All-'U' group for equality suggested

By JIM SCHAEFER
State News Staff Writer

In his first major public appearance as campus administrator for civil rights programs, George M. Johnson, proposed a "University-wide" equal opportunities committee that would include "every major segment" of the University community. Johnson presented the proposal in a "rough" draft of his first position paper to the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity Wednesday.

Appointed Assistant for Equal Opportunity by President Hannah in May, Johnson said he has not yet presented his ideas to Hannah, planning to refine them before presentation.

Johnson's remarks included his tentative solutions to the urgent racial problem and a preliminary proposal to extend his committee across the campus.

"I've been thinking about a university-wide equal opportunity committee," said Johnson, "to contain a representative of every major component of the University, including student organizations consistent with civil rights."

He said an executive or steering committee could do the "busy work" for the 40 or 45 member group, and a full-time co-ordinator would be needed to head it.

"It would be an organization to exchange ideas about the admission of undergraduate and graduate students, and the employment of teaching and non-teaching staff," he said.

"There's no real useful purpose in finding who to blame for the present condition," said Johnson. "What is important is a careful, frank analysis of where you are, and then the development of techniques (to solve the problem)."

Johnson also noted the need for establishing a center for race and urban affairs, as mentioned in the report by the Committee of 16.

That committee was formed in March to study solutions to the racial situation on campus.

Johnson disagreed with those questioning the "special considerations" for the Negro over other minorities in the report by the committee and in the focus of the University's response.

The reason for a "special effort, has a historical reference," Johnson said. "The Negro is the only minority brought here against his will, who for years and years has enjoyed the status of a domestic animal and been set apart."

Johnson also reviewed the events since March, 1968, when President Hannah initiated the Committee of 16 to discuss possible constructive action by the University in civil rights.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, will appear in Lansing Saturday in an effort to round up Michigan's delegates to the National Convention.

McCarthy is scheduled to speak at the Union in the afternoon. The exact time and room number will be released later.

Nixon-Romney: no team

Under strict security precautions, and late because of bad weather in both New York and Michigan, former vice president Richard M. Nixon greeted approximately 300 people many of them teenagers, packed into the Capital City Airport terminal Wednesday. Nixon then met in closed session with the 47 Michigan delegates to the GOP Convention.

Nixon said he will not seek endorsement by Gov. Romney and he has no intention of asking Romney to be a vice presidential running mate.

"I have not discussed the vice presidency with any governor. I haven't discussed it with any senator," Nixon said at a news conference in the airport terminal before meeting the delegates at the Jack Tar Hotel.

The delegation is committed to Romney as a favorite son and Romney said he hopes to keep it that way.

Only an hour before Nixon's arrival, his wife flew in from Omaha, Neb. As Secret Service men and local and state police made a pathway from the plane a 16-year-old Negro boy was grabbed only 12 feet from Mrs. Nixon with a six-inch knife blade stuffed up his sleeve.

The youth was hustled through the crowd and taken for questioning. Mrs. Nixon's reception lacked warmth; many did not recognize her despite her red, white and blue attire.

4 unions move to settle Detroit news deadlock

DETROIT (UPI) -- The long, laborious process of getting this city's two major newspapers back on the streets after a 224-day absence resumed Wednesday with one union setting a date to present a tentative agreement to its membership.

Four of six striking unions agreed Tuesday to the settlement proposed by mediator Nathan P. Feinsinger, foreshadowing the end of the longest newspaper strike in a major metropolitan area. The other two unions had begun strikes after the University of Wisconsin law professor was called in and were not included in negotiations.

The Paper and Plate Handlers Union, which agreed to the recommendations for settlement along with the photoengravers, pressmen and typographers unions, was to meet Sunday to get the ball rolling for a final secret ballot vote by union members on the new contract.

The stereotypers and mailers were expected to fall in line shortly, with non-economic matters preventing immediate accord. Feinsinger said Tuesday neither the Detroit News nor Detroit Free Press would appear on the street until all unions have signed contracts.

The settlement proposed by Feinsinger gave union men an $11 per week raise on the resumption of publication as part of the $33 package spread over the 34½ months of the pact. Starting salaries under the old contract ranged from $134 weekly for paper and plate handlers to $175 for photoengravers.

The Teamsters Union signed a new contract with both papers earlier for a $30 package increase, with a clause saying they would receive any higher settlement reached with the other unions.

Johnson appoints Fortas Court's new chief justice

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Johnson nominated his longtime close friend Justice Abe Fortas, Wednesday to succeed retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren.

And to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Court, the President picked a fellow Texan and friend, Judge Homer Thornberry of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, a member of Congress for 14 years. He, like Fortas, is a Democrat.

Fortas, 58, would if confirmed, be the first Jewish chief justice of the United States. He and Thornberry, 59, are both considered liberals, the dominant trend of the high court under Warren in recent years.

Some Republicans had indicated, when reports of Warren's retirement leaked out last Friday, that they would oppose selection of a successor by a "lame duck" president. But praise for the selection of Fortas came from Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen who called him and Thornberry able men.

Dirksen said he has no personal reservations but declined to be pinned down on whether Republicans might try to block confirmation of either man. "I just don't anticipate anything," he said.

One Republican, Rep. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the first to speak out against a president appointing a chief justice in the waning months of his term, indicated he and others may filibuster against confirmation.

If the nominations are brought up, he said, there will be "extended debate." He called his objections a matter of principle, not of personalities, and said he has considerable support in the Senate.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said of Fortas' nomination: "I imagine it meets with the approval of the court and I hope it meets with the approval of the Senate." He described Thornberry as "A fair man, a good man, a decent man."

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he would accept Warren's retirement as of the date his successor is qualified. The court is now in recess until October.

"You have won for yourself the esteem of your fellow citizens," Johnson wrote Warren. "You have served your nation with exceptional distinction and deserve the nation's gratitude."

"Under your leadership, the Supreme Court of the United States has once again demonstrated the vitality of this nation's institutions and their capacity to meet with vigor and strength the challenge of changing times. The court has acted to achieve justice, fairness and equality before the law for all people."

There was no immediate comment from Fortas on his selection.

In Austin, Tex., Thornberry said "No greater honor could come to a citizen and lawyer of this nation. My family and I are grateful."

retirement and his choice of Fortas at a White House news conference, where he signed the nominations of Fortas and Thornberry for dispatch to the Senate.

Johnson read Warren's letter dated June 13, saying he was leaving the court only for reasons of age. He is 77. Warren will continue to draw his $40,000 a year salary in retirement.

The President's reply, dated Wednesday, said he would accept Warren's retirement as of the date his successor is qualified. The court is now in recess until October.

"You have won for yourself the esteem of your fellow citizens," Johnson wrote Warren. "You have served your nation with exceptional distinction and deserve the nation's gratitude."

Vance calls for sign of easing Viet struggle

PARIS (AP) -- North Vietnam poured more troops into South Vietnam last month than ever before in a similar period during the war, the United States charged Wednesday.

Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance said a record 29,000 men crossed in May--which saw the start of the Paris peace talks--and "an abnormally high rate of infiltration" is indicated for June.

He appealed to Hanoi's delegation at the 10th session of the peace talks, which have been deadlocked from the start, for a sign that could lead to easing the struggle.

Vance said the sign could be an actual stop or some indication, direct or indirect, that a step would be taken.

Xuan Thuy, the chief North Vietnamese delegate, insisted once again that U.S. bombing must stop altogether before he will even talk about anything else.

Vance repeated that the bombing would be stopped when the time and circumstances were appropriate.

Thuy said the present time and circumstances are appropriate.

Vance retorted: "Does the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam think the circumstances are appropriate when there is no indication that any further restraint by the United States would induce North Vietnam to lower the level of violence in its part and when the record since March 31 shows that U.S. restraint has been followed by North Vietnamese escalation?"

Thuy countered that the United States is doing the escalating.

There was no sign of progress in the talks, which started May 13. William J. Jorden, the U.S. spokesman, told newsmen after a closed-door session of more than four hours.

Demonstrators' 'U' hearings postponed

The Student-Faculty Judiciary decided Wednesday night to postpone the hearings of six students arrested during the spring term finals week demonstrations until after their court trials.

A statement issued by the Judiciary said: "It is the opinion of the Student-Faculty Judiciary that the hearings of the six students who are alleged to have disrupted the normal and orderly operation of the University be postponed at the present time. After each student's case has been disposed of at the trial court level the Judiciary will convene as soon as possible and continue with the hearings under the proceedings outlined in the Academic Freedom Report."

Trudeau victory hailed as unity endorsement

TORONTO (AP) -- Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's solid election victory is being hailed as an endorsement of his "One Canada" policy and a repudiation of those who advocate a special status for Quebec.

His strong showing in French-speaking Quebec was regarded as especially significant since provincial officials were supporting the rival Conservative party and Quebec separatists had made the Liberal leader a target for demonstrations.

Trudeau, a French-Canadian himself, had stressed national unity as the major issue during the campaign and had insisted that Canada must maintain a strong federal government while providing for bilingualism.

The Liberals took 55 of Quebec's 74 parliamentary seats as compared to four by Robert Stanfield's Conservatives. One of the victims of the pro-Liberal tide was Stanfield's Quebec lieutenant, Marcel Fari-bault, who had urged a two-nation policy.

Nationwide the Liberals took 154 of the 264 seats in the House of Commons, giving the country its first majority government since 1962. The Conservatives won 71, a result which former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker called "a calamitous disaster." The New Democratic party took 23 seats, but lost its top leaders, and the Quebec based Creditiste party won 15, largely on economic issues.

The Toronto Star's Ottawa correspondent, Peter C. Newman, said that both English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians had "cast their ballots for the only party leader who was able to state and reiterate -- a clear and firm position on the French-English dilemma." He said the Liberal victory was clearly a mandate to settle the national unity crisis.

Editorially, the Star said:

"It is fair to say that the people of Quebec have shown that they want to continue as a nation rather than turn into the sort of loose federation envisaged by Mr. Fari-bault and those who share his views."

The London Ont. Free Press said the election results show "Quebec wants to preserve Canada."

St. Peter's bones genuine

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI said Wednesday bones found beneath St. Peter's Basilica 18 years ago have been identified, "in a manner we can think of as convincing," as those of the apostle St. Peter.

The Pope made the announcement three days before the close of the Roman Catholic Church's year of faith, honoring the martyrdom of St. Peter and St. Paul.

Addressing thousands of pilgrims at his weekly general audience, Pope Paul said: "We have reason to believe that the few but sacrosanct mortal remains of the prince of apostles have been traced."

He indicated that the remains—fragments of bone and skull plus a bit of purple cloth with golden thread—would be objects of special veneration.

His statement seemed sure to stir even more controversy over the disputed remains. The Pope acknowledged this himself.

"Research, checking, discussion and polemics will not cease with this happy announcement," he said.

The Pope did not disclose what, if any, new evidence had been offered as proof of authenticity.

The fragments were unearthed in 1950 after a decade of archaeological excavation under the confessional altar in St. Peter's Basilica, the largest church in Christendom.

Pope Pius XII announced the discovery, but said at the time the origin of the relics could not be ascertained.

Arguments in support of the theory that the bones were those of St. Peter came in the following years from Margarita Guarducci, a professor of archeology at the University of Rome.

She challenged an earlier and widely held belief that skull fragments in St. John Lateran Basilica, across Rome from the Vatican, were those of Peter and Paul.

She declared the remains found under St. Peter's were Peter's bones without doubt.

She cited the husky frame of the apostle as a determining factor in the identification.

Red Cedar rises to flooding point

When the rains come like they have for the past three days, the Red Cedar River rises to the occasion by flooding.

The river passed its flood level of seven feet Wednesday afternoon. The U.S. Weather Bureau reported that they expected a rise of 2 to 2 1/2 feet above flood level by Wednesday night.

The Weather Bureau expected the flood waters to reach a crest by midnight Wednesday and said that further flood danger is unlikely.

In the meantime, the rains and the floods caused problems all over campus.

The University police said there were no power failures because of the rain but that there were more minor property damage reports than usual.

Howard Wilson, associate director of the Physical Plant, said that the rains had extensively flooded the large lawn areas south of the Auditorium and on the north side of the river near the bridge by the Women's Intramural Bldg.

According to Wilson, the only buildings under construction on campus that are in danger of damage are the Speech and Hearing Bldg. and the Pesticide Research Clinic.

The last time the Red Cedar River flooded was March 31, 1960, Wilson said. At that time, the water reached a level of 9.2 feet at the Farm Lane Bridge and 10.8 feet at the bridge near the Women's Intramural Bldg.

According to Robert Feyrabend, site construction foreman in the Grounds Maintenance and Site Construction Dept., about 50 trees on campus have been damaged beyond repair and will have to be removed.

"The main problem with the flooding is that the drains and tiles can't take the water away fast enough," he explained.

About 100 Grounds Maintenance men are working to clean the debris left by the rains. Feyrabend indicated that the men would first concentrate on removing safety hazards and would work on general clean-up later.

Dope ring smashed, heroin fortune seized

NEW YORK (AP) — Narcotics sleuths on both sides of the Atlantic were credited Wednesday with smashing a huge, international dope smuggling ring and seizing $22.4 million worth of heroin hidden in a French-made automobile which had been shuttled back and forth across the ocean.

In Washington Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark called it the largest single seizure of heroin in the nation's history.

Five men were arrested, one in New York and four in Paris. Police in the French capital said one of their captives admitted that the ring in the past three years smuggled 730 kilograms of heroin into the United States — $146 million worth.

Authorities said this was enough dope to supply 60,000 addicts for a year.

Six other men were being sought in France as members of the ring, including an unidentified banker said to have financed the operation.

The ring was said to have imported morphine and the other raw materials for heroin from the Middle or Far East, processed it in France, then exported it to the United States. A hunt was on overseas for the processing laboratory.

The vehicle for smuggling the dope was a metallic gray Citroen, a French car that had made seven round trips across the Atlantic aboard ships, registered each time under a different name.

The car was shipped the last time from Le Havre and seized after it had been unloaded in New York April 24.

Police said 224 small sacks containing 112 kilograms of heroin were found in a dummy gas tank, in body posts, under fenders and in the frame.

The original gas tank had been supplemented by a small auxiliary tank so the main tank could be used to store the narcotics. It was necessary to refuel the car often and that heightened police suspicion that the frequency with which the car was crossing the Atlantic.

Arthur Benvenuto, 63, New York, a naturalized American, was arrested April 26 at the French Line's Pier 88 on the Hudson River. The Bureau of Narcotics said the car was being delivered to him and that he was in charge of its unloading.

Benvenuto awaits a hearing on narcotics charges under the Import-Export Act. The maximum penalty is 20 years in prison.

Meanwhile, French police arrested four men whom they had under surveillance. Among them were Jacques Bousquet, 55, and Andre Mahibert, 39, described as leaders of the ring.

Authorities quoted Bousquet as saying the smuggling operation had been under way since July, 1965.

Others arrested were Rene Guigi, 47, and Paul Mestressat, 47, named among couriers who had accompanied the car on transatlantic crossings.

Police said Guigi admitted making two trips for which he was paid $20,000, while Mestressat was quoted as saying he received $10,000 for one trip.

"If we can make some more people say what we've been saying all along, it's more likely to come to pass," Wallace said.

He also stressed that he has not discussed politics with representatives of either major party and would not support any of their candidates even if he himself was not in the race.

Viet troops advance by jungle to Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. military sources, who expect another major ground attack on Saigon early in July, reported Wednesday that two North Vietnamese regiments are slipping through the jungles toward the capital.

To counter the threat of an enemy troop buildup, U.S. and South Vietnamese troops swept around the city and U.S. B52 bombers hammered again at suspected enemy positions north and west of Saigon.

A U.S. intelligence officer said the 32nd and 33rd North Vietnamese regiments—possibly 5,800 men—moved out of their central highlands headquarters and were 74 miles north of Saigon in Phuoc Long Province five days ago.

The two regiments contain veteran troops who fought in the bloody Ia Drang Valley campaign of 1965. Both have been inactive for about a year while refitting. Their normal headquarters is west of Pleiku along the Cambodian border. Intelligence reports indicated they moved through Cambodia and then crossed the border.

The Air Force B52s made 10 more strikes late Tuesday and Wednesday in the three provinces north and west of Saigon in an effort to break up enemy troop concentrations and to blow up supplies.

The raids concentrated on enemy base camps and river loading points in Binh Long, Binh Duong and Tay Ninh provinces, west and south of Phuoc Long. They are considered the enemy's main infiltration routes from Cambodia.

The river installations, 15 to 20 miles from the Cambodian border, are where rockets destined for use against Saigon are loaded on sampans after being shipped through Laos and Cambodia from North Vietnam.

B52s have flown more than 100 missions within a 75-mile radius of Saigon in the last two weeks. Prisoner interrogations and captured documents have indicated enemy plans for a third offensive on Saigon. It is expected to be as big as the attacks launched by about 10,000 enemy soldiers May 5.

The only significant ground action Wednesday was 19 miles southwest of Saigon where American 9th Infantry Division soldiers reported they killed 42 more North Vietnamese in the same area of the Mekong Delta where they have been hunting three companies of enemy troops for three days.

Officers said American casualties were 11 killed and 35 wounded in an action that broke off at mid-afternoon. Earlier this week, 9th Division troops reported killing 41 and 46 of the enemy in two separate clashes in the area.

The restricted air war over North Vietnam's panhandle Tuesday saw 128 strike missions by U.S. planes. Headquarters reported that "the southward flow of material remained the top priority."

Returning pilots said they destroyed or damaged 13 trucks, seven bridges, five supply boats and three warehouses.

The U.S. Command announced the loss of two American planes to enemy ground fire in South Vietnam but all personnel were saved. A Marine A4 fighter-bomber was downed northwest of Khe Sanh and a four-engine Air Force C130 transport was shot down in Tay Ninh Province 50 miles northwest of Saigon.

The Marine pilot bailed out of the A4 and five crewmen and two passengers aboard the $2.5-million C130 escaped before the plane was destroyed by fire.

In the Mekong Delta, allied troops overran a Viet Cong prison camp and freed 25 South Vietnamese prisoners, the U.S. Navy announced.

A military spokesman said the Viet Cong killed four prisoners and wounded eight others "when their release appeared imminent."

Tax bill awaits LBJ signature

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson reported Wednesday he thinks he will sign the bill in the next day or two. The bill Congress passed to raise $10 billion in taxes and trim spending by $6 billion.

The President said, too, that he is unable to predict but that he would hope Congress would give him legislation he submitted Tuesday for registration of every gun in the nation and the licensing of every gun owner.

Taxes and guns were two of the topics that came up at a presidential news conference that focused on the Supreme Court.

An assortment of subjects was sprinkled through the session but there was little positive information on any of them.

Johnson said he is unable to evaluate reasons for intensified Communist pressure on West Berlin. Nor did he wish to evaluate Soviet-American relations at this point. He did say he has no plans for a summit session with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin or a trip to the Soviet Union and knows of no basis for rumors about either.

There are rumors also that Johnson might visit Latin America later going to HemisFair 1968 in San Antonio, Tex., in July.

Asked whether he could pin the rumors down one way or the other, the President answered, "When I can I will. I wouldn't deal in rumors very much, if I were you."

EDITORIAL

Of alarmism and threats

When it first became known that the House was considering a concurrent resolution to reduce appropriations to Michigan universities in proportion to student demonstrators not expelled, the first reaction was, "They're being facetious."

But never underestimate the Michigan Legislature!

With 61 sponsors, the bill passed in the House Tuesday and is pending in the Senate. Hopefully, the Senate will have more sense.

The question in this case is not whether demonstrators should or should not be expelled, but rather, who has the right to take such action. If the present bill achieves final approval, that right, in effect, is taken from the hands of the University and given to the legislature.

The State of Michigan has, for each of its three major state supported universities, a duly constituted—and popularly elected—body of officers having "general supervision of its institution." (Michigan Constitution). At MSU, we have our Board of Trustees, at Wayne State University the Board of Governors, and at the University of Michigan there is the Board of Regents.

In addition, most universities have their own type of administrative and judicial processes by which to judge who should or should not attend. MSU has its Academic Freedom Report which states guidelines, through a due process, which would properly determine the penalty for given types of illicit behavior. A dichotomous, "good-bad," categorization of students, as the legislature proposes, does not allow for due process.

The state legislature, however, undoubtedly in response to the Columbia fiasco and what went on in France, has turned to alarmism and the infringement of academic rights in an attempt to limit such outbursts in Michigan.

Rep. Stanley J. Davis, D-Grand Rapids and one of the strongest sponsors of the resolution, stated, "It's something to help students who want to go to college." His logic is a little mysterious. The bill proposes that $1,300 be reduced from a college's appropriation per disruptive student. Without that money, how will the college be able to support more students?

Getting its finger in every university pie possible is not the way to increase enrollment.

The legislature seems to have little concept of what "education" means. It is not "molding." It is not "retaining the status quo." It is innovation and creativity—and thus questioning of the status quo.

Granted, this should not entail unruly disruption of life, but if the legislature is really interested in improving our world, it would not attempt to simply uproot the dissidents, but rather to guide them into the established and considered routes for change. The self-righteous threat is far inferior to the judicious encouragement of proper behavior.

Furthermore, the reduction in appropriations would not affect the disruptive individual. It would affect the university as a whole. And this the "undesireable" could care less about, but the "desireable" will suffer from.

The legislature should aim at a positive target instead of a negative non-target. It should preserve the rights of all involved, and not infringe unnecessarily the rights of an academic institution and the majority of its members to punish the few in its midst. That punishment will be handled quite capably by the individual institutions themselves.

Lushwell's long, long season

Nobody else wanted to pitch. The famed State News softball team, the summer activity of the Lushwell Athletic Club, was faced with its first big test of the season—a game against some dangerous newcomers to the campus who called themselves the Prime Roots. Even the name sounded vicious.

"Aren't they a bunch of high school kids from the science convention?" asked right-fielder-in-chief Ed Brill.

"Don't you believe it," I cautioned him. "It's just a front for the baseball team. Every major league scout in the country will be at this game."

Long before game time, the fans started arriving at beautiful IM Field No. 5. They seemed to sense somehow that this was no ordinary softball game. One of them called out to me as I took my warm-up tosses with battery mate Gayel Wesch:

"Give up, ya bums. Ya haven't gotta chance."

I looked over at the sidelines. Just as I suspected—a reporter from the Michigan Daily. I spat in his direction.

The umpire called "Play ball!" and I delivered the first pitch of the game. It was a pitch of my own invention called the gutterball. Feeling out every pitch, the lead-off batter finally grounded out to the second baseman.

"We've got 'em now," shouted sports editor Tom Brown, known to his teammates as Tommy Ballgame.

I warned the team against overconfidence, quoting the age-old maxim that the game isn't over until the last man is out. But it did no good, and the Prime Roots exploded for five runs before we could halt their drive.

Lushwell rallied for three runs in our half of the first inning, but it was too late. Gaining momentum as they went, the future major leaguers outscored us, 17-11. In my locker room speech after the game, I expressed my disappointment with the results. After all, I told the team, "If you don't stop 'em in the first inning, you may not stop 'em at all."

But there was nothing to do now except think about the future. No use looking back. Long after my teammates had gone I sat in the locker room, pounding my fist into my glove and thinking... just thinking. Finally I went back out on the desert

What did they expect him to do? Cut himself off from the delegates and party and become an uphill, lonely runner, much like McCarthy and Nelson Rockefeller?

my own man, even if it splits the Administration and the party and throws the election to Richard Nixon." Lyndon is adamant. So Hubert resigns as Vice President, with the triumphant message to McCarthy, "now we can both start from scratch."

There is another smoking-out operation going on, that of Nixon by Rockefeller, but few liberals seem interested in the struggle to get a liberal Republican nominated. Nixon's hold on the nomination is even stronger than Humphrey's, and his chance of being dislodged is even slimmer. Yet, I wouldn't write off either Rockefeller or McCarthy.

The Republican situation is that Nixon is surer of his party's support, but Rockefeller would get a strong Democratic vote, especially against Humphrey. The Democratic situation is that Humphrey faces a party defection, but would get a strong Republican vote to make up for it. McCarthy would have an even more serious party defection than Humphrey, but would get the Republican peace vote, especially against Nixon. Thus, the ideal November confrontations would be Humphrey against Rockefeller or McCarthy against Nixon. Either of them would give the voters a clearer choice of policies than seems in prospect now.

Rockefeller, who has counted on the support of liberal Republicans, was shocked at Sen. Mark Hatfield's declaration of support for Nixon. He couldn't understand, he said, the "marriage" between Dove Hatfield and Hawk Nixon. Hatfield said he had been given the benefit of a "private talk" with Nixon and was satisfied that he knew how to end the war. This kind of private knowledge may also have been behind the Bill Moyers interview about Humphrey's independent stand on the war, and Moyers is in a far better position to know about what Humphrey really has thought than Hatfield is to know about Nixon.

But what we need for both candidates is not private but public knowledge of what they think, not so much about the past but about the present and future—how to make peace now and what to do about violence in the cities. It was sad that Humphrey's speech on a frame of order for the cities should have been blacked out by questions about a break with President Johnson on the war.

It is also sad that McCarthy, who is not in Humphrey's bind about the war and can speak out even for unilateral withdrawal, has not yet established himself as more than a one-issue man. It was Robert Kennedy's strength that his appeal did not rest on the war issue alone. He had a strong Negro base, a strong support from whites and blacks for his approach to the inner city and an identification with the poor—none of which McCarthy seems to have. Even this didn't persuade the delegates to trust Kennedy for the Presidency, because they saw him—as many did—as a polarizing candidate.

I regard McCarthy as a low-keyed, anti-hero, conciliating candidate, but I suspect that most of the delegates see him as a one-issue, polarizing figure, while they see Humphrey from an overall viewpoint as a coalition candidate. That is what McCarthy must grapple with, and that is what he will have to overcome.

RED CEDAR REPORT

By JIM DEFOREST

EDITOR'S NOTE: With this "Red Cedar Report", Jim DeForest revives a feature he wrote several years ago for the State News. DeForest is currently a teacher in Lansing and a part-time graduate student.

If you want an example of poor job security, consider a paperboy for a Detroit newspaper.

A popular definition of a liberal is "a person who seeks a re-distribution of wealth." This definition also fits that of a bandit.

Many people have wondered why MSU chose the Spartan symbol for a mascot. One merely has to look at the amount of the legislature's appropriation for this institution to find the answer.

We heard that Richard Nixon was worried about Ronald Reagan's rise in popularity so much that he sent the Governor of California a recording of "You Ought to be in Pictures."

Consider picking likely—or unlikely—campaign songs for the candidates: George Wallace—"Dixie" (what else?), Gene McCarthy—music from the "Mr. Clean" commercial, Richard Nixon—"The Second Time Around," Nelson Rockefeller—"It's Later Than You Think," Hubert Humphrey—"Sounds of Silence," and finally, Harold Stassen—"Mission Impossible."

The new Prime Minister of Canada, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, is a bachelor playboy. He wears the latest fashions, drives brightly colored convertibles, and dates beautiful girls. Could you imagine our chief executive doing this? A senator or congressman acting in such a way would be surely investigated. The only persons in our government who could do something like this is an occasional Supreme Court Justice.

You can always spot a grad student. Uniforms are easily noticed.

OUR READERS' MINDS

Bus service??

To the Editor:

I'm disgusted with the price and schedule of bus service on campus this summer.

Paying the same price as previous terms, the student should expect at least comparable service—not one bus per route running once every 25 minutes. The number of buses and/or frequency of runs should increase or the price of the bus pass should be reduced in relation to service rendered.

The summer schedule sacrifices the usefulness to the student for the economical rate of one run every 25 minutes. This requires some users to catch their bus half an hour before class to not be late (even when their class is a 6-12 minute ride from the stop). Whoever scheduled the 7:58 a.m. departures from Hubbard and Spartan Village either didn't look at a class schedule or thought lots of commuters like to be late to class or have breakfast at the Union before the 9 o'clock rush. But then, you can be at your stop by 7:30 a.m. and be at your 8 o'clock 20 minutes early! Or walk!

Either way, they're running fewer buses less often because fewer students buy passes and ride. At $14 per pass and a schedule just right for sight-seeing rather than going to class, I know of one student who won't waste $14 and still walk to his 8 o'clock from a BUS STOP.

Mediocre architecture

To the Editor:

Michigan State is today one of the nation's outstanding universities because of the constant quest "To be number one." Whether in athletics, scholarship, or community programs we have made fantastic achievements that other universities can only hope to duplicate.

However, in architecture, complacency has and is undermining our achievements. Mediocrity has become the accepted norm. Here our bleak and dismal structures prevent our university from even claiming a second or third best when compared to the great buildings by Eero Saarinen, Alden Dow, and Minoru Yamasaki that proudly stand on the campuses of Wayne State and the U-M. In contrast, practically every recent structure on our campus can be called literally dead, empty from any meaning or aesthetics related to any human society. The men who design these buildings are definitely not architects but merely unenlightened engineers whose lack of artistry is equalled by a computer.

It is time for this University to start achieving in the architecture of our physical plant even at the necessary expense of changing the men who make these decisions. For not only does our campus deprive pride and dignity from the university community, but also gives the philistine impression to all who may come to view our campus.

Up-Bound goal: uncover identities know who they are, not necessarily if they go on to college, Alex J. Cade, director of the program, told the Faculty Club Tuesday.

Cade said that although the purpose of the program is to elevate the academic achievement level of these students while in high school, thus enabling them to go on to college, the most important thing is finding a sense of identity for each student.

The federally sponsored program brings 65 high school students to MSU during the summer "to expose them to a college environment and to college-educated people as well as exposing them to students of their own age from different backgrounds," Cade said.

The program has been in existence nationally since 1965 and since 1966 here at MSU. Although the government pays $1,250 per student for each to attend the six-week program, Cade said that MSU had provided $20,000 for the program this summer so that they were able to bring a total of 94 students here.

The 65 students provided for by the Federal grant are housed in Snyder-Phillips Hall. The remaining students, however, are housed in the homes of faculty members in East Lansing and the surrounding area. The faculty members volunteered to house the students according to Cade and "the students seem to be quite happy in this situation," he said.

"They attend classes approximately six hours a day, have scheduled appointments with counselors twice a week and then participate in planned activities such as visiting museums, attending plays and spending a weekend at a camp," Cade said.

When the six-week program is over the Program then follows them through their freshman year of college, aiding them in acquiring financial assistance given every student who has graduated from high school and participated in our program," he said.

Those students who are juniors during their summer program and are still in high school during the school year after the Program, return to MSU each Saturday for instruction by the same tutors and a skeleton staff of teachers. Once a term, Cade added, the whole group has a get-together at MSU where they plan a party or outing.

"Upward Bound helps each student improve his future performance in high school and thereby make his college career a practical choice," Cade said.

Prof sees votes as chief party goal

By CHRIS MEAD
State News Staff Writer

Political parties are out to get votes, an MSU faculty member told a group of women meeting here for Campus Week for Women in Hubbard Hall.

"All other purposes are way down on the priority list," said Alvin E. House, assistant professor of agricultural economics and staff member of the cooperative extension service.

Unique system
"We have a unique party system in the country," House said. While most countries have a political system made of several often unstable parties, third parties have had very little role in the United States, he said.

Another difference in American parties as compared to political parties in other countries is that parties in the United States do not have strong ideological or programmatic commitment, he explained.

In Europe and particularly in France, political parties are founded on a particular cause, House said. When the cause is either met or dies out, the party dies out, he said.

Loose structure
In the United States, he said, the party structure is looser and self-perpetuating because it does not cling to any one ideology.

"The first test of the congressman in pursuit of re-election is his skill at running errands for the folks back home, House said. "In this respect, party loyalty is of low priority," he added.

"There is an absence of a deep commitment to politics as a way of living and doing public business in the United States," House said.

Party like umbrella
According to House, American political parties not only avoid rigid adherence to ideology, they are made up of many divergent interest groups. He compared the party to an umbrella under which several groups of people with different interests congregate.

"Our parties serve to give some order, form and moderation to a political process which is essentially a relentless conflict among groups of men with contradictory interest," House said. "Our parties bring the struggle under control," he explained.

In an age of centralization, the political party in the United States still remains completely decentralized, House said. The party power base is still found in the counties and the congressional districts and not in upper party echelons, he said.

Grass roots needed
House cited the need for more grass roots participation in politics.

"The highest we've ever gotten in a presidential election is 63 per cent of the registered voters. We're lucky to get 45 per cent in a Congressional election," he said.

Looking to the future, House said that he expected increased party power in the county at the expense of city governments. He also said that the township is rapidly dying out as a party unit.

The party is not strictly a partisan unit, House explained. "The politician himself is not partisan beyond the election. After election he looks to the people who can feather his nest."

Politicians do indeed make strange bedfellows in the party system, according to House. He cited an example in Michigan where two party lobby groups, a temperance society and a race horse lobby teamed up to oppose legalization of dog races. The temperance society was against both forms of racing, he said, but in order to work against one, it had to join the other.

NAACP files hunger suit

NEW YORK (AP)—The Legal Defense and Education Fund of the NAACP and the Citizen's Advocate Center said they were filing suit Wednesday in U.S. District Court, Washington, charging Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman with "wholesale failure" to effectively alleviate hunger among the poor.

The suit was being filed in conjunction with the Poor People's Campaign, according to Leroy Clark of the NAACP, and Edgar Cahn, director of the center.

The complainants said their attorneys will seek a temporary restraining order to halt return of $227 million by the Dept. of Agriculture to the U.S. Treasury.

They are asking the court to prevent Freeman from returning such funds to the Treasury "until the purpose for which the funds are made available have been substantially fulfilled."

MSU Soaring Club will be flying Thursday through Sunday, weather permitting. All active and prospective members should meet at Dot's Discount at 12:30 p.m. on Thursday and Friday and 10 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Summer rain gives IM pain

Like most everyone else, Intramural Asst. Larry Sierra has had to reschedule games twice already this week because of the recent weather situation, and he's got a very good reason—rainy weather means more work for him.

Sierra, along with Intramural Director Frank Beeman, must decide whether or not to postpone intramural softball games during inclement weather and once the games have been postponed it's up to Sierra to reschedule them.

Tiger pair All-Star starters

NEW YORK (UPI)—Carl Yastrzemski, who led Boston's miracle Red Sox to a pennant last season, and Bill Freehan, a leader in the assault to end a 23-year pennant drought in Detroit this year, head the American League All-Star team announced today by Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert.

Yastrzemski, the Boston left fielder who won the American League's most valuable player award last season after winning the Triple Crown, received 246 of a possible 252 votes and Freehan, the Tiger catcher, polled 248 of 251 possible votes to lead in the balloting of American League players, managers and coaches.

Three holdovers from last year's starting team join Yastrzmski and Freehan on the 1968 squad which will attempt to snap a record five-year National League winning streak when the teams meet July 9 at the Houston Astrodome.

Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota, who nipped Baltimore's Boog Powell by 10 votes in the closest balloting for any position, will be at first base again while teammate Rod Carew repeats as second baseman.

Baltimore's Brooks Robinson, having one of his worst seasons at the plate, still managed to outpoll Cleveland's Max Alvis to repeat as third baseman.

Jim Fregosi of California, who played the last 11 innings of last year's 15th inning 2-1 National League victory, was an easy victor over Chicago's Luis Aparicio to complete the infield.

Frank Howard of Washington and Detroit's Willie Horton, the league's two leading home run producers with 24 and 18 respectively, join Yastrzmski in the outfield. Ironically, all are left fielders but were able to be chosen since all outfielders are grouped together in the voting.

Texan appointed to Supreme Court

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) -- President Johnson telephoned one of the Texas Democrats he knows best Wednesday morning and said: "Homer, I'm sending in your name."

"I was just overwhelmed," Judge Homer Thornberry of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said.

President Kennedy named Thornberry who still held Lyndon Johnson's old congressional seat after 15 years, to the U.S. district court for the Western District of Texas in 1963.

President Johnson appointed him to the circuit court in 1965. Johnson called him Tuesday night and said he was being considered.

Thornberry does not classify himself as a liberal or conservative. "I think a judge has to look at the law as it is and should be --and does what he thinks right," he said.

Others have called him a liberal. He was a member of special three-judge federal courts that ruled the Texas poll tax unconstitutional 1966 and knocked out the Texas disturbing the peace law 1968, calling the latter too vague.

After service on the Austin City Council, he succeeded Johnson in the U.S. House when Johnson moved over to the Senate.

E.Lansing may OK liquor sales

A resolution amending the city liquor in East Lansing has been approved by the East Lansing City Council.

The resolution is now being considered by the governor who checks all proposed city charter amendments for legality and correct form.

If the amendment is then approved by the voters, alcoholic beverages could be sold in hotels and restaurants with more than 50 sleeping rooms, a public dining room and a general kitchen.

Alcohol could also be sold in private clubs and restaurants that have accommodations for more than 50 diners. Packaged liquors could be sold in stores "where the same are not consumed on the premises."

Alcoholic beverages would be permitted in any establishment that might be annexed to the city if they were licensed before annexation.

Before the city could become "wet," residents must vote to approve consumption of liquor by the glass under Liquor Control Commission laws.

To put the second question on the ballot, a petition must be signed by at least "35 per cent of the total number of votes cast for all candidates for the office of secretary of state" in the last general election. The petition must be completed 60 days prior to the date of the election.

The movement to amend the charter was begun when developers of a proposed $8 million hotel-apartment-business complex claimed they couldn't build in East Lansing unless they could serve liquor. The East Lansing Chamber of Commerce noted that the complex would turn over nearly $21,000 in annual revenue to the city.

The proposed amendment as it would appear on the ballot states:

"Shall Section 18.1 (Alcoholic Beverages) of the City of East Lansing, which prohibits the sale of alcoholic beverages in East Lansing, be amended to permit the sale of alcoholic beverages in hotels and motels of more than 50 rooms, clubs and restaurants for more than 50 diners, package stores and in establishments in areas hereinafter annexed to the City which have been previously licensed to sell alcoholic beverages by the State of Michigan?"

MHA open house proposal sent to faculty committee

By AIMEE PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

Amendments to the present open house policy and changes in the present regulations for mixed student groups policy have been proposed by Men's Halls Assn. (MHA) and were considered by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs Tuesday.

MHA proposed four changes for residence hall open houses which, if passed, would delete certain sections of the present policy. These deletions include: —limiting the time periods of open houses to no longer than three hours on Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday.

—regulating attire for the open house and appearance of the houses and rooms as defined by the governing council.

—requirement of open doors for "unobstructed entry" if members of the opposite sex are in the room.

—coverage for the open house as decisions of the administration and governing council.

"We have two criticisms of the present open house policy: the definition of 'open house' is too narrow, and the present policy is not the best fit to the desired nature of social regulations under the Academic Freedom Report," the rationale for amendment reads.

The proposed amendments were referred to a subcommittee headed by Robert F. Unkefer.

The amendments to the mixed student groups policy concerned what MHA felt were inconsistencies of the policy with the Academic Freedom Report.

In the report of the "reasons for review" of the policy, the report cites two sections of the Academic Freedom Report which are violated by various areas of the policy. Sec. 1.5.02 states: "There shall be no regulation unless there is a demonstrable need for it which is reasonably related to the basic purposes and necessities of the University as stipulated herein."

MHA's report states that "certain sections (of the policy) are out of date in this modern University community; others have become unnecessary due to changes within the University structure; still others reflect the changing attitudes of all the generations that make up this community."

Sec. 1.5.05 of the Academic Freedom Report states that: "Every Regulation shall be as brief, clear and specific as possible." MHA holds in its report that the mixed student group policy "is anything but 'brief, clear and specific.'"

In its amendments, MHA deleted "suggestions," University policies which are relevant but already stated somewhere else, references to non-existent groups (specifically the Social Affairs Committee), references to out-of-date or outmoded procedures and policies inconsistent with the Academic Freedom Report.

In the conclusion to their report, MHA states that "the most sensible method of revision for this particular policy is to amend by substitution... one would benefit most by starting from the beginning and completely rewrite the policy from the title to the registration form."

In other action, the Faculty Committee accepted letters on proposed amendments to the Academic Freedom Report concerning "good faith grades." This is in relation to Art. 2.1.4.9 dealing with the responsibility of the instructor in giving an individual grade that represents his "good-faith judgment of the student's performance in the course."

The question of "good faith" grades was brought up in letters from John D. Wilson, asst. provost, and John A. Yunk, professor of English.

"The Academic Freedom Report is vague in establishing the types of procedures that the college should employ in resolving the question of 'good faith grades,'" Eldon R. Nonnamaker, associate dean of students, said.

The proposed amendments were referred to a subcommittee headed by Theo H. Coleman, professor of poultry science.

In other action, a letter from Clair L. Taylor, associate director of graduate admissions, concerning the Council of Graduate Students (COGS) was accepted and referred to Coleman's subcommittee. The letter raised one question of where the graduate student fits into the Academic Freedom Report.

An annual report of the Faculty Committee will be prepared within the next week concerning changes in the operational structure of the committee and will be considered at their next meeting on July 10.

JET CRASH

Investigation blocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet officials in East Berlin blocked U.S. investigation of a 1966 jetliner crash which might have yielded important safety information, the National Transportation Safety Board disclosed Wednesday.

The board said Soviet authorities:

1. Denied its investigators access to the scene of the Nov. 15, 1966 crash of a Pan American World Airways Boeing 727 cargo jet about 10 miles southwest of Berlin's Tegel airport, in which all three crew members were killed.

2. Two days after the accident, released the bodies and returned part of the wreckage, later determined to amount to less than 50 per cent of the total aircraft.

The board listed 12 major items as among the missing parts. The most significant were the cockpit voice recorder, which taped the last half-hour of conversation of the crew, and the flight recorder which contained tape data on the plane's altitude, speed, course and rate of descent.

These devices, introduced into general use only in recent years, are well cushioned and insulated and strategically located to withstand shock and heat. In many cases they have provided vital information as to the causes of air transport accidents in which there were no survivors.

Also missing were cockpit instruments, including navigation and communication equipment together with the flight engineer's panel, the board said.

Safety board representatives said none of the missing material had any conceivable value to the Soviets. It was of the type that has been in use on U.S.-manufactured equipment for considerable periods. Soviet experts must have had many opportunities to inspect such devices in normal service, they added. Efforts to recover additional material were unsuccessful.

Board staff members said it is rare for a country to bar U.S. investigators from taking part in or at least observing an on-the-scene study of the wreckage of an American-built plane, or to deny them access to the material at the crash scene.

By agreement among the more than 100 nations belonging to the International Civil Aviation Organization, official observers are invited to such investigations on a reciprocal basis, to further the cause of aviation safety. Soviet Russia does not belong to the organization, but has said it is exploring the possibility of joining.

In the East Berlin accident, the safety board was anxious to recover the cockpit recorder because of information as to crew comment as to why the flight path was low.

Investigators said there might have been a link with four fatal 727 accidents within a six-month period in 1965 and 1966—in Lake Michigan on an approach to Chicago, at Salt Lake City and Cincinnati, and in Tokyo Bay—in which the plane's characteristically high rate of sink was suspected as a factor.

The plane lost in East Berlin was preparing to land at Tegel airport, in the French sector of the city, after a routine flight from Frankfurt.

The safety board said the probable cause of the accident was descent of the flight below its altitude-clearance limit.

Police report

Rocky pins hopes on grass roots

Success of the Rockefeller campaign hinges on how much popular support he gains before the Republican Convention in August, according to Rep. Dennis Cawthorne, R-Manistee, who spoke before the MSU Students for Rockefeller Tuesday.

"The campaign depends on grass-roots swelling of opinion in his behalf," Cawthorne said at an organizational meeting of the students.

Cawthorne feels that Rockefeller can help the nation face up to the basic problems of Federalism. He thinks that power should be restored to state and local governments, in order to re-create a balance in American government.

"The best way to lose individual freedom is to create a strong central government which has all the power," Cawthorne said.

He used the example of Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) as a Federally-dictated program. The state is financially dependent on the Federal government and thus can't tighten up restrictions for ADC, Cawthorne claimed.

Cawthorne said he thinks that Rockefeller would help states regain their rights.

Jack Feinberg, summer coordinator of the group, spoke later saying, "The one thing holding Rockefeller back, although he is the best man, is that people don't think he's going to get the nomination."

Compared to the other candidates, Rockefeller has the strongest political platform concerning domestic issues, according to Feinberg.

"McCarthy's biggest mistake is his lack of significant domestic programs," Feinberg said.

"Nixon, with his advocacy of increased law enforcement, at the other end of the spectrum, is close to Wallace in that he treats a problem's symptom and not its cause," he said.

Ad hoc committee defines 'fair play,' goals, structure

The Ad Hoc Committee formed during campus demonstrations spring term finals week reaffirmed their concern for "fair play" at their second meeting of the summer.

The group met Tuesday in the Union to continue the previous week's workshops to decide on the structure and goals of the group.

RETURNED TO JAPAN

Iwo Jima goes home

IWO JIMA (AP)—The Marine veteran watched the U.S. flag come down Wednesday over Iwo Jima, one of history's bloodiest battlegrounds, and said: "I guess time heals all wounds."

Col. Miller Blue, 46, San Diego, Calif., had lived through the fight against entrenched Japanese on the little central Pacific island 23 years ago as a Marine second lieutenant.

Iwo Jima and other islands making up the Volcanic and Bonin groups were returned quietly to Japan by agreement between Washington and Tokyo.

Maj. Paul Gerber of the U.S. Air Force handed over command of the island's military installations to Cmdr. Kaju-un Sakamoto of Japan's Self-Defense Forces.

The Stars and Stripes, first raised over Iwo Jima's Mt. Suribachi in February 1945 as a symbol of American victory, lowered to the strains of "To the Colors."

Then Japanese sailors hoisted the Rising Sun flag as a bugler sounded the Japanese national anthem.

The top authorities on hand were U.S. Air Force Brig. Gen. Richard L. Ault, 50, Long Beach, Calif., and Capt. Yuta Mikatake of Japan's Self-Defense Forces.

Blue recalled that he hit the beach on D-Day with the 24th Marine Regiment, saw the flag go up five days later and a couple of hours later fell, critically wounded in both legs by a Japanese rifle bullet. The colonel said he didn't believe the Marines felt any resentment about Iwo's restoration.

The Americans paid a dreadful price in victory and the Japanese suffered a staggering sacrifice in defeat.

the limited bombing halt. "Until we get a better method, I'm not going to criticize present attempts," he replied. "Candidates are well-advised to give Johnson reasonable time to try."

Nixon stated that the limited bombing halt was necessary to get to the negotiation table, but cautioned, "We must examine this weekly to see that our troops are not given a disadvantage if the war is carried on later in an escalated manner."

With "Nixon girls" in red, white and blue and wearing straw hats proclaiming "Nixon's the one" and with helium balloons, some reading "Humphrey in '68" or "McCarthy for President" floating above him, the former vice president said, "I believe we are decisively ahead."

Some Secret Service men flinched visibly as balloons popped around them.

Abandoning the microphones, Nixon and Romney hopped on chairs to view the crowd. Nixon received his loudest applause when he told them, "I want you to know that despite weather in New York and Michigan, the political weather across the nation is good and we will win in November."

He continued, "There has never been so much interest about problems of people. Young people are highly involved and excited about the issues. This poses both a problem and a challenge to enlist people in solving our problems."

Press personal traveling on the Nixon trip commented that the press arrangement at the Lansing airport was the "worst yet." Cameras and microphones were set-up in advance. Only one press member was allowed to stand by the microphones and turn all the tape recorders on. The "writing press" was herded into a corner to one side of the microphones. The crowd, separated by "Nixon girls" and Secret Service agents, completed the triangle around the speaking area.

Fortas new chief justice

If he is confirmed, Thornberry said, "I will do my best to justify the confidence shown in me."

Warren is in California, reportedly preparing to move back to the state where he served as governor for 10 years. The court issued a statement in which he expressed his appreciation for Johnson's "warm words," and described Fortas and Thornberry

Of Fortas, Warren said "he has been a dedicated member of this court for the past three years, and came to the court with a brilliant background in many facets of the law and its administration."

"He was a great lawyer and I know he will be a great chief justice," Warren declared.

justice elevated to chief justice. The first was Edward D. White who served on the court from 1894 to 1921 and became chief justice in 1910. The other was Harlan Fiske Stone, who served from 1925 to 1946 and became chief justice in 1941.

There has been discussion whether it is necessary for Johnson to ask Senate confirma-

Eastland has said he believes such a promotion does require Senate action, as in the case of Stone.

Only one nomination to chief justice has ever been rejected, John Rutledge who served briefly in 1795, but the Senate rejected him.
