

Merit Scholars vary on Honors program

EDITOR'S NOTE: The last two parts of this series contain a number of the major, specific complaints made by Merit Scholars. However, the series does not attempt to present a completely representative sample of what Merit Scholars think of MSU.

MSU's Honors College was defended by participating National Merit Scholars, but resented by those not in the college, a recent survey of the scholars showed.

In a response to a State News questionnaire, 115 Merit Scholars praised, attacked and supported a whole range of programs at MSU. They heartily condemned the University's academic regulations and limitations on their freedom.

Some students suggested that those not in the Honors College could gain most of the same advantages by taking the University College waiver examinations. A number of the students even questioned the worth of having an Honors College at all.

One student, who was graduated early with a 3.89 grade point, suggested, "The Honors College, far from being the hand of happy adventurers on the way to insight and mutual growth, appears to be a band of academic goodies who:

--are none too bright,
--love mutually congratulatory or "safe organizations," like dorm government, or non-involvement better than those demanding political responsibility or genuine intellectual interest.

"MSU did teach me something important--that there are other things more important than studying and grades."

--tend to avoid courses outside their major and smaller and more-demanding-than-average courses in the interest of maintaining a smug grade point average, and

--are often banal, uninteresting, self-infatuated bores.

The same student suggests that "a possible solution would be to make admission into the Honors College the result of applications from interested students rather than a blanket-type invitation to all grade points above a certain cut-off point. An interview should be part of the selection procedure, at the very least."

Although the Merit Scholars could not agree on virtually anything, the MSU program which drew the most negative responses was the University College.

For example, one student suggested "The Basic College courses were described as a polymath's paradise; in actuality, most of them seem to range from mediocre to bad."

"This is due partly to poor instructors and partly to a built-in wrongheadedness which sees education as a wholly predictable experience. Hence course syllabuses and the uniform multiple-choice exams for all sections."

Other Scholars added, "University College Basics are often inadequate and/or ridiculous."

"I think the University College should be abandoned in favor of a variety of courses in these fields."

"The average student could easily become academically alienated if forced to take three terms of ATL. One term was more than enough for me."

Natural science and social science in particular drew severe criticisms.

"Nat. Sci. is a perversion to anyone who knows anything about science or math. This holds for most of the year's work, and the books and the untruths some things just grossly misleading oversimplifications in them in particular."

Social Science texts "are undoubtedly the greatest miscarriages of academic achievement I have ever encountered. I can only conclude that some departments at the least, very disappointed. The basic idea, that of providing a background in MSU put more emphasis on carrying along the works of their members rather than presenting interesting and meaningful material to the students."

The most positive comment on the University College came from the student who said, "My experience with the University College has left me, to say humanities and the sciences, is very good; however, the subject matter and the general handling of the courses are poor."

The math department was criticized by one student who complained that "the department policy of assigning professors, the day before classes, then not permitting section changes, is no substitute for a good department. It just turns the whole business into Russian roulette."

However, not all of the complaints were negative, particularly concerning what MSU had taught students outside of the classroom. Many of the Merit Scholars expressed sentiments similar to the coed who suggested, "so MSU is a success after all, as far as I'm concerned, it didn't

CUT BY $20,000

ASMSU budget passed

By DAN BRANDON
State News Staff Writer

The Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) 1968 budget was passed by the student board Tuesday night after being cut by about $20,000 from the original budget request.

The budget totals $48,000 as opposed to the nearly $70,000 requested by the board last term. Board members say the cuts were forced after the proposed tax increase from 50 cents to 75 cents was defeated in a student referendum.

The 50 cent tax results in an estimated $45,000 income for the year which when added to an expected $3,000 for student government services, gives the $48,000 figure.

Greg Hopkins, ASMSU chairman, said Wednesday that he was satisfied with the budget. "Other than being disappointed with the failure to get a tax increase, I think the budget is as fair as could be done," Hopkins said.

The largest single cut came from the request for the Bookstore research project which was to investigate the possibility of a student book store. The request of $14,000 was cut to zero, doing away with that project for the present.

Other important projects which were trimmed are Winds of Change symposium which was allocated $500 instead of the requested $1,500, and the elections fund which dropped from $1,000 to $400.

Hopkins said that the $400 would only finance two referendums for the year, because each referendum costs about $200. If additional elections are petitioned for, the money will have to come out of the general fund, Hopkins said.

Great Issues lecture series was slashed from $4,500 to zero, and will be put on a self-liquidating basis. Admission will be charged to Great Issues programs in an effort to break even, with no attempt at making a profit.

Other large cuts came in the area of expenses which were lowered by about $7,000 from the original request. Labor which consists mainly of the secretarial staff suffered the most, being cut by about $3,000.

According to Hopkins, this will mean having one ASMSU secretary instead of two.

Other cuts were in Freshman Orientation, $1,000 to $250; College Bowl, $100 to $35; External Public Relations, $350 to zero; Off Campus Council, $1,826 to $1,346; Senior Class Council, $1,735 to $515 and Student Leadership Workshop, $2,000 to $750.

This leaves a budget surplus of $2,102.86 to cover unexpected expenses.

An estimated ASMSU debt for 1967 was put at $1,500.

"We will get a few complaints about the cuts, but we have tried to maintain as many programs and services as possible for the good of all the students," Hopkins said.

In other action, the board indicated tentatively that they would be willing to commit $150 to a joint price study to be conducted with the East Lansing Chamber of Commerce.

A motion was passed to set up a committee consisting of the chairman, the cabinet president and the comptroller to determine a definite process for selecting the next comptroller.

A motion made by Harv Dzodin, Junior member-at-large, to have an ASMSU forum in each of the five complexes this term was also passed.

Jane Lau was introduced to the board as the new Pan Hellenic representative. She replaces Shari Marski.

Miss Lau was appointed to co-chair the Pop Entertainment evaluation committee and was also named to fill a vacancy on the policy committee.

Barnard can give no reason for U.S. transplant failures

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (P) — Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard said Wednesday he can give no reason at this stage why the three human heart transplants in the United States have all encountered early post-operative difficulty while both of his transplants made good initial progress.

Two transplant recipients in the United States died within hours and the third was in critical condition four days after his operation.

The world's first human heart transplant patient, Louis Washkansky, made good progress at first after Barnard's team gave him a new heart Dec. 3, but died 18 days later from pneumonia.

Barnard's second patient, Dr. Phillip Blalberg, was feeling fine eight days after the operation.

Barnard said he doubted if the small size of the donor heart was responsible for the death Wednesday of Louis Block at Maimonides Medical Center in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz indicated in New York the donor heart was too small and as a result was unable to maintain the circulation by itself.

Barnard said a person undergoing a heart transplant will always have an enlarged heart sac because the diseased heart about to be removed will be bigger than normal.

In the Washkansky transplant, he said his team did not know if the extra space left around the grafted heart would be important. The feeling now is that it was not important, he said.

Barnard said if Blalberg should die because of something that could have been prevented, the South African program will go ahead. But if death were due to an unknown factor and "if we hit our heads against a wall, we will have to stop and think," he said.

He added: "In the United States they were not beaten by an unknown factor; it was not rejection." He was apparently referring specifically to the case of Block.

Barnard said he has cabled Dr. Norman E. Shumway, who performed the world's fourth human heart transplant in Palo Alto, Calif., to ask if he stimulated the heart electrically and if he used certain drugs.

Asked about criticism of him by Dr. J. C. Callaghan of Edmonton, Alta., Barnard smiled.

"I've heard of Edmonton. I've never heard of Dr. Callaghan." Then he added: "All I can say is that he's entitled to his opinion and time will tell who is right."

Callaghan said human heart transplants were premature.

Washington (P) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Wednesday conversations with President Johnson have convinced him the United States will not permit the pursuit of Communist forces from South Vietnam into neutral Cambodia.

"It would be tragedy compounded on tragedy," the Montana senator said in an interview. "I commend the President for his unyielding attitude in that respect. I think I have a pretty fair idea of the President's feeling on Cambodia," Mansfield said. "We have discussed it from time to time."

Mansfield, back at the Capitol after a between-sessions vacation, said he believes the President "has been subject to very strong pressures" to authorize troop crossings into Cambodia and perhaps into North Vietnam.

But he said he believes Johnson will resist either step.

U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles is in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, for talks with Prince Norodom Sihanouk on Communist use of that neutral nation's territory as a sanctuary from U.S. and South Vietnamese forces in the Vietnam war.

Sihanouk had suggested that Mansfield might serve as U.S. emissary on the matter. Mansfield said Bowles is the best man for the mission. Bowles talked with Sihanouk Wednesday and is expected to confer with him again today.

Mansfield said a policy of pursuing Communist forces into Cambodia would force the United States to boost its Vietnam troop commitment to 700,000 or 750,000 men.

"It would make almost certain an extension of the war, making it open-ended," he said. Mansfield added that such a step could lead Sihanouk to ask for aid from the Soviet Union or Communist China to enforce his proclaimed neutrality.

"The real concern is that it would bring about a lateral extension of the war,"

referring specifically to the case of Block.

Barnard said he has cabled Dr. Norman E. Shumway, who performed the world's fourth human heart transplant in Palo Alto, Calif., to ask if he stimulated the heart electrically and if he used certain drugs.

Asked about criticism of him by Dr. J. C. Callaghan of Edmonton, Alta., Barnard smiled.

"I've heard of Edmonton. I've never heard of Dr. Callaghan." Then he added: "All I can say is that he's entitled to his opinion and time will tell who is right."

Callaghan said human heart transplants were premature.

Mansfield sure U.S. won't enter Cambodia

WASHINGTON (P) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Wednesday conversations with President Johnson have convinced him the United States will not permit the pursuit of Communist forces from South Vietnam into neutral Cambodia.

"It would be tragedy compounded on tragedy," the Montana senator said in an interview. "I commend the President for his unyielding attitude in that respect. I think I have a pretty fair idea of the President's feeling on Cambodia," Mansfield said. "We have discussed it from time to time."

Mansfield, back at the Capitol after a between-sessions vacation, said he believes the President "has been subject to very strong pressures" to authorize troop crossings into Cambodia and perhaps into North Vietnam.

U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles is in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, for talks with Prince Norodom Sihanouk on Communist use of that neutral nation's territory as a sanctuary from U.S. and South Vietnamese forces in the Vietnam war.

Sihanouk had suggested that Mansfield might serve as U.S. emissary on the matter. Mansfield said Bowles is the best man for the mission. Bowles talked with Sihanouk Wednesday and is expected to confer with him again today.

Mansfield said a policy of pursuing Communist forces into Cambodia would force the United States to boost its Vietnam troop commitment to 700,000 or 750,000 men.

"It would make almost certain an extension of the war, making it open-ended," he said. Mansfield added that such a step could lead Sihanouk to ask for aid from the Soviet Union or Communist China to enforce his proclaimed neutrality.

"The real concern is that it would bring about a lateral extension of the war,"

Mansfield said. "When you take the first inch you don't know when you're going to take the next foot or the next yard."

Mansfield said Sihanouk is an intelligent and capable leader, determined to preserve his nation's neutrality and supported by his people.

He said Sihanouk wants neither side in the Vietnam war to violate his border. Mansfield said any steps taken to seal the border to fleeing Communists would have to come through the International Control Commission, created by 1954 agreements which ended French rule of Indochina.

Lovin' Spoonful to appear Feb. 2 in Pop series

The Lovin' Spoonful, a folk and country rock group, will be presented Feb. 2 as part of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) Popular Entertainment series.

Pete Ellsworth, vice chairman of ASMSU, said a verbal agreement was reached Tuesday and the final contract will be signed next week.

"Summer In The City," "Do You Believe In Magic," "Daydream" and "Nashville Cats" are some of their past hits.

The Lovin' Spoonful preferred in the Popular Entertainment Survey taken early this year.

"We tried to get at least one of the 20, but had no luck," Ellsworth said.

He also said fall term entertainment loss was about $50. "It was less than we expected."

Howick defends prices; tells ASMSU 'no cartel'

James D. Howick, manager of the MSU Bookstore, firmly denied any charges of a bookstore "cartel" Tuesday night during questioning by the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) Board.

Howick appeared at the weekly student board meeting in an effort to clear up controversies concerning the MSU Bookstore and those in East Lansing.

A recent furor arose as a result of charges leveled last week by Walter P. Adams, professor of economics, that the bookstores are engaged in a "vicious and noxious cartel," conspiring to exploit the students.

Speaking carefully and precisely, Howick said Tuesday there is "absolutely no collusion between our store and other stores. There are no secret meetings either in bars or basements."

Adams, a noted economist who led his students in a demonstration against the bookstore Friday, will appear before the board next Tuesday.

Howick, in addition to answering the cartel charges, replied to detailed questions about the store's financial policies.

He said the standard mark-up on new and used texts is 20 per cent, and that his store and most others adhere to the recommended retail price set by the publisher.

Standard policy on buying and selling used books, according to Howick, is to buy at one-half the current retail price and to sell at three-quarters of that price.

Greg Hopkins, ASMSU chairman, asked Howick about the $40 per month charge to other stores for book lists and questioned the prices at all stores being the same.

"In a free enterprise system, it doesn't seem that five stores would have the same policies on buying back and selling books," Hopkins said.

Howick answered that through the experience of the National Association of College Stores, the system was found to be the best.

He said that the book lists are not sold; rather, the $40 per month is a charge which covers the administrative costs of gathering and distributing them.

"Several years ago, it became a burden on the individual departments to send lists to all the stores, so we got together and agreed on this arrangement," Howick said.

Howick was asked about the possibilities of giving discounts on textbooks to students.

"If we sold texts at a discount, it would change the complexion of the East Lansing stores. They would either become more like department stores, or it would drive them out of business," Howick said.

Pete Ellsworth, ASMSU vice chairman, referred to statements made at the time of the building of the International Center that the bookstore was set up to serve needs of the students which the community could not serve. According to Ellsworth,

Rocky awaits primary result for final candidacy action

WASHINGTON (P) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York expects to await the results of the March 12 New Hampshire primary before taking any final action on a GOP presidential nomination draft movement.

If Gov. Romney fails to make a satisfactory showing in New Hampshire, Rockefeller then will have to decide whether to become the candidate of Republican moderates against former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Despite Rockefeller's predictions that Romney will spring an upset in New Hampshire, the gloom among his associates about the Michigan governor's chances is thick.

They have read the record of the moderates' delay in getting behind a candidate against Barry Goldwater in 1964 and feel that if the reluctant Rockefeller is to get into the 1968 race he cannot wait for a draft at the Aug. 5 Miami Beach convention.

Rockefeller's associates were notified in advance of the Oregon and Maryland draft drives and failed to dissuade those involved from acting. But the governor did not go beyond his stereotyped statement that he is not a candidate and does not want to become one, and he left the draft question open by repeating that if it should arise at the convention "I will then face the situation."

A cross-check of political leaders turned up both support for and opposition to Rockefeller. Most of the opposition was from the South, where the New York governor is no favorite of Republicans who prefer Nixon or Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

Find 3 strangled

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Three male patients were found dead early Wednesday in a dormitory at the St. Louis State School and Hospital. Police said the patients apparently were strangled and the slayings were premeditated.

Authorities said four patients at the hospital were being questioned in connection with the deaths. Their names were not released.

Maj. F. J. Pete Vasek of the St. Louis County Police Department said the three victims apparently were strangled with strips of bedsheet found near their bodies in a ward of a security dormitory.

Dr. Cecil M. Baker, superintendent of the school, identified the victims as Allen Jackson, 24, and Henry Miller, 22, both of St. Louis, and Gary Earl Boenker, 22, of St. Charles, 20 miles west of St. Louis. All were long-time patients at the hospital.

Attendants found the victims shortly after 6 a.m. in a ward housing 29 patients. The ward is part of Donnelly Hall at the institution for mentally retarded young persons.

Two of the victims were found dead in adjoining beds, Dr. Baker said. He added that the third victim was found on the floor near his bed.

Dr. Baker said an attendant makes an hourly check of the locked wards. He said that the hospital is understaffed, but added, "I doubt if this could have been prevented even if we had more personnel."

Donnelly Hall is a one-story building with bars on the windows. A spokesman at the hospital said it is designed for patients with behavior problems, but not for patients considered dangerous.

Dr. Baker said that Jackson had been a patient at the hospital since 1950, that Miller had been there since 1952 and Boenker since 1956. The hospital, opened in 1924, has about 800 patients.

Study project aims at heart bank

WASHINGTON (AP) — A research project aimed at preconditioning the hearts of unborn calves for ultimate transplanting into human beings was disclosed Wednesday by Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel, inventor of the first artificial heart valve.

The project could lead to establishment of a living heart bank and eliminate the need to delay heart transplants until a suitable human donor can be found.

In a related development, Prof. Maurice Levi announced Wednesday in Tel Aviv that he had replaced a damaged human heart valve with one taken from a calf. The Israeli surgeon said his patient was doing "quite well."

But whereas Levi used only the valve, the project undertaken by Hufnagel and his associates at Georgetown University Medical School here envisions the eventual substitution of a whole calf's heart for that of a human patient.

Hufnagel said in an interview he is confident the technique ultimately will be "the real breakthrough" in heart-transplant surgery.

Hufnagel said his research would concentrate on calves because their hearts, shortly after birth, are large enough for potential human use.

Hufnagel's idea is entirely different from one being researched by scientists of the Naval Medical Research Institute, using baboons.

In the Navy research, living baboons are designed to act as temporary depositories, or banks, for human kidneys, hearts and other organs until they are needed for transplants.

Hufnagel said a few preconditioning experiments are under way at Georgetown on embryonic calves, but he said the research has not progressed sufficiently to permit even preliminary assessment of results.

If Hufnagel's project should succeed, it would be another milestone for Georgetown research.

Dr. Wallace N. Yater of Washington and several other scientists performed at Georgetown in 1931 what Yater believes to have been the world's first transplant of a dog's heart.

The heart of a puppy, he said, was transplanted into the neck of a larger puppy while the latter's own heart was left intact.

Yater said a number of experiments of this kind were conducted and that the transplanted hearts lived for periods up to eight days.

New faculty committee to advise May

MSU's Academic Council adopted a proposal at Tuesday's meeting establishing a new standing faculty committee—the Faculty Committee for University Business Affairs.

The committee will act as an advisory group to Philip J. May, vice-president for business and finance, according to Jack E. Kinsinger, former chairman of the Educational Policies Committee (EPC).

EPC initiated the proposal to establish the committee that will "evaluate and regulate policies and services pertaining to finances."

No members for the committee have been elected yet, but they will be selected according to procedures outlined in the faculty-by-laws.

The revised version of the by-laws, currently under consideration by the Academic Senate, changes these procedures and the selection will follow whatever by-laws are finally adopted.

This new committee represents the ninth standing faculty committee.

Rusk cites bomb threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk says one of his most constant problems and proudest achievements during seven years as director of U.S. foreign policy has been to help prevent the world from blundering into nuclear war.

Projecting his past experiences into the future, Rusk estimates that the United States, the Soviet Union and other powers have about 5 to 10 years to establish controls over nuclear weapons and probably 20 to 30 years to master the population explosion. He sees these as the two most critical issues of the predictable future.

Failure to solve either problem in time, Rusk asserted in an interview, may mean man will yet set off a war he can't control and will vanish in a nuclear holocaust.

One of the most urgent needs, Rusk said, is for a treaty to block the spread of nuclear weapons.

"The problem of proliferation," he declared, "is the chance that some idiot will get hold of these weapons. The chances go up geometrically with the spread of the weapons."

Romney warns of civil strife

Gov. Romney warned Wednesday that "Michigan and the nation are confronted with the possibility of civil guerrilla warfare on a scale that makes Vietnam look like child's play."

Romney told a news conference his comment was based on last summer's Detroit riot and on his cross-country tour of the nation's troubled urban areas last fall.

The governor, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, made the comment on the eve of his annual State of the State message to the Michigan Legislature.

His message is expected to contain recommendations for a statewide open housing law and for anti-riot and anticrime legislation.

An open housing bill, placed on the agenda of a special legislative session by Romney failed in the state House of Representatives last month.

Romney told a jammed news conference he would use the information gained on his recent world tour "starting in New Hampshire." He added that the trip basically confirmed his earlier conclusions.

Romney declined to comment on the progress of former vice president Richard Nixon's New Hampshire campaign.

The governor said he had talked with New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller following Rockefeller's campaign tour in New Hampshire in Romney's behalf.

Romney plans to leave for New Hampshire late Thursday after delivering his message to the legislature.

Romney predicted he could win the Granite State runoff, the first presidential primary of the year.

A national news magazine recently published results of what it describes as a private opinion poll commissioned by Romney backers and showing the Michigan governor running 3-1 behind Nixon.

Romney said the published report was not entirely accurate, but he declined to say where the report erred.

Bowles, Sihanouk 'cordial'

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (P)—Cambodian officials reported Wednesday that the first meeting of U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles and Prince Norodom Sihanouk was "frank and cordial" but they disclosed no details of the hour-long conversation.

Bowles arrived in Phnom Penh Monday on a mission for President Johnson to discuss the use of neutral Cambodia as a sanctuary by Communist troops fighting in Vietnam. There was a possibility the talks would range over the broader issues of Vietnam peace talks.

An informed source said Bowles probably would confer with Sihanouk again today and leave Phnom Penh Friday.

Informants said Sihanouk spoke to Bowles in English and expressed the Cambodian position with his "habitual affability." The meeting was at the prince's modernistic Chamar Mon Palace, set amid luxuriant tropical gardens.

Cambodian officials said "useful points of view were exchanged."

Sihanouk said before the meeting that he cannot permit American troops to pursue Viet-Cong and North Vietnamese forces into Cambodia.

Bowles, U.S. ambassador to India, was sent to Cambodia after Sihanouk said he would welcome an American envoy to discuss Communist use of Cambodian border areas.

Others attending the Bowles-Sihanouk conference were Penn Nouth, Sihanouk's private counselor; Premier Son Sann; Gen. Duong Sam Oi, the defense minister, and Australian Ambassador Sinclair Deschamps, who has represented American diplomatic interests in Phnom Penh since Sihanouk broke relations with the United States in 1965.

Bowles and the premier met for an hour prior to the conference with Sihanouk.

The Cambodian Foreign Office announced it is favorable to an American offer of two helicopters for use by the International Control Commission set up by the 1954 Geneva conference to supervise the operation of agreements ending French rule in Indochina.

But a Cambodian note to the Australian Embassy said the final decision on the U.S. offer must be made by the commission as well as by the foreign ministers of Britain and the Soviet Union—cochairmen of the Geneva conference.

Heart patient dies after transplant

NEW YORK (P)—Louis Block, the world's fifth heart transplant recipient, died Wednesday, 10 hours after he was given a woman's heart a little more than half his size.

A spokesman at Brooklyn's Maimonides Medical Center, where Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz' team performed the eight-hour-and-20-minute operation, said Kantrowitz would not discuss the transplant failure "until they get results of the post-mortem and report them to the proper medical sources."

First reported in "reasonably satisfactory condition" immediately after the surgery—in which two major surgical steps were performed—Block's condition became critical shortly after midnight, when his blood pressure began to fall. He died a few hours later.

Officials of Maimonides attributed Block's death to "the pumping capacity of the transplanted heart and the poor condition of the lungs due to the patient's long-standing heart disease."

Block's was the fifth such operation in 37 days—and the second to end in death for Kantrowitz. On Dec. 6 Kantrowitz transplanted the heart from one infant boy to another. The boy lived only six and one half hours.

Block, 57, a retired fireman who weighed 170 pounds and had a long history of heart trouble, was given the much smaller heart of a 100-pound woman, Helen Krouch, 29, who died of a brain tumor about noon Tuesday.

Immediately after surgery Tuesday night, Kantrowitz said "we have had some problems" because of the smaller size and pumping capacity of Miss Krouch's heart.

He said an auxiliary balloon pump was also inserted into Block's main artery to assist the small heart in maintaining blood circulation. The doctors thus performed two bold procedures in the operation.

Grad council meets tonight

The Council of Graduate Students (COGS) will hold their first meeting at 8 tonight in 202 Bessey Hall, announced Stuart A. Bremer, temporary chairman of COGS.

Guest speaker will be John G. Hocking, chairman of the Graduate Student Affairs Committee, who will discuss the purpose of his committee.

The first matters before COGS will be the election of a chairman and the development of a method for appointing graduate students to the five positions open for them on the faculty committees.

Students, travel and the tax

The recent suggestions by President Johnson to curtail the gold flow out of the United States presents difficult obstacles and restrictions to many Americans.

Probably hitting closest to home on a college campus was the suggested tax on travel abroad, possibly on a per diem basis.

dent cannot afford to alienate any more voters between now and November than he already has.

such as under the Justin Morrill and AMLEC plans at MSU. These students contribute but a small amount to the flow of money while reaping proportionately large benefits for themselves and the nation.

will be catastrophic results for the monetary system.

Certainly the particular proposals of the President may be debated. The individuals harmed may become upset. However, it must be realized that attempts have been made to curtail the depletion of reserves since the trend started in 1959.

Ideally it will work quickly, so that any future restrictions on the freedom of Americans will be as slight and temporary as possible.

Revamping ASMSU: a stitch in time saves...

A campaign for revamping the structure of ASMSU has at least temporarily been halted just short of handing in the required petitions and forcing a student referendum.

The exact reasons for the delay are unknown. Perhaps the petition circulators hope ASMSU will panic with the axe hanging above them, rush into an unorganized, misguided counter-proposal and hang themselves in the end.

Maybe the petition holders are merely being benevolent and are sincerely allowing the board to take action on its own. In view of their rush and enthusiasm when they initiated the proposed ASMSU structure change, this appears somewhat unlikely.

The petition seeks to replace current members-at-large with five complex representatives, making each person responsible to a more specific and presumably more equal constituency.

It would be unfortunate if the referendum were held and the change approved as now written. Whatever merits the proposal may have, the flaws it contains should not slip in without separate evaluation.

The board has, since spring term, considered a re-evaluation committee of the ASMSU structure, now three years old. With or without the threat of petitions, a careful study of the system would be of value. And to this purpose, the board is now considering members for such an ad hoc committee, according to Chairman Greg Hopkins.

Selection of committee members will probably be considerably touchy now, for there are those who will cry that it has been stacked with persons highly in agreement with present board members. To grab students from the street for the investigation would never do: the most logical people are those who have worked in student government in the past, but who now have no political affiliation with it.

The research should definitely be turned over to an independent committee and remain a peripheral issue of the board itself; ASMSU's major problems this year have not seemed to hinge around structure difficulties.

Rather than kill the closing months of the Third Session tinkering with the system, the board must reach out to students with policy study and meaningful programs.

The average unconcerned student must be made to realize that student government does exist and must be given a student government worthy of support.

OUR READERS' MINDS

SN dumbfounding beyond belief

To the Editor: A lot of things at MSU have surprised me, but nothing has succeeded in dumbfounding me beyond belief more than the State News. Such literary quality and completely unbiased reporting is phenomenal.

Particularly worthy of praise is one Stuart Rosenthal, the distinguished reviewer of this meritorious newspaper. Mr. Rosenthal's keen and astute criticism of the entertainment offered at MSU is so perceptive that it captures the stomach.

One of his last reviews fall term (Nov. 29) was an outstanding example of this illustrious reviewer's abundance of talent. In his critique of "The Family Way," a new movie starring Hayley Mills, this alert reporter quickly recognized Miss Mills as the downfall of the movie. He quickly and intelligently points out that Miss Mills is no longer valuable as an actress, which is absolutely clear to anyone who views the movie and apparently a great many people did despite Mr. Rosenthal's warning.

In the same breath the colorful Mr. Rosenthal shows to everyone the tremendous failure in movie-making that "The Sound of Music" was. The profoundly imaginative reviewer exposes the movie as without plot or dramatization. This is probably the reason the disastrous film won only five academy awards. This observant reviewer then goes on to bring to

POINT OF VIEW

Adams' attack won't help students

EDITOR'S NOTE: Terry Adams, former grad student in political science and currently an employee in a local bookstore, has written the following point of view column on the bookstore controversy raised this week by Walter Adams, professor of economics.

To the Editor:

I would like to use some of your space to comment on the current furor over textbook pricing and bookstore policies raised by our distinguished professor of economics, Dr. Walter Adams. I feel that my position as a former student and bookstore student employee enables me to see at least two sides of the issue.

Let's what follows be interpreted by readers as an indication of my absorption into "the system" and desire to defend it. I want to make it clear that my ideal economic system is anarcho-syndicalist. On this, as on most other issues, I stand clearly to the left of Dr. Adams and the majority of the student body. My most preferred solution to this particular problem (supplying students with materials for their formal academic studies) would be a single huge store, run by the university, which would have storage and sales facilities sufficiently large to serve every student enrolled in every class. It would attempt to sell these materials as close to cost as possible.

Here the problem of the "economics" of the situation enters. As the learned doctor is probably aware, "cost" involves a bit more than the price paid by the retailer to the manufacturer. In the case of textbooks (as distinguished from mass market paperbacks and nonbook items), the publisher allows a 20 per cent discount to the retailer from the list price. Out of this the retailer must pay for shipping charges, which vary from about

... But what makes you think we've been leaving our blinds open at night?

3 per cent to 10 per cent roughly proportional to the speed and reliability of the shipping method employed, of the list price. Retailers also pay wages to their employees and various "overhead" charges (utilities, rent, etc.). Although I have seen no controlled studies myself, I have been told that these later costs in any large retail store amount to about 12 per cent of gross sales. Roughly adding up these "costs" and comparing them with the retail list price of the book confirms my own experience and what has become a truism among booksellers--that no one can stay in business selling college textbooks alone. Therefore, we see virtually every bookstore selling non-course-related materials--mass market paperbacks, clothing, jewelry, stuffed animals, etc.--because these have higher profit margins than textbooks and enable the stores to show an overall profit.

It should be obvious to all but the most fanatical advocate of Adam Smith's invisible hand that price competition on textbooks at the retail level would do little to ease the stress on student finances. Profit margins are just too low for significant maneuvering. The distinguished doctor has pointed out that the store run by the university does not need to make a profit to stay in business. That store, however, is now allowed to exist by the administration only on the condition that it stay self-sustaining. As I understand it any profits it shows on paper go to pay for improvements within the university. If this policy should be changed, and that bookstore were allowed to run a deficit, textbook prices could be cut. Of course, Dr. Adams' beloved taxpayers would pay for that deficit through taxes and students through increased tuition, but it would give the appearance of a saving. A more visible consequence would be the bankruptcy (or effective discontinuation of textbook sales) of all the local private stores. To insist on price competition when one competitor has such an advantage is to condemn the disadvantaged; I have my doubts that this is what Walter Adams has in mind, but it would occur nonetheless.

Instead of concentrating his sound and fury on the relatively fixed situation of retail pricing, the good doctor might tell his tale of exploitation to his publisher. It is the publisher, after all, whose list prices and discount rates determine retail pricing. These giant concerns make a wretched target for his reformer's lance. To suggest a starting point, I think I recall that in 1966, author's royalties amounted to 14 per cent of the retail price of the average college textbook. One would think that instructors as dedicated to the financial welfare of their students as Dr. Adams says he is, would henceforth refuse royalties on books they write in return for their publisher's agreement to lower the price of said book for a commensurate amount.

More realistically, such a crusader might examine the profits of the publishers themselves, which I recall ran about 20 per cent of retail price of 1966. Copyright laws and the fact that instructors choose textbooks on the basis of content rather than price make price competition irrational in this field, and antitrust suits to encourage it ridiculous.

A bit should also be said about the sharing of textbook information among the stores. The store run by the university charges what amounts to an administrative fee for distributing that information, to ensure that all concerned have all the data they need. It is precisely because the coordination of effort stops at this point and does NOT include anything about quantities ordered by each store that there are often discrepancies between the total number of books ordered for a particular course and the number of students who want to buy a book. There are overages at least as often as shortages. Both are harmful to the retailer. Shortages cost the time and money of telephone reordering and special shipping costs, and more important, the good will of students and professors who find themselves without books. Overages cost the time and expenses of returning the surplus to those publishers who allow returns, and extremely scarce storage and shelf space. If a cartel did exist, it would prove far more efficient; but more's the pity, none does. If Dr. Adams or anyone else is interested in seeing the results of lack of coordination of booklist information, he need only visit our sister institution in Ann Arbor. There, for those stores who belong to a private information-gathering system, the fee runs over $1,000 a semester. For those stores not allowed to join the system, the cost runs over $3,000 a semester to do it themselves.

Despite the fact that what would benefit both students and instructors would be more rather than less comprehensive planning, I expect the illustrious doctor will carry out his threat to talk to the state's Attorney-General. I hope Frank Kelley can contain his laughter at the serious contention that the distribution of an author, title, publisher, and estimated enrollment information for each class, constitutes a "cartel". It will be amusing to see if the good doctor can find a private anti-trust lawyer sufficiently masochistic to play his Sancho Panza.

It happens that I was present during most of the carnival staged in the MSU Book Store last Friday. It was a performance I hope not to see again, since demagoguery disgusts me. Bringing his own cheering section was certainly a subtle touch, a must for anyone seriously interested in problem-solving. Considering the presence of these rather noisy, aroused students, it was incredibly daring of him to become an advocate of lower prices for students. Any day now I expect him to courageously face a hostile audience, like the D.A.R. or V.F.W., and praise patriotism.

Dr. Adams' behavior hardly resembles that of a scholar interested in solving a problem (real or imagined). He has easy access to all the relevant facts given above, and more, which might help alleviate whatever bothers him. His preference for showmanship and rhetoric, threats based on ignorance, demonstrate the pettiness of his motives and the size of his ego. (His concern for the welfare of the taxpayer is illustrated by his refusal to use the book originally ordered for his class. That particular book is not returnable to the publisher, and cost the taxpayers about $300. Paltry, but symbolic of his motives. If his original choice of it indicates it would be valuable for his students to read, he is clearly sacrificing their education for the sake of his crusade.)

Students have good reason, I think, to be angry when they cannot find an assigned textbook in any store because not enough were ordered to go around, and also to be disturbed by rising book prices. But to attack the retail stores, who nearly always try to have enough of the right books on time using the limited number of man-hours available, and who are severely limited by their suppliers and costs in pricing matters, is futile at best and self-destructive at worst. Dr. Adams' superficial analysis of the situation and his irrational, ego-centered prescriptions for the problems that do exist can only make things worse. Advisor to presidents and forceful teacher though he may be, he's no friend to the student in this case.

Lafayette's move to center key to MSU cage success

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer
Lee Lafayette is sure that where he wants to play is in the 'key.'

is sure that Lee is the key to MSU's success. Lafayette, a 6-6 junior, played all last season at forward and four games this year at that position. Then he was switched to the center or 'key' spot on offense against Nebraska and has lead the Spartans in scoring in four of the five games since then.

Lafayette scored 29 points and then followed with 31 against Wichita and 25 and 18 points in two games at the Sugar Bowl Tournament. He was a selection on the All-Tournament team. The spree stopped last Saturday, however. He was only partially recovered from a severe case of the flu and scored just six points in MSU's 66-56 loss to Illinois.

Understandably, Lafayette is disappointed with the Illinois' game, but he is happy to be playing center.

"I felt real weak against Illinois. I had trouble moving or doing anything," Lafayette said. "I probably shouldn't have played."

"But I think I'll have a better year and I think I can help the team more at center, that's where I like to play best."

Center was Lafayette's position before he came to MSU. That's where coaches always put players who are 6-3 in junior high school and 6-5 in high school.

Lafayette was an All-American center at Grand Rapids South High and most of the major colleges sought him. He chose MSU because he wanted to play in the Big 10 and turned down an offer from UCLA.

"It seemed like everyone was going out there to follow Lew, but I wanted to play in this league," Lafayette said.

Matthew Aitch held down the center position last year and Lafayette averaged 14.8 points per game and was named to the All-Big Ten second team.

MSU Coach John Benington called last year, "Just an average sophomore year in respect to his outstanding potential."

Lafayette came back this year at 230 pounds, 20 pounds heavier than a year ago. The extra weight he feels has helped him in rebounding, though it may have slowed him down in speed.

The move to center, which keeps him closer to the basket, has also helped. He leads the Spartans with 89 rebounds in the nine games, as well as total points.

Despite the low output against Illinois, Lafayette is averaging 16.9 points per game. He has hit 50 per cent on his field goal attempts.

Crozier returns to hockey

DETROIT (UPI) -- Roger Crozier, who suddenly retired as goalie for the Detroit Red Wings Nov. 6, said Wednesday he was returning "to see if I could help someone out."

"I haven't changed my mind," he said following a short workout in Detroit. "And the Red Wings didn't pressure me to come back."

Sid Abel, Detroit general manager-coach, said the 25-year-old netminder would report to the Red Wings' Fort Worth farm club Sunday to play his way back into condition.

"Depending on how he plays," Abel said, "there is the possibility we could recall him in a couple of weeks."

"I'm going to play for a while and see how it goes," Crozier said. When he announced his retirement, Crozier said he felt he no longer had confidence in his ability.

The troubled goalie was the National Hockey League's Rookie-of-the-Year in the 1964-65 season and the Most Valuable Player for the Stanley Cup Playoffs the following year.

But his goals-against average had climbed steadily from an initial low of 2.42, to 2.78 and 3.55 before finally hitting a peak of 3.55 for his nine games this season.

A stretch of three straight losses in which Crozier allowed 18 goals precipitated his decision to quit the game and return to his Bracebridge, Ont., home.

The slight Crozier, who worried over his defensive lapses and was "bothered" by the occasional booing of Red Wings' fans, appeared without invitation in Detroit last Sunday to see his teammates drop a 4-3 decision to the Montreal Canadiens.

Following a workout Monday, the club announced Crozier would be in Detroit Wednesday to confer with Abel after another session.

Daugherty a director

NEW YORK (UPI) -- MSU Football Coach Duffy Daugherty was named to the American Football Coaches Board of Directors Wednesday.

Murray Warmath, head coach at the University of Minnesota, was elected president of the association. He succeeds Ben Schwartzwalder of Syracuse. Warmath served as first vice-president last year.

Serving with Daugherty on the board of directors will be Paul Bryant of Alabama, John McKay of Southern California, Frank Camp of Louisville, Bob Devaney of Nebraska and Dick Colman of Princeton.

This is Lloyd B. Mitchell, a graduate student in the college of business. Lloyd is also a member of the Air Force ROTC two-year program and will be an officer in the Air Force upon the completion of his graduate studies. If you have two years of academic work (undergraduate and/or graduate) remaining beginning fall term 1968 and, like Lloyd, want to qualify for service as an officer after graduation, earn $50 per month while in college, and receive a commission in the United States Air Force, consider competing for the Air Force ROTC two-year program.

Quotas are limited, particularly for those applicants not physically qualified for flying.

Williams seeks '68 Olympic berth

By GARY WALKOWICZ
State News Sports Writer
Spartan swim captain Pete Williams has practiced endless hours and swum several thousand miles, working toward one goal--to compete in the 1968 Olympic Games.

"Pete has been aiming for the Olympics ever since he was a little kid," said Assistant Swim Coach Dick Fetters, who has worked closely with Williams the last three years.

Olympic caliber swimmers have to work hard for the honor and Williams has worked harder than most.

"Pete will do any amount of work to improve his swimming. He's one of the hardest working athletes I've ever had," said Head Coach Charles McCaffree.

Since September Williams has swum about 200 miles in the team's regular practice sessions. He is often the last one out of the pool after practice, doing extra work on his own.

Williams said that he chose to accept a scholarship at MSU because it seemed more interested than other schools.

Williams impressed McCaffree on his first trip to MSU. "I saw the first time I met him that he was a great competitor and hard worker," he said. Williams began his Spartan career by being named the outstanding freshman swimmer. In his sophomore year he placed third in both the 200 and 400-yard individual medley events at the Big Ten meet.

In last year's meet he placed second in the 400-yard and fifth in the 200-yard individual medley events. He also took a fourth in the 200-yard breaststroke and his 800-yard freestyle team was third.

At the NCAA meet he improved his times in all those events, garnering a sixth in the 200-yard I.M., individual medley, seventh in the 400-yard I.M., individual medley, and tenth in the breaststroke.

Williams' most impressive performance came in the World University Games held in Japan last summer. He won the 400-meter individual medley with a time of 4:46.7 which was the second fastest time in the world records.

The trials for the U.S. Olympic Team will be held in August. Williams said that he'll try to make the team in several events. His best chance will probably be in the 400-meter individual medley.

'Avengers,' 'Strangelove,' provide bizarre fare

Tonight and Friday should prove quite rewarding to those who prefer their art and entertainment with a twist.

At 10 tonight "The Avengers," one of the finest examples of flair and artistry in a television series, returns to the Lansing area airwaves via Channel 12. If you have not already been initiated into the "Avengers" cult, I urge you to set the hour aside to screen tonight's episode, "Mission . . . Highly Improbable."

This particular segment involves the misadventure of one Sir Gerald Bancroft, a treasury official, who, along with his car, vanishes while passing through the gates of a research testing center.

Avengers Steed and Mrs. Peel, upon investigating, find an exact miniature of Bancroft's limousine and begin to get a small idea of what happened to him. The series rarely misses; thus

I venture to say that you will be most pleased by what you see tonight.

In order to condition your mind for the bizarre machinations on "The Avengers" I suggest an outing to tonight's MSU Film Society's showing of "Freaks" at 7 in 109 Anthony Hall.

Tod Browning directed this horror flick for MGM immediately after completing work on the Bela Lugosi "Dracula" classic in 1932. Yet MGM's fear of condemnation over the employment of real freaks as players in the film prompted the studio to withhold it from release in the United States until 1963.

"Freaks" has been popular overseas for years and in 1962 was chosen to represent the horror movie as a class in the Cannes Festival's exposition on the history of the motion picture.

There will be a second screening at 9 p.m. Admission is 50 cents.

"Freaks" is the Society offering for Thursday only. For Friday and Saturday evenings, the group has selected what may very well be the outstanding motion picture of the last ten years--Stanley Kubrik's masterpiece of black comedy, "Dr. Strangelove, or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love The Bomb."

This tortuous, emotionally exhausting look at the cold war is devastating in its execution and overwhelming in its final impact. Scripted by Kukrik, Terry ("Candy") Southern and Peter George, the picture's cutting, uninhibited dialogue and sense of absurdity have made it the yardstick for all subsequent black humor vehicles.

It is safe to point to Peter Seller's portrayal of Strangelove, the incurable vestige of Nazi Germany, and to Slim Pickens' depiction of Major King Kong, the do-or-die SAC commander, as two of the most memorable performances in the history of the medium.

This opportunity to see it for the first or twenty-first time must not be passed up.

"Strangelove" will run Friday in 100 Veterinary Clinic and Saturday in the Union Ballroom. Showtimes are at 7 and 9 p.m.

Shakespearean actress and a member of the Royal Shakespeare Company. As such, she appeared in modern works such as "On-Dine," "The Physicists," "The Devils" and "Becket" and as three Shakespearean heroines: Helena in "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream," Adriana in "The Comedy of Errors" and Cordelia in "King Lear." She will soon be seen with David ("Morgan") Warner in a CBS-TV presentation of "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream."

Upon entering the "Avengers" series at the beginning of its fourth year as England's most popular TV series, she faced the formidable problem of establishing Emma Peel as Steed's amateur partner. It seems that the fictional post had previously been occupied by one Mrs. Cathy Gale, played in leather with full use of karate by Honor Blackman. Miss

Blackman vacated the position when she took the part of Pussy Galore in "Goldfinger."

In developing Mrs. Peel, Diana concentrated on humorous touches, offsetting Miss Blackman's superwoman image.

Internationally educated daughter of a wealthy shipowner and youthful widow of a famous test pilot, Emma Peel lives in a streamlined London penthouse, wears avant-garde clothes especially designed for her by young London couturier John Bates at Jean Varon, drives a high speed Lotus Elan and used every technique from judo and karate to her own brand of balletic "feinting" (often combined with a straight left to the jaw) to subdue foes.

Enjoy her while you can. After the first episodes this year, Steed will take on his fourth partner since 1961--a 20-year-old Canadian girl named Linda Thor-

Diana Rigg plays the avant-garde role of Emma Peel in The Avengers, which has its television debut tonight.

Humanities abroad to debut in London

By TRINKA CLINE
State News Staff Writer

Although Patrick MacNee's portrayal of John Steed maintains "The Avengers" series, Diana Rigg, playing Mrs. Peel, commands the greatest share of viewer attention.

Unlike MacNee, whose Steed role seems to a simulacrum of the actor himself, Miss Rigg shys from real life emulation of the young widow whom she portrays.

In fact, the beautiful telestar dislikes all publicity, preferring to keep her off-stage life as private as possible.

By training, Miss Rigg is a Renaissance artifacts around London, England. Two-hour classes taught each morning by Maurice Crane, professor of humanities, will cover the same basic material and be measured by the same basic standards that affect on-campus sections. Afternoons and evenings will be free for studying and excursions.

However, Crane intends to require more than the usual papers, examinations and departmental final. He is considering sending each student out for a "scouting report" on some aspect of London area life. These "fireside sessions" reports on small villages, the Stonehenge, plays, other colleges or market-places, Crane hopes, will give the trip a "touch of things not found in Frommer's 'Europe on Five Dollars a Day'."

A minimum of 25 or 30 students is needed to initiate the humanities program abroad, but no maximum has been set, Crane said the department has numerous instructors who would accompany additional sections if there is sufficient interest from MSU students and the 1800 other American universities notified of the program. Sign-up deadline is January 31 with the AMLEC office, 107 International Center.

The Humanities offering will cost $761, which includes enrollment fees, tuition, room and board and round-trip air fare from New York to London to New York. Students have the option of returning immediately after the program or may travel for a week before returning on other AMLEC flights. AMLEC suggests students take approximately $20 per week for additional individual expenses.

Although Crane has promised "lots of free time," some weekends will be officially filled with group trips to Stratford, Cambridge and Edinburgh.

Because the Crane family has traveled that way before, Crane commented, "for us it will be a sentimental journey and will combine the two sets of people I like most in this world--Englishmen and MSU sophomores."

Officials smash counterfeit ring

NEW YORK (P) -- A mammoth counterfeit operation, largest in the nation's history, was reported smashed Wednesday, before ring members could unload $50 million in fake $10, $20 and $100 bills. Samples were available for inspection by prospective buyers.

Already in the hands of federal officials were $4.1 million worth of the fake $100 bills, packaged in ordinary cardboard boxes and seized Dec. 29 at Kennedy Airport. Authorities said they were being shipped to a buyer, who had agreed to pay 10 cents on the dollar, or more than $400,000, for them.

Three men were arrested, one in New York and two in Ohio. The man seized in New York, Joel Lee, a Miami Beach, Fla., lawyer, was described by federal authorities as a salesman and traffic manager for the ring. The other two were accused of printing the money, none of which, apparently, got into circulation.

Further arrests were forecast by Albert E. Whitaker, agent in charge of the Secret Service in New York.

The Kennedy Airport seizure was the largest haul of phony money in the history of the Secret Service.

"I don't think New York was their final destination," Whitaker said, "although the bills were good enough to try to pass them here."

Lee, 39, father of three children, was arrested Tuesday night at Kennedy Airport, while returning to Florida. He was held in $25,000 bail by U.S. Commissioner Max Schiffman on charges of possession, sale and delivery of the $4.1 million in counterfeit bills.

At Lee's bail hearing, Asst. U.S. Atty. Raymond E. Grunewald said the defendant had negotiated with one Dennis Lorraine in New York, and worked out a deal where the latter would buy the $100 counterfeits for 10 per cent.

In 1966, the Secret Service said, Lee was accused of transporting more than $300,000 in counterfeit money from Florida to Los Angeles, but the charges later were dropped.

In Ohio, Secret Service agents Wednesday arrested Louis Christian, 46, at his home in Canton, and James Clark, 28, of Clinton, Ohio, at his job in Akron. Both were charged with printing counterfeit money.

Romney plans to defy court

Gov. Romney said today that Maj. Gen. Ronald D. McDonald will be "promptly removed" as Michigan's adjutant general as soon as the Michigan Supreme Court orders him back into office.

In a prepared statement, Romney said he would abide by the court's decision that his removal of McDonald in 1964 was illegal and that the 57-year-old general still rightfully holds the job. But at a news conference, Romney said McDonald won't keep it for long.

"He won't be adjutant general," Romney said firmly. "Oh, he may be for a while--a few minutes, a few hours. He'll be promptly removed and Gen. (Clarence) Schnipke will be appointed."

Romney named Schnipke to the $23,000-per-year job in July, 1965, to replace McDonald. He is also head of the state Department of Military Affairs. As soon as the court issues its order to go along with the decision, Schnipke will be out as adjutant general.

Romney said he had only followed the procedure Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley had told him to when he removed McDonald on Oct. 8, 1964 for misfeasance, malfeasance, and gross neglect of duty. Improper administration of the National Guard was charged, particularly involving land transfers at its summer training site near Grayling.

Romney held a lengthy series of executive hearings on the charges before finally dismissing McDonald. In his court case, McDonald contended Romney acted illegally and that he could have been removed only by a court martial.

Newly equipped library at 'Village'

By BETSY ROACH
State News Staff Writer

Individualized instruction is the aim of the new learning center of the Spartan Village School. More than a library, it is also equipped with records, record players, projectors and television sets. The librarian, Mrs. Linden B. Johnson, said that these may be taken home overnight by any of the school's 374 students—even the kindergartners, if a parent is there to help. The learning center, which opened Dec. 9, is the last of eight to be established in East Lansing elementary schools.

Formerly an all-purpose playroom, the room was carpeted and bookshelves were added. A cubbyhole which was a closet has been paneled and made into an office for Mrs. Johnson.

"It was a blank, barren place, and we turned it into a warm library," said Mrs. John Hunt, principal.

Mrs. Johnson said that there is no limit on the number of books the children can check out. Magazines, dictionaries and encyclopedia volumes can be checked out overnight.

Mrs. Alyce Ludwig, director of technical services for elementary school libraries of East Lansing, said that the school system does not charge fines for late books.

"We don't even scold," Mrs. Johnson said.

Mrs. Hunt said that there is no particular time for a full class to visit the learning center, but a maximum of four or five students may do so when they have the spare time.

"The philosophy is that anybody comes when he needs to come," Mrs. Ludwig said.

"There is no better place to individualize instruction than a

OCC survey mailed to 10,000 off campus

Questionnaires to survey off-campus housing conditions are being sent to approximately 10,000 off-campus students this week, Jim Friel, president of Off Campus Council (OCC), said Wednesday.

The results will be used in compiling an off-campus housing booklet to advise students who want to move off campus. The booklet is planned to be distributed by the beginning of spring term.

The questionnaires will be sent to graduate students, special students and each couple in married housing along with all single undergraduates living off campus. Students living in supervised housing will not receive questionnaires.

Friel said that although those receiving questionnaires are not all among the constituents of OCC, their places of residence are open to students wishing to move off campus.

No name is requested on the questionnaires, according to Sue Hughes, secretary of OCC.

There are openings on this committee to help evaluate the results or help with the booklet. Interested persons can inquire in the OCC office, 313 Student Services Bldg.

The questionnaires must be returned by Jan. 22 to the OCC office, the Off-Campus Housing Office located at 110 Student Services Bldg. or the Union Information Desk.

"This is basically a service to dormitory residents, because off-campus people already know about living off campus," Friel said.

"The booklet will use the information derived from the questionnaires concerning places to live and what present residents think of the living conditions," Miss Hughes said.

Friel asked that any person who would rent to students, but is not currently doing so, should send a description of the facilities and the address of the available housing to the OCC office. This information will then be included in the booklet.

103 ENEMY DEAD

VC battalion hit by U.S. artillery

SAIGON (AP) -- Defensive fire of an American infantry outfit and its artillery virtually destroyed a 350-man Viet Cong battalion Wednesday.

A five-hour fight 31 miles northwest of Saigon pointed up the price the Communists are paying in blood for their offensive efforts of the new year, win, lose or draw.

U.S. spokesmen announced 103 of the enemy died—many from howitzer shells that gunners call "Killer Juniors"—in a human wave assault on a bivouac of the 1st Battalion, 27th Infantry, 25th Infantry Division.

On this basis, since military statistics show two or more men are wounded for every one killed in such wide open operations, only a handful of the Communists could have emerged unhurt.

Five Americans perished, two in a bunker struck by an enemy shell or rocket, and 28 were wounded.

Destruction of an American contingent of battalion size or larger has long been a propaganda objective of the Red high command, which has never publicly displayed concern about sacrificing Communist manpower.

The assistant operations officer of the 1st Battalion, Capt. Mike Moran, 30, Manchester, Ga., said the Viet Cong assault was launched "with the obvious intent to overrun the battalion."

But he added: "To come into our fire power is suicide."

Indifference of Hanoi and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front to high losses was reflected in the maintenance of slashing attacks after such hostilities cost them a record 2,868 men killed last week, according to accounting of the South Vietnamese armed forces. The previous high was 2,774 for the week of March 19-25, 1967.

A North Vietnamese raid by night on the U.S. air strip at Kontum, in the central highlands 260 miles northeast of Saigon, blasted an unspecified number of helicopters and motor vehicles.

Twenty-five or 30 satchel charges wrought damage that the U.S. Command called moderate as seven Americans were killed and 25 wounded in a 20-minute skirmish. The enemy left 14 uniformed dead within the compound.

Other enemy-initiated operations dotted the countryside from the Mekong Delta in the south to the 1st Corps area in the north. The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were reported to have inflicted almost as many casualties on civilians as on military units.

But American units were also on the move as troops of the 196th Light Infantry Brigade reported 147 enemy soldiers killed in a full day of action Tuesday in the central lowlands.

Surveyor 7 will scratch moon's soil

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) -- Surveyor 7's human controllers got set Wednesday to scratch the moon's rugged hide in a new and wildly different area—the south-central highlands near the crater Tycho.

The three-legged spacecraft, loaded with instruments to satisfy scientific curiosity, landed softly Tuesday night and televised 1,225 pictures of a science-fiction landscape: ragged ridges, huge boulders, treacherous craters.

Most interesting of the instruments is a hand-sized scoop on an extendable arm, a twin of that carried by Surveyor 3 last April which dug several trenches and helped prove the lunar surface is strong enough to bear the weight of manned landings planned as early as next year.

During the next two weeks of lunar daylight scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory will command the scoop to scratch the surface as deep as 18 inches, shove nearby rocks around and hammer holes in the soil.

It also will be used to move from spot to spot a small box containing a device to analyze the soil by radiation.

The purpose is to see whether highlands areas are much different from the equatorial plains sampled by earlier Surveyors.

Surveyor 7 is the last of a $500 million series of mechanical moon scouts and the fifth successful one. They have televised more than 67,000 pictures.

Intaglio art opens show at Kresge

An exhibit of 76 contemporary intaglio prints will open Sunday in the Kresge Art Center Gallery.

The exhibit, circulated by the American Federation of Arts, will be on display through Jan. 30.

Also on display will be recent paintings by Irving Taran, instructor in art, in the entrance gallery. Nineteenth century French works from MSU's permanent collection will also be on exhibit.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, and 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

SN in error on travel tax

In Wednesday's State News article about President Johnson's proposed travel tax and its effect on the Union Board group flights, Mrs. Ian Craven of Craven Tours was quoted as saying, "On April 19, the money will go to the airlines." Her following statement, "But we will be fully prepared to make refunds after that date," was mistakenly cut.

If the President's restrictions are deemed prohibitive, people who have booked flights will have the option of canceling without penalty even after the set date of April 19.

U' chosen employment training site

MSU is one of several universities chosen as the site of an experimental training center for employment security conducted by the Bureau of Employment Security, U.S. Dept. of Labor.

The center conducts a series of institutes which trains people for work at employment security commissions throughout the United States and Puerto Rico.

The institutes being conducted at MSU during the 1968 fiscal year include training in such fields as automatic data processing, employer relations and job development, interpersonal and intergroup relations and employer research and manpower analysis.

Miss Ivory Clinton, conference coordinator for the institutes, said "MSU was selected as a site for one of the training centers because MSU has good size, diversity, availability of faculty services and a continuing education philosophy. It also has one of the finest labor and industrial relations departments in the country."
