FIVE SPEAKERS

'Who am I?' discussed in three-day symposium

Who Am I? the individual's question in today's mass society will be discussed this week by five critics of contemporary society as part of the second annual University College Symposium.

Beginning today and continuing through Wednesday, the speakers will deliver addresses and participate in daily informal seminars in residence halls. Marya Mannes, journalist and free-lance writer; Harvey Cox, theologian; Dwight MacDonald, staff writer for "The New Yorker Magazine," Ernest van den Haag, psychoanalyst, and Thomas S. Szasz, psychiatrist, will be the guest speakers.

Practicing psychiatrist, lecturer at New York University and the New School for Social Research, and author of several books on psychiatry, the symposium's first speaker, Szasz will speak on "The Moral Dilemma of Psychiatry: Servant of Society or of the Individual" at 7:30 tonight in Fairchild Auditorium. He has gained recognition for his efforts to convince others in his field that clients must be encouraged to assume responsibility for their own actions rather than hide behind the protective shield of "mental illness."

Marya Mannes will speak at 4 p.m. Tues. in Conrad Auditorium on the main theme of the symposium, "Who Am I?" She is past feature editor and staff writer for "Vogue" magazine, member of "The Reporter" staff, columnist for the "Washington Post" and free-lance writer. As an author of five books containing collections of essays, Miss Mannes has considered the American woman's struggle for identity and today's commercialism in a child-centered society.

Following Miss Mannes at 7:30 p.m. in Wells Hall, Harvey Cox will discuss "Personal Style in the Secular City." Cox has spent a year in Berlin in 1962 as a "fraternal worker" maintaining contact with churches and universities in East Germany, and has also been a participant in the civil rights movement. He is now associate professor of church and society in the School of Divinity at Harvard University.

Ernest van den Haag will begin Wednesday's program with a speech entitled "The Causes of the Identity Crisis and Its Psychological Effects" at 4 p.m. in Wilson Auditorium. Currently a psychoanalyst and professor of social philosophy at New York University, van den Haag has written two books and numerous essays on such subjects as mass culture and modern social theory.

"The Need for an Elite Culture" will be the final speech of the symposium delivered by Dwight MacDonald, staff writer for "The New Yorker" at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Wells Hall. Former editor of "Fortune," the "Partisan Review," and "Politics," MacDonald's interests during the 1940's were focused on politics when he was variously a Trotskyite, a pacifist and an anarchist. ## Symposium schedule

The schedule for the University College Symposium series for today is as follows:

11:30 a.m. - 1 p.m. -- Panel discussion featuring the five guests and 100 MSU students will be telecast live over WMSB-TV, Channel 10.

7:30 p.m., Fairchild Auditorium -- Dr. Thomas S. Szasz, "The Moral Dilemma of Psychiatry: Servant of Society or of the Individual."

8 p.m. -- Informal seminars with Marya Mannes in Case Hall, Dwight MacDonald in Emmons Hall and Ernest van den Haag in West Holden Hall.

9:30 p.m. -- Student discussions with Dr. Szasz in Snyder-Phillips lounge.

Spending cut may threaten British policies

LONDON (AP) -- Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government heads into a crisis week with huge spending cutbacks threatening the nation's alliances abroad and social programs at home.

The survival of Wilson's three-year-old administration and the strength of the devalued pound were at stake in a new make-or-break economic policy designed to restore Britain's solvency.

A package of massive retrenchments diverting a billion pounds--$2.4 billion--of productive resources to the export industries by 1971 comes up for final approval in the British Cabinet today. Details are to be announced by Wilson in Parliament Tuesday.

Among government authorities and businessmen the consensus is that this new program should tell by about April if Britain can be pulled out of the red into a new era of stability.

One feature of the new package, according to qualified sources, is a provisional decision canceling the billion dollar order for 50 American F111 bombers needed to give Britain's military role in Europe credible striking power.

But Defense Secretary Denis Healey was reported still struggling to modify that decision. And colleagues were saying he still has a fighting chance to preserve up to 35 or 40 F111s providing he can offer the Cabinet a catalogue of alternative and comparable savings.

ASMSU board members term new budget 'adequate'

By DAN BRANDON
State News Staff Writer

ASMSU board members, after passing the 1968 budget last week, indicated that they thought it was adequate, although they are disappointed with the lack of funds.

Many cuts had to be made from the budget request made last term. The original request totaled nearly $70,000, but after the proposed tax increase was defeated last term, the budget was trimmed to $48,000.

Greg Hopkins, ASMSU chairman, said last week that he was satisfied with the budget. "Other than being disappointed with the failure to get a tax increase, I think the budget is as fair as could be done," Hopkins said.

"We will get some complaints about the cuts, but we have tried to maintain as many programs and services as possible for the good of all the students," Hopkins said.

Harvey Dzodin, junior member-at-large, agreed that the budget is good, and said that students should not look at the budget as the only indication of what ASMSU is doing.

"There are many things that we are doing that don't cost money at all, but only take the time and effort of people in student government," Dzodin said. "We want to change many policies that need to be changed. Next to the service programs, this is our most important task, but it doesn't even show up on the budget," Dzodin said.

Dzodin said that the cutting of budget money for the Great Issues lecture series will not necessarily hinder the program.

"This means that students will have to pay an admission of about 50 cents to hear people of the caliber of Dick Gregory, Sen. Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.) and Gov. Ronald Reagan (R-Calif.)," Dzodin said.

He said that the Winds of Change symposium allocation was reduced for several reasons, including lack of funds.

One large cut was made in the area of expenses, especially secretarial labor which was trimmed by about $3,000. Dzodin said that the federal government, under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 could give some assistance in this category.

"According to the act, if any of the secretaries can show a financial need, the government will pay 75 per cent of their salaries and we will pay the other 25 per cent," Dzodin said.

He said the board had not yet determined whether the Pop Entertainment program should be a service or a profit-making endeavor.

"If we didn't need money, it should be designed only to break even," Dzodin said. "But when you have financial difficulties like we do now, we should use programs such as this to make a profit. However, the tickets to these shows must be kept at a reasonable price."

Dzodin said that the Lovin' Spoonful show Feb. 2 is expected to make a profit with tickets selling for $2.50 and $3.00. He said that many non-essential items had been cut from the budget such as banquets and other "frills" and the telephone bill.

Packers smash Oakland in Super Bowl contest

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) -- The old pro Green Bay Packers, led by four field goals by 33-year-old Don Chandler, methodically chopped down the Oakland Raiders 33-14 Sunday in the second Super Bowl game to remain the kings of pro football.

The precise Packer legions of Coach Vince Lombardi broke open a fairly close battle with a second half surge which submerged the two-touchdown underdog Raiders.

The Raiders, champs of the American Football League, got on the scoreboard with two touchdowns -- both on passes tossed by Daryle Lamonica to former Miami star Bill Miller to the delight of 75,546 fans in the Orange Bowl.

But except for those two heaves, the Packers marched steadily to victory on their aging legs.

Chandler booted three of his field goals in the first half, from 39, 20 and 23 yards, and added a 31-yarder in the third period.

The Packers also had a second-period touchdown on a 63-yard "bomb" pass from Bart Starr to Royce Dowler, a two-yard TD run by Donnie Anderson in the third period, and Herb Adderley's 60-yard scamper with a pass interception for a fourth quarter score.

Chandler, with extra point boots after each TD, chalked up a total of 15 points for the day.

Starr, who did his usual superb signal-

calling and passing as the Packers' quarterback, left the game with a jammed thumb midway in the fourth period, but by that time the contest was no longer in doubt. He was voted the game's most valuable player and received an automobile as his prize.

Starr completed 13 of 24 passes for 203 yards and one touchdown without an interception.

The victory was worth $15,000 to each of the money-minded Packers, running their total of post-season cash to $30,000 per man for division, league and super victories. Each Raider received $7,500 for his work.

Only the scene, the palm-drenched

Orange Bowl in 60-degree weather, and the rivals were different from the 1967 Super Bowl in which Green Bay crushed the Kansas City Chiefs 35-10.

Chandler, who gave up punting to specialize in field goals in his declining football years, put his first three-points through the uprights after only 5:07 of the first period and the Packers never trailed.

Faculty committee reorganized

By LINDA GORTMAKER
State News Staff Writer

News Analysis

Although officially adopted in July, the Academic Freedom Report continues implementation and sometimes means a maneuvering of MSU's bureaucratic structure for more efficiency and effectiveness.

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs was reorganized Friday into subcommittees because of the enormous amount of regulation changes it must consider as a result of its legislative function delegated by the freedom report.

"Organization presidents have been telling us we will be receiving volumes of proposed changes in coming weeks," T. Clinton Cobb, chairman said. "So we formed subcommittees on off-campus housing, residence hall government and ASMSU."

Changes in front of the committee now include a revision of the pregnancy policy, Women's Interresidence Council's change in signing out to a man's apartment,

Men's Halls Association's proposal permitting women in public areas of men's residence halls after closing hours and Off Campus Council's request that sophomores be permitted to live in unsupervised off-campus housing.

The new subcommittees will hopefully discuss these topics at a meeting set for 3 p.m. Friday.

Cobb said the subcommittees will be scheduling meetings with heads of MHA, WIC, OCC and other groups to "establish a closer, cooperative relationship to move things quicker."

The freedom report now provides that changes in student regulations should follow this pattern:

--the major governing group should forward copies of proposals to ASMSU Board and the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

--after the faculty committee and ASMSU consider these changes, and if they

Barnard cites transplant complications

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) -- Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard said Sunday: "I don't think that we've succeeded in transplantation of a human heart yet."

"To succeed one must be able to discharge your patient so that he can go home and live a fairly normal life. We haven't shown that we can do this yet."

Leading 30 scientists, the 44-year-old cardiac surgeon at Cape Town's Groote Schuur Hospital performed the world's first human heart transplant operation last Dec. 3. His patient, Louis Washkansky, 53, died 18 days later of pneumonia--the longest period man has lived with an alien heart.

Barnard's second patient, Philip Blalberg, 58, is recovering from his Jan. 2 operation. Indications are he will be permitted to go home in two weeks time, barring complications.

"I don't think we've succeeded yet," Barnard said in an interview broadcast by Radio South Africa Sunday night. "I think that we have only so far shown that the heart can be transplanted and that in the immediate postoperative period this transplanted heart will function well."

Barnard acknowledged there is still the danger of Blalberg's body rejecting the new heart. "We're not really come to grips with this problem in that our patients have not lived long enough. As far as we know the danger period of rejection never passes away."

"As time goes on after the transplant the danger becomes less and less but I feel there's always a danger of rejection."

"The reason why we have hope for heart transplants is that we have reason to believe that hearts may not be rejected quite as strongly as kidneys are."

"I think the main thing that we have learned in the two heart transplants that we've done so far is how to manage the patient, say in the first week after the operation."

Barnard discounted the use of animal hearts for human transplants at this stage.

"We have no means to suppress the reaction of the human body to animal hearts. It will be rejected within a few hours."

Meanwhile, in Washington another heart researcher said he feels that not enough is known about patient reaction to justify heart-transplant operations at this time.

ASMSU lift-off time

Score one for ASMSU. The student board managed last Tuesday to adjust the 1968 budget to fit the limits prescribed when the student body voted down a tax increase.

And, in view of the reductions made, students shouldn't suffer much at all. Even the new, self-liquidating version of Great Issues will continue as a major service to students--if student government can bring top name speakers to campus this year.

The most obvious cut was the $14,000 request for the bookstore project, a cut that most board members agreed would be made even if the tax increase had been granted. However, if the bookstore committee, in its many months of existence, has turned up any indications that a student-operated store might be able to succeed at MSU, study should continue.

But all too frequently committees like the bookstore study perpetuate themselves and accomplish nothing. If this continues to be true, ASMSU had indeed best look ever inward--into the people and their goals, not the structure.

The Student Academic Council (SAC) has been allocated $500 to organize itself. Some board members had planned for SAC to be in effect the first day of winter term, but already there have been delays, and SAC is not yet functioning. Once in motion, will it be just another limp arm dangling from the student board?

Informally the board has indicated a receptiveness to splitting a $300 cost with the East Lansing Chamber of Commerce for a price study. Fine idea--if carried through. Last year ASMSU was deeply involved in controversy over the prices in East Lansing and initiated a lively attack on a local shoe store. But, the price study faded away, along with a discount service that ASMSU did not know how to make succeed. And students were left paying the same prices nearly everywhere and wondering if the area's prices really are unjustly higher.

The board devoted a great deal of fall term, and therefore a significant portion of its term in office, in collecting budget requests, seeking a tax increase that failed to come, reviewing programs and making cuts.

With this behind them, members of the board must turn again to the policy-making duties assumed last year with the women's hours liberalization, duties that have been somewhat lagging recently. Much of this year's action has belonged to major governing groups.

ASMSU, the cabinet and the board, must start and follow through on projects such as SAC, must bring a wide range of speakers on the social and political issues of the year, must examine those University policies affecting students.

Much time has been spent on the budget and on theorizing; the board has dabbled in many projects, but has veered often initial commitment to inaction. Now the board members must get their theories off the ground and give answers to the questions they themselves have raised.

Wait a minute Westmoreland

General William C. Westmoreland, commander of the armed forces in Vietnam, seems to have been rather pleased with the Christmas greetings for servicemen from the MSU Veterans Association and students. He can easily use it to prove that students back home support the war. It's good military propaganda.

But wait a minute. There was no mention of support of the war, as the Veterans took great pains, somewhat thwarted by local radio stations, to make clear to the signers. The greetings were just that.

In fact, it seems the general has brainwashed himself into believing what he wants to believe. One wonders, if Westmoreland can't even understand this simple Christmas communication from the U.S., how then is he supposed to understand the admittedly obtruse Viet Cong and North Vietnamese messages.

MAX LERNER

Middle East coexistence?

The Johnson-Eshkol meeting, whatever its other results, was bound to yield political dividends to each man in his own country.

But there are long-term fundamental problems about Mideast peace and stability that Americans, along with others, must face. They will not be resolved by haggling about how many planes America will or will not sell to Israel. It won't help either Mideast peace or American national interest to run a will-they, won't-they guessing contest about American military supplies to Israel. For the Arab ploy is that, no matter how completely the Arabs allow the Soviet Union to re-arm them, America won't dare function as the chief source of Israeli arms, for fear of throwing the Arabs further into Russia's embrace.

The Arabs had better be disabused. The best answer is that American diplomacy doesn't aim at winning or losing friends in either camp in the Middle East, but at doing whatever will maintain a Mideast balance to prevent another war. If this can be done best by selling only limited arms to Israel, let us do it. If it can be done best by selling Israel all the arms it needs, let us do it.

The crucial question is not whether the Arabs smile or frown, but how to maintain a long enough breathing-spell for Israel and the Arab states alike to flower as societies and cultures.

Can this be done? I start with the assumption that the Arab camp is far from unified about policy toward Israel and that the real struggle is between the moderates and the extremists within the camp. Extremist regimes, like Syria and Iraq, now re-armed beyond their earlier levels, are hoping to use Soviet arms to get a heavy advantage over Israel and this time take it by surprise in a war. This is true also of one faction within Egypt. The best argument the Arab moderates can use is that it can't be done. That is why a well-equipped Israeli air force and army to balance the Soviet equipment of the Arabs are a powerful argument on the moderate side in the Arab camp.

Some Americans may point out the superior fighting power of the Israeli troops, fliers and officers and therefore argue that Israel needs no arms parity against Soviet re-arming of the Arabs, that the Israelis can win again with their hands tied behind their back. Success also carries a penalty, but this reasoning is to penalize Israel needlessly and foolishly. The Arab soldier had an undeservedly bad press. On another occasion, with a better-prepared leadership, he will fight better. It would be folly for American policy-makers to count on another Israeli miracle and another.

There is another danger in too disparate an arms balance. Whichever side feels itself David against Goliath will be tempted to arm itself with missiles the next time around. There are already charges and countercharges about missile preparation between the two camps and, while they are probably exaggerated, the great powers cannot ignore the danger. This only makes the current peace mission of U.S. Ambassador Jarring all the more urgent and a clear, firm American policy all the more decisive.

There are those who say that Arabs and Israelis can never live side by side without killing each other. That was once said in Europe about Protestants and Catholics. It was said in Europe after World War II about communism and the West. Yet today each camp has had to learn to live with the other as a fact of life. The Arabs will have to learn this fact of life, as the Israelis already have. The Middle East cannot remain permanently an armed jungle, with unnamed terrors lurking on each side.

Some of the Arab states have learned it, more of them than we usually think: Tunisia, Morocco, Iran, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, perhaps Libya. King Hussein knows it, but it may still be a dangerous knowledge in Jordan. Syria, Egypt, Yemen and Iraq do not yet know it, and the Algerians seem to have a strange new fervor under Boumediene. American policy must distinguish between these two groups of Arab states, since one group of them wants to live in the last third of the 20th century and the leaders of the other still live in a far-off feudal time. If the projected Arab summit is actually held, at Rabat, this will be the division within it.

Jarring will be useful if he can suggest to the die-hard Arab leaders that they don't have to talk to the Israelis directly. They can at first talk with them, through him. In time they will talk to the Israelis. In time also, when the success of a military adventure seems impossible, the Arabs will profit from the higher level of Israel's technology and managerial skills which can be used for both cultures. In time--who knows?--there may even be that impossible Utopia: an Arab-Israeli common market and perhaps even a confederal Arab-Israeli state.

POINT OF VIEW

McCarthy as gadfly to superiors

EDITOR'S NOTE: James R. Hooker is an associate professor of history at MSU.

By J. R. HOOKER

Senator Eugene McCarthy has done a courageous thing, precisely when the understandable urge for consensus in domestic affairs (cities, race and poverty) has been twisted into a less admirable demand for monolithic acquiescence in a regrettable foreign policy. Some profess themselves bewildered by his decision to seek the Presidential nomination, others are persuaded that he has no such intention, that he is fronting for Senator Robert Kennedy, that he is seeking some form of personal publicity, that he is intent upon wrecking the Democratic Party because he was not offered the Vice Presidency in 1964. There is, I think, a much simpler explanation. The Senator is aghast at what he conceives to be the moral damage Americans are inflicting upon themselves in pursuit of chimerical goals around the globe.

The Vietnam war, he says, "is not supported by the decent opinion of mankind." Those, he continues, who are surprised that Negroes have rioted in our slums, apparently have not visited our cities in recent years. In short, the Senator is appalled at the misuse of our energies and resources and the misdirection of our endeavor. Inevitably, it is Vietnam which figures most prominently in his catalogue of charges against the Administration; but, Vietnam is simply American failure writ large; maddening because it is absurd ("immoral," to quote him again), maddening because it prevents us from addressing ourselves to our real problems at home. He holds the architect of the Great Society responsible for its impossibility of attainment.

As the State News has said editorially, McCarthy is associated with Vietnam in the public mind. There is, however, much more to the man and to his decision to campaign in various State primaries. The Senator is reacting to a disturbing malaise in American society. He did not invent Vietnam, though he originally endorsed President Johnson's decision to increase the American effort there (which he openly acknowledges and regrets). But, in endorsing the Executive he did not abdicate his responsibility as a citizen and representative of the electorate. It is this which has brought him into an open statement of the disagreement and unease which privately characterizes so much Congressional conversation today. McCarthy's conscience sets limits and they have been reached. If this means he will incur his party establishment's wrath, then it will have to be endured. But, the American people have to be treated respectfully as an adult populace which wishes answers to pertinent questions, as a citizenry intent upon knowing why frightful domestic issues must be sidestepped in order to prosecute unconvincing foreign adventures.

McCarthy, then, has undertaken that most lonely and most easily misperceived task, to act as gadfly to his superiors, to force them to justify their conduct. As anyone familiar with his style will know, the Senator does not do this from some overwhelming sense of superiority or rightness. Quite the contrary, he is far too intelligent to propound nostrums. All he is saying is that the administration's program will not withstand scrutiny. The American people, he is persuaded, are aware of this and would be grateful for some serious discussion, free of rancor, untinted by hysteria, unconcerned with slogans of party loyalty and precedent. After all, if the emperor really doesn't have any clothes, surely he benefits from being informed of this unfortunate state at least as much as those citizens who have been forced to gaze upon his unsightly physique. Emperors, it is true, are not elected. American Presidents are.

OUR READERS' MINDS

DeGaulle would be proud

Has Adams found cause?

To the Editor:

DeGaulle struggling indefatigably could never hope to create an editorial (10/1/68, pg. 4) of such magnificence. Gurgling soggily, like a rice paddy, in your Five Time Pacemaker Award recipient and disfigured horribly by an M113A2 armored personnel carrier, glistened a masterpiece of narrow-mindedness. DeGaulle would be proud of your grasp of strategic military concepts heretofore preciously guarded by the French Military aristocracy along with their last military victory when the French fought each other in 1870 and only one side could lose.

Stop and think for a second why bombing halts have been repeatedly demanded by the North as a prerequisite to negotiations? Your editorial implied independent air war was ineffectual, North Vietnam must think a lot about it or they would not mention it so often.

Stop and think for another second! Is now not the time for the United States to exert every ounce of pressure available on the North? Should we really go for the tie as your editorial insists?

"The burden of war is heavy on Hanoi," but America must not become impatient and accept an easy peace. Making the North crawl to the peace table is not the intention. They should be made to run and to exercise the sanity, sincerity, and interest in the Republic of Vietnam that you ask our leaders to apply.

Max Lerner was right when he said too many people have suffered in this war. Max Lerner was wrong when he asked our leaders to "let it (the war) end." Max Lerner should have implored our leaders to MAKE the war end. And that is what you should have done.

William Baum, San Francisco, junior

To the Editor:

It strikes me that Prof. Adams is a champion looking for a cause. The question is: has he found one? I think not.

As an employee of one of the off-campus book stores I often find myself in the position of buying back books from students who are justifiably indignant to being offered only wholesale value for them. Why only wholesale value? Let me give you an example. Last term a sociology class had as a required text a new book (Sociology; Wiley, 1967) which the students had to purchase, there being no used ones available. Come winter term and the book is dropped from the required texts. First, where does that leave the book stores? They have no way of knowing if the book will be used again some other term, let alone a place to store all the books that are "dropped" even if they did know. Result: the luckless student can only obtain wholesale, because that is all the book store can get if they buy it back and sell it to a wholesaler. Which they have to do.

It is plainly evident who the real culprits are in this fiasco. It is the professors of this institution who flit from one text to another like so many fickle housewives in a super market. It seems that they fail to realize that if they made an attempt to "standardize" many of their texts from term to term (which many do) they could do much to obviate the financial burden books pose to students. As a matter of fact if the professors cooperated with the students as well as the book stores do with one another in sharing the business (which each does to their own capacity) the students wouldn't get "stung" so badly.

Prices 'wild' at MSU Bookstore

To the Editor:

Although Walter P. Adams, professor of economics at MSU, may have merely used the exploitation of University students as a slight addition to his initial annoyance of not receiving class texts on time from the MSU Bookstore, he has expressed publicly an annoyance long overdue. Students have been bled of their personal funds in the buying and re-selling of their textbooks to local bookstores. Term after term we buy very expensive books only to re-sell them to the bookstores at astonishingly low prices, whether they are in good, fair or poor condition. James Howick, manager of the MSU Bookstore, insists that the selling and re-buying of books is done with the students' interests in mind. Furthermore, Howick asserts, "The bookstore has always encouraged suggestions from students and faculty alike on prices or any other policy." If Howick's claims are true and the MSU Bookstore is, indeed, responsible to the students of MSU, then an investigation by Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley or by an equally responsible student group, should not be feared.

Whether or not the MSU Bookstore is in "conspiracy" or "co-operation" with the Grand River stores, students are being bled of their personal funds. The colorfully new (and free!) book bags from the MSU Bookstore proudly boast, "Shopping is WILD at the MSU Bookstore!" The prices are pretty wild too.

Kasperak has operation for gall bladder problem

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) -- Mike Kasperak, who received a new heart a week ago, underwent a gall bladder operation Sunday, and doctors said afterward his condition was unchanged -- still critical.

The operation was completed shortly before noon.

Kasperak, 54, lapsed into semiconsciousness after a serious setback Saturday.

Spokesmen at Stanford Medical Center said it might be an hour or longer before physicians would be able to report results of the operation.

A bulletin from the Stanford Medical Center, where the heart transplant was performed Jan. 6, said "his heart is in excellent condition with normal blood pressure and cardiac function."

The critical condition of the patient was due to other factors, including an enlargement of his gall bladder. This enlargement was noted during the night, the medical bulletin said. It said the condition could be corrected and an operation to accomplish that was planned for later in the day.

"Doctors suspect," a bulletin said, "that an aggregation of blood and bile is blocking the

Ferency speaks about McCarthy

Zolton Ferency, former state Democratic chairman, will lead a discussion at an open meeting of the MSU Faculty for McCarthy Committee at 8 tonight in the Edgewood United Church.

Ferency, who has been closely associated with the national McCarthy committee, has stated that the discussion will center on McCarthy's role in creating a well-informed electorate as well as offering himself as a peace candidate.

Profs group to study revised faculty rules

By LINDA GORTMAKER
State News Staff Writer

MSU's chapter of the American Assn. of University Professors (AAUP) will raise questions about the Academic Council's proposed revision of the Faculty Bylaws at its meeting at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in Room 35 Union.

"There are some parts in the proposed bylaws that bother us and should be considered more," Frank Pinner, AAUP president for MSU and professor of political science, said.

Pinner said he hopes AAUP members will fill the 165-capacity room Wednesday. After a discussion by key faculty members, a student and a professor from University of Michigan, Pinner will ask chapter members if they "would want us to make recommendations to the faculty" at the Academic Council meeting Jan. 23, when the bylaws will be considered.

MSU faculty members on the discussion panel include Louis Zerby, professor of philosophy; Bernard Engel, chairman of the ATL Dept., and Gerald Massey, professor of philosophy.

Massey was chairman of the subcommittee that produced the original draft of the faculty bylaws.

Greg Hopkins, chairman of ASMSU, will also participate in the discussion and reflect what the student body would be in academic matters.

One portion of the proposed faculty bylaws provides that "at least once each year, the officers of ASMSU or their representatives shall be invited to appear before the Academic Council in order to present matters of concern to the students of the University."

Claude A. Eggertsen, professor of education at U-M, will serve as key note speaker. He worked as chairman of U-M's Faculty Senate committee on Faculty Freedom and Responsibility that revised the constitution of the U-M faculty in 1966.

U-M now has an elected all-faculty body comparable to MSU's Academic Council, although one-third to one-fourth of the Academic Council are administrators, according to Pinner.

Questions in the revision that Pinner expects to discuss Wednesday include:

--If the document should include a list of powers that the faculty should exercise. The revision reads that "the voting faculty shall possess and exercise those rights and duties which are delegated to it by authority of the Board of Trustees."

--The worth of the provision that for important enough matters the Academic Council take a vote by mailing ballots to each of its approximately 1,800 members instead of taking a vote at a regular meeting, attended by an average of 250.

"If this portion passed," Pinner said, "nobody would probably go to the meetings and productive debate would be almost eliminated."

--If there should be faculty participation, "and maybe even students," in selection of the president, vice presidents, and other administrators.

--If it is right that the President is presiding officer of the Academic Council, a group that is supposed to advise him.

--If the provision for student participation in Council affairs is sufficient.

Pinner commented on his belief that the proposed bylaws considerably limit faculty powers. "I'll think you'll find," he said, "that the more respected an institution is, the greater is faculty participation in decision-making."

Massey, who was on the committee that wrote the original draft of the bylaws, also felt some parts should be considered more.

Some changes Massey proposed include:

--Department chairmen should be elected by members of the department at regular intervals.

--There should only be elected members on standing faculty committees. The new version provides for some appointed members.

--A department chairman should be "just that and authority for decision making should rest with the committee as a whole," referring to the whole department.

Reserves lead cager comeback win over 'M'

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR—MSU's basketball team found strength in its reserves and got a much needed road win to snap a four-time losing streak here Saturday.

Coach John Benington called on reserve forwards Heywood Edwards and Jim Gibbons and the pair responded with 16 and nine points respectively, to boost MSU to an 86-81 victory over Michigan.

Three of MSU's starters also found the beautiful University Events Building floor to their liking and reached double figures to give the Spartans their most balanced scoring since the Hardin-Simmons game, Dec. 16.

Center Lee Lafayette scored 21 points and guard John Bailey and forward Bernie Copeland had 12 for MSU.

"We're bound to get a boost from this game. Everybody played well," Benington said.

Holmes played a strong floor game and scored eight points. Geistler guarded Wolverine center Rudy Tomjanovich and scored four points, all in the first half.

Big 10 standings

	Conf		Season
Northwestern	2	0	7	4
Indiana	2	1	8	4
MSU	1	1	5	5
Ohio State	1	1	7	3
Illinois	1	1	5	6
Wisconsin	1	1	7	5
Purdue	1	1	6	5
Iowa	1	1	7	5
Minnesota	0	1	3	8
Michigan	0	2	4	7

The win evened MSU's overall record at 5-5 and raised its conference mark to 1-1.

MSU staged a second half come-back after being behind 42-37 at halftime. The Spartans fell behind early in the game but tied the score at 16-16 with 11:43 left to play. The teams stayed within four points of each other from then until 3:34 left in the half and Michigan scored five straight points to go ahead 37-32.

MSU was ahead on four different occasions during the period, never by more than four points.

Geistler and Copeland both picked up four fouls before halftime. Copeland, who defended Michigan's 7-3 guard Jim Pitts, scored all his points in the first half and fouled out after 1:21 had passed in the second half.

With Gibbons in for Geistler and Edwards replacing Copeland, the Spartans chopped away at the Wolverine lead until Lafayette's follow-up on a missed free throw by Edwards put the Spartans in front 53-52.

Michigan regained the lead at 61-59 with 9:04 left but Gibbons' basket on a goal-tending call against Tomjanovich 46 seconds later put the Spartans in front to stay at 63-62.

Tomjanovich was called for goal-tending three times in the game.

MSU opened up the lead to seven points with 4:53 remaining and was ahead 79-73 when Lafayette fouled out with 2:28 left to play.

Holmes hit a free throw and scored on a layup after MSU had stalled with 33 seconds for what proved to be the winning point.

Michigan cut the lead to four points with one minute left but a layup by Edwards with fifty seconds left and two free throws with one second remaining kept the lead safe.

The Spartans were unexpectedly strong on rebounding. MSU was especially effective on the defensive backboards and held the Wolverines to one shot on most occasions.

"We did a better job off the boards today than we've done all year," Benington said. "Michigan employed an all-court press throughout the game and went from a man-to-man to a 2-3 zone defense for much of the second half."

Tomjanovich and center Dennis Stewart tied for scoring honors for Michigan with 21 points and guards Pitts and Ken Masey added 18 points apiece respectively. Four other Wolverine players added only five points.

And they're off

a sweep with a 90-33 win over Bowling Green and a 70-42 decision over Iowa State.

Soph diver keys swim wins

By GARY WALKOWICZ
State News Sports Writer

Sophomore Jim Henderson's winning performances in the one and three-meter diving events highlighted the Spartan swim team's two victories Saturday at the Men's IM Bldg.

The Spartan swimmers breezed by Bowling Green 90-33 and Iowa State 70-42. Iowa State beat Bowling Green 80-33 in the other part of the triple dual meet.

Henderson, a Lansing Everett High School graduate, won both the one and three-meter diving contests. Spartans, Duane Green and Doug Todd finished second and third, respectively, in each event.

Overall, the Spartans won nine of the 13 events to make their victory over Iowa State a surprisingly easy one. "Iowa State is a much better team than it looked," said MSU Head Coach Charles McCaffree.

"Generally I was pleased with our performance," McCaffree added. "We did a pretty good job considering it was just our first dual meet."

well for the Spartans. Burke was victorious in the 200-yard backstroke and led off the winning 400-yard medley relay team. Others on the relay team were Bruce Richards, John Musulin, and Mike Kalmbach.

Richards came back later to win the 500-yard freestyle, finishing ahead of teammate Charles Geggie. He was second behind winner Pete Williams in the 200-yard individual medley.

Spartan Don Rauch won the 200-yard freestyle and a strong finish by Kalmbach gave him second place.

Rollie Groseth swam a strong race to win the 1,000-yard freestyle, and Roger Shelley was second in the relay.

The tankers' next meet will be Friday when they meet arch-rival Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Low attendance mark to doom Boston meet?

BOSTON (UPI) — If Boston's Knights of Columbus track meet was any indication, this Olympic year is going to produce one of the wildest seasons in the sport's history.

It was ironic that while meet and Boston Garden records were set in no less than seven events of Saturday night's 42nd K of C games, the meet may be doomed by plunging attendances.

A crowd of only 7,371 turned out in what was really quite mild New England weather and the resulting financial loss could eliminate Boston from the early-season indoor track schedule, according to meet officials.

When the ballots were counted, Sweden's Ulf Hoeborg was judged the most valuable performer after running the fastest mile in Boston history, a 4:02.3 effort that left the half-capacity crowd limp.

Even so, the slender, blond Swedish runner probably won that title by default because most of the ballots already had been filled before the most stunning victory of the night, a leap of 16 feet, 7 3/4 inches in the pole vault by Villanova senior Vincent Bizzarro.

Gymnasts make IU 2nd victim

BLOOMINGTON—The Spartan gymnasts warmed up for Friday's meet with defending national champion Southern Illinois by beating Indiana, 181.65-160.25, here Saturday.

The win gave the Spartans a 2-0 season and Big Ten record. Indiana dropped to 3-3 for the season and 0-3 in the conference.

Spartan Coach George Szypula was especially happy with the efforts of Craig Kinsey in the side horse and Ed Gunny in the vault.

Kinsey scored a 9.35 in winning the side horse.

Gunny, who was sixth in the conference last season in the vault, scored 9.45 to win the event.

Other Spartan winners were Rich Murahata in the trampoline (8.75); Joe Fedorchik in free exercise (9.15) and Norm Haynie in horizontal bar (9.1).

The Spartan team average (three gymnasts from each of the seven events) was 8.65 which was a little below last week's meet.

"Our trampoline trio gave a good performance," Szypula said. "Sophomore Murahata is looking better each week and Norm Jolin was steady. Randy Campbell needs a stronger finish to move up."

Sophomore Fedorchik won the all-around with 50.85 points and an 8.475 average. Besides winning the free exercise, he was second in horizontal bar and vault and third in both still rings and parallel bars.

"We entered Fedorchik in place of captain Dave Thor to see how he would do under meet pressure," Szypula explained. "He did a real good job in everything but side horse and parallel bars."

MSU won every event except parallel bars where they totaled only 23.65 points compared to the Hoosiers' 24.30.

"As a team, we looked very fine on the vault and horizontal bar," Szypula said. In the vault, the Spartans scored 27.30 while in the bar the total was 27.

Ed Witzke scored 9.05 in placing second in the side horse. Dave Crout was second in the still rings, and Cliff Diehl picked up second in parallel bars and fourth in vault.

Indiana won two events — Dwayne Wiser in still rings (9.2) and Dave Keller in parallel bars (9.0).

Where is it?

Spartans' Ken Anstey (11) and Bob DeMarco feverishly look for the puck and goalie Bob Johnson desperately struggles to get back into position. Denver defenseman Keith Magnuson checks the action in Denver's 3-1 victory in the Ice Arena Saturday night.

Packers make mistakes in second 'Super' victory

Miami (UPI)—The Green Bay Packers, those perfectionists of pro football, rejoiced in their second straight Super Bowl triumph Sunday but were quick to admit they weren't as perfect as they'd like to be.

"We made a lot of mistakes—more than we made in the whole season," said Jerry Kramer, a stalwart of the Packers' offensive line and the man whose key block two weeks ago put them into the Super Bowl in the first place.

Kramer, and other Packers, weren't doing a great deal of bragging about their 33-14 triumph over the Oakland Raiders.

"They showed us some defenses we didn't expect," Kramer explained. "That caused Bart Starr to call a lot of audibles at the line of scrimmage. This was what led to the mistakes—missed blocking assignments mostly, especially in the center of the line."

"The Green Bay victory, while celebrating in their dressing room at the Orange Bowl, did not change from the sweet words they have been saying for several days about the Raiders. Several Packer players agreed that Oakland was a better club than the Kansas City Chiefs, who were defeated in the 1967 Super Bowl by the Packers by an almost identical score of 35-10.

"The Raiders gave us a good deal of trouble, but we were expecting it and we were ready for it," said Packer Coach Vince Lombardi.

Denver rolls past icers twice

By TOM BROWN
State News Sports Writer

Never was there a better example of the old theory that victory goes to the better team than Denver's 3-1 defeat of the MSU hockey team Saturday night.

The Pioneers from the mile-high city leaped off to a fast 3-0 lead in the first period, capitalizing on the Spartan goalie Bob Johnson's early fitters, and the Spartans never saw daylight again.

The Denver victory completed a two-game sweep over the Spartans, who are now 2-5-1 and in sixth place in the WCHA and 6-6-2 over all. Denver is 6-3 in the conference and 10-5-1 overall.

A crowd of 2,891 in the MSU Ice Arena watched listlessly as Denver forced the Spartans into pure defensive hockey. Johnson, making his first start since Jan. 5, settled down after the first period and played in magnificent style thereafter. He had to, as he was forced into 24 saves in the second period and 17 more in the final stanza. He finished with 45 saves for the evening.

Denver goalie Gerry Powers, on the other hand, was forced to block the puck only 16 times. Powers was faced with only four shots in the final period, when Wayne Duffett picked up the lone Spartan tally.

Ed Hamilton opened Denver's scoring at 2:17 in the first period, assisted by Cliff Korall and Jim Shires. At 4:53, Shires scored on a pass from Tom Miller and Tom Gilmore closed the Denver scoring at 13:00 with a hand from Rich Blanche and Gerry Jonasson.

Denver was all over the ice with center Bob Trembecky and All-American wing Jim Wiste doing the most damage to the Spartans.

With one minute remaining in the contest, Duffett scored, assisted by Ken Anstey and Bill Watt, to save the Spartans from a shut out.

Spartan Coach Amo Bessone couldn't lay his finger on any one reason for the Spartans' performance.

"We did all right," Bessone said. "Denver played too well for us to handle; we couldn't play offense in the second period. Denver is a good team, and that is it."

MSU was beaten by Friday night's action, after leading 2-1 in the second period. Nelson DeBenedet picked up the first goal with an assist from Bob Fallat. Bill Enrloe scored the Spartans' final goal unassisted.

Rich Duffett minded the nets on Friday and his performance, along with Johnson's on Saturday, was a source of solace to the Spartan coach.

"Johnson was a little shaky at first, but he did a tremendous job. Johnson and Duffett are about equal," Bessone said afterwards.

Murray Armstrong, the Pioneer coach, gave the nod to young Duffett.

Eye injury benches Lew

Lew Alcindor's left eye is blurry and it's left a cloud of uncertainty hanging over the biggest showdown of the 1967-68 collegiate basketball season.

The long-awaited match comes up Saturday night between top-ranked UCLA and second-ranked Houston in the Astrodome before a crowd in excess of 50,000, the largest ever to witness a basketball game since Dr. Naismith first nailed up those orange baskets.

But Alcindor, collegiate basketball's best player and the heart and soul of the UCLA team, suffered his first serious injury Friday night when he was scratched on the left corner during the 94-73 rout of Connecticut.

"I don't know how it happened," Alcindor said. "I was just trying to get a rebound and I got hit in the eye. It's really blurry and it's really bothering me. I don't know how long I'll be out, but I'm hoping to be back in time for the game against Houston."

NAVCOSSACT supports the Chief of Naval Operations—the Navy's top military executive—in the analysis, design and programming of automated command systems. Top ranking members of governmental and military staffs—from operational commanders to the highest level of the government—look to these systems for fast answers and factual data to assist in the decision-making processes so vital to our continued national security.

NAVCOSSACT offers you training and career growth potential in one of the most fascinating and promising applications of automated data processing—and you get paid while you learn.

In addition to a basic computer concepts course, NAVCOSSACT trainees learn how to program various large and medium size IBM, CDC and UNIVAC computers, using various high-level programming languages such as COBAL, FORTRAN and JOVIAL.

The training staff includes experienced civilian and military education specialists, programmers and computer operators.

Courses are given at NAVCOSSACT, Washington Navy Yard, Washington, D. C. Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia offer a choice of downtown, suburban or country living.

Previous training or experience in automated data processing is desirable but not required. To qualify as a trainee you must obtain an acceptable score in an aptitude test.

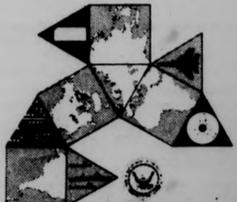

When you complete your training, you will be assigned to a team specializing in one of these areas:

Operations • Logistics • Intelligence
War Gaming • Management • Communications
Meteorology • Surveillance • Executive and Compiler Programs

Your associates will include scientists, engineers, research analysts, computer specialists, and experienced military strategists.

Once humorous spy spoofs hit low level in 'Dagger'

First there was James Bond, sprinkling suspense and adventure with tongue-in-cheek humor, sex and small increments of sadism. A jolly time ensued with imitators by the score, all hustling to exact their due from this pat formula.

Eventually, one of the Hollywood brain trusts at Twentieth Century Fox envisioned the box office miracle which would result from upping the aliquot of humor, sadism and sex; a move which would require a complete detachment of the plot from any semblance of reality. "Our Man Flint" was the first and only really satisfactory film made from this mold.

The efforts to cash in on the "Flint" bonanza have taken the lowercase spy spoof to previously unattainable depths. Case-in-point: "A Man Called Dagger." Paul Mantee, in the title role, has a roughly-hewn face which might mildly be described as unattractive. A James Coburn-Jack Palance. The difference is that Mantee has none of the charm or appeal of a Lee Marvin. This, coupled with the fact that the star of "Robinson Crusoe on Mars" has negligible acting ability makes Dagger the most

PANORAMA
By STUART ROSENTHAL
State News Reviewer

stilted would-be cultural hero since Dean Martin's Matt Helm. Nonetheless, Dagger goes through all the motions, swash-buckling confidently in and out of moving vehicles, between sides of beef in a meat locker and during a furious fencing fiasco with a near naked memesis (female of course). Although Dagger is supposed to be sharp, he is one gay blade who constantly seems to miss the point, although getting the edge on everyone.

As a counterpoint to Goodman Dagger, the flick proffers Jan Murray as a villainous ex-Nazi, intent upon conquering the world from his headquarters in a meat packing plant. The comedian-turned-actor might have a good career ahead of him playing heavies. As Herr Koffman, he struts imperiously, sneers contemptuously, and castigates underlings with curtness and alacrity. When he opens his mouth, however, the whole bit is dissipated and Murray is exposed as a mechanical cog, delivering his lines with all the passion of an oriental eunuch.

Of course, the script is not of much assistance here, giving the nefarious Murray lines like "Hitler lost the war because he forgot that nice guys always lose," or "kill him."

Undaunted by the pitfalls of the screenplay (if this is the proper term), our insidious commandant goes merrily about his business of planting radio receivers in his victim's dental work and using a new brainwashing technique to fire them up to aid his cause (a novel variation on the old theme of the villain burning bridges behind him.) Simply stated, "A Man Called Dagger" is egregiously overwrought in the sex and sadism veins, tends to be insipid throughout, and is totally lacking in production values.

On Panorama

Got a gripe (either with this column or the entertainment facilities in Lansing or East Lansing), a difference of opinion or a question pertaining to amusements?

During the past four months, "Panorama" has endeavored to give comprehensive coverage to all phases of the entertainment business as it affects the MSU community. We have facilities for probes of television and motion picture background and production, Performing Arts Company presentations, popular entertainment and personalities.

Feedback and suggestions for use in this space are welcome and appreciated. These should be addressed expressly to "Panorama" at the State News offices.

Varg to speak on China tonight

Paul A. Varg, dean of the College of Arts and Letters, will deliver a speech, "China: What is the problem?" in Kettering Center at 8 tonight.

Varg, who is a member of a 12-man panel of advisors to the U.S. State Dept. on China, will address a joint meeting of two United Nations groups: the U.N. Association of the Greater Lansing Area and the MSU student U.N. organization.

Free 'U' attendance urged, planning ideas welcomed

Mike Lopez, New Haven, Conn., senior and Free University coordinator, has urged students signing up for Free University courses to attend the classes.

Lopez said that students either sign up and attend only two or three classes or do not attend the organizational meetings, resulting in scheduling and planning difficulties.

At this time, aside from organizational difficulties, six more Free University classes have been proposed.

Mrs. Lola Hill, who has been associated with the Ghandi Peace Movement, would like to start a course on "Theories of Peace and War." She would concentrate on world law and peace research. Interested students should write to her at 407 Orchard St., East Lansing.

Chess players have the chance to improve their game by signing up for a course on chess. Bill Devin, Tulsa, Okla., junior and math major, who is a U.S. Chess Federation Class A player, plans to meet with a class once a week. Students are expected to know how the chess pieces move and should bring a chess set if they have one. Interested students should attend the organizational meeting at 7 p.m., Wednesday. The place of the meeting will be announced in Wednesday's "It's What's Happening" column.

Some students have also requested certain classes to be offered.

Lopez has suggested a course on "The Legislative Process." He would like to see it include roles of lobbying, elections and if possible a case study from the state legislature. Those interested should contact him at 432 N. Wonders, 353-2785.

Roger Smith, Clarkston, sophomore, has requested the discussion of "The Harrod Experiment," a novel by Robert H. Rimmer. This class would only meet once. Those interested should phone or write him at 136 W. McDonel, 353-1345.

A request has also been made for a discussion of Albee's play "Tiny Alice." Interested persons should contact Margaret Brown, 366 Williams Hall, 355-3591.

A course which would meet once a week and delve into "Middle Earth Studies" has been requested by the Tolkien Fellowship, Virginia Dabney, 1217 S. Hubbard, 353-8098, will accept names of those interested students.

All classes are free and without credit. Further information may be obtained at the Free University office, 326 Student Services Bldg. between 1 and 5 p.m. on weekdays.

Billiards tourney at Union, all full-time students eligible

The annual MSU billiards tournament gets under way today in the Union billiard room and will continue until Feb. 1.

All full-time MSU students are eligible to participate. The tournament consists of matches in three events: men's cushion billiards, men's pocket billiards and co-ed pocket billiards.

The winner of each division will receive a Brunswick cue and a chance to compete in the Assn. of College Unions Region VII tournament Feb. 16-17 at the University of Cincinnati.

Regional winners will represent the ACU in the international intercollegiate billiards tournament at West Virginia University April 25, 26 and 27.

MSU has had representatives in the nationals for the last three years.

Last year's winner of cushion billiards, Kerwin Crane, Iron River senior, qualified as one of the top players in the national playoff.

The winner of last year's coed event Cheryl Sullivan, Grayling junior, won the regional competition.

Last year 12 women competed in the coed event which was added to the tournament three years ago.

Duty in Vietnam; father must leave motherless family

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP) -- Staff Sgt. John L. Wolfe said Sunday a flood of offers to care for his five motherless children will ease his heartache at leaving them for a year of duty in Vietnam, but he will turn them all down.

Wolfe, supervisor of sentry dog handlers at Columbus Air Force Base, said he has had hundreds of calls from 31 states since news of his family's imminent separation became public Thursday.

ASMSU trip plans finalized

Again this year ASMSU is sponsoring trips to Bermuda and Grand Bahama Island. Finalized trip plans and sign-ups will begin soon according to Jeff Zeig, ASMSU vice president for services and operations. Other unavailable information will be announced later.

The trip to Grand Bahama Island, Mar. 17-24 includes round-trip air transportation from Detroit with first class in-flight service and meals on board. Inclusive cost is estimated at about $250.

Transfers between the airport and hotel are also included.

While on Grand Bahama Island, the trip offers seven nights accommodation in triple rooms with private bath and television. A full breakfast and dinner are also included.

Special entertainment as well as all hotel gratuities come with the trip package.

The Bermuda vacation includes many of the same package items as the Bahama trip. Round-trip air passage from Detroit, accommodations of four to six in Surf Side Cottages with meals on the European plan.

Transfers from hotel to airport and back are included. Portage is covered at the airport only.

Accommodations for 40 students plus two chaperones have already been made.

The Bermuda trip, costing about $216, departs from Detroit Mar. 17, returning Mar. 23. At the present time tentative flights have been scheduled as follows. Leave Detroit at 11:45 a.m. via American Airlines and arrive in New York at 1:09 p.m. Then, leave New York at 2:30 p.m. on Pan American bound for Bermuda, arriving there at 5:30 p.m.

The deadline for final payment is Feb. 10. Zeig said cancellations can't be made after this date if a refund is expected. Anyone cancelling after this date will have to get a replacement, Zeig said.

Zeig also said that he would like students to make the entire payment at one time. However, if a student can pay only a portion to begin with, he can still make the final payment Feb. 10.

Students must carry proof of citizenship. A current or expired passport or voter's registration card is sufficient.

Draft cards, automobile driver's licenses and MSU identification cards are not valid.

Anyone who is not a U.S. citizen should have proper re-entry documents.

"Canadian students, or any other students from outside the United States who hold the green alien registration card will have no difficulty," according to Craven Travel Service officials.

For further information students may contact Zeig from 4-5 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday; from 3-5 p.m., Tuesday and from 2-5 p.m., Thursday, at 355-8302, 315 Student Services Bldg. They may also contact him at home, 332-3565.

LBJ called 'political animal' by state Republican official

America will decline by 1972 if President Johnson is re-elected, a state Republican official prophesied Thursday.

William McLaughlin, state Republican vice-chairman, said in a speech before a joint meeting of the MSU Young Republicans and

Ingham County Teen-Age Republicans, that President Johnson is a "political animal."

Johnson would stop the war in Vietnam tomorrow if he could win an election, McLaughlin said.

The urban crisis, not the Vietnam issue, will be this year's main campaign issue. "There will be bloodier riots in 1968," he said.

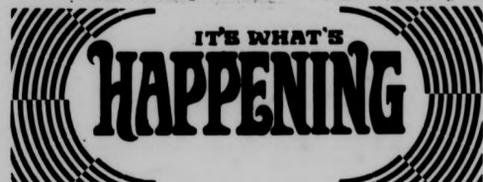

"We haven't done anything to solve the problems which caused the riots in 1967," McLaughlin said.

As soon as warm weather comes riots will erupt, he said.

McLaughlin blamed the war on poverty as one of the causes of the riots. "The poor man is not getting the money," he said.

"Open occupation means one thing," McLaughlin said. "It is to be used as a tool by moderate Negroes," he added.

McLaughlin, a Romney supporter, said "Romney will campaign in New Hampshire like Grant took Richmond."

There will be a meeting of the Chess Club at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday in 304 and 310 Bessey Hall.

The German Club will meet at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in 30 Union. The play "Eine Alte Geschichte" will be staged by members of the German dept.

The Soaring Club will meet at 7:30 tonight in 402 Computer Center. A. J. Smith, national gliding champion, will talk on "Flying Gliders in Competition."

The International Relations Club will hold a symposium at 8 tonight in the Kellogg Center auditorium. Paul Varg, dean of the College of Arts and Letters, will discuss "United States Foreign Policy and the China Question."

M. A. K. Halliday of Yale University will speak on "Transitivity in the English Clause" at 4:15 today in 106B Wells Hall.

The Lansing Art Guild will present works by Carl Matsuda in a show from Jan. 17 to March 2. The show will be held in the downstairs gallery of the Lansing Public Library.

The Dance Club will hold its first meeting of the term at 7 p.m.

Tuesday in 118 Women's IM Bldg. Anyone interested in ballroom dancing is invited. No experience is necessary.

John Salball, professor of psychology at the University of Minnesota, will speak on "Developmental Studies of Symbolic Representations" at 10 a.m. Thursday in the ConCon Room of the International Center. All students are welcome.

The Packaging Society will hold an informal meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Rooms B & C of the International Center. Anyone interested is welcome.

Anyone interested in tutoring foreign students in English is asked to either call 353-0802 or go to 1 International Center.

All undergraduates interested in forming a student advisory committee to the Dept. of Anthropology are asked to attend a planning meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the southwest end of the Union Grill.

Sign-up for beginning bridge lessons will be held in the Union Board Office through Thursday.

A trip to London for $356, round-trip, is being offered by the Union Board European Flights. Sign-up will be from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. today.

Green on council for urban children
Robert L. Green, associate professor of educational psychology, has been named to the President's Council on Youth Opportunity.
He will serve the council as a member of a task force on higher education.
Vice President Hubert Humphrey, chairman of the council, formed the task force to discover ways in which institutions of higher learning can become more directly involved in meeting the needs of disadvantaged urban children.
The task force will make suggestions to the mayors of 50 major cities in the near future.
Green, a specialist in urban education and in teaching the disadvantaged, is an education consultant for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Barnard

 Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel of Georgetown University's Surgical Research Laboratory said: "We have been at work here on the problem of human-heart transplants for many years. We have done many animal-heart transplants. But we feel that the evidence for long-term acceptance of a transplanted human heart is not good enough yet to justify the operation."
 Hufnagel rated the infection risk on par with the rejection risk and said:
 "You expect infection when you attempt to treat the immune reaction. Infection should not come as a surprise in an operation of this type. That is one of the reasons we feel that we have not yet learned to handle adequately the immune reaction

--the body's natural resistance to any foreign material."
 Hufnagel gave his views in a copyrighted interview in the magazine U.S. News & World Report.
 Barnard indicated he had not selected his next transplant patient, adding he would first study the problems and difficulties Blaiberg's operation produced.
 "We will take the first patient that comes along that's ill and needs a heart transplant, whether it is European white or Bantu African or colored mulatto, it wouldn't matter," he replied when questioned whether the next patient would be an African.
 Barnard was obviously referring to world reaction after the heart of a mulatto was transplanted into Blaiberg in highly race-conscious South Africa.
 The surgeon said any man in the South African street could afford the costly operation because it was paid for by the Cape Province administration. He added the cost of a heart transplant was probably cheaper than a kidney transplant because in the former less pre-operative care was necessary.
 Barnard said he was training other cardiac specialists to perform the pioneer operation.
 "There are surgeons I have today who are quite capable of transplanting a heart."
 Asked whether he would offer himself as a donor if the occasion arose, Barnard said: "I feel if I have a motor car accident and I have fatal brain damage, I would be very glad if my family will agree that my heart is removed for transplantation."

Burglar surprised by owner-guard

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) -- Up on the restaurant top and down through the barbecue pit chimney came Cornell Milan, 21.
 He found himself staring at the pistol of George L. Lloyd, who sat guard throughout the night because his business had been burglarized several times.
 Milan is scheduled to face a burglary charge in court Monday.

INDIVIDUAL'S COMMITMENT

Issues in modern world; theme of Provost series

Issues concerning the individual's commitment in a modern world has been chosen as the topic for the 1968 Provost Lecture Series, April 15-18.
 Hans Morgenthau, a noted economist from the University of Chicago; Kenneth Clark, a psychologist at the University of Rochester; and Michael Scriven, a member of the philosophy department at the University of Illinois have accepted invitations as speakers.

The next question is to what shall man make his fullest commitment, she said. And, how shall he reconcile the various "worlds" to which he owes allegiance?
 This and others are some of the questions they hope to explore, she said.

 All speeches will begin at 4 p.m. in Fairchild Theatre. Informal discussions will follow the speeches. For more information contact Miss Stulberg at 351-6934.

Spending cut

 The Americans were reported to have advised Healey privately that Britain's order for the swing-wing strike bomber could be cut from 50 to 40 without renegotiating the basic contract.
 The issue will be resolved Monday when the Cabinet also will be adopting a new defense policy surrendering Britain's century-old system of bases in the Middle East and Asia--although Hong Kong will remain a notable exception.

Specifically, the Wilson government has resolved to pull troops and airmen out of bases in Malaysia and Singapore in Southeast Asia, and Bahrain and Sharjah in the Persian Gulf by 1971--four years ahead of a terminal date which had been fixed only last July.
 The Labor government's retreat into a "Fortress Britain" defense posture allows for the maintenance of such outposts as the Rhine Army in Europe and Cyprus in the east Mediterranean. But West Germany is to be warned it must cover the deutchmark costs of the Rhine Army or risk seeing its withdrawal too.

These defense cuts were decided upon as part of the price Wilson's men knew they would have to pay their own party followers for a wholesale retrenchment of social spending at home. The cuts on the domestic front will affect the education program, road building, social service benefits including renewed charges for medicine now available free under the state health service.

Some members of Wilson's government have been resisting social service and education economies even to the point of resigning. Lord Longford, leader of the House of Lords, has let it be known he will quit if the Cabinet defers raising the school-leaving age from 15 to 16 years. The Cabinet intends to do this anyway.
 Jennie Lee, widow of left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan and Minister for the Arts, threatened to resign if charges are reimposed on medicines. This would be more a morale setback than a political blow for Wilson. Miss Lee is chairman of the Labor party.
 Britain's allies have displayed equal alarm at some of the projected cuts. President Johnson, for instance, evidently has been moved to the point of sending a personal message to Wilson protesting the British leader's intentions in some sectors. In the President's view the cuts seem to be going too far, too fast.

Symposium

 has recently turned to literary criticism.
 The speeches today through Wednesday will be followed by informal seminars and student discussions in the evening with the speakers. A panel discussion featuring the five guests and two MSU students will be telecast over WMSB-TV, Channel 10 today from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Informal seminars with Marya Mannes in Case Hall, Dwight MacDonald in Emmons Hall and Ernest van den Haag in West Holden Hall will be held at 8 tonight. Student discussions with Dr. Szasz will be held in the Snyder-Phillips lounge at 9:30 p.m.
 Informal seminars with Marya Mannes in Butterfield Hall, Dwight MacDonald in 105 South Kedzie Hall, and Ernest van den Haag in West Wilson will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Mr. Cox will hold student discussions at FarmHouse fraternity, 151 Bogue St. at 9:30 p.m.
 The symposium will feature the same type of seminars with Harvey Cox in Fee Hall and Ernest van den Haag in Armstrong Hall at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Student discussions with Dwight MacDonald in East Shaw Hall at 9:30 p.m. will end the three-day program.
