'TIME TO TWIST ARMS'

LeMay urges greater pressure in Vietnam

PITTSBURGH (AP) -- Former Air Force Chief of Staff Curtis E. LeMay joined George C. Wallace as his vice presidential candidate Thursday and urged more military pressure on North Vietnam.

Attacking what he said was an American policy of "no will to win," the famous flying general of World War II said he, too, would rather talk than fight.

But, he said, "When you get in it, get in it with both feet, and get it over with as soon as you can."

"I think there are many cases when it would be more efficient to use nuclear weapons," said LeMay, described by a military biographer as the "architect of systematic destruction" for his bombing raids on Germany.

"I don't think it would be necessary in Vietnam. I've always said that," he went on. "But I don't think they are going to negotiate at Paris until we twist their arm a little more."

Campaigning in Welch, W. Va., Vice President Hubert Humphrey said he was shocked at the way LeMay talked about the use of nuclear weapons.

"It would be disastrous if anyone who spoke as Gen. LeMay did this morning should come into a position of high responsibility," Humphrey said.

Wallace, introducing the stocky, hard-driving father of the Strategic Air Command, said he had always admired LeMay's blunt language.

"In Gen. LeMay we have a man who, through close personal contact, has a working knowledge of the aims, the goals and the capabilities of our nation's enemies as well as her friends," Wallace said.

"I might add here that he, unlike some of our so-called high level diplomats, recognizes the difference between the two."

LeMay, without the cigar he usually has clamped in his teeth, said, "Some of my friends are surprised at my being here today. I am somewhat surprised myself."

Reading slowly from a prepared text, the 61-year-old LeMay said he declined the first time Wallace asked him to be the No. 2 man on the American Independent Party ticket.

But after thinking about it, he said, his refusal seemed the same as the Vietnam position of some people--presumably the doves who don't want to fight.

Although a lifelong Republican, he said he rejected both the GOP and the Democrats because they offer nothing more than a continuation of deteriorating moral values, bad money policy and crime in the streets.

"I see in Gov. Wallace new, positive action," he said. "After adding up all the factors, I decided to dedicate myself in joining him in getting this country back on the right track."

Wallace has stressed in his speeches that, should peace negotiations fail, he would seek to end the Vietnam war "militarily and with convention weapons."

Flying from Pittsburgh to Indianapolis with LeMay accompanying him, Wallace said he was convinced he and his running mate saw eye to eye on the issue of nuclear weapons.

"Gen. LeMay has told me privately," Wallace said in an interview, "that he is against all war. He said to me, 'We can't have a third world war; a third world war would destroy civilization.' And he said the best way to prevent it is to be strong militarily."

Faculty committee okays recommendation on ruling

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs unanimously approved Wednesday night a recommendation that the Board of Trustees repeal its controversial suspension rule.

The committee will also recommend to the Academic Council that it assign the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs in cooperation with Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) and the administration to develop University procedures for avoiding and coping with emergency situations of student disturbances on campus.

The exercise of the suspension powers contained in the Trustees resolution is an "unnecessary abrogation" of due process guaranteed in the Academic Freedom Report, the faculty committee said in its statement.

It is the opinion of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, the statement reads, that this resolution would be ineffective in resolving the kinds of problems they believe the Board of Trustees to have had in mind. It would seem to the committee that the resolution contained no example of situations which could not be better resolved through the structure and processes already contained in the Academic Freedom Report.

The recommendations will be presented to the Academic Council at its first fall term meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The faculty committee acted on a request by the Steering Committee of the Academic Council that the faculty committee review the suspension rule and present its recommendations to the council.

The suspension rule, which was passed by the trustees in their Sept. 20 finance committee meeting, would give the president "or his designee" the power to suspend a student who "constitutes an immediate threat to the normal and orderly operation of the University" pending the outcome of judicial procedures established in the Academic Freedom Report.

The controversy over the rule concerns such suspension being a violation of a student's rights to due process and the trustees' having by-passed channels provided for in the Academic Freedom Report to adopt the resolution.

According to the report, the resolution should have been approved by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, ASMSU and the Academic Council as well as the trustees.

Pending full discussion of the matter by faculty and students, President John A. Hannah has suspended use of the rule and has placed it on the agenda of the trustees Oct. 17 meeting for reconsideration.

'U' acquires Martin 404 for air fleet

MSU's mini-fleet of airplanes, consisting of one DC-3 that seats 24, was increased by another machine through the Board of Trustees' acceptance of a $75,000 Martin 404 in their Finance Committee meeting Sept. 20.

The acceptance of the aircraft was one of several items of business considered by the trustees in the closed session that had allowed Philip J. May, Vice President for Business and Finance, to return after his sabbatical leave.

Like the DC-3, the Martin 404 is assigned to the state of Michigan's Dept. of Aeronautics, which maintains and schedules the use of it. University officials will contract for and finance use of the planes for university activities, such as athletic team trips.

The plane, a gift from the Whirlpool Corp. of Benton Harbor, has a capacity of 40 seats, according to Merrill R. Pierson, assistant Treasurer.

Pierson said the plane, still in Benton Harbor, will be moved to the Capitol City airport in Lansing "soon."

Other items considered by the trustees included:

-Approval of a recommendation by Provost Dr. Howard Neville for suggesting a new system of awards for excellence in teaching by graduate assistants. They will be called the MSU Teacher-Scholar awards.

-Considered several items related to the University's investment portfolio, purchase of property.

-Accepted a report by Jack Breslin, University Secretary, on the ratification of the Union contract for nonacademic employees with changes reported that were made after a tentative agreement approved by the Board in July.

The major change was the decision to grant an "agency shop" to the Union. This requires non-union members to pay a "service charge" equal to union dues in units with a clear majority of union members.

Tigers win

The Detroit Tigers, paced by the pitching and hitting of Mickey Lolich, bombed the St. Louis Cardinals 8-1 Thursday to even the World Series at one game each.

Lolich scattered six Cardinal hits going the distance and drive in two Tiger runs with a single and his first major league home run.

Willie Horton and Norm Cash also had solo home runs for Detroit, while Dick McAuliffe contributed a two-run single.

Snipers disrupt Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) -- Troops hunted room to room through a huge apartment complex Thursday for snipers silenced by army fire in the most vicious battle of Mexico City's student rebellion, which has claimed at least 40 lives since mid-July. Tanks roved downtown streets.

The Executive Committee of the International Olympic Committee, headed by Avery Brundage, met to ponder possible effects of the disorders on the 1968 Olympic Games, scheduled to open Oct. 12 at the University of Mexico.

Fierce fighting Wednesday night between student rebels and the forces of President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz' government in the area of the Plaza of Three Cultures left at least 25 dead, hundreds injured and thousands in jail.

One Mexico City newspaper reported 40 dead overnight.

There was no immediate breakdown of casualties, but most of the 25 bodies seen by Associated Press staff members were those of civilians. Troops said a home made bomb killed three soldiers.

The battleground, as in a bloody fight last week, was the Tlatelolco district around the plaza, an area of high-rise, low-rent apartments, some occupied by students.

About 6,000 persons had gathered in the plaza for an antigovernment rally. The muted whump of a mortar was the first signal that there might be real trouble. The mortar fired phosphorus flares that illuminated the crowd. Many ran in panic.

Helicopters also were aloft. Soldiers with fixed bayonets moved on the plaza from all sides. No more than 30 seconds after the last flare fell, a single shot--apparently aimed at a soldier--set off a roar of fire and counterfire.

Machine guns squads raked windows and rooftops from which rebels fired at them with rifles and pistols. The fight raged for most of the night. Snipers fell silent a few hours before dawn.

Oriana Fallici, an Italian newspaper-woman, wounded in the fight, said: "I have covered the Vietnam war, but I have never seen anything similar to what happened last night..."

Miss Fallici, 40, was shot in the right thigh, left knee and in the back. She is under treatment at the French hospital.

"I was standing on a balcony overlooking the plaza with some student leaders who were speaking to the crowd," she said.

Protest leader leaves court at HUAC trial

WASHINGTON (AP) -- An antiwar protest leader walked out and another witness refused to answer questions on whether he was a Communist Thursday at hearings by a House subcommittee on un-American activities.

An undercover police agent charged the groups that planned the riotous Chicago demonstrations during the Democratic National Convention favor violent overthrow of the U.S. government. He quoted one Yippie leader as saying all the presidential candidates should be killed and the government toppled.

Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., chairman of the subcommittee, said earlier testimony had cited 21 Communists as participants in the Chicago disorders last August. He did not identify any of them by name.

Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman was arrested as he tried to enter the congressional building wearing a shirt with a stars and stripes design. Two other protesters also were seized by police.

Robert Freenblat, a Hungarian-born immigrant, walked out of the hearing after refusing to answer questions on his role as coordinator of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

Dr. Quentin B. Young, a physician who helped organize medical care for the protesters injured in the street battles with Chicago police, refused to answer a question on whether he is a Communist.

Young said the question was "an unconstitutional invasion of my rights" of privacy. He cited the First Amendment, which guarantees freedom of speech and the right of peaceful assembly.

Ichord told the Chicago doctor that the Peruvian coup results in violence

Peruvian troops overthrew the troubled government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry in an apparently bloodless coup Thursday, but within hours student mobs were battling with troops and police in the streets.

Whisked off by plane to exile in Buenos Aires, Belaunde, 55, declared on arrival that he had been overthrown "by a barracks coup, not by the armed forces of the constitutional government."

It was announced in Lima, however, that Gen. Juan Velasco, army chief of staff and president of the joint chiefs, had been made head of the revolutionary government.

The coup came 12 hours after Belaunde had installed a new 11 member Cabinet, the seventh in his five-year-old regime: It was reported later that the Cabinet had met in the Foreign Ministry Building to condemn the coup.

The coup was quiet, swift and without violence. Led by a column of tanks, troops burst into the presidential palace at about an assault by a policeman bowled a tear gas grenade into the group, scattering them.

A mob of youths then headed down the main streets of Lima, tearing down signs, smashing windows and setting fire to cars.

Young men tried to gain access to the roofs of hotels and other business buildings, hoping to hurl bricks at police below. But most were apprehended.

All universities and other schools and most shops in the city were closed. Most taxi drivers refused business, preferring to park their cars on side streets where they might escape rampaging mobs.

A report from Arequipa, Peru's second city said the provincial governor had been arrested.

Soldiers took control of Peru's telephone companies.

The coup was reminiscent of the takeover of July 1962 when the military ousted President Manuel Prado and installed junta. Belaunde was elected to a six-year term in July 1963 with the restoration of civil constitutional rule.

In recent months, Belaunde had lost support and it became apparent that a coup was in the cards.

The present crisis erupted following the signing of a new contract with International Petroleum Corp., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Belaunde's opponents claimed that Peru came out on the short end of that deal.

The controversy caused a split in Belaunde's party and finally resulted in the resignation of Premier Osvaldo Herceles and his Cabinet on Tuesday.

Belaunde, member of a distinguished Peruvian family, had caught the public imagination as a new type of politician on the national scene.

Although his training and early professional life were in architecture, Belaunde had always been connected with politics through his father, Rafael Belaunde Diez Canseco, twice the premier.

U.S. policymakers glum over recent Peru coup

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. policymakers privately voiced unhappiness Thursday over the coup in Peru, but they expect the new military leadership to be pro-West and anti-Communist. And eventual recognition of the new regime seems likely.

On the record, the State Department held to a strict no comment on judging the pre-dawn Army overthrow of President Fernando Belaunde Terry.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey indicated the United States would consult with its hemisphere allies on what posture to adopt toward the new regime-but would like Latin Americans to make the first move.

Off the record, U.S. authorities acknowledged the military takeover came as a setback to the goal of governmental change in Latin America through democratic means—a goal of U.S. policy and of the U.S.-supported Alliance for Progress hemisphere development program.

Coverly T. Oliver, asst. secretary of state for inter-American affairs, had been citing the absence of a coup in Latin America since the June 1966 Argentine military takeover as a sign of growing democratic stability in the area.

Just what Washington will do next depends on developments.

Initial reports indicated the army headed by Gen. Juan Velasco had moved in after a political crisis enveloped the Belaunde government, fearing a breakdown of order and a possible coming to power of a group headed by Raul Haya DeLa Torre, regarded by the military as a leftist.

Velasco is rated here as friendly to the United States and is staunchly anti-Communist. However, U.S. officials viewed Belaunde as a moderate who was cooperating in the Alliance for Progress and with whom Washington could conduct business in a coherent way.

After the latest previous coup in Peru, in 1962, the Kennedy administration tried to show U.S. disapproval by breaking off U.S. relations and aid. The experiment failed to dislodge the junta, and Washington wound up a month later by joining a number of other Latin American countries in recognizing the new Lima leadership.

Pied Piper fete staged for kids

The Pied Piper is coming to town! Saturday morning, a genuine relic of the past, a troubadour, minstrel and lover of children will be parading down the sidewalks of East Lansing in commemoration of the 21st annual David Gilbert Birthday Celebration.

Gilbert, Cincinnati Ohio senior and dabbler in activities from Collage Director to ODK, will lead the parade, which will culminate in a party for all children who wish to come.

"I expect from 15 to 150 kids," Gilbert said, "and we'll have a blast!" The party will include home-baked cakes, ice cream, popcorn and free rides on Gilbert's shoulders for those under 75 pounds.

"The heavier kids can practice judo with me," Gilbert said, proudly displaying his green belt (just above beginner's).

The party is co-sponsored by the Order of the Owl, a non-profit organization for the propagation of love and joy.

Gilbert, Founder and Director of the Order of the Owl, said that his organization intends to come out in full force. Highlighting the birth festivities will be a Farewell to Skip Rudolph and a Prayer for President Johnson, both of whose birthdays coincide with Gilbert's.

All children age five and above are welcome to the party, which will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday at 229 Division Street. Admission to the party is one balloon.

Senate allocates billions to defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate gave overwhelming approval Thursday to a record $71.9-billion defense appropriations bill after beating back efforts to trim funds for a missile defense system and to impose other cuts.

A 55-2 roll call sent the measure to conference with the House which voted $352 million more for the Defense Department.

The over-all measure allocates, in rounded sums, $24.3 billion to the Air Force; $23.2 billion to the Army; $20.4 billion to the Navy; and $4 billion to various other defense agencies. By functions it gives $22.6 billion for personnel; $21.8 billion for operation and maintenance; $19.9 billion for new planes, ships and other equipment; and $7.6 billion for research and development.

An estimated $25.8 billion of the total will go for Vietnam war costs but the Pentagon is expected to request supplemental funds later.

Before Thursday's votes rejected efforts to cut $6 billion from the bill, it already had been reduced $5.2 billion from President Johnson's original request-but it remained the biggest single money bill every voted by the Senate.

The previous record was last year's $69.9-billion defense appropriation.

RISK OF WAR

Gromyko cautions West

UNITED NATIONS. (AP) — A. Gromyko declared Thursday that interference by the West in Czechoslovakia or any other Communist Bloc country would run the risk of a new world war. But in a policy speech to the 125-nation General Assembly he tempered firm words on West Berlin, Germany and Czechoslovakia with an offer to enter into negotiations immediately with the United States on limiting ballistic missiles, and on other disarmament measures. Gromyko appeared to be holding out a kind of olive branch to the United States with these words: "We are for friendship with the peoples of North America, including the people of the United States, who will always remember the tradition of joint struggle in the ranks of the anti-Hitler coalition, and who also shoulder a tremendous responsibility for the preservation of world peace!" But in obvious reply to U.S. avowal that the Western allies would defend West Germany and West Berlin against armed intervention, Gromyko asserted: "West Berlin has never belonged, nor does it belong, nor will it ever belong, to the Federal Republic of West Germany. If sometimes an aggravation of tensions may occur here, the responsibility for this lies squarely with the West German government."

Rusk listened intently to the Gromyko speech, and told a reporter afterward it was serious in nature and contained no surprises. He described it as a general review of Soviet policy, and added: "It didn't answer the questions asked in my speech."

Rusk told the assembly Wednesday that the Soviet-led armed intervention in Czechoslovakia endangered world peace and he challenged the Soviet Union to say when their troops would leave.

Gromyko was firm in upholding the Soviet contention that the "Socialist commonwealth" alone concerned the "Socialist commonwealth" alone.

Gromyko said attempts were being made to reproach the Soviet Union for Events in Czechoslovakia. He added that no one should be surprised by the Soviet reaction to what he called a threat to the Socialist world.

"You know only too well that there was nothing abrupt in the measures of self-defense taken by the Socialist countries against imperialist intrigues," he asserted. "The Soviet Union and other Socialist countries have on many occasions warned those who are tempted to try and roll back the gains of the commonwealth, to stand at least one link on it, that we will neither tolerate nor allow this to happen."

On Germany, Gromyko made no specific reference to claims that the Soviet Union could legally intervene militarily.

LeMay's Vietnam view opposes U.S. gradualism

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Curt LeMay turned out to be right so much of the time. But he disqualified himself as an adviser because of the ultimates he proposed."

So spoke a top Pentagon official of the McNamara era, looking back on the days when Vietnam war policy was being debated in secret government councils.

This onetime civilian official, now out of public life and preferring anonymity, said Gen. Curtis E. LeMay "was always six to nine months ahead of where we finally got."

But, he said, the onetime Air Force chief of staff and now vice presidential candidate on George C. Wallace's third party ticket "wanted to do a helluva lot more than we could have accepted... like bombing China."

LeMay was an opponent of "gradualism" in the Vietnam war almost from the outset in 1962.

A bluff spoken soldier, LeMay, ruffled many civilian officials and senior officers of other services.

But never, during his four year as Air Force chief, did he carry his policy differences to the public platform or to the press, except when he was being questioned by congressional committees-and this was within the rules.

Everybody knew LeMay had deep splits with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and they always thought an explosion would come. But it did not.

Not until after LeMay retired on Jan. 31, 1965 did he begin to speak out.

The air war against North Vietnam did not begin until a week after LeMay's retirement.

But it was apparent from what he told The Associated Press last year that he had been pressing for bombing North Vietnam since about early 1962—three years earlier.

"We have been using air and naval power in a piddling manner," LeMay said in 1967.

"If we had done what we are doing now five years ago, as I recommended, the shock effect might have stopped them then, but it's too late for this now."

Since then the air war has been throttled way down—which is the opposite direction from the one LeMay advocated in the past.

The gaudy and unreal reality

Five years ago, Gov. George Wallace stood in the doorway of the University of Alabama in a defiant attempt to block a federal court order for school integration in his state.

Today, citizen George Wallace stands in front of his bullet-proof speaking podium throughout the country in an attempt to become its next President.

Wallace hasn't changed much in the years that have elapsed since his governorship days. He is still an arch-segregationist, a racist and an opponent of the Supreme Court. In fact, Wallace would have been an unlikely major presidential candidate in any previous modern campaign year.

Wallace's candidacy is a tragic phenomenon. Of the three candidates in '68, Wallace is the least qualified. Indeed, he is unqualified for the Presidency. He has no background in foreign affairs, national domestic problems or in running an effective government.

During the years that Wallace was governor of Alabama, that state ranked as one of the poorest in the country. Alabama was among the leaders in the states that had high welfare, unemployment and criminal rates at that time.

Wallace owes his prominence in the presidential race to three main factors. First, the party boss system of America, in nominating Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey, left many voters still looking for an adequate candidate. A third party offered a new face, with simplistic answers to all the problems.

The turbulence that has been an ever-present part of internal America in 1968 has also helped Wallace. Claiming that "we are tired of the way this country is being run," he has offered himself as the key to change in America.

The "fear chord" of each American citizen has been aroused by Wallace. That is his most powerful weapon. His promise of "law and order" has offered a restful respite to many voters throughout the U.S. Wallace appears to bring out the inter fears and feelings of his followers. He knows that there is a little bit of "George Wallace" in every American and has sought to gain from it.

Wallace's vote-getting strength comes from the Southern states, the blue-collar labor unions and from the backlash white collar workers. But there is little reason to believe that he will carry more than nine states in the electoral vote. He should not be the next President.

Whatever the outcome of this election, however, Wallace may well be back on the presidential scene in 1972. The success that he has had in 1968 will only encourage him to try again.

But, by that time, the threat of George Wallace should be past. America, hopefully, will have had its taste of sickness. Especially George Wallace sickness.

Nixon's credibility problem

The most important single thing about Richard Nixon is Richard Nixon, and the most important single thing about Hubert Humphrey is Hubert Humphrey. That may sound like tautology, but it is also the nub of the presidential campaign.

The choice lies not so much between the positions the candidates take as between their personalities and credibility as leaders. In terms not on where they stand but what they are. This applies to an extent to George Wallace, too, but less so, because his positions are in themselves so extreme. In this piece I shall be dealing mainly with Nixon, in later ones with the others.

All the doubts about Nixon converge on the central doubt, not about his skills or will but about his credibility, just as the doubts about Humphrey converge on his quality of command. Nixon has performed wonders with his own public image, transforming it almost beyond recognition in the space of six years (his low point was the California election in 1962). But the changeover job has been too successful. Its very completeness raises questions about the sleight-of-hand techniques by which it was accomplished.

These doubts have been fed by his vagueness on the substantive issues where a sharp stand might hurt his image. This has been especially true of the war and foreign policy.

The war is not the crucial issue of the campaign, as compared with domestic violence, but it raises the central problem of Nixon's credibility. Both Nixon and Humphrey historically have been Hawks on Vietnam, Humphrey in his vice presidential capacity in a war Administration, Nixon even longer, ever since he proposed American military intervention to swing the balance to the French side when Vietnam was still Indochina. Both have tried to move away from this position. But Humphrey, still caught with Johnson on his back, has done it by dealing with specific phases of the war and peace, however incompletely, while Nixon has done it by silence, except for his wishful and vague promise to seek an "honorable" peace.

What is an "honorable" peace? How does Nixon propose to achieve it? Alas, the answer has been silence.

I don't recall any comparable silence on the part of a major candidate in a major democracy since Harold Wilson refused to talk about foreign or military policy at the Labor Party conference in 1963, before the election that brought him to power. Wilson got away with it, and everyone thought it terribly clever of him, as they do now of Nixon. But Wilson brought England to disaster because he out-clevered himself, and the question about Nixon in my mind is whether he, too, will out-clever himself, and whether the qualities needed for an election will be adequate to the problems of the nation and the world.

One must raise the same question about domestic issues. How does Nixon propose to deal with the bitterness of the Negro in the ghetto, and with the white-black split? His earlier answer—"black capitalism"—has evoked very little response from the black Americans, and there is nothing in it which is not contained in the "total coalition" approach already being tried, which Humphrey accepts as part of his plan for the ghettos.

Actually, as Wallace has grown to be Nixon's real headache, rather than Humphrey, Nixon has shifted from his interest in ghetto economics to a law-and-order approach meant to snare the voter who is seceding to Wallace. This is Nixon's real bind. If it proves true that Wallace is taking two votes from Nixon for every vote he takes from Humphrey, then Nixon must move in Wallace's direction, as he has been doing in his attacks on the college students and on the Supreme Court decisions guarding the constitutional rights of accused men. But the more Nixon does it, to head off Wallace, the more he loses his chosen image of the cool moderate, and the closer he comes to the image of the "old" Nixon.

Gun control: at least a start

Senate and House conferees are currently meeting to work out a compromise between the two gun control measures passed within each body.

The bills are hampered by the pressures exerted on the legislators by radicals of both the extreme left and right (although the rightists have notably greater influence), hunters, and especially the powerful National Rifle Association (NRA).

The deluge of mail Congress received urging strong gun control measures, following the assassinations of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has only partially succeeded in alleviating the organized pressure the NRA has used for years to keep gun control bills from coming into law.

The House version, for example, includes an amendment that would exempt the NRA from the ban on mail-order shipments of guns and ammunition, maintaining its very profitable position as the receptacle of the Army's surplus ammunition.

It also would exempt rifle, shotgun, and .22 caliber rim-fire ammunition from the ban on interstate shipment.

This is not to say that the upper house has been totally immune to the pressure of the gun lobby. The Senate bill does not ban the sale of weapons of mass destruction, such as machine guns, cannon, and mortars. Nor did it provide an effective means for making sure that gun dealers sell only to persons legally able to purchase firearms.

Nor have all Senators been free to vote as their conscience dictates on the bills, due to pressures from hunters within their home states.

But the bill in no way interferes with the rights of hunters—at least the 77 senators who voted for the bill, including both Michigan Sen. Hart and Griffin, didn't feel that way.

It does not prohibit anyone of legal age who is competent from owning a gun, or doing with it that which he likes, be it hunting, collecting, target shooting, or any other legal pursuit.

What it does is require him to prove that he is competent.

Q: What do they mean by "the quick and the dead?"
A: The two categories of people who attempt to cross Grand River Avenue.

Hubert Humphrey just changed his campaign from "Happy Talk" to "Mission: Impossible."

eliminates mail order sales and out-of-state purchases, and strikes its strongest blows at the use of firearms while committing crimes of violence. It provides for up to life imprisonment for persons committing crimes of violence up to and including assassination and down to rape and theft, a provision which may do much to stem the tide of gunslinging bandits and long-distance killers who have terrorized the country.

Neither the Senate nor the House version of the gun control bill goes nearly as far as it should. No form of legislation or licensing is included, and a buyer is not required to show himself knowledgeable in gun-handling.

Hopefully, however, the bill will emerge from the joint conference committee at least without being substantially weakened. If it does not, the gun lobby will have to answer to the nation for its hypocrisy in being, in its own words, "the greatest supporters of law and order in the U.S." on the one hand, and its opposition to a bill which makes more progress toward attaining that end than any other currently pending or being considered by either house.

There can be little rational objection to a bill which provides no more control of guns than is required of far less lethal alcohol or pharmaceuticals.

OUR READERS' MINDS

Freedom Report relevant

To the Editor: President Hannah in his statement of Oct. 1, 1968 has indicated his regret that he had not consulted students and faculty in the draft of the resolution in question. He has indicated his feeling that he will not enact this suspension power, pending a final decision, and he will ask for suspension of this phrase, which many concerned see to be objectionable. He also requests that the due process of the present machinery in the University is involved in resolving this problem.

It appears to us that this is a most responsible approach to reconcile a problem which students, faculty and some of the trustees see as necessary to guarantee the rights of the students. If we are to function relevantly in the educational process, this type of discussion involving all parties is mandatory.

This does not mean that the discussion of this particular question is over by any means, but the rights of the students and faculty are being observed in this process. We do feel that further clarification is needed, and Academic Freedom Report amendments are presently being submitted by ASMSU to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs to do just that. Once again this question is not resolved, but President Hannah's approach reaffirms our belief in the relevancy of the Academic Freedom Report.

A good resolution

To the Editor: I wish to express my approval of the resolution passed at the September meeting of the Board of Trustees, which authorizes the President of MSU or his designee, when "confronted by an instance where the activity of a student constitutes an immediate threat to the normal and orderly operation of the University," to "suspend such student pending outcome of the established procedures set forth in the Academic Freedom Report."

I sincerely hope that if such a situation should arise, the President will invoke this resolution without delay, armed with the knowledge that he is acting in the interests of the students who wish to learn and the faculty who wish to teach.

Peter W. Avery
Auburn, N.Y., freshman

If the trustees resolution were reaffirmed, the Freedom Report would be irrelevant, but until that time, if it ever arises, the channels are open and must be utilized until such time as they are no longer responsible.

The question of due process in the judicial area is still to be decided, but it is important that in this decision, legislative due process must be observed and the statement by President Hannah indicates that this will be the case.

Voice dissent!

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, Oct. 1 the President of this University made a statement concerning the general disturbance over the Board of Trustees resolution of Sept. 20. In his statement, Hannah claims that the University community has misunderstood the resolution and that it should be clarified through amending and/or rewording. As a student, an ASMSU Board member and a citizen of the United States, I find this gesture not at all satisfactory. The question involved is not that the resolution is poorly worded or misunderstood, but that it is a violation of students' rights as laid down in the Academic Freedom Report, and that the procedures followed in passing the resolution violated the legislative processes of this University.

It is imperative that all students, faculty and administrators at MSU, who feel that the Board of Trustees has acted in poor faith and without regard to legal procedures, must keep this issue alive until it is resolved. The petitions which went out this week are an excellent means of showing our discontent, so are letters to the editor of the State News, members of the Board of Trustees and Hannah. Let us prove that when rights are violated, this University community is not apathetic, and VOICE OUR DISSSENT.

The London Daily Sketch reported Lt. Cecil Willson, photographic officer aboard the British aircraft carrier Eagle, said the fake negative was produced for recognition study before the NATO exercise.

"Somehow a copy of the recognition photograph was mistaken for the real thing," the Sketch quoted an official as saying.

Plane downed in Vietnam, Navy lists pilot as missing

SAIGON (AP) — The United States announced Thursday the loss of another plane over North Vietnam, as American ground forces hurled back an enemy attack on a U.S. base near Saigon.

The plane, a U.S. Navy A4 Skyhawk from the carrier Hancock, was downed Wednesday by ground fire two miles below the 19th parallel, spokesmen said, and the pilot was seen ejecting. His parachute opened, but he was not found and is listed as missing.

It raised to 903 the number of American planes downed in combat over the North since the air campaign began in February 1965.

In the South, enemy forces lobbed more than 100 rounds of mortar shells into a U.S. base 14 miles northwest of Saigon, then sent in a platoon of soldiers in apparent attempt to test American defenses.

The enemy pulled back after an hour of fighting, leaving 13 dead behind. Four Americans were reported wounded. The base was a nameless artillery position of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division.

Earlier, South Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing 22 of the enemy a mile away from the U.S. base. No government casualties were reported. Elsewhere, the U.S. Command reported little ground activity.

December's draft highest in months

WASHINGTON (AP) — about the same as last summer's induction levels. Draft calls this year have ranged as high as 48,000, which was April's figure.

The Pentagon today ordered the drafting of 17,500 men for the Army and Marine Corps in December.

The Army will get 15,000 and the Marine Corps 2,500. It marked the second time this year the Marines, traditionally an all-volunteer outfit, resorted to the draft. The corps took 1,900 inductees last May.

The December draft is the highest in four months and

The December draft actually is greater than it appears since all 17,500 men will be taken into service during the first two weeks of the month. The Defense Department generally avoids drafting men the last half of December because of the Christmas holiday season.

LOLICH HOMERS IN WINNING EFFORT

Tiger batters bomb Cards, 8-1

Tiger power

Willie Horton gets the Detroit Tigers off to a fast start in the second game of the World Series with a second inning home run off St. Louis pitcher Nelson Briles. Horton's homer was one of three hit by the Tigers as they bombed the Cardinals 8-1 and evened the Series at one game each.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Mickey Lolich, shrugging off a groin infection that was supposed to weaken him, left the St. Louis Cardinals dazed with a strong six-hitter and his first Major League homer Thursday as the Detroit Tigers bombed the St. Louis Cardinals 8-1 to even the World Series at a game apiece. Lolich, who developed the infection overnight and was told of the doctor that it might prevent him from going all the way, was powerful at the finish as he allowed only two hits in the final three innings. Striking out nine batters in addition to clouting his 330-foot homer in the third inning, Lolich picked the Tigers off the floor where they had been left by the Cards' Bob Gibson. After a day off Friday, the tied-up Series now goes to Detroit for the third, fourth and fifth games, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Lolich, who became a left-handed pitcher as the result of a childhood accident on a bicycle, admitted that his triumph left him "so exhausted I'm ready to fall asleep on the trainer's table." But the Cards were left even more stunned as the explosive Tigers flashed the kind of hitting prowess that terrorized the American League. All told, the Tigers had 13 hits, including three homers off starter and loser Nelson Briles. Towering homers by Willie Horton, who had 36 during the regular season, and by Norm Cash, who had 25, in the sixth inning dismayed the capacity crowd of 54,692 at Busch Memorial Stadium. But they were really stunned 144 hitter this season even though he's a southpaw pitcher, collected two hits—including the first homer in six seasons with He also walked—all things—with the bases loaded in the ninth to force in a run, giving him two runs-batted-in.

With the last full weekend of non-conference scheduling past, the Big Ten remains on the cloudy side of the win-loss ledger with 8 wins balanced against 11 misfires. Illinois, Minnesota, Northwestern and the Spartans' Saturday opponent, Wisconsin, have yet to post a win, while Purdue, Ohio State and early boys are the only surviving unbeaten.

The conference race begins Saturday for six teams, but four non-conference games are on tap this weekend. With six additional outside encounters scattered throughout the remainder of the season, the Big Ten season has all the appearances of an eventual 14-15 outside mark.

Saturday's games: ILLINOIS (0-2) at INDIANA (1-1)—While the season hasn't been as spectacular as the Hoosiers' newly acquired faithful had hoped, the Cardiac Kids should have an easy time with lack-luster Illini. The Hoosiers, by 10.

NOTRE DAME (1-1) at IOWA (1-1)—Even though the records are the same, the brands of football are entirely different. Judging from past performances following humiliating Irish losses, Notre Dame should be good by 30 points.

NAVY (0-2) at MICHIGAN (1-1)—The Wolverines have Navy in their sights for this must game. The Wolves have it by seven.

PURDUE (2-0) at NORTHWESTERN (0-2)—In the third of the Wildcats' fatal five, Smilin' Jack's boys are in for an easy time. Purdue to coast with 21 points.

OREGON (6-2) at OHIO STATE (1-0)—The Bucks, tunin- for Purdue, will put this one away with 21 stylish points.

WAKE FOREST (0-1) at MINNESOTA (0-2)—Twice-burned, the Gophers are keyed to some burning with fire of their own making. The Deacons could be tough, but Minnesota can haul it away by 14.

MSU (2-0) at WISCONSIN (0-2)—The injury-plagued Badgers, committed to a little-used quarterback, should be the third victim for Duffy's toddlers. Take the Spartans, by 17.

Harriers open season

Spartan glory in cross country appears to be back on the uptrend at MSU under new head coach Jim Gibbard.

Saturday at Bloomington, Gibbard's sophomore-laden team gets a chance to show just how good it is as MSU will meet Indiana's Hoosiers, the 1967 Big Ten standard-bearers and NCAA fifth-placers.

Indiana coach Jim Lavery said last season that his 1968 team would be as good or better than the 1967 edition, but time can change cross country teams and it has changed Indiana.

Last year's sophomore stand-out Dave Atkinson, fifth in the Big Ten and 13th in the NCAA, has returned to his native Canada, and Lavery admits "it really hurts when you lose a top flight runner like Atkinson."

The Hoosiers have three wins under their belts so far, including a tie for first with Southern Illinois in the Owensboro (Ky.) Invitational.

Top runners for the Hoosiers are sophomore Bob Legge, 1967 Big Ten runner-up Mark Gibbens, a senior and sophomore, Jim Press.

Indiana beat the Spartans last year, 23-32, but as for predicting Saturday's meet, Gibbard says, "At this time, I can't even begin to guess how close it will be. If we run like we did in the time trial (a close group), it should be close. But with five sophomores running, anything can happen."

Lolich has formula to handle Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The Detroit Tigers' Mickey Lolich had a simple game plan to beat the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series.

"It was just keep the ball down, throw strikes, duck and pray," he said.

Lolich said he never entered a game with the intent to rely on one pitch or another. "I sort of find out what's working for me that day," he said. "Today it was the slider, and I had a generally good fast ball."

"But the slider was working real effectively and I got a lot of guys out with it."

But the decision for him to work wasn't made until minutes before game time and even then he was slated to pitch only five or six innings.

"Then somebody was going to come in and take over for me," Lolich said.

Lolich, a .114 hitter who had never hit a Major League homer before and who had only four extra base hits in his career, said he "tomahawked" the ball.

"I knew I hit it good, but I didn't know how high I hit it," he said. "Then I watched the leftfielder going back and finally he couldn't go any farther and the roar of the crowd told me it was out. I even missed first base."

Big 10 report rules 'M' athletes innocent

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Big Ten Thursday absolved University of Michigan athletes from charges that they received discounts, free meals, theatre tickets and other favors from local campus merchants.

In a 21-page report to the Big Ten's Athletic Directors, the Conference said that with the exception of a loan transaction involving a coach no longer on the staff, "There is not sufficient grounds for believing a violation of Conference rules occurred."

The exception in the 15 charges made this spring by the Michigan Daily, a student publication, concerned a loan from former Asst. Coach V. C. McNease to Cecil Pryor for bond on an assault and battery charge.

Although the loan was eventually repaid, the matter may be brought up for further action at the next meeting of Athletic Directors. Big Ten Commissioner Bill Reed said.

Bryor, a second string line-backer, has been returned to eligibility and McNease has since left Michigan to accept a job as head coach at the University of Idaho.

Brown's Incomplete guide to the Big Ten

Everything that you read about Wisconsin in "Playboy" is true. Everything, and maybe a little more.

As anyone who has spent at least an hour watching television knows, they make a lotta beer in Wisconsin. Beer, and plenty of it, is the key factor in Wisconsin's Playboy rating, with beer on tap in the Union, beer on tap in the fraternity houses and just generally beer on tap.

This situation is natural where the legal beer age is 18. Most MSU students traveling to Madison this weekend will be relegated to the milk bar, however, unless they are 21.

Unless you live in Wisconsin, you must be 21 to get into the Madison bars.

Now, how to get there. The Triple A bring 'em back alive guys suggest that you take I-94 to the Northern Indiana Tollway (I-80 and 90). Exit onto I-294 and on to the Northwest Tollway (I-90). You follow I-90 right into Madison.

Where do you go when you get there? If you are in a fraternity with a Wisconsin chapter, you have a good start. The Wisconsin chapter of Sigma Chi is the campus distributor of Budweiser, so you can get the general idea.

Friday evenings, several fraternities throw beer suppers with sororities. The beer supper is similar to an East Lansing TG as far as the girls go, but strictly legal. The Sigs, the SAE's, and the Fijis are reported to have suppers scheduled Friday so the MSU chapters might consider the boons of brotherhood.

If you are not Greek, but long on nerve, the Wisconsin Greeks suggest you try a fraternity party anyway. If you are not Greek and short on nerve, the famous Union Rathskeller is a good place to spy on the natives. The Pub is a good "beer bar" for the college trade, while the Manor is a good "21 bar." The H.T. (Amber Grid) is another outstanding spa.

For food, Ella's and Gino's have the recommendation of the "Daily Cardinal," but good food is served up and down State Street.

After the game Saturday, you could try the big bash at the Union. The big fraternity parties dominate the evening action.

If you like the hard stuff, buy it before you get to Madison. Prices run high in Madison.

Your fraternity will spot you a rack while the houseless might try the Lorraine up on the square. It's a bus ride from the campus, but at last report, the rooms went for $4.25 a night. The football team will stay at the Lorraine so don't expect miracles.

At the other end from the Salvation Army are the motels around the campus. If you are a high roller, indulge. It costs $12-15 a night.

Like the East Lansing stores, the Madison emporia are not known for their low prices. Just the same, if you spill beer into your suitcase, Redwood and Ross is a familiar name.

Sartorially, it would be hard to match my fur coat from Campbell's Suburban Shop, or my Hitler war binoculars, but Ramsey's can provide you a green and white, six-foot scarf. Redwood and Campbell can handle the Spartan broilie and Ray Leffler has the straw boater-in season. A little imagination, and you can match the Madison hedonists.

If you get a chance to go to Madison, go see for yourself and go early.

Mingle with the natives, have a blast and get back in one piece.

Spartans stalk Badgers

By GREGG LORIA State News Sports Writer

The Unbeaten, and untied MSU football team travels to Wisconsin today in search of their third consecutive victory. The Badgers, meanwhile, are looking for their first grid victory since 1966.

The Spartans, on the strength of wins over Syracuse and Baylor, are installed as 14-point favorites in the contest which starts at 2:30 p.m. EDT, Saturday.

Wisconsin, although trounced 55-7 by Arizona State in their opener, showed vast improvement in their second game loss of 21-17 to Washington.

"They really did improve between those two games, and we expect them to improve even more this week," Head Coach Duffy Daugherty said.

Badger Coach John Coatta did make a surprise move on Wednesday when he announced that reserve quarterback Bob Schaffner would not be the starting assignment. Instead of regular signal-caller John Ryan.

BILL FERACO

"There's really not much difference between the two quarterbacks," Defensive Line Coach Henry Bullough said.

The Badgers main strength lies in a corp of linebackers led by All-Big Ten Ken Criter.

"They use a formation that is referred to as the split-6," Daugherty said.

"It's just like Notre Dames defense, in that they play four up on the front line, backed up by four linebackers, and three backs. With this formation they do a lot of stunting with the linebackers, and they could affect our running game somewhat," Daugherty added.

The only Spartan who will miss the Wisconsin affair will be Gary Parmentier. Parmentier, a sophomore roverback injured during practice Wednesday, will miss the Madison trip. His roverback position will be filled by another sophomore Jay Breslin.

Frank Traylor and Bill Dawson have both recovered from the injuries which have kept them out of any action so far this season. Both may see action this Saturday. Halfback Earl Anderson, recovering from a cracked rib, will also be available for service.

Bill Feraco will once again be the Spartan's field general, and will try to add to his impressive list of statistics. Feraco has completed 60 per cent of his passes so far, good for 313 yards.

Tommy Love, sophomore tailback, has rushed for 168 yards in two games for a 4 yard-per-carry average, and will once again be the major threat in the MSU backfield.

"Against that split-6 defense of Wisconsin's, we should be running more power sweeps because that's what can really hurt them," Love said.

BOOTERS MEET DENVER

'S' tourney begins today

By GARY WALKOWICZ State News Sports Writer

The MSU soccer team risks its string of 29 consecutive games without a loss when they oppose Denver today in the first round of the MSU Invitational Soccer Tournament.

MSU, which has not lost a game since the finals of the 1965 NCAA Tourney, (they've won 25 and tied 4) meets Denver at 3 p.m. Kent State and Illinois-Chicago Circle open the tourney with a game at 1 p.m.

Friday's two losers meet in the consolation game at noon Saturday. The two winners meet at 2 p.m. for the championship.

MSU Coach Gene Kenney said he expects a very tough game from Denver.

"We had a real good game with them last season (MSU won 3-1) and I expect an equally close game today, Kenney said.

"They showed a good offense in their opening win so our contest could develop into an offensive show. Whoever we play on Saturday should give us a good battle."

MSU has met the other three tournament teams only a total of three times. Their win over Denver last year was the first meeting with the Pioneers. They tied Chicago Circle (then known as Navy Pier) in 1956 and 1957 but the Spartans have never met Kent State.

Kenney will go with his regular starting lineup against the Pioneers. The Boles brothers, Kevin and Dennis, will be at the fullback slots with Buzz Demling and Ken Hamann at halfback. Alex and Ed Skotarek will play the midfield spots, while the forward line will field Trevor Harris, Tony Keyes, Tom Kreft, and Dave Trace.

Kenney indicated that senior Joe Baum will be the starting goalie. "He was our No. 1 goalie last year and he'll be our No. 1 goalie this year until he's knocked out of that spot.

Sophomore Les Lucas saw considerable action at goalie in the Spartans' first three games, all shutouts.

The booters had both good and bad news in the injury department this week.

All-American forward Ernie Tuchscherer will return to practice Monday after missing the opening part of the season following knee surgery.

The Spartans, however, lost sophomore forward Ray Korkiala for an indefinite period. Korkiala has loose bone chips in his knee and many require surgery.

Humphrey dilemma: to be, not to be more liberal!

By TRINKA CLINE
Campus Editor

The differences are seen above and beyond the similarities.

Humphrey versus McCarthy philosophy and policy stands. Differences even imagined sometimes.

This is the Humphrey dilemma facing his campaigners, especially in such McCarthy fortresses as MSU.

Harvey Ross, co-chairman of the MSU Coalition for Humphrey-Muskie, came to graduate school at MSU from Kennedy campaign experience in Lafayette, Ind. And he found disillusioned McCarthy people eager to work for Jim Harrison for Congress, Blanche Martin and Warren Huff for the MSU Board of Trustees, other liberal candidates and engage in canvassing and polling efforts.

But direct Humphrey support has sometimes come reluctantly.

"We should expect to draw support from liberal Democrats, Independents and liberal Republicans—people who recognize the need for social change and social justice," Ross said. "But we aren't getting all of it."

"The biggest problem is that the people who should be our leaders because of the things Humphrey has fought for have felt that they have lost the leader of these causes (McCarthy)," he added. "Through some reverse halo effect, they have put the image of opposition to these issues on Humphrey."

Should this be a national phenomena, any future failure of HHH to endorse further liberal stands will be understandable, Ross noted. Why go more liberal if you aren't going to pick up more liberal voters along the route, he asked.

Ross interpreted Humphrey's Monday night Vietnam speech as a "feeler" for those liberal backers. The question is now whether this liberal manpower will react sufficiently to justify additional liberal response from HHH himself.

Ross listed Humphrey's stand on key issues and termed him innovator in social change legislation. He noted Humphrey's efforts to establish the Peace Corps, Job Corps, Medicare and Housing and Urban Development office.

There is a need to motivate students and minority peoples to register today and vote Nov. 5, Ross added. "Students have much in common with minorities past and present—both lack sufficient representation among those who govern them," he said. And both need political and economic power.

Labor had a long fight for power. Blacks are only beginning to get the "tools they need for self determination," he said. Students having trouble financially getting through their education should turn to the Humphrey campaign, Ross noted. All these groups have met frustration from being left out of the design of decision making and have a common interest in a candidate seeking more aid to education and other social justice changes, Ross said.

Harvey Dzodin, co-chairman for the state-wide Michigan Young Citizens for Humphrey-Muskie, explained that through weekly meetings, speakers, discussions and debates the HHH forces must sensitize students to the Humphrey-Muskie stands.

"A lot of people are not planning on voting. It was all or nothing (with McCarthy) for them, and they aren't swinging to the best alternative," Dzodin said. "We must work to motivate them to vote, even if it isn't for Humphrey."

Dzodin said that meetings leaflet distribution and canvassing will be leading up to the Oct. 29 Day of Political Awareness being planned by the National Student Assn. (NSA).

The MSU Coalition is also working with a faculty group supporting Humphrey just now being organized.

On election day the Coalition will offer babysitting and transportation services for voters in need.

While Ross spoke often of Ingham County work, Dzodin felt winning students over was the absolute priority. Terming the Ingham County Democratic set up as "archaic and so pro-Nixon and Wallace that it isn't worth it," Dzodin said efforts must be concentrated on the campus community "where minds are still open."

Portions of the Democratic Party platform relating to youth include special efforts to recruit young people as candidates for public office, support of a Constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18, revision of the Selective Service System to establish an eligibility period of one year and review draft board memberships to make them more representative of the communities served. Humphrey has also pledged to replace Gen. Lewis B. Hershey as director of the Selective Service system.

Marvin L. Brown, vice president of the Michigan Conference of Concerned Democrats, said "Humphrey's Agenda for Social Justice calls for the right to a liveable environment, the right to a good education and the right to a good job."

"Compare that to Richard Nixon's program for building more jails and George Wallace's proposal for a police state and you know why I am for Hubert Humphrey," he said.

And added, "Yet none of Humphrey's social priorities can realistically take place until we end the war in Vietnam. I hope that the vice president will become more definitive on this issue and will speak out more strongly on what he proposes to end that war."

Each of the candidates sees Michigan as a possible victory, and each has legitimate grounds for doing so. The whole campaign can be reduced to the question of "Where are the Wallace votes coming from?"

If they are coming, as most polls have forecast, from the blue collar wards that have been the source of Democratic strength in the state, then Richard Nixon is a shoe-in.

But if the Democrats succeed in their campaign of getting the ranks of labor back into their camp, Humphrey may still have a chance here.

And should they be right about their statement that Wallace is getting his support from Republican suburban and rural areas, but wrong about their ability to get the union vote back, the little scrapper from Alabama may be able to come up with a plurality.

The GOP has governed Michigan's presidential electors six times out of the past eleven elections since 1924. The Democrats, however, carried the last two, with Lyndon Johnson racking up a 66 per cent majority over Barry Goldwater.

John Kennedy, however, was only able to beat Richard Nixon by two percentage points in 1960, at a time when there was considerably less discontent with the incumbent than exists today.

Democratic leaders are skeptical of reports which show massive defections to Wallace among union members. They point to private polls, and the Detroit News poll, which as of last Sunday suggested a slight edge for Humphrey in the race.

Nevertheless, the main thrust of the Democratic campaign within the state is directed at the blue-collar workers who see "law and order" as the overriding issue of 1968.

A "fact squad" is touring the state with Wallace, seeking to point out to the enthusiastic crowds that have greeted the former governor that Wallace is a racist whose election would exacerbate racial tensions rather than relieve them, that his home state had the highest

Lockwood praises Nixon before young Republicans

By STEVE WATERBURY

State Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood (R-St. Louis) spoke before a meeting of the College Republicans Wednesday in support of Richard Nixon and of the necessity for the usage of proper channels to achieve social change.

Lockwood termed Nixon the candidate who could best "re-establish the establishment" and who could return a sense of unity to the United States. Nixon has been successful in uniting the Republican Party, and would be similarly successful in uniting the nation according to the St. Louis Republican.

The Senate Majority Leader, an early Nixon supporter who recently relinquished his position as head of the Nixon campaign in Michigan to Gov. Romney, stated he was confident of a Nixon victory. Lockwood portrayed Nixon as a "smart politician" who had learned through defeat in the same manner that another famous election loser, Abraham Lincoln, had learned through his election losses.

It is not necessary, said Lockwood, to "run up and down with signs or grow beards" to achieve constructive social change. Lockwood claimed that the success of Nixon shows that it is possible to improve society by working through proper channels.

The College Republican meeting was also addressed by Jerry Frendt, a recent graduate of MSU who is currently running for a seat on the Ingham County Board of Supervisors. Frendt stressed the importance of effective government at the local level, and sought student support for his campaign. His district includes Spartan Village, Cherry Lane Apartments and part of East Lansing.

Campus committee for Nixon in action

By DALE RAYMAN
State News Staff Writer

The Nixon for President campus committee has moved into action as the national campaign moves toward the November elections.

Bill Greulich, Buchanan junior and chairman of the campus committee, said the campus organization is mobilizing after an inactive summer.

"Nothing much was happening over the summer," Greulich said. "The primaries were over and everyone was waiting for the national convention."

The group plans to pass out campaign literature at the Homecoming game and to maintain Nixon for President booths at vital points on campus.

"We'll probably have booths in front of Bessey Hall and in front of the Union," Greulich said, "and we may have more."

The group has been having communication difficulties due to lack of a campus office.

Paul Asquith, president of the MSU Campus Republicans, said he has been trying for several months to get an office for the local group.

"I've made 12 trips to the Student Activities Office trying to get office space for us," he said, "but we haven't been given a place yet."

The Nixon for President committee is a standing committee of the Campus Republicans, and as soon as the larger group gets an office, the committee will be able to coordinate their communications and their activities.

There are nearly 450 interested students we know about," Greulich said, "and there may be more we don't know about."

"It's difficult to contact 450 people," he added, "but an office would certainly help our communication committee."

Greulich said the Nixon for President committee welcomes all students who are interested in campaigning for the national ticket.

"We hope to have an announcement in the State News early next week concerning the next meeting for interested students," he said.

Prosecutor receives appointment

LANSING (UPI)—Raymond L. Schodeller, 35, of Lansing, was appointed Ingham County Prosecutor Thursday to succeed Donald L. Reising, recently named to the County Circuit Court.

The selection was made by the circuit court and is effective through the remainder of this year.

Schodeller has served as chief asst. prosecutor since 1964. He is the Republican candidate for prosecutor in the Nov. 5 election.

James J. Weed of Lansing, the Democratic candidate, and Lansing Attorney James L. Theophilis had also sought the interim appointment. Judge Jack W. Warren of the circuit court said Schodeller's selection was unanimous.

HUMPHREY OUT

Candidates vie for Michigan

News background

By MITCH MILLER
Executive Reporter

Michigan, with its 21 electoral votes, is one of the key industrial states that all three candidates are concentrating on in order to win the Presidency.

And there is no question about the fact that each candidate, including George Wallace, is driving directly for the White House, and not planning to stop at the Capitol.

Each of the candidates sees Michigan as a possible victory, and each has legitimate grounds for doing so. The whole campaign can be reduced to the question of "Where are the Wallace votes coming from?"

If they are coming, as most polls have forecast, from the blue collar wards that have been the source of Democratic strength in the state, then Richard Nixon is a shoe-in.

But if the Democrats succeed in their campaign of getting the ranks of labor back into their camp, Humphrey may still have a chance here.

And should they be right about their statement that Wallace is getting his support from Republican suburban and rural areas, but wrong about their ability to get the union vote back, the little scrapper from Alabama may be able to come up with a plurality.

The GOP has governed Michigan's presidential electors six times out of the past eleven elections since 1924. The Democrats, however, carried the last two, with Lyndon Johnson racking up a 66 per cent majority over Barry Goldwater.

John Kennedy, however, was only able to beat Richard Nixon by two percentage points in 1960, at a time when there was considerably less discontent with the incumbent than exists today.

Democratic leaders are skeptical of reports which show massive defections to Wallace among union members. They point to private polls, and the Detroit News poll, which as of last Sunday suggested a slight edge for Humphrey in the race.

Nevertheless, the main thrust of the Democratic campaign within the state is directed at the blue-collar workers who see "law and order" as the overriding issue of 1968.

A "fact squad" is touring the state with Wallace, seeking to point out to the enthusiastic crowds that have greeted the former governor that Wallace is a racist whose election would exacerbate racial tensions rather than relieve them, that his home state had the highest homicide rate in the nation and thus is weak on law and order and that a vote for Wallace is wasted and will help to elect Nixon who, they hope to prove, is an enemy of labor.

State campaign head John Bruff goes so far as to predict a 53-55 per cent victory for Humphrey.

On the Republican side the state campaign, according to party vice-chairman William McLaughlin, is dedicated to getting the Republican vote identified and to the polls.

"We feel the issues are the responsibilities of Mr. Nixon. Once he converts the voters, we'll find them."

The Republicans, too, find the race a tight one, but aren't particularly worried about Wallace inroads, which they see in Democratic districts like South Warren and Hamtramck, "both 80-90 per cent Democratic in the past."

The Republicans are capitalizing on discontent with the Johnson Administration to give them the state by one or two points, with several appearances by Nixon and Agnew turning the tide.

They see it as a battle between party organizations, with the best one winning. Not even the prospect of Gov. Romney in a Nixon Cabinet seems able to excite the Republicans, but it may be that their concept of a well-organized drive is what will carry the election into the Nixon column.

If, however, enthusiasm is what wins elections, the Wallace forces may surprise everyone Nov. 6.

According to Wallace headquarters, the other candidates have already reached their peaks, while Wallace is still climbing.

"Picking someone like Gen. LeMay as his running mate can't hurt the campaign, bring-along labor people can't hurt, and Nixon picking Romney, who just increased taxes, for his cabinet can't hurt. We feel we can carry the state," says Larry Lee, Wallace state vice-chairman.

man, and it is being met with success. According to Lee, Wallace has the vote in the working class districts that Johnson had in 1964—between 70 and 90 per cent.

In terms of appeals, the Wallace campaign is attempting to maintain and increase its hold on the lower middle class by pointing to Humphrey's call for increased federal spending and the increase in taxes it would bring.

"The working man just can't afford any more taxes," Lee said.

Wallace is counterattacking the Democratic and Union attack on his labor record with a pamphlet stating he improved Alabama's labor position. There is no telling whether it will work, however.

For the moment at least, the Wallace people feel they have the union member voting for Wallace.

They are not particularly concerned about Nixon's drawing power, at least on their voters. "Labor will not go for the Republicans," they say, and let Humphrey attack Nixon's labor record.

And they accuse Nixon of "selling out" these who support him by suggesting liberals like Romney, Scranton and Rockefeller for his cabinet posts.

Whether or not Wallace wins or even does well will depend on just how alienated the lower middle class really is from the political system.

Regardless of the final tally, the chances of Hubert Humphrey carrying the state as his predecessor did are nil.

There is no question that George Wallace is right when he says it's a case of "the chickens coming home to roost" for the Administration.

The only real question is whether they will land in the Wallace or the Nixon column on election day.

Action Corps: local branch to begin membership drive

By DIANE PETRYK
State News Staff Writer

A membership drive for a new branch of the state-wide Michigan Action Corp is being organized in Lansing and partly on campus.

The Michigan Action Corps is a non-partisan youth group whose purpose is to arouse, inform and involve young citizens and voters concerning public issues. In the Lansing area it will be run entirely by high school and college students and other young adults.

John Arden, Flint graduate student, will organize MSU students. "We hope to have a booth distributing literature in the Union soon," he said.

Although a youth organization, an adult advisory board has been established by the Action Corps.

Members of the board are: Bill Ryan, state House Minority Leader; Joel Ferguson, Lansing city councilman; Peter Manning, professor of sociology; Sander Levin, Democratic State chairman; David Hollister, Eastern High School teacher; and Winthrop Rowe, Lansing attorney.

Ferguson expressed the feeling of all the board members in emphasizing that the board will act strictly in an advisory sense. "We'd rather have the ideas come from young people than dictate our own feelings," he said.

"I imagine the membership will expect the advisory board to be active in campaigning for funds," Rowe said.

Despite its admitted involvement from the "Alliance for Kennedy" people, the organization hopes to attract interested youth regardless of political affiliation.

According to Judy Class, Lansing Business University graduate and vice chairman of the Action Corps, the organization does not want to require a party preference for a young person to work for non-partisan social reforms. The advisory board is in agreement. "Issues don't really divide along party lines anymore," Ferguson said.

"In a small way we're an answer to SDS," Miss Class said. "SDS protests, complains, pickets and causes trouble. We are going to try to help to change things by working the right way."

Miss Class listed the various issues the Action Corps may deal with, including voter registration, the 18-year-old vote, a Michigan presidential primary and revision of the electoral college, draft laws, U.S. welfare, tax laws, civil rights, migrant workers, student demonstrations, nuclear power control, gun control and Vietnam. She indicated, however, that the group's stand will depend entirely on what the membership decides.

Rowe has called the Action Corps an "Independent Domestic Peace Corps" and suggests that it might take up existing volunteer programs that the government has under-funded.

Both the membership and advisory board are optimistic about the future of the organization that Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) regards as a living memorial to his brother. The group feels that part of the reason for an expected large membership lies in the Action Corps broad base and non-political stand.

Deeply interested in the organizations prospect for promoting "social betterment," Manning stated, "My hope is that the Action Corps will allow a number of people who are young and idealistic to continue to feel that they have some impact on society."

An organizational meeting for all interested students in tentatively scheduled for Oct. 15.

LeMay's position 'scares away' votes

Michigan Democratic leaders Thursday said the addition of retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay to George C. Wallace's third-party ticket will result in many blue-collar workers dropping their support of the former Alabama Governor.

"He'll scare away votes with his position on nuclear weapons and the bomb," said Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley. "He won't add a thing for Wallace in this state."

State Chairman Sander Levin said LeMay's selection will prove to rank-and-file union members that Wallace is pursuing an extremely conservative program not in their best interest.

Public opinion polls have shown Wallace gaining momentum among blue-collar Democrats in Michigan's big industrial cities. This has worried supporters of Hubert H. Humphrey.

Bernard Apol, head of the Secretary of State's elections division, said LeMay's announcement that he is Wallace's vice presidential candidate came too late to change the American Independent Party ballot lineup Michigan for the Nov. 5 election.

Griffin was listed as "stand-in" on the Wallace ticket to qualify the third-party candidate for ballot designation in Michigan and several other states.

Levin said it makes little difference who is listed on the ballot because "no one or no thing can moderate the pernicious influence of George Wallace."

McCarthy write-in takes shape in Michigan

State News Staff Writer

Michigan supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy have formed a McCarthy Write-In Committee with plans to distribute two million stickers listing 21 electors for McCarthy.

The Michigan effort will be in more than a dozen other states," David Mangan, chairman of the committee, said. "Sen McCarthy has given tacit approval to campaigns in states like Michigan which do not require his written consent," he added.

Mangan's statement was made previous to Sen. McCarthy purchasing time on television to appear on a day evening. Speculation is that McCarthy will declare his support for the Democratic ticket headed by Hubert H. Humphrey.

However, Mangan and Marvin Marshak, press agent for the committee, have stated the aim of the campaign is more to gain support for local candidates who supported McCarthy, than to gain a McCarthy victory in itself.

Mangan explained, "We hope the McCarthy write-in campaign will help many local candidates, particularly some Democrats, by attracting otherwise alienated voters to the McCarthy or Rockefeller."

Marshak said, "We are placing two weeks ago in Wayne, Michigan, using students from Wayne State and the University of Michigan."

The McCarthy committee plans to repeat the student canvass which worked so well in the primary campaigns last spring. Students plan to visit every Michigan voter before election day to explain McCarthy's platform and hand out write-in stickers. In addition, McCarthy workers will be stationed near every polling place on election day to distribute stickers and instructions to the voters.

The first canvassing took place two weeks ago in Wayne, Michigan, using students from Wayne State and the University of Michigan.

Not out of the picture

Though Sen. Eugene McCarthy was not the Presidential nominee of the Democratic party, he still has widespread support. Many McCarthyites are hopeful that a write-in campaign will be successful.

Reluctant Dem. speaks at Union

James A. Harrison, Democratic candidate for Congress from the sixth congressional district, voiced his support for Hubert H. Humphrey at a meeting of his supporters Tuesday night in the Union.

Harrison said he would support Humphrey as long as the vice president held to his statement made earlier this week concerning a bombing halt in Vietnam.

Harrison made his statement prior to a two hour question and answer session open to the public. Many of those at the meeting were of the newly formed Independent Majority, which has pledged its support to Harrison.

The organization is made up of former supporters of Kennedy, Rockefeller and McCarthy who are working for liberal candidates of both parties. Harrison is the major candidate they are supporting right now, but they are seeking others who may need their support or want their help.

Harrison came out strongly against the United States position in Vietnam. "I will not campaign on the Vietnam plank in the Democratic platform," he said. "I propose an immediate cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam and an immediate withdrawal of all U.S. troops should be supervised by the United Nations. Finally, the withdrawal of all U.S. troops with the U.N. staying behind for supervision."

Liberal reformers unite, canvass for Harrison

By RON INGRAM
State News Staff Writer

A new organization has been formed locally to support liberal candidates of both major parties wheresoever they may be found.

The Independent Majority is made up of former supporters of Kennedy, Rockefeller and McCarthy who are dissatisfied with this year's choices for President.

The group was formed by Jack Feinberg and Susy Drulard, former Rockefeller supporters.

"Our group is organized to work for liberal reforms through the present system," Feinberg said. "However, we feel that the Presidential election does not give us enough of a choice."

"Our goals are formative," Miss Drulard said. "We are trying to make sure that in 1972 there is till a two party system, not just one large party."

"We do not want to work from within a group such as the Young Republicans," she added. "We want to work from without to bring about changes on the inside."

If students really care about what is happening on the level of national politics today, they must dig in and do their homework," Feinberg said. "The groundwork for tomorrow's changes must be laid today, he said."

The group hopes to remain a force on the political scene after this election. The really big battle for control of the two major parties will come in 1972 they feel.

"We will help the back-room politicians most if we desert the scene now," Feinberg said. "Up until this time the student was never really considered a strong force in politics by the old-style politicians," he said. "We have to change that attitude."

If the organization is to survive past November, new leaders must be recruited. Most of those now leading the group are seniors or graduate students.

Feinberg thought he had come up with an original idea in forming the group. However, three weeks ago he was invited to a meeting of student groups in Washington, D.C. There the National Coalition for Student Action was forming and the Independent Majority was asked to join.

made up of many groups who had the same idea I did," Feinberg said. "They all wanted to support liberal reforms and candidates, to make the student's voice heard."

"There is also a Student Coalition being sponsored by Richard Nixon," Feinberg said. "to be used to help solve the problems of the city. Its main job would be deciding what recommendations to give to the next President."

We are not going to get into the Nixon movement, Feinberg said. We support no one candidate for the Presidency. Our people can support whomever they choose individually, he said.

All we ask is that they support the liberal candidates, either Democrat or Republican, that we feel will do most for the offices they are running for.

The major candidate the group is supporting is James A. Harrison, running for congressman in the sixth congressional district.

"There are several other candidates we are looking over as possibilities to support," Feinberg said. "If they meet our qualifications we will give them our support."

The local Students for McCarthy will keep their own name for the Harrison campaign, though they are a part of the Majority and are working for the same goals.

Bob Swanson, treasurer for the local Students for McCarthy, said the group decided to keep its own name. He said a new name at this time might be confusing, since they are working on the McCarthy write-in campaign as well as the Harrison campaign.

Feelings of the majority over the McCarthy write-in are mixed. Lou Penner, vice-chairman of Students for McCarthy, and Feinberg are undecided whether or not to support the campaign. Miss Drulard feels that it will probably do more for George Wallace than anyone else.

"We will leave it up to the individual whether or not he will campaign for McCarthy," Feinberg said. "They can do it at the same time the Harrison campaign is being carried out."

The group will begin canvassing in Jackson Saturday morning for the Harrison campaign. Those interested in helping can meet at the Union at 9 a.m. Saturday for a ride to Jackson.

"We will have a voice in this campaign," Feinberg said. "We will have an active working voice. All we ask for is the right to speak and be heard."

Socialist group gains members

By MARK EICHER
State News Staff Writer

The East Lansing Young Socialist Alliance (YSA) has grown since March from the mutual interest of two individuals into a full fledged local organization with approximately 30 members.

YSA will hold its second meeting at 1 p.m. Saturday in 37 Union.

YSA is actively supporting the Socialist Workers' Party presidential candidate, Fred Halstead.

The East Lansing chapter is part of a "national team" which works through democratic centralization, according to Ginny Osteen, Arlington, Va. sophomore, YSA organizer.

Miss Osteen defined democratic centralization as a method of making decisions wherein all minorities are given a voice.

"It was used in the Bolshevik revolution very successfully," she noted.

Like all local units, the national YSA is made up of an executive committee which meets between regular meetings to compose major policy decisions.

These decisions are sent to each local unit where dissent is welcomed. All dissenting reports are sent to the national office for national distribution.

Miss Osteen said the local executive board has not been chosen yet.

control by the wealthy few over the lives of the majority. We want to change this.

"We want a system of real majority rule," the pamphlet continues, "where the wealth and achievements of society can benefit everyone. We want a socialist United States and a socialist world."

"We are part of the worldwide struggle of the oppressed against the oppressors. We are one with the revolutionary Cubans, the Vietnamese freedom fighters and the black African revolutionaries. Like them we are young, we are determined and our numbers are growing."

Already the East Lansing YSA is in the midst of a busy schedule of events.

"We played a supportive role in the rally opposing the trustees' resolution," Miss Osteen said. "We will support anything like this that comes up in the future."

In addition the East Lansing YSA is gearing for the week of anti-war actions Oct. 21-27. Miss Osteen voiced hope that, as a result of the week, a campus unit of the Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, can be formed.

She said an MSU contingent may be sent to Detroit Oct. 26 to participate in a parade supporting the International Day of Protest.

Speakers coming to MSU through YSA include Paul Bouteille, Socialist Workers Party candidate for the vice-presidency, 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in 105 S. Kedzie; Giesela Mandel, founder of the German SDS and participant in the French students strike, Oct. 20; and Carol Lipman, editor of "Young Socialist," YSA's monthly magazine, Nov. 13 and 14.

Snipers dissolve Mexican legend

By PAUL H. FINCH
MEXICO CITY (AP) — A legibility, promoted by 40 years of peace, may have perished with the gunshot victims in the current student struggle against President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz.

Mexico's government party of Institutional Revolution has ruled without interruption since the 1929 merging of warring factions left over from the 1910 revolution, which left an estimated one million dead.

Wary of the bloodshed, the founders established a one-party control which was the envy of many other Latin American countries torn by social problems, jackboot dictators, left.

GNP grows

Mexico's gross national product grew, along with tourism and world prestige. It became heresy to suggest to a Mexican politician, whether government or opposition, that any resentment lay beneath the surface.

Even during the student riots which started in July the Mexican press and politicians continued to assert that the movement was nothing more serious than a type of spring fever common throughout world youth.

News Analysis

After all, such nations as France, the United States and even Iron Curtain countries had rioting youths.

Gang fight

The student dispute started over a gang fight between two high schools. Students of one had insulted two girls of the other school. Police intervened. Students protesting "police brutality"—and Mexico's riot police are not gentle—merged with a pro-Castro demonstration July 26. That touched off further intervention, in turn sparking further protests.

The Mexican troops marched in to put down the youth rebellion, despite the reputation of Mexico as a nonmilitary country, where more is spent on education than on defense.

Students strike

Student strikers massed 200,000 strong in marches down Reforma Boulevard, watched by curious onlookers mildly surprised to see the normally peaceful Mexicans in protest against their president.

They labelled him "Diaz Ordaz-Incapaz incompetent." It was the first time in years that anyone had dared insult the president of Mexico.

Then suddenly there was a rumor that University of Mexico strike leaders were plotting against the Olympic Games scheduled Oct. 12 and Diaz Ordaz' regime sent the army into the university city for the first time.

Professionals annoyed

This was a shock to the concept of university autonomy and it annoyed the professional class of Mexico. Doctors, lawyers and engineers encouraged the students.

While Communists were rounded up, other agitators saw their chance and moved in with slogans and schemes and Last week the student riots degenerated into pitched gun-fights with the youths using automatic weapons ranging from .22 to .30 caliber. Fifteen were killed.

Shooting begins

Wednesday night the shooting began in earnest, Che Guevara style, with sniping from apartment windows in Tlatelolco, a low-rent apartment zone for government employes and pensioners.

More than 100 persons fell dead or wounded in the night.

The action was among the most vicious seen in Latin America in recent years and the casualty toll exceeded those in a number of genuine guerrilla bat-ties in other countries troubled with widespread Castroism. It will be some time before Mexico can again correctly boast of peace and stability.

TV 'good guys' conquer violence

"Who knows...burks in the hearts of...The Shadow knows."

For those of you old enough, or nostalgic enough to remember who The Shadow was, you can probably recall the days when crime-fighters ranked second only to the gods. The golden era of radio ushered them in, and the heyday of Lamont Cranston, Captain Braddock, or the Green Hornet becomes now but a misty memory.

Of course, during that period of the '30's and late '40's, the incidence of crime demanded such crusaders to confront the lawbreakers who threatened the American way.

No less today do our communications media, chiefly television, continue the role which radio pioneered in combatting violence. Certainly, at the present time in our history crime is more rampant than ever before. The number of tragic events which have occurred have called for a halt in the violent material which the media offer.

However, so long as Hollywood wished to remain what it has become, it must give the public what it wants. For that reason, despite the pleas for control over the presence of delinquency or crime on our screens, the "mob," or whatever you'd prefer to call them, remain.

There have always been the baddies about, whether they be the Bogarts, the Cagneys, or whomever else the respective generations can turn out. Happily though, this is a double standard, as the embodiment of the good guys seems ever-present in the wings. This fact occurred to me when I began to recall a number of personages who have made their life's work to fight for "truth, justice, and the American way."

Of course, the prototype of this last description was none other than Superman. Yet we have become more realistic. We suppose, in the fact that today our crime-fighters are not all men of steel. A few of them may be caped crusaders, yet for the most they're a bunch of quite human, failing, sometimes even bungling types.

Of course, there are the Mr. Slicks, but they are kept to the minority. Consider if you will, the great number of programs this season which have to do with the upholding of law and order. A great many of them, perhaps answering the call for a curb of violence, are police series.

This fall we saw the arrival of "Adam-12" (NBC), rather a companion to the likes of the already popular "Felon Squad," and "N.Y.P.D." (ABC), both of which take us into the routine and realistic day's work of the cop on the beat. Also one could not forget faithful Sgt. Friday and his sidekick as they manage to throw what must by now be an infinite "Dragnet" over Los Angeles.

Such series as these, along with the more official, almost flag-waving promotion like "The P.D.," however, give us the inner workings of our machines of justice. At any rate, we are seeing much more of those men in blue, although some of us would still prefer the good old days with Toody and Muldoon as we rode the back seat of Car 54.

Crime being what it is, a very untouchable business, many television efforts have been developed to show just that. The now-classic "Naked City" with its eight million stories, most of them seen twice already in rerun form, was such a program. The gutsy side of the detective trade was here too, as there have always been the gumshoes, though not quite all in the tradition of Sherlock Holmes.

In the past we knew them as Nick and Nora Charles, Sam Spade, or even that most lovable of brutes, Mike Hammer. Within the last few years some of these images have been picked up and dusted off. Remember that "Man On A Tightrope," Mike Connors, before he became more successful as "Mannix?" Or how about that soft-spoken guy named Richard Kimble?

Yes, those were the good old days; well, they were old, but how good? In terms of private investigators today, we might set the standard by the toughness of a Darren McGavin as the "Outsider," an ex-con who turns to sleuthing. Or then there was Honey West, sort of an early Diana Rigg, but without quite the same "appeal."

Moving from the character of the hard-boiled flatfoot, we find a more sophisticated blend of crime-fighters also doing their thing. They are the debonair teams, such as Tony Franciosa, Gene Barry and Robert Stack of "The Name of the Game," also the ultra-mod "Avengers," not to mention the high living cat-burglars in the best Saintry traditions of "T.H.E. Cat," and Alexander Mundy of "It Takes A Thief."

Oh, there are always these undercover folk lurking about, whether they are secret agent men, or just such unthinking bureaucrats as the boys and girls from U.N.C.L.E. They give up the detective bag, and turn to medicine as Dr. Richard Kimble?

And for those times when our attention is brought to the courts, there have forever been a number of legal-eagles to give television cases their due process. We can go down the line, all the way from Algonquin J. Calhoun, key defender of the Mystic Knights of the Sea Lodge Hall, to the father and son teams of "The Defenders," or the earlier "Harrigan and Son." Let us not forget Perry Mason who does his talking from a wheelchair nowadays as "Ironside," or the Melvin Belli-F. Lee Baileyish "Judd For the Defense."

Well, as The Shadow would say, "the weed of crime bears bitter fruit." With an army of defenders such as those I have listed, how can one conclude otherwise? The evidence for my case has been presented; no matter the violence on the streets, in the old boob tube where it counts, the private eyes have it.

Marketing at IBM

"Working with company presidents is part of the job."

"I'm pretty much the IBM Corporation in the eyes of my customers," says Andy Moran. "That kind of responsibility's not bad for an engineer just two years out of school."

Andy earned his B.S.E.E. in 1966. Today, he's a Marketing Representative with IBM, involved in the planning, selling and installation of data processing systems.

Plenty of business experience

"Engineering was my first love," Andy says, "but I still wanted good business experience." So far, he's worked with customers involved in many different computer applications, from engineering to business. His contacts go from data processing managers all the way up to the president of his largest account.

"At first I was a little nervous about working at that level," says Andy. "But then you realize you're trained to know what he's trying to learn. That gives you confidence. You're helping him solve his problem."

With his working partner, the data processing Systems Engineer, Andy has helped many customers solve their information handling problems. "I get a broad overview of business because I run into every kind of problem going. Sometimes I know the solutions from experience. Other times I need help from my manager."

"That's one of the best things. My manager is more of a backup than a boss. He's there when I need him. Usually, I pretty much call my own shots."

Andy's experience isn't unusual at IBM. There are many Marketing and Sales Representatives who could tell you of similar experiences. And they have many kinds of academic backgrounds: business, engineering, liberal arts, science.

They not only sell data processing equipment as Andy does, but also IBM office products and information records systems. Many of the more technically inclined are data processing Systems Engineers.

'Career Compass' display: your guide to the future

By CHRIS MEAD
State News Staff Writer

Are you running with the Establishment? Then you must be looking for a job. Let "Career Compass" be your guiding hand.

"Career Compass" is the theme of Careers '68, the 20th annual event sponsored by the Placement Bureau.

This year's festivities will be held today and Tuesday in the Auditorium. So stay out of the Union this year 'cause that ain't where it's at.

Hours for the event this year are:

Monday: 6:30 - 10 p.m.
Tuesday: 10 - 11:30 a.m., 1:15 - 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 - 10:00 p.m.

Students who wish to talk with prospective employer representatives do not need to make an appointment and are free to wander in at their leisure for informal discussions.

Eighty-five companies will be represented and will be stationed at displays in the Auditorium illustrating their particular line of business.

"We try to pick the companies most representative to the student body and the curricula offered at this University," according to Jim Hulme, general chairman of Careers.

He said that after the list of companies was decided upon, the companies were contacted by letter. All those reached accepted the invitation he added.

Although Careers is sponsored under the auspices of the Placement Bureau, the operation is run by students who petitioned for their own offices last winter term.

Careers '68 will be kicked off by a banquet and a preview of "Half-Million Dollar Decision," a movie made at MSU documenting how students can work with the Placement Bureau.

If you couldn't care less about the jobs the man has to offer, go on over anyway. Maybe you'll see an interesting display or two.

Fire started in Abbey

LONDON (AP) -- Police charged a 23-year-old theology student Thursday with maliciously setting fire to Westminster Abbey, the church where England's kings and queens are crowned.

They claimed the student, Alistair Wyse, burst into the 900-year-old Abbey and hurled a crude fire bomb near the high altar.

Baptist volunteer nursery discourages Samaritanism

By ULLAS... Religion Editor

Sometimes it just doesn't pay to try to be a good Samaritan.

Three local Baptist Churches, The First Baptist of East Lansing, Bethany Baptist and Immanuel Baptist, joined together in creating a free pre-schooler nursery for the three days of good idea to them. Billy Wolfe, Director of the Baptist Student Union, said that he and two of the pastors wanted to fulfill some student need. They decided "to provide free nursery care for pre-school age children whose parents would be busy during the three days of registration... students could leave their children their school business taken care of.

It was a great idea. Too bad it didn't work. Wolfe said, "Twenty-five people were involved in preparation and daily staffing..."

Signs were made to announce the opening of the three day nursery, snow fencing for the church yard had to be secured and erected, additional child care equipment was needed, as were tricycles, toys and children's books.

Results: Monday, the first day of registration, not one child showed up. The group then decided that perhaps they hadn't advertised enough. In an all out effort that night, they put up mimeographed posters on every bulletin board in Cherry Lane, Spartan Village and University Village.

The response on Tuesday matched Monday. Not one child came.

Wednesday, however, was the day of the breakthrough; two children were brought in.

Wolfe estimated that 200 man hours had been spent in setting up this temporary nursery.

Does anybody need a good Samaritan?

Mormon conference broadcast nationally

The 138th Semi-Annual Mormon World Conference will be held in Salt Lake City, Utah, today through Sunday. Nearly 200 television and radio stations will cover the talks from coast to coast.

Lansing's WJIM-TV will broadcast the highlights of this event Sunday from 10 a.m. until noon.

Television broadcasts will be in color on a coast to coast network. Short-wave broadcasts will be carried worldwide via Station WNYW, New York. The conference proceedings will be simultaneously translated into several languages.

Representatives from 462 dioceses and 84 missions from throughout the world will be present for the series of seven meetings in the tabernacle. Included in these meetings will be the Salt Lake Mormon Tabernacle Choir, a 375 voice group under the direction of Richard P. Condie.

Several speeches will be made by church officers, including Pres. David O. McKay, who has been in charge of the conference since 1951.

The purpose of this year's conference is to bring to the world messages of "human love, enjoyment of beauty, with healing the wounds of this frenzied existence and with spiritual beliefs and truths."

The Mormon Tabernacle of Temple Square, locale of the convocation for 101 years, has been refurbished for the conference. The tabernacle and the adjacent assembly hall, together, seat 10,500 patrons who will view the conference proceedings on closed circuit television.

Temple dedicated by Shaarey Zedek

Congregation Shaarey Zedek will dedicate the corner stone of their new temple on 1924 Coolidge, East Lansing, at 3:00 p.m. on Sunday.

This is the first synagogue in East Lansing and the only one in the entire Lansing area. Mayor Max Murningham, of Lansing, and Mayor Gordon L. Thomas, of East Lansing, will take part in the dedication service.

Previously, the temple for congregation Shaarey Zedek had been in Lansing, on the corner of Pennsylvania and Linden Grove.

Ted Levy, chairman of the building committee, said that they expect to have the sanctuary completed in 30 days and they hope to have the school section finished in 60 days.

Levy said that the most interesting thing about the grounds of the temple would be a bronze statue of "people holding the arc of covenant high over their heads," which will be done by Aharon Bezalil, Israeli sculpturer.

Mormon Church plans open house

There will be an open house at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon Church) Oct. 13, from 3 p.m. till 6 p.m.

The church is on 431 E. Saginaw Rd. in East Lansing.

There will be a tour of the church and religious film, "Man's Search for Happiness," will be shown.

Travel pool aids student programs

Probably the worst picture James Tanck, director of volunteer programs, could imagine is an MSU volunteer hitchhiking to his project.

If that ever happened, it won't any more; the MSU volunteer transportation pool has been established.

Functionally, it is a central transportation pool for all the volunteer programs at MSU, under the Volunteer Programs office.

Eventually, the pool's fleet of vehicles will include six Ford club wagons, one station wagon and two sedans. The pool is in operation now, but all the promised vehicles have not been delivered.

Transportation pool coordinator Dave Davis said that he anticipates that the pool will eventually work very well when we get our full fleet.

The pool receives its vehicles through the University motor pool. As University vehicles, the cars will use the motor pool garage at the stadium for service, gas and repairs.

Davis' duties as coordinator include selecting a driver staff, assisting the director of volunteer programs in coordinating and planning student community involvement, scheduling all transportation, maintaining the pool in operative condition, developing policies and procedures to control the overall operation of the pool and maintaining records of driver hours.

Paul Christensen, Escanaba junior, will assist Davis as transportation manager. Michael Kurchak, Pinconning sophomore, will serve as administrative assistant.

VIETNAM HASSLE

Senators debate election

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans charged Hubert H. Humphrey Thursday with playing "hide and seek" on the Vietnam bombing issue. Democrats demanded that Richard M. Nixon speak out on it.

Led by GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois in a planned onslaught, a half dozen senators raised the issue of whether the Democratic presidential nominee's statements in a Monday night broadcast had muddied the peace negotiation waters in Paris.

Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., a top campaign adviser, retorted that the Republican complaints were "a direct admission that Vice President Humphrey has scored heavily with the American people by his Vietnam statement."

Harris said the GOP members were trying to conduct "a presidential debate by proxy, and I think the American people are entitled to better than that." He demanded that Nixon, the GOP nominee, debate Humphrey on national television.

In his Monday night speech, Humphrey said that as president, "I would stop the bombing of North Vietnam as an acceptable risk for peace..." but he added:

"In weighing that risk, and before taking action, I would place key importance on evidence, direct or indirect, by deed or word, of Communist willingness to restore the Demilitarized Zone between North and South Vietnam."

Dirksen, a staunch supporter of President Johnson's Vietnam policies, fired off the sometimes angry debate with a demand to know if Humphrey's was a pledge for an unqualified bombing halt. Johnson has called for a reciprocal gesture by Hanoi before suspending air attacks.

"I wonder what kind of a game is being played here," Dirksen said.

"If the North Vietnam negotiators think they can get a better deal this way, obviously they will not settle now. There seems to be a tremendous amount of confusion over just what we're going to do."

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who has not seen eye to eye with Johnson on Vietnam policy, jumped up to say that Humphrey had made his position clear.

"I believe personally he would move mountains if he could bring peace in Vietnam," Mansfield said.

Mansfield called on Nixon to debate Vietnam with Humphrey on national television. Nixon has said he will not discuss the issue in detail because it might have repercussions in Paris.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said the vice president "didn't go as far as his President or our President is willing to go" in placing conditions on a bombing halt.

NEW YORK (AP) - General Motors will introduce an American-built small car in the summer of 1970, Chairman James M. Roche announced Thursday.

"This new car will be more than a foot shorter than any car GM makes in the United States today," Roche said.

"It will weigh about 1,900 pounds and will be about a foot longer than the best selling foreign car."

The best-selling foreign car, is the German-built Volkswagen.

Called at present the XP887, the GM car will be engineered, produced and distributed by Chevrolet Motor Division, Roche said. It will be assembled at Lordstown, Ohio.

The expected price of the new car was not announced.

Roche said the new passenger car "will not be a pocket size version of any other car," but instead "will have a look and character all its own."

He said the new car will be "roomier, with more trunk space" than the best selling foreign car and "superior in performance with excellent fuel economy."

ording to the procedures of state and

The two Democrats, Warren Huff of Plymouth and Dr. Blanche Martin of East Lansing, issued a joint statement earlier in the week which called for a complete revocation of the resolution.

The 'suspension resolution' ought to be entirely revoked and not just reworded," the statement said.

The action of the Board majority was at once absurd and provocative."

The two candidates, stating their support of the dissent registered by Stevens and Clair White of Bay City—both Democrats—claimed that the "rash action" ignored the procedures in the Academic Freedom Report and was done in "secrecy."

Such an attempt at secrecy, they said, "implies that the Board majority does not trust the faculty and students as we reflect.

"We have a fine faculty and student body at MSU and we have faith in their ability to act on this issue through proper and democratic procedures as approved by the Board of Trustees in the Report."

Huff and Martin said the matter, after revocation, "should be referred to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs."

The 'subcommittee' said he did not know whether contempt charges would be brought against Greenblat for his walkout.

Greenblat's mobilization committee was one of four protest organizations which undercover police agent Robert L. Pierson testified share the goal "to violently overthrow of the government of the United States."

Pierson named the others as the Youth International Party Yippies, the Students for a Democratic Society and the Black Panther Party.

Rubin has been subpoenaed to testify, but Ichord left open the question whether he would actually be called when the hearings resume Friday.
