

NO PEACE TALKS

N. Vietnamese attack Johnson's intentions

TOKYO (AP) -- North Vietnam's official press was quoted Tuesday as saying President Johnson has not agreed to halt all bombings unconditionally and is trying to mislead public opinion.

This seemed an oblique indication that Hanoi is unready to go to the peace table now despite Johnson's order Sunday curtailing bombing in the North.

Both the Soviet news agency Tass and Peking radio quoted the North Vietnamese army newspaper Quan Doi Nhan Dan as saying Johnson was trying to mislead public opinion.

The official Communist party newspaper Nhan Dan made no direct reference to Johnson's proposal that talks begin now since most of North Vietnam has been placed off limits to bombers.

But it spoke of an American "fraudulent proposal for peace talks," said the pro-Communist Japanese Denpa News Agency in a dispatch from Hanoi.

Nhan Dan said the United States was trying actually to increase the bombing. This was not explained but it may have been a reference to more intensive bombing of the southern panhandle, not on the banned list of targets.

Nhan Dan noted bombing raids had been going on for the past two days in Thanh Hoa Province, which is part of the panhandle.

Said Nhan Dan, according to Denpa: "The United States is planning a new plot to maintain its new colonialism and increasing its troops to reconstruct the South Vietnamese puppet regime and troops."

"The United States is attempting to increase bombing of North Vietnam and a so-called fraudulent proposal for peace talks is aimed at getting rid of isolation from the people of the world."

Quan Doi Nhan Dan repeated the North Vietnamese demand for unconditional halts to all bombings in the North.

"Our people want peace," the newspaper said, "but real peace must go with genuine independence and freedom. As long as our beloved homeland is overshadowed by American aggression, our country will not have genuine freedom and independence."

This seemingly unbending position was supported by Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in a speech in Iran, where he is on a state visit.

"Despite the long and cruel war in Vietnam," he said, "all attempts by the interventionists to reach their ends, have proved futile. The Vietnamese people are fighting for a just cause. They are defending their freedom and independence."

In another development, North Vietnam said its economic and defense potentials "continued to grow" during the past three years despite heavy U.S. and sea attacks.

McCarthy carries Wisconsin; 80 per cent of GOP for Nixon

MILWAUKEE, WIS. (AP) -- Senator Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., swept toward a prestige-enlarging victory over President Johnson, who did not choose to run, in mounting tabulations from Tuesday's presidential primary.

McCarthy, opposing only Johnson on the ballot, was racking up 54 per cent of the Democratic votes cast in a contest he said was "like a race in which one horse jumped the fence and started eating grass on the home stretch."

The Minnesota Senator's chief current rival, Senator Robert F. Kennedy, was getting about 5 per cent of the party vote on a write-in. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, hovering on the edge of possible candidacy, hardly showed, with only scattered write-ins.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon walked away with the Republican contest. He faced nominal opposition from Governor Ronald Reagan of California and perennial candidate Harold E. Stassen.

Nixon seemed likely to chalk up 80 per cent of the GOP total and more than 30 percent of the aggregate vote cast in the primary. This latter would exceed his showing when he ran in the 1960 primary here without opposition.

With 820 of 3,291 precincts counted in the Democratic primary, McCarthy had 131,792 votes, Johnson 99,689.

In the Republican balloting with 891 precincts counted, Nixon had 121,925 votes, California Governor Reagan had 16,785 and Stassen 8,201.

Looking beyond Wisconsin to later primaries where he will meet Sen. Robert F. Kennedy head-on in the balloting, Mc Carthy scheduled a stop-off Wednesday for a speech in South Bend, Ind., on his way to Connecticut where his friends think he can harvest a sizable share of the state's 44 convention votes.

Kennedy's aides announced in Washington he will visit Indiana Thursday as part of a campaign swing which will take him into Ohio, Louisiana, Kentucky, Alaska and South Dakota.

Most of the steam of the anti-Vietnam protest was taken out of the Wisconsin campaign by Johnson's elimination of himself as a contender and his reduction of the bombing.

Nixon, who put off a Vietnam speech after the President's announcement, called for a moratorium on discussion of Vietnam until after there is some indication how Hanoi intends to react to Johnson's new bid for peace negotiations.

McCarthy, however, made it clear he intends to continue to discuss Vietnam policy. He said in an election eve broadcast that "there is still need for a policy determination, and also the projection of a program by which peace can be established there."

While Republican presidential candidate Richard Nixon and wife Pat smile and wave to onlookers in Cincinnati before Nixon addressed a group of Republican women, Senator Eugene McCarthy, Democratic presidential hopeful, launched his campaign for the May 14 Nebraska presidential all-star primary with a talk to some 2,500 persons in Omaha. Both vied for support in the Wisconsin primary Tuesday.

Sorority plans to implement 1st key system

By LINDA GORTMAKER State News Staff Writer

The first sorority house granted permission to implement a key system will probably have locks and keys ready for use by next week.

Alpha Delta Pi sorority, 225 N. Harrison Road, finalized plans Monday night for a system that would cost each house resident an approximate $32 deposit fee.

Mabel Petersen, Panhellenic advisor, said Monday that no other sororities have as yet submitted for approval their key system plans, "but expects more later this week."

Proposal calling for a keys system falls part to improve the selective hours plan, but the final go-ahead was not given until the end of winter term.

Each house, if it chose to use a key system, was asked to submit suggested implementation procedures. Keys would replace the "buddy system" most houses now use, where one sorority member waits up for members who come in after University closing hours.

Since implementation of the selective hours system, sorority members have consistently complained about waiting up for late sorority sisters to return. Residence halls use paid night receptionists who admit late coeds.

Vicki Balcer, Detroit sophomore and Alpha Delta Pi member, called their house keys proposal "the greatest thing since no hours was approved."

"Before we had a watchman system where a sister stayed up in the first floor guest room which had a buzzer connected to the front door," she said.

According to the sorority's proposed implementation, keys will be issued to all of the houses's 45 residents with pledges on a guest basis. The house will be locked 24 hours a day. Mary Fitch, Shaker Hts., Ohio, junior, Panhellenic representative who wrote the implementation plans, said.

Ellsworth announces ASMSU chairman bid

By DAN BRANDON State News Staff Writer

Pete Ellsworth, vice chairman of the Associated Students of MSU student board, has announced his decision to run for chairman of the board for the fourth session.

According to the constitution, any past voting member of the board or any member-at-large is eligible to run for the chairmanship.

Ellsworth said his decision to take this avenue rather than run for member-at-large hinged on his responsibilities as vice chairman.

"I wanted to run a campaign, but it was just not feasible," Ellsworth said. "I felt that I would either have to resign as vice chairman or do an injustice to the job in order to campaign."

The board will elect a new chairman and vice chairman April 15, following a general election of members-at-large April 11.

Greg Hopkins, chairman of the third session, commented on Ellsworth's decision and indicated that he had asked Ellsworth not to run for member-at-large because he needed his help as vice chairman.

"I think he made a wise decision," Hopkins said. "As far as experience goes, he is as close to being chairman as anyone can be. With the exception of past chairmen, he knows the position as well as anyone."

Ellsworth commented on the campaign which is currently being conducted for the six member-at-large positions.

"The only way to have the best student government is for students to take an interest in the campaign and vote on the basis of what the candidates stand for," Ellsworth said.

He said that there was more information available about the candidates this year than in previous years, and voters should take advantage of it.

He said that this year's campaign is being centered more around programs and services rather than policy changes.

"Last year, we were anticipating the Academic Freedom Report and based our campaigns on plans for changes under the report," Ellsworth said.

"We have lived with the report for a year now and this campaign has tended to emphasize programs and services rather than the activist role," he said.

the projected four-year medical school at MSU.

"The money will probably be appropriated, but there's certainly been a difference of opinion among the congressmen about it," said Engstrom.

"It's closely tied in with the four-year medical school that they want to put up, and we didn't intend for there to be a four-year school at MSU. What we wanted was a two-year school that students would transfer out of to complete their training."

Engstrom added that the appropriations bill, which had been passed by the Senate February 28, giving MSU some $450,000 more than the University of Michigan, was still in committee and that it would probably be reported out onto the floor of the House for a vote within a week or ten days.

He also hinted that the recent dispute over the Legislature's cutting of funds being interpreted as a move to limit out-of-state enrollments might end up with having representatives from MSU and U-M go down to the Capitol to discuss out-of-state students.

"It won't be a big, formal sort of hearing," Engstrom said. "But we do want to hear their side of the story."

Engstrom declined to comment on any other possible additions or deductions in the bill. "We're still in committee and it wouldn't be fair right now," he said.

Should the bill be passed by the House with relatively few changes, it will then go to the Governor for his signature. However, if sweeping changes are made, a special congressional committee will be formed, with members of both Houses on it, discussing the various differences and coming up with some kind of compromise bill.

Appropriations may pass house committee intact

By BOB ZESCHIN State News Staff Writer

The chairman of the house appropriations committee said Tuesday that MSU's $61.7 million appropriations bill would probably be passed reasonably intact.

Rep. Arnell Engstrom (R- Traverse City) said that although many parts of the bill were still "up in the air and open to debate," it would probably be passed and that funds for the Life Sciences Bldg. would be appropriated also.

The Life Sciences Bldg., currently No. 1 on the priority list for new buildings, had been much debated in the Legislature because of its connection with

This year's appropriations include some $48,740,000 for administration and operation of the East Lansing campus, $4,691,855 for administration and operation of the Oakland campus, $4,690,790 for the Agriculture experiment station and $3,645,500 for the cooperative extension service.

Civil rights amendment still delayed

By JIM GRANELLI State News Staff Writer

A civil rights amendment slated for final action is still in the hands of the East Lansing City Attorney, according to East Lansing Mayor Gordon L. Thomas.

The amendment, which provides for a $500 and/or 90-day jail sentence for those found guilty of discriminatory practices, was supposed to be ready by the City Council's Monday night meeting, according to John Patriarche, city manager.

Patriarche said last week that City Attorney Daniel Learned was drafting the amendment in ordinance form.

At that time, Patriarche said that the ordinance should be ready for final action at Monday night's meeting.

City Council's next meeting will be April 15.

The ordinance also provides for the inclusion of real estate and financial institutions to the list of possible discriminatory areas and changes the public policy of civil rights in East Lansing to public law.

One councilman, James B. Brown, who was opposed to the penalty clause, voted against sending the amendment to the city attorney. He claimed that the city has had "complete success" with the ordinance in its present form.

Penalties might harm the work already done, he said. Brown said he would vote in favor of the penalty clause if the present ordinance proved ineffective.

Bombing limit area defined by Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Pentagon said Tuesday that U.S. bombing attacks are being conducted against North Vietnam from the 20th parallel south, but said 90 per cent of the strikes have been limited to within 60 miles of the demilitarized zone.

This was the first official clarification of the extent of the bombing since the Pentagon's order restricting air and naval gun fire attacks in a bid to get North Vietnam to the peace table.

It means that Johnson's order permits wide ranging bombing assaults along a more than 200-mile stretch of North Vietnam's panhandle—a much greater area than his announcement suggested.

The impression left with most people by Johnson's wording Sunday night was that the bombing would be limited to a relatively few miles above the DMZ.

Johnson put it this way:

"Tonight, I have ordered our aircraft and our naval vessels to make no attacks on North Vietnam, except in the area north of the demilitarized zone where the continuing enemy buildup directly threatens allied forward positions and where the movements of their troops and supplies are clearly related to that threat."

"The area in which we are stopping our attacks includes almost 90 per cent of North Vietnam's population, and most of its territory. Thus there will be no attacks around the principal populated areas, or in the food-producing areas of North Vietnam."

Since Johnson's assertion of "the first step to de-escalate the conflict," U.S. bombers have ranged as far north as the key supply transshipment point of Than Hoa some 210 miles north of the DMZ.

This is a short distance below the 20th parallel.

Neither the White House, the State Department nor the Defense Department would clarify Johnson's statement and

FACULTY PANEL

LBJ's withdrawal assessed

By BETSY ROACH
State News Staff Writer

Four MSU faculty members disagreed Monday night on the implications of President Johnson's refusal to seek the Democratic nomination for President and his halt of most bombing of North Vietnam.

Wesley R. Fishel, professor of political science; Herbert Garfinkel, dean of James Madison College and professor of political science; Mrs. Chitra M. Smith, lecturer in social science; and George Will, assistant professor of political science, participated in a panel discussion at Wilson Hall sponsored by James Madison College.

Fishel said the President's message was "statesmanlike and politically astute. It was pointed at every one of his opponents that he could point it at."

"He did more for American stature in world opinion than could be thought possible in a single speech."

Fishel said that Johnson "has in effect taken the wind out of Sen. Kennedy's sails and Sen. McCarthy's sails. I think the President has very neatly boxed them in and that they know it."

Fishel said that Kennedy and McCarthy could not offer more in the way of peace without appearing to give in to Hanoi.

He said that, though Richard Nixon now seems very warlike, he may be assured of the Republican nomination.

Fishel said that Hanoi would be unlikely to give a positive response to the bombing de-escalation, since the next President could prove easier for Hanoi to deal with than Johnson.

Garfinkel compared the recent events to Truman's refusal to run for a second term in 1952 during the Korean War.

"Johnson's bombshell was that he himself would not use the bombing pause for party or personal position. The whole thing was a genuine effort at statesmanship."

"The question, 'What will it take to get peace?' is a question of the pacifist or the isolationist but of none of the candidates. Peace is only one value. Is it always better to be anything than dead? The question to ask is, 'By what means can we obtain a cessation through negotiation which preserves a requirement for withdrawal?'" Garfinkel said.

Garfinkel said that if Vice President Humphrey were to compete for the Democratic nomination, it would be "extremely difficult" for McCarthy to oppose him "within the framework of the Democratic party."

"I can't see a great deal of love between McCarthy and Kennedy. McCarthy might well ally himself with Humphrey," Garfinkel said.

"I think motives are important," said Mrs. Smith. She said that the consideration of a person's motives involves "making predictions about how a man will act in a tight spot in the future."

She said that Johnson has "an enormous vanity."

"It would be humiliating to him to be elected by 50.1 per cent of the vote."

Mrs. Smith believes that the Presidential race will be between Nixon and Kennedy, although she prefers McCarthy.

"I think Nixon would be a disaster," she said. The audience applauded loudly.

"I was very slow to come into the dove position," she said. "I was afraid that it would be interpreted as American interests to be present in Southeast Asia and to keep South Vietnam from going Communist. For a long time that seemed to me to be very important."

"However, it is morally indefensible to do to that people what we are doing to them in the pursuit of national interest. We are asking somebody else to pay a price that we have no right to ask them to pay," she said.

FBI investigates charge of election laws violation

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The FBI launched a criminal investigation Monday into allegations that high-level employees of the Maritime Administration were pressured by their boss to contribute to a Democratic party fund-raising dinner.

The investigation was requested by the Criminal Division of the Justice Dept., the Associated Press learned Tuesday.

A veteran civil servant charged last week that 79 Maritime Administration employees were summoned to a business hours meeting on federal property and pressured to contribute to the dinner.

Such pressure would be a violation of election laws prohibiting federal employees from seeking political contributions from other federal employees on federal property, said a Justice Dept. official who confirmed that an investigation was underway.

The official would not speculate on how long the investigation might continue.

The Maritime Administration employees who made the charges said the employees summoned to the meeting all were at GS-15 pay grade, earning $18,400 a year and up.

The meeting was called, he said, by James W. Gulick, acting head of the Maritime Administration for 11 a.m. March 21 in a conference room near Gulick's office in the General Accounting Office building.

Gulick was quoted as saying that contributions to next Thursday's $250-a-plate dinner were not being sought by arm twisting. But, the employee said, Gulick added:

"If you want to make sure that you have a nice, clean file -- and you can be sure that a file is kept somewhere -- you know what to do."

Gulick acknowledged that the March 21 meeting was held and that a second meeting was held the next day because "I heard of the possibility of a misunderstanding."

But he denied making the "nice, clean file" statement.

"There was no pressure, no solicitation, and whatever they wanted to do was in accordance with their own circumstances and their own positions," Gulick said. "I'm inclined to think that this is a small minority that wants to think this way. I'm just at a loss to understand why."

After the charges were made public, John J. McCarthy, deputy general counsel for the Civil Service Commission, said his office would investigate the matter. The Justice Dept. notified him late last week, McCarthy said Tuesday, that it would ask the FBI to take over the investigation.

All of the employees present at the meeting had received invitations to the dinner either through the mail or from superiors, the Maritime Administration employee said.

The dinner is being given by the House of Representatives in response to a request from Humphrey and Democratic congressmen. It will be held as scheduled despite Johnson's decision not to seek re-election.

Gulick was quoted as telling the standing-room-only crowd of civil servants in the conference room:

"I'm going to lay it on the line. I'm going to give it to you as it was given to me."

"C. R. Smith wisely turned this over to Howard Samuels and Bob Lee passed it on to me."

The references were to the new secretary of commerce, the undersecretary of commerce and the special assistant to the secretary for public affairs, respectively.

"C. R. Smith feels that $250 is too much. He thinks that perhaps $50 would be about right. Maybe some of you would like to go in together. You know it doesn't make any difference whether you go to the dinner."

PACKAGE AMENDMENT

Senate OKs tax hike, outlay cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate broke the logjam on President Johnson's long-sought 10 per cent income tax surtax Tuesday—at least temporarily—by passing a grab bag bill loaded with an assortment of other tax provisions.

Included was a $6-billion federal spending cut and a continuation of excise tax rates on autos and telephone service.

The measure now goes to a conference with the House, which originally passed it primarily as an extension of the 7 per cent auto and 10 per cent telephone taxes. In seven days of debate the Senate loaded on 18 amendments on other subjects, which caused some members to label it an "Easter basket bill."

Chances for the income tax surtax and federal spending clampdown are rated slim in the House, which is stubbornly jealous of its constitutional prerogative to originate revenue legislation.

But one sponsor of those provisions, Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., while conceding the House would knock them out, said the Senate vote might enhance chances of eventual House action on an income tax surcharge.

The vote on passage of the measure was 57 to 31 and the roll call on the surtax-spending cutback package was a surprising 53 to 35.

Leaders in Congress have said Johnson's announcement that he will not seek another term enhances chances of the 10 per cent surtax which he recommended last August.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee who opposed the package amendment, told newsmen he believes it would have been defeated before Johnson made his bombshell announcement. He added that he knew of several votes which changed because of Johnson's noncandidate declaration.

The 10 per cent surtax would be effective retroactive to April 1 and would run to June 30, 1969, as Johnson proposed on both individual and corporation taxes. It's estimated to bring in $11.7 billion to the Treasury during the 15 months.

Few students care enough to vote and even fewer care enough to examine the candidates' stands. Less than 50 students from the East Campus complex took the opportunity...

Monday night to review those running for the student board.

For those who do--what are you looking for? Which candidates just sound good, but have nothing to say? Have you ever noticed that, no matter what question one might ask, some candidates merely regurgitate the few general statements of...

their platforms? Goals are fine, but which candidates offer any means to attain them?

Where is the candidate who is critical of his own goals and aware of the possible roadblocks now -- the others will stumble and fall from their idealistic towers too late.

Last year the question was one of outward direction. Just where should ASMSU's outside involvement be, and how? And representative trust. How important is direct student opinion? Do you, as a board member, vote as you feel?

Academic involvement for students was key last spring and remains important. How much voice and power can and should be obtained for students in deciding grading policies, influencing the selection and retention of professors, in determining classroom conduct of education...

The trend is liberal and the trend is to let students live their own private lives outside the classroom. Women's hours have been liberalized, but should ASMSU stop there or work to eliminate all hours or only those for second and third term frosh coeds? How much of an open visitation policy can MSU take?

And there has been much questioning of the ASMSU structure itself, from the early days of fall term when sophomore member-at-large Brad Lang was interested in a national student union instead of local student governments to the more recent discussion of electing members-at-large from each complex instead of truly "at-large."

Two candidates are running primarily because they dislike ASMSU. Others are concerned with the student disinterest, distrust for ASMSU. ASMSU doesn't do a damned thing--just ask any typical student. Perhaps this year more than ever before, the board will be very much aware of ASMSU's image, or lack of such.

Ideally this is the year of the student, as someone to receive an education, someone to take an active part in that education, someone with individual desires and a private life to carry out.

Ideally this year's student government of MSU will be predominately concerned with something somewhat unique--MSU and the MSU student.

Election coverage: Why we take a stand

Inserted in today's State News is a special ASMSU election issue. Its purpose is to help students become better informed about the candidates up for election next Thursday.

beginning tomorrow, the State News will begin a series of editorials which will attempt to analyze each of the four at-large races.

The reason we attempt to analyze and make some judgment on the different races is that it complements our total coverage of the election.

First, as the special issue does today, we present all the candidates in identical interviews. No opinions are offered. The candidates are given the opportunity to express themselves on some of the important questions surrounding the election.

The next logical step is to attempt to judge the candidates, based on what they say and on their past performance. The State News Editorial Board, composed of the editor-in-chief and the four assistant editors, interviewed each of the candidates in addition to the interviews published today and has studied their experience, past performance and future potential.

This procedure will clearly separate our opinion from the objective presentation of the candidates, and there will be no question about where we stand concerning the candidates and the election. If we withheld our opinions about the election from the editorial page they could conceivably manifest themselves in the news columns which would be unfair to all involved.

This is not to say there will be an endorsement for each race. We have no such commitment. Quite simply, we will attempt to analyze the strengths of the different candidates and where there appears to be an outstanding candidate or candidates, we will so designate.

There are some who say the State News should exercise endorsements in student elections because it might unduly influence the outcome. But this suggestion misses the point.

First, we regard student elections as we do other issues either inside or outside the University community. And like other issues, whether it be academic freedom, women's hours or the war in Vietnam, it is subject to debate. Furthermore, we feel it would be negligent on our part not to express a point of view at the proper time and in the proper place.

Second, it is certainly questionable whether State News editorials have unduly influenced past elections.

For example, two years ago, only two of the five candidates receiving State News endorsements won their races. Last year, we fared somewhat better when five of the seven candidates we endorsed were winners. But the same time, we endorsed the $1,000 allocation for the 18-year-old-vote campaign and the recent proposal to raise the student tax, and both failed miserably. So, the record clearly shows that the influence of a given editorial on a given topic is at least unpredictable.

The purpose of our intensive election coverage is to help inform and stimulate students to choose the best possible representatives for their student government. We hope our analysis can play a part.

But regardless of the outcome or the possible influence, we reserve the right to comment freely on any issue, including student elections.

Dual approach to the cities

Amid the din and clatter of the Vietnamese war debate there is danger of forgetting the other big issue of the American election fight: the cities issue. There has been nothing like the same pressure on the candidates to work out on this as on Vietnam...

My own approach can be summed up in two words: conciliation and coalition. I am thinking of conciliation as the basic mood necessary between whites and blacks. I am thinking of a coalition of government, business, labor, the universities, the foundations and community groups to organize a total attack in depth on the total problem.

Neither segment of this dual approach can succeed without the other. Unless there is a mood of conciliation, none of the combined efforts to deal with housing, jobs, schooling, vocational training or the media can be of much avail. Unless there is a coalition attack on the problem, a patchwork effort will only bring more frustration, hate, blood and tears and more polarizing.

I am happy that Eugene McCarthy has spoken out for conciliation, and it is also Robert Kennedy's trend, whatever some of his more blood-and-thunder young speechwriters may wish him to say. It is known to be Nelson Rockefeller's basic mood, and Lyndon Johnson's. The danger lies with the Negro militants on the one side and with the get-tough mood of some of the whites, to whom George Wallace addresses his appeals. I trust that neither Ronald Reagan nor Richard Nixon will give comfort to the get-tough solutions of the repression of violence which can never be real solutions in America.

One can always mask the get-tough appeals under law-and-order and safe-streets slogans, and there may well be a harvest of votes for that theme in the election, but any man getting to be President on those slogans would find his task of conciliation all the harder once he was in the White House. Similarly, the young black-power leaders can always mask their destructive drive under the slogans of "black identity," but the Negro community as a whole always pays dearly for what its few young looters and snipers do.

This is the most serious problem that Martin Luther King faces. He is. I take it, trying to keep the Negro city masses from moving over to the black-power leaders. To do it, he feels he must show enough militancy to satisfy the frustrations of Negroes and allay their sense of powerlessness. Hence, his Memphis demonstrations, recent ones in the Washington blacks. But Dr. King has never dropped his faith in non-violence as a method. His thorny problem is how to combine militancy with nonviolence, not in America's Indian setting, but in America's stormy present.

I don't believe, as many do, that a bloody summer on the American city streets is "inevitable." The chances of its happening are pretty grim, but those chances can only be improved by any surrender to "inevitability." The path must be one of conciliation, not only on the part of the nation's leaders and the white majority, but also of the Negro community and its leaders. There is a struggle going on inside the Negro community, between the philosophy of separatism and that of conciliation.

The trade unions can open their ranks to Negroes far more than they have done and give them apprenticeship and job training. Business can bring its splendid technology and managerial ability to bear on building a whole array of new housing units, renovating the schools and classrooms, locating new office buildings and plants and laboratories where they will transform the whole profile of the central city. The universities and foundations can bring in research centers. Only a total coalition effort can redesign the city environment, change the social and cultural climate and prevent the polarizing which blights the human city.

OUR READERS' MIND

If you think, it's Nixon

To the Editor:

Why is there not more support for Richard Nixon on campus. Four major candidates are running for president. Lyndon Johnson's war strategy will let the war drag on until Red China perfects nuclear weapons. Robert Kennedy and Gene McCarthy propose that we withdraw. They have made it quite clear that they do not believe that we should try to win. No thinking person can believe that the McCarthy-Kennedy plan will assure real peace.

We have learned that appeasing aggressors, Communists or Fascist, with the land they demand, only stimulates their appetite for more. World War II resulted after appeasing Hitler with Czechoslovakia. The swift invasion of European satellite nations by Russia, and the guerrilla raids in South America directed and supplied by Cuba are testimony of Communist intentions.

Make no mistake about who the aggressor in Vietnam is. The Communists have as much as admitted that they instigated the fighting. As any reader of Communist periodicals knows, the Communists claim that they are leading a "war of liberation" and that individual freedom and other free world concepts must be thrown out of Southeast Asia.

Richard Nixon believes that to win in Vietnam now, we must fight not on the hope that the Communists will someday tire or that a stalemate will someday develop--but with the intention of winning now. We must blockade Hanoi Harbor and all supply lines. Furthermore we must destroy factories engaged in war production, including those which are now off limits. We should give the North Vietnamese enough warning so that they can quickly evacuate civilian workers who certainly are not responsible for their government's actions. Many military leaders have stated that the war can be ended in a matter of weeks by relying on weapons to cut off supplies rather than on soldiers to do the job. If the Communists are soundly and clearly rebuffed in Asia they will think twice about instigating similar "wars of liberation" elsewhere.

In the domestic arena Richard Nixon is a Conservative. He believes that taxpayers should have to support only those who are aged or sick. He wants to reduce government spending to allow more money to stay in the hands of the public who would then buy more products--necessitating more factories and businesses which would employ those who now are dependent of welfare checks.

To be for Richard Nixon one must be willing to think. One must not be swept up by the simple words "let's just stop fighting," which indeed does seem to make some people feel safe. One must think of the future. The college students of today have an obligation to protect their children's future.

Those who want a truly better America have a dynamic spokesman. Those doves who want a lasting peace have a leader who can achieve real peace. Richard Nixon is the only progressive, peace candidate.

Irony and blinders

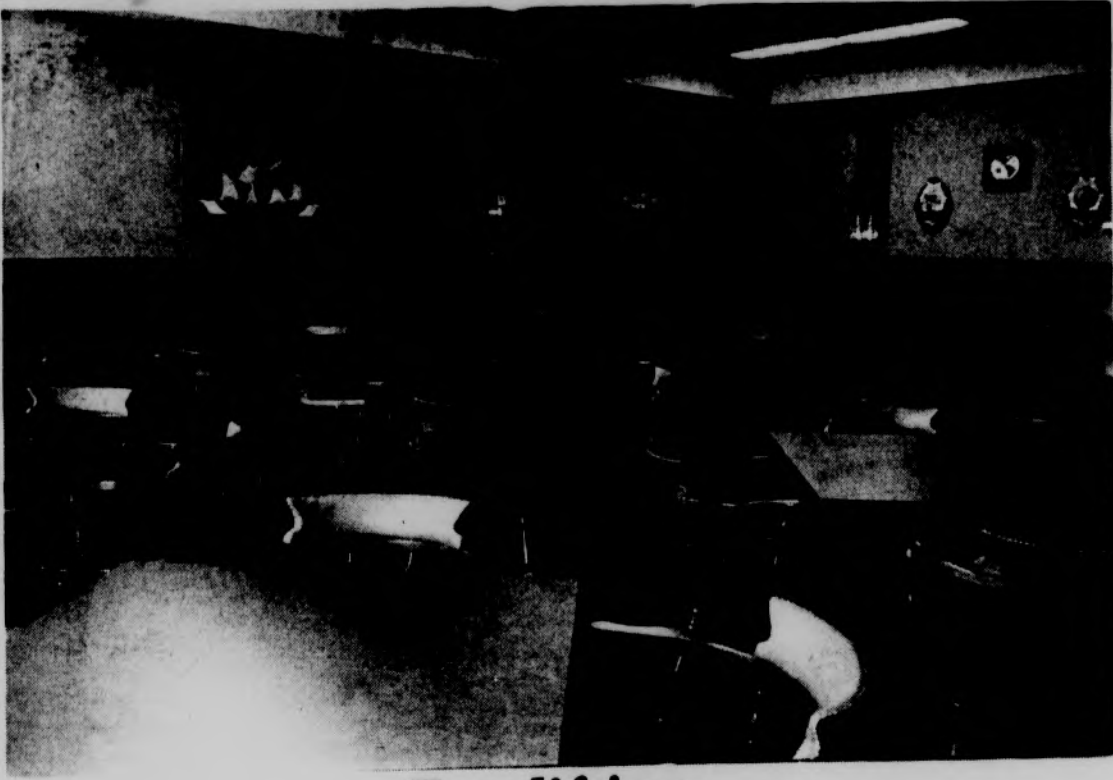

To the Editor:

I just showed this poem to a colleague and he urged me to send it to you. Many of your readers are pro-McCarthy, and, as a matter of fact, I am too. However, history incorporates some uncomfortable facts, some of which are not pleasant to face. This is the feeling that I'm inclined to express.

So Johnson's gone, Who will now be spat upon? Vietnam Once again made us send America's sons into war, dwindling funds for cleaner projects closer home. So what's the vow youth now expects? And vow from whom? Who will keep the Western store? Or should it sleep?

Free 'U' offers course variety

By DEBBIE FITCH
State News Staff Writer
"Learning for learning's sake" is available to students this term as Free University courses are again being offered.

Interested students may study any topic of interest to them on an "informal, ungraded basis," according to Michael Lopez, New Haven, Conn., senior and coordinator of the Free University.

Course ideas may be originated by students or faculty members and these ideas may be submitted to the Free University office, from 1 to 5 p.m., class days at 326 Student Services Bldg.

"Any topic students or faculty are seriously interested in will be welcome," said Lopez. "Classes need not meet every week; a course may be held in one meeting only, as in the case of a book discussion."

These Free University courses are now scheduled:

--poetry workshop. Student discussion of their original poetry with A.J.M. Smith, professor of English and poet-in-residence. Meetings are 7:30 a.m. Thursday, beginning this week, in the poetry room, Morrill Hall. Regular attendance is requested.

The discussions will cover the process of law-making, focusing on drug laws as a specific example. The class will meet at 8:30 this Sunday at a meeting place to be announced in Friday's "It's What's Happening" column.

The following courses have been requested by students but as yet do not have instructors.

Volunteers who would like to teach courses on the topics listed below or who have other suggestions should write or call the Free University office.

Students wishing to take part in any of these courses may call the Free University office or send their name, address, phone number and list of times available, plus the name of the course they are interested in to the office.

--A Survey of 20th Century Science Fiction. To meet once weekly.

Panel discussions are being organized on Vietnam, the Presidential commission's report on the urban riots and on the 1968 elections. Faculty members and students will participate on each panel and the objective is to air an assortment of opinions. The first symposium, on Vietnam, is tentatively scheduled for next week. Faculty members and students interested in participating in any of these sessions are requested to contact the Free University office.

The next list of courses are those that will be offered if a sufficient amount of student interest is shown.

Warplanes step up attacks on N. Viet lines of supply

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. warplanes swarmed over North Vietnam's southern panhandle Tuesday in the second straight day of intensified attacks designed to disrupt the flow of men and supplies to South Vietnam.

Barred since Monday by President Johnson's order halting bombings of North Vietnam's industrial heartland farther north, pilots zeroed in on communication lines—truck supply roads, railroads and waterways.

Whether they streaked as far north as Monday, when they hit a target about 210 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone between North and South Vietnam, was not known but a Hanoi broadcast claimed they did.

The broadcast said one F4 Phantom was shot down when it was hit by anti-aircraft fire during raids on Thanh Hoa Province.

U.S. fighter-bombers smashed at a supply base Monday near the coastal city of Thanh Hoa, 210 miles northwest of the Demilitarized Zone and 80 miles south of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital now off limits for the American planes.

Hanoi's reference to repeated raids indicated that the air blows were on a scale similar to Monday's, when 105 missions were flown over the panhandle, almost double the average in that area.

The reason for the intensified attacks in the panhandle is plain. U.S. Air Force and Navy planes may strike there now that they no longer are able to go after targets in the areas of Hanoi, the port of Haiphong and northward to the border of Red China.

Johnson said in his order the bombing ban applied to most of North Vietnam in an area where about 90 per cent of the people live. But U.S. spokesmen declined to specify any boundaries.

U.S. officials said the Thanh Hoa targets were in the region for strike missions and that it was possible U.S. planes might range farther north.

The U.S. Command reported Air Force pilots in the raids Monday said they destroyed or damaged a railroad tunnel, a bridge, nine military storage buildings and seven trucks in the area of Mu Gia Pass. Enemy men and supplies stream down through the pass through Laos along the Ho Chi Minh trail to South Vietnam.

Other pilots reported knocking out at least one of their targets in Vinh, which is 130 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone.

The U.S. Command said a 7th Fleet destroyer blasted a highway bridge 37 miles southeast of Vinh. Warships also are restricted by Johnson's order.

As the air attacks were pressed home, indications came out of Hanoi that North Vietnam was about to reject Johnson's offer to talk peace in exchange for the clampdown on

The first came from the North Vietnamese army newspaper Quan Doi Nhan Dan, which said that Johnson still has not agreed to halt all bombings unconditionally, as demanded by Hanoi, and was trying to mislead public opinion.

Then the Communist party newspaper Khan Dan was quoted by the pro-Communist Japanese Denpa News Agency as saying the United States is planning "a new plot" in Vietnam and described a U.S. peace offer as a fraud. This made no specific mention of Johnson's

Humphrey delays decision on presidential candidacy

WASHINGTON (AP)—A close associate of Hubert H. Humphrey said Tuesday the vice president won't decide whether to become a presidential candidate "for a couple of weeks or more."

"The vice president is going to take time to appraise his chances and he is not going to be hurried," the associate said.

He added that Humphrey, who was in Mexico on a diplomatic mission when President Johnson announced Sunday night that he would not seek reelection, has told his staff he "is not a candidate yet."

Key members of the vice president's staff are almost unanimous in urging him to immediately enter the race for the Democratic presidential nomination. They argue that any delay would give Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York the opportunity to sew up enough delegate strength to clinch the nomination.

Humphrey, who returned from Mexico late Monday night, attended a White House breakfast with the President and Democratic Congressional leaders Tuesday morning. It was his first meeting with Johnson since the President's dramatic withdrawal.

After the breakfast, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., told newsmen that no mention was made at the meeting of a possible presidential bid by Humphrey.

Mansfield also said he doesn't expect the President to take sides in the contest for the nomination.

From Pennsylvania came hints that Humphrey may join Kennedy and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota in the race.

Mayor James H. J. Tate of Philadelphia told newsmen Monday that a Humphrey aide indicated to him that the vice president would become a candidate.

And from Pittsburgh came word that the White House has notified officials of the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO convention that Humphrey will make an "important address" to the convention Thursday. However, Humphrey's office in Washington promptly denied rumors that the important address might be an announcement of his candidacy.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., predicted Tuesday that Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will announce his bid for the Democratic Presidential nomination on Thursday at an AFL-CIO convention in Pittsburgh.

"That's where I expect it to be made," said Clark at a reception in Philadelphia for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, the apparent front-runner for the nomination.

Romney lauds bomb halt, attacks peace candidates

By UPI

Romney, mildly applauding President Johnson's de-escalation of the Vietnam war, Tuesday attacked "pipers of peace at any price."

Romney told a news conference he was talking about U.S. Sens. Robert F. Kennedy of New York and Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, the current favorites for the Democratic presidential nomination now that Johnson has said he will not run again.

Kennedy and McCarthy are proposing, Romney said, that the United States and South Vietnam begin direct negotiations with the National Liberation Front (NLF) without prior assurance that the Viet Cong will lay down their arms.

"Any such negotiations can only result in the National Liberation Front taking over South Vietnam and wiping out what has been accomplished there," Romney said.

Romney's position on talks with the NLF is that they should be held only if the Viet Cong stops its terrorist tactics.

Romney said Kennedy has gone from "one extreme to the other" on Vietnam between now and 1964.

Romney's brother, Attorney General under his brother President John F. Kennedy and a participant in decisions on the U.S. role in Vietnam.

Romney said President Johnson is to be "admired" for withdrawing as a candidate for re-election, limiting the bombing of North Vietnam, and opening full debate on U.S. policy in Asia.

Grand River bus to service dorms

Conditional permission to open residence halls to the bus depot on Grand River Avenue was given by the East Lansing City Council at its Monday night meeting.

The Lansing Suburban Lines will begin operation Friday with one day of free service between 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The Council noted one condition: the bus stop behind the East Lansing bus depot on Valley Court will be used rather than the stop on Grand River Avenue.

The bus service is primarily for those students who use the travel buses that stop at the depot.

The route followed by the bus will be down Grand River Avenue to Harrison Avenue and continue to Wilson Road, stopping once at Brody Hall.

Turning left at Birch Road, the bus will go to Shaw Lane, stopping at all the residence halls.

Continuing across campus on Shaw Lane, the bus will stop at all the residence halls along the way.

TYNEC, Czechoslovakia (AP) - The body of Czechoslovakia's top investigator of Stalin era crimes was found hanging from an oak tree Tuesday, five days after he vanished on the heels of a report charging he served as judge in a Communist kangaroo court in 1955.

Police said they were "99 per cent certain" that Dr. Jozef Brestansky, 42, deputy president of the Supreme Court, was a suicide, but a fellow judge indicated he was doubtful considering Brestansky's strong character.

In Prague, the riptide of political change was still running high. A key supporter of liberalization demanded the resignation of the entire government so that "no single member of the new government could be held in doubt" by the nation.

Cestmir Cisar, speaking at a party Central Committee meeting, criticized the party for "political bossing" and said: "We are beginning to get used to living in this new atmosphere characterized by freedom of speech. We want this to be permanent."

Police investigating the Brestansky case reported a black briefcase he carried with him at the time of his disappearance Thursday had been found and said it contained a notebook, a Czech-Russian dictionary and an identity card.

Detectives said they also discovered an empty wine bottle near the tree and that they were still checking the possibility of foul play.

Prague newspapers speculated before Brestansky's body was found that he had been eliminated perhaps by agents of another country, because he knew too much about the workings of the Communist police system and Stalinist purges of the 1950's. He had openly criticized the police and demanded to see secret Interior Ministry files.

But a newspaper in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia's second largest city, claimed before Brestansky's disappearance that he presided at a 1955 trial in which officials of a chemical plant were sentenced for high treason and sabotage—the kind of trumped-up crimes the nation's reformist Communist leadership assigned him to investigate.

Judge Josef Hambalek, the friend who doubted that Brestansky could have taken his own life, said he phoned him when the article appeared. Brestansky took the news in stride, he said, but commented: "I fear all of us will be exposed to such criticism from now on."

The death was the second reported suicide in Czechoslovakia's ruling hierarchy in three weeks. Deputy Defense Minister Vladimir Janko, accused of involvement in the defection of Czech Maj. Gen. Jan Sejna to the United States was found fatally wounded in his car, and ruled a suicide.

A police search team found Brestansky's body hanging by a clothesline to an oak tree. The site about 25 miles south of Prague was a slope rising from a small creek. Lt. Col. Rudolf Pathy, chief of Prague police, kept Western newsmen about 20 yards from the body, clad in a blue raincoat, and barred photographers from photographing it.

Brestansky, his wife and two sons frequently visited the area, dotted with lakes and woods.

Brestansky vanished after police said a visitor, telling secretaries he carried secret papers,

'Alarming' ex-priest level seen in survey

NEW YORK (AP)—At least 711 Roman Catholic clergymen left the priesthood in the United States in 1966 and 1967, a survey report said Tuesday. The Catholic group which made the survey termed the findings alarming.

It was the first documented compilation of current statistics on the matter in this country.

Assembled by the National Association of Pastoral Renewal,

The departure of priests from the active ministry involves such an alarming number of men as to demand a public, fully financed study by the American bishops.

More than 108 of those who quit their religious vocations were long-time priests, ordained for 15 years or more, the report noted. Most of the rest had been priests from three to 12 years.

Of the 711 cases, 322 of the men have married, while 265 have remained single, with the status of the other 124 unreported.

They included 39 seminary professors, nine chancery officials, 34 pastors, and numerous parish assistants, campus chaplains and high school teachers.

The report was based on details of cases gathered from 300 replies to questionnaires from association members. Names and other data were cross-checked to eliminate duplication.

"Noting that many cases may have gone unreported, the association said the total was not known.

"Obviously this report is an undercount," said the Rev. Joseph Fichter, of Harvard University, a Jesuit sociologist and member of the association's advisory board.

Declaring that the findings showed the need not only for study of why men are leaving the ministry but also for a change in the Church's negative attitude toward those who do leave, the report said.

"Seven-hundred and eleven who held responsible positions in the Church cannot all be classified as 'derelicts,' a reference to a phrase in a recent bishops' pastoral letter. The decisions of such men must be respected."

The report said "survey responses indicate that in very many instances contact is lost with a man once he leaves the ministry. This loss to his community is clearly a result of present ecclesiastical procedures.

Of the 711 total, the report showed that 501 were diocesan priests and 210 were members of religious orders. For the two-year period, 228 left in 1966, while the number rose to 480 in 1967.

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

The left-handed pitching for MSU's baseball team this year can be summed up in two words—Mel Behney.

But even if there isn't quantity, MSU baseball Coach Danny Litwhiler isn't worried about his left-handed pitching at this time. The only left-handed starter Litwhiler plans to use will be Behney, and if left-handed relief pitching is needed, Behney likely will get the call also.

"I'll probably start Behney in the first game when we have our four-game weekends in the Big Ten, and if he doesn't have too much trouble, I can use him as a reliever the next day," Litwhiler said. "The only time we'll probably need left-handed relief will be at home where we've got the short right-field fence."

Behney, a junior from Verona, N.J., got a taste of what may be expected of him during the team's spring trip when he was used both as a starter and reliever, and responded with a 3-1 record. His only loss was in a relief appearance.

He said he wouldn't mind being used both ways during the Big Ten season.

"I'd like to pitch all the time if I could, and if my arm feels all right the second way, I'll be able to relieve," Behney said.

"With the Big Ten having doubleheaders on Friday and Saturday and no other league games until the next Friday I'll have five days rest each time. That'll be enough."

Behney pitched in 12 games last season, only three in relief, and finished with a 4-3 won-lost record and 2.59 earned run average.

For this season's Florida trip he had a 1.64 ERA and struck out 31 batters in 27 1/3 innings. He does not possess a wide range of pitches, but has a good fastball and curve and relies on whichever pitch is most effective on a given day.

Behney said he has always been a pitcher, even in little league days, and said his father, a former infielder and pitcher for a semi-pro team in Newark, N.J. was a strong influence on his choice of position.

"Playing two positions kind of hurt him and he said to be either an outfielder or pitcher," Behney said. "I figured outfielders are a dime a dozen and you have to hit .330."

Behney compiled a 25-3 record and was All-State in high school, leading his team to the state semi-finals two years.

The 6-3, 180 pounder was selected by the Detroit Tigers in the baseball draft last June but didn't sign and is eligible for the draft again this June. It's possible he will sign this time, but Behney said it was unlikely.

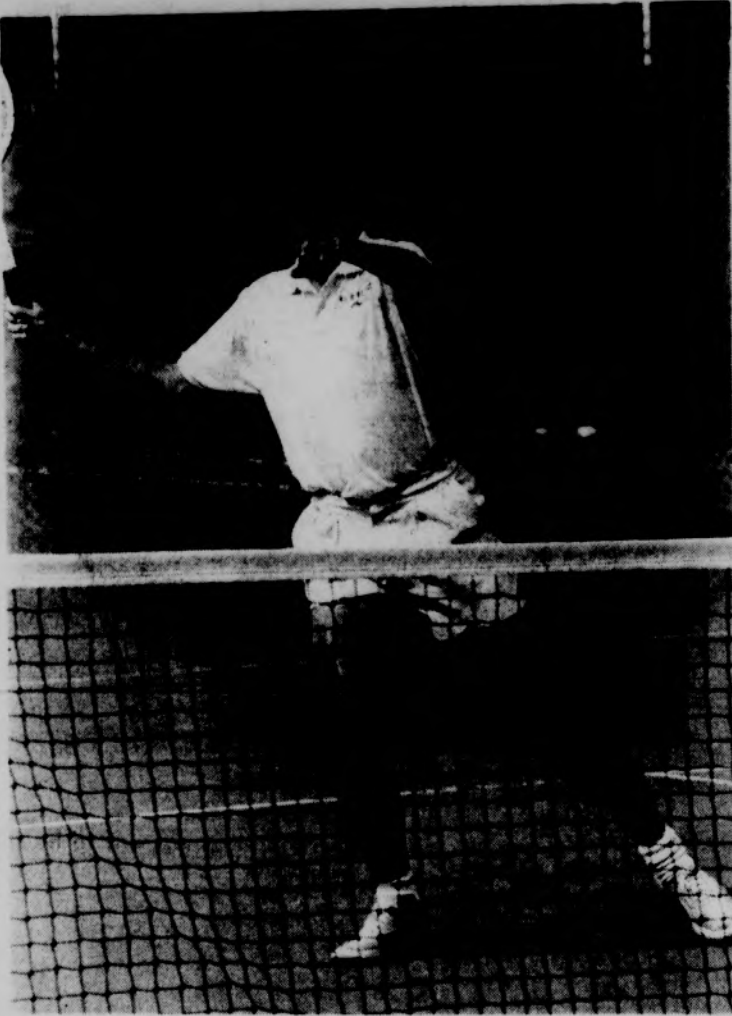

"I'd sign if they offered me enough money that I couldn't turn it down, but after talking with some other guys, that seems quite unlikely."

Behney was optimistic about the team's chances this season and, like Litwhiler, pointed out that the team has a more confident attitude after the Miami games.

Net captain Rich Monan

Tennis captain eyes '67 repeat

By GREGG LORIA
State News Sports Writer

Newly-elected tennis captain Rich Monan has some goals this season that if obtained, could spell success for the MSU netters this spring.

Monan, Coral Gables, Fla., senior, has set his sights on repeating as a member of the Big Ten champion doubles team, and also winning the Big Ten singles title.

But foremost in his mind is the successful defense of MSU's 1967 Big Ten championship.

Monan comes into his new position with a record of 35-10 in singles and 25-10 in doubles. He attended Coral Gables High School which held the state tennis championship his senior year; he was on the state champion doubles team and was the runner-up in the singles championship.

Monan quickly established himself in his sophomore year, as he became the No. 1 singles player, and also a member of the No. 1 doubles duo. Chuck Brainard supplanted Monan as the No. 1 singles player in his junior year. Monan now teams with Brainard to form the Big Ten doubles championship team.

"Actually, I'm a better doubles player than I am a singles man, and Chuck and myself work very well together," Monan said. "Doubles play really hinges on serves and volleys, and those happen to be both of our strong points. We really complement each other."

"But there is still a friendly rivalry between Chuck and myself for the No. 1 singles spot. The same rivalry exists between all the members of the team, and it really makes us stronger, giving us that fine edge," Monan added.

As of right now, Monan is looking ahead to the non-conference match with Miami, May 13. Miami is consistently one of the nation's tennis powers and former high school teammates. "As far as the Big Ten is concerned, I think Michigan will be our toughest competition, and quite likely Northwestern."

"But on the whole, the caliber of tennis play in the Big Ten is really improving and all the teams can be threats at times. I feel though, that we can definitely repeat as Big Ten champs," Monan said.

Monan said that the poor Southern trip the netters had (2-7 mark), was actually beneficial.

"We got in shape and gave most of our inexperienced players some experience. And that's what we primarily went down there for."

GAIN 5-1 WIN Tiger power stops Chicago

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI)—Willie Horton hit a home run, double and single and stole a base Tuesday in leading the Detroit Tigers to a 5-1 victory over the White Sox in Chicago's final exhibition game of the spring in Florida.

Earl Wilson pitched seven innings, yielding six singles and one earned run for Detroit, while his teammates were jumping on Joe Horlen for seven hits and three runs in the first six innings.

The loss left the White Sox with a 12-13 mark while Detroit is now 12-14.

Singles by Mickey Stanley and Don Wert plus an infield out gave the Tigers their first run in the fifth. An inning later Horton singled, stole second and scored on Jim Northrup's single. Northrup took second on the throw home and scored on Stanley's single. Horton hit his homer in the eighth of Don McMahon.

Tom McCraw singled home the only Chicago run in the sixth after Sandy Alomar had moved to second on a single and an infield out.

Chicago Symphony: interpretive

By JIM ROOS

State News Reviewer

While visiting the "Windy City" recently for a series of concerts and recordings, Conductor Leopold Stokowski said that, in his opinion, "The Chicago Symphony is the finest orchestra in the world today." Although all music lovers will not agree with such a blanket statement, as a native Chicagoan whose musical education was nourished with hundreds of concerts by the orchestra, I must admit to a little prejudice. Having been a witness to the "bad old days" when Tauno Hainikainen was "interim" conductor, the ten "golden" years with Fritz Reiner, and now the last five "rocky" years under Jean Martinon, I must say that the orchestra today appears to be in better shape than ever. At least that is the way it seemed when the great ensemble played at the Lecture-Concert series concert Monday.

Displaying those special interpretive qualities which should make Chicagoans sorrow to see him go when this season is over, Maestro Martinon opened the concert with Bizet's gentle C major Symphony. The pace was lively, yet leisure enough to permit the lovely melodies to be balanced by inner voices and subsequently reveal the true beauty of the score. Admittedly, Martinon likes to shape melodic contours with slightly exaggerated ritards and diminuendos, rather than let them unfold entirely of their own accord. In this case, however, it proved all to the good. In the graceful Adagio, for example, a pianissimo became a pianissimo rather than a mezzo-forte, and oboist Ray Still playing the little "oriental" solo reaffirmed that for him perfection has become a habit. The Tchaikovsky Rococo Variations for Cello and Orchestra that followed went less well. Martinon's Tchaikovsky has usually been stellar. He prefers to understate well-worn themes and highlight the wood-winds to achieve greater transparency. This approach works especially well in the Rococo Variations which was inspired by the composer's love for Mozart. I have seen the Martinon alchemy work in a performance of the "Variations" a few years back with Janos Starker as soloist. Monday night, however, Stephen Kates, silver medal winner in the 1966 Tchaikovsky Competition commanded the solo part, but not always with aplomb. Kates is an obviously talented young virtuoso who is on his way to soloistic stardom. However, in this performance, perhaps because of nervousness, he could not relax. There was plenty of temperament, but little repose. The most brilliant variations were rushed and his tone sounded raspy and forced by an occasionally hysterical vibrato which pushed intonation out of focus, usually just short of being flat. Martinon appeared uncomfortable with the quick pace set by his soloist and as a result soon gave up trying to articulate the orchestral part with any interest or finesse. After intermission the conductor was able to turn his attentions to Ravel, a composer for whom he displays considerable interpretive flair. The shimmering syncopations of Alborado Del Gracioso were perfectly captured in a summer light, as were the tender and delicate enchantments of the "Mother Goose Suite."

Story of Indian not Sellers' best

By STUART ROSENTHAL
Entertainment Writer

While "The Party" is not Peter Sellers' worst, it certainly fails to utilize the great comic range of the actor.

He is cast as Hrundi V. Bakshi, a bumbling Indian innocent imported by a Hollywood film czar to appear in his desert war epic. He is honorably discharged from the cast and blacklisted by the industry, after blowing up the set. Hrundi is playing his sitar when he learns that his name has been accidentally included on the guest list for the movie magnate's chic dinner party.

"The Party," then, is 99 minutes of fairly typical Sellers misadventures, beginning when his white shoe appears upon the hors d'oeuvre tray and piling sight gag upon sight gag until the entire household is nearly washed away in a flood of rampaging soap suds.

Sellers' dialect and mannerisms constitute a devastatingly accurate portrait of the Indian in America, and although he is dealing here in mere superficialities without even attempting the depth of character that he achieved in "The Bobo," his antics will recall vivid memories of the embarrassing social dilemmas which everyone has encountered.

The gags employed can best be described as a slapstick treatment of the Ernie Kovacs brand of humor, several of them are hilariously effective—the bathroom scene, for example—but the majority of them fall flat.

As in most of his pictures, Sellers' character is initially intriguing, but begins to wear on the audience after the first half hour or so. This is why his greatest portrayals have either involved sensitive subjects requiring considerable character development (like Juan Bautista in "The Bobo") or have been short, vignette portraits like Dr. Strangelove or Dr. Pratt in "The Wrong Box."

The pacing of "The Party" is uneven, which probably detracts from the film more than any other single element. Slow moving sequences are inter-spaced among turiously trantoc ones, momentarily building up the comic pitch, only to drop it suddenly, leaving a taste of incompleteness and dissatisfaction.

This particular flick was pieced together by Blake Edwards for the Mirisch Corporation, the same crew that turned out "The Pink Panther" and "A Shot in the Dark," but it falls far short of the standard set by the pair of Inspector movies.

Study at "Grandmother's" "Grandmother's" is trying another gimmick to liven the light Monday night patronage.

Henceforth, Grandmother's will be converted into a study hall every Monday night. The club is planning to procure tutors and install regular lighting for these first of the week study tables and will offer a place for students to drink while they book.

These conditions will prevail until 11 p.m., when Granny brings out her hand

Party is such sweet sorrow

Greek open rush finishes tonight

Tonight is the final night for fraternity open rush. All houses will be open. Those interested may call the houses for a ride.

Closed rush is by invitation and starts Thursday night.

The number of men rushing fraternities this term has been about 15 per cent higher than last spring term, according to Pierce Meyers, Inter-Fraternity Council president.

Dog returns as protector

Heidi was back on the job Monday, protecting a gas station after a few days of sick leave caused by a bullet wound in the head by a would-be burglar.

Heidi is a three-year-old shepherd owned by Robert Groothuis, operator of the gas station.

Republicans push final two budget bills through house man in his seat and every one voting "yes." Monday rammed through the remaining two house budget bills over the nearly unanimous opposition of minority Democrats.

By UPI

Passage of the general government and welfare bills thus wrapped up first-round consideration of the 1968-69 general fund budget. It brought the tentative total figure to $1.32 billion, nearly $13 million below Gov. Romney's recommendations.

Opponents of the bill found themselves outnumbered by senators who had prepared amendments. So, Sen. Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, majority leader, called a halt to debate after less than an hour.

A final vote now cannot come until at least Wednesday, he said. "We didn't have enough votes to protect the bill and to fend off weakening amendments," Lockwood said of the postponement.

However, Lockwood mustered enough support to defeat 13-19, a motion by Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Independence, to postpone the bill until Thursday.

The Senate finished work on its share of the 16 major appropriations bills last week, but the house sputtered and stalled on its half when Democrats demanded amendments to lift the ceiling on Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) payments and to boost funds for the Civil Rights Commission.

Those amendments lost last week and, Monday night, Republicans refused even to consider them when they were offered again.

However, Lockwood mustered enough support to defeat 13-19, a motion by Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Independence, to postpone the bill until Thursday.

Bombing area

officials refused to say where the permitted bombing area extends.

However, sources pinpointed the line as the 20th parallel.

Privately, some military and civilian officials criticized the lack of specific details in the Johnson announcement as to the extent of the area in which bombing would be allowed.

These officials contended that this omission opens the administration to charges of misleading the American public.

The North Vietnamese army newspaper hit on that theme, according to a Japanese report from Hanoi.

Defenders of the administration argued that the President was being accurate in his general description of the area which U.S. bombers may continue to strike.

High defense officials contend that the Joint Chiefs of Staff support the decision to limit the bombing.

Sources close to the chiefs do not dispute that they are supporting the decision—now that it has been made by higher authority.

But it was made clear that the chiefs have not changed their individual views which favor a heavier, rather than a lighter, bombing attack on North Vietnam.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, was reported to have told some 300 Marine officers in a speech at Quantico, Va., that he could "live with" the presidential decision.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., charged Tuesday the bombing setback ordered by President Johnson "is of no consequence and certainly not an inducement for the North to come to the conference table."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, of Montana, and some other members disagreed.

Fulbright held that, in announcing the change in bombing policy Sunday night, Johnson had left the impression that air attacks would be confined to the immediate area of the demilitarized zone between South and North Vietnam.

Since then, Fulbright said, the zone has extended more than 200 miles north of the zone.

Key system

"We wanted the keys not only to alleviate the inconvenience of having sorority members stay up late," Miss Fitch said, "but as a protective measure for the house."

Miss Fitch said alumni checked into insurance and said using keys would not affect insurance rates at all because keys would enable the house to be locked all the time for added safety.

Keys will be numbered and a weekly check of girls' keys will be made, probably at Monday night meetings. Miss Fitch said "the keys will also be printed on each key."

"If a girl loses her key, she will have 48 hours to find it," Miss Fitch said. "If she can't find it, the original $32.00 deposit will pay for a new lock and new keys."

If a sorority member never loses her key, she will be refunded the $32 when she moves from the house.

Parents were notified of the proposed change to keys through an information letter delivered over spring break. Miss Fitch said,

"any permission slips," she said, "but they were notified about keys through letters written by the alumni."

Civil rights

Members of the Human Relations Commission, who made the recommendation, said that they had heard no complaints about the penalty clause. At Monday's Council meeting, a letter was acknowledged from a citizen who was in favor of the penalties.

By changing the ordinance to provide law, all statements in the original ordinance, including open housing, would become law.
