To cope with it and to balance the budget, Johnson proposed a oneyear continuance of the 10 per cent income surtax.

"I have communicated with Presidentelect Nixon on the surtax," Johnson said. "Both of us want to see it removed as soon as circumstances will permit. In my opinion, circumstances --which include today's record interest rates--do not now permit it.

"The President-elect has concluded that--until his administration and the Congress can ascertain that the facts justify permitting the surtax to expire or to be reduced--he will support my recommendation that it be continued.'

Women's Inter-residence Council (WIC) clarified its position Tuesday on the amended women's hour policy now under reconsideration by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

The clarification came in response to a State News article printed Tuesday. In the article Sue Landers. WIC president, was quoted to say, "WIC will continue to work for no--hours for all freshmen.

Kelly leaves Honors post, heads college

MSU lost its second director of the Honors College inside of a year when William W. Kelly was named Tuesday to the presidency at a Virginia girl's school.

Kelly, 40, has been elected the sixth president of Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, Va., and will take office July 1.

Kelley became director of the Honors College only last year to replace the president of Wells College in New York in March.

Kelly succeeds Samuel R. Spencer Jr., who resigned last September Baldwin to become

According to Miss Landers the faculty committee considered two separate policies at its meeting last Friday. One policy, approving th WIC proposal for second and third term freshmen, was passed.

Another, approving the same conditions for first term freshmen, was tabled for further action at this week's

If the faculty committee approves th first term freshman policy, Miss Landers said the WIC proposal would be returned to Milton B. Dickerson. vice president for student affairs, for his approval.

Miss Landers believes that, if this happens, the proposal would most likely go to the board of trustees for approval with the Men's Halls Assn. open house policy.

The proposal was originally given to Dickerson for approval at the end of fall term. On Jan. 6 he referred it back to the faculty committee, asking Friday that they eliminate the first term freshmen from the policy. If the committee rejects the first term freshman policy the question will go to a conference committee between the ASMSU Board and the faculty committee. The job of the conference committee would be to reach a settlement on the issue agreeable to both groups. This settlement, according to Miss Landers, would constitute a new proposal and would require passage by both the ASMSU Board and the faculty committee before going to Dickerson for Mendoza denied that farm workers are impoverished. He said that they are living quite well and do not want to be forced into a union that has an hourly rate of $1.40 when they are now making $2 to $5 an hour.

He stated that 87 to 90 per cent of farm workers are not migrants; they live in the same county as they work. He also said that many farm workers own their own homes and their children attend high school and college.

Mendoza stated that money to support the Right to Work Committee comes from voluntary contributions by professional people, small businessmen and the clergy.

Rubin Alfaro, the Midwest director of the Bishops Committee for the Spanish Speaking stood up during the meeting and said that he had sworn testimony that Mendoza said he would destroy the United Farm Workers even if it meant using violence.

The chairman of the meeting told Rubin that the meeting was not an argument session and when Rubin persisted he was escorted out of the room.

Mendoza answered Rubin's charge by saying that he was non-violent.

Thomas Kay, a Lansing resident who heads the boycott committee, said that he believes the picketing in favor of the boycott was successful. About 50 people in favor of the boycott participated in the picketing; a smaller number demonstrated against the boycott.

Faculty book policy poses few problems

By ED HUTCHISON State News Staff Writer

Despite a no-fine policy for overdue books checked out by faculty members, there is not much of a problem with faculty returning books, Richard E. Chapin, director of libraries, said Monday.

Check-out procedures are the same as for undergraduates. Books are checked out for two weeks; if they are not returned, a computer print-out is sent at the end of two and three weeks.

When books are not returned after the last notice is sent requesting a book, Chapin sends a letter, calls the borrower or rower's department.

Only a few fail to respond to the Library's request to return the book, Chapin said.

The Library Committee discussed last year the problem of the faculty keeping books overdue and discussed a possible fine, Charles Hughes, professor of anthropology and chairman of the committee, said.

There was no decision made pending the outcome of the limitation of the research stacks, Convicted atom spy Morton Sobell was released from prison under a federal court order Tuesday after serving more than 17 years of a 30-year sentence.

Lawrence O'Brien, whose resignation as chairman created the vacancy, joined Humphrey in outlining Harris' task: rebuilding the party's financial and grass roots structure.

Harris replied, "We must have support from all representative groups of Americans. That will be one of our first tasks, to meet our first test in the congressional elections of 1970.

George Weeks, a graduate of MSU School of Journalism, was appointed Tuesday as Governor elect William G. Milliken's press secretary.

Weeks, 36, a native of Traverse City, has been with United Press International since 1954. He was manager of the news service's capitol bureau in Lansing prior to transferring to Washington in 1960 to serve as foreign editor. "George Weeks is exceptionally qualified ... and will insure that newsmen have free access to information," Milliken said in announcing Weeks' appointment.

Forces supporting a constitutional amendment to lower the Michigan voting age from 21 to 18 feel they are stronger, by far, than ever before. They've introduced a resolution in the newly convened state legislature to get the proposition on the 1970 general election ballot for determination by the people.

Three years ago a similar amendment lost by 500,000 votes at the polls. But sponsors of the effort aren't disheartened. "Attitudes have changed since then," said Rep. Jackie Vaughn, D-Detroit, chief author of the amendment. "The influence of the young in the 1968 presidential campaign has helped a lot. These young people are mature enough to hold a job, pay taxes, to go war, get married, appear in adult courts, be sued and make wills," said Vaughn. "So it is inconsistent that we do not let them become involved in the vital responsibility of voting."

The Peter-Paul plan for stack access

The University seems adament in proceeding with the recent decision to restrict access to the east wing stacks of the Library. Like all things bureaucratic, the decision seems irreversible. We are to return Fall term, from a summer of far-away frolic, to an accomplished fact: the stacks will be closed.

The formal arguments for closing the stacks have been couched in equivocation. We are told with the glibness of a Grinch stealing Christmas that "the east wing is not capable of handling the heavy traffic of unrestricted use." Further, we are reassured that under the proposed policy any interested student will still be able to obtain the materials he needs from the stacks.

These arguments for restricting access to the stacks seem rational enough at first blush. Present plans will require that all students - grads and undergrads alike - obtain a permit in order to browse in the stacks. Permits will be a mere "formality," freely dispensed, and not too difficult to obtain.

This most recent proposal requiring grads as well as undergrads to obtain permits - is worthy of merit as a method to remove the artificial barriers arbitrarily set up in the original proposal made to the Faculty Library Committee.

Phony distinctions, arbitrarily imposed on an unwilling student body, have long been this paper's principal objection to the original restricted-stacks proposal.

This most recent proposal, however, underscores the ambiguous nature of the entire Library issue. If all students will require permits to enter the stacks and no one who asks will be refused one, who in fact will be restricted from the stacks?

Assuming the sincerity of the proponents of the restrictedstacks proposal, we must believe that it is only the random "unauthorized" browser who will be inconvenienced and restricted.

But must we believe, as we are being asked to, that the number of such browsers has increased to such a magnitude or degree of destructiveness as to rival the hordes of Attila the

No, it is obvious the east wing of the Library is not the grooviest place in town. The students there are there for serious academic reasons, not for frolic among the volumes. They are the same students who will be using the stacks under any permit system. They are the students who will be inconvenienced by restricting their access.

The group allegedly intended to be restricted from the stacks - the unauthorized random browser - constitutes a very small minority at best. Their exclusion hardly warrants inconveniencing a majority of serious library users.

If use of the east wing stacks by unauthorized users is indeed the problem, there would certainly seem to be a number of more equitable solutions. Requiring that persons desiring access show their MSU I.D. would be one less inconvenient method of controlling access. The adequate funding, staffing and publicizing of the benefits of a book-paging system might be another.

The present "stacks" policy remains cloudy at best. Removing the student's right to unrestricted stack access with one hand and granting a degree of it back with the other raises some question about the necessity of restricting access in the first place.

Requiring University students to accept the inconvenience of grade-school permission slips displays a certain lack of concern for the average student's viewpoint in the second place.

A marked degree of ambiguity concerning aims and problems surrounds the entire question of whether, in fact, the alleged need to restrict the east wing stacks is valid. And if it is valid, has the right solution been arrived at?

Perhaps it is time for a clearcut statement-of-goals by the library, of what it hopes to achieve in restricting the stacks and for a student body investigation into those goals.

Shifting the world's focus

In a little over four months the world's focus has shifted dramatically from Eastern Europe to the Middle East (disregarding Southeast Asia). The conniver behind the scenes: The Soviet Union.

Perhaps, this judgment seems a bit premature. But some "facts" should

Back on Aug. 2l, and the next few days thereafter, the Soviets showed a flagrant disregard for moral and political justice. But almost forgotten in the midst of worldwide criticism was their apparent success. Sure, they've been beset by violent student protests, a critical Czechoslovak press and threats by trade unions. However, along with their Czech and Slovak supporters, the Soviets and the "hard line" have prevailed.

So, in the past few months, the Soviets have all but left Czechoslovakia and in doing so have told it like it is. They have issued their orders to those in the Party Presidium who have chosen to do their bidding. What has resulted in Czechoslovakia is the gradual return to a more conservative political line, an increasing attempt to apply censorship to the press, and an emphasis on the positive aspects of television and radio. All this has, until recently, caused denunciations from all over the world.

But in the past two weeks the Soviet Union has again mastered the situation. She has turned the spotlight on the Middle East and its complexities.

Her siding with the Arab nations has long been known and now her practical solution to the incessant conflict has been proposed. The Soviets point out that it will take an "imposed" settlement, rather than a negotiated agreement being worked on by Gunnar Jarring (United Nations peace mediator), with the four big powers (Britain, France, U.S.S.R., United States) as lord protectors to provide a lasting peace. Under the plan, Israel will have to forego much of the land she gained in the Six-Day War, but the Suez canal will once again be opened by the UAR.

The Israelis have rejected the proposal as being "another Munich" and rightly so to their way of thinking. The Arabs obligingly have backed-up the Russians as they stand to gain substantially in the proposed peace

But regardless of the reactions taken by individual countries, the Russians have diverted attention from Czechoslo-

Josef Smrkovsky, the former Chairman of the National Assembly, has all but been demoted to the second position in the similar House to be established later this month. The 21-member Presidium just recently issued warnings to a 900,000 member trade union that threatened to strike if Smrkovsky was relegated to an inferior position. The trade union eventually backed down.

Obviously, the Russians has e pulled the necessary strings.

In the space of a few weeks then, the Soviets have turned attention away from their main troublespot and instead have raised themselves as "peace-seekers" in the explosive Middle East. But the Soviets have their hands filled here, too. They want peace in the Middle East and at the same time they want some substantial gains.

POINT OF VIEW

Students should set social rules

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following "point of view" was written by Fred Fry, president of Inter-Cooperative Council and member of ASMSU board.

We, the students of Michigan State University, have come to a crossroad. As "members of the academic community who are also members of the larger society, as such we retain those and on rambles the Academic Freedom Report. The report also states that to the maximum extent feasible, students shall participate in formulating and revising regulations governing student conduct. But do we have any real say about nitty gritty policy decisions? We have a voice, you say, a voice to suggest change in course content, the Library. and which of the faculty we like. True, and the University listens, except when what we suggest may upset someone's little domain, his little chunk of authority, some department chairman's pet project, or one important person's inflexible notion of the public's role in determining University policy: except when we offend someone.

But we students are not hollering for more participation in what is really meaningful at the University, we have enough problems. Students have to be worried about how a university, in the name of goodness, can systematically influnce a student's personal life. As some students have pointed out, we have to worry so much about the University's restrictions upon our personal lives, that we have few resources left to worry about relevant problems. Vice President Dickerson has stated that students are too concerned with rights, and not concerned enough about responsibility. I feel that as long as we are being systematically oppressed, it is our responsibility to try to bring about a change in this oppression.

It is true that our rights are not being ignored as flagrantly as before. But the way student conduct regulations are made is what really gets you. There is a student government at MSU. But what happens to the things that this group decides? According to the established channels, the proposals than go to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, then to the vice president for student affairs, then to the president, and finally to the board of trustees. Any one of these bodies may block passage of a proposal. To suggest that these channels are slow and cumbersome is a gross understatement

A big problem is that students are finding too many things wrong with the University. There is a pile of student board legislation still before faculty committee. Further, the vice president for student affairs can reject any proposal that has passed both student board and faculty committee. The unfortunate consequences of this procedure were demonstrated last week by Milton Dickerson. Students should simply not tolerate the channels which lead to the rejection of both WIC's and MHA's liberal (in the sense of a slight liberation) proposals.

The result of this little game is that students have the role of suggesting a smorgasboard of change with other groups deciding which changes they want and then proceeding to make them. Students end up as petty pawns in this little "political process."

There is, however, a proposal in ASMSU's policy committee which would make students ultimately responsible for determining our own social lives.

Letter policy

The State News welcomes all letters. They should be typed and signed with the home town, student, faculty or staff standing, and local phone number included. No unsigned letters will be accepted for publication, and no letter will be printed without a signature except in extreme circumstances. All letters must be less than 300 words long for publication without editing.

This proposal has to pass through the very groups which we would like to cirvumvent. Therefore, it is necessary for students to indicate their overwhelming support for such a measure.

Some prominent University officials including a trustee member have indicated that they feel there should be some areas os University life in which students should have control. Presently, with the possibly exception of the student press, there is no such area.

While it helps to have administrators who are sympathetic to changing anachronistic policies, that is not the essential point. The important issue should be whether students alone are to rule over their own personal affairs. When the faculty at a university receive interference from the administration in academic affairs they scream a lot and become greatly upset. Likewise, students should be greatly upset when they realize what is happening to them. Some say that we need numerous rules governing student conduct. These may be the same people who still want every dormie to wear a suit coat for each evening meal, and no coed to be allowed to go to Lansing in the even-

Max Lerner has suggested that students view the university as a microcosm of the larger society. Thus, it should be vitally important that we be allowed to participate meaningfully in at least some simple areas of university life. Advisors to the Inter-Cooperative Council suggest that when students are given more responsibility, they usually meet the challenge by acting more responsibly. It would seem that greater individual freedom would encourage, rather than stifle self reliance, maturity, and goals desirable to the total learning process.

In essence, the Freedom Report recites some high ideals. but the procedures it outlines for their fruition have proven themselves inadequate. If we aren't able to determine our own social regulations, the next logical step would be the formulation of a Student Committee on Faculty and Administrative Affairs.

OUR READERS' MIND

Library 'Unreasons'

To the Editor:

After returning from a two-year absence from MSU, I have discovered the Library stacks are being closed to undergrads. Maybe I'm unaware of the events leading up to this action and of the reasons for it, but if the reasons given in the January 8 issue of the SN are the only reasons, then this action is ridiculous and unnecessary. Let's look at these stated reasons, or rather at these "unreasons."

Unreason No. 1 - "That the library must provide diverse services to all segments of the academic community." Does taking away a service previously extended to undergrads serve this end?

Unreason No. 2 - "That the East (graduate) Wing was not designed for heavy traffic? Secondly, was the decision to close the stacks made at the time the Library was designed or is it being made now? If the former is true, why even talk about it! If the latter is true and the question is still open, then this is not really a reason.

Unreason No. 3 - "That funds for the building were granted on the basis that the space was to develop the graduate and research programs. .." Doesn't the building achieve this purpose! Is_it bad that undergrads can also profit from it?

Unreason No. 4 - "That limitation of access will not prevent issue of books on request to undergraduates." That's not a reason for closing the stacks. It's a reason why the action being taken isn't quite as abhorent as it would have been if the proposal didn't even provide for a paging system.

Unreason No. 5 - "That most large libraries use a limited or closed stack system." Would the Library Committee members agree then that the fact that most college students engage in premarital intercourse is a reason for MSU students to do so?

The article closes with a statement by Richard E. Chapin that, "Our intentior is not to keep out the interested graduate student, but to keep out inactive students." Since the new ruling is designed to keep out undergrads, I assume that Mr. Chapin is equating "inactive students" and "undergraduate students." Very interesting

The provision for a system of permits allowing undergrad who can show a demonstratable need for the resources of the Library is similarly interesting. If there is a single undergrae at MSU who does not have a need for the library resources, then there's something wrong with either our undergrads or our Library. If someone will explain to me why curiosity and browsing are sins, I will hasten to mend my errant ways.

Maybe it's just because I'm an ignorant undergrad, but it seems to me that the most urgent problem of the Library is not that it is congested with "inactive students," but that m; ny students don't even seem to know where it is.

Reid introduced his request by saying that the first computer science course was offered at MSU in 1961. Since then courses have been unified in the new Dept. of Computer Science, created by the trustees in December.

There is presently a doctoral program in computer science, but the candidates must also jointly qualify in electrical engineering before the degree can be granted.

Reid is asking the council to organize a master's program solely in the new department which would attract many qualified students to MSU

The proposed program would also bolster the role of the department which, Reid said, is mostly operating as a service department to the University. Students from several departments are required to take lower level courses in computer sci-

'Shadows' enliven afternoon television

". . . Now I felt the hot breath on my neck; then I could feel the soft, shivering touch of the lips and the sharpeness of two teeth, pausing, just touching. . ." (from Dracula, by Bram Stoker)

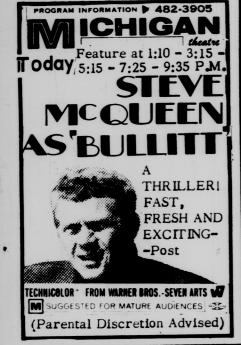

As a means of avoiding fits of tears as well as boredom, I've closen to bypass the topic of television "soap operas" in the past. This is done for no other reason than preserving my own emotional sanity, and also the fact that there would never be enough space to even list the line of melodramas which prey upon the tube daily. However, I feel it's time to give credit where it is due; to a program which far "overshadows" anything it competes with; it is called, in fact, "Dark Shadows."

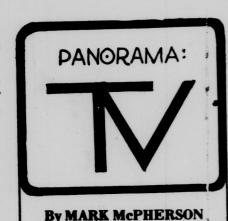

As I seek out the word "melodrama" in my Webster, it is said to be "a sensational, romantic drama, often violent, with a generally happy ending." I think that one of the reasons why "Dark Shadows" makes afloat, is primarily the meaning it gives to this term. Casual viewers and addicts alike know this program has that old pizzazz which made the "old" melodrama the grounds for what afternoon set-starting became.

The roots are to be found in the old radio serializations, and bet- fang-mail come from being other ter yet, the still viewed, so-called than a no-account. For reasons to have thrilled and chilled. Not coincidentally, the villain, or better yet, protagonist in both tales is a vampire. Of course, few of us come away sympathizing for poor old Bela, his fly-eating assistant, or even his trained pack of wolves ("children of the night" he calls them). Clearly he is malevolent and enjoys putting the bite on the Transylvanian townfolk. It is not all treacle, and watching this program, one is even aware of where the scheduled agonies end and the commercials begin. Super!

Taking place in New England, the story originally dealt with a young governess' adventures upon arriving at the mysterious house on the cliff, Collinwood. Therein lived a number enigmatic characters, and for awhile the question simply was, is Collinwood really haunted, and will Victoria (the girl) survive in the Jane Austenish traditions of ve heroines?

Well, the series went well, but suddenly the bombshell was dropped. Enter a new character; Barnabas Collins, a long removed relative to the haunted houseful, who bears an uncanny resemblance to his namesake who live 175 years ago.

Well, as we faithful viewers know, who have seen this series from its start about two years ago, the newly arrived Barnabas is more than his forbearer's

Two former MSU grid stars are among the leading candidates for the vacant assistant coaching positions under Head Football Coach

Duffy Daugherty. Although no official announcement has been made, Joseph Carruthers and Sherman Lewis are high on the list of candidates being interviewed, Daugherty said. 'Anyone who is hired has to be recommended to the board of trustees. Both men have been interviewed by Biggie Munn and myself and any final announcement will come from the athletic director's office," Daugherty said. Carruthers lettered as a Spartan lineman in 1955-57 and played pro ball in Canada before succeeding George Perles, now a Spartan coach, at Detroit St. Ambrose High School.

Lewis, a standout running back for the Spartans from 1961-63, was co-captain and an All-America in his senior year and holds MSU Big Ten records for the longest running play and the longest passing play from scrimmage, both 87 yards, as well as the longest Spartan passing play, 88 yards. Lewis is now coaching at his old high school, DuPont Manual in Louisville, Ky. The vacancies in the Spartan staff were created when Cal Stoll and Vince Carillot accepted the head coaching jobs at Wake Forest and Tulsa respectively.

Don Coleman, asst. line coach of the Spartans, is expected to announce soon that he is leaving the coaching ranks to accept an administrative job on campus.

Evening College probes radicals

By KATHY MORAN State News Staff Writer

The history of the student movement and some of the groups that are considered part of it will be the subject of a course called "The Student Left" which will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday in 215 Bessey Hall in connection with Evening College.

The class which will be taught by Susan Parry, graduate assistant in Philosophy, will examine the kinds of student movements with emphasis on the Berkely Free Speech Movement, the Columbia strike and the rebellion of French students and workers. It will attempt to see if any pattern exists between these movements.

The Student Left is just one of the classes being offered by Evening College, which is part of the MSU Continuing Education Service, with students and student wives in mind.

The classes are all non-credit and certain ones are offered to full-time undergraduates, graduates and wives of students for $5 rather than the $10 to $20 which outsiders are charged.

In an effort to determine appropriate roles and strategies to eradicate racism, the seminar will feature noted speakers. Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., will speak in February. Admission to each lecture will be $2.50 but the fee for the entire course is only $50.

An introductory survey course in sociology will begin tonight in Room 215 Bessey Hall at 7 p.m. Philip Marcus, professor of sociology, will examine the basic principles and concepts of sociology and the structure and dynamics of social organization in the eight week course.

"Self-Defense Skills for Women" will begin at 7 p.m. tonight in the Wrestling Room of the Men's I.M.

Registration is still open to interested students for classes that began on Monday or Tuesday of this week.

"Shorthand Review and Speed Building" began on Tuesday but is still open to students or secretaries who have had prior instruction and want to review it and build up their speed. This 16 session course is not offered at the student rate so the tuition cost is $25.

Travel Course

A unique course to help the student on a trip abroad entitled "So You Plan to Travel" begins Thursday at 7 p.m. in Room 308 Bessey Hall. Gordon L. Thomas, professor and associate chairman of Communications will draw from his experiences and give information on planning the trip.

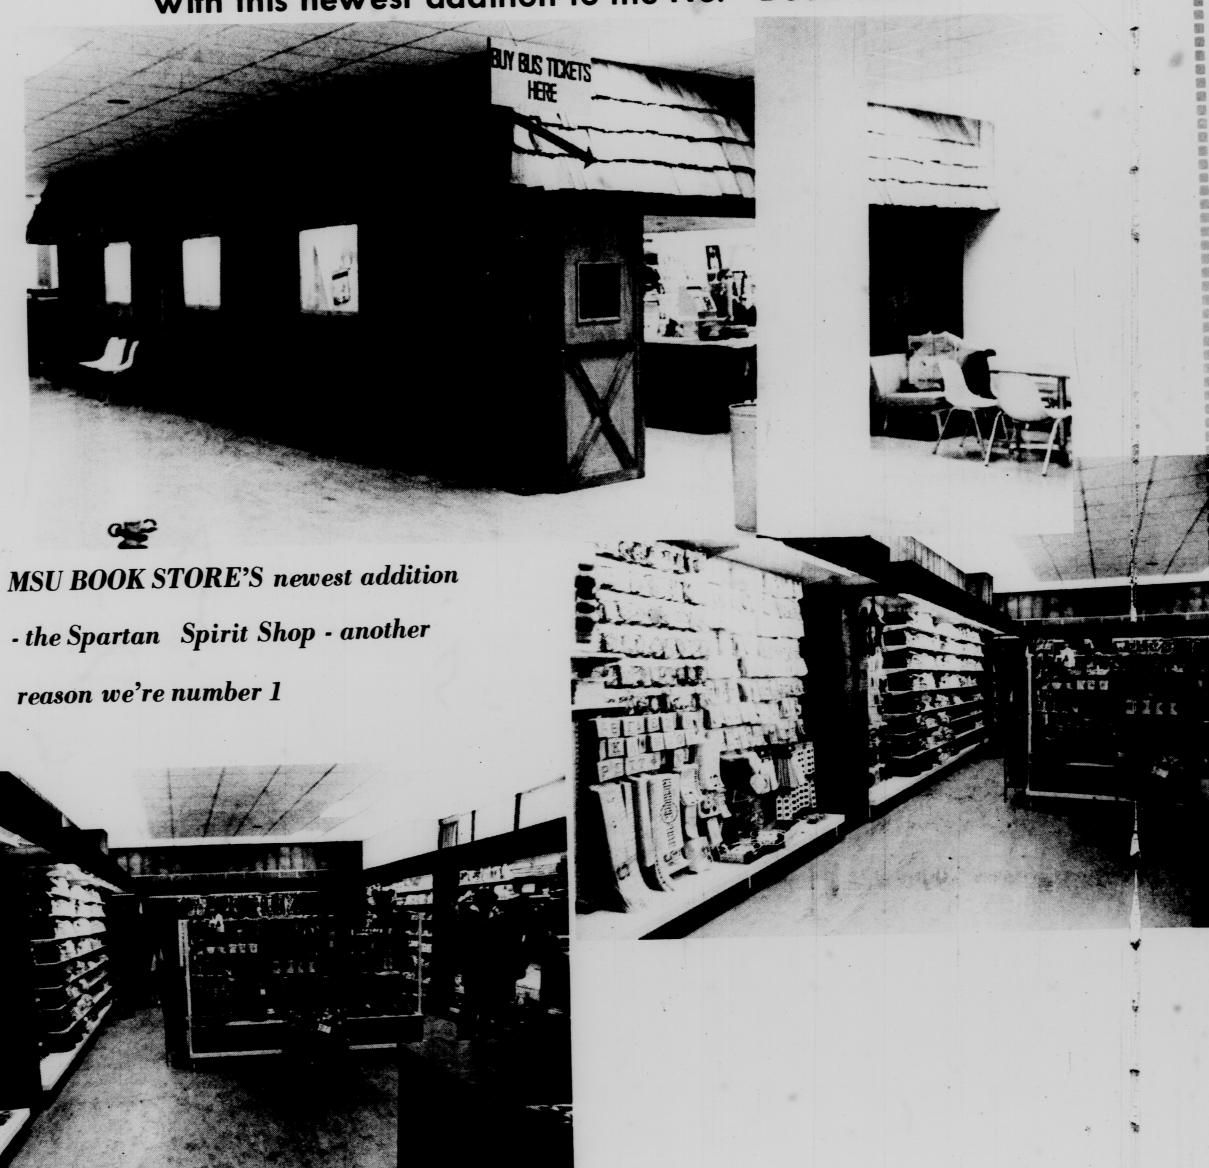

"Trends in Modern Drama", illustrating the various trends which have taken place in the modern theatre, will also begin at 7 p.m. Thursday in Room 309 Bessey Numerous courses are offered every term to studen's and outsiders through the Evening College covering a wide variety of topics. For information on the other courses call the Evening College in Kellogg Center at 355-4562.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a clarification statement by Sue Landers, president of Women's Inter-residence Council (WIC).

I hope to try and clarify WIC's position concerning the tquestion of women's hours. WIC's policy calls for all freshman women to be given no hours-first, second, and third term and it is still our policy. On Friday the faculty committee passed a motion granting no hours for second and third term. Another motion was made which would grant no hours for first term freshman women-this will be acted upon on Friday, Jan. 17.

It was WIC's position to wait want no hours now, but it is until the entire question is not our decision at this time. decided in the faculty committee, WIC is not going to hold up e.g. regarding whether first the question of no hours for term freshmen be granted no freshman women but we have hours, before anything could be to wait until the motion before done. If the faculty committee the faculty committee is decided does not approve no hours for -one way or the other. first term freshmen, the hours question will go to a conference committee between the faculty committee and ASMSU. It will be the task of this group to arrive at a settlement agreeable to all parties concerned. Then the settlement is sent back to the faculty committee and ASMSU for approval and to Dr. Dickerson if both groups approve a week.

This weekly column is a joint effort of the State News and the Office of Volunteer Programs. Students, faculty and staff can join in the MSU Volunteer Action effort which includes those opportunities listed below and others by contacting the MSU Volunteer Bureau, 26 Student Services Bldg.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT: Due to the overwhelming response by the students and faculty of MSU to the opportunities available through the Office of Volunteer Programs, the Office of MSU Volunteers, 26 Student Services Bldg., will be closed on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week between the hours of 8:00 p.m. and 1:00 p.m. in order to complete necessary paper work on volunteer applications already re-

WEST SIDE COMMUNITY ACTION CENTER: The West Side Community Action Center has requested several MSU black students to act as Big Brothers and Big Sisters to black children of the West Side Community.

CURRENT OPPORTUNITIES

JAPANESE STUDENTS: The Student Education Crops has a request for two individuals fluent in the Japanese language. The volunteers would work with Japanese children in the Red Cedar School. The students, because of the language barrier, are in need of extra intensive tutoring

NORTH SIDE COMMUNITY ACTION CENTER: A volunteer is needed on Monday or Wednesday evenings to teach basic office skills to four young ladies who desire to improve their abilities. These young ladies need help in basic typing and shorthand in particular. This is a good opportunity for a student or facul-

NORTH SIDE COMMUNITY ACTION CENTER: The Action Center is interested in cooperating with a graduate student, faculty member or a combined group of both in order to conduct a Senior Citizens Research Study. This would be an excellent opportunity for a graduate student or faculty member interested in research. Perhaps a research methods course might look into this as a class project.

OPERATION SHOPPING BASKET: This is a program conducted at the North Side Action Center. Volunteer drivers are needed two hours a month. The volunteer would pick up a lady from the North Side Community and take her to pick up her food stamps. The volunteer would than take the lady shopping and offer hints on good marketing habits. This opportunity offers a rewarding experience for a minimal commitment. This is a particularly good opportunity for wives of MSU faculty-

LANSING BIG BROTHERS: Faculty, staff and graduate students are needed as Big Brothers for fatherless boys in Lansing. Big Brother work seeks to help fatherless boys live in a socially acceptable manner. The boys may have social, emotional or delinquency the purpose of assisting the boy in becoming a happy, independent, mature citizen and reach toward adulthood with goals and plans for this period of life. Volunteers will be expected to meet with their little brothers at least once

JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT: (Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday 7-9 p.m.) Business majors and other students are needed to serve as company advisors and resource persons in the Junior Achievement Program. Experience in the areas of finance, marketing, management, etc. would be helpful. Time commitment is three hours per week (one night Monday thru Thursday). MSU student help will enable more teens from inner1city schools to participate in Junior Achievement.

WALNUT STREET SCHOOL: Walnut Street School is a Lansing Elementary school. One of the teachers at the school has requested at least two volunteers to work in an orthopedic classroom. The volunteers should be acquainted with learning disabilities associated with brain damage. Another teacher has requested a volunteer to work with a perceptually handicapped child. Persons interested in these volunteer positions should contack Roger Anthony of the Student Education Corps in Room 26 Student Services Bldg. (afternoons only)

BOY's CLUB OF LANSING: Volunteers from all areas are needed at the Boy-s Club of Lansing. Any individual interested in working with boys from 6-18 would be welcome. Boys from the club would particularly like to have someone conduct a tumbling, almost any skill or specility can be used. For instance, the boys are interested in starting clubs in the following areas: radio, nature, Indian Lore, debating, music, art and all sports.

READERS NEEDED FOR MSU BLIND STU-DENTS: Readers are needed to assist MSU Blind Students, Volunteers may assume regular reading duties or place their name on an "on-call" list. Reading assignments will be made at the convenience of the volunteer and most situations may be arranged on cam-

TUTORS NEEDED: Tutors are needed for MSU minority group freshmen. All tutoring will be done on campus at times convenient to the tutor and the tutoree. There is a particular need for students with ability in Natural Science and the basic freshman courses.

MATH TUTOR NEEDED: A volunteer is needed to tutor math at the office of the Manpower Planning Association in Lansing. The individual will work with two advanced students who are capable of moving ahead of the rest of the group.

SPECIAL REQUEST-GROUP ACTIVITY: There is a request for a group of volunteers to assist an inner-city resident to point the inside of her house (walls, ceilings and woodwork If living room and dining room). The MSU Volunteer Bureau received two requests for house painting shortly before Christmas and was unable at that time to locat a group of willing students. Anticipating more re-Bureau would like to accept some of these requests on an on-call basis. This type of activity could provide excellent volunteer opportunities and projects for living units both on and off campus.

MICHIGAN SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND: Volunteers are needed for recreation groups from 3:15-5:15 p.m. on Tuesda 's; 7:00-9:00 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday venings; and from 9:00 a.m. -5:00 p.m. on Sa urdays. Volunteers are needed in all spe ts and particularly in bowling, swimming roller skating, basketball and bicycling.

SPECIAL REQUEST: A volur er is needed to work with an 18 year old h school student who has a severe visual hadicap and has dropped out of school lacking only a few credits for graduation. This individual needs someone to take a personal interest in his success and help him overcome his handicap. A male volunteer at the junior, senior, or graduate level with transportation is most desireable

YMCA URBAN ACTION PROGRAM: Individuals are needed to help increase motivation of potential dropouts to stay in school. Duties will include tutoring and working with the potential dropout on a persona pasis.

MICHIGAN TRAINING UNIT: Volunteer opportunities are available at the Michigan Training Unit (MTU) in Ionia. The MTU is a boy's training prison where inmates, ranging from 16-21 years old, may complete their high school subjects and as counselors for group counseling sessions. This is an excellent opportunity for graduate students in corrections, psychology, counseling, sociology and other disciplines. Transportation will be provided by the MSU Volunteer Transportation Peol SCOPE: Greeks needed to assist in manning a community center run by students and people from the community. A variety of programs are held at the center and ill talents are needed. Students with idea for programming are especially welcome.

YMCA: Leaders needed to si pervice fourth, fifth and sixth grade boys after school in a planned recreation program.

GREATER EAST LANSING CHAMBER OF COMMERCE: The East Lansing Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with the East Lansing City Council, has appointed a joint committee to effect the redevelopment of the downtown business district. The Chamber of Commerce has requested student volunteers to work as staff assistants to the joint committee. Duties will involve research-staff-administrative functions commensurate with the abilities of the SPECIAL REQUEST: A volunteer is needed to work with a hard-working retarded young man who is slowly learning to read. He needs to learn to read well enough to enable him to read on-the-job notices, but is requires frequent reading sessions with a sympathetic tutor who will help to reinforce his new learning by approval and occasional help over a word The voluntee should expect to spend three hours per reek with this young man.
