Center to counsel on draft

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

Information and counseling on legal alternatives to the draft are now available at the newly-established Draft Information Center, 935 E. Grand River Ave.

The center has information on draft law, conscientious objection, religious denominational statements for conscientious objectors and alternative service.

The center, which is located off the parking lot of the Meridian Mutual Insurance Co., opened Tuesday in response to the enormous demand for information.

"Many young men are struck with a grave philosophical question in having to fight for a cause that even the statesmen are opposed to," Mrs. Ted Guinn, staff coordinator, said. "We are here to help them. We do nothing to make up the man's mind for him but try to help him find the road that is best for him."

The center is sponsored by the Greater Lansing Community Organization, a group working to foster peace and freedom within the community. A number of community organizations are cooperating.

The center offers literature on the draft from religious organizations, the Friends Peace Committee and the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors. It also has a staff of 10 counselors experienced in the area of draft advising.

"The technicalities of trying to gain a deferred status are varied and complicated," Mrs. Guinn said, "and the counselors, having had previous experience with the procedures involved, will be able to help the individual do what he thinks he should do and do it as quickly and correctly as possible."

"It is much easier for a man to obtain deferred status if he makes the application before he is classified 1-A," Ted Guinn, assistant professor of mathematics and counselor for the center, said. "The boards are less suspicious of his motives. We are trying to help young men realize this and apply early if their intention is to try for a deferred status."

The other counselors include Rev. Warren Day of United Ministries in Higher Education, Rev. Keith Pohl of University Methodist Church, Rev. Tom Smith of Unitarian-Universalist Ministry, Peter Stettenheim and Harrison Hunt.

Also counseling are: John Masterson, assistant professor of mathematics; James Resh, assistant professor in the systems science program; James Anderson, assistant director of Honors College; John Brattin, Lansing attorney, and Guinn.

The center will help high school students, as well as college students, who face the draft.

"We are talking to high school students through the Students for Peace and Freedom in the East Lansing high schools," Mrs. Guinn said. "We are also trying to interest high school counselors in our services."

The center is open from 1 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays. For further information, call 489-8035 in the morning or 351-5283 in the afternoon or evening.

RFK considers entering Indiana primary contest

PROVO, Utah (AP)—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has all but decided to enter Indiana's May 7 presidential primary, setting up a potential three-way race with Sen. Eugene McCarthy and a stand-in for President Johnson.

It was understood Wednesday that Kennedy, the New York senator who is challenging the President for the nomination, may fly to Indianapolis Thursday. That is the deadline for filing petitions declaring his candidacy.

He would be running against Gov. Roger Branigan, representing President Johnson, and probably also against Sen. McCarthy, D-Minn., whose supporters say they have enough petition signatures to qualify him for the ballot.

The Hoosier state has 63 delegates to the Democratic national convention. The state's prospective slate is reported leaning toward Johnson.

Kennedy, in announcing his candidacy March 16, said he would support McCarthy for the primaries where the Minnesotan has entered. McCarthy has yet to accept the offer and is campaigning on his own in Wisconsin.

Kennedy flew to Provo Wednesday to address an estimated 15,000 students at the traditionally conservative Brigham Young University.

While the Mormon student body waited for Kennedy's motorcade to arrive from the airport, they filled the university field-house with hymns.

Earlier, at Weber State College, nestled at the foot of the Wasatch Range in Ogden, Kennedy continued to press his anti-war campaign against the Johnson administration.

His voice growing increasingly husky, he again broadened his attack to include Richard M. Nixon, the potential Republican nominee.

Kennedy again faulted Nixon for what he called a lack of any new ideas in the past decade.

Kennedy called for creation of a state peace corps, to be financed by the federal government, but to remove federal strings from aid programs to local communities, allowing the localities a wide latitude in deciding how the funds will be used.

'U' honoraries direct policy for Choice '68

By LEO ZAINEA
State News Staff Writer

Choice '68 organizers here announced Wednesday they have enlisted the support of 12 service honoraries to direct the nationwide collegiate presidential primary on April 24.

Roger Williams, East Lansing junior and campus coordinator, said the honoraries would be responsible for all policy-making, though ASMSU would still provide the funds.

Williams said MSU would possibly be the only campus in the nation to use this kind of system. The rest of the country's primaries will be directed by campus student governments. The board of directors will establish basic guidelines, design the national ballot and provide overall leadership and direction.

Williams said project spokesmen decided to relieve student government of the Choice '68 "burden" because of the upcoming ASMSU election and the consequent changeover of personnel and leadership.

He said the honoraries welcomed the task with "fantastic" enthusiasm and none of those approached refused to take part. All of the honoraries have given definite commitments, he said.

A ballot of 14 candidates, including both extremes of the political spectrum, will be offered to nearly five million student voters. Republican candidates include Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York, Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, Harold Stassen and Gov. Romney. President Johnson, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota are the Democratic contenders.

Choice '68 organizers also placed Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, Rev. Martin Luther King and Socialist Fred Halstead on the ballot to provide alternatives for those students "alienated from the two-party system."

The primary will be "open," in that students will be asked to express their party

Dem leaders reluctant to support LBJ again

WASHINGTON (AP)—Although 14 of 24 Democratic governors are listed as Johnson supporters, administration lieutenants are finding that many state party leaders are reluctant to stand up and be counted for President Johnson's renomination.

A large share of these potential defectors to Sens. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., are turning up in the 26 states that have Republican governors.

These states will have 1,382 votes at the Democratic convention in Chicago next August, 70 more than needed for the nomination.

An Associated Press survey disclosed that 14 Democratic governors are supporting the President, six are noncommittal, one is threatening to leave Johnson over Vietnam, one backs Kennedy and two are for former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

In Republican-governed states Johnson will have to win contested primaries to get the delegations of five states—Wisconsin, Nebraska, Oregon, California, and South Dakota. In none of these is the President currently looked upon as the favorite.

More Cosby Tickets

More than 2,000 tickets to the second Bill Cosby show Saturday night have been sold, according to Don Banghart, ASMSU popular entertainment chairman.

Approximately 4,000 tickets are still available for the second show at 9:30 p.m. and are on sale at the Union ticket office, Campbell's Suburban Shop and the Paramount News Center in Lansing. Reserved seats are $4.50 and general admission is $3.50.

Tickets not sold prior to the two performances will be available at the door.

In Nebraska, where McCarthy will be a challenger, the White House induced former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, as well as the state chairman and national committeeman, to come out publicly for Johnson.

But the delegation's 30 votes will go to the winner of the primary. Kennedy has booked himself into Lincoln, Neb., Thursday for a university speech and a meeting with Democratic officials. McCarthy will be going in as soon as he completes his Wisconsin campaign this week.

There are fresh reports of trouble for the President in Ohio and Pennsylvania, previously supposed to be securely in the Johnson camp.

The Ohio Democratic organization is running Sen. Stephen M. Young, a vigorous Vietnam war critic, as a favorite son for complimentary support on the first ballot at the Chicago convention. Young has confided to friends that the leaders are getting nervous about trying to transfer all of the state's 115 votes to Johnson subsequently.

A Democrat intimately associated with the situation in Pennsylvania said the Johnson camp's dependence on Mayor Joseph Barr of Pittsburgh and James Tate of Philadelphia for the state's 130 votes could be shaken before the convention. McCarthy's name is on the April 23 primary ballot, which is not binding on the delegation.

There are political storm signs in some of the 14 states whose governors are supporting Johnson. These states include Texas, Tennessee, West Virginia, Delaware, Hawaii, New Hampshire, Indiana, Illinois, Utah, Connecticut, New Jersey, South Carolina, North Dakota and Louisiana.

Kennedy may challenge Johnson's bid for Indiana's 63 votes with Gov. Roger D.

McCarthy warns business of possible wage controls

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, stopping in Chicago to raise money for his campaign, told businessmen Wednesday that if the Vietnam war continues to escalate, the nation will have to plan for credit, price and wage controls.

The Minnesota Democrat took part of the day off from campaigning in Wisconsin for his April 2 primary challenge of President Johnson. He made a fundraising appearance and a speech in Chicago and talked by telephone with Mayor Richard J. Daley, a supporter of Johnson.

At a news conference, McCarthy fielded questions about a mini-revolt in his "children's crusade."

Asked about the resignation of his campaign press secretary, Seymour Hersh, 30, and Hersh's assistant, Mary Lou Oates, 23, McCarthy said: "I don't look upon this as a serious loss to my campaign. We'll survive."

McCarthy said "we have the best organized campaign at the lower level."

Hersh is a free lance writer and a former reporter for The Associated Press in Chicago and Washington. Miss Oates was a newswoman for United Press International in New York. Their duties were taken over Wednesday by Paul Gorman, 38, who had been a speech writer for the campaign.

McCarthy spoke before businessmen at the Paper Board Packaging Council. He was introduced by Henry Van der Eb, Executive vice president of the Container Corporation of America.

In introducing McCarthy, Van der Eb said "all others have followed in his courageous footsteps in somewhat unseemly haste."

The apparent jibe at Sen. Robert F.

Kennedy brought laughter and applause from the audience.

McCarthy, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said if the cost of war rises to $50 billion a year the nation would have to be prepared to move toward some kinds of wartime controls—and not the surtax now proposed by the Johnson administration.

He said some action would have to be considered on credit controls and on wage and price controls.

At a news conference after the speech McCarthy repeated that he is considering entering the Florida primary but indicated that no final decision has been made. He said he understands he has until April 20 to enter the Florida campaign.

McCarthy acknowledged to newsmen later that he had talked by telephone to Mayor Daley, a powerful influence in party politics who has maintained that he will support re-nomination of Johnson

East German's charge spurs Red controversy

PRAGUE (AP)—Czechoslovakia's foreign minister summoned East Germany's ambassador Wednesday night to protest an attack that was likened here to calling him an "imperialist agent." The attack and the official complaint were believed unprecedented in Soviet bloc diplomacy.

The Czech news agency CTK reported that Foreign Minister Valclav David notified Ambassador Peter Florin of an "official objection" to statements that "reflected on Czechoslovakia and a member of the Czechoslovak government."

He referred to a speech in East Germany by Kurt Hager, secretary of the East German party Central Committee. He singled out Forestry Minister Josef Smrkovsky, a leading Czech liberal and candidate for the vacant post of president, as one of those who are "filling the West with hope that Czechoslovakia will be pulled into the maelstrom."

The incident, reflecting new tension between the orthodox Communist nations of East Europe and the reform leadership in Czechoslovakia, came as party sources reported the reformers readying a program to shed Iron Curtain restrictions on individual liberty and permit "no-confidence" votes against the government.

CTK also reported that Czech Ambassador Vaclav Kolar called in East Berlin on Erich Honecker, a top member of the East German Politburo, and East German Foreign Minister Otto Winzer, "expressing objections and disagreement with the statements" made by Hager.

The Hager comments stirred widespread indignation here. One party source spoke of a "sneak attack," and the Association of Czechoslovak Anti-Fascist Fighters called Hager's statement "interference in the democratic affairs of a fraternal country."

At the same time, a delegation of students from Prague's Charles University delivered a petition to the East German Embassy, denouncing Hager's attack as a "hostile act against the Czechoslovak people."

Israelis likely to ignore UN 'reprisal' resolution

By MITCH MILLER
State News Staff Writer
Sunday's UN Security Council resolution condemning Israel for its reprisal raids into Jordan has pointed out the problem the Israelis face in handling the results of their victory in the six-day war of last June.

The Israelis want to hold on to the territories they captured for a number of reasons. First, the areas are of military value. They provide the Israelis with protection against hostile activities, and room to maneuver.

Second, they possess economic value, especially the east bank of the Jordan River, although in the long run the cost of administering the territories may outweigh the profit of possessing them.

Third, and probably most important, they provide the Jerusalem government with the negotiating power that will hopefully bring the Arabs to talks regarding peace in the Middle East.

But if the Israelis are protected from attacks on Israel proper, they now must worry about attacks on the captured territories.

The Arab nations apparently realize that they cannot defeat Israel by conventional military attack. Their response to Israel's occupation has been to resume terrorist-cum-guerilla operations, similar to those which have been taking place since Israel was first established.

What they have been hoping to force Israel into is the type of response made by most Western nations to this type of warfare, that is, a counter-insurgency effort confined to the areas under attack.

The Israelis, however, are unwilling to cooperate. They have conducted both terrorist and anti-terrorist campaigns and have come to the conclusion that to take the defensive in this type of conflict is to be defeated.

So rather than conduct "search and destroy" or similar operations, which they feel would alienate the population of the captured territories, the Israelis have attempted to integrate them into a "Greater Israel" and make it more advantageous for the inhabitants to be under Israeli control.

The raid on Karameh, in Jordan, was one of these. The Arab states and their Soviet backers, who have complained periodically about Israel's acts, felt that the scale and duration of this one (several Israeli battalions destroyed what was one of the main bases of guerrilla activities in a day-long battle) provided an excellent opportunity to make a successful case in the United Nations for a resolution against Israel.

A compromise resolution passed, with the support of the United States.

The support was forthcoming because the U.S. wishes to regain the goodwill of the Arab states, in addition to furthering the American-Soviet "detente."

But there is a more fundamental reason why the U.S. supported the resolution, and that is that our experience with guerrilla warfare has led this country to the feeling that it was unfair for the modernized Israelis to beat the underdeveloped Arabs.

The U.S. wants Israel to play the game of modernized against unmodernized states where the modernized state loses. The Israelis show no interest in following the rules; they feel they are in an altogether different contest. The memory of the murder of the six million "civilized" Jews by the "savage" Nazis is too fresh for them to feel any guilt about defeating the Arabs, who have re-declared the Nazi ambition toward them.

And it remains to be seen whether the threat of probably the Israelis to play by our rules.

Relaxed Romney views racial issue

By the Associated Press

With the pressure of presidential campaigning off his shoulders, Gov. Romney is tackling Michigan's problems with a relaxed and confident air, devoting much of his time to what he considers his state's No. 1 issue—race relations.

During the month since he withdrew from the race for the Republican presidential nomination, the 60-year-old governor has conferred with legislators, mayors, aides and civic leaders on the prospects of racial violence this summer.

Spending his time "in the process of getting up to date" on Michigan's racial problems and "getting a feeling of where we are" in solving riot causes has kept the governor close to home.

He has made only two trips outside Michigan since he returned from the campaign trail March 1.

Although working mostly at his Lansing office, the governor has made two trips to Detroit to check on racial problems.

Michigan faces "another difficult and tense summer," but says he doesn't anticipate an upheaval as great as the one which hit Detroit and five other cities last summer.

"White and black racists who want violence are very, very few," he says, and points optimistically to newly enacted open housing ordinances in several cities.

"Romney is pushing the legislature to pass a statewide law banning racial discrimination in real estate transactions and has called for stiffer laws against rioters."

Romney speaks with ease on some aspects of his unsuccessful presidential bid, but has remained silent on others.

He says he has no excuses and professes no bitterness at his failure to arouse the GOP rank and file.

"I learned some lessons," he says, adding he has even made a "New Years' resolution" to be nice to the press, which he often accused of misinterpreting his statements.

"The press is wonderful," he said with a smile at a recent news conference. "Some are more wonderful than others."

A hint of disillusionment showed through, however, when he said, "I don't believe I was really being very, very inarticulate."

Romney said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's statement that he would accept a draft by the GOP convention influenced his own decision to pull out, but was only one of many factors.

His wife Lenore, said on the day Rockefeller announced he

Nixon to seek total GOP vote

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP)—Richard M. Nixon, whose Wisconsin primary campaign has been coasting with his huge acknowledged lead, returned to work Wednesday as Republican leaders battled to hold GOP voters in their own column April 2.

He scheduled a major farm address before a Wisconsin Farm Bureau convention at Wausau Wednesday night, a breakfast reception at Oshkosh Thursday, followed by a luncheon talk at Sheboygan and another major speech at Milwaukee Thursday night.

Before the withdrawal of Gov. Romney from the Republican contest, Nixon had planned on concentrating heavily on Wisconsin after the New Hampshire primary.

However, with only token opposition on the GOP ballot from California Gov. Ronald Reagan and former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen, he has made only three sorties into the state since March 12.

But with Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy touring the Republican heartlands in a frank bid for crossover votes in his confrontation with President Johnson on the Democratic side, GOP leaders are mounting a drive to keep Republican totals up.

Republican State Chairman Ody J. Fish sent a letter to all of his party's county chairmen Tuesday, directing them to wage a telephone campaign "to get out the Republican vote and to have it vote Republican next Tuesday."

Under Wisconsin's open primary law, there are no poll lists of party members, and voters may use either ballot.

In another Republican development, Stassen told newsmen Thursday that a poll taken in six state cities the past two days showed him running ahead of Nixon for the first time, 51 per cent to 40 per cent.

Stassen, who has been campaigning hard as the GOP "peace candidate," said this showed opposition to Johnson-Nixon policies on the American war drive in Vietnam.

Mediation expert may settle strike

DETROIT UPI—A labor expert from the University of Wisconsin has agreed to try to settle Detroit's 133-day-old newspaper blackout, Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh announced Wednesday.

Cavanagh told a news conference that Nathan P. Feinsinger would come to Detroit Thursday "to advise me on what further steps can be taken to end this disastrous labor dispute."

Feinsinger, a law professor, has a 30 year background in mediation and arbitration. He was an umpire in disputes between General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers from 1954 to 1966, and was involved in the settlement of such labor disputes as the New York transit strike of 1966 and the Hawaiian pineapple shipping strike of 1947.

Cavanagh said he asked Feinsinger to come in because of "the apparent inability of the parties even to get close to resolving this thing."

"If he can't solve it, then no one can," he said.

The Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press have not published since Nov. 16. One strike against the papers has been settled, but four more continue.

Thursday, the length of the newspaper blackout will equal the record shutdown of 1964.

Cavanagh said Feinsinger "might be able to devise some formula upon which this dispute could be settled."

He said Feinsinger would have to leave Detroit Friday, but indicated he would come back next week if needed.

The mayor blamed the stalemate on "attitudes by personalities" involved in the negotiations. He did not specify which personalities or what attitudes.

About 600 members of Teamsters Local 372 went on strike against the Detroit News Nov. 16 when their work contract expired.

The Free Press suspended publication the next day, charging violations of joint contracts that the two newspapers had with News employees who refused to cross the Teamsters' picket line.

Local 372, under pressure from its international union, signed new contracts with the Free Press Feb. 15 and with the News March 15. But the contracts of 13 other unions expired during the Teamsters strike, and four of the 13 went on strike.

NEEDS TRANSFUSIONS

5-year-old battles deadly disease

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—Five-year-old Sally Harrington, suffering from an often-fatal blood disease, has been kept alive for six months with 800 pints of blood. If the transfusions, which range up to 50 pints a week, can be kept up, her doctors think she may be cured.

The dark-haired, blue-eyed Sally lives in danger around the clock and has been confined to a padded bed since last September at St. Joseph's Hospital in Pontiac.

Her mother, Mrs. Emmanuel Harrington, says it takes 50 pints of blood a week to keep Sally "full of pep and looking like nothing was wrong with her."

Her need for blood has prompted several hundred people in the Detroit and Pontiac area to donate for her.

She has aplastic anemia, a leukemia-like disease, in which the bone marrow fails to produce necessary blood components. Her mother says few ever have survived it long as Sally.

But there is hope now. "If she can just stay in there long enough, they know for sure they can cure her," said the mother, wife of a General Motors foreman.

Recent bone marrow tests

Mrs. Harrington says, indicate Sally's marrow is beginning once again to produce both red and white corpuscles, and equally important, that the marrow's platelet-making mechanism may start working again.

Platelets cause the blood to clot. Without them, a minor cut could cause a hemorrhage and death. The goal is to keep Sally alive until she once again makes her own platelets.

Sally must stay in her padded bed to avoid being bruised or cut and must avoid activity, which burns up platelets.

Although doctors say Sally isn't yet producing enough red or white blood cells, her mother said the chance of bleeding is, to her, the big threat.

Sally went to the hospital daily for transfusions between last March and September, and she has been confined there since then.

Her parents are 400 pints in arrears at the blood bank, but hundreds have pitched in to help. More than 230 pints have been donated by Harrington's fellow workers at a GM Truck and Coach Division plant, students at Lawrence Institute of Technology in Detroit, a Buick sales office in nearby Drayton Plains and by neighbors in the suburban subdivision near Pontiac where the Harringtons live.

RFK's presidential hopes meet with varied response

By BOB ZESCHIN
State News Staff Writer

Student opinion on the entrance of Robert F. Kennedy into the Democratic presidential race has varied as much at MSU as it has on other college campuses across the United States.

Some called Kennedy an opportunist; some genuinely regretted his move as a potential split in the peace vote; some switched to RFK because they felt he "had a better chance of winning;" and some strengthened their resolve to work even harder for McCarthy, adopting a "we can beat Kennedy as well as Johnson" attitude.

"We would have supported Kennedy last fall, but he wasn't there when we needed him," said Bill Swanson, Birmingham senior and president of Students for McCarthy. "I'm willing to do all I can to back McCarthy. I would work for Kennedy over Johnson, but only if McCarthy quit."

Swanson was working at the McCarthy booth outside registration Tuesday, a stand with campaign information, buttons and bumper stickers, and a sign-up list for students who wanted to go to Milwaukee this weekend and help with precinct work and canvassing in the Wisconsin primary.

An estimated 150-200 students will be going to Milwaukee from MSU. Car pools and accommodations are being arranged for the workers at minimal cost, said Louis Penner, Lansing graduate student and principal organizer of the trip.

Among those going will be

Bill Buxbaum, New York City junior, who will be driving to Wisconsin with five other residents of Bailey Hall.

"I've never felt as strongly about working as a candidate before," Buxbaum said. "I like McCarthy's views on Vietnam. I like Kennedy's, too."

"At first I was really kind of annoyed when Kennedy announced his candidacy," said Laura Negroni, Chicago senior, who also plans to go to Wisconsin. "It seemed that McCarthy had done all the work and when Kennedy saw that there was a chance to do well against Johnson, he jumped in."

"But I've done a lot of thinking about it lately. I prefer McCarthy—he's really the man I'd like to see become president."

The Collegiate Press Service recently released a study showing that campuses across the country are divided on potential candidates. It quoted a survey taken by the Michigan Daily that showed that "a lot of students were supporting Kennedy but only because they thought he had a better chance of winning," but contrasted it by mentioning the 1,000 students at the University of Illinois who sent a petition asking Kennedy not to run.

The Harvard Crimson shifted its support from McCarthy to alumnus Kennedy, but other Ivy League papers, such as the Yale Daily News and the Daily Pennsylvanian, support McCarthy.

U.N. ambassador to discuss Viet war

"The Prospects for Peace in Southeast Asia" will be discussed here April 4 by Salvador P. Lopez, Philippine ambassador to the United Nations.

The speech was listed incorrectly in the faculty "blue sheet" as taking place tonight.

Ambassador Lopez assumed his position in 1964 after serving as undersecretary and secretary of foreign affairs for three years. He had formerly served as chairman of the United Nations General Assembly Committee on Social, Cultural and Humanitarian Affairs, representative to the U.N. Economic and Social Council (UNESCO), permanent representative to UNESCO in Paris and ambassador to France.

In 1941 he received his country's highest honor, the Order of the Sun, for a volume of essays, "Literature and Society," and has received military and civilian decorations from many nations.

Lopez's appearance here was arranged by the Office of International Extension of the MSU Continuing Education Service.

The lecture will be held in the Con-Con Room of the International Center at 8 p.m., following a dinner meeting with the MSU Filipino Club.

NEXT WEEK

Series presents two orchestras

Both the Chicago Symphony and the Cleveland Orchestra will perform in the Auditorium next week as part of MSU's Lecture-Concert Series.

At 8:15 p.m. Monday, the Chicago Symphony under the direction of Jean Martinon, will feature works by Tchaikovsky and two French composers, George Bizet and Maurice Ravel.

Cello soloist Stephen Kates will perform Tchaikovsky's "Variations on a Roco Theme" for Cello and Orchestra.

The Cleveland Orchestra, under associate conductor Louis

Lane and featuring pianist Leon Fleisher, will perform at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Fleisher, who has appeared with the Cleveland Orchestra since 1946, will play Ravel's "Piano Concerto for the Left Hand."

Other works will be "Symphony No. 90 in C Major" by Haydn, "Diptych for Brass Quintet and Orchestra" by Schuller and "Variations on an Original Theme" by Elgar.

Tickets for both concerts are available at the Union Ticket Office or at the door.

Political petal-picking: choice '68

Daisies are in.

They're nice petal-picking flowers for indecisive presidential candidate potentials and for frustrated voters.

The first candidate in the ring, Gov. Romney, was also the first to flee.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was expected to step forward, but left supporters gaping in shock when he refused.

Anticipation that Robert F. Kennedy would enter wasn't widespread, but he did.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy motivated the youth, made a remarkable showing in the New Hampshire primary and is gradually gaining recognition as a serious alternative for the Democratic Party.

And former Vice President Richard Nixon appears to have command of the Republican nomination.

Whether Rockefeller's refusal was a form of surrender or strategy, the Republican Party does not have an active dialogue going. Some contend that he merely wished to avoid a personal and violent confrontation in the primaries, a confrontation and all-out battle between moderates and conservatives. Perhaps Rockefeller just failed to recognize the depth of support he had acquired. Either way, it is regrettable that he is not challenging Nixon to what could have been an important and much needed debate of the issues. For all practical purposes, the Republican convention will be one without a choice.

Again, the liberal wing of the Republican party has failed to unite behind a candidate or even put up a good fight. Nixon, however, as Goldwater did in 1964, has been hard at work over the past few years.

Nixon pledged in New Hampshire to "bring the peace." But he refuses to say how and all indications are that his views are somewhat more militaristic than even Johnson's.

Backers may claim a "new Nixon" but it appears the old "tricky Dick" is only masquerading.

Kennedy was once the potential ideal and the idol of the youth. But McCarthy has shown his touch with the younger generation and is no longer a stand-in for anyone. Some fear the two peace candidates, McCarthy and Kennedy, will weaken opposition to Johnson. But the duo gives a broader range for anti-war and/or anti-Johnson discussion.

Kennedy's timing has unfortunately reinforced his opportunistic, power-hungry image. He has given himself a lot to overcome. For those who shy away from Kennedy, he seems to possess a degree of abruptness, ruthlessness and impersonal concern for anyone in his way. On the one hand any likeness in speech, thought or mannerisms to the late John F. Kennedy brings praise, respect, and support; on the other, such a likeness is viewed as "plagiarism" and he becomes a "free ride seeker."

In the Kennedy-McCarthy movement, there is hope for change, even if it is a slim one.

Still, it won't be surprising if the revolving door spews forth only Johnson and Nixon on election day... only saddening.

Meanwhile at MSU mums the word

The past two weeks in politics have seen both explosion and excitement in the presidential candidate scene. Sen. Eugene McCarthy's unexpected success in the New Hampshire primary and the announcement by Sen. Robert Kennedy that he is running for the candidacy, mark the beginning of what should be a most interesting political year, at least for the Democrats.

One of the most notable characteristics of the recent action taken by both Kennedy and McCarthy is the turn to students for support and audiences. The efforts of student workers for McCarthy in New Hampshire had a substantial role in his surprising showing there. The week before the primary students showed up in New Hampshire from all over the country to go door to door for the Senator.

Since that time no small part of the two presidential aspirants' time has been spent on college campuses. Sen. McCarthy, for instance, has spoken at Howard University, University of Wisconsin and Beloit College. Sen. Kennedy has been seen at the University of Kansas, Kansas State University, Vanderbilt University and University of Alabama.

These men realize the potential support which is to be found for their political stands on the campus. There is a base of support among the voting age student, as well as a pool of active help which the concerned student will give these men. Michigan State, unfortunately, is conspicuously absent from the list of schools where they will speak or have spoken.

It certainly shouldn't be too difficult to coerce these or other candidates to make MSU one of their stops while traveling around the country. They want and need to face as many students as possible.

A speaking engagement would be most appropriate in conjunction with Choice 68 which will be held April 24. Here the students will have a chance to express their presidential preferences, and exposure to the candidates would make this much more meaningful. Even beyond Choice 68 though, MSU students are certainly no less interested, nor less active politically than other university students.

Those involved with the Great Issues program or with the so far disappointing Forum 68 are in a good position to extend an invitation to the candidates. So far Forum 68, which was to be a wide ranging, controversial program of speakers, has fallen far short of its goals. Here is a chance to pick it up and make it worthwhile. Whatever the reason or whichever program is used, these men are ripe for the chance to speak at a university the size of MSU. Such a chance should not be passed up.

MAX LERNER

By MAX LERNER

Now that the great convulsions are over, and everyone is in-Nixon, McCarthy, Kennedy-one must ask the final question: will L.B.J. come in and stay in?

My shorthand answer is yes, provided he can do it without bruising his pride and his sense of his place in history. Thus it is a conditional yes, with a no behind it. The condition is that he will run if he feels that his election is reasonably probable, which means in turn either that there will be a favorable air in the war or that peace negotiations will be in progress before November.

If he finds himself facing probable defeat at the polls, I doubt that he will risk the stigma of being another Herbert Hoover. But if the chances are roughly even, Mr. Johnson will make the race. The last man in the world whom he wants to see nominated, and perhaps elected, is Robert Kennedy. And if Mr. Johnson does win it will be a doubly sweet triumph for him--that of being vindicated in his war policy by history, and that of defeating his bitterest enemy in either party.

The Kennedy-Johnson feud, long-simmering, has burst into flames and has become open civil war within the Democratic camp. To dump an incumbent President of your own party has always been seen as a tabooed operation, the final unspeakable sin. Yet that is exactly what the anti-war anti-Johnson Democrats are attempting.

Can they succeed? Harry Truman, who knows American history and politics and the Democratic Party, says they are bound to fail, and he asserts flatly that Mr. Johnson will be nominated. But Mr. Truman may be living in the past, especially since he was himself for a time the target of a

JIM BUSCHMAN

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jim Buschman recently returned from Detroit's Ferndale High, where he spent winter term as a student teacher of English. Earlier this week, he staggered into the office with the following account.

"The student teacher returns to campus which ten weeks in a mental institution or a high school can only produce. Of all his hopes, the most unrealistic is that he should find the campus as it was before he left. The cold facts are brought rudely to bear upon the student teacher the day he arrives: things have changed."

One of the earliest and most traumatic shocks comes when the student teacher tries to get a date--a REAL date, not just chaperoning the dance after the basketball game. At first he is content to wander around the campus in amazement, marveling once again to see so many girls without braces on their teeth. But soon he longs to live again the life he used to lead, and this means dating. He picks up the phone:

"Hi, Debbie."
"Who is it?"
"This is Mr. Buschman--I mean Jim. Remember me?"
"I think so. Oh, yes--you've been gone quite a while, right?"
"Student teaching. I thought we might get together sometime."
"Sounds like fun. I want to show you something anyway."
"Oh, what?"

Welcome, the student teacher

"My engagement ring. Fred gave it to me last month. You remember Fred? Well, after you left..."

Other changes are also evident. The student teacher goes back to his apartment to see his roommates:

"Hey, man, how's it going? How are the teeny-boppers these days? Ha, ha. Hey, I want you to meet Steve--he's our new roommate. We had to have a fourth man after you pulled out. But don't worry about a thing. You can consider this place home whenever you want to--even sleep on the couch now and then, if you can't make it back to YOUR place..."

Slowly, the student teacher discovers that he is no longer a part of his own university. He has developed new habits which seem out of place in day-to-day campus life. He wakes up in a cold sweat every morning at 6 A.M. When he walks into a classroom, he automatically goes to the FRONT of the room. At the end of the hour he waits nervously for a bell to ring. He feels naked without a suit and tie. He is an outcast, a misfit. In other words, he is STILL A STUDENT TEACHER!

And where can a student teacher go for comfort in a hostile world? To the only people who understand his situation--other student teachers. Night after night they meet to console one another--one man's house, another girl's apartment, the Dells, the Gables.

You can help these people! Be tolerant of their condition. Try to understand what they've been through. If you see a student teacher on campus, run up and shake his hand. Let him know you appreciate what he has done. Invite him to parties. Play handball with him. Be nice to him. And who knows? Maybe the student teacher will do something nice for you--like let you clean the erasers.

The conditional run of LBJ

"... if the chances are roughly even, Mr. Johnson will make the race. The last man in the world whom he wants to see nominated, and perhaps elected, is Robert Kennedy."

dump-Truman movement, and not only got the nomination but the election.

There is a deeply unpopular war going on, which wasn't true in 1948. And Mr. Johnson has a Kennedy to contend with, while the challenge to Truman came mainly from the ineffectual Henry Wallace and from a group that was waging a general called Eisenhower to run as a Democrat.

The President has great resources in the showdown with Kennedy. He has on his side not only the power of patronage and the cementing force of organizational habit. He has the unparalleled strength of the presidential office itself, with its strategic dramatic leverage, and its capacity for getting attention for the issues that the office can create. Finally he has the "splitter" and "spoiler" argument against Kennedy, in addition to the symbolic albatross that Bobby already carries in the form of the resentment of the Kennedy dynasty and the widespread fear of Bobby's power-hunger.

In more positive terms Mr. Johnson is going to make his appeal to a traditional America and its traditional virtues. What he will say, day in, day out, is that the nation is in a war, that it has half a million men there, that he wants to win the war and support the half-million men, no matter what contrary position any of his opponents--Democrat or Republican--may be taking. This is a primitive kind of appeal, and the President will make it in a primitive way, without any subtleties, knowing that it will arouse strong emotions--just as the peace appeal by his opponents is arousing strong emotions on the other Democratic side. He will not be an easy man to beat.

But his real chance for the nomination, as compared especially with Bobby Kennedy's, depends not so much on his political tactics as upon the course of the war and the peace. Bobby says to the people, especially the colored students, whom he is wooing hard, "Come and help me: I can do better." But Mr. Johnson cannot simply give a promise. As President he has to bring in the results. He must actually do better than he has done, either in getting dramatic military victories or in getting Ho Chi Minh to the negotiating table, neither of which he has thus far been able to deliver.

Thus President Johnson's chance of getting the nomination depends considerably on what Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap does in the war and what Ho Chi Minh is willing at that point to do in the peace. Kennedy's and McCarthy's chances depend on how desperate the people feel about the war and the peace. Thus Mr. Johnson's future is tied to good news in the months ahead, while Kennedy's (or McCarthy's) is tied to bad news.

In this sense the best prediction of the convention and election results will be a long-range prediction of the course of the war and peace. Lyndon Johnson knows this. When he says he is concentrating on the war and the peace he means it, because not only the nation's future hangs on the outcome, but his own political future as well.

OUR READERS' MIND

The issue: America, not Vietnam

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter by James P. Warburg was sent to the State News by Marcus G. Raskin, co-director of the Institute for Policy Studies, and co-author with Bernard Fall of the book "Vietnam Reader". Warburg is a noted financier and author and was a foreign and economic policy adviser to President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Raskin stated, "I find this letter timely because of its moral and political insight: the problem of Vietnam is the problem of America! Mr. Warburg crosses generational lines to reach out to us on the public problem which has become central to our lives."

To the Editor:

More and more Americans are beginning to realize that our intervention in Vietnam has become a massive, senseless obscenity that defiles the very essence of America—an ill-advised adventure in which we appear to be imprisoned by the irrational compulsion of our leaders to reinforce error rather than recognize misjudgment and miscalculation.

The "restlessness" which our President senses among us is not merely impatience or resentment of futile sacrifice. Not "restlessness" but fear haunts our nation—fear that there may be no limit to what a desperate leadership may do to escape from admitting its mistakes.

When the youth of America, confronted with the dilemmas presented to it by an older generation, sees newsreels of innocent civilians being killed by American bombs and others maimed and rendered homeless—when it sees brave Americans giving up their lives in the name of democracy in order to maintain in power a corrupt, inefficient and unpopular regime of feuding generals and mandarins—it is small wonder that few are inspired with patriotic fervor; and small wonder that mothers and fathers—even fathers who have served in other wars—are torn between patriotic loyalty and anxious doubt. For it is doubt as to the righteousness of this war that mingles, in all age-groups, with the sadness, sham and disgust evoked by the sight of women and children incinerated, of pitiful peasant huts set afire and of the crumpled heaps of American dead.

There is a growing realization that this war is but the latest step in the regression of Western civilization into primitive barbarism that began when Hitler made extermination a mode of warfare and when Britain and the United States, reluctantly at first, retaliated with obliteration raids in which hundreds of thousands of civilians in Germany and Japan were fried alive in seas of flame deliberately kindled. The dawn of the nuclear age did not inaugurate the descent into savagery. When Truman and Churchill learned at Potsdam that "the babies had been born" at Alamogordo, the dehumanization of war had already reached a point at which they felt no qualm about using the new weapons of mass murder and destruction that science and technology had placed in their hands. Nor did the horrors of Hiroshima and Nagasaki prevent later leaders from adopting a policy of "massive retaliation." Only the nuclear stalemate between the United States and the Soviet Union has so far saved the people of Vietnam from nuclear holocaust.

The issue Americans face in this election year is broader than finding "an honorable way out of Vietnam." A way must be found out of the moral morass into which our civilization has floundered. We need to find leaders who will recognize that our nation has lost its bearings, has overreached itself and, in so doing, has wasted its moral and material substance. The alternative to a continuation of current policy is not a retreat into isolationism. What is needed is a reappraisal of what are America's true vital interests, its proper responsibilities and the effective limits of its power. Only in the context of such a reappraisal will withdrawal from Vietnam go down in history, not as a defeat, but as the moral rebirth of a great nation.

The issue is not Vietnam. The issue is America—what sort of a nation we want America to be and what part we wish it to play in a world in which all war has become a threat to the survival of civilization.

Action plan for war dissent

To the Editor:

The following letter is a means of protest against the war in Vietnam. An independent group of students at Douglass College of Rutgers University in New Jersey wrote, printed and circulated it for signatures over a three day period. At the end of the first day, 700 persons had signed the letter in a seven hour period. The letter, along with copies of every signature, has been sent to every U.S. Senator.

If a large number of students were to take the same kind of action, and at the same time publicize it outside of the college community, its impact is bound to be felt.

The amount of dissent against the war which has been voiced in the Senate in the past few weeks convinced us that this kind of action will not be wasted. If Senators or Congressmen are reminded emphatically that this is an election year, they will be forced to acknowledge the amount of dissent that exists, whether it comes from students or not.

Dear Mr. Senator:

In view of the debate that took place in the Senate on March 7,

York Times, over the question of the further escalation of the war in Vietnam and the policy of the President in carrying on that war, we, the undersigned, support and agree with the statements of Senators Fulbright, Kennedy, Mansfield, Church, Hatfield, Hartke, Case, and Miller.

We wholly agree with the above Senators that there has been virtually no success achieved in that war as it has been conducted over the past seven years. Even from the limited amount of information available from the news media, it is obvious that a continuation of the present policy will have no success in the future.

We feel that those who represent us and ask for our votes have an obligation to consider the amount of dissent that has been and is continuously voiced across America. It is often felt that it is often said that because dissent comes most loudly from the younger members of the adult population, it need not be considered seriously. First, we disagree on the grounds that it is perhaps we who have the greatest stake in the future of this country. That future will be a direct result of the decisions made for us and forced upon us now. Second, it is often true that the younger members of the population are more interested and hence, better informed. Third, it is ironic and, at this point, tragic, that those who must implement that policy have little to say in its formulation.

We have questioned and continue to question the nature of the involvement in Southeast Asia. We question whether the continuation and expansion of the present policy is in the interest of this country at all. Furthermore, we cannot accept either the moral or political obligations which have been for that involvement. We feel that these purported obligations fall far short of being sufficient reasons for the destruction of the already precarious internal balance of this country. We fully agree with Senator Mansfield in his warnings against the necessity of tax increases, economic controls, etc., which will result if this war is not stopped. The amount of sacrifice with which the American public is faced, in terms of lives alone, is totally out of proportion to the ends for which this war is being fought.

Consequently, we believe that the time is long past due for the Senate to demand the reinstatement of its right to advise and give consent to Presidential policy. We do not understand how we can be expected to support a war which is purported to be fought in the name of the American people as represented by the Senate when, in reality, it is not. If we are expected to fulfill our Constitutionally-defined obligations, what right has the President to misuse his Constitutionally-limited powers?

We urge you, as a Senator and as our representative, to support and help initiate immediate action which would restore the Senate's right to advise and give consent by revoking the power you delegated to the President in 1964. By this action, States will regain the representation in Congress which has been denied to them for the past four years in the matter of this war.

Paradox of atrocity-salvation

To the Editor:

The fact that my government soundly condemns the Rhodesian government's execution of three terrorists makes me proud to be an American. I'm proud to know that my government stands for what is right. And I take pride in the knowledge that my government would never commit such an uncivilized act.

I'm only an ignorant freshman now, but if I study very hard, I'm sure that by the time I graduate, I will understand why an execution in Rhodesia is barbarous, while an execution in the U.S. isn't. And why an execution in Rhodesia is an atrocity, while the bombing of a Viet Cong occupied village is an act of salvation. How many innocent villagers were "executed" by our bombs?

NATIONAL TREND

Coed curfews liberalized

By MARION NOWAK
State News Staff Writer

Illustrating an administrative trend toward recognition of individual responsibility, the liberalization of women's hours has become a major movement on the nation's campuses.

At MSU, curfew was only last year eliminated for women of sophomore standing and above. The success of this action has prompted recent attempts to eliminate hours for all but first-term freshmen.

Elimination of hours, however, has been enacted at few colleges. More often a later curfew is set, modified according to class standing.

Senior women at the University of Maryland, for example, have selective hours. This is facilitated by a key system: seniors must turn in their keys daily by 10:30 a.m.

Sophomores and juniors at Maryland must adhere to a curfew of midnight Sunday through Thursday and 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Freshman hours are 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 1:30 a.m. Friday and Saturday. The administration is currently working on eliminating junior curfew.

"Self-limited curfew for all students depends a great deal on the school," stated an adviser there. "Freshmen would much rather have, for their first semester, some kind of limitation.

"However after the first term in the dorm, for all practical purposes the student is an upperclassman," she continued, "and should be treated as such."

Wellesley College's curfew hours are currently somewhat more liberal than Maryland's. Sunday through Thursday freshmen, sophomores and juniors have a curfew of 1 a.m.; this is extended to 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

Seniors, in the words of one official, can come in "any time, any night." This procedure involves going to the Wellesley campus central office on return. From the office, the coed is returned to her residence hall by security police.

However, since "the security force couldn't cope with additional students," and since Wellesley is "not about to hire extra people just to let the girls in late," there exists no immediate prospect of implementing selective hours at Wellesley.

By contrast, Radcliffe College first-term freshmen are limited only in that they must sign out to leave the residence hall after 10 p.m. To stay out past 1 a.m. first term freshmen must sign for late pers; the per-term amount of such late-pers is unlimited.

No other students at Radcliffe have hours.

Perhaps the strictest curfew nationally is that in effect at Bob Jones University in South Carolina. BJU, deriving over 95 per cent of its student body from outside the state, enforces a closing hours of 10:30 every evening for all students, male and female. Lights must be out by 11 p.m., although senior students are allowed an extension in senior study rooms until 11:45.

Immediate liberalization of hours is generally barred by economic and sometimes moral considerations. The cost of initiating a system of security for dormitories is at least temporarily prohibitive for many schools.

Margaret Fisher, dean of women at the University of Southern Florida, points out that while U-SF is gradually working toward elimination of all curfews, "we have other things to spend the money on like more beds."

So most universities maintain the concept of curfews, "liberalizing" hours to later times.

The attempt at and belief in discarding all curfews, however, is slowly spreading. Stated Genevieve Austin, dean of residence at Radcliffe, "I think that from 90-95 per cent of all students can handle themselves responsibly. For the ones who can't—rules won't tax returns filed by Americans this year.

The IRS said the chief barrier to an accurate tax return is no longer poor mathematics but the use by taxpayers of the wrong tax table or the wrong line or column in the correct tax table.

Mixed-up arithmetic now rates as the second most prominent factor in errors.

Americans have generally compiled a better record so far this year than last in filing errorless tax returns, IRS figures showed. Of the more than 24 million individual returns filed through March 15, errors were spotted on 1.65 million returns, or 6.8 per

NEVADA MINES

New chemical treatment extracts gold from ores

WASHINGTON (AP) — Development of a new process for extracting gold from previously unworkable ores, a breakthrough in mining, was announced Wednesday by the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

If successful, use of the process could help meet the gold needs of U.S. industry, but it would scarcely dent the Treasury's gold-stock shortages.

An 8,000-square-mile area of Nevada, the bureau said, is known to contain gold-rich ores which contain carbon compounds that hang on to gold so tightly that the conventional cyanide process can't extract it economically.

The bureau said the carbonaceous ores, which are rich in gold, have been found in the Nevada Metallurgy Research Center in Reno have invented "an aqueous chemical treatment" to break up the gold-carbon love affair; once that is done, the cyanide process can extract the gold.

The new method is said to permit economical recovery of 90 to 95 per cent of the gold in these ores, compared with previous recovery of only 20 to 35 per cent.

But so far it has been performed only in the laboratory. Pilot scale tests are being conducted, the bureau said.

"If the pilot scale tests indicate commercial feasibility, this will be a major technical breakthrough," said J. Cordell Moore, assistant secretary of the interior for mineral resources.

The bureau said the carbonaceous ores, which are rich in gold, have been found in the Nevada Metallurgy Research Center in Reno have invented "an aqueous chemical treatment" to break up the gold-carbon million ounces economically mineable by present methods.

There are geological indications, the bureau added, that the gold-bearing area might extend into central Idaho and southern Nevada.

"In Nevada alone," Moore said, "success with the bureau's process could increase gold producing potential severalfold.

Hans Morgenthau to speak on 'commitment' in series

Centering on the theme of "commitment," the 1968 Provost Lecture Series will present four speakers April 15-18.

The series, according to Mary Beth Stulberg, Oak Park senior chairman of the Provost Lecture Committee, is "concerned with commitment as an act of involvement... In a society where the individual plays many roles and responds to many demands and obligations, the possibility is great that he will be faced with conflicting interests."

"To what shall he make his fullest commitment?" she asked. The Provost Lecture Series will be presented at 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday in Fairchild Theater.

Featured speakers include Kenneth E. Clark, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Rochester; Michael Scriven, professor of philosophy at the University of California at Berkeley; Hans Morgenthau, of the Center for the Study of American Foreign and Military Policy at the University of Chicago and Alfred H. Kelly, professor of history at Wayne State University.

Behney pitches batsmen 5-1 win

MICKEY KNIGHT

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

Mel Behney held Western Michigan University to five hits and picked up his third straight spring training win as MSU's baseball team defeated the Broncos 5-1 Wednesday in the Miami Tournament at Miami, Fla.

It was the Spartans' sixth win against four losses in the tournament and guaranteed them a tie for first place after 10 games.

MSU will face Wesleyan today. Junior righthander Mickey Knight will pitch for the Spartans. Knight has a 1-2 won-lost record going into the Wesleyan game.

Behney, a slender lefthander, has been outstanding for the Spartans in the spring games. In addition to winning three games, he has picked up six hits in 11 at bats, including three against Western Michigan Wednesday.

Behney struck out three Western Michigan hitters in the game and gave up the only run in the second inning when Bronco left fielder Dal Mackie singled, went to second on a passed ball and scored on a single by catcher Dan Benoit.

The Western Michigan run tied the score at 1-1 until MSU scored two runs in the bottom of the second and Behney was in full control the rest of the way.

MSU scored a run in the first inning when leadoff man Tom Hummel doubled, went to third on a double play and scored when Spartan catcher Bill Linne reached base on an error.

The Spartans picked up two more in the second when shortstop Tom Ellis, Behney and Hummel singled and second baseman Steve Rymal singled home two runs.

Rich Jordan scored MSU's third run in the third inning when he walked, went to third on an infield single by Ellis and throwing error, and came home on a passed ball.

Singles by Behney, Rymal and third baseman Harry Kendrick in the eighth inning accounted for MSU's final run of the game.

Kendrick, who has been MSU's starting catcher, was pressed into service at third when sophomore Steve Garvey was called home by his grandmother's death.

Joe Gavel, a sophomore infielder, and senior outfielder Rich Harlow, two of MSU's best hitters to date, were also out of the lineup for the game.

Gavel is still nursing an injury incurred when he ran into a fence in an earlier game. Harlow suffered a sprained leg muscle sliding into second base in one of Tuesday's games.

Western Michigan was 3-2 after the loss to MSU and faced Miami late Wednesday afternoon. Miami entered the game with a 5-4 record, and the winner of the WMU-Miami game would tie MSU for the tournament lead.

MSU will close out its spring training with games against Western Friday and Miami Saturday.

Swimmers enter NCAA's today

By GARY WALKOWICZ
State News Sports Writer

The MSU swim team faces an uphill battle at this week-end's NCAA championships as the Spartans attempt to match last year's eighth place finish.

The championship meet will be held at Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., beginning today and continuing through Saturday.

MSU scored 115 points last year but graduation claimed five men who produced 71.5 of those points.

Coach Charles McCaffree said the seven tankers representing MSU will be prepared.

"The boys are rested and in good shape. They've looked good in our practice sessions since the Big Ten meet," McCaffree said.

"We don't have the strength to score as many points as we did last year. With the teams bunched so closely, there's no way of predicting where we'll finish."

The seven Spartans going to the meet are swimmers Pete the group, placed in three individual events last year and appears to be the Spartans' top hope this year.

He will compete in the 200 and 400-yard individual medleys and the 200-yard backstroke.

Richards will be in the two individual medleys with Williams and in the 200-yard breaststroke. Richards set an MSU record in the breaststroke, in the recent Big Ten meet.

The Spartans have Rauch and Kalmbach entered in the sprints. Rauch will be in the 50, 100 and 200-yard freestyles and Kalmbach will swim the 100-yard freestyle.

The four swimmers will also compete in two relay events, the 800-yard freestyle relay and 400-yard medley relay.

Their best chance, according to McCaffree, will be in the freestyle relay where they placed third in the Big Ten meet.

Divers Green and Todd competed at last year's NCAA one-meter event.

The diving events should, as usual, be dominated by Big Ten competitors and the Spartans could score high in them, according to McCaffree.

Stanford, Southern California and Indiana, who finished 1-2-3 last year, are expected to battle for this year's crown, with Indiana considered a slight favorite.

ABC's Wide World of Sports will televise taped highlights of the first two days of competition at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Judo meet here Saturday

The MSU Judo Club will face Central Michigan, Eastern Michigan, and Wayne State in a tournament Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Men's I.M. Bldg. Admission is 50 cents.

Hayes signs with Rockets

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Elvin Hayes, University of Houston's College Player of the Year, Wednesday signed a professional basketball contract with the San Diego Rockets of the National Basketball Assn.

Rocket's owner Bob Breitbard declined to reveal the terms, saying they should be kept private between he and Hayes. He said it was a multi-year pact but refused to say for how long.

Hayes said, "I like San Diego. They will help me and I will help them."

The Houston Mavericks of the American Basketball Assn. reportedly offered $500,000 but Hayes said "I read it but I don't know anything else about it."

He had been quoted as saying he wanted $300,000 to sign a three-year contract.

Hayes, who led Houston to first place in the national polls this year, scored 1,215 field goals and finished as the second highest scorer in NCAA major college circles with 2,884 points.

Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati held the field goal record of 1,052 and is the all-time scoring leader with 2,975 points.

Hayes, 6-foot, 9 1/2 inches, will return to Houston to complete work in his education major and then report to the Rockets' rookie camp late in June.

Satchell replaces Williams in NCAA

MSU fencer Don Satchell will replace Glenn Williams in the NCAA championships this weekend at Wayne State.

Satchell, a junior, compiled a season mark of 28-26 in foil competition. Williams, a sophomore, is hospitalized with a stomach ailment.

Satchell, along with Charlie Baer in sabre and Bobby Tyler in epee will compete in the NCAA championships.

shutouts over Louisiana State and the Bulldogs.

Junior and No. 1 singles, Chuck Brainard led the way, defeating Carl Trange, 8-6 and 6-0. No. 2 singles Rich Monan won 6-1 and 6-1. Mickey Szilagyi and John Good rounded out the scoring with 6-4, 6-4, and 6-0, 6-1, wins.

Steve Schafer and Orhan Enustun were other winners in the singles competition.

In doubles, the combination of Brainard and Monan were victorious 6-0 and 6-4. Szilagyi and Good teamed up to win 6-3 and 6-3. Satchell and Tyler completed the Spartans, scoring with 6-1 and 7-5 wins.

U.S. forces in long battle near Cambodia

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. troops called in artillery fire and air strikes of napalm only 50 yards from their positions Wednesday in a raging battle for a hamlet northwest of Saigon near Cambodia's border.

The Viet Cong fought back with automatic weapons and rocket-propelled grenades from trenches and spider holes in Ap Long Muc. By nightfall, the Americans were reported to have seized only one-fourth of the hamlet. Heavy fighting continued.

The bitter opposition indicated that U.S. forces in Operation Quyet Thang-Resolve to Win—had caught up with some of the main Viet Cong battalions that fell back toward Cambodia when this biggest drive of the war opened March 11.

U.S. 25th Infantry Division troops moved in on the hamlet Tuesday and ran into heavy fire from enemy entrenchments. Tanks and armored personnel carriers came up in support.

Fighting continued through the night with artillery pounding the hamlet and jets bombing and dropping fiery napalm. By morning, U.S. artillery fire was bursting 85 yards in front of American positions, reported a photographer who was slightly wounded in the chest by shrapnel.

Lt. Col. John H. Tipton, a battalion commander, asked his artillery liaison officer: "Can we put more artillery in closer?"

"Yes we can, but there's a good chance of hitting our own people," replied the officer, Lt. John J. Menning.

But the chance was taken and the close shelling caused no American casualties, the photographer said. Fighter-bombers also closed in 50 to 75 yards ahead of the American lines, dousing napalm on the Viet Cong positions.

Ap Long Muc is a kidney-shaped hamlet about 800 yards long and 200 yards wide 30 miles northwest of Saigon.

Fighting on a smaller scale farther south around Trang Bang was also in its second day. It began Tuesday when 25th Division troops in a helicopter landed four miles north-east of Trang Bang and were attacked by Viet Cong waiting in trenches and bunkers with machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades.

U.S. headquarters said at least 17 of the enemy were killed, bringing to 396 the number of Viet Cong dead counted in the Trang Bang area since Sunday. U.S. casualties were described as light.

The U.S. Command said that so far U.S. and South Vietnamese troops in Operation Quyet Thang have killed 1,842 Viet Cong and captured 293. U.S. losses were 69 killed and 604 wounded. South Vietnamese casualties were given as 92 killed and 232 wounded.

The aim of the operation is to lift the Viet Cong threat to Saigon and regain the initiative the enemy seized in the lunar new year offensive that opened at the end of January. In the central highlands, U.S.

4th Division soldiers hunted near the Cambodian border for the remainder of a North Vietnamese force that was repulsed in an attack Tuesday on an artillery base west of Kontum. No contacts were reported.

The U.S. Command said the battle for the artillery base left 135 North Vietnamese and 19 U.S. soldiers dead.

Lt. Col. Maurice Edmonds, Jacksonville, Fla., the division's operations officer, told AP photographer Rick Merron: "It was some of the toughest fighting this division has had."

Cost of living up, no decrease seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Living costs continued upward in February with a rise of three-tenths of one per cent, and sharply higher wholesale prices indicated no let-up in the near future, the government reported Wednesday.

Increases for food, housing, clothing and medical care pushed the Labor Department's consumer price index up to 119.0. This means it cost $11.90 last month for what a typical family would pay for a typical basket of goods and services.

The value of the 1957-59 dollar dropped to 84 cents in February. The index has been rising for the past five months at an annual rate of four per cent. This would be the steepest climb in more than a decade if the trend continues throughout 1968.

Wholesale prices rose seven-tenths of one per cent, biggest monthly jump in two years, including a hefty 1.5 per cent increase for farm products and processed foods.

Grocery prices and housing costs each rose four-tenths of one per cent. Prices for clothing and medical care services were up six-tenths. The only major price category to decline was transportation, down one-tenth.

Despite the rising prices, a longer work week and a one-cent hourly rise in pay boosted the average purchasing power of some 45 million workers by 55 cents a week in February.

The average weekly paycheck was $104.33, highest in history and a gain of $1.20 per week from January. After taxes and allowing for price increases, the average weekly wage was worth $78.03 in terms of the 1957-59 dollars.

Carolyn H. Fishel, Okemos senior, was recently awarded a Marshall scholarship for two years of graduate study in England. She is one of 24 college seniors in the United States to win a Marshall scholarship this year.

Miss Fishel, a Justin Morrill College student, has been admitted to the University of Manchester and will study for a master's degree in anthropology.

She has been active in a variety of student organizations and services. Miss Fishel is co-chairman of the MSU People-to-People Assn., an organization currently providing direct financial aid to Long Yen, Vietnam. She is publicity chairman for the Winds of Change seminar and a member of Phi Kappa Phi, national scholastic honorary.

Miss Fishel is the daughter of Wesley Fishel, professor of political science.

Block and Bridle to exhibit horses

Members of MSU's Block and Bridle Club will exhibit some of the top show horses in Michigan at the club's 20th annual Horse Show to be held Friday and Saturday in the Livestock Pavilion.

The show is regarded by horsemen as the first major event of Michigan's show season and gives a preview of many of the horses which will be shown around the state during the season, according to Pam Miller, Dundee senior, and show publicity chairman.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. Friday and at 1 and 7 p.m. Saturday.

Classifications of performances include English and Western-style riding; bundle race; costume class, in which both horse and rider are dressed in costumes of the rider's design and cutting class in which horse and rider try to separate one animal from a herd of cattle.

A show of breeds will be featured at all three performances. Nine horse associations will present exhibitions to demonstrate the qualities which make each breed different from the others.

MSU horsemen will be the performers in all classes except the show breeds. The more than 75 horses which will be shown are owned by the Block and Bridle Club members or by farms in Michigan.

Determining trophy and ribbon winners will be Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Grant, American Horse Show Association-approved English judges, and Bailey Bradley, American Quarter Horse Assn.-approved quarter horse judge.

Grant will also perform a special exhibition with his champion dressage horses trained in precision of movement and obedience.

John Garner, Vassar junior, is chairman of the 1968 show.

Tickets are on sale in the Block and Bridle room of the Livestock Pavilion and will be available at the door. The price is $1.50 for Friday evening and $1 for Saturday afternoon. Tickets for the Saturday evening show are sold out.

The show's profits will be used to further interest at MSU in the livestock industry.

POLITICAL FEARS

Shaky ties with Sweden part of election tensions

STOCKHOLM (AP) -- The strain in relations between the United States and Sweden runs counter to an unbroken friendship between the two countries going back 185 years.

Swedish officials cannot recall anything like the present deterioration in relations having happened before, although there was a period of ruffled feelings during the cold war. Sweden refused then to go along with an American-led embargo on trade in strategic goods with Communist countries.

Since the 1965 stepup in the Vietnam war, relations gradually have become more and more clouded. Sweden, a neutral country, officially took an ever sharper critical tone in opposition to U.S. policy in Southeast Asia. Broad sections of the press also reflected a hostile stance to the U.S. policy in Vietnam.

The climax came when the Social Democratic government openly supported Hanoi policy by permitting a Cabinet minister to walk at the side of a North Vietnamese diplomat and denounce the United States in a pro-Viet Cong, anti-American demonstration.

Why is the Swedish government following such a line at the risk of seriously damaging traditionally amicable ties with the United States, first sealed by Benjamin Franklin in a treaty April 3, 1783?

"I am certain the present picture would be different if this weren't an election year in Sweden as it is in the United States," said a prominent Swedish official.

"The government, of course, denies it, but let's be explicit: this extreme criticism of the United States does not have happened if it weren't that our Social Democratic government is worried about the outcome of the parliamentary election in the autumn."

"Socialists fear that their far left and especially many of the young new voters will defect to the Communists unless they appease them on the Vietnam war issue. They also feel they will benefit among the electorate generally by championing the anti-war sentiment. And remember the Social Democrat share of the votes has been declining since 1962."

any memories of a time when Europe's freedom was threatened, are protesting more loudly, becoming politically more active and demanding more involvement in world affairs than any previous Swedish generation. Undoubtedly part of the reason is that Vietnam is being brought into their homes through television.

A worrying question in Sweden, raised recently by the conservative paper Sve ska Dagbladet is whether the young generation is prepared to step beyond the boundaries set by Sweden's 150-year-old policy of non-alignment in peacetime.

ACLU letter urges open recruitment

On-campus career recruitment should be open to all corporations and government agencies if it is to be open to any, the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) said recently.

The statement, made in a letter to the presidents of 200 leading colleges and universities, was based on the current action on many college campuses to bar military and Dow Chemical recruiters because of student and faculty protest against the Vietnam war.

"Any decision to exclude some recruiters, arising primarily from a political controversy, poses a question of civil liberties interest. The barring of accredited outside agencies strikes against the concept of the open university and the rights of students to hear all points of view," the statement said.

The ACLU also stated that there would be no issue if universities decided to admit all recruiters or none of them, but the decision to admit some and exclude others would be discriminatory.

The ACLU letter commented on the need to protect protests against recruitment.

It said: "We also believe that free speech and academic freedom require that protest on campus relating to recruitment by any segment of the academic community should also be fully protected."

House committee approves tax to cut tourist spending

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The House Ways and Means Committee approved today a minimum tax program designed to reduce U.S. tourist spending abroad but postponed action on President Johnson's major recommendation in this field.

The committee sent to the House a bill calling for a five per cent tax on airline tickets to destinations outside the United States and for a reduction in the amount of goods returning tourists may bring in duty free.

It said, however, that action on the expenditure tax that was to provide most of the balance of payments savings in Johnson's program will be postponed until the administration comes up with recommendations on special import duties or other international trade measures also designed to correct the imbalance in international payments.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Joseph Barr told reporters after the committee session he does not know when the trade recommendation may be forthcoming, or even for sure whether there will be any.

Intensive negotiations are now in progress, he said, with the major U.S. trading partners in Europe trying to work out freer access for U.S. goods.

Barr estimated that the limited bill approved today would result in a balance of payments improvement on the order of $100 million a year.

The original Johnson package, including a tax up to 30 per cent on the spending of U.S. travelers abroad above a minimum, had been calculated to result in a $300 million payments saving. The administration had hoped for another $200 million by a combination of encouraging foreign tourism in this country and urging Americans traveling abroad to spend cautiously.

The committee agreed today to include in its report such an appeal to American tourists—not necessarily to forego foreign trips, but to keep their spending abroad within bounds.

In addition to the five per cent tax on all air transportation from this country to another, the main features of the limited bill approved today are:

—The present duty-free exemption of $100 for goods a returning traveler brings in with him would be cut to $10 temporarily. The exemption would rise to $50 Oct. 15, 1969.

—The present allowance of $10 for a gift mailed from abroad to someone in this country would be reduced to $1

Fulbright requests Viet peacemaker

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., offered Wednesday a Senate resolution calling for appointment of an independent, Cabinet-level negotiator for peace in Vietnam.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, urged in a statement the appointment of a "man of high international stature who would not have been previously identified with any particular school of thought."

The Arkansas senator, a critic of President Johnson's Vietnam policy, said the responsibility for negotiating an end to the war cuts across the interests of many government departments, including State and Defense.

"Each department, and especially the two departments I have just mentioned, not only has special interests but particular objectives in mind," he said.

Fulbright said he thinks there is mutual suspicion in Hanoi and Washington about the motives and objectives of the other side.

WHY THE DRAFT? The Case for a Volunteer Army

By James C. Miller III (Editor), David B. Johnson, Cotton M. Lindsay, Mark V. Pauly, Joseph M. Scolnick, Jr., Robert D. Tollison, Thomas D. Willett

With an Introduction by Senator Edward W. Brooke
A PENGUIN PAPERBACK ORIGINAL $125

WHY THE DRAFT? is a book that every thoughtful American will want to read, consider and discuss in this important election year.

Seven young political economists take a critical but objective look at the draft in all its aspects and at the alternatives to it. They conclude that conscription in any form is inequitable and then examine in detail the advantages and problems of a volunteer army.

"This is an excellent piece of work by a group of men of sound professional training and of the relevant age and concern. Policy on the draft has always been made by the old and the aging, and never so much as now, and by the specialists in cliché and tradition. This fresh view is exceedingly welcome and, for one, hope it will be highly influential."

Walkout clogs N.Y. harbor

NEW YORK (AP) -- Some 160 idled ships clogged the nation's biggest port Wednesday as a longshoremen's strike dwindled fruit and foreign car supplies and threatened to rot tons of perishable foods.

Luxury liner passengers struggled with their own baggage and faced limited menus once they sailed because of the difficulty of getting provisions aboard ships without dock workers.

The 10-day-old walkout by nearly 22,000 longshoremen was set off by a feud with a port agency over new hiring practices. The cost of the strike is mounting at a $3-million-a-day clip.

The estimated $30-million lost so far has affected industries dependent of the waterfront, the city economy and communities across the harbor in New Jersey.

The strike by the International Longshoremen's Assn., AFL-CIO, stranded 107 ships at piers by Wednesday and another 50 at moorings in the harbor. Volkswagen outlets in the metropolitan area were almost empty Wednesday.

More than 8,000 tons of pineapples, bananas, oranges and melons were imperiled by the strike even though refrigeration was being maintained aboard vessels.

With spoilage imminent, 46 longshoremen were permitted to unload pineapples Wednesday from the SS San Juan docked at Edgewater, N.J.

Some relief shipments were affected but defense cargo remained immune to the strike, with five vessels loading at the Military Ocean Terminal in Bayonne, N.J.

The strike concerns the New York-New Jersey Waterfront Commission's plan to open the work register to 750 more men for new automated piers in New Jersey.

The strikers say work has been diverted from the New York to the New Jersey piers, leaving the New York longshoremen underemployed or jobless.

In addition, they claim that under the section seniority system in effect, new men assigned to New Jersey have seniority over veterans from the New York docks.

Shippers also opposed opening the register, figuring the new men might eventually come under the port's guaranteed annual wage. On the other hand, shippers object to paying premium pay for travel across the Hudson River demanded by New York longshoremen.

Some longshoremen said the commission caters to New Jersey politicians who pledged more jobs for Newark Negroes after last summer's riots.

Bobby, McCarthy gain King support

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) -- Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. hinted strongly Wednesday he would support either Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy or Sen. Robert F. Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

King said he was "disenchanted" with President Johnson's failure to end the Vietnam war.

He said both Kennedy, D-N.Y., and McCarthy, D-Minn., "wince" the kind of relevant identity of urban problems and social justice.

He said, "Both are very competent men."

"It may very well be that I would end up endorsing one of them," he told a conference in a Baptist church in the area of this New Jersey city where racial rioting took 26 lives last July.

King, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, was in New Jersey to enlist support for his planned April 22 march on Washington to dramatize the plights of the nation's poor.

"If Nixon and Johnson were the candidates," he said, "we would have a tragic choice."

King said he supported and voted for President Johnson in 1964, when his Republican opponent was conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater. But he charged that the Johnson administration's Vietnam policy was "leading us to a dead-end street that can well lead us to the destruction of mankind."

IN TWO SHOWS

Cosby stars Saturday
as top choice in survey

Athlete, comedian, actor, whatever you call it, that's Bill Cosby.

And, after two years as being the number one choice on the ASMSU Popular Entertainment survey, Cosby will present two shows at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday in Jenison Fieldhouse.

Collection taken for math team

A collection is being taken at the library to purchase a plaque to honor the first-ranked MSU math team. Containers have been placed at each of the check-out desks and will remain until the necessary $60 has been collected, said Richard E. Chapin, library director.

The team ranked ahead of second-place Cal Tech, third-place Harvard and fourth-place MIT in the 28th annual William Lowell Putnam Mathematical Competition, held February 8. This is the third consecutive year that MSU's team has won first place.

MSU musicians tour eight states
over spring break

Three student music groups spent their spring vacation presenting concerts on separate tours covering eight states. The tours, involving 248 students, were sponsored by the Cap and Gown Series of MSU's Continuing Education Service.

The Men's Glee Club, directed by Alan Poland, assistant instructor of music, returned Monday from a 17-concert tour of Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland.

Richard E. Klaus, associate professor of music, directed the 85-member State Singers in their appearances in seven states. The group consists of singers and instrumentalists. It returns today.

The 110-member Concert Band returned Saturday from a 15-city tour of Michigan. Harry Begian, professor of music, is director and William Moffit, assistant professor of music, is his assistant.

Tickets are on sale at the Union, Campbell's Suburban Shop and Paramount News Center in downtown Lansing.

Cosby, once one of the most promising gridders at Temple University, began his first comedy routine at age 10 in a Philadelphia school. And this is when it all began.

Cosby has played at leading clubs such as San Francisco's Hungry I, Washington's Shoreham Hotel, New York's Basin Street East, the Flamingo in Las Vegas and Harrah's at Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Humor is the number one word for Cosby. His six comedy albums, all of which have made the top twenty charts, include "Bill Cosby Is A Very Funny Fellow . . . Right?" and "I Stared Out As A Child."

A love of personal appearances has not wavered while Cosby has cut his albums and filmed TV shows. He has been known to play to packed auditoriums on weekends.

His new album on the way is called "Hooray For the Salvation Army Band."

The secret to Cosby's success is explained in his album, "How

I Became Seriously Serious." Cosby said that his start in comedy was as natural as stubbing his toe. However, Cosby said that his dramatic work was the result of a careful decision.

When Cosby was a kid, he paid attention to things that others did not think twice about. It gave him a sense of security to tell stories and see other people laugh, he said. Many of his jokes deal with his early life in Philadelphia.

Cosby stars in "I Spy," the NBC-TV series in which he plays a secret agent under the guise of a Rhodes scholar.

It was difficult to keep the "Bill Cosby comedian" personality out of the show, he said.

Not until he separated his comedy self from his dramatic self did things come naturally. As a result, he portrays Scotty as a live person who never does the same things twice.

One of Cosby's latest ventures is a series of five-minute comedy radio spots for Coca-Cola.

Cosby is married to the former Camille Hanks and lives in Beverly Hills. They have two daughters.

Quite an earful

Comedian Bill Cosby will appear here Saturday night. His first show at 7 p.m. is sold out, but tickets for his second show are now on sale.

Interim director to remain as Teaching Center head

Julian R. Brandou, acting director of the Science and Mathematics Teaching Center, was named director March 21 by the MSU Board of Trustees. He succeeds Frederic B. Dutton, now dean of Lyman Briggs College.

Brandou has been serving as associate professor and acting director since 1966.

The Center was created in 1957 to promote better science teaching in Michigan and will soon offer a graduate degree in science education. It now maintains laboratories for teaching and developmental work in biological and physical science and conducts programs for science and mathematics teachers.

Staff members from the center also advise graduate and undergraduate teaching majors from the College of Education.

Brandou is a member of the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science, the National Science Teachers Assn. and the Detroit Science Club.

WINDS OF CHANGE

History professor added to seminar

A last minute change in the agenda of MSU professors to lead workshops in the fifth annual Winds of Change Seminar was announced this week.

Walter Gourlay, professor of history, has been added to the list of MSU speakers on the present schedule.

Winds of Change, April 5 and 6, will have the theme, "The Rich Lands and the Poor: The Challenge of Development." C.V. Narasimhan, secretary-general of the United Nations, will be keynote speaker.

Ken Bode, professor of political science, will lead a discussion on the "Political Developments in Latin America." John Collins, professor of political science, is scheduled for a discussion of the "Political Aspects of Modernization in Africa."

"The Rich Nations and the Poor: The Communist Viewpoint" will be the workshop topic of Thomas Greene, professor of political science.

Louis Zerby, professor of history, will talk on the "Divergent Ideologies in the Modernization Process."

Chitra Smith, professor of social science, has planned to speak on the "Revolution and Evolution in Southeast Asia."

The two-day seminar begins with registration from 3 to 6 p.m., April 5, followed by Narasimhan's speech at 8 p.m. in the Erickson Kiva. A coffee hour will follow.

April 6 activities begin at 9 a.m. with a symposium on "America's Role in the Development Process."

A noon luncheon in the Green Room of the Union will precede workshops in Erickson beginning at 1:45 p.m. Dinner is planned at 6:30 p.m. in Kellogg Center. The Saturday evening symposium will concern "China and India: Competing Paths of Modernization."

Participants in Saturday evening's symposium will be Wilfred Malenbaum, Selig S. Harrison, Robert F. Dernberger and Lucian Pye.

Grandmother's

Dear Students:

Welcome back. We've missed you. Actually your absence has given us the time to gather our thoughts, evaluate last terms failures and successes . . . and plan a great new schedule for Spring term (to be announced shortly).

Tonite and tomorrow we have a special non-stop back-to-back treat--two top New York bands. The "Wild Ones" (who have been drawing rave reviews at "Arthur's Discotheque" openings throughout the country) and the "Bubble Gum Machine" (among the fastest rising recording groups in the nation) will be here to entertain you. The cover charge will be only $1.00.

As you probably already know, Pat Paulsen (Write-in, Calif.) has decided to make Grandmother's his campaign headquarters for three days in May.

Next week "Friend and Lover," a top West coast pair with a hit record climbing fast, will be here.

A new committee, GAB (Grandmother's Advisory Board), has been formed with campus leaders to help me plan coming events.

When you stop in at Grandmother's, I urge that you take the time to fill out the suggestion cards on your table so that I can find out what you think of Grandmother's and what you'd like to see.

Don't forget to drop-in and see the special back-to-back non-stop show tonite.

Love,
Grandmother

Cavett makes talk show go

By STUART ROSENTHAL
Entertainment Writer

"The show's not always like this," Dick Cavett said as he straightened his tie. "Usually there's a lot more singing and dancing and stuff."

Cavett is a slightly built young comedian from Nebraska who is trying to make a go of the talkshow format on daytime network television. He has great hopes for his 90-minute daily series on ABC from New York, despite the failure of such previous afternoon efforts as the old Merv Griffin Show which folded several years ago, only a few months after its NBC debut.

"I was a writer on that program," Cavett recalled. "It was a good show beaten by the new ones. It had left it on longer a lot more people might have found it."

"Everybody automatically thinks that if a show fails people looked at it and rejected it. But you can't really tell whether they looked and turned it off or just never knew about it."

Backstage, at the ABC theater in New York City where the "This Morning" show is taped on a one day, delayed basis, the program's staff members were, almost without exception, discussing the segment that had just gone before the cameras.

Cavett had devoted slightly over an hour to Louis Nizer's views of the Vietnam conflict.

The nationally known attorney offered his arguments in support of President Johnson's policies while Cavett responded by posing well thought out counter-arguments. Skillfully leading the conversation, the comic presented exactly the questions that the average member of the viewing audience might have asked. This came as quite a pleasant respite from the usual practice of having the host nod acquiescingly as the controversial guest harangues the camera.

Does the daytime audience which dissipates its time over insipid game programs, reruns of the "Beverly Hills" and soap operas actually want "This Morning's" brand of television? Cavett, obviously was wary about the Nizer interview, frequently interrupting the flow of opinion with almost apologetic comments.

"I hope you're not bored out there. But I think this is very important and I don't get to talk to Mr. Nizer every day."

Emphasizing to me that that day's installment was not indicative of the series as a whole, Cavett stated his intention to stick to "entertainment-in the broadest sense of the word."

Hopefully, this new venture will be successful and possibly catapult the quick witted Cavett into national prominence. Although there seems to be a conscious effort on the part of his producers to mimic NBC's "Tonight" program, there is much about the star himself that is original and refreshing.

("This Morning" regrettably is not carried by WJRT-TV, the local ABC outlet, but it is available over most of the network's other affiliates, including channel 7 WXYZ-TV in Detroit.)

As we left the studio, an aged lady waiting for Cavett outside the rear entrance approached the comic and mumbled a few words into his ear.

"Ah," he grinned, "my fan club is gathering."

Henry Orient film to open spring series

MSU's International Film Series for spring term will open with the Peter Sellers comedy, "The World of Henry Orient," 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the Auditorium.

The color film is about two New York school girls with a crush on a "Don Juan" concert pianist and their comic shenanigans.

A feature of the spring series will be the Michigan premier of "Dr. Faustus," starring Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor, May 2 and 3.

Other attractions include two Italian films, "The Gospel According to St. Matthew," directed by Pier Paolo Pasolini, April 10, and "Il Grido" (The Cry), May 23 and 24.

The series will close with "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," May 29 and 31. The cinema treatment of this Broadway hit features Zero Mostel, Phil Silvers and Buster Keaton.

All showings will be in the MSU Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door or in advance at the MSU Union ticket office.

Britain condemns Rhodesia

LONDON (AP)—The British Parliament Wednesday night condemned Rhodesia's execution of three Africans in defiance of Queen Elizabeth II's reprieve.

The House of Commons, on an unrecorded voice vote, approved a motion to condemn the Rhodesian government's actions.

In view of the result of the first vote, the Conservatives did not press for a vote on the second.

The votes came after Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson had told the House that any surrender to Smith's breakaway government would be "a shortcut only to dishonor and disaster."

The House first voted down a Tory amendment to the resolution.

The House first voted down a Tory amendment to the resolution.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson said the British government was "firmly committed to the principle of non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries."

The votes came after Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson had told the House that any surrender to Smith's breakaway government would be "a shortcut only to dishonor and disaster."

at the convention in August. McCarthy declined to say that without Daley's help he would have trouble winning the nomination for himself. "I'd be glad to have his support," McCarthy said.

McCarthy, however, said he is optimistic about his chances of controlling the delegations of Iowa and Connecticut. Connecticut is the home base of John Bailey, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

In discussing the resignations of Hersh and Miss Oates, McCarthy said "it had nothing to do with the so-called civil rights issue."

It was reported from other sources that the two press aides had been concerned that McCarthy was not pressing his candidacy harder among Negroes in Wisconsin.

McCarthy, however, said he had known that after a rather free and easy campaign discipline in New Hampshire a "more disciplined campaign would have to be run."

In Milwaukee, McCarthy said in a speech prepared for delivery to a Junior Chamber of Commerce dinner that as a result of the war "our allies as well as our enemies have withdrawn to a chilly distance, and the United States, obsessed with an unwinnable war, finds itself alone in the world."

McCarthy said: "Despite our enormous military and economic power, we are becoming more and more impotent as a force in world affairs."

N.Y. judge allows Powell to go free 'pending appeal'

NEW YORK (AP)—A judge refused today to order deposed congressman Adam Clayton Powell jailed for contempt, allowing him to remain on parole pending appeal.

New York Supreme Court Justice Arthur Markewich said, however, that if Powell's appeal fails and he then refuses to surrender himself for a 30-day jail term "his career in New York politics would effectively terminate."

"This sanction has the greatest weight of all, and it is upon this that the court relies," said Markewich.

Markewich paroled Powell last Friday after Powell promised to start an appeal within two weeks and to obey all future court orders.

After his release, Powell received a hero's welcome in Harlem, which he hadn't visited in 18 months for fear of arrest.

Although he hasn't been seen in public since the weekend, Powell, 59, was reported to have returned to his retreat in Bimini, the Bahamas.

Turkish education planned by MSU

An educational advisory and assistance program to the Turkish Ministry of Education will be undertaken by MSU's College of Education under a $330,000 grant from the Agency for International Development.

The grant, which supports the 18-month program, was accepted March 21 by the Board of Trustees.

The University currently has a four-year-old program in progress to strengthen business education at four university-level academies in Turkey. This program is expected to be concluded in 1972.

Cole S. Brembeck, assistant director of the Institute for International Studies, will be the campus coordinator for the new education project. Ben Bohnhorst, professor of secondary education, has been designated as Chief of Party. He is in Ankara.

Student volunteers for McCarthy who are leaving for Milwaukee this weekend will meet at 8 tonight in 35 Union.

The Men's Glee Club will hold a concert at 8:15 p.m. Sunday in the Music Auditorium.

The Scots Highlanders Drum and Bugle Corps is holding a meeting at 7 tonight in Demonstration Hall. Members are asked to bring their tunics.

The Block and Bridle Club will present its 20th Annual Horse Show at 8 p.m. Friday and 7 p.m. Saturday in the Livestock Pavilion. For ticket information call 355-8400.

The Christian Science Organization will conduct meetings at 7:15 p.m. every Tuesday in Alumni Chapel. Anyone is welcome to attend.

The Geneva Forum will meet at 8:30 p.m. Sunday at the Lansing Christian Reformed Church, 240 Marshall St. The film "Religious Revolution and the Void" will be shown.

The Israeli Club is holding an evening of Israeli films at 8:30 Wednesday in Parlor B of the Union. After the films, Gad Meiri of Israel will speak on the various programs available for work and study in Israel.

The Evergreen Wives are sponsoring a Sarah Coventry Jewelry Party at 8 tonight in 216 tonight in 216 Natural Resources Bldg. Refreshments will be served.

The Engineer's Wives will meet at 8 tonight in 110 Engineering Bldg. Wives of professional engineers will discuss the topic "What to Expect as the Wife of a Professional Engineer."

The Spartan Christian Fellowship will hold a meeting at 9 tonight at Bethel Manor, 803 Grand River Ave. Jim Worden, inter-varsity staff member, will speak on "The Responsibility of a Christian on Campus."

College Life, sponsored by the Campus Crusade for Christ, will meet at 7:30 tonight at 544 Abbott Road.

The MSU Film Society will show the movies "I'm No Angel," starring Mae West and Cary Grant and "She Done Him Wrong" at 7 and 9 tonight and Friday in 109 Anthony Hall.

MSU's Cinema Guild will show Francois Truffaut's "Jules and Jim" at 7 and 9 tonight and Friday in 108 Wells Hall.

IN FLORIDA

Juvenile judge proposes legal beer for 18-year-olds

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—A Florida juvenile court judge, proposing that 18-year-olds be allowed legally to drink beer in the state, said, "for every child raised on milk there are four being raised on beer."

Pinellas County Judge Robert A. Halvorsen, in making the proposal to the state beverage commission, said Tuesday the plan would help bridge the gap between generations and help eliminate the "sham and hypocrisy" of the adult world.

"A 20-year-old youngster, entrusted to fly multi-million dollar airplanes and fight on the battlefields of Vietnam, cannot go into a good restaurant with his parents without being humiliated by being offered a Mickey Mouse cocktail with a cherry on the top," said the judge, father of a 19-year-old University of Florida student.

"I'm not proposing youngsters be allowed to drink anything they want," he said in an interview.

He said he had traveled all over the world and most recently to the University of Colorado where he said students are allowed to drink beer.

"Beer," he said, "is not a tool of the devil. Many people drink it for nourishment and other beneficial reasons."

Halvorsen, 52, said he has urged authorities at a big north-west Florida mental institution to allow patients to drink beer. Other mental institutions have permitted an occasional nip with beneficial results, he said. "It makes them happy and gives them some peace," he said.

preference, but will be allowed to vote for anyone.

Two referenda questions on the ballot suggest alternatives to the present American policy in Vietnam. The first asks: "What course of military action should the United States pursue in Vietnam?" The responses are: permanent cessation, temporary suspension, maintain current level of bombing, intensify bombing, and use nuclear weapons.

Voters will also be asked to respond to the "urban crisis" with such alternative solutions as: education, job training, employment opportunities, income subsidy, riot control and stricter law enforcement.

Project organizers said the primary could indicate the man students want for President and how he should react to the critical issues facing the nation. Spokesmen said it would take nearly two million student votes to make the primary a "meaningful" representation of campus sentiment.

The Board of Directors at MSU, composed of presidents or appointed representatives of honoraries, will meet tonight to discuss plans for the primary here. The board was selected late last term. Enzian, a male leadership honorary, is the campus coordinator.

Red controversy

The proposals for further liberalization in Czechoslovakia are part of an "action program" party informants said the leadership would submit Thursday. It revamps the whole government apparatus, modernizes the economic system and guarantees freedom of speech, travel and emigration.

The proposals that will be submitted to a plenary session of the party's Central Committee include no provision for a genuine opposition party to the Communists, however.

The party's view is that the press freedom restored since liberals removed the old-line regime of Antonin Novotny guarantees sufficient control of government and party.

Enunciated in the blueprint is the position of reformers headed by party chief Alexander Dubcek that the party and government must function cooperatively—unlike anywhere else in Communist Europe—and that the government is to sever as the supreme executive power.

Emphasized at the same time is Czechoslovakia's intention to maintain military, economic and political ties with the Soviet Union.

In the area of economics, the new program implements a plan drawn up three years ago that couples a Western concept of supply and demand with incentive. A new economic council will coordinate policy with world prices, rather than Soviet bloc prices, becoming a major back-stick.

"Socialist" enterprises will be independent and no longer a part of the state apparatus.

Trade unions will cease to be the extended arm of the party, resuming their original function of protecting workers' interests—even if it means opposing the Communist management.

Emphasized at the same time is Czechoslovakia's intention to maintain military, econom-

Social services program offered

MSU's College of Home Economics has established a new undergraduate program in community services, expanding the home economics extension major formerly offered.

The new major matches individual career interests with an emphasis in general education and general social service. Along with Home Economics programs in food and nutrition, textiles and clothing, child development and home management, students select courses in continuing education, family services or housing.

Narcotics charge

An MSU student and a Lansing teenager will face preliminary examination on charges of selling narcotics, according to the Lansing prosecutor's office.

Ronald L. Robinson, 22, Lansing senior, was arraigned March 12 with Timothy C. Woods, 18, of 5127 S. Waverly Road, one day after they allegedly sold narcotics to a police officer.

Robinson is tentatively scheduled to appear in Lansing Municipal Court Tuesday while Woods' Wednesday court date was cancelled.

Dem governors

Brannin running as a stand-in for the President in the May 7 primary.

The action of Illinois Atty. Gen. William G. Clark, a candidate for the Senate against Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, in expressing "grave concern" over Johnson's Vietnam war course in turn has caused concern at the White House.

Iowa Gov. Harold E. Hughes, a candidate for the Senate, evidenced that he is feeling the antiwar pressure when he spoke at leaving the Johnson camp, unless the President changes his Vietnam policies; Vermont Gov. Philip Hoff is supporting Kennedy and Maine Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis has been reported leaning in that direction although he has remained uncommitted.

Paraphernalia

We loved the idea of Paraphernalia so much we didn't buy just the wondrous fur coats or the fabulous fluorescent dresses or the perfect hip pants. We bought the whole store—lock, stock and madness.

The new controversial boutique that rocked New York is now in our store all prepared to give you a rock or two and those fashions to faint about.
