

Freedom Report burns on Hannah's doorstep

By PAT ANSTETT
Associate Campus Editor

Over 1,000 copies of the Academic Freedom Report were burned on the front steps of President Hannah's home as nine speakers and an estimated crowd of 1,500 voiced dissent to the recent suspension resolution by the Board of Trustees Monday afternoon.

The Sept. 20 resolution, which Don Stevens, Board of Trustees chairman said: "I suggest it be rescinded at the next meeting of the trustees, October 17," gives President Hannah the authority to suspend any student that he feels is an "immediate threat" to the University.

The rally was characterized by a lack of uniformed policemen and an extremely diverse cross section of students. It was among the largest demonstrations in the past few years which successfully united such varied groups in protest over a University resolution or policy.

Applauding students united behind such criticism of the resolution as Charles Larrowe's, professor of economics, description of it as "scandalous" and "illegal" or James Harrington, of the American Association of University Professors calling it "arbitrary, capricious and unconstitutional."

The Academic Freedom Report, which Andy Pyle, Off Campus Council, described as "dead ever since born," was officially declared "dead" by rally speaker Rick Kibbey, East Lansing, junior, as over 1,000 Academic Freedom Report-carrying spectators marched in funeral procession to Cowles House.

The criticized document was carried in a black cardboard coffin, preceded by a black and red flag. The drumbeat of the MSU Marching Band ironically accompanied the marching "mourners" to the President's house.

The crowd, the Board of Trustees, ASMSU, students and faculty were specially directed by the nine speakers in several different forms of reaction to the resolution.

Kibbey requested that "in the non-violent spirit of Ghandi, Martin Luther King and the people of Czechoslovakia, at noon today that all those concerned about the Board of Trustees resolution and the trampling of freedom, stop for one minute and stand in silent, non-violent resistance."

Kibbey requested that students stand quietly in class, or drivers stop their cars and blow their horns because "regardless of your ideological beliefs or political methods, we must all stand together to be free."

Petitions, to be returned at another Beaumont Tower rally at 3 p.m. Thursday, were also circulated to "call upon the Board of Trustees to reaffirm their support for the Academic Freedom Report by reconsidering and rescinding this illegal resolution."

Still further action was urged by such speakers as Pyle, who suggested that students should "go into the dorms" to rally support. Acceptance accompanying this recommendation caused the scheduling of several meetings in the Union and residence halls Monday night to discuss the resolution.

Most of the speakers disclaimed their identification with the groups they belonged to and spoke merely as interested students, faculty or trustee members.

Claiming that the trustees "did not need eight yes men" and that the "University would be better served if the trustees thought for themselves," Stevens urged that the resolution be rescinded at the next board meeting.

Symbolic burning

Student affairs office views suspension rally

While one administrator of the Office of Student Affairs was considering the length of time required to amend the Academic Freedom Report another was attending the rally on the suspension resolution, which he termed "well-organized" and "orderly."

Milton B. Dickerson, vice president of student affairs, estimated Monday that an amendment on the controversial suspension resolution could be presented, by going through normal channels, to the Board of Trustees by President Hannah for the Academic Council in November.

Eldon Nonnamaker, associate dean of student affairs, said he thought the rally held Monday was an "excellent exchange of ideas."

Dickerson said that he thought it would take three sessions of Faculty Committee on Student Affairs and two meetings of the Academic Council to "finalize" an agreement on what he called "a minor revision of a paragraph" dealing with the resolution.

The Faculty Committee meets for the first time Wednesday in a regular weekly session. The Academic Council meets once a month on the second Tuesday.

The Academic Freedom Report requires that any amendment proposed for the document must be approved by the Academic Council and the Board of Trustees after consultation on the proposal with ASMSU, after consideration by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

Dickerson noted that both the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs have, however, met in continuous sessions to consider a matter—a procedure that might hasten the passage of a proposal on the resolution to the trustees for consideration.

By doing this, Dickerson admitted it was possible to present the measure to the trustees at their October meeting in three weeks, although it allowed only a three day cushion between the Academic Council meeting and that of the trustees.

Until an amendment is approved by the trustees, Dickerson has indicated he will invoke the authority granted by the trustees to him, through President Hannah, to quell any disruptions constituting an immediate danger to the University.

"The action has to be fairly specific," Dickerson said, "by posing some immediate threat to the University by some repeated intentional actions of students." He listed examples as setting fire to buildings, disrupting classrooms, or physical abuse to persons of the university community.

KIBBEY URGING

Horn blow at noon

By FRED SHERWOOD
State News Staff Writer

"Blow your horn for freedom," Rick Kibbey said from the giant rock that was doubling as a precarious speaker's platform about fifty yards to the Morrill Hall side at the Beaumont Tower rally.

The crowd gave approving laughter to the slim, mustached young man's suggestion that all students protest the Sept. 20 resolution passed by the Board of Trustees—by stopping whatever they are doing at noon today to "just think about freedom for a minute" or honk their car horns if they are driving.

Kibbey, sporting a racy herringbone cap as his only credential while other speakers bore titles of various distinction, seemed the most human and humorous of the group. He struck a compromise between the desire held by ASMSU members Pete Ellsworth and Tom Samet to work within the present system and the anti-system polemic of Mark Jarsulic of Students for a Democratic Society and Andy Pyle of the Off Campus Council.

Kibbey recommended that the proper channels be tried to fight the trustee's resolution and urged that students refrain from violent action. While not condemning the system, however, he was anything but optimistic about it, and he reflected the general attitude of those who had assembled.

Some of them appeared in sandals and jeans and Peter Fonda-type sunglasses, some were suited members of the Academic. Strings of beads and "Create two, three, many Columbias" buttons cropped here and there, but button-down shirts and polished shoes held greater sway.

STEERING COMMITTEE

Academic Council asks suspension rule report

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

The Steering Committee of the Academic Council has unanimously approved a statement requesting the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs to report to the council its recommendations concerning the adoption of the new suspension rule passed last week by the MSU Board of Trustees.

This automatically makes the suspension rule an item on the agenda of the council meeting to be held Oct. 8, Dale E. Hathaway, chairman of the Steering Committee, said.

The statement was approved at a meeting of the Steering Committee Monday afternoon.

Asking the Faculty Committee to review the suspension rule and putting the item on the council agenda, however, is all the Steering Committee can do towards speeding the issue to resolution, Hathaway said.

In response to a request from faculty members of Justin Morrill College (JMC) that the Steering Committee call the council meeting earlier than Oct. 8, Hathaway said that the Faculty Committee needed that much time to review the issue and draw up recommendations on it.

There must be consultation with student government on this issue," Hathaway said. "The Faculty Committee should not by-pass student government as the Academic Freedom Report stipulates that they, too, have a part in the decision-making."

The Faculty Committee cannot eliminate student government from participation in the review, he said, for then it would be committing the same error the trustees are charged with.

Fred Graham, asst. professor in JMC, asked if the Council could request that President Hannah not use his power of suspension until after the council meets.

"We at JMC are concerned for the students," Graham said. "The Council does not meet until next Tuesday, but the students are meeting right now (referring to the rally being held in front of Beaumont Tower at the same time the Steering Committee meeting was held). "We're afraid procedures won't move fast enough for the students."

Should the rule be used before next Tuesday, T. Clinton Cobb, chairman of the Faculty Committee of Student Affairs, explained, the students could issue an injunction against those who suspended them.

Rallyers achieve goal of constructive dissent

By DEBORAH FITCH
State News Staff Writer

ASMSU had its wish fulfilled at yesterday's resolution rally—the students were peaceful, concerned, responsive; and there were a lot of them.

Harv Dzodin, senior member-at-large, said that "the rally went beyond our fondest expectations as far as attendance, crowd reaction and participation."

"I was pleased to see all segments of the campus represented, and I think that this broad representation speaks for itself—the support which this issue has."

Of the rallyers, Dzodin said, "This is the type of responsible student power towards which ASMSU wants to orient itself."

"Such demonstrations, if handled in as responsible a manner as this one, will continue the progressive direction in which we have aimed."

Tom Samet, junior member-at-large, said that "basically, the rally served to inform the student body at large what was going on and to make it clear that concern was being voiced by a number of student groups."

"Whether the trustees think it is important or not, it has been shown that the students do."

Samet said that his position on constructive channeling of dissent had been reaffirmed by the rally.

"I believe that the channels for change and dissent work, but that they have been grossly violated. If the resolution is repealed, I will maintain my position that the channels do work. If the resolution does stand, if we have an indication that members of the administration are quite willing to abandon established procedures, then perhaps the criticism leveled at student government will be shown to be valid," he said.

Several rally speakers criticized student government for their role, or lack thereof, in implementing change. In response to the critics, Dzodin said, "I think the people who cut down the responsible efforts of student government were generally coolly received."

Samet said that "the issue we're facing now is the test of the validity of that criticism."

Sue Hughes, Off-Campus Council board representative, said, "In short, they're (the critics) right, but I don't think they have to be. Traditionally, we're (ASMSU) there to keep the radicals quiet and ourselves frustrated."

"I think that the administration made a bad enough mistake this time that it's

HHH avows willingness to halt bombing

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Hubert H. Humphrey said today that if elected president he would be willing to stop the bombing of North Vietnam—thus dramatically moving away from the Johnson Administration war policy.

Humphrey said North Vietnam has contended it would promptly conduct "good faith negotiations if we stop the present limited bombing of the North."

Humphrey said that as president, "I would be willing to stop the bombing of the North as an acceptable risk for peace because I believe it could lead to success in the negotiations and a shorter war."

WILL BLOCK FORTAS

Senate attacks Warren

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apparently confident of being able to block a vote on the nomination of Associate Justice Fortas to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren, senators turned their fire Monday on Warren.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., for one, said that "in the way he conditioned his retirement" Warren has "acted in a manner unbecoming the great office of chief justice."

Administration backers held little hope that they will be able to muster anywhere near the votes they will need Tuesday in a move to choke off a nomination of Associate Justice Fortas to succeed Warren.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield has indicated that the question of dropping the fight will turn on the number of votes he is able to round up in favor of cloture. A two-thirds majority of the senators voting is required to invoke the rule. An Associated Press survey indicated last week that opponents of cloture have more than enough votes to defeat it.

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo.,

led the charge on the fourth day of debate on Fortas's nomination, told the Senate that "the position taken by Mr. Warren in this matter, in effect dictating that Abe Fortas shall succeed him as chief justice, is exceedingly offensive to my sense of justice."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., told newsmen that Johnson had accepted Warren's retirement on a contingency basis — "contingent on the Senate doing the will of the President."

"The question raised," Fulbright said, "is whether the Senate can preserve its prerogatives in the face of coercion."

Sens. John Stennis, D-Miss., and William B. Spong Jr., D-Va. also protested the circumstances of Warren's retirement offer, saying it would set a bad precedent.

In a renewed attack on Fortas's court record, Stennis said Fortas had joined in 22 decisions reversing obscenity convictions involving what he called "slimy" movies and other materials. He said the decisions "swept away virtually all the old standards of the U.S. courts as to decency."

Warren has said he will continue on the job if no successor is confirmed.

There was no comment from Warren or the White House on the Senate debate.

HHH outshouted

Unruly demonstrators outshouted Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey Saturday during a mass rally in Seattle, Wash. Humphrey was accused of supporting the war in Vietnam and it was demanded that he be brought to international trial before the United Nations. After further shouting the demonstrators were removed from the building.

Nixon meets with Romney to discuss unemployment

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is studying a new national approach to unemployment providing private enterprise with financial incentives to create jobs.

The Republican presidential candidate left his vacation retreat on Key Biscayne off Miami Monday to fly to Detroit for a meeting on the incentives program with Gov. Romney, a leading advocate of new ways to fight unemployment.

Before ending his two-day holiday, Nixon said he was pleased by Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford's statement Sunday of the administration's interest in accelerating the equipping and training of South Vietnamese forces. He called it the best hope for reducing American forces in Vietnam.

This "should have been pressed for far more rapidly by the administration," Nixon said. "After election to the presidency, I intend to advance this program more vigorously than has the present administration."

Joining Romney and Nixon at the Detroit meeting on unemployment will be California Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, a top

Nixon adviser who has helped start an employment program in his own state involving government financial incentives to private enterprise to create jobs in urban slums.

"This will provide the basis for recommendations for starting a program," said a Nixon aide.

Wallace in Chicago: mixed emotions

CHICAGO (AP) —George C. Wallace launched his drive to capture votes in the Midwest and the industrial North Monday and was greeted with cheers and jeers in a motorcade through downtown Chicago.

A group of 300-400 Wallace supporters, including a drum and bugle corps, formed behind the Wallace car and the march began with rousing shouts of "We Want Wallace."

The jeers came almost immediately. A group of Negro youths carried signs which read: "Wallace is a Bigot," and "Wallace is a Racist."

One of the Wallace Supporters was the Rev. William Lewis, a Negro minister who said, "I want to shake his (Wallace's) hand and tell him to keep up the good work." He did.

Wallace opponents held aloft a large cloth sign which read, "If You Liked Hitler, You'll Love Wallace." The group chanted, "Peace Now."

Thousands of Wallace supporters on the sidewalks waved miniature American flags and wore synthetic skimmers labeled "Wallace."

ENTHUSIASM, RESERVATION Prof's view new grading

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

Faculty members, who face this term the usage of a new grading system for the first time, view it with varying degrees of enthusiasm and reservation, according to a State News poll.

The new system replaces the old five-point grading with a 10-point (0-4.5) plan. It also offers students the opportunity to take courses outside their major field of study on a credit-no credit (CR-NC) basis.

Among those faculty members in favor of the new grading system there is an apparent concern about the confusion the new system has caused and about evaluating the system before it has been used.

"Having greater gradations is desirable in that it enables you to classify students more accurately according to their ability," Donald J. Ricks, asst. professor of agricultural economics, said. "It should help in borderline cases."

"The 0-4.5 system is a major improvement," Bernard Gallin, professor of anthropology, said. "It gives the student the opportunity to show what he can do. For the instructor it means spending less time on grading and more on teaching."

ervation about the confusion the new system has caused and about evaluating the system before it has been used.

"There are a number of points that have to be ironed out and until we get them worked out I don't think we can evaluate the system," Sheryl Zeigler, instructor in advertising, said. "We have to try it first. I think it has some good possibilities. Sure it's confusing, but anything new will be."

"The University College grading system (a 15-point system) is superior to this," Karl F.

chairman of the Humanities Dept. said.

But, he added, a 10 point system is workable. Both students and faculty will have problems, especially this first term, in re-adjusting their thinking and getting used to the new system, he said.

There is, however, opposition to the 0-4.5 plan from faculty members who feel it will put too much pressure on the students for grades.

"I can live with the new system," Lawrence R. Krupka, associate professor of natural science, said, "but it's going to cause confusion. I think it's going to hurt the kids. At a time when we're trying to de-emphasize grades, it's inappropriate to give a 'super-A' (an A-plus or 4.5.)"

"I had enough trouble classifying my students into five grades," Alvin A. Arens, asst. professor of accounting and fi-

Greek constitution passes by overwhelming majority

ATHENS (AP) — The regime of strongman Premier George Papadopoulos rolled up a spectacular 92.2 per cent majority for its new constitution Monday.

Approval of the document, cutting King Constantine's power and establishing a strong executive, had been widely predicted. But even Papadopoulos' ministers had not forecast such a lopsided outcome, especially since the new charter suspends most of the voters' basic rights until the government chooses to restore them.

The campaign had been one-sided. Government officials, the press and radio joined in a massive effort to persuade Greeks to vote for the constitution. If there was any campaigning at all in opposition it was clandestine.

Observers of Greece's often confusing politics put forth a variety of reasons for the size of the affirmative vote. The common denominator was that rejection would have served no positive purpose.

However, the landslide may be interpreted by the government as a directive to proceed with its announced aims without losing much time in thought about returning to a parliamentary system.

ancial administration, said. "Now, I have to use 10. I had hoped that if there was a change, we'd go to the three-grade system. I think there is too much pressure on students now. I see this as putting even more pressure on students for grades."

Though there must be some sort of grading to motivate students, Arens said, there should be more emphasis on learning and less on grades.

Response to the CR-NC program has been more favorable. "It provides a flexibility in moving from one area to another," Herbert J. Oyer, chairman and professor of audiology and speech science, said. "It gives a real migration among the various disciplines."

"The credit-no credit plan is good because it will stimulate students to take courses they were afraid to take before," Gallin said.

"CR-NC encourages students to take courses out of their major areas," Ricks said. "The only potential shortcoming is that the student may slough off. Around mid-terms time he'll naturally study more for the courses he takes for a grade. But this is better than enrolling as an auditor."

In the right manner

ASMSU is presently drawing up an amendment to the Academic Freedom Report which would essentially reverse the resolution of the Board of Trustees which gave the president of the University the power to suspend students pending hearing of their cases before the proper judicial body.

due process. It would not allow suspension before proper judicial proceedings, and those proceedings would be held as soon as possible after the charges were made.

The amendment is now in the policy committee, and will hopefully be cleared by this evening, after which it will be again considered by the full student board, and then passed on to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, the Dean of Students, the president and the trustees.

The ASMSU amendment should be a good one. It will be delivered through the proper channels.

This is the latest in a series of amendments which the board has been considering through the summer, and was, in fact, conceived before the "suspension resolution" became public knowledge.

ASMSU is doing a lot more, in the right manner, than the trustees did at their now infamous Sept. 20 meeting.

Though the final wording is not yet definite, the intent of the amendment is to speed up

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) has issued a resolution which convincingly devastates that of the trustees. The "suspension resolution" would, it states, not remove the threat to the University, if used, since the student would still be free to "continue his disruptive activity." Any citizen may come onto campus, and the student would not lose his citizenship because of his suspension.

Should he indeed be some kind of a "threat," the civil authorities are quite capable of handling him.

The resolution is a disgrace to the trustees and the administration which initiated it. It should be immediately rescinded.

An amendment to the Freedom Report, such as the one ASMSU is considering, would be much more just to students--and to administrators who bumble into a stupid suspension in the passion of a moment.

ASMSU is trying to work through the procedures which the student body has been promised are effective and speedy. In this instance, they must be speedy. We are looking for the truth in the promises.

If this try doesn't work, and fast, the result may be chaos. --The Editors

POINT OF VIEW

Injustice and absurdity

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following "Point of View" was written by Harvey Drodin, ASMSU senior member-at-large, and Tom Samet, junior member-at-large.

The ASMSU Student Board is extremely disturbed by the Board of Trustees' resolution, secretly passed September 20th, which we believe violates the spirit and letter of the Academic Freedom Report and the good faith which students placed in this Academic Bill of Rights as well as contravening the normal channels and procedures established by that report.

the provisions of the Joint Statement on Rights and Freedoms of Students.

The board of trustees, by secretly passing this resolution, have circumvented the amendment procedures established in the Academic Freedom Report. They have, in fact, placed themselves in a position superior to the report, and have reduced it to a hollow testimony to the myth of academic freedom.

They have consciously established the doctrine that students are guilty until proven innocent.

Furthermore, the trustees have undermined the very foundations of due process. Since one of the penalties which the All University Student Judiciary and the Student Faculty Judiciary may impose is suspension, this resolution has granted an officer of the University the power to enact punishment prior to a hearing. Additionally, any such punitive action cannot help but prejudice the opinions of those who must later hear the case.

The resolution couples injustice with absurdity. Surely denying an individual his status as a student is not an effective means of protecting the University. There could be nothing more ludicrous than a university official informing a torch-carrying student that he cannot burn a building because he has been officially suspended.

Finally, the contention that the present resolution does nothing more than to clarify current policy, is a blatant fallacy. We need only look back to the disturbances of last spring to realize the true intent of the Academic Freedom Report and due process.

ess. At that time there was serious thought given to preventing those students who had been arrested from registering for summer term. In response to Student Board opposition to such action, and a clear recognition that it would be a flagrant denial of due process, the University reconsidered and permitted the students to enroll.

This, then, is the policy set forth in the Freedom Report, and it is this which must be preserved.

Where milk and honey end

Some people just refuse to settle for second best when it comes to their education.

The sad thing about them is they are becoming fewer every year. Not because they are satisfied with less, but because they have to be. They can't afford any more.

It is a well known fact that any young adult in the United States today can get a college education if he wants it. He can take his pick of various scholarships, grants and loans that will send him to any tax-supported school in his state.

This, however, is where milk and honey end and bread and water begin. What lies beneath the surface of that bountiful boast?

A lot of empty-pocketed frustration.

Let us say, for example, that a promising young Albion student shows immeasurable talent in the field of biochemistry. He is very lucky, since MSU has one of the better biochemistry departments in the country.

Let us continue to say, now, that he comes from a family that cannot afford to pay for four years plus graduate studies in East Lansing. What does our student do now?

Well, if he has any sense at all, he will apply for and receive some of the many forms of financial aid available to Michigan residents from MSU.

First of all, the price tag on his diploma will be much lower because of that boon to the Michigan resident, the sliding tuition scale.

If he still cannot meet the costs after this major fee reduction, he has not reached a financial dead-end yet. Many scholarships, grants and loans are easily within his reach. Add to this an on-campus job and that little biochemist will prob-

To the Editor:

The establishment and maintenance of substantive and procedural due process is the most basic concept underlying the Academic Freedom Report. That the resolution of the Board of Trustees violates this vitally important concept is beyond question, and no amount of procedural machinery can make that resolution compatible with the letter or spirit of the Freedom Report. While I do not question the power or authority of the board to adopt and enforce such a resolution, I regard the action as unwise and unnecessary. The resolution is a reactionary pronouncement which, if enforced, will not only restore the system of control over students that existed prior to the adoption of the Freedom Report, but will place the University on the defensive in cases arising under Article 4. And if the Board should overrule decisions of the Student-Faculty Judiciary upholding plaintiffs in such cases, the University will surely become, once again, the defendant in federal court cases. Principle and common sense dictate the immediate withdrawal of the resolution, and I respectfully urge the board to take such action immediately.

What tangled lines we weave

EDITOR'S NOTE: Howard Gabe is a graduate of Wayne State University beginning his first year of graduate study at MSU.

In one hour, man can go 60 miles in his car, 600 miles by jet, 6,000 miles by rocket, but only six feet during registration.

Early last week, I encountered my first registration day here at MSU; and I would like to relate the events exactly as they happened.

The weatherman added a soft touch of his own to registration-day-chaos by endowing the campus public with an all-day rain. So, soaking wet, umbrella in hand and already miserable, I approached the front entrance to the Men's I.M. Bldg., only to find out that I first had to go to another building to get "some cards."

With filled-out cards in one hand, umbrella in the other, soaking wet, miserable and already suffering writer's cramps, I went back to the I.M. Bldg. and followed directions.

1. Stop! (I felt like screaming out I have not even gone anywhere yet, but I controlled myself.) Only those whose last names begin with their first name can enter from 8-10 a.m.

2. If you are a new student, enter through line five. If you are an old student enter through line six, unless your I.D. number ends in four for the old students and seven for the new students; or your last name ends with "t" for the new students and "l" for the old students; in which case you enter in through line two from the left-hand side close to the new student lines near the right of the middle section for the old students marked north-bound traffic. Disregard this sign if it doesn't apply to your particular case.

3. Fill out all cards with the blue stripe down the center. It is very important to make sure that you absolutely do not xyzxyt or tmazxiol for this will only delay registration.

With the blue striped cards in hand, I noticed the next set of signs: Fill out the cards Keep right ahead Registration's not through 'Til you drop dead. BURMA SHAVE

Part of past?

"And we should be grateful to our trustees, who accepted the far reaching recommendations of faculty and students without quibbling, and are as anxious as any one of us to see this effort to share responsibility with students meet with unqualified success."

"And we should be grateful to Professor Dickerson, who inherited the demanding task of making the report effective, along with his new responsibility as Vice President for Student Affairs, and who is trying faithfully to help students to exercise both their rights and their responsibilities in a manner befitting students privileged to study at this University."

--John A. Hannah, in his State of the University address, Feb. 12, 1968

I then entered another small room where some girl took my cards and very adeptly sorted them and said, "Got 'em, got 'em, got 'em, need 'em, need 'em, got 'em. Okay, now move to the next section where you trade your library card, the B card and the blue cards for one Willie Horton."

When this assorting was done, I moved down a long dark passage-way where I spotted a sign announcing the soon-to-be-erected Howard Johnson Restaurant and Motor Lodge.

Little further on down the hall a group of students were selling elevator passes for $2. I was not that naive to buy those passes. I could clearly see another group that was selling those same passes for only $1.50.

Lines were so plentiful and so long that a few girls spent a half hour waiting in line to register for the draft. I was laughing so hard at those girls that I did not notice that the line which I was in was slowly moving towards the women's john.

When I was handed by 11th card, I very cleverly noticed that I had: three blue ones, two green ones, three red ones and a run of blue-striped ones. So I played down the green ones and announced: "I knock on two."

A girl that was standing behind me said: "Damnit! That was my gin card!"

Being the gentleman that I was, I comforted her, and said, "Dear, other than the points that I get for the set, you have only one other point in your hand."

As I neared the end, someone informed me that my schedule was incomplete and that I would have to go downstairs to the "dirt arena."

Strange things seem to happen down in the pit. Near a corner marked "closed" I saw: 47 students banging their heads against the wall; a pre-med student who was complaining that the only open classes were Advanced Top Soil 805 and Psych. of Manure Spreading 869; and 75 Lansing policemen who mistook the group for anti-war demonstrators and were spraying mace.

Amidst the confusion, I obtained three class reservation cards, filled in my I.D. number and wrote: "This young man has my permission to leave;" and signed it, John Hannah. P.S. "Disregarding this order will mean suspension."

"Looks like another job offer - this one's from the Selective Service!"

ably breeze through the year with extra spending money.

But suppose for a moment that Albion is not our young man's home town. Perhaps it is Albany, N.Y.

Then he has problems.

To begin with, he cannot take advantage of the sliding scale. On the contrary, it seems that every time the scale is increased, so is non-resident tuition.

Scholarships are not as easy to come by, either. MSU itself offers only the Alumni Distinguished Scholarships and National Merit scholarships to students outside the Michigan border. And very few states give out money knowing it will be spent elsewhere.

So, unless our man in Albany has a very rich aunt somewhere, he will not be able to get the high-quality education he wants so badly.

Of course, this situation holds true for other schools as well. Any Michigan resident who wants to go to the University of Hawaii to study Marine biology is going to meet some monetary roadblocks too.

All over the country, public universities are raising their non-resident fees to the point where they equal the cost of private institutions. Unless financial aid stops "discriminating" by residence, most young people will soon be confined to their own states when they choose a college.

And that is bad. For years, one of the more rewarding aspects of entering a university had been meeting people from throughout the country. Students who have never left their home state before suddenly have the opportunity to travel all around the nation.

The blinders of mutual backgrounds that shield high school graduates in their home towns fall away when they reach the university. New ideas, new traditions, new points of view that were unimaginable in June become roommates in September.

What is going to happen when no one can leave his state for school? Is it possible that ideological islands will develop from the isolation?

No. There will always be some who can afford to attend the school of their choice. The real problem lies in the limitations that are being put on most choices.

It is true that no one need go without a college education due to financial need. The problem now is, will it someday be possible for everyone to receive the best available education? Can the financial barriers be lifted for everyone?

"We try harder" doesn't work for everything.

Rent hike, conditions anger married students

By MARK EICHER
State News Staff Writer

Residents of MSU's married housing have voiced concern over the increase in rent from $12,000 to $14,000 that the married housing office will receive monthly as a result of a recent $6 increase in housing rates.

In a letter to all residents of married housing, John Roetman, manager of married housing, and J.T. Huston, supervisor of accounts receivables, explained that the additional income would be used for increased costs of labor and education.

The letter stated that the Board of Trustees authorized the increase in July "because of additional funds necessary to cover the increased costs of labor, services and supplies, and of the substantial increase in payment required by the East Lansing Board of Education for educational costs of students living in married housing and attending the East Lansing Public Schools."

The rents have increased from $94 to $96 for one bedroom apartments and from $100 to $106 for two bedroom apartments.

They went into effect Sept. 1 and will gross MSU approximately $145,000 annually.

Several Spartan Village residents also voiced concern over existing problems in apartments and have suggested remedies to those problems, using the funds from the rental increase.

Roetman said the increase was not meant to cover any new projects. "We have enough of a problem just keeping our head above water as it is," he said.

Roetman explained that a major portion of the increase will go to paying educational costs of children in married housing attending East Lansing Public Schools. Since married housing residents don't pay school taxes, the cost of schooling must come out of rent, he said.

"We're just trying to keep abreast of rising costs. Improvements are always being made on a day to day basis, however," Roetman added.

Complaints of Spartan Village residents included: insufficient inspection and cleaning of apartments between tenants, slow maintenance workers, uncontrollable heating units, insufficient ventilation for the bathroom and the kitchen, tight restrictions concerning the use of electrical appliances, prohibition of outside television antennas, small paint allotments restricted to University colors and few close play areas for children.

Some of the married housing residents said their apartments were in extreme disorder when they first arrived. One couple listed 25 items broken or in extremely worn condition when they made a check of their apartment.

William Gafney, Spartan Village resident, said a neighbor had found the rug in their newly acquired apartment stained and odorous while Mrs. Hank Risley, another Spartan Village resident, noted that when specific complaints were made, maintenance workers were slow to answer and slow on the job.

"We had our window blown out and it took three days to get a replacement," she said.

Roetman blamed the maintenance problems on a shortage of workers. He noted that during a two week period in June there is a turnover of between 300 and 400 tenants and that it is "impossible to rectify everything before the tenants moved in."

He said the poor workers were probably student hired help hired during the summer. "How do you screen them, other than firing the bad ones and trying to hire new ones?" he asked.

Many residents complained that the apartments became extremely hot during "Indian summer" when the heat was turned on. Hank Risley, Mason, senior, suggested that one person from each apartment unit be trained to control the heating systems.

Tennants said that lack of proper ventilation adds to the discomfort. "The bathroom vent only carries noise," Mrs. Risley said.

Poor ventilation caused the Risley's shower curtains to turn "black with mildew."

Residents also complained that they were not allowed to use heavy appliances, such as air conditioners, and that they were not allowed to erect outside television antennas.

Roetman said that the 110-volt wires would not take an overload of appliances.

Residents suggested that each unit be allowed one antenna which is subject to regular inspection.

"We don't wish to have that responsibility," Roetman said. "How would you like to see 2,000 antennas coming from the roofs, balconies, and yards of that area?"

Gafney said the existing allotment of paint is too small and that many of his neighbors did not care for the choice of colors offered by the University.

Roetman explained that one gallon of paint is allowed for each large room with the bath and kitchen getting a quart each and that there is a choice of eight University approved colors.

"The allotment may not be enough if they change to a light color from a dark," he said, "but we know from experience it is the average quantity of paint necessary to do the job."

"There are quite a few areas, such as the apartments on Kalamazoo and on Harrison, which are badly in need of fences," one mother said. "These areas, and many others, are in great need of play equipment, but the University will not allow its tenants to put up play equipment for the children."

Roetman said 14 new play ground pieces were put up in 14 different locations this summer. "We don't allow swings because they are too dangerous," he said.

"We can't afford to live elsewhere," said the mother. "They've got us over a barrel."

"Admittedly, we lack the conveniences of some of the more expensive apartments in town," Roetman concluded, "but then our rent isn't as high."

Fun and games

These children of married students seem to be enjoying fun and games as they play near their homes. A recent uproar has been heard for more playground facilities. According to an official of married housing, swings are too dangerous.

FEDERAL INVESTIGATION

Ann Arbor reports blast at alleged CIA quarters

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) -- Federal and local investigators today probed an explosion at a downtown Ann Arbor office building that is generally believed to house the eastern Michigan recruiting office of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

"We're going out to the airport this morning to pick up two CIA investigators from Washington," said a highly placed source in the Ann Arbor police department.

The explosion Sunday night shattered the glass front on both floors of the two-story stone and frame building and flew a three-inch deep hole in the concrete sidewalk in front.

The Ann Arbor street directory lists the tenants in the building as the U.S. Dept. of Defense, the State Farm Insurance Co., Phillips Electrical Instrument Co., and the Pitney Bowles Postage Meter Co.

No injuries were reported. Police said they had no leads on possible suspects.

The blast bent a door frame, overturned furniture, knocked down pieces of the ceiling, and broke windows in a building housing an office of Michigan's secretary of state.

Police Chief Walter Krasny declined to estimate the damage or say which agencies were involved in the investigation.

William Trembl, police reporter for the Ann Arbor News, said agents from the Ann Arbor office of the FBI appeared on the scene Sunday night.

The area was cordoned off at dawn today.

'New Jersey' joins 7th fleet; hit enemy targets in DMZ

ABOARD USS NEW JERSEY, off Vietnam (AP) -- The great battleship New Jersey came out of mothballs with a vengeance Monday, hurling 2,700-pound shells from the South China Sea at North Vietnamese targets 12 miles away.

She fired 29 rounds from her 16-inch guns in three missions during the day, plus 45 rounds from her 5-inch secondary battery. There was no answering fire.

Air observers reported four automatic weapons positions and one artillery emplacement were destroyed. 30 yards of trenchline caved in and a road cut in two places.

Reactivation of the 56,000-ton New Jersey in August 1967 was a $50 million experiment. The Navy is trying to disprove a current theory that her guns are too large and targets too few to justify the cost of maintaining the battleship and its crew of 1,400.

A Marine A4 Skyhawk jet pinpointed the enemy targets through a withering anti-aircraft fire as New Jersey's guns belched 65-foot clouds of smoke. It took exactly 64 seconds for the shells to hit the targets 12 miles from the battleship's position four miles offshore.

"After the first five rounds I reported: 'Scratch the target, it doesn't exist any more.' They were right on the money," Marine Lt. Patrick Orrocco of Youngstown, Ohio, the observer in the spotter plane, said.

The pilot, Marine Maj. John Clark of Omaha, Neb., told 33 newsmen aboard the battleship his jet shook when the big shells exploded.

After the mission, the New Jersey gun boss, Cmdr. Peter Roane of Winona, N.J., messaged the plane: "Thanks for the mission. We put some holes in it."

It was the New Jersey's first war assignment since she shelled Wonsan Harbor 15 years ago, the day before the Korean armistice.

Rear Adm. Sam Moore, of Rugby, Tex., commander of surface vessels in the 7th Fleet, expressed satisfaction with performance on Marine targets in the demilitarized zone and said he saw no reason why the ship should not be used to strike deeper into North Vietnam.

Men, take the field!

The football fields are no longer vacant as men from campus residence halls and fraternities gather to practice for the beginning of I.M. football. The annual fall competition soon narrows until campus champs are recognized. The rugged sport attracts the attention of MSU's sports enthusiasts and evidence can be seen of its popularity as the lights shine bright until late night hours at the I.M. fields.

New York students return to classrooms

NEW YORK (AP) — Most of New York City's 1.1 million public school pupils went back to class today under an agreement ending a three week teachers' strike over job security.

The agreement reinstated 110 mostly white teachers ousted from a mostly Negro and Puerto Rican experimental school district in Brooklyn, but the district's local board called the strike settlement unacceptable.

Nevertheless, Albert Shanker, president of the 55,000 member AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers told a radio audience:

"I guarantee there will be no citywide strike should the situation worsen. The city is acting in good faith."

Rev. C. Herbert Oliver, chairman of the local governing board in the Ocean Hill-Brownsville district, said "we cannot comply with" an agreement.

The agreement he referred to, ordering back to Ocean Hill-Brownsville 110 teachers the district says it doesn't want, was approved Sunday night by the striking teachers.

Oliver did not make clear the effect of the local board's unwillingness to comply with the agreement, but indicated the board might set up its own schools.

A number of Negro teachers and students at a junior high school in the Brooklyn district walked out this morning. Some of the students said their teachers had told them to leave.

Within a few minutes, however, the teachers and pupils reentered the building at the urging of a community governing board official and a number of parents.

Oliver expressed anger over the heavy concentration of policemen inside and outside the junior high school.

"Is this Czechoslovakia?" he asked. "This is an armed camp. We don't need them."

Goldberg called in to head off strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay, a citywide teachers strike behind him, strove Monday to resolve a new municipal crisis—a contract wage deadlock with 50,000 uniformed policemen, firemen and sanitation workers.

The Republican mayor called in Arthur J. Goldberg, a Democrat, former U.S. labor secretary, Supreme Court justice and U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Goldberg's intervention in the three-part dispute was conditioned, however, on an agreement to extend the present contracts of the Policemen's Benevolent Association, the Uniformed Firefighters Association and the Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association.

There was indication the unions might go along and extend contracts that expire within nine hours of each other, beginning at midnight Monday.

The PBA's contract covering 22,000 policemen had a midnight expiration date, and the union had threatened a "knock-out punch" against the city, without spelling out the details.

INTERNATIONAL AID

LBJ urges cooperation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson urged top monetary policymakers of more than 100 nations Monday to keep up the momentum of international economic cooperation rather than settle for "stop-and-go economic growth."

"The more we move out of phase with each other, the more we will each have to restrict ourselves," Johnson said. "The more we move together, the more rapidly each of us will be able to advance the prosperity of our own people."

There was some irony in Johnson's appeal to other nations to maintain their aid programs, in view of the fact that Congress is in the process of approving a U.S. aid appropriation that is certain to be the smallest in the program's history.

Robert S. McNamara, the World Bank president, asked a doubling of bank aid to Africa, Asia and Latin America over the next five years.

Johnson was the surprise leadoff speaker at the combined annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund

(IMF) and the World Bank. Governors of the two bodies are ministers of finance and central bank heads from a broad array of nations, including many newly come to nationhood.

Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, managing director of the IMF, reported to the governors that the world monetary system in the past year has had to stand up to profound shocks "but the system has withstood the shocks."

Unfortunately, in putting their houses in order, he said, some of the industrialized nations with balance-of-payments problems have resorted to controls harmful to their smaller trading partners.

"This simply shuffles on to poorer countries part of the burden of adjustment," Schweitzer said.

Johnson called on the affluent nations to continue to extend assistance to the emerging group, but conspicuously made no promises on behalf of the United States.

With opposition to foreign aid running strong this year, the House and Senate have voted foreign aid appropriations of $1.6 billion and $1.9 billion, respectively, either of which would be the lowest in the 21-year history of the program. The final figure is yet to be agreed on.

There is ample evidence that development works, Johnson said.

"We now know that foreign aid is not an endless task," the President said. "We simply cannot turn our backs on the majority of our fellow human beings in the world."

McNamara, Johnson's former secretary of defense, making his first address to the governors as World Bank president, took note of the growing disenchantment of developed nations with assistance to those less developed and said this poses a special challenge to the World Bank.

He called for a doubling of World Bank lending activity in the next five years, setting the target for the half decade at approximately $10 billion.

The increase should be accompanied, he said, by a change in emphasis—proportionately fewer loans for heavy industry, more for education, agriculture, population control programs and other activities

Mexican mothers march ; troops pull out from university

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Troops who since Sept. 18 have occupied the University of Mexico's autonomous campus began to pull out Monday.

The force, estimated at about 1,300, began to climb into a row of troop trucks parked on the campus near the University stadium, where the Olympic Games will open Oct. 12.

Before that, 500 women staged a "march of mothers" in the downtown commercial area, protesting government treatment of students.

Their march was the first organized demonstration to take place in three days of relative calm in the wake of student disturbances.

The disturbances started in July, and by mid-August students claimed 32 of their number had died in clashes with riot police and soldiers.

In the latest outbreak of violence, after the army occupied the University of Mexico Sept. 18, at least 15 persons by unofficial count died.

At the same time the women were marching on Reforma, the University Council was meeting to decide what procedure should be followed in regaining control of the University from the government.

Student demands from the regime of President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz include firing of top police officials and disbanding of the riot police.

Heft shines in 'S' secondary

By GREGG LORIA
State News Sports Writer

One man's loss is another man's gain," an old Chinese proverb says, and that's the situation that describes MSU's tough little defensive halfback, Ken Heft.

Heft, a 5-8, 170 lb. senior, earned All-State recognition in both football and diving at Birmingham Seaholm High School. He attempted to compete in both upon entering MSU, but in the end, the strain was too much for him and Heft was forced to make a decision between Duffy Daugherty and Swimming Coach Charles McCaffrey.

Heft elected to stick with football, a choice finally rewarded Saturday when Heft's performance won him the game ball.

Daugherty is happy about Heft's choice.

Starting regularly for the first time in a three year career, Heft is the Spartan's second leading tackler, ranking behind linebacker Rich Saul. In the 28-10 victory over Baylor, Heft made or assisted in 13 tackles. These, along with the 11 he had in the Syracuse contest, has brought him to prominence as the heart of the Spartan defensive backfield.

Heft was a continual thorn in the side of the Baylor receivers, breaking up three passes on crucial third down plays and consistently covering his man.

Daugherty, commenting on the improvement of the defensive backfield, singled out No. 28.

"Our pass defense was much tougher this week against Baylor, with Kenny Heft particularly outstanding," Daugherty said.

"I think the main reason for the improvement in our defensive backfield was the change in defenses, plus the differences in the receivers of both teams we've played," Heft said.

"Against Syracuse we used a zone defense which sort of gave them the short passes. They also had extremely tall receivers which makes it very hard for us to cover. In the Baylor game, we knew they were a basically passing team so we covered their receivers a lot tighter.

"But a lot of credit must go to our defensive line," Heft added. "In this last game, they put on a great pass rush, which just makes our job a little bit easier."

As for the immediate future of MSU football, Heft is very optimistic. He was a member of the Spartan's 1966 squad which went undefeated and gained national recognition, so he does know the makings of a good team.

"This team has tremendous spirit and enthusiasm, just like those 1965 and 1966 squads, and we're still going to get a lot better. We have a lot of good players and they're still going to improve."

"But right now we've got great spirit and this keeps us united—and I think this is the key to a great team," Heft added.

A Hefty situation

Boilermakers top UPI poll

NEW YORK (UPI)—Purdue, proving that lightning can strike twice, Monday came within one vote of unanimous selection as the nation's leading college football power when the United Press International board of coaches cast 34 first place votes for the Boilermakers.

For the second consecutive year, Purdue went up against Notre Dame as the underdog, beat the Irish and knocked them out of the no. 1 ranking. Using basically the same cast that upset the Irish last season—Leroy Keyes, Mike Phipps and Perry Williams—the Boilermakers became the first team to beat an Ara Parseghian-coached Notre Dame squad two years in a row, downing the Irish 37-22 Saturday.

The victory, Purdue's second, enabled the Boilermakers to easily outdistance defending champion Southern California, 349-301, for the top national ranking. Southern Cal received the lone first place vote not cast for Purdue. Notre Dame's loss dropped the Irish, a strong choice for no. 1 last week, down to eight in the ratings.

Penn State, a 25-9 victor over Kansas State, moved up one slot to no. 3 with 165 points while UCLA, fifth last week, advanced to fourth with 163.

Kansas took fifth with 147 points while Nebraska, eighth last week, moved up to sixth with 133 points. Ohio State (95) broke into the Top 10 for the first time, taking seventh place, followed by Notre Dame and Louisiana State, which remained ninth with 71 points. Florida, another newcomer to the Top 10, completed the listing with 63 points.

Alabama, seventh last week, dropped to 11th after an unimpressive victory over Southern Mississippi, followed by Miami, another Top 10 dropout, and Georgia, making its first appearance in the top 20.

The Spartans, despite their 28-10 victory over Baylor Saturday, dropped one spot to 18th.

GRASS TO BE DYED

U-M salt wounds 'S' turf

By GARY WALKOWICZ
State News Sports Writer
As 65,000 football fans saw Saturday, U-M students have drawn first blood in the battle of pranks that precedes the annual U-M-MSU football clash.

A huge U-M facing the south end zone was burned into the Spartan Stadium turf for all the fans at Saturday's MSU-Baylor game to see.

Siebert Meerman, head maintenance man for all MSU athletic fields, said that ordinary salt was the weapon used by the saboteurs.

"The salt was put on the field on the Thursday night before the game," Meerman said. "We believe that it happened around midnight as the gates were open until 11:30 that night."

"It was discovered at 7:00 the next morning as maintenance workers came into the stadium. We immediately tried to flush the salt away, but by then it was too late."

Meerman said that the salted grass is dead and won't come back until next year.

Maintenance and athletic officials met Monday to decide how to repair the field.

"We are going to dye the burned grass sometime before the next home game (October 19)," Meerman said. "We'll experiment with different shades of green until we can find the shade that looks most natural."

"The possibility of sodding the burned area was discussed, but Duffy Daugherty was concerned that the sod wouldn't take hold in just two-and-a-half weeks. I wasn't sure that it would, either," Meerman added.

Ex-Spartan back traded to Falcons

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Forty Niners Sunday traded running back Dwight Lee, a rookie from MSU, to the Atlanta Falcons to make room on their 40-man roster for veteran halfback Clem Daniels, the all-time rushing champion of the American Football League, was cut loose by the Oakland Raiders three weeks ago and has been with the Forty Niners ever since, working out with them in an effort to prove he wasn't washed up.

Lee was considered a bright prospect by the Forty Niners and they used him strictly as a backup man in their two previous 1968 games.

He went to the Falcons in exchange for a future draft choice and joined his new teammates before Sunday's Atlanta-San Francisco game. The Forty Niners did not reveal in what year they will get their draft choice or what number it might be.

You can't get any closer.

Some men think the only way to get a good, close shave is with a blade.

If that's what you think, we'd like to tell you something about the Norelco Tripleheader Speedshaver®.

In a very independent laboratory, we had some very independent men shave one side of their faces with a leading stainless steel blade, and the other side with a new Norelco Tripleheader.

The results showed the Tripleheader shaved as close or closer than the blade in 2 out of 3 shaves.

The Tripleheader has three rotary blades inside new, thin, Microgroove™ heads that "float," so it follows your face, to shave you closer.

The Tripleheader has a pop-up sideburn trimmer. A handy, coiled cord. And a 110/220 voltage selector.

It comes in both a Cord and a Rechargeable model. And it won't pull or nick or cut.

Because it shaves your beard. Not your face.

THIS IS ART?

Lesbian flick flops

By JIM YOUSLING
State News Service

As much as I hate to begin a year of reviewing on an unpleasant note, I must admit that "Therese and Isabelle" is one of the biggest pieces of nonsense that I have ever forced myself to sit through. This pseudo-study of lesbianism is really a shabby excuse to look at a couple of pretty young actresses rolling about in the nude, and it doesn't even do that very well.

It all began two years ago when Radley Metzger produced a nude movie called "I, A Woman." Shrewd man that he was, Mr. Metzger premiered his film simultaneously in a New York art theatre and a 42nd Street grind house, inviting all the major critics to his masterpiece. The critics uniformly panned the film, but the mere fact that it got reviewed made it respectable for the art house trade, and Metzger made a million.

This time around, Metzger hired the same actress, Essy

Day, and directed the film as well as produced it. The result is another hybrid nude flick, with just enough flesh to keep the customers pouring in and just enough artiness to justify the flesh.

In the flesh department, we have Anna Gael and Miss Persson, who specializes in facial expressions suggesting orgasm. The entire film is structured around these two in a cinematic strip-tease.

Love scene No. 1 (between a handsome young stud and a suffering Miss P.) is done fully-clothed, believe it or not. No. 2 (masturbation) gives us a glimpse of Essy's left breast. No. 3 (the first lesbian clinch) takes place outside of camera range, but is graphically narrated for the less imaginative. The rest of the film progresses in this manner, so that by the time we actually see them together, nude and kissing, it is like a stripper taking off her glove after a two-hour dance routine. Who cares?

If "Therese and Isabelle" fails as a skin flick, what about as a psychological study of lesbianism or as a work of cinematic art? While I am no authority on lesbians, I think I know a gross generalization when I see one. Although Violette Leduc, upon whose novel "T&I" is based, is an avowed lesbian, I strongly suspect that this film bears little resemblance to her novel (even though I fear that those purple-passion narration bits were lifted from the novel).

Not since the Rebel-Without-A-Cause Era have so many Freudian clichés been spewed so glibly across the screen. Everything from giggling at a male nude statue to "When my mother remarried, I couldn't sleep with her anymore because there was always a man between us!" These floundering attempts at psychology are hardly a serious investigation of homosexuality, but rather a clumsy justification of those two-naked nymphs.

And in the art film department, well, just forget it. Metzger has tossed in just enough good photography and just enough scrambled-up flashbacks to convince the dumbest among us that he knows what was avant-garde five years ago. BUT even Hollywood knows that. And speaking of Hollywood, the mothers of America will be pleased to know Miss Persson does wind up inexplicably married to a rich, handsome young man.

Finally, I would like to turn to "T&I's" advertising campaign and point out for the historians among you that yes, "T&I" does show just how far movies can go these days, but it also shows how to botch it every step of the way and make a million anyhow. Perhaps "T&I" makes "The Fox" look like a milk-fed puppy, but that milk-fed puppy (which was a pot-boiler at best) seems like a pedigree next to a mutt like "Therese and Isabelle."

'Grapes of Wrath' growers ferment nationwide boycott

DELANO, Calif. (CPS) — "In the souls of the people, the grapes of wrath are filling and growing heavy, growing heavy for the vintage."

So runs the final sentence in a chapter of John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath." What was true almost 40 years ago is still true this month as a strike by California farm workers spread into a nationwide grape boycott.

Farm workers in the United States are still forced to lead lives geared not to advancement but to bare survival. A California grape worker does not have to face the dilemma of whether to buy loafers or hush-puppies for his children—he must worry about having enough money to get shoes of any kind for them.

At present, many grape workers earn less than $1,800 a year. Even if a worker were able to work 40 hours a week every week of the year, he could only earn $2,386 annually, approximately one-half the average wage for all Californians.

Seek Union Benefits
In the 1930's, America's workers won the right to organize and bargain collectively through the National Labor Relations Act. In 1968, farm workers remain excluded from this act. To overcome this handicap and win the benefits enjoyed by other workers—minimum wage, collective bargaining, fringe benefits—the farm workers on Delano, Calif. voted to go on strike for union recognition three years ago this month.

Since the turn of the century, attempts have been made to unionize the farm workers in California, but all of them failed. This time, however, under the leadership of Cesar Chavez, director of the United Farm Workers, farm workers have succeeded in winning collective bargaining agreements for the first time in history. Several major wine companies in California have signed agreements with their workers.

But the strike is now in its 43rd month, and the workers are still out. Some victories have been won; but the goal of total union recognition is still far in the future.

Nationwide Pressure
In an effort to put additional pressure on growers during September—the peak of the grape harvest—and to win nationwide support for the strike, the UFW is devoting most of its energy this fall to enlarging and publicizing a nationwide boycott of table grapes by supermarkets, individuals and companies.

They have distributed posters for car and store windows telling consumers that every grape they buy denies a grape worker's child a meal. Workers have been sent to 26 U.S. cities and Toronto to talk in support of the boycott.

College campuses, which in the West were the earliest areas of support for the Delano strike, are a major target for the workers, who are being helped by local branches of the United Mexican-American Students (UMAS) organization, a new one on many campuses this fall.

Picket Markets
UMAS groups are spending their time rallying campus support for the Delano strikers and picketing supermarkets that carry California grapes (with some results, apparently: one Denver supermarket chain now has signs telling shoppers the grapes "were picked by non-union workers").

Chavez and the strike have received support from Robert Kennedy before his death, Eugene McCarthy and Hubert Humphrey. Richard Nixon has not endorsed the strike. One of the workers' avowed enemies in California is Gov. Ronald Reagan, who last fall reportedly allowed growers to keep the children of workers out of school for two weeks in order to finish the picking, while other children were sent back.

Sales Affected
The boycott, which began in earnest last year, has had some effect on the market. Sales in California are down 20 per cent, and grape markets in New York, Boston, Detroit and Chicago are being closed down. Growers have begun routing their grapes to cities where the boycott is weakest.

The workers say they are seeking four things with the strike: a minimum hourly wage of all times of the year, sanitary working conditions in working areas, a seniority system to protect workers of long standing, and an end to harassment through the appointment of stewards who would represent any worker who felt he had been treated unfairly.

Grape growers win boycott supporters

Although Lansing area stores are no longer being picketed by sympathizers with the California grape boycott, church bulletins and community centers continue to voice appeals not to buy grapes.

The Grape Boycott Organizing Committee in the Lansing area attempted in August to have stores sign agreements not to sell California grapes until the strike in California was over. The committee received written agreements from several stores.

Manuel Delgado, Chairman of the committee, said that some of the stores that had given written agreements went back on their word due to pressure from the Michigan Food Dealers' Assn.

The Lansing City Council passed a resolution Aug. 19 urging all vendors in the Lansing city markets to refrain from purchasing California grapes while the strike was in progress. On Sept. 3 the council rescinded the resolution although the city attorney was of the opinion that the council was not supporting a secondary boycott, as secondary boycott is illegal.

According to Delgado, the strike in California against the grape growers resulted from the refusal of many of the growers to recognize the workers right to organize into a union.

The United Farm Workers, AFL-CIO, struck the Guimarra Vineyards on Aug. 3, 1967. Out of 1,000 employees, 950 walked out. Guimarra obtained a strike-crippling injunction and replaced the strikers with illegally imported labor from Mexico. Delgado said that Guimarra had been investigated for this illegal importation, but no charges have been brought against him as yet.

"As long as Michigan buyers purchase grapes from California, the buyers are conspiring with this grower who is breaking the law in California," Delgado said.

PAC staff to perform eight plays

The Performing Arts Co. (PAC) will emphasize 20th century theatre in its 1968-69 season. The 26 PAC members, a group of theatre majors, will present eight plays, both satirical and serious. The season will open with "The Knack," a half-serious, wholly hilarious look at the love generation. "The Knack" tells the story of three bachelors' preoccupation with sexual conquest, and a 17-year-old girl's reluctance to be conquered. "The Knack" will be presented Oct. 22-27 at Fairchild Theatre.

"Royal Gambit" (Nov. 12-23) examines the private lives of Henry VIII and his six wives, from a modern perspective. "The Government Inspector" (Dec. 3-8) is a comedy of errors that ridicules provincial government.

"Following is "Oh, What a Lovely War" (Jan. 14-25), a British satire on war itself.

From Feb. 4-15 Jean Genet's horrifying vision of man and society will be presented in the play "The Balcony."

The PAC will then satirize the theatre itself in "The Torch Bearers" (Feb. 25-March 2).

A uniquely absorbing play of this theatre season follows with the PAC's production of "Mar-at-Sade" (April 22-27).

Characterization turns from daring to darling when "Little Mary Sunshine" (May 20-25) ruins every musical Jeanette McDonald ever made.

Students may purchase season coupon books for the PAC productions at the PAC business office in the Auditorium. Besides the eight plays, the coupon books entitle the holder to attend a modern dance concert from April 7-12 and seven motion pictures shown on campus during the year.

Auditions for the PAC's fall quarter productions will be held in Room 49 Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday. All interested students are invited to attend.

VC retreat hinted before U.S. vote

PARIS (AP) --The vice president of South Vietnam's Senate predicted Monday that Hanoi will stage a major military withdrawal, allowing President Johnson to call a bombing halt of North Vietnam within 36 days. But Hanoi's official spokesman denied it.

"Something's going to happen before the American presidential elections," said Nguyen Gia Hien, who is visiting here with a parliamentary group from Saigon. The U.S. presidential election is Nov. 5.

He said war-weariness and demoralization will compel the North Vietnamese to begin scaling down the war very soon, without announcing or acknowledging such action. In response, the Johnson administration will call off bombing attacks on the North, said Hien.

But in another news conference, Hanoi spokesman Nguyen Than Le insisted four times that his government still demands a total unconditional halt of all American military operations against the North as the essential prelude to real peacemaking.

Hien estimated that South Vietnam, within three years, "will be strong enough to continue the struggle without the support of United States forces."

Board chairman, said that ASMSU's interests will turn to academic involvement and studying student unrest. And now that ASMSU has organized its top-level structure, prime consideration will be given to the local branches of ASMSU; namely, the hall councils and the major governing groups.

"We want the governing groups to become stronger," Ellsworth said. "The board should stay out where the jurisdiction of the hall councils will suffice."

On academics, Ellsworth said that ASMSU needs to make use of the academic committees.

"We need a goal-oriented effort in the area of academics," he said. "The ASMSU academic council has things to do of an all-University nature. We must utilize the structure."

ASMSU will continue its efforts to amend the Academic Freedom Report section on judicial process, attempting to clarify its wording to guarantee expedient due process.

Work will be done in the area of off-campus housing, especially the apartment situation, Ellsworth said. The board will also explore the possibility of obtaining seats on various East Lansing boards and committees and complete the establishment of an ASMSU better business bureau.

Internally, ASMSU will consider the recommendations of the Blue Ribbon Committee and strive toward political involvement with the cooperation of other state schools and the National Student Assn.

A study committee on student unrest, headed by Jane Lau, the board's Panhellenic representative, will begin operations, working on the premise that "student demonstrations can be healthy," Ellsworth said. "Sometimes student unrest gets out of hand and the participants lose sight of their goals. We will aim not to stifle, nor to encourage student unrest, but rather to channel it into constructive areas."

Although the majority of work in the area of social policy has been completed, Ellsworth said that ASMSU will continue to work toward a comprehensive hours policy for freshmen women and one of visitation. Work will begin to improve and make more desirable life in the residence halls.

Plans are being made to travel by ship, rather than airplane, with the first week of classes taught on shipboard studying British geography and history.

The program will combine group study of over-all aspects of British culture, tutorial work and independent study of a particular subject in the student's major.

The general courses which the whole group will study concentrate on the social revolution in England since World War II, involving the educational system, problems of urban development, conservation of natural resources and new social devices such as transport, mines and electricity.

Students will attend a British university for three weeks with lectures by British professors and will write a general paper. This university experience will be supplemented by week-end travel for on-the-spot study of details studied in the historical survey.

The next three weeks will be spent in London, combining group studies with tutorials in the individual student's area of interest to prepare for independent study.

The final three weeks will be spent in group travel to places of interest in the various fields of concentration or independent study in London or any other part of England.

If the student elects independent study, he will live in a British home, take part in British work in his field and meet and study with British specialists.

Efforts will be made for the students to meet and discuss ment with the cooperation of other state schools and the National Student Assn.

Detroit urbanist pleads equality

DETROIT (UPI) -- Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, urged prominent Detroit businessmen Monday to join the battle for civil rights.

"Gentlemen, we may not have come over on the same ship," Young said in a speech to the Economic Club of Detroit. "But believe me, we are in the same boat."

Young said 10 per cent were active in the civil rights movement and 10 per cent opposed it.

"But the 80 per cent in between is what really matters--they are the guilty ones," he said.

Young told about 700 businessmen that the fact that George C. Wallace, former governor of Alabama, was a serious presidential candidate showed that the country was in trouble.

"The only thing that saves us is that there are three people in the race, not just Wallace and one other candidate," he said.

Plans are being made to travel by ship, rather than airplane, with the first week of classes taught on shipboard studying British geography and history.

Four face contempt charge for comments on Ray trial

The judge who will try James Earl Ray held four persons in contempt Monday on charges they violated his guidelines restricting pre-trial publicity in the case.

Arthur J. Hanes, the attorney for the man charged with the assassination slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., two Memphis newspaper reporters and a private investigator hired by Hanes were held in contempt by Criminal Court Judge W. Preston Battle.

Battle ruled that comments by Hanes and the investigator, and carried in stories written by the reporters, were "extremely prejudicial and con-danger" to impaneling an impartial jury to try Ray.

Battle withheld punishment until a later date, indicating future conduct of the four men might possibly mitigate or purge the contempt finding.

After the hearing, court was reconvened and the attorney for the reporters-Ray Hamilton of the Press-Scimitar and Charles Edmondson of the Commercial Appeal-asked the judge either to reconsider his ruling or sentence the newsmen immediately.

Battle denied the motion to reconsider, and said he was not ready to impose sentence.

contended that holding sentence in abeyance would prevent the reporters from appealing. This, he said, left the way open for any court to abridge freedom of speech and the press.

Bryan called Battle's action "censorship at its virulent best" and added: "The reporters and the newspapers are in limbo not under an order of the court but in the threat of punishment by the court."

"Like it or not," Judge Battle said, "it's my duty to follow justice and that's what I've done."

Rally peaceful, constructive

Stevens, however, said that he supported the board "approximately 98 per cent of the time" ("I just picked that number," he said) and that the trustees had "no leadership" in the University in the past.

The trustees, student government, and the Academic Freedom Report received a blunt criticism from the different speakers.

Larowe compared this latest resolution to the Paul Schiff case (a University grad student dismissed for his controversial activities).

"I hate to see the University dragged into court every three or four years because they can't learn a simple lesson," he said.

Despite student government criticism of the resolution and their drafting of an amendment to the Academic Freedom Report which would be approximately:

Ed Stevenson's getting too big for his britches.

We'll put him in his place.

You can bet it'll be the right place, too, because Ed's turning out to be a good engineer. On his way up.

It started two summers ago when Ed got his B.S. in Mechanical Engineering from Purdue. He was interested in engine propulsion, so we put him to work.

First he worked in the project group that developed a 1,400 shaft horsepower version of the T-53 gas turbine engine. Then he was a Fan Jet Engine Performance Engineer. Right now he's wrapped up in Constant Speed Drives and Ground Support Equipment. And to give you some idea of Ed's dedication to propulsion systems, he spends his evenings at home developing a free-piston engine. There'll be no stopping him from here on, because Ed's working for the world's largest producer of gas turbine engines.

It's a fresh and exciting field—really just beginning and growing fast. Ed's growing with it.

We'd like more eyes-on-the-skies engineers like Ed Stevenson at Avco Lycoming. They'll take a big part in designing new gas turbine engines for new land, sea, air applications.

And they'll find we're a company whose compensation and fringe benefits are the best in the industry, not to mention expense-paid graduate studies at neighboring colleges.

Like the idea? Come visit Avco Lycoming and check out the possibilities. We're in Stratford, Connecticut, just 60 miles from New York.

If you can't come, write Professional Placement Manager, Department 196, Avco Lycoming Division, Stratford, Connecticut. Or see your Placement Officer.

Administrators consider protest

Dickerson repeated his earlier statements that the resolution provided powers to be used in extreme cases and that the University has the possibilities of other things in keeping the university open.
"It would take a really tough case" to suspend a student," he said.
Dickerson also commented that he felt the faculty must consider, "in the next few days," what would be the proper faculty action for "students disrupting class."

"Should they dismiss class," the other students in the class from attending? Or should the faculty member kick the student out, even if the student is physically bigger than he is?"

he said, "it certainly contributed to it."
"I put the resolution into student and faculty channels to command what I think ought to be," he said.

Blow

While noting that "our faculty have never been faced with this situation," Dickerson said such disruptions have already occurred several times this fall at the University of Wisconsin.
In evaluating the rally, Nonnamaker said the exchange of ideas was appropriate for the university as the place of "free exchange of ideas."
"It gave people a chance to think about this (the resolution and the criticism of it). Nonnamaker said, "I don't know whether the rally itself could be accredited with originating specific constructive action but,

All seemed concerned about the resolution and the future of academic freedom, however, for at least they were there. They lounged about in the grass or stood on the sidewalks, talking to friends, listening to the speakers and roundly cheering those who spoke against the resolution. Their very presence registered their concern and in some cases outright damning of the system while the proponents of what they stood against remained conspicuous in their absence.

Board reaction

become obvious to most of us what our role is. We're supposed to quiet everyone down."

Speaking of the rally in general, Miss Hughes said, "I was pleased. It came out much more integrated than I expected; it was so beautifully unified all around that I don't think they (the trustees) have a chance to back down."

Sue Landers, the board's Women's Inter-residence Council representative, said, "I think the rally was significant in that it showed that students of very divergent groups can be united when it's a question of rights for all students and not just a select few."

Petitions stating opposition to the resolution were circulated at the rally. Richard Fox, Lansing senior, who initiated the petition idea, said that it is essential that the students sign them.
"It's a good thing that members of the faculty and administration are supporting student rights, but if the student themselves won't support themselves, it's worthless," he said.

Fox, who addressed the rally as an independent, said that another rally is planned for 3 p.m. Thursday, when the petitions will be collected and carried in a procession to the Administration Bldg., where they will be presented to the administration.

"If we have several hundred people there to present the petitions, how can the Administration ignore them?" Fox said.
The petition reads, "Whereas the Board of Trustees on Sept. 20 approved a resolution which is basically and inherently in violation of the Academic Freedom Report, and its guarantee of due process, and which constitutes an illegal amendment to the Academic Freedom Report; we the undersigned students, call upon the Board of Trustees to reaffirm their support for the Academic Freedom Report by reconsidering and rescinding this illegal resolution."

Dzodin said that there will be another rally on Thursday unless the matter is decided before then, "which is a possibility."

Committees

Frank Pinner, professor of political science and representative of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), proposed that the Steering Committee "suggest that the council demand the rule to be rescinded."

"To ask that the matter be put on the agenda in no way guarantees that an unconstitutional rule will be removed," Pinner said. "The point is that we must realize that anything on suspension is illegal and unconstitutional. The Council should ask to have the rule rescinded no matter what may be considered by the Faculty Committee."

This, Hathaway answered, is to imply that the Steering Committee can direct the council to do something, which is not true.
