UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. -- The Soviet Union, involved in a deep, bitter ideological quarrel with Peking, gave only lip-service Tuesday to the seating of the Communist Chinese in a brief speech and urged U.N. membership for both East and West Germany.

The United States, an unyielding foe of a U.N. seat for Red China, denounced Peking as a "rigidly fanatical and violence-prone" regime that has shown "utter contempt" for the world organization.

Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., a member of the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly, declared in the assembly's annual debate on the China question that mainland China had "remained faithful to Mao Tse-tung's dogma that 'all political power grows out of the barrel of a gun.'"

"If there is a political authority in the world today more hostile to international peace and security," he said, "more diametrically opposed to the purposes and principles of the United Nations Charter, more contemptuous of elementary diplomatic usage, my government does not know one," Rep. Fountain said.

Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko of the Soviet Union, speaking for only nine minutes, said his government had been "unswervingly in favor of and continues to be in favor" of seating Red China and expelling the representatives of Nationalist China, as proposed by Albania and 10 other Communist and leftist delegations.

The so-called "Two Chinas" policy, he contended, is designed to "perpetuate the American occupation of Taiwan."

He said the Soviet Union wants the United Nations to become "a genuinely international organization."

Fountain said the Albanian resolution to seat Peking was "totally unacceptable to my government."

The expulsion of the nationalists, he told the assembly, "would be a flagrant injustice and an indelible blot of shame on the record of the United Nations."

He warned also that it would "set an evil precedent" which someday might be used against other member nations.

Ambassador Halim Bude of Albania, Red China's most enthusiastic supporter in the United Nations, lashed out at what he called U.S. imperialism throughout the world and the Soviet "revisionist clique" in Moscow, which he said had become the "number one ally" of the United States.

Communist China, the Albanian declared is "the greatest nation in the world" and "constitutes the insurmountable obstacle" to what he said were U.S. plans for world domination.

Recharged that in supporting the "Chiang Kai-shek band" on Formosa, the United States was following "a criminal policy of international gangsterism."

Fountain gave strong support to a resolution sponsored by the United States and 15 other nations to require a two-thirds majority for passage of the Albanian resolution rather than a simple majority.

Under assembly rules, "important" questions require a two-thirds vote, while procedural matters need only a simple majority for adoption.

The U.S. delegate, noting the provision for the expulsion of Nationalist China, said the assembly was dealing "with a question which has the most serious implications for the rights and privileges of membership."

"Just suppose any other member represented here," he said, "whether large or small, found its members in the United Nations called into question."

"What member among us, Mr. President, could conceivably dismiss such a challenge as unimportant?"

Fountain made no mention of a resolution sponsored by Italy and four other nations to set up a committee to make a thorough study of the China question and report back to the 1968 session of the assembly.

U.S. sources said Fountain had not commented on this proposal because it had not yet been formally introduced. But they added that it would have U.S. support, as did a similar resolution defeated in the assembly a year ago.

Council seeks 'proper restraint' on conflict of interest charges

By LINDA GORTMAKER
State News Staff Writer

The Academic Council adopted unanimously Tuesday a statement calling for "proper restraint and suspension of judgment" in the recent conflict of interest charges made against high University officials.

The Board of Trustees deferred action Friday on charges made against Philip J. May, treasurer, and President Hannah until a ruling is made by Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

Two Democratic trustees, C. Allen Harlan of Southfield, and Clair White of Bay City, had said Thursday they would move at the meeting to seek the immediate resignation of May for his "questionable outside business activities."

In what one spokesman called "an unusual procedure for the council," the academic council was "objecting to a procedure, not taking a side on an issue."

The original proposal was drafted by the council's Steering Committee, headed by John F. A. Taylor, professor of philosophy. C. C. Killingsworth, University professor of labor and industrial relations, made a motion at Tuesday's meeting to adopt the redrafted statement with the "same sense as the original."

Announcement of the statement came after two days of extensive discussion by the council in closed session, according to Killingsworth.

Taylor said the original statement was developed as the result of widespread faculty concern by the Steering Committee of the Academic Senate and chairman of the standing faculty committee.

Hannah was sent a copy of the statement who will then pass it on to the Board of Trustees.

"The statement isn't just intended for the Board of Trustees," Taylor said. "It's meant for the university community as a whole."

The statement reads that public accusations made against MSU officers has "shaken the confidence of our students, alarmed the public and the manner of their making has demeaned the dignity of the University."

The council emphasizes in its statement that they "express no judgment at this time on the questions of fact, law and ethics."

"We believe strongly that such expressions at this time are both premature and prejudicial," it reads. "But the tactics employed thus far in this controversy compel us to speak out. We condemn the unfairness of trial by press releases."

Killingsworth said he felt the "State News was performing its proper function as a newspaper" while reporting the conflict of interest charges.

"When people make statements, I see nothing wrong with reporting what is said," he added.

In the statement, the council also expressed confidence in the board of trustees and recognized their "right . . . to take corrective action when wrongdoing has been fairly proved."

The statement concludes with an affirmation of confidence in Hannah. It reads, "We address our call to the faculty and student body of the University as well as others who are involved."

"We do not deem it inconsistent with this call for us to reaffirm our complete confidence in the integrity and good faith of John A. Hannah."

The omission of May's name from this statement was not understood by the U.S. protests Russia's 'exploitation' of 4 sailors

WASHINGTON -- The United States delivered an oral protest Tuesday against what it called the "highly improper" exploitation of four American sailors.

"Such conduct cannot fail but to complicate further the relations between our countries," the State Department said.

The oral complaint, somewhat less forceful than a written protest, was voiced by deputy Undersecretary Foy D. Kohler at a brief State Department meeting with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

It followed the appearance of the young Americans on a Moscow television program, during which they criticized U.S. policy in Vietnam.

The sailors, who jumped ship while the carrier Intrepid was in Japan Oct. 24, were quoted by the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda as saying they were en route to other countries to continue their work against "the inhuman war in Vietnam." They did not say what other countries.

Newsweek was informed of the U.S. protest by Robert J. McCloskey, State Department press officer. He said: "The Soviet ambassador, Mr. Dobrynin, was called to the department this morning and informed that the United States government finds the action of the Soviet government in assisting, harboring and exploiting these men to be highly improper."

McCloskey said Dobrynin told Kohler he would report the U.S. views to his government.

The four sailors, now reported "resting" in Moscow, are Richard D. Bailey, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla.; John Michael Barilla, 20, of Catonsville, Md.; Craig W. Anderson, 20, of San Jose, Calif., and Michael Lindner, 19, of Mount Pocono, Pa.

In an interview Tuesday in Pravda, Barilla said he turned against the war after watching bombers fly off the Intrepid day after day on raiding missions.

"It became clear to me that we were killing people," he said. "I am convinced that the United States does not have any right to be in Vietnam."

Back home in Catonsville, Barilla's father, Nicholas, said his son is "no deserter, he's a good American citizen." Asked how his son might have reached the Soviet Union, Barilla said he thinks someone kidnapped him.

Anderson told the Soviet TV interviewers: "We would like to be an example to those who are beginning to understand the Vietnamese war."

In San Jose, Anderson's widowed mother, Irene Anderson Hill, said "We have no plans to contact him. We wouldn't know where to start."

Anderson's former high school football coach, Tim Woods, recalled him as "a good bright boy. You could picture him as an all American boy."

Lindner told the Pravda reporter that once he saw "the great mass of bombs

ASMSU Board structure hit

By PHYLLIS ZIMBLER
State News Staff Writer

A petition is being circulated to change the makeup of the ASMSU Student Board by boosting representation of residence halls.

The petition calls for a substitution to the ASMSU constitution. Under the proposed amendment one student from each of the five complexes would be elected by popular vote to serve as the member-at-large. Each student must have at least forty credits and be a resident of the complex when he is elected and during the terms that he serves.

The sixth student would be elected from all unsupervised housing.

The proposed amendment change would affect only the six members-at-large and not representatives from each of the six major governing bodies.

Under the present Section 2.2, approximately a year old, two senior members-at-large, two juniors, one sophomore and one female are chosen from the total student body.

According to Roseann Umana, Bradenton, Fla., junior, the idea began in a group of individuals discussing student government. The outcome of the discussion was to have an open forum in Brody of Student Board members and sponsored by Rather Hall.

Miss Umana said the feeling of the students after the forum was that the Student Board was not representative enough.

Signatures of 10 per cent of registered undergraduates are needed to call for a referendum on an amendment to the ASMSU constitution. Once the needed number of signatures is presented to ASMSU, a referendum must be held within 10 class days.

"I think we already have enough votes," Miss Umana said. "The registrar's office indicated 31,088 undergraduates, which means we need 3,109 signatures."

"We would like to have Christmas vacation during presenting the signed petitions and the referendum to give Student Board and other involved people a chance to air their views," Miss Umana said. "We will probably turn in the petitions right after Thanksgiving."

New faculty clubhouse

This is the proposed plan for the new faculty clubhouse which will be built on Forest Rd. southwest of the Forest Akers Golf Course. The architects on the project are the Warren S. Holmes Co.

NEAR FOREST AKERS

Plans proposed for faculty club

By JEAN WARDEN
State News Staff Writer

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the MSU Faculty's Clubhouse have been set for mid-February at a site on Forest Road.

Proposed plans for the clubhouse were presented at Tuesday's Faculty Club luncheon by Emery Foster, manager of dormitory and food services, and D.S. Budzynski Jr., of the Warren Holmes Company Architects.

Designed on a multi-level concept, the clubhouse will take advantage of the rolling knolls southwest of Forest Akers Golf Course.

Through use of the natural resources already there, the site will offer quiet terraces and a feeling of openness away from campus.

The contemporary design which could almost be called oriental, will be accented with wooden shingles on the roof.

Lower levels of the building will slope from a terrace to the "L" shaped swimming and wading pools. This level will include a teen room, snack bar, locker rooms and storage space.

A lounge, library and large divisible dining room will be found on the upper level. Also included on this level will be a sunken conversation pit, cocktail lounge and fireplace.

Entrance for the upper level can be made through a covered portico on the south side of the building. An international flavor will be added in the entranceway with space for displays of paintings and books.

A watchman's quarters, storage space, kitchen, restrooms and staff offices will also be on the upper level.

For arrival convenience, the parking lot to the west of the clubhouse is near the pool and locker room entrance as well as near the tennis courts. However, persons wishing to enter through the main entrance under the portico could still do so and still go to the swimming and locker room area.

The number of trees and rolling hills provide a wind break for the swimming pool area. These natural resources provide a "serenity" about the place, said Budzynski.

A loading and receiving area on the building's northwest side is almost hidden.

Indirect lighting in the dining room and other areas will be used. Carpeting will

Israel, Jordan outbreak worst since June war

TEL AVIV -- Israeli jets and Jordanian tanks were thrown into battle Tuesday in the worst outbreak along the Jordan River cease-fire line since the June war. Each side said the other fired first.

At least one of the French-built Mystere jets that swooped at 100 feet on strafing runs in heavy rain were shot down.

It was the fourth straight day of battling along the river and the first time since the war that Israeli planes and Jordanian tanks were reported in action in the cease-fire sector.

Diplomats in Tel Aviv said they believed Syria and Egypt, still smarting from their defeat last June, had taken advantage of the absence from Jordan of King Hussein to urge Crown Prince Hassan to step up the pressure on Israeli forces.

Hussein, Hassan's brother, was in London on a tour seeking arms and support for the Arab cause.

"Hussein is seeking support, which obviously depends on his keeping the border quiet," one source said. "It is unlikely he would have allowed the situation to deteriorate so far."

Amman radio said Hussein was in constant telephone contact with Prince Hassan during the fighting and that the government asked Jordanian Ambassador Muhammad H. El Farra to present a complaint to United Nations Secretary-General U. Thant and the Security Council.

Fighting across the Jordan has followed increasing Arab guerrilla activity in the west bank territory Israel occupied during the war. There were conflicting accounts of Tuesday's battle between the Allenby and Umm Shart bridges.

The Israeli army said Jordanian tanks began pounding Israeli observation posts on a front several miles long. It said planes

Controversy needs explaining

Last Friday's rather placid board of trustees meeting belies the tense atmosphere and serious nature which are the by products of the current conflict-of-interest controversy.

In a prudent and wise move, the trustees decided to wait for Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley's ruling on whether President Hannah's and Treasurer Philip J. May's outside business activities constitute a conflict of interest, before taking any formal action.

In recent months, May in particular has been severely criticized by Democratic trustees for his lack of judgment in his relationship with the Philip Jesse Co. and IBM.

The central issue revolves around the fact that May was part owner of a company which constructed a building to house International Business Machines (IBM) which does a sizable amount of business with the University. May has since disposed of his stock in the company, but his wife and brothers presently serve as the board of directors and control the stock.

Although allegations have yet to be separated from fact, it is clear that May used extremely poor judgment in becoming involved in such a situation. As one trustee said, "It puts the University in an embarrassing position."

More recently, the Han-

"It puts the University in an embarrassing position..."

nah-Vincent Vandenburg issue has come to the surface. While Hannah denies that he ever consciously attempted to take advantage of his position, nonetheless his actions, on inactions in this case, showed poor judgment.

Hannah, as a public official, certainly must have realized that he might be accused of playing favorites when he allowed his brother-in-law to bid on University contracts while he (Vandenburg) owned a construction company, and then later watched as Vandenburg was hired by the University and subsequently made superintendent of construction.

Presently, there is no evidence that Vandenburg ever received a contract through other than normal procedures, but again the duties and responsibilities of a public official differ from those of a private citizen. And again, a large university, dependent as it is on the Legislature, cannot afford to overlook such details.

Much is at stake with the outcome of the attorney general's ruling and subsequent action by the trustees. Individuals' reputations and the University's reputation are at stake.

Some trustees believe the recent controversy will have a detrimental effect on the University's relationship with the Legislature next year when it comes time for new appropriations.

It should also be kept in mind, however, that one of the outspoken trustees, C. Allen Harlan, D-Southfield, is up for re-election, and that this issue certainly gives him the opportunity to speak out and be heard.

Last week Harlan and Clair White, D-Bay City, made inflammatory statements about their plans for dumping May which further stirred up the controversy and widened the rift on the board. Such public outbursts should be withheld until after the attorney general makes his ruling.

The time for the trustees to act on the matter is after the attorney general issues his findings. Then will be the time to decide on the fate of May and on whether new investigations should be made into the operations within the University.

What is clear is that the public deserves a complete explanation of the current situation; "no comments" and avoidance of the question will not only injure the individuals involved but, more importantly, the future of this University.

BOBBY SODEN

Why we're losing it, baby!

While restaurants in "Dinkytown" near the University of Minnesota campus advertised Submarine Power last weekend, National Student Assn. (NSA) delegates representing more than 100 colleges and universities met in the student Union to discuss the tactics and strategy of gaining Student Power.

The easy-going, bland atmosphere following the keynote speech by NSA President Ed Schwartz was shattered when a group of radicals from the university of Minnesota invaded the conference and attempted to take it over.

The attempt, which turned into an obscene shouting match, was forecast Thursday in a flyer distributed by the radical Nov. 17th Movement Committee, hinting that the Student Power Conference, led by Minnesota radicals, would take over the university Friday.

It is significant that this conference of 400 delegates, gathered because they felt a need for greater student participation, almost broke up in chaos when students participated fully.

The situation was, at best, ironic. Schwartz, defining student power, said, "It does not mean that students should run universities. Students should have control of anything unique to students. But students and faculty together should decide curriculum."

Later, grabbing a microphone, a Minnesota radical cried, "Let's get rid of all university administration--we'll run them ourselves. Are you satisfied with piece-meal handouts? You f----- liberals are all goddamn sellouts."

"Student Power," Schwartz continued, "will never be built on sporadic outbursts, which only reflect student powerlessness."

He was answered later when a Movement member screamed, "Let's not picket (University of Minnesota President) Moos' house. Let's burn it!" and still later,

"Let's get some emotion into this goddamn conference."

In his keynote address Schwartz said, "Frustration and disillusionment are growing on the campus."

An urgent, hysterical voice replied during the attempted takeover, "There are cops at this conference. Dirty, rotten, stinking cops. And who's that cat in the balcony? Maybe he's from the FBI. Hey, you with the camera... what the hell do you think you're doing?"

Schwartz continued, "We must educate students as to what they deserve."

In a workshop on mass action, a Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) member said, "Harass your administration. Tie up the phone lines, and they won't be able to operate."

"We're going to win. Opposition to student power will be overcome," Schwartz emphasized.

But... "Berkeley has been in a state of war for so long, we've forgotten how to wage peace," said Michael Rossman, a participant in the 1964 Free Speech Movement.

A Minnesota SDS member said, "We've got one of the most fantastic sabotage systems of any student activist group in the country. Baby, we're going to blow the f----- administration's mind. Moos is so scared of us he's got a bodyguard."

But by Sunday they had given up. A Movement spokesman said, "Yeah, we were planning to try to take over again today, but we gave up. This whole conference has been a pile of sh--."

What really was accomplished at Minnesota?

There was a total lack of communication between radicals and liberals. If there were any conservatives or moderates attending they didn't dare raise their voices.

The radicals argued for complete participatory democracy, and an end to what they called "authoritarian leadership." Their theory seemed to be that if a student held the floor for more than one minute, he was becoming an authority figure and must be shouted down.

"Man, we didn't come here to be taught anything... Dig? We want to learn from each other... Dig?"

They argued that people don't communicate with each other, as human beings anymore, and yet a good deal of their "communication" was screaming obscenities through microphones.

The liberals were there to learn from the experts and discuss problems with other delegates. They hoped to achieve the help to get started in student participation on their campuses. They wanted a start. The Minnesota radicals wanted all--now.

At the Friday night keynote speech, the two lost contact.

Perhaps Robert Van Waes, associate director of the American Association of University Professors, was right when he finally said, "I feel you're pretty mixed up. You are wrong in rejecting what you don't understand."

One thing was clear, however, and was articulated by an anonymous delegate during that first night's disturbance:

"If this is student participation, this is why we're losing, Baby!"

OUR READERS' MINDS

OCC did not make a case for proposal

To the Editor:

Miss Sue Hughes' response to my letter to the editor concerning the editorial support of the State News, as such support appeared in the Nov. 7 editorial, was read on this day.

--(1) Miss Hughes "assumes" that I had not reviewed the proposal of the OCC prior to writing to the Editors. Simply stated, I had read the proposal and found the editorial not dissimilar.

--(2) Miss Hughes is correct in stating that pages 1, 2, 3, and 4 of the OCC proposal concerns "educational effects of dormitory living" and "legality and the responsibility of the university." However, her further statement, "... the OCC had already thought of his objections and answered them" is to this writer as unacceptable as was the essence of these pages of the proposal. In these pages, the OCC, in the opinion of this writer, did not "make the case" by minimizing legal responsibilities, and (by omission) the majority of the educational objectives of the institution in its residence halls program.

--(3) Miss Hughes appears to wish to assume that my remarks were an attack upon the OCC proposal as written. It was not. My primary concern was directed toward the manner in which the editorial was written -- especially in its (apparent) intention to transform all students into adults and to make the issue a "moral" one (as, in part, in the OCC proposal, p. 7). In this regard Miss Hughes states in her letter that the OCC "questions the University's moral -- not legal or educational right -- to regulate the living habits of its students." Implied in her letter and in the OCC proposal is that such questioning actually makes the "issue" a "moral" one. Is it really a "moral" issue? Does and will the University consider it such?

--(4) Miss Hughes assumes that the State News will publish a letter to the Editor that is laden with research information supporting a particular position (which would necessitate a number of quotes and references) when in fact the policy of the State News restricts their length so as to preclude letters (not feature articles) of this nature. However, it should be known that a plethora of literature pertaining to (a) legal aspects of college administration and student personnel work, (b) educational philosophy with regard to residence halls, and (c) student rights and responsibilities, can be found in the Staff Library in the Student Services Bldg. and the University Library.

--(5) In this writer's opinion, if the OCC does make a substantial case for its proposal its greatest strength may be found in its concepts concerning "self-regulation" not in its arguments on scarcity of off-campus housing and inflationary costs for these tend to be self-defeating (financially, for the already off-campus student) when followed to their logical extreme. Meanwhile, the University's continuance of the status quo, if such occurs, may have its greatest support in its educational philosophy and commitment as implemented in residence hall construction, staffing and program.

This writer does not question the integrity of the OCC or that of the State News. He does question the ease, manner, and certainty in which the OCC and the State News have made (?) the matter a "moral" one (involving "inalienable human rights") between both organizations and the University.

CIA a job

To the Editor:

Here we go again! I had not really planned on becoming the chief campus apologist for the CIA because, if for no other reason, my view of the agency is not exactly starry-eyed. If I had had the CIA mentality, as Mr. Laurence so cleverly put it, then I would be doing something other than playing this public letterbox game.

Be that as it is, who said anything about CIA ends justifying CIA means? I did not. The point made was simply that since CIA-type work is such that it does not always measure up to American ideals of fair play, our intelligence people cannot place all of their cards face-up on the table all of the time. The name of the game is not "Give-away." The ends-means argument is something else--and it is out of my class. Since I am neither a member of the National Security Council nor am I Richard Helms by some other name, I do not have enough honest information on CIA goals or CIA methods to become involved in that discussion.

As for dehumanization, because a person accepts employment with the CIA, it does not make him any less human than, say, one who accepts employment as a humanities instructor at MSU. The philosophies differ, that's all--and there is a need and room for both in this world. The CIA does not want the desensitized, brutalized robots who meet all of the qualifications for Gestapo and Mafia membership any more than it wants the dreamy-eyed idealists who would take us into the international arena of unconventional warfare armed with a bunch of daisies in one hand and a basket of cookies in the other.

And while we are asking questions, let's try this old chestnut (in English where it is more readily understandable but, alas, not nearly as pretentious): And who is to protect those who cannot or will not protect themselves?

Interest conflict OK, SN not

To the Editor:

It appears to me that the State News has finally accomplished a major face lifting in the November 17th issue. Conflicts which arise every day at MSU are so many and of such great variety that SN, with all the wisdom of "Journalistic Liberalism" (or whatever the term is for non-objective reporting), has instituted a second editorial page. The standard "Editorials" can, as usual, be found on the 4th page, one column north of "Peanuts" by west of Phil Frank. It is here that the Editorial staff takes their brave stand on such controversial subjects as sorority keys and selective hours.

To make clear their position on issues that affect everybody, both faculty and students alike, such issues as President Hannah's supposed nepotism, the asked for dismissal of Philip May, and "Contract Discrepancy..." the State News seems to position its editorial views on the front page.

Perhaps I am wrong. Perhaps the State News is not really editorializing, but if not it is surely guilty of giving far too much coverage to Messrs. Harlan and White's various accusations while giving extremely limited, back page coverage to what the real crux of the matter. That is, that Mr. Harlan's "pot calling the kettle black" accusations are the result of strong partisan motivations to discredit President Hannah and his aides.

Mr. Harlan, who is "... not an officer ... not a director and ... not a stockholder of Harlan Electric," but "... oc-

DEATH TOLL 66

Crash probe asked

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) -- The death toll rose to 66 Tuesday in the crash of a Trans World Airlines jet and demand was made for an immediate congressional investigation.

Sixteen persons survived the crash Monday night but several are near death in hospitals.

It was the third major aircraft accident in two years at the Greater Cincinnati Airport, just across the Ohio River in Kentucky, 15 miles from downtown Cincinnati.

Only two weeks ago, an airliner skidded during a takeoff at the airport. One woman died but her death was not attributed to the crash.

The accidents, state Aviation Director Normal Crabtree said, raise serious questions as to the safety factors involved.

"This is a Federal Aviation Agency facility under direct control of Congress and should be investigated by Congress," he said.

Rep. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, whose district includes Cincinnati, asked for a full investigation of operations at the airport.

"I am today asking the Federal Aviation Agency, the Civil Aeronautics Board and the National Transportation Safety Board for the fullest investigation into and reports on the recent disaster and the near-disaster," Taft said.

The TWA jet, with 82 persons aboard, had approached from the west, turned south toward the landing corridor, but clipped trees topping a hill that fronts the airport.

The jet reared at treetop height for a mile, then fell into an orchard. Two explosions and a fire followed leaving a charred jumble of wreckage.

It was only several hundred yards from the spot where an American Airlines jet smashed into the hillsides Nov. 8, 1965, killing 58 of the 62 persons aboard.

Both jet crashes occurred in less than ideal weather, both on Monday nights. In the first, it was raining; this time a misty snow was falling.

There was confusion in early estimates of the number of passengers and the number of dead. It climbed past 40, then to 60, then to 64.

Twelve hours later, the 65th victim died at a Covington hospital. The 66th victim died two hours later.

Federal Aviation authorities immediately began probing the hits of wreckage, looking for a clue to the cause. FBI agents flew in from Washington to help.

The pilot, Charles L. Cochran, was killed along with four other crewmen. Cochran, World War II Marine flyer, would have celebrated his 15th anniversary with TWA Friday.

The Trans World Airline Convair 440 jet had been substituted for flight 128 from Los Angeles to Boston with stops here and at Pittsburgh, after a faulty door on the scheduled plane delayed departure two hours at Los Angeles.

The 1965 crash was blamed on "human error" after federal officials spent nearly a year investigating. They said the crew apparently was trying too hard to watch the landing field and lost contact with altitude indicators.

In that crash, like the one Monday night, those who were first on the scene reported explosions after the plane hit the earth. A volunteer life squad captain said he heard two blasts while on his way to Monday night's crash scene.

The usual approach to the airport is from the west. Pilots use Mount St. Joseph College as a landmark, the point to turn south toward the landing strip.

Anticlimax finale for grid seniors

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

The seniors on this year's Spartan football squad will enter Saturday's season finale having known the heights and depths of MSU's fortunes in their three years on the varsity.

As sophomores they saw MSU go from the unranked and sixth-place in the Big Ten standings in 1964 to the Big Ten and national championship and a trip to the Rose Bowl in 1965.

The next year only a 10-10 tie with Notre Dame in the "Game Of The Century" blemished the season's record and dropped MSU to the second spot in the national rankings.

This year the pendulum has swung the other way and MSU is back among the unranked with seven losses and two wins.

The seniors must also close out their MSU career against Northwestern, a team that is tied with MSU in the conference standings with a 2-4 Big Ten and 3-6 overall mark.

MSU's seniors are Bob Apisa, Sterling Armstrong, Mike Bradley, Phil Britton, George Chatlos, Drake Garrett, Bill Grimes, Maurice Haynes, Bob Lange, Dwight Lee, Eric Marshall, Mitch Pruitt, Joe Przybycki, Ron Ranieri, Jimmy Raye, Larry Smith and Dave Techlin.

Clinton Meadows and Ken Heft are both seniors scholastically and juniors eligibility-wise and could play another year if they do not graduate this year.

Saturday's game will probably be the most anti-climactic and unimportant game the seniors have played for MSU.

Duffy Daugherty listed Northwestern among nine conference squads who rate as average or slightly above average teams, and said only Purdue could be considered outstanding in the Big Ten.

But he also expressed respect for the Wildcats' defense.

"Northwestern came the closest to beating Purdue (they lost by nine points) and were leading going into the fourth quarter, so you have to consider them as potentially dangerous," Daugherty said.

The Wildcats led Purdue 16-9 entering the fourth quarter of the game, but Leroy Keyes went to work and the Boilermakers pulled out a 25-16 victory.

Northwestern started the year with a 12-7 upset of the then highly-ranked Miami (Fla.). The Wildcats then lost four straight before defeating Wisconsin 17-13. Their other win was against Iowa 30-24.

The Wildcats lost close games to Ohio State, 6-2 and Michigan 7-3.

The offensive standouts for Northwestern are halfback Chico Kurzwaski, an 180-pound junior halfback, Bob Olson, a 212-pound junior halfback and Bruce Gunstra, a 225-pound guard.

Kurzwaski was the Wildcats' leading rusher last year and is vying with Olson for that honor this year. Like Purdue's Leroy Keyes and Indiana's John Isenbarger, Kurzwaski is very versatile and poses a multiple threat.

Kurzwaski is second in rushing, pass receiving, kickoff returns and scoring and leads the Wildcats in punting and punt returns.

He's also third in passing with four completions in seven attempts, one for a touchdown.

Olson has been the Wildcats' most effective rusher and has picked up more than 400 yards in the first nine games.

Gunstra is a strong All-Big Ten and All-American candidate. He was a major reason for the Miami upset, leading the blocking against a tough Miami defensive line.

Love to be Lee successor?

By DON DAHLSTROM
State News Sports Writer

A possible successor to senior halfback Dwight Lee was put on display at the MSU-Indiana freshman game this season.

He is Tommy Love, a 6-foot-1, 195-pound halfback from Sylva, N.C.

In the Indiana game, he rushed for 94 yards, scored three touchdowns, and returned one kick-off 32 yards. He carried the ball 28 times from scrimmage which would have been the second-highest number of carries in Spartan history, had it been a Spartan game.

Almost all his yardage came on power plays off tackle which have been a Lee specialty for three years. Love is just an inch shorter and six pounds lighter than Lee.

In last Friday's intra-squad game, Love scored both of the White touchdowns.

Love, a physical education major with coaching ambitions, played his high school ball at Webster High School in Sylva, N.C.

He lettered three times each in football and basketball and twice in track. He was clocked in 9.9 seconds for the 100-yard dash.

In football, Love played quarterback, offensive and defensive halfback, and safety.

In his junior and senior years,

Webster had 11-1 records and won conference titles.

In his senior year he rushed for 10 yards per carry, scored 30 touchdowns, and passed for 17 more from a halfback position.

"Our quarterback wasn't too good a passer so I did most of the passing on halfback pass-run options," said Love.

"Our fullback, who is now at West Point, scored 29 touchdowns also. We averaged 48 points per game, which was the third highest total in the nation. We would play schools with larger enrollments and run up more than 60 points.

"Usually the first string would be out of the game by halftime. We had a real powerhouse."

For his performance, Love was named to numerous honor squads after the year including all-conference, all-state, all-Southern, and All-America. He began to receive scholarship offers from over 40 colleges and universities.

He was voted the most valuable player in the Shrine Bowl all-star game between players from North and South Carolina, scoring two touchdowns to lead the North squad to victory.

An MSU alumnus talked to Love after that game. A week later, End Coach Cal Stoll went down to talk to Love.

"I was all ready to go to either North Carolina or Tennessee," said Love. "Then I made my first trip to the MSU campus in January of this year."

"It was after this visit that I switched my choice to Michigan State. I was really impressed with the school. I liked the coaching staff, the friendly atmosphere, and the social life."

"Michigan State has a fine football tradition, and I just decided that I wanted to be a part of it. I was the first athlete from my high school to come to a Big Ten school."

The toughest thing to get used to, according to Love, is the few freshman games played.

"We started practice on September 12," Love noted. "It's pretty hard to go out to practice every day without playing much. Everyone on the team has been disappointed that the Notre Dame game was cancelled. We were all looking forward to the game."

Thanksgiving blessings

In the spirit of Thanksgiving, the State News sports department reflects the gratefulness of certain individuals and their seasons.

Duffy Daugherty can be thankful that he has only one game remaining this year.

The soccer team can be thankful that Gene Kenney knows about the island of Jamaica.

Bill Beardsley can be thankful that most students bought season tickets instead of game-by-game.

Fran Dittich and the cross country team can be thankful for all the exercise and fresh air this fall.

Dan Boisture can be thankful that he left while MSU was winning.

Vince Carillot can be thankful that he had the chance to leave.

By DAN DAUGHERTY
State News Sports Writer

With the season heading into its last week there are still several questions about Rose Bowl playoffs that need answering. By 4 p.m. Saturday these questions will have been answered in one of the following ways: Purdue either will win the title outright or it will share it with either Minnesota or Indiana or both.

Indiana and Minnesota cannot win the championship outright, but either can go to Pasadena. If a tie for first involves both Minnesota and Indiana, then the Hoosiers will go to the Rose Bowl.

Purdue and Indiana meet in the battle for the Old Oaken Bucket and a chance for the Hoosiers to go to the Rose Bowl. Indiana can lose to the Boilermakers and still travel westward for Christmas if Minnesota wins. But a U-M victory over Purdue, who is No. 3 in the country, would insure the trip.

Minnesota entertains Wisconsin at home, and is favored to defeat the winless Badgers. A victory or tie would give the Gophers the Rose Bowl invitation.

Michigan and Ohio State play in their annual last game of the season contest. This game has seen blizzards, torrential downpours, and lots of mud in years past.

The Wolverines and the Buckeyes have both improved vastly over the course of the season and the game Saturday could go either way.

MSU entertains Northwestern, who has also had a tough year. Both teams will be playing a lot of underclassmen and should provide a good indication of what kind of squads each will have.

Iowa and Illinois finish their seasons in what should be an interesting game. Illinois has had a few impressive wins, Iowa, although their record doesn't show it, has given many opponents a run for the money. Both are young teams and like MSU and Northwestern should demonstrate much of things to come.

Around the country, there are two important games. UCLA plays Syracuse and must win this weekend over the Orangemen if they are to remain in the top ten in the polls. Notre Dame travels to Florida to play Miami who is seeking a bowl bid.

BOOTER OFFENSE READY

Zips 2d NCAA foe

By NORM SAARI
State News Sports Writer

The MSU soccer team will meet the University of Akron Saturday in an NCAA quarter-finals game. The Zips upset Temple University 1-0 Monday in the first round.

A playing site will be announced today.

When center forward Trevor Harris gets the ball in an MSU soccer game, his first move is to beat the defense and try to score a goal.

And his moves usually work. Harris is leading the undefeated Spartan soccer team in scoring with 21 goals and has added another four assists for 25 total points.

But when wingman Tom Kreft controls the ball, he has two possible moves—bring the ball inside himself and hope for a good shot or wait for the center half to pick him up and pass to a forward for a shot.

Kreft has excelled at the latter and leads the team in assists with nine.

Harris' goal mark is three behind the all-time season record set by Guy Busch in 1965. Kreft needs only two more assists to tie the MSU record set by Bill Schwarz and George Janes in 1963.

If the Spartans continue winning the NCAA championship tournament, they could play another three games in their record book assaults.

Harris, a sophomore, feels a forward on the attack must be concerned with how the defense is playing him.

"The first thing that I always think is to get the center half or fullback out of the way," Harris said. "Then you have to figure out which way the goal keeper is going to move and let him think he is going the right way."

"When he makes his move, it is a matter of going the other way and trying to beat him."

On the wing, Kreft said he would rather make the first move and have the defense come out on him.

"If I beat the fullback, the center half has to come out to meet me," Kreft said. "Then it's just a matter of passing into the middle of the field to an open man."

Kreft, who also has four goals, said he would rather get his shot away before the goalie comes out to meet him and cut down the angle of the open goal.

Following Harris in the scoring is Ernie Tuchscherer, sophomore inside left who has 12 goals and four assists.

Tuchscherer, a member of the U.S. Pan-Am and Olympic soccer teams, feels the best shot is a soft but well placed one.

"I like to kick it with the inside of my right foot," Tuchscherer said, "because it is easier to control. The ideal shot is one well-placed in a corner."

He prefers a goalie to stay back in the goal on a one-on-one situation, since a "smart goalie will wait until you make a wrong move. If he comes out on you, it is easier to fake and get a better shot."

Offensive success

Tom Kreft and Trevor Harris celebrate an MSU goal in the nets against Maryland last Saturday. A dejected Mario Jalencovich, Terrapin goalie, looks on as the Spartan leaders retrieve the ball.

Green comes up--for grounds crew

By TOM BROWN

State News Sports Writer
At the start of the season, Duffy Daugherty scuffed his shoe through the lush grass at Spartan Stadium.

"Another slow field this year," he chuckled.

"We may want it that way this fall," he added, rather prophetically.

For those who never saw it, last year's turf was the scandal of the land grant schools.

Some people said that they had seen greener grass in the dust bowl. People in Ann Arbor agreed that the field was a disgrace to a university so well known for its agricultural background.

Daugherty ordered the GI haircut for the greenery in search of a second straight undisputed Big Ten championship.

The result was a fast track for the Spartan speedsters.

It also resulted in a field that looked like the mating ground of a heard of jack rabbits.

"A little misunderstanding at the beginning of the season," Siebert (SI) Meerman, head athletic grounds keeper, called it.

"Duffy wanted it hard, dry, and short, and that is what he got."

Grounds keepers are reputed to be a wily lot wherever they practice their trade--be it Chavez Ravine or Spartan Stadium. Loaded with mysterious and nefarious nostrums, they are believed capable of growing grass on a bald man's head or felling Maury Wills.

Meerman insists that he works no black magic.

"All we can do is replace the divots and roll it. That's all you can do this late in the fall when there is no growing season," he said.

Early in the season they will mow the field once, perhaps twice, a week.

"We cut it down as low as the coach wants it, Meerman said.

"We try to water it enough to keep the divots alive. We don't have too much time when we have only a week, but when we have two weeks, we can do a pretty good job," he added.

The football field, sodded in 1962 with Marion Blue, and the I.M. fields are Meerman's biggest headaches.

Soccer, Meerman allowed, causes few problems for his six-man crew and three student helpers.

When asked about the mudhole left on Old College Field after Friday's intra-squad game, Meerman exhibited a highly pragmatic nature.

Skaters open season in East

By DON DAHLSTROM
State News Sports Writer

Hockey Coach Amo Bessone would like to have history repeat itself.

Two years ago, the MSU hockey team was handicapped in pre-season practice when the ice-making machine broke leaving Ice Arena without ice. The team went from that setback to win the NCAA championship tournament at the season's end.

Now the ice machine again broke down last week. The team has not had practice on local ice in over a week. It has traveled to Ann Arbor at the University of Michigan to practice for three days.

It won't be an easy task for the Spartans to go to the NCAA championships a third straight year. Eight seniors from last year's team are missing.

Also goalie Gaye Coolie, who still had a year's eligibility remaining, has not returned to school. He was given much of the credit for putting the Spartans into the NCAA championships the past two seasons.

Only one of the top scorers from the 1966-1967 team has returned--senior Tom Mikkola who led the team with 20 goals and 25 assists. However, he has only one quarter of eligibility left and will be available through the first 10 games only.

Although 12 letterwinners return, MSU's biggest problem is a lack of experience. "We have a lot of good skaters on the team," Bessone said, "but most of them don't have too much experience."

Spartans left today for a three-day, three-game Eastern trip Thursday, Friday and Saturday. They have two games with St. Lawrence with a single game with Clarkson in between.

"This will be a training trip for us," Bessone said. "It will give us a chance to see what our personnel can do under game conditions."

Face off

Spartan hockey stars Bob Follett, Tom Mikkola and Nino Cristofoli face off before the start of the 1967-68 season.

Perhaps the most vital concept associated with the American Way is the idea that even the most unpopular dissenter has the right to be heard and to have his views made available for objective evaluation by the public. Unfortunately, this right is frequently denied these people.

Therefore, we should consider ourselves extremely lucky that we have a man of influence in the mass media—a veritable paragon of patriotism and a believer in the rights of the individual—who sees to it that those who deviate from the established norms of our society have the opportunity to express themselves. This individual deserves our admiration for maintaining his late Saturday evening television program as a public forum.

The following, then, is a tribute to that man.

INTERVIEWER: Our first crackpot . . . uh . . . guest, I mean (heh, heh), is Mr. Smokey the Bear. By your name Mr. Bare, I take it that you're the representative from the exhibitionist colony.

SMOKEY: No, quite the contrary. I just wanted to say a few words about our forest fire prevention program . . .

INTERVIEWER: Don't try to evade the subject, Bear! I understand you have a group of followers who wear old boy scout hats and live in tree houses.

SMOKEY: Well, yes . . . but these are our conservation rangers. Our cons . . .

INTERVIEWER: I wasn't going to say anything, but since you brought up the topic of conservation, I didn't see your picture on a poster in the post office?

SMOKEY: Well, as a public service, we do have posters distributed for display in government agencies, but these are for . . .

INTERVIEWER: Then you admit to it! What is this country coming to when they allow fiends like you on the government payroll? You're probably a security risk and . . .

SMOKEY: Now that's not . . .

INTERVIEWER: Why do you keep interrupting me? Are you insecure? You must have a guilty conscience. Just what sort of thing are you involved with in this fire perversion program of yours?

SMOKEY: That's pervention!

INTERVIEWER: No, you are! You do a lot of work with fire which is red and dangerous. You must be Communist, Bear.

SMOKEY: If I wasn't pledged to protect all trees—even Pines, regardless of how ugly their bark is, I'd . . .

INTERVIEWER: Ahh, your mother was a Nazi. I don't know what makes you think I have to tolerate this intellectualist garbage you Commies are trying to put over on us plain folks, but you don't make any sense at all.

SMOKEY: I'm making more sense than . . .

INTERVIEWER: What are you trying to jeopardize my position for? What right does someone who comes from where you come from have to talk to me like that? I was in the Marines for four years; my family came over on the Mayflower; one of my ancestors had an interview program during the Spanish Inquisition. Can you sit there and deny that you are a subversive? I defy you, in front of my entire viewing audience to deny this fact. Do you have anything to say?

SMOKEY: I can prove, beyond a doubt, that . . .

Weight limit set for Hagadorn Rd.

By JIM SCHAEFER
State News Staff Writer

Hopes to keep traffic moving on Hagadorn Road were shored up by a traffic control order on axle weight limits for trucks passed by the East Lansing City Council Monday night.

The council issued the order after Robert Bruce, city engineer, requested the action to prevent further break-up of the asphalt base laid last week.

The order enforces an axle load of 12,000 pounds and a maximum wheel load "not to exceed 450 pounds per inch of tire width."

Bruce said Tuesday that most trucks loaded to their maximum capacity would be too heavy.

"Even a small dump truck could be too heavy with a concentrated load," Bruce said.

"We're hoping for voluntary enforcement."

Bruce said he was going to try to get some weight scales to enforce the order.

In other action, the council approved the request of Alco Construction Corp. for a sewer extension to a proposed apartment complex at 1850 Abbott Road.

The agreement on the sewer facility was one of several conditions required by the planning commission before it would recommend approval of the apartment project.

'U' will host cross-culture conference

As most MSU students head home for the Christmas holidays, 70 foreign students from universities and colleges across the nation will arrive on campus to participate in "An Adventure in World Understanding," Dec. 19-28.

Hosted by the Continuing Education Services the program is hoped to help interpret cultures of one society in relation to others.

Six MSU students, three men and three women, will be hosts. The expense-free international program will require hosts to lead discussions, participate on informal conversation panels.

Applications for interested students are available in 106 Student Services Bldg. Further information can be obtained from Mabel Petersen or Louis Hekhuis, co-chairman of the program.

Romney to tell travel plans

A spokesman for Gov. Romney says he may explain this morning how he intends to handle state matters while a candidate for the Presidency.

Romney, just back from a State Department briefing on foreign affairs in Washington, D.C., has come under increasing attack for his absences from Michigan. The governor is also planning on going on a one-month globe-trotting stint, including a stop in South-east Asia early next month.

Romney has said repeatedly that his state responsibilities will take precedence over any other activities. There are indications, however, the governor will soon delegate some of his authority to Lt. Gov. William Milliken.

Democratic State Chairman Zolton Ferency has once again indicated that he may resign. Ferency, an unsuccessful candidate for governor in 1966, has given similar indications several times in the past, but never resigned. "Because the party had no one to replace me," Michigan Democratic Party leaders, including Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, Secretary of State Jim Hare and U.S. Senator Philip Hart have expressed discontent with Ferency's activities.

A statement on Oct. 17 by Ferency declaring that "Johnson is in no mood to tolerate differences or dissent" apparently united some of those in opposition to Ferency's continuing in office.

Ferency says he will hold a news conference Nov. 28 to announce his decision.

The Michigan Civil Rights Commission conducted a lengthy hearing on open housing legislation at the Capitol Tuesday. The commission is trying to set the stage for passage of an open housing law when the lawmakers return to Lansing Dec. 12.

The Legislature took a three-week recess Nov. 16, a move many political observers feel will kill chances for open housing legislation this year.

Seniors of the week

Marti Ehrhart Dick Stauffer

It's a turkey -- or possibly goose -- hunt for Thanksgiving dinner with this week's seniors of the week.

Marti Ehrhart and Dick ("Goose") Stauffer are accustomed to working together. Both are members of senior class council, the ASMSU Cabinet and Water Carnival Executive Board.

Marti is secretary of the senior class, executive secretary of Water Carnival, personnel director for ASMSU and a member of Kappa Delta sorority. A child development major from Frankfort, she hopes to work for a master's degree after a year of travel in Europe.

"The experience of traveling is invaluable," Marti said. "It's so much more educational than reading books. I'd never give up the summers I worked at Cape Cod and Mackinac."

"My pet peeve is uninformed people," she said. "They have the opportunity and don't use it. You have to go and find it yourself."

"Obviously, this is the way life is," she said. "If you're going to sit around and wait for things to come to you, it's going to pass you by."

While Marti is primarily interested in working with younger children, Dick hopes to teach high school art before going into advertising or public relations.

An art major from Hastings, he has managed to relate his major to his activities. He is chairman of art and design for Water Carnival, chaired the same committee for Homecoming for two years, is director of publicity for ASMSU, music chairman for Delta Tau Delta fraternity, and publicity chairman for senior council. He was on Union Board for two years and is on the student advisory committee for the art department.

"Grades are not the important thing for me, unfortunately," he said.

The nickname "Goose" started in high school and hung on, he said. There are several "Dick's" here, he said, but only one "Goose."

Besides his several activities, Dick is an avid reader, movie- and theatre-goer, and concert-lover.

"I like working with people," he said, "learning how to influence them, doing things with a lot of proper dignity that befits modern society. The epitome of this is Senior Council."

SEASON FINALE

Band plans 'finest show'

By JERRY PANKHURST
State News Staff Writer

The Spartan Marching Band will top off football season this Saturday with the finest show yet, according to Harry Began, director of bands, and Bill Moffit, director of the marching band.

Moffit stated that the band has had a "most remarkable season." Performing 24 new arrangements and many new marching techniques, the band has "established new high water marks in marching and sound," he said.

As a newcomer to the band, Began has been thrilled with its performance. "I'm sure there's no marching band that comes up to the Michigan State Band, neither as to quality and intricacy of drills, nor to the playing standards of the band," Began said. There are still things to improve, but it's been an excellent season, he felt.

Saturday's show will be a combination of the traditional hits of the season and several new ideas, with a salute to the band's 32 graduating seniors.

"That Old Black Magic," the first half-time piece, was premiered at the Ohio State game, but Saturday an entirely new maneuver will be fitted to it. According to Moffit, the new techniques introduced in this and other numbers on Saturday's agenda will be further explored next season.

While playing "Little Boat," a bossanova rearranged for a marching band, the band will maneuver in a mosaic effect of "Patterns of Motion." The geometric designs will change within themselves without the band moving extensively out of the original position.

During "Up, Up and Away," the band will execute the most extensive maneuver combination done yet. For more than two minutes the band will be in almost continuous motion as it spreads over 85 yards. This drill will feature the two parts of the band, split by the fifty yard line, mirroring each other in their maneuvers.

The next number, "El Cum-banchero," will have a twofold highlight. While the band's Latin percussion perform Latin rhythms, graduating drum major Tom Veenendall will be featured as a twirler. Veenendall travels extensively to marching clinics and often acts as a twirling judge in competitions, having won many honors himself.

One of the innovations of this season was "Spartan Showcase," written especially to fit marching maneuvers. With special attention to "fancy footwork, dynamic drums, and brilliant brass," this will be the fifth number of half-time.

As a satire of dual piano teams, the band will play "Dual Conductors," a combination of music running the gamut from Tchaikovsky and Grieg, through "Can Can" and "Here Comes the Bride," to a "duel" between "Stars and Stripes Forever," and the New World Symphony. For this number, half the band will be conducted by Began, the other half by Moffit.

As a finale to the season, the band will perform with what is considered the biggest musical innovation this year, the new E-flat trumpets, and a rescored version in the "1967 sound for marching bands," of "Stars and Stripes Forever." Moffit has arranged this number in the way he feels Sousa would have arranged it if he lived today.

Began has termed the sound of the band as "oriented to those instruments that are best outdoors," and has received an overwhelmingly favorable reaction to it. Began finds the typical comment runs: In spite of terrible weather and football losses, the band wins every weekend.

Applications for nominations for Miss MSU are available from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. daily in the Union Board Office on the second floor of the Union. Any group, organization or individual can sponsor a candidate. Application fee is $10.

There will be a meeting of the Undergraduate English Club at 4 p.m. Monday in 38-39 Union. Graduate school and career opportunities for English majors will be discussed.

The showing of the MSU-Purdue game film, sponsored by the Union Board, has been cancelled. There are no plans for rescheduling.

Petitioning for the WMSN chairmanship is open to all on-campus residents. Deadline is at 12 noon today.

Sophia Noel, accompanied by guitarist Jesus Gonzales, will perform at 8 p.m. Tuesday in B106 Wells Hall. Admission is free.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS

New morality criticized

Hippies, the new morality and drugs were condemned by a series of resolutions adopted in August by 6,000 Christian Scientist college students and recently adopted unanimously by the Christian Science Organization at MSU.

The MSU students affirmed their dedication to the "two great commandments" of Christ: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind" and "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

They then passed seven resolutions on peace, racial tensions, involvement, morality, drugs, academics and healing.

An attitude of peace and love within each individual will alleviate international strife, the first resolution said. Similarly, racial tension will diminish when men learn to see other men as their brothers.

A third resolution defined "involvement" as "the acceptance of responsibility by the individual in caring for others which overcomes the problems of apathy and the 'generation gap.'"

"Concern for others demonstrates the responsibility which is inherent in freedom, avoiding the nihilistic escapism of the hippies and their lack of commitment to society," it said.

The Christian Scientists also declared that "permissive new morality destroys stability in society." The basis for a strong society is the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount.

"Drugs and stimulants can never provide a man with permanent satisfaction, freedom or happiness," the fifth resolution read in part.

"The belief that these can be obtained by the use of drugs such as LSD is a negation of man's independence," the resolution said.

Another resolution called academics "an expression of the infinitude of ideas, all having their source in God" and said, "Honesty, prayer, diligence and the recognition that intelligence is equally available to each individual produces stability in academic life."

The last resolution said "Healing of mankind's ills is divinely possible now" through Christian Science.

17TH CENTURY

Causes for early thanks: floors, tea

By DAYLE SCHWARZLER
State News Staff Writer

There is an old legend that tells of two angels sent to earth, each with a basket, the one to gather up the prayers of the people, the other, their thanksgiving.

When the angels returned, they grieved to find that the first basket was filled to overflowing, while the second was nearly empty.

"Our blessings are usually equal to our needs, and far outnumber our misfortunes," says the moralist who told this tale. In 1623, when Massachusetts' Governor Bradford called for the first Thanksgiving Day in America, it seemed to work that way for the Pilgrims.

A later author pointed up some of the things they cheerfully did without as they thanked God for the abundant harvest which saved them from starvation on the rocky shores of the New World. Some of the things which the Pilgrims had reason to be thankful for during those early years were:

Wooden floors--made possible by sawmills in place of stone or earthen floors, about 1666.

Glass mirrors--in England, 1673.

Electric lights--1874, of course.

The Pilgrims, in fact, even got along without watches until 1658, coffee until 1641 and tea until 1666.

Even the 17th-century death rate of one person in 17 annually didn't really seem to affect their merry Thanksgiving, by all the accounts we have. Turkeys, fowl, deer, clams, oysters, wild fruit, corn--and liquor--graced their Thanksgiving table.

In the years that followed, Thanksgiving Day was celebrated irregularly and on different days in November until 1864, when President Lincoln officially proclaimed that it should be held on the fourth Thursday of the month.

Before and since, much has been made of Thanksgiving as a holiday especially for Americans, whatever their faith, when they look back and, in some measure, attempt to remedy the bareness of the second angel's basket.

Study continues

The ASMSU course evaluation series continues today with seven sections scheduled for visits.

The sections are: ATL 111 sections 3, 9, 328 and Honors 15; Social Science 231 section 13; Humanities 241 section 202 and Natural Science 191 section 302.

Petitioning open

Petitions are now being accepted for the chairmanship of the all-campus radio board. They are available in 8 Student Services Bldg.

Peter H. Sorum, Rochester, Minn. senior, recently resigned from the chairmanship for personal reasons.

To qualify for the position, a student must have a minimum 2.0 grade point average and live on campus.

Petitions must be returned by Nov. 22.

The board's choice for chairman will be announced at the last meeting of the term on Nov. 27.

MASS OFFERED

JFK's death recalled today

WASHINGTON (P) — In the historic old cathedral that was draped in black crepe four years ago, the noon Mass today will be offered for John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

However, at Arlington National Cemetery, where the late President is buried, no special ceremonies are planned to make the day, Nov. 22, 1963, when he was assassinated in Dallas, Tex.

There will be visitors to the grave who will stand in silent remembrance, as happens every day.

The Mass will be offered at St. Matthew's Cathedral, not far from the White House, where Kennedy's body lay for his funeral Mass.

Kennedy's brothers and sisters went to the grave last year. But, always, his widow has stayed in seclusion each Nov. 22 since that fateful day. She and her children, John F. Kennedy Jr., who will be 7 years old on Saturday, and Caroline, 10 next Monday, are in New York.

In these four years since Kennedy's death, 21 million persons have walked up the sloping hill to stand and look at the site where the dead President lies buried at the foot of an eternal flame.

Figures kept by the Military District of Washington, which oversees the gravesite, show that the people still come in numbers as large as in the first months after the funeral. The number rises during the summer, some 647,000 came last August alone.

'MINIPOUND' DEBUT

Tories hit new rate

LONDON (P) — Britain's new $2.40 minipound made its debut in the market place here Tuesday and was an instant hit—but not to angry Conservatives in the House of Commons.

Conservatives accused the Labor government of bungling the nation's finances into forced devaluation of the pound, cut Saturday from its old rate of $2.80.

Opposition finance spokesman Iain Macleod reserved his heaviest fire for Prime Minister Harold Wilson, quoting with bitter sarcasm the prime minister's repeated assurances that his government would never devalue the pound.

Macleod glared across at Wilson, sitting unsmiling with his feet up on a desk, and growled: "He has not only devalued the pound, he has devalued his own word and betrayed his high office. It is time for him to get out."

Across town in London's financial district, dealers in foreign exchange scrambled wildly for pounds they had been dumping like hot potatoes last week.

Demand for the pound to meet immediate commitments was so intense it forced the price up to $2.42, two cents above the official rate. During the past three years of crisis, the spread above the old rate had never been that high.

It was a rough day for domestic companies on the stock market, which had been closed Monday to cushion the shock of the government's deflationary measures.

There were rises in the shares of exporting and international companies. Dealers in the mining section were swamped with buying orders. Dollar stocks scored big rises and oil shares improved.

The index for 500 stocks wound up at 133.77, down 0.33. The New York stock market surged higher in a vigorous recovery from losses Monday triggered by the devaluation.

ged by the devaluation of the pound and boosts in British and U.S. interest rates.

The ceiling of the new pound is $2.42. The quick rise raised the prospect that the Bank of England would be obliged to sell sterling, a new experience.

Under the postwar Breton

Woods accord, Britain is obliged to support its currency by buying when it goes two cents below par and sell, to keep it from being overvalued, when it reaches two cents above par. The bank has been buying pounds, sometimes frantically, during times of crisis, for years.

Israeli jets shell tanks

called in to silence the Jordanian guns destroyed six tanks and an armored car. Israeli casualties were reported at two dead and one wounded.

The Jordanian radio said two Mystere fighter-bombers were shot down but the Israelis conceded only one. The broadcast said one Israeli pilot bailed out and was killed.

Amman said Jordanian forces suffered no casualties and lost one military vehicle. It claimed that Israeli gun positions were destroyed and most of their personnel were killed.

The Jordanians said the Israelis fired first with tanks, field guns and artillery. Jordanian units shot back and Israeli planes attacked, they said.

Associated Press newsman Atalla Mansour reached the Allenby Bridge during the air strike and reported that Israeli planes knocked out Jordanian anti-aircraft guns within 10 minutes.

"The planes bombed around Karana village but did not hit it," Mansour said. "They flew around without any trouble, in complete control, picking their targets at will. They swooped down west and south of the village and huge clouds of smoke and flame bloomed up after every bombing pass."

"Later, they attacked some positions on the hills rising out of the Dead Sea several miles east. The strike lasted for about two hours."

Karama is the site of a U.N. camp for about 25,000 Arab refugees. Jordan's army accused Israeli units of shelling the camp Monday, killing 14 and wounding 28.

During the air raids, schools were closed and civilian flights were suspended in Amman. Harrison Synnes, the new U.S. ambassador, was presenting his credentials to Prince Hassan at the royal palace.

council to be a slap against May. Rather, they felt then when serious charges were made against a university official, they had no immediate conclusion.

Killingworth commended the council for its stand in this controversy.

"Faculty bodies have a reputation for endless debate and no action," he said. "We're proud of the ability of the council to act decisively in this instance."

The Academic Council consists of representatives from each college, the deans of several colleges and university administrators. Meeting at least once a month, the council discusses matters of academic policy.

Pete Cannon, Charleston, S.C., senior, will present the proposed amendment at the next Men's Hall Association (MHA) meeting Nov. 29.

"My philosophy is that a constitution is something you experiment with," Cannon said. "I don't feel that the ASMSU constitution is good. I think the proposed amendment would help make it a better working constitution."

All present six members-at-large live off campus. Cannon said this does not mean they ignore student opinion in the residence halls, but that it makes it harder for them to discover it.

According to Pete Ellsworth, vice chairman of ASMSU, only five per cent of the senior class and 45-50 per cent of the junior class live on campus.

One of Cannon's main arguments for the new system is that candidates who are running would only have to campaign for a certain number of students in a complex, rather than the entire student body. Cannon said this would reduce the maximum cost of campaigning from $200 to $75.

Chris Manners, president of Bailey Hall, said the proposed amendment was presented to the Bailey Hall Council and the council voted in favor of it. The petition is now being circulated in Bailey.

Rick Hula, president of Bryan, said if the motion is brought up in MHA, he will oppose it.

Bill Lukens, president of MHA, said MHA is in no way involved with the petitions being circulated. Lukens said people may mistakenly think it is connected with MHA because some of the people involved have been or now are connected with MHA.

"I'm definitely against it," Dick Herrold, president of Inter-Fraternity Council, said. "I think it would weaken the board. It would restrict people running because they would have to live in residence halls."

Harvey Dzodin, junior member-at-large living in a fraternity house, said the proposal would fractionalize the campus because members-at-large would not be representing the entire community, but rather only represent a few select people in a select governing group.

"I think this proposed amendment to the constitution is undemocratic and an attempt at an institutionalized gerrymander," Dzodin said. "First, it would disenfranchise off-campus students from their representation by the members-at-large and from running for positions on the board."

"Second, it would not be fair to have one representative from South Complex and one representative from West Circle which has approximately half the number of students as South Complex."

Greg Hopkins, chairman of ASMSU, said there are many more factors against this proposal than for it.

"I don't think a change in the structure is the answer," Hopkins said. "Just because you change the structure, it is no assurance that better communication will be brought about."

Ellsworth said the basic structure ASMSU has now is good and the answers to problems can be found within this structure.

Ellsworth said a committee should be set up to look at this problem and reevaluate the new form of student government. Ellsworth said there are flaws which need to be alleviated, but the proposed amendment is not the solution.

No female member is established under the amendment; although West Circle is all women, this would insure one female member on the board.

Prof house

be installed in the dining room. However, its designers have taken into account the need for a ballroom for dancing. This carpeted area can be changed to a dancing floor.

Plans for the clubhouse were made after members were asked to request the types of facilities they wanted in the building.

At this time, some members are still pondering the idea of a sauna bath, not presently included in the plans, as well as facilities for storing golfing equipment.

Ideas to build the clubhouse have been in the air quite a while, with serious plans formalizing about two years ago.

A committee headed by John Marston, assistant dean of the department of journalism, was formed to make layout and beginning plans. After consideration of numerous different requests, the committee turned operations over to the architects.

MSU women faculty members will also be able to enjoy the new building. The MSU Men's Club became the MSU Faculty Club last summer, now making women eligible for clubhouse privileges.
