympics.

'S' win smile from injured Pitts

By NORM SAARI
State News Sports Writer

Receiving the Michigan game ball came as a surprise to Jack Pitts.

"Coach Daugherty said the team was going to win this one for me, but I didn't know anything about the game ball until the staff and several of the players came down after the game and presented it to me," said Pitts from his traction apparatus in Sparrow hospital.

Pitts, a starting defensive halfback as a sophomore, dislocated a cervical vertebrae while making a tackle in the Wisconsin game two weeks ago. He will miss the rest of the season.

"The players and coaching staff have a great liking and respect for Jack," Daugherty said. "They felt badly about his misfortune and wanted to make the Michigan game a good win for him."

"The presentation of the game ball was a spontaneous thing," Daugherty said. "All the players were in favor of it. After the team returned, a senior delegation and the coaches presented it to him."

Pitts is immobilized on his stomach with a neck apparatus keeping his vertebrae in place. He is expected to remain this way for another two weeks. Doctors then will fuse the dislocated vertebrae.

"In a neck injury of this sort," Team Physician Dr. James Feurig said, "the ligaments are injured and we need to stabilize the neck. A bone plug will be inserted between the fourth and fifth vertebrae to make them one unit and establish rigidity."

The 6-0, 175 pounder from Decatur, Ga., said he could feel at the time he hit the Wisconsin ball carrier that he injured his neck.

"I felt a tingling sensation all through my body," he said.

"I knew it was my neck because I've tackled that way before and have come out with a sore neck."

Pitts said he thought he pinched a nerve in his neck, but Feurig and team trainers wrapped it in a towel to act as a cervical collar and inhibit movement.

He was taken to Olin Health Center and X-rayed, showing the fourth and fifth cervical vertebrae dislocated. Immediately, he was transferred to Sparrow where he was put into traction.

"The positive diagnosis of the dislocation was made by X-ray," Feurig said. "He has not shown any paralysis at all or nerve defect."

"The only decision that has been made so far is that he will not play any more this season. If the neck strengthens, it is possible he will be playing again next year."

In the three games played this year, Pitts was credited with nine solo tackles and seven assists. He was sharing punting duties with Dick Berlinski and had averaged 42.2 yards for five kicks.

Pitts quarterbacked the Spartan freshman team last year to a 1-1 record.

He was switched to defensive halfback last spring.

Hospitalized

Jack Pitts, sophomore defensive halfback on the football team who was lost for the season with a neck injury, lies immobilized in Sparrow Hospital. At left he holds the game ball from the Michigan game which the team dedicated to him. At right he lies on his stomach, the position he is kept in most of the time. State News Photo by Jim Mead

RUNS DAILY

Top soph Ken Leonowicz likes heavy X-country grind

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

The life of a cross country runner seems a lonely one to some.

He is said to work hard and endure much pain but get little praise and no rewards. He is called an "automaton" by many who think he runs just because a coach tells him to.

Sophomore Ken Leonowicz, MSU's top harrier, doesn't agree with this philosophy. He's been running since high school, and likes every bit of cross country. "Sometimes you feel like quitting," he said, "especially after last Saturday." He took fourth in a losing effort against Wisconsin.

"But running gives me a sense of accomplishment. I like running. If I didn't I wouldn't keep doing it."

Leonowicz has been running all year on an injured leg. He can't do speedwork, so he just takes long practice runs daily.

"The leg still hurts," he said, "but I hope it will be getting better soon. I'd like to be healthy because I know I can do better."

Spartan Coach Fran Ditttrich is enthusiastic in his praise of Leonowicz.

"He's done remarkably well considering his injury," Ditttrich said. "I'm glad he's No. 1 man on the team because he's willing to work hard."

"All he needs is a little more confidence and he'll be a great one," Ditttrich added.

Leonowicz is one of the most experienced of Ditttrich's sophomores. He ran a 4:26.8 mile in prep track, in addition to placing second in the state high school cross country meet as a senior.

"I just sort of became a runner," he said. "My next door neighbor was on a cross country team, so I just got interested in it and started running."

Leonowicz was on the swimming team in high school for his first three years. He had good backstroke times and probably would have qualified for the state meet as a senior.

"In high school, I always considered myself more of a runner than a swimmer," he said. "I liked swimming and I wish I had gone out just to see what I could have done, but I found out you've only got time for one thing."

"Everything is specialized today," he said. "You don't see many three sport men anymore."

Leonowicz, from Hazel Park is majoring in mathematics. He carries a 3.35 grade average.

"I've always liked math. I hope to teach in a secondary school someday," he said. "My minor is physical science but I'd like to try to minor in physical education too. I'd like to be able to do something in track or cross country coaching."

Leonowicz is attending MSU on a Michigan Higher Education Scholarship.

Thin (5-9, 130 pounds), crew-cut, he hopes to run the three mile in track. He missed most of the track season as a freshman because of a broken leg.

Leonowicz has a high sense of accomplishment when he knows he's done well, but he's never satisfied.

"I set goals for myself and if I make those, I set a higher one. I always have to be trying to do better."

"All in all," he said, "I like running. Sometimes I think what the heck am I doing out here? I just hope I can do better."

"It's not all fun, but it's not drudgery either. To run you've got to be either nuts about running or crazy. I guess I'm a little of both."

KEN LEONOWICZ

Run or pass?

An intramural football player races downfield ready to pass if necessary. MSU's intramural program is in full swing, with a full schedule of games Monday through Thursday at fields across from the I.M. Building and Akers Halls.

Funds are presently being sought to provide MSU with a new intramural building and other athletic facilities, according to Athletic Director Biggie Munn and Intramural Director Harry F. Beeman.

"It's our plan to have a new intramural building down in the Akers-Fee area, but the only question of course, is who's going to finance this and where is the money going to come from," said Munn.

The proposed intramural building is one of a number of recommendations made by Beeman to the Athletic Council. Beeman said he recommended additions because of the inadequacy of present intramural facilities.

"Let's say that you wanted to obtain a tennis court," Beeman said, "and you called up on a Saturday afternoon. Probably by then all the courts are filled up for the entire weekend. Usually they're reserved for the weekend by Friday."

Beeman went on to say that the I.M. office has gotten as many as 220 requests per week more than it could fill. The proposed building will greatly alleviate this problem because it will have twenty tennis courts and four gyms plus an indoor pool.

Recommendations for new facilities have to be sent from the department heads to the Athletic Council and from there to the Board of Trustees through President John Hannah.

Beeman said that he sent an informal report to the Athletic Council along with a list of needs for the intramural program. On this list was his proposal for the new building.

Among the other items on the list was a proposal to surface the intramural fields in the Akers-Fee area with "Tartan", a synthetic rubbery material which would make the fields suitable for the playing of most outdoor games. Its texture, according to Beeman, reduces injuries and requires less care.

With this surface on the intramural fields, Beeman said, intramural games could be played in almost any weather with no drainage problems and no mud.

It's also versatile enough so that fields can be used for anything from football to tennis, depending on the need and the season.

Munn said his long range proposals include moving the ice hockey rink into Jensen Fieldhouse to make use of the increased audience capacity.

Ice hockey is the third highest income producing sport at MSU, Munn said.

Munn said the construction of intramural facilities could be started when the final plans are made.

"Someone must correlate all of the spending," he said. "The Athletic Council will have to decide where they'd like the new intramural building to be located."

"We hope of course to have this by next year. But it's going to need further study," Beeman and Munn said that the sooner the construction on the new building is begun the better, because building costs are rising quickly.

Munn said that if a building cost $3,000,000 to build today it would cost $5,000,000 to build in a few years.

East Lansing

IN CONGRESS. JULY 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, dictating the forms which Government should assume, it is the right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, dictating the forms which Government should assume, it is the right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.

But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them to absolute Tyranny, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. — Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies, such has been the gradual accumulation of specific and oppressive measures, which would have produced a more speedy and unprovoked separation, that now, in the last stage of their Tyranny, they are united in the Declaration of their Independence.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the thirteen united States of America, in Congress assembled, do hereby declare that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the said Kingdom is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as States, free, sovereign, and independent, they have the full and complete authority to do all those acts and things which Independent States may of right do.

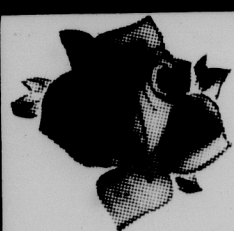

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands and seals, this fourth day of July, 1776.

UNIQUE HOME

Mexican flavor
part of 'Hacienda'

The red and white "Hacienda" on Hagadorn Road, is a house with a history.

MSU students have rented it for the past three years, with six students now occupying the house, all members of Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter DeWitly, owners of the house for the past three years, have preserved the Mexican flavor of the house originated by a creative man named John Schuerer.

The house, with red tile roof, white stucco walls, archways, balconies and ornate black iron railing is more typical of Mexico than East Lansing.

The interior also follows a Spanish theme. The living room has an engraved tile floor, drawn plaster walls and rustic fireplace.

This unique house has an unusual history.

In the fall of 1927, Schuerer, an artist and salesman for Norcross Card company, bought the property on Hagadorn Road when Hagadorn was just a small dirt trail.

To decorate the house, Schuerer ordered many articles from Italy, including a sculptured Madonna, an iron biblical plaque, two cast iron ornately designed gates and a sculptured stork.

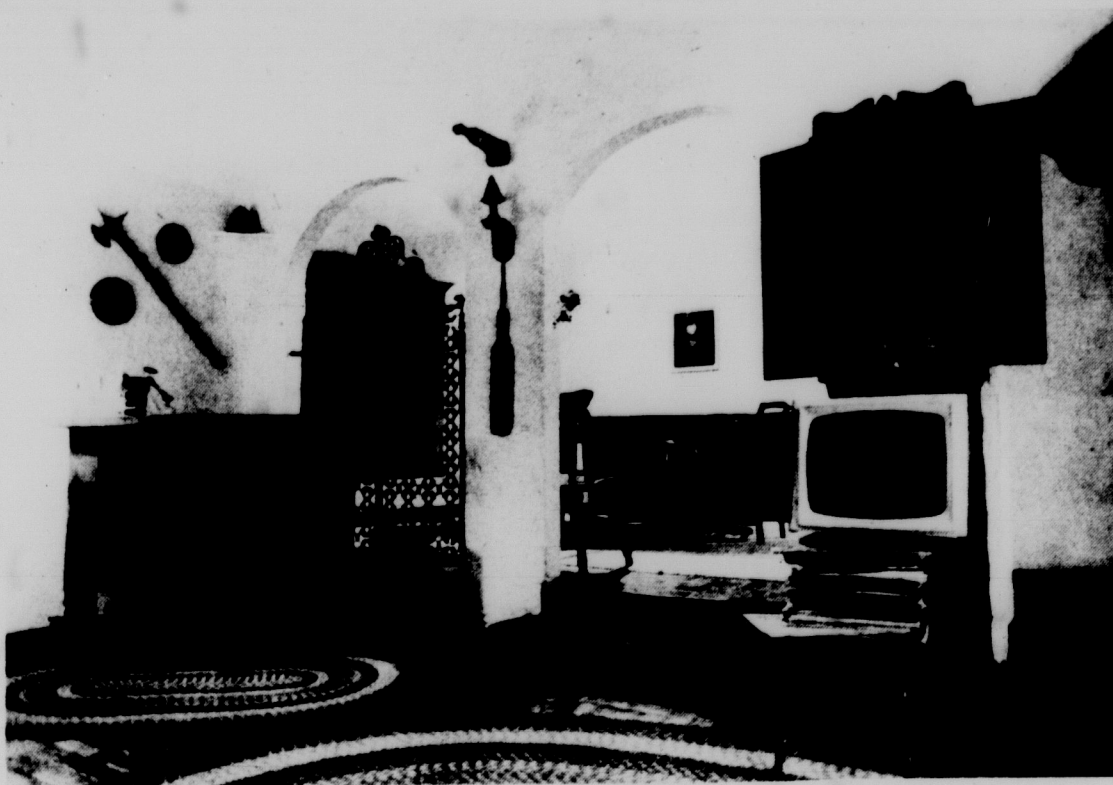

Carpenters antiqued all of the arch-shaped doors. And an antique bell was hung inside the top of the chimney.

"But the exterior of the house was the most amazing," a neighbor for the past 40 years said. "Schuerer could only be satisfied if the house was a complete picture, so he had all full grown shrubs and trees brought in. The grounds were landscaped beautifully."

"Finished in December, 1928, it was really a piece of art," the neighbor added. "People from all over Michigan knew of that house and on Sundays sightseers used to stop by the iron gates and sketch it."

The depression approached and with it came financial difficulties for the Schuerers.

The house was sold to C. W. Otto in November, 1945 and the next year he began to paint the house tan.

Bishops may ease
mixed marriage rules

VATICAN CITY, (AP) — A general trend emerged in the Roman Catholic bishop synod today in favor of easing the rules on mixed marriages.

A Vatican press official said many speakers on the synod's second day of mixed marriage debate came out in favor of ending the Vatican's monopoly on dispensations for marriages between Catholics and non-Catholics.

The speakers also advocated allowing local pastors in certain cases to sanction mixed marriages performed by non-Catholic ministers. Only the Vatican has this power now.

The press official added, however, that most bishops—even those who want liberalization—favored retaining the rule that in most cases a Catholic's marriage must be performed by a priest in the presence of two witnesses.

Shifting the power of allowing exceptions to this rule from the Vatican to the individual pastors, or bishops in dioceses, is considered in progressive circles a major step toward liberalization.

It was argued that the local pastors were closer to the situation and better able to judge.

Some bishops wanted to leave the power of dispensation with the Holy See on grounds that local pastors were not always qualified to make such judgments.

Despite the trend toward easing the rules, there was no evidence of scrapping a requirement that poses a big barrier for Christian unity. That is the general rule that a Catholic's marriage by Protestant clergymen is not valid in the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church.

The Vatican spokesman said American and Canadian bishops especially emphasized maintaining this general rule. But he added they sought more leeway for local bishops.

Some speakers questioned what they called the Church's consideration of mixed marriages as something bad.

One bishop who noted that his grandfather was an Anglican said mixed marriage is "not evil in itself."

Another urged that the delicate issue be regarded with an up-to-date mentality. He quoted St. John's injunction against greeting non-Christians and added: "You can't expect a man not to say hello to his spouse."

FEURIG CITES DOCTORS' LAXITY

VD cases rising at MSU;
problem serious nationally

By FRAN ZELL
State News Staff Writer

Cases of venereal disease have been progressively rising at MSU, with a marked increase in the last three years, according to Dr. James S. Feurig, Olin Health Center director.

"About 50 cases of gonorrhea were treated at Olin last year and we can expect five to ten more than that this year," Feurig said. "In estimating the total amount of VD on campus I would at least have to triple these figures since many students seek outside medical help," he added.

Students who go elsewhere for treatment fear their case will be included in their university files, but all such information is kept confidential, he explained. Olin, however, like all health agencies is required by law to report every case of VD to the public health department.

Feurig noted that most cases involved gonorrhea. "Syphilis has been very rare at MSU," he said.

The mounting number of cases on campus reflects similar county, state and national trends which have branded VD "the most urgent communicable disease problem now facing America."

In Ingham County, for example, 533 cases of gonorrhea were reported in 1965 and 597 in 1966. Of these, 236 occurred in the 20-24 year old age group each year. Rate of incidence of syphilis as reported in Ingham County was 73 in 1965 and 47 in 1966, with 11 occurring in the 20-24 age group in 1965 and 17 in 1966.

"The figures for syphilis look too good," Dr. Maurice S. Reizen, director of the Ingham County Health Dept., said. "I would estimate that of those affected people contacted by public health nurses only 10-25 percent were reported despite the state law." State figures for VD over a ten year period show that cases of syphilis reported in Michigan rose from 100 in 1957 to over 1200 in 1966. Reported gonorrhea cases increased from nearly 8,500 in 1957 to 15,499 cases in 1966.

Nationally more than one million new cases of gonorrhea are developing annually and the rate of increase in cases of syphilis is averaging 200 per cent per year, according to American Medical Association statistics.

Why the sudden surge? Feurig cited a laxity by the medical profession, explaining that "with the advent of penicillin we thought we had the problem licked and were thrown off guard."

Reizen blamed a "general loosening of sexual taboos."

"I'm not making a moral judgment," he said, "but the fact remains that we can no longer influence youngsters on the basis of getting pregnant because of modernizations in birth control. Furthermore they don't think promiscuity is immoral."

"VD has nothing to do with economics, intelligence or education," Reizen said. "I would assume the rate is higher in underprivileged areas, but VD is found in any level of society."

Feurig said most of the students Olin treats for gonorrhea are men, because symptoms are most pronounced in the male.

The germ has a three to five day incubation period, after which in the male there is a frequency of urination, discharge, but it is not unbearable. Often the woman may have no symptoms even though the sexual organs are infected, he said.

"Of course, a woman may experience the above symptoms and not have gonorrhea," Feurig added.

In its later stages gonorrhea causes inflammation of uterine tubes and extreme pain in the low pelvic area. If not treated, gonorrhea can cause sterility, blindness, arthritis and urinary problems in either sex, Feurig said.

With syphilis there are often no symptoms in either male or female until three to four weeks after exposure, Feurig said. Then a lesion appears at the site of infection. The sore, which looks like a pimple or ulcer, has raised edges, a raw center and is painless. If untreated the chancre eventually heals and within six months the secondary stage of syphilis develops. Symptoms include a copper rash, loss of hair, hoarseness of voice and a cough caused by irritations of the larynx.

These symptoms, too, will eventually disappear, Feurig said, but the disease is firmly entrenched and over the years the third stage develops. Syphilis then can involve any body system and cause blindness, insanity, heart disease, paralysis or deformity.

Both syphilis and gonorrhea are nearly always spread by sexual relations and the possibility of acquiring VD from toilet seats, eating utensils or drinking glass is exceedingly remote," Feurig said. "The germ can only survive in air for a few seconds."

VD is treated with penicillin, sulfa drugs or antibiotics, depending on the reaction of the individual, Feurig said. A person can grow immune to the drug, however, after repeated medication.

Big Marine sweep to ease threat of mass Red attack

SAIGON (P) -- A task force of U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops is gunning deep in Quang Tri Province for Communists who might some day try to join in a Red hammer-and-anvil blow at Marine outposts below the demilitarized zone.

The U.S. Command announced Tuesday that 44 Communists had been killed and 19 suspects captured so far after a week of campaigning that cost the Marines 21 dead and 167 wounded.

Possibly 5,000 men are involved in the sweep, called Operation Medina, launched in secrecy Oct. 11. The action centers 28 miles south of the DMZ and nine miles south of Quang Tri city, the provincial capital.

The task force includes several battalions of the 1st Marine Regiment, a special battalion landing team from the 7th Fleet's Ready Amphibious Force and some South Vietnamese units.

The immediate purpose seemed to be to ease the pressure around Quang Tri city, which Marine officers have said is a likely target for a major attack. Indigenous Viet Cong and infiltrated North Vietnamese troops, if left undisturbed, could form the anvil against which Hanoi regulars based in and near the DMZ would try to hammer the forward Marine elements in any new attempt at a mass invasion.

Destruction of these Communist units could cool the situation throughout Quang Tri and the four other provinces of South Vietnam's 1st Corps area. Intelligence officers estimate the enemy within the corps area numbers 46,000 men.

But finding them is a tough job in the rain and mud.

A spokesman said the heaviest engagement of Operation Medina pitted 300 Marines, backed by artillery and helicopter gunships, against 400 North Vietnamese troops last Thursday. Thirty of the enemy were reported killed. The Marines lost eight dead and 46 wounded.

In Saigon, Gen. William C. Westmoreland's command welcomed the word that there would be a buildup of Australian and New Zealand forces in the war.

Prime Minister Harold Holt announced in Canberra that Australia will send in a third army battalion and a squadron of Centurion tanks, boosting its committed men from 6,300 to more than 8,000.

In Wellington, Prime Minister Keith J. Holyoake announced New Zealand will send in a 170-man infantry company in November or December, boosting its total to 546 men.

Despite cloudy weather, U.S. jet squadrons got in 105 missiles against North Vietnamese targets Monday. The emphasis was on further isolating Haiphong, the country's main port.

Navy Skyhawk and Phantom pilots, striking from carriers in the Tonkin Gulf, blasted for the third time in eight days at a military compound where Russian helicopters and missiles are assembled.

Blind student seeks equal treatment in world of sight

By DENICE ANDERSON

"I am no different. I am human. Except for a few obvious differences, I am the same as any MSU freshman wandering around campus."

Kathie Schneider, Kalamazoo freshman, sat by her desk in Mason Hall where she has begun her university life amid piles of books, tapes and records.

"I want people to treat me like they treat anyone else—not as someone special," the energetic coed stressed. "If someone knows me, speak to me. Don't just wave. I enjoy talking to people."

Kathie is blind. But the psychology major is letting nothing stand in the way of her goal—to earn a master's degree or possibly a doctorate and then practice clinical psychology.

There is no cure for Kathie who, blind since birth, can only see light in her right eye.

"So far I haven't fallen in the Red Cedar," she laughed.

The Honors College freshman had cane-travel lessons for two weeks, before classes started, to orient her to the campus.

"I started using the cane in the seventh grade," she said.

Kathie doesn't just stay in her room, although she does spend a good deal of time studying.

"I go to the Lecture-Concert series, plays and I enjoy hiking and rowing," she said. Kathie has attended two of the home football games at Spartan Stadium.

"Sometimes people are too helpful," Kathie said. "If I want help, I'll ask, unless I am obviously going down a manhole first."

When studying, Kathie listens to a "talking book" machine, similar to a record player or a tape recorder.

She takes notes on a Braille writer.

"I can read quite fast for Braille," Kathie said, "getting up to 250 words a minute. But it's a little slower than regular reading, and the tapes and records go only as fast as the human voice can go."

"I do type my assignments with a regular typewriter," Kathie said, "and most professors will read exams to me themselves or let me bring in a reader."

"There seems to be a general misconception that my other senses are much greater than everybody else's," Kathie said. "That's not true. They're just used more."

State rehabilitation of cities recommended to governors

ABOARD SS INDEPENDENCE
A panel of governors recommended Tuesday a vast, costly campaign to restore racial peace to American cities and cope with the "underlying causes of unrest, inequality and lack of opportunity."

Connecticut's Gov. John N. Dempsey presented the program to the 59th National Governors Conference, cruising choppy seas toward the Virgin Islands aboard the Independence.

"States must accept this responsibility," Dempsey said.

Dempsey's 10-member advisory committee recommended that governors make state government the agent to mobilize all America's resources, public and private, to deal with city ills.

"As governors, we issue to the entire nation a call to action," he said. "As governors, we have the clear responsibility to move immediately to achieve:

- "Assurance of order and respect for law.
- "Full participation by all people in the process of government."
- "Physical rehabilitation of blighted areas."
- "Improved educational and employment opportunities."
- "Full availability of effective services to the individual."

Dempsey, a Democrat, did not discuss the potential cost of the effort outlined in a 10-page catalogue of enforcement, assistance and equal rights action. Presumably that will be discussed Wednesday, when the governors decide at a closed session what to do about the proposal.

The 42 state governors aboard approved a call for cooperative state use of National Guardsmen to cope with civil disorders. By sharing Guard forces in hours of city crisis, Gov. Otto Kerner, of Illinois told them, "States will be able to suppress any disorder, of whatever intensity, without recourse to federal troops."

Kerner, a Democrat and chairman of President Johnson's Commission on Civil Disorders, also won the governors' approval of a demand for improved riot training and equipment for National Guardsmen.

"The crisis in American cities will not await the resolution of our Vietnam problems," he said.

While the business session concentrated on city turmoil, Republican governors said they were wary of any move to draft an endorsement of the President's Vietnam policy.

Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island, renewing a quest for presidential backing for Romney, said he feared such a resolution would be cited by Johnson as blank check backing of his actions. Romney said he would not support any "whitewash resolution" on Vietnam, but might agree to a statement of backing for U.S. troops and global commitments.

Renewing his Romney campaign among the governors, Chafee said he would accept second place on a White House ticket headed by the Michigan governor, but insisted that possibility had nothing to do with his search for backing. "The most qualified Republican candidate is George Romney," he said.

French technicality destroys the feeling

By JIM ROOS

Although it may be unfair to stereotype French orchestras, they have long had a reputation for being brilliant but cold and for being given to little sentimentality, whether false or real.

After Monday evening's appearance of the French National Orchestra, the generalization seems confirmed anew.

In a program, which ranged from Roussel to Ravel, the famous ensemble brought brilliant execution but little commitment to the music of their countrymen.

The first half of the program found Conductor Maurice Le Roux zipping through Roussel's "Suite in F," giving short shrift to the few interesting details which make the work worth performing. The "Sarabande" was glibly traversed, while the colors of the "Gigue" were lost in a tempo ill-suited to the composition's neo-classic nature.

Xenakis is a composer to whom Leonard Bernstein has already exposed the American public. His "Metastasis," dedicated to Conductor Le Roux, is an effective concoction of sonorities that sounds like 100 vacuum cleaners revving their engines. Ironically it received the best performance of the evening, with Le Roux wringing every ounce of chromaticism from the orchestra. The five "Metaboles" of Dutilleux, although competently performed, were a sad waste of time. Dutilleux could have learned a bit from Webern, and concentrated his conceptions. This might have prevented the boredom that inevitably sets in, even on repeated hearings.

After intermission the orchestra turned to Debussy's "Iberia" and Ravel's "La Valse." The former, full of Andalusian melodies and evocations of Spanish nights can be a beautiful experience in the hands of a conductor who knows the idiom. Apparently Le Roux does not, for the performance was grey and lacking nuance. Again, tempos were on the quick side and the interpretation indifferent. "La Valse" suffered the same fate. Certainly, the short reverberation time and poor resonance qualities of the Auditorium were no help to the orchestra. Yet, I have heard it elsewhere and never noticed that a particularly robust sound was one of its qualities.

Student opinion surveyed on on abortion, drugs, unions

According to a recent survey taken in several freshman ATL classes, there are very few independent freshmen on campus.

One ATL instructor gave his classes a list of 44 popular topics, ranging from abortion to labor unions, with the simple instructions, "React and write down your reactions."

Because the instructor told his classes that all the replies would remain anonymous, he preferred not to release his name. The instructor said he was disappointed with the outcome of the survey and declared all the replies the students made were "dull, safe ones."

There were people topics like LBJ, and Bob Dylan; prejudiced topics like open housing and the Pope; and radical topics like abortion and pot.

The radical topics all received the same bland reply: "Pot smoking, etc. is not for me, but if other people want it, let them have it."

While only 33 per cent feel that abortion should be legalized, over 50 per cent contend that abortion has valuable points but should only be legalized with exceptions.

The MSU football team was blindly accepted by over 60 per cent of the students who simply scratched the word "great" next to Spartan Football Team. There was one scholarly person who answered, "let's put the emphasis on education, not on football."

The police came out of the survey well. Over 65 per cent of the questioned freshmen believe that the police are good and/or necessary. Only 13 per cent answered negatively.

Writing: continuous process,
ATL classes not sufficient

"The student is afraid of being specific in his writing," West said.

Soon, to protect themselves, the teachers only assign two or three themes a term. In the ATL classes this accounts for the switch to more American studies than to writing, West stated.

More emphasis on writing skills in the ATL department has been recommended by the Committee on Undergraduate

"There is not enough written rhetoric," he said. "Learning to write well is hard work. It's a lifetime job," he said.

the license, a special use permit, provided the fire chief joined his approval with those of the police chief and Ingham County Health department.

The council also agreed with the planning commission that adequate exits and entrances be established, under the city code. The plans submitted to the city clerk, Mary Slavik, in the application call for a 16 by 19 foot area for the dance floor.

The dance area is part of the recent remodeling being done by the restaurant.

In reviewing the parking situation, the council received two letters of complaint, approved a control order and received a recommendation.

Darrell Chadwell, parking superintendent, asked in his letter that the council remove the parking meters in the 400 block of M.A.C. and two hour parking signs be put up.

The superintendent noted that only five dollars had been received in the meters in the last six months, while the city had paid $600 in 1966 for vandalism to the heads, mechanisms and posts of the meters on this block. He cited beer tabs used as slugs as one example of vandalism done to the meters.

The council approved a motion to remove the meters, and restore the block to a two hour parking zone.

Mayor Gordon L. Thomas commented that a second parking enforcement officer would be added Monday to enforce the two hour limit in that area and others.

Later in the meeting, the council approved a traffic control order prohibiting parking on the east side Hillcrest Ave. between Grand River Ave. and Elm Place.

The council also:

---Approved two requests involving fund drives. The United Community Chest Drive will erect its traditional goal thermometer on East Grand River Ave. from Oct. 19 to Nov. 8. The Lansing Area Chapter of Muscular Dystrophy Association of America's annual house-to-house appeal will begin on Nov. 14.

---Received a letter from Charles R. Young, School Superintendent, asking for an overpass near the Harrison Road and M-78 intersection and a footbridge across the Smedley-Coolidge drainage ditch.

---Received a letter from the Department of State Highways on the status of the proposed M-43--Trowbridge Road from Harrison Road west. The letter said state highway officials were still discussing the general design with University officials. Mayor Thomas said the University's Board of Trustees meeting

Oregon permits a candidate to have a 20-word label beside his name and Porter said it will be clear to voters that in halloing for the "stand-in" they are actually voting for Kennedy.

"Kennedy's back must be getting pretty raw from being ridden by other people against his will," said Edward Fadel, state Democratic chairman in Oregon.

The California Democratic Council has said that a candidate for the delegation it plans to run against the party regulars must meet these specifications:

He must favor "an immediate cessation of the bombing in Vietnam, negotiations—including all participants—for settlement of the war so that American armed forces may be withdrawn, and international guarantees of nonintervention in Vietnam."

In Illinois, Kennedy's candidacy is being pushed by an organization headed by Herbert Semmel, professor of law at the University of Illinois. Here again, the pro-Kennedy forces will attempt to elect their own delegates in the state primary.

Nicholas N. Cherniavsky, an Illinois regional leader, said the principal activity so far has been to solicit support from key figures in the Democratic party. He said he is "surprised by the amount of favorable response," but added, "We are largely being ignored by the regular Democratic party organization."

Wilson, when asked if he would, in all circumstances, reject associate status, did not say explicitly that he would reject such an arrangement in the future as he has done in the past.

On other world issues Wilson made these points:

--Britain will not waver in honoring long-standing principles covering a settlement in Rhodesia.

He insisted Prime Minister Ian Smith's breakaway regime must "return to legality." But he added African rule still is "very many years ahead."

--Britain will quit neither the Southeast Asia nor the Central Treaty organizations--SEATO and CENTO--despite the decline of her armed forces in Asia and the Middle East.

--Britain expects her exports to increase in America and elsewhere on a scale that would more than offset the serious effects of the Middle East upheaval. But "the timing and extent" of a national trading surplus abroad will continue to be affected by the canal situation, which has been costing the country about $56 million monthly.

--As for British-American ties, Wilson said: "I believe we shall always have a close relationship. We have mutual interests in Asia and Europe and I believe in the preservation of peace and stability over the whole world, including the Middle East and Africa."

State Democratic Chairman James Ronan said he has "heard of a few Kennedy people getting together in Rockford but I don't know anything about it."

A Minnesota organization calling itself "Dissent Democrats" was formed recently. Its main goal is to raise money for newspaper advertisement urging Johnson not to run.

Among its leaders are Dr. Maurice Visscher, medical researcher at the University of Minnesota, and Sally Luther, one-time aide to former Democratic Gov. Karl E. Rolvaag.

George Farr, state Democratic-Farmer-Labor chairman, claims anti-Johnson feeling has had little effect on party finances. There have been only a dozen dropouts from the party's sustaining fund, he said.

NMU firing

Then last year, he became involved with students who threatened to sue NMU for housing them in unfinished residence halls without hot water or adequate heat. McClellan told the students they had a legitimate complaint and offered to help. They never filed suit however, since they had already accepted the housing and had lived there a short time.

Later that year, when NMU began to purchase land in north Marquette, McClellan worked with citizen groups there opposed to the expansion. He advised them of their rights in the situation and presided at some of the meetings. In some speeches before the group, he reportedly criticized the administration for choosing that area for expansion.

It is for this reason, some faculty contend, that the administration fired McClellan. They denounced the dismissal as "strictly political and without grounds."

Two professors of English, Ellsworth Barnard and Vernon Pierce, have already announced they would resign in June.

McClellan, who Barnard described as a "dedicated and well-respected instructor," completed his doctoral thesis at MSU under Paul A. Varg, now Dean of Arts and Letters. Madison Kuhn, University historian who knew McClellan, called him a "kind and gentle man with a deep sense of what is just and unjust." McClellan also taught as a graduate assistant in history.

The NMU faculty told Romney Tuesday that "a failure to act promptly would result in irreparable damage to this university" and called the firing a "blatant violation of academic freedom."

In an accompanying letter, titled "The Case of Robert McClellan," they informed the governor of the facts surrounding his dismissal. The American Association of University Professors (AAUP) is also studying the case and has been in close contact with the Faculty Senate, which represents about 275 at NMU.
