Nixon names Carswell to high court

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon reached into the federal judiciary Monday and picked a circuit judge named George Harrold Carswell to serve as a justice of the Supreme Court succeeding Abe Fortas, who resigned under fire.

The nomination was sent to the Senate in late afternoon. Hearings by the Judiciary Committee are expected to begin Jan. 27. A repeat of last year's struggle over Nixon's first nomination of a Fortas successor seems unlikely.

A 'strict constructionist'

The nomination of Carswell to the seat left vacant by the resignation of Fortas last May was announced by Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House press secretary, who said the 50-year-old judge meets President Nixon's desires to have a "strict constructionist" sit on the bench.

Carswell, of Tallahassee, Fla., has been a federal judge since 1958. A Democrat turned Republican, he was named chief judge for the Northern District of Florida by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and elevated to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of New Orleans by Nixon.

Ziegler said Carswell's personal and judicial background, including financial holdings and income tax returns, were investigated with the result the judge received a complete clearance.

Youngest man

The bridge-playing, football-rooting Floridian would be the youngest man on the current court. Closest to him in age is Byron R. White who is 52.

There was no immediate indication from Capitol Hill that the Carswell nomination will draw substantial opposition in the Senate which last year refused to confirm Circuit Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. for the Fortas seat.

Ziegler said Nixon talked to Carswell for the first time, by telephone, at his Tallahassee home at 1:15 p.m. He said Carswell recalled meeting Nixon for a "brief handshake" in 1954.

In reply to newsmen's questions the White House official said Carswell was in Washington last week to see Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Egil Krogh Jr., a deputy counsel to the President.

Ziegler said there had been no political clearances or any clearance with the American Bar Association. He said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger was not consulted.

The President's press secretary said Carswell has "an outstanding judicial and personal background." He said the President fixed on the nominee from four or five top contenders last Saturday evening.

Carswell talked briefly with reporters in Tallahassee after the President's announcement.

"I don't really anticipate any problems," he said when asked whether he thought his nomination would be approved by the Senate.

Carswell shrugged off Ziegler's "strict constructionist" label, saying the term has many meanings. On his judicial philosophy, he said, "A judge is neither pro nor con. I want to approach the law fairly."

As to his financial holdings, he said: "I have my home and a few parcels of real property I inherited from my father and my grandfather."

He met with the newsmen less than an hour after Nixon sent his nomination to the Senate.

Strict interpretation

Nixon has described his judicial philosophy as a belief that the Constitution should be "strictly interpreted" after naming Burger to succeed Earl Warren. The President defined his view to mean it is Congress' right to write the laws and justices "should be very conservative" in overthrowing them.

Asked if "strict constructionist" also meant that Carswell is "pro-civil rights," Ziegler replied: "I wouldn't get into it."

Among the positions taken by Carswell on the circuit court is that a freedom-of-choice school desegregation plan is permissible when it will have the effect of breaking down racially separate school systems. He took this view in a July decision involving Baldwin County, Ga.

The Supreme Court has ruled that freedom-of-choice plans are acceptable only when they actually bring desegregation.

Ziegler was asked by a newsman if it was a coincidence that the President had turned again to the South for a nominee. "It's a fact," he said.

Son of legislator

Carswell, the son of a Georgia state legislator, was born in Irwinton, Ga., Dec. 22, 1919. He is a graduate of Duke and the Walter F. George School of Law at Mercer University.

He is a Navy veteran and the father of two married daughters and two sons who are students at Florida State University. He is also a grandfather.

The judiciary subcommittee in approving Carswell's promotion from the district to circuit court held a hearing lasting only 10 minutes, with no opposition being expressed.

That was last June 5. On June 11 the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights submitted a memorandum saying that since his 1958 appointment to the district court Carswell had shown "a strong bias against Negroes asserting civil rights claims."

The committee found no merit in the assertions by the organization of more than 100 civil rights groups. In its file it said the record of Carswell's tenure as a district judge disclosed "no racial bias which would justify a conclusion of prejudice to litigants in civil rights cases."

Carswell was confirmed by the Senate June 19 without any opposition being voiced from the floor.

SOUNDLY BALANCED

1971 budget receives billion dollar reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's budget for fiscal year 1971 will include the new cuts he ordered a week ago—around a billion dollars more or less—the White House reported Monday.

However, it still is expected to go to a record $200 billion-plus.

No figures were given by press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, but he called it a solid budget, which he defined as "soundly balanced and that does have some surplus." Ziegler said that before Nixon met with his Cabinet last Tuesday and ordered substantial additional economies, the budget for the year starting next July 1 was then at "a level above $203 billion."

The press secretary said when talking about reductions in the budget "you think in terms of a billion dollars or more."

Nixon had been reported considering Treasury Dept. recommendations for increased excise taxes on liquor, cigarettes and gasoline and speeded up collection of gift and estate taxes. Since then officials pictured Nixon as confident that he could balance the budget without any new taxes.

Some preferred Nixon's call for further reductions in the budget to tax increases, especially in a year of congressional elections.

The billion-dollar - or - more reduction phrase used by Ziegler indicated Nixon will not achieve the goal of getting under $200 billion.

Ziegler said the added cuts Nixon ordered do not necessarily mean a widening of the surplus he seeks.

But it is "responsive to the national needs," Ziegler said, and Nixon "has kept in mind that one of the pressing national priorities is the health of the economy."

"He has met his objective of achieving further substantial cuts in order to arrive at a solid budget in dealing with the economy," Ziegler told newsmen.

Nixon plans to submit his budget to Congress near the end of this month and has set a target date of Friday, Jan. 30, Ziegler said. There has been a suggestion that the submission might be delayed until Feb. 2, the statutory limit for sending the budget up within 15 days after Congress reconvened Monday.

The President completed the budget last week at Camp David, Md., and at the White House.

Ziegler was asked about a report that Nixon had turned down a suggestion by Secretary George Romney of the Housing and Urban Development Department that one anti-inflationary move would be for the President and Cabinet officers to take salary cuts.

Sharma affair sent to steering committee

By DELORES MAJOR
State News Staff Writer

Edwin P. Bettinghaus, chairman of the University Committee on Faculty Affairs, said that his committee feels it is not the appropriate body to launch an investigation into William J.E. Crissy's, professor of Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management, actions during the Sharma controversy this summer.

Crissy was named as spokesman for a group of "anonymous professors" who wanted to block a federal grant of Dhirendra Sharma in a State News editorial July 11, 69.

Jan. 7, a letter signed by Jim Crate, State News Editor-in-Chief; Charles P. Morrow, professor of economics; Edward Underveide, instructor in geography; and Edgar A. Schuler, professor of education and sociology, was sent to Bettinghaus requesting that his committee, "conduct a thorough investigation of Crissy's actions in the Sharma matter, and report your findings and possible recommendations to the next regular session of the Academic Senate."

However, Bettinghaus said that his committee feels that such an investigation does not fall within the jurisdiction of the committee on Faculty Affairs.

"We are sending the letter along with one of our own explaining this to the steering committee, and they will decide the proper committee to handle it."

Bettinghaus said that there is the possibility that the steering committee will decide that the Faculty Affairs Committee is the most appropriate body to handle the investigation, in which case the Faculty Affairs Committee will conduct the investigation requested within the letter.

RETIRE FROM POLITICS

Craig quits nomination race

By LARRY LEE
State News Staff Writer

Sen. Roger Craig, a reform-minded liberal Democrat from Dearborn who hoped to win his party's nomination for governor this year, will retire from political office altogether.

According to Monday's Detroit News, he is withdrawing from the governor's race because he had not been able to gather sufficient strength from labor, nor the youth sector.

Craig, 36, will be leaving the Michigan Senate after six years and said he might take another look at politics in four to six years.

The News said he will return to his Detroit law firm on a full-time basis, but acknowledged it might be difficult to re-enter politics.

"I know from other friends that it can be tough once you're working full time and making some money for a change, to leave a law practice and go back to politics."

Craig stirred up controversy last summer when he worked as a laborer in cucumber fields and dramatized the plight of the migrant worker.

He has also been active in the California grape boycott movement, civil rights and reform-of-narcotics laws.

Craig was not available for comment, but Democratic Party Chairman James McNeely said he felt the senator "will maintain political activity within the party, if not in office."

But he added, "Roger will be sorely missed in the senate."

McNeely said it is too early to tell what effect Craig's decision will have on Democratic chances for capturing the governorship.

Sen. Sander M. Levin, D-Berkey, former Democratic Party Chairman Zolton Ferency and former Detroit Mayor Jerome D. Cavanaugh appear to have the inside track to the Democratic Party's nomination for governor, McNeely said.

He added that at the party's reform convention last weekend, Macomb County Prosecutor George Paris, Wayne County Prosecutor William Cahalan were mentioned as possible candidates to oppose Republican incumbent William Milliken.

Supreme Court declares induction speed-up illegal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Local draft boards were barred Monday by the Supreme Court from speeding the induction of Vietnam war protesters.

The only punishment selective service law provides is prosecution for resisting induction, said Justice William O. Douglas in a 5-3 decision.

The law, he said, does not give the Selective Service System "free-wheeling authority to ride herd on the registrants using immediate induction as a disciplinary or vindictive measure."

The ruling rejected the Justice Dept.'s twin contentions that the regulations were not used to punish and that they should be available to correct violations of draft law.

"If federal or state laws are violated by registrants, they can be prosecuted," Douglas said.

"If induction is to be substituted for these prosecutions, a vast rewriting of the act is needed."

Justices Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Potter Stewart also supported the proposition that Congress has not authorized the accelerated draft of so-called delinquents.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice John M. Harlan voted to reverse the conviction on the ground that Gutknecht was not given adequate opportunity to appeal from his early induction order.

Justice John M. Harlan also voted with the majority but said the draft law "may well authorize acceleration to encourage a registrant to bring himself into compliance with rules essential to the operation of the classification process."

The ruling left unsettled the question whether draft boards have the power to reclassify war protesters 1A. Indications are strong, however, that this power is also in serious jeopardy.

Douglas, speaking for the majority, said they had searched Selective Service law "in vain for any clues that Congress desired the act to have tentative sanctions apart from the criminal prosecutions specifically authorized."

The ruling upsets the four-year sentence of David Earl Gutknecht, 22, of Gaylord, Minn., who turned in his draft card during an antiwar demonstration in Minneapolis in 1967.

Gutknecht was already 1A, but, Douglas said, he was in only the third most available draft group. He was entitled, the justice said, to remain in this group rather than to be pushed up to first priority.

In a separate thrust at draft boards the court agreed to hear the appeal of a Kentucky man who questions the process of determining conscientious objector status. This case, of Joseph Thomas Mulloy, 25, of Prestonburg, will be heard this spring.

Still on the court's docket is a draft case in which the power of boards to reclassify protesters to 1A is under serious attack. Douglas, Black, Brennan and Marshall took the position in the Gutknecht case that boards do not have congressional authority to reclassify, for punitive purposes, young men who were exempt or deferred.

This view may not command a majority. White, who agreed with the liberal foursome that the accelerated induction of a man already 1A is not authorized, did not join in their view of reclassification.

The court's second major ruling was a warning that blacks may not be kept off juries for racial reasons. But this was coupled with a refusal to dismantle Alabama and Georgia laws that civil rights lawyers claim work as instruments of discrimination.

U.S., British aid delivered to Biafrans

LAGOS (AP) — An American ship loaded with 5,000 tons of food for starving refugees from Biafra neared Lagos Monday as 11 tons of British medical supplies arrived by plane.

As the relief began pouring in, U.N.

Secretary-General U Thant wound up a fact-finding visit to Lagos declaring, "I am convinced that the process of national reconciliation has started very auspiciously."

Thant said Heinrich Beer, head of the League of Red Cross Societies, has returned from a visit to what was Biafra and reported he found "no hint or even the slightest, remotest evidence of violence or mistreatment of Ibos by federal forces."

Thant came here Sunday to confer with Nigerian head of State Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon on how the United Nations could help Nigeria rebuild after the 30-month civil war.

Lord Hunt, adviser to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson on Nigerian war relief, returned from the war-stricken areas saying he found no evidence of genocide, sources close to him said.

Hunt said the general refugee situation was "encouraging" and the problem was on a far smaller scale than some had predicted.

Israelis attack Suez outposts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian outposts, artillery and anti-aircraft guns came under attack by Israeli jets for 40 minutes along the central sector of the Suez Canal Monday, the Israeli military command reported.

It said all planes returned safely but gave no further details of the strikes.

The Israeli command reported it had received word from the Egyptians through the Red Cross that an Israeli pilot shot down Friday on a bombing raid in Egypt is dead. Earlier Cairo reported that Capt. Dov. Peleg crashed into the Red Sea and was devoured by sharks.

At the United Nations in New York, Jordan informed members of the U.N. Security Council that Israeli mortar fire on Sunday killed four farmers and wounded six other persons, at Tall-As-Sukkar in the northern sector of the Jordan Valley. The Jordanian document did not ask for a Security Council meeting.

In another development, Col. Muammar Kadafi, prime minister of Libya's revolutionary government, has disclosed intentions to commit Libyan troops in the Arab Conflict with Israel "in the near future."

"The Libyan armed forces had the great honor of staging the September revolution," Kadafi said. "They will have the greater honor of taking part in the battle to liberate Arab land."

Kadafi, 27, who led the coup that ousted King Idris Sept. 1, addressed troops Dunday:

"I am delighted to welcome you into the armed forces, so that you can take part in the defense of the revolutionary regime, and to set forth, equipped with conviction and modern weapons, to fight side by side with other Arab armies in the near future to liberate the land now occupied by the Israelis."

He did not clarify whether he intended to send troops to fight Israel under present circumstances or only in the case of another all-out war.

NEW ORLEANS JUDGE

Carswell follows 'law of land'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - A longtime friend of George Harold Carswell, President Nixon's nominee for the U.S. Supreme Court, said Carswell's rulings in federal court here "have not been the most popular" with his city's white majority.

"I've heard him express time and again," said the friend, attorney Bill Moor, "that the Supreme Court is the law of the land and what they say goes. That's the way his rulings are."

Carswell, 50, son of a Georgian Democratic politician, switched from the Democratic to the Republican party in the early 1950s when he was a member of a Florida law firm.

Eisenhower appointed Carswell U.S. prosecutor, then in 1958 named him chief federal judge for Florida's Northern District.

Nixon elevated him to the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans last spring.

In an early civil rights case, Carswell ruled that the Tallahassee city commissioners could not refuse to serve blacks at the city - leased restaurant at Tallahassee airport.

In two early rulings involving labor, Carswell decided once for management, once for labor.

A December 1958 suit brought by Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell against a Pensacola contractor charged Charles A. Blanchford with violating minimum wage, overtime and record keeping provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938. Carswell denied a petition for injunction and held that evidence disclosed the contractor who had only a few jobs under coverage of the act, did not intentionally violate the act and there was no reasonable likelihood that he would violate it in the future.

In a 1959 case, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers vs. Gulf Power Co., Carswell held that the union became bargaining agent for foreman when their employer recognized a wage - scale agreement containing provisions for them.

Proposed aid cuts threaten 1,500 in 'U'

Approximately 1,500 MSU students who have requested financial aid cannot be helped if Congress approves the National Defense Education Act (NDEA) student loan program at its proposed dollar level, an MSU administrator said Monday.

Henry Dykema, director of financial aids, said that there are no funds for the 1,500 students involved.

He reported while the number of students applying for loans has increased, funds for the loan program have been repeatedly cut.

This year between 15,000 and 17,000 students at MSU have some type of financial assistance, not including regular jobs. Five years ago only 4,000 were in this position.

Last year $190 million, which represented a cut of $325,000 for MSU, was appropriated by the federal government for the NDEA loans. This year President Nixon's recommendation was for only $155 million, still another cut, with the explanation that loans are "inflationary," Dykema said.

If Nixon's proposal is accepted, the cuts for the last two years would amount to more than $700,000 for MSU. Recognizing the plight of students fighting the rising costs of education, the House of Representatives recommended the appropriation be raised to $216 million.

Action pending in the Senate appears to be favorable, Dykema said. He added, however, the President must still release the funds and he is opposing all increases.

Currently the financial aids office is operating on a directive to assume monies will be the same as last year.

"If we are given additional monies, we will be able to reconsider applications. Presently, we are overcommitted. We have even guessed what the repayments will be on past loans and have lent out this money," Dykema said.

He listed several reasons for the increased application for assistance; cost of living increase, general increase in all costs, increased number of students, and the concerted effort to get students from low income families to go to college.

He noted loans do come from the student's local banks, but there are still pockets in the state where the students are not served with this type of assistance.

The 1,500 students now on waiting lists for financial aid to continue their education at MSU is three times higher than last year, Dykema concluded.

Wharton plans Wonders talk

President Wharton will speak to students at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Wonders Kiva. It will be his first such appearance since he was named MSU president last fall.

The speaking engagement is an extension of the "speakers program" of Wooster House (4-E, Wonders). Following his speech, Wharton will be available in the Wooster lounge for an informal discussion with interested students.

Folk concert, fast aid in Biafran relief effort

Lifeline for Biafra is continuing its campus-wide relief efforts.

The group will sponsor a folk concert at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in McDonel Kiva, with all contributions going toward Biafran relief. Local folk musicians will donate their performances, eliminating admission fees.

"We would like to see people attend this concert in support of Biafran relief whether or not they are able to donate," said

Mickey Davis, Southfield junior and Lifeline member.

The concert will also serve to publicize a campus fast scheduled for Feb. 13.

Approximately 12,000 students gave up a meal last spring, indirectly netting $6,000 for Biafra.

"We would like to have a complete close down of several dormitory cafeterias," Davis said. This would add the money spent for food and labor to the 50 cent contribution by cafeterias per student fasting.

Individual dormitories require that students planning to fast sign up in the dormitories between Jan. 26 and 30.

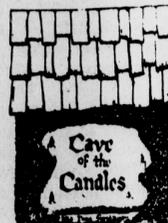

"It is important for people to continue supporting relief efforts until the Biafrans can live by the toil of their own hands instead of the charity of the world," Davis said.

Congress faces budget debates

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Congress convened its election-year session Monday with a political tinged debate over spending as Democrats challenged President Nixon's threat to veto a bill appropriating $1.26 billion in health and education funds he does not want.

One Democrat accused the administration of opening a "livability gap" with its economy measures. There were rounds of handshaking on the floor but a minimum of ceremony as Congress went back to business after a three-week recess.

It began with what has become an annually declared and usually unmet summons from congressional leaders to speed the year's work so House and Senate can adjourn by Labor Day. Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the majority leader, said he plans a six-day working week. But even as he made the announcement, Mansfield wryly acknowledged that attendance problems might make projected Saturday sessions impossible.

Both Mansfield and McCormack said crime control legislation would be a major early agenda item in the new session.

But the matter atop the Senate calendar was the veto-threatened appropriation, to supply more than $19.7 billion to the Dept. of Labor and the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare for a bookkeeping year already more than half over.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., arguing the Democratic case in the Senate, insisted it is not inflationary.

"Sometimes it seems as though the administration's hold down in spending, in certain areas, is accentuating the livability gap and making a bad situation worse," Magnuson said.

While that debate kept the Senate at work, the house met for an hour and 25 minutes, passed four minor bills, heard speeches on topics ranging from the Super Bowl to the veto threat, then quit until Tuesday.

Traditionally, Congress foregoes major business until the President has delivered his State of the Union address. President Nixon will deliver his Thursday.

But the Senate broke with that custom. "I've never seen this happen before," Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the minority leader, remarked, "except in special sessions where we met to declare war."

Scott acknowledged that politicking will shape the appropriation debate. "Both sides will seek political advantage, I suppose, this being an election year," Scott said. "But I believe the issue favors the Republicans."

Scott said that is so because it involves the administration's effort to keep federal spending in check and thus control price-boosting inflation.

But Magnuson said the issue is one of federal priorities. "Why does the President single out this bill for a veto?" he asked. "This is the bill that affects the lives and wellbeing of every person in this country."

EXERCISE AMBUSH

Remote control mine blast kills S. Viet officer cadets

SAIGON (AP) -- A column of South Vietnamese officer cadets taking part in a training exercise walked into the path of a Viet Cong mine Monday, killing 18 persons and wounding 35.

South Vietnamese military spokesmen said the powerful claymore mine was detonated by remote control. A search for persons involved drew a blank.

Killed were 16 cadets, all soon to graduate, an officer and a civilian. The wounded included 34 cadets and an officer.

Exercise drill They were among a company of 150 to 200 cadets taking part in a tactical exercise in a brush-covered field outside the Thuduc Military Academy, South Vietnam's largest reserve officer school, six miles north of Saigon.

Military spokesmen said the field had been used frequently by the cadets but was not fenced off.

"It would have been very easy for anyone to sneak in there," said one officer.

The blast set off a spray of ball-bearing-like shrapnel as the cadets were clustered together.

Shelled before The school had been shelled a number of times in the past year as part of a continuing enemy campaign against military training centers.

In two other significant attacks within the past year, enemy troops killed 35 army recruits at the Lam Son training base April 21 and 12 at the Chi Lang training camp on Oct. 7.

School attack In another terrorist incident Monday, a 16-year-old Viet Cong youth threw two hand grenades into a group of U.S. Marines and Vietnamese children in a schoolyard near Hoi An, south of Da Nang, killing four children and wounding 11 other persons.

Six marines with whom the children were playing volleyball were among the wounded.

A third grenade was hurled into a classroom but failed to explode.

Spokesmen said the assailant, from a nearby hamlet, escaped.

The Marines had gone to the school in Thanh Quy hamlet to pass out candy and play with the approximately 100 pupils.

Elsewhere in the war zone, there were these developments:

Chopper rescue

--A rescue helicopter scooped up three downed kopper crewmen from within 50 feet of a North Vietnamese patrol after they had spent three days eluding the enemy, the Army announced. A fourth crewman was listed as missing. Those rescued were identified as Capt. Bruce E. Porter of Hainesport, N.J., pilot of the downed helicopter gunship; WO Larry M. Ingle of Lima, Ohio, the copilot and Spec. 4 Richard Tipple of Lancaster, Ohio, a door gunner.

The chopper crashed into a mountain 325 miles north of Saigon during a monsoon rainstorm. The men were picked up last Tuesday but the Army withheld disclosure of the incident pending notification of the crew's families.

--The U. S. Command announced that American troop strength in Vietnam had dropped to 465,200, the lowest level since Oct. 28, 1967. The current figure is 18,000 below authorized troop strength.

The United States protested to Russia Monday that radio broadcasts of statements attributed to U. S. prisoners of war in North Vietnam amount to Soviet propaganda against the United States. The rebuke was delivered on orders of Secretary of State William Rogers.

Walter Ulbricht, leader of East Germany, came before Western newsmen for the first time in nine years Monday and called for full diplomatic recognition of his regime by West Germany. But he did not say that this was necessary for talks on other things with the West Germans. The West Germans took his remarks to mean that East Germany is ready to sit down with envoys of Chancellor Willy Brandt from Bonn. They said they were going ahead with plans to propose formal meetings on renunciation of the use of force.

Cyprus police announced the detention of eight men Monday in investigations of the blowing up of a harbor police station in the South coast port of Limassol. Armed masked men raided the station just before midnight, and after overpowering two policemen and custom officials, stole guns and explosives before the blast.

Sizable columns of Soviet military troops and vehicles were on the move near Berlin Monday, West German police reported. Citing travelers accounts, the police said 200 to 250 vehicles, including armored personnel carriers, as well as communication gear had been spotted. The convoys were reported moving from Berlin northward toward West Germany along the Hamburg Road.

Aldo de Benedetti, one of Italy's most popular and funniest playwrights for half a century, died Monday. Police said he took his own life with gas. De Benedetti wrote scores of plays and 120 movie scripts, all in a light vein with a romantic touch. He reached the peak of his fame in the 30s.

National News

The Supreme Court agreed Monday to examine the widespread practice of jailing a convicted person solely because he cannot pay a fine. The court granted a hearing to Willie Williams to review his Illinois case in which he was ordered to serve out a $505 fine and court costs at $5 a day, in addition to his one year jail term for conviction of minor theft.

Sharp increases for food and housing were the major contributors to December's six-tenths of one per cent rise in the consumer price index, the Labor Dept. said. And the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the purchasing power of some 45 million workers dropped 52 cents a week, the third straight monthly decline, and was 1.1 per cent below a year earlier. The average weekly paycheck for December was $117.25.

The White House derided Monday the Dept. of Transportation's assertion that the Nixon Administration would propose a semi-public corporation to modernize and operate key links of remaining passenger service. White House Press Secretary Ronald Zeigler said at a news briefing that the corporation rail plan is the "least likely" to be approved among a number still under consideration.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller presented the New York State Legislature Monday with a record budget of $7.3 billion, that in an election year mandates more spending but no new taxes. Rockefeller stated that the budget answers the needs and concerns of state's citizenry. The budget, which calls for a $1 billion boost in state spending, fell far short of meeting demands, notably from John Lindsay, mayor of New York City.

Transportation Secretary John Volpe has warned car manufacturers to stop boasting about speed, or he will seek authority to regulate advertising. Volpe told a meeting of the National Automobile Dealers Assn. that "inflammatory advertising of the high performance muscle cars cater to and encourage an instinct of speed."

Michigan News

The United States should give top priority "to improving the quality of human life everywhere on this earth," during the new decade, Dr. John A. Hannah, head of the U. S. Foreign Aid Program, said Monday. Hannah said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Foreign Economic Club in Detroit, that unless this was done, "Our era could be regarded by future historians as the period when mankind missed its first best chance, no matter what technological progress we made."

Eliminating deferments:
draft dodgers' doctrine

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird slipped in a remark on a television show a week ago Sunday that should be of interest to all of us who run our lives according to the draft dodgers' doctrine.

Laird announced that sometime in the future all deferments will be eliminated for the sake of "equity." The administration has threatened for some time to eliminate deferments, but in the past the threats have amounted to only that-scare tactics, after which the administration beats its chest for its nobility in keeping them.

The pressure is on, however, for a revision of the deferment structure. Politically, the move would undoubtedly be popular among the "silent majority" who aren't thrilled that students can raise hell over the war and continue to be exempt from the fighting.

In the past, rationales for II-S deferments have mainly involved "national interest." Supposedly it is more in the national interest for a young man to attend college than immediately become a part of the military. But in whose national interest? Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey has never denied that the draft is more than a system for supplying manpower—it is also a way of channelling men into occupations that are in the "national interest."

And generally our "national interests" have been synonymous with corporate interests. Thus we students, by accepting II-S deferments, are subjecting ourselves to a plan which is intended to force men into occupations the government believes is profitable to its interests—which lately have involved ABM's and a defense economy.

But we are also doing far more by accepting II-S deferments. We are sending someone else in our place to fight a war which no one wants, for a cause in which no one believes. In our place we have sent those who cannot afford to dodge the war with a student deferment, or for some reason or another couldn't pass admission tests. Thus, affluence and intelligence are the criteria which determine who is to fight and die.

Of course, none of this reasoning would be involved in an administrative decision to eliminate II-S. Their sole concern would be that under the new lottery, enlistments are down since the bottom third, who have been assured of their immunity to the draft—even if it is erroneous—are much more reluctant to enlist. This, combined with restrictions concerning how far up the priority list a draft board can go each month (no number higher than 30 could be drafted in January) have greatly hindered recruiting and drafting all over the country. Eliminating II-S would enable the military to fulfill its manpower needs—a goal difficult to achieve at the present.

But eliminating II-S might achieve another goal. Until recently the great middle class—of which most of us are a part—have been immune from the war. Parents and youth have been assured that the war is someone else's—not theirs. But if suddenly everyone is thrown into the draft pool, the immediacy of the situation may begin to arouse the great "silent majority" from the slumber which Nixon has lulled them into.

There is another side to the coin, however; that being the psychological impact of college upon youth, a situation which might be altered if II-S becomes non-existent. College has, for many people, awakened them to the problems facing our country. It has created people who will not blindly accept the whims of Washington, and has thus been responsible for the upsurge of reaction against the war. There exists the possibility that if youths are not thrown together in college through fear of the draft, the movement might lose impetus.

At the bottom of the debate is the essential fact that no system of involuntary servitude can be made equitable. The basic issue is the draft itself, not deferments.

When we get around to discussing that, perhaps then "equity" will be more appropriately used.

Mysterious moving maps

Take the map of the USSR from the latest edition of the Soviet World Atlas and overlay it on maps from previous editions. You will notice a most curious thing—lo and behold! they do not jive. In this latest volume the entire topography of the Soviet Union has been minutely, but perceptibly, juggled about at random.

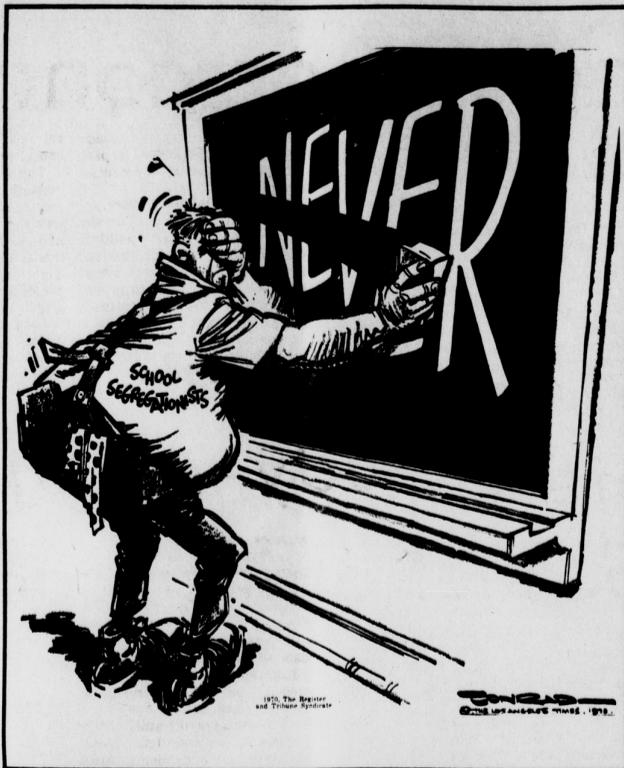

Why this is so defied immediate analysis. The State News Moscow and Hamtramck correspondent suggests that it may have something to do with the reputed merger of the Soviet Commasariates of Cartography and Vodka Production. A scholar of geography has also suggested that Moscow's mysterious moving map has as its root cause continental drift precipitated by a war between the gnomes and the dwarves.

The New York Times, on the other hand, ponders that possibly this shuffling of geographic features has to do with a national security bug on the part of Russian mapmakers. Of course, this would not present any problem to us capitalist warmongers, because we already have a perfectly good map from their last atlas. The Times rather blushing gets around this by suggesting that maybe the move is designed to confuse the Chinese, but this does not seem to make a great deal of sense either for nothing prevents Peking from buying a copy of the old Soviet Atlas in a Hong Kong kiosk.

We believe the actual cause is the extreme anti-Chinese sentiments afoot in the USSR. State News Kremlin sources indicate that the Soviet heads of state are so xenophobic toward the Chinese that they have decided to completely crowd China off the map and, therefore, out of existence, by slowly but surely edging the Soviet Union Eastward.

DAVE SHORT

'Chickening out with a Dumpling'

Upon entering Grenadier's Tavern, the place doesn't strike one as being any different than the other small bars scattered throughout Lansing.

Grenadier's is a blue collar bar. White socks, Vitals, green factory hats, blue jeans and tieless white shirts are the order of the day.

The bar itself is old. It has outdated soda shop tables and chairs and a well-worn dance floor. And it has a slow-wheeling, "folksy" country western band.

Just as at most Lansing bars, beer is 65 cents and the juke box gives you three plays for a quarter. But Grenadier's is different in one respect. It has a strip show.

A strip show at Grenadier's is rookie by Detroit standards. Tassies and a bikini bottom are the limits. But the bar has a different stripper every week or two; and crowds are never rowdy or gross.

With the multitude of pressures involved in daily college life, students have to find a momentary escape mechanism. Some kids drop acid, get drunk in their rooms or go to the Gables. Well, my best friend Dan and I go to Grenadier's every Monday night.

Besides, it is something to kid your girlfriend about. Our girlfriends are good-looking, humorous, smart and have good personalities. We're both very satisfied.

But let's just say that if Raquel Welch met either one of them, she wouldn't lose any sleep wondering whether her body was still No. 1.

Dan and I are two of the few guys that get excited over a girlhood picture of Twiggy, as a result.

And besides, going to Grenadier's is fun. Well, it used to be fun anyway; until a 650-pound strip and dance act came there.

I knew something was wrong when we entered the place on that fatal night three weeks ago. We pulled in at the usual 1:10 a.m. for the 1:15 a.m. show.

"Where's the usual crowd tonight," I asked.

"Yeah. Can you believe that we got a front row table?" Dan answered.

"I'll bet you a beer on which woman is the stripper."

"Well, there aren't many women here. You don't suppose it's that big woman over there or her companion?"

"Ha. Fat chance."

After ordering a couple beers, we sat back and waited for the introduction of the star attraction. And then it came.

"We have here with us tonight, folks, 'Little Baby Dumpling' -- 365 pounds of woman -- and her 300 pound sister 'U.C. More.'"

The conversation at our table went something like this:

"You got to be kidding," I said.

"See. I won the bet. Pay up," Dan replied.

"Baby Dumpling! Looks like mashed potatoes to me."

"I think I'm going to be sick."

"We could leave but we'd have to walk across the stage; and she is the stage."

"Let's get drunk."

At that point, we both broke out laughing. But unfortunately, Baby Dumpling's sister, who had the microphone, heard us.

"Are you guys making fun of my little sister?"

"Who us? No. We wouldn't think of..." Dan and I declared in unison.

"Baby Dumpling. Come here! These guys are laughing at you. What are you going to do about it?"

As the Dumpling caroomed over our table, my whole life passed by in five seconds. I could see tomorrow's headlines in the paper: -- "The Bowery Boys Meet the Purple Gang" -- "David Meets Goliath" -- "Without his slingshot and stone" -- "Giant Dumpling Invades and Erupts Over Earth"

LARRY LERNER

State of the Union:
Clarity for the '70s

"My fellow Americans. Let me make myself perfectly clear. I desire a 'just peace' in Vietnam. I believe that 'Vietnamization' of the war will eventually end the war -- for us. I feel that desegregation should proceed 'at once' or 'with all deliberate speed' -- whichever occurs first. I remain horrified at the 'alleged' My Lai massacre, but am pleased to report a decrease in the weekly American casualty rate to an all-time low for the past three years.

"Now turning to the home - front. First of all, let me make myself crystal clear -- I desire a 'just peace' in Mississippi -- a 'just peace' in which both sides -- non-integrationists and non-segregationists -- have an equal say in the determination of their children's education. For let us remain convinced that equality in the name of education is no vice.

"As far as inflation is concerned, I do have a plan for ending inflation. However, contained within this plan is a secret timetable that I don't even know too much about. Yet let me state categorically that I will end inflation -- make no mistake about that. And in order for you, my fellow Americans of the silent majority, to remain in my confidence I am now taking the unprecedented step of releasing some figures of the fiscal budget: "$70 billion and $19.7 billion.

"No doubt some of you must be wondering about these figures. Some $70 billion has been appropriated by Congress for the Defense Dept. I'm sure you will agree with me when I say that this $70 billion is a sound investment in our nation's future. To continue such projects as the F-111 fighter plane will take extensive funding. Keep in mind that we must continually redesign our defense systems in order to reduce the possibility of a nuclear 'first-strike' coming from the Soviet Union, Communist China or any other belligerent. And always remember that without billions for defense we could never maintain our nation's ability, in the face of foreign oppression, to attempt to feed the millions afflicted by poverty, a lack of an adequate food supply, and a dearth of nutritional sustenance.

"The $19.7 billion referred to previously is the total the House Appropriations Committee seeks to appropriate for the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare. Let me make myself clear on this point. While I do feel that HEW is important, I believe that we must cut down in this area in the interest of inflation. I stated upon entering the Presidency that it would be difficult to limit federal spending because the Democrats had made a shambles of fiscal responsibility. To reduce the HEW budget by $1 billion is not just a deflationary move but one which will increase the soundness of the American economy at home and abroad.

"Let me make my position on crime perfectly clear. I am against crime. This is not a sudden change in my Presidential platform. I have always insisted that our nation's crime fighters should be substantially funded and rewarded. To some of you who would bring forth the name of former U.S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau, I can only express my deep concern over his unfortunate resignation.

"I feel that in my good friend and former law partner, John Mitchell, we have a more than capable attorney general. When the incidents with the Black Panthers occurred, I was bereaved to learn that some of these militants believed a federally-sanctioned conspiracy existed to destroy them. It was then that I turned to Attorney General Mitchell and asked him to conduct a thorough investigation into this matter. I remain confident that the Justice Dept. will uncover any such conspiracy.

"Turning back to foreign affairs, I feel that we should not be turning our backs to foreign affairs in which we have a defined interest. For instance, take our affair with Israel. As Sec. Rogers has pointed out, along with an affair with Israel, we must have one with Lebanon, Syria, U.A.R., Iraq and Jordan. We must always be impartial when supplying weapons so as to assure an equal destroy-capability for all our friends abroad.

"Let me in closing reiterate my desire for a 'just peace' in Vietnam, my hope for an 'honorable' end to the war, and a pledge not to allow the presence of American 'combat' troops in Laos.

"And further more let me suggest that we lower our voices still more so that they are barely above a whisper. In this way I can 'Bring us Together' to fulfill the American dream that only I have fulfilled thus far.

"I hope I've made myself perfectly clear."

ASMSU should help pay legal costs

To the Editor:
Mike O'Laughlin lost his job three months ago because he participated in the Oct. 15 moratorium. As the State News of Oct. 22 reports, "Republican personnel officer Rep. Phillip O. Peltenger, R-Lansing, saw him (O'Laughlin) at the rally in front of the Capitol, and within 10 minutes I learned I was dismissed." Peltenger claims that O'Laughlin was fired for "inefficiency and because of conflict with classes that kept him from the job when he was most needed." Minority Leader Robert Waldron supported this fabrication in a letter to Kenneth Laing, O'Laughlin's attorney, stating, "I am absolutely satisfied that Michael O'Laughlin was discharged for continued unreliability in showing up for work." These statements are cavalier with the facts at best, outright lies at worst. No one had ever given O'Laughlin any indication that his work was unsatisfactory or that he was in danger of being dismissed. In fact, Leland Galt, the postmaster and O'Laughlin's supervisor, said he was not only competent but, "he was quick to pick up postage regulations and rates. He showed an unusual willingness to do any task he was assigned. I hated to see him dismissed."

O'Laughlin incurred $347 in legal expenses while trying to regain his job; his case for damages is now in U.S. District Court. The lawyers are now working on a contingency fee basis.

significance. ASMSU has not, however, as yet allocated money to cover the $347.

Thursday night, Jan. 15, the Hubbard Hall Legislature heard of this situation and allocated $50 of its meager resources to O'Laughlin's defense by a vote of 14-0-4. ASMSU is often accused of being unresponsive to student problems; irrelevant is the term now in vogue.

We hope that ASMSU will act to help pay Mike O'Laughlin's legal expenses.

Cultural vacuum in E. Lansing

To the Editor:
We are in hearty agreement with the article written by David Bassett and printed last Wednesday, Jan. 14, 1970, concerning the audience at the Coral Gables. In fact, we feel this article was a giant understatement of the real problem, and could have been emphasized at least 1000 per cent more.

As local rock musicians and listeners, we cannot attest too strongly to the incredible amount of wax in the ears of the majority of Lansing (and East Lansing) audiences.

Black author conducts workshop

By JEANNE SADDLER
State News Staff Writer

Black playwright Ron Milner will conduct an Inter-Disciplinary Communal Workshop for black students beginning Feb. 2. Sponsored by the Center for Urban Affairs (CUA), the workshop is being offered on an experimental basis. If it is successful, the course will be offered permanently.

Because of so much work toward black unity, Milner said, the workshop would be designed to provide an inter-communication among the disciplines.

"The workshop will be a study leading to the return of the theater arts to their original institutionalized place at the center of the community," Milner wrote. It will serve as a mirror of the community's needs and goals, a reflection of its past and present lessons, its impulses and its desires."

Besides theater students, Milner listed students in the areas of history, political science, business administration, advertising, journalism, social science and education as participants. He called these areas "courses of study painfully relevant to the black community."

The students would work at expressing each other's work in a mode of their own field of study. For instance, as Milner explained, the class might take one student's poem and re-work the theme in plays, essays, critical reviews or political analyses.

Texts for the course will be "Drama Review"--Black Theatre Issue; "A Raisin in the Sun," by Lorraine Hansbury; and "Dutchman," by Leroi Jones.

Students interested in taking part in the workshop will meet at 7 p.m. Friday in 102B Wells Hall.

Milner is co-director of the Spirit of Shango Theatre Co. in Detroit, and winner of John Hay Whitney and Rockefeller grants toward the finishing of his novel, "The Life of the Brothers Brown."

His plays have been performed in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit and at various universities. His most recent New York showing was part of a one-act bill "The Black Quartet," including Leroi Jones, Ed Bullins and Ben Caldwell.

Obviously this Spartan Village family is proud of its new addition. Soon they'll have another bicycle to park on their front porch.

FIRST DONATION

ROTC ball to aid charity

For the first time since the event's inception, proceeds from the 30th annual ROTC Coronation Ball, honoring ROTC corps sponsors, will be donated to charity.

"Any profit at all will go to a local charity," Paul Sauro, Sault Ste. Marie senior and coordinator of the dance, said. "We're hesitant to name the charity, however, until we can guarantee a decent donation."

The semiformal dance will begin at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 31 at the Lansing National Guard Armory, 2500 S. Washington Ave.

The Gary Norris Combo will provide the musical atmosphere and a light show will carry out a "Camelot" theme. Corps sponsors will be capped during intermission.

The dance is a University function and open to the public. Tickets are $5 a couple and may be purchased at Demonstration Hall or the quonset huts. For additional information, call 355-2390 or 355-2182 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Travel to exotic islands, walk through the streets of old world cities steeped in history and relax while sitting on the deck of a comfortable ocean liner.

This may sound like the introduction in a travel folder, but it's not -- it describes spring term at one of the world's most unique campuses.

Voyage to world ports in early February, while most of us are still tromping through the snow 500 students from 200 colleges and universities will board the S.S. Ryndam in Los Angeles harbor for a study voyage to ports in the Orient, India, Africa and Europe.

The World Campus Afloat Program of Chapman College, Orange, Cal., is now in its fifth year and according to the catalog was established to make education live for the students through personal experience in foreign countries.

Six days of classes

It's not all so glamorous, however. The students must attend classes six days a week in shipboard classrooms.

In port they attend pre-arranged lectures, seminars and field trips related to their studies.

Cost for this extraordinary term is $895.

And that's not all -- shipboard accommodations ranged from $2,525 to $1,595, depending on size of berth and location of cabin.

Chapman College, in cooperation with the Holland America Line, offers scholarships to needy, qualified students who desire to attend one semester.

Floating campus: The floating campus of the S.S. Ryndam is designed to fill most student needs. The ship contains a library, bookstore, 280-seat theatre, dining rooms, lounges, student union, laboratories, art studio and self-service laundrette -- in addition to classrooms and air-conditioned cabins.

Students also have their own student government, newspaper called "The Helm" and a yearbook that is published to help students remember their seagoing term.

Simpson, Carr do battle tonight

By MIKE MANLEY
State News Sports Writer

An individual battle between two of the most dazzling offensive players in the country will be in the spotlight tonight when powerful Notre Dame, led by Austin Carr, comes to Jenison Fieldhouse. Game time is 8 p.m.

Aside from the intense, often bitter, rivalry between MSU and the Irish, the game will match two of the top scorers in the country - Ralph Simpson and Carr.

A torrid outside shooter with a bagful of moves, Carr is currently the second leading scorer in the nation, averaging 34.5 points a game. MSU's Simpson is in eighth place with a 30.2 average.

Although the slick 6-3 Carr, who at 210 pounds looks like a football linebacker in shorts and sneakers, is trailing MSU's Pete Maravich by some 13 points a game, like Avis he is trying harder.

Last week against DePaul he hit a career high of 51 points, hitting 20 of 29 shots from the floor. But he hasn't been scoring his points against the weaker teams. Against then top-rated Kentucky, Carr got 43, a figure he matched against No. 3 rated South Carolina.

With those statistics, it should come as no surprise that Irish coach Johnny Bee builds his attack around Carr.

The Irish run what is called a "double stack" offense with two men lined up behind each other along the foul line. Carr hides behind one of Notre Dame's monstrous forwards - either 6-8 Sid Catlett or 6-7 Collis Jones - and then, using them as a screen, breaks out for the pass. And then, things start to happen.

Led all year by Carr and big forwards, Jones and Catlett, Notre Dame has posted an 11-4 mark and rates as one of the best teams in the country. Three of their losses came in a rugged 10 day road trip during which they played the top three teams in the country.

The Irish lost to Kentucky, 102-100, and to South Carolina, 84-83 in overtime. In that same week they were blasted by UCLA, 108-77. They hold victories over Minnesota, Michigan, Indiana and two of the East's better teams, Villanova and Duquesne.

In building Notre Dame into a national power, Dee has raided the playgrounds of basketball-rich Washington D. C. Carr, Jones and Catlett, all juniors, come from the nation's capital. Jones is second to Carr in scoring with a 17.1 average and is a good shooter from outside. He also leads the team in rebounding with 11.6 a game.

At the other forward is big 6-8, 220-pound Catlett, the club's best defensive player. MSU's coach Gus Ganakas says Catlett will most likely guard Simpson.

Rounding out the starting lineup for the Irish will be 6-8 center John Pleick and either Jackie Meehan or Tom Sinnott.

For the Spartans, rebounding will be the big question. Against Minnesota, they were outrebounded 37-26 and the Gopher front line looks like a trio of small guards compared to the Notre Dame outfit. The Spartan's biggest man, Jim Gibbons, is an inch shorter than the smallest man on the Irish front line.

When MSU came back from Minnesota on Sunday afternoon, Ganakas took them straight to Jenison for a two-hour workout with the emphasis on rebounding. The Gopher's center, Larry Mikan, got as many rebounds as the entire MSU front-line of Simpson, Gibbons and Ron Guskowski.

The Spartan lineup will likely be the same as against Minnesota with Rudy Benjamin and Lloyd Ward at the guards.

"We're going to play Ward on Carr," Ganakas said. "It's going to be difficult for Lloyd because Carr is above five inches taller but we are going to give it a shot."

Someone asked Ganakas if he was going to do some experimenting since it was a non-conference game.

"No, this is a big game for us, both playing a rated team and playing at home," he said. "I can't take the game lightly. Right now we're trying to settle our team and get experience so we can't afford to experiment."

'S' frosh pitted against offensive-minded Flint J.C.

By RICK BOSSELIN
State News Sports Writer

The MSU frosh cagers will put their unblemished record of five victories and no losses on the line tonight when they face Flint Junior College in the preliminary game to the varsity clash between MSU and Notre Dame.

Flint, a power amongst the nation's junior colleges, moves into the game with a 10-2 record, inclusive of their last eight victories in a row. Their only losses were suffered at the hands of outstate powers Vincennes, Ill., and Burlington, Iowa. In Vincennes, the Flint team lost to the nation's number one J.C. team, with the margin of victory a meager 3 points, 104-101.

The Flint squad is averaging 106.5 points a game, having a high game of 123 points and a low game of 98 points. The Bears have been hitting at a clip of 44 per cent from the floor per game, and have been consuming an average of 61 rebounds a contest. They lead the Eastern Michigan Junior College League by two full games.

"We like to run a lot," Flint Coach Stan Goosche said. "Our only weakness appears to be when our team doesn't play together."

The big name in the Flint attack is sophomore forward Lee Palmer from Ferndale. He leads the nation's junior college players in scoring last year with a 36.7 average. He was an all-stater at Ferndale, and was given honorably mention last year as a J.C. All-American. Palmer is averaging 30.4 points a game this year, along with 17 rebounds per match. He is presently no. 4 in the junior college ratings in scoring.

Teaming with Palmer in the starting line-up are Riley Wimberley, a 6-5 forward hitting for 15.8 points a game; 6-2 guard Bob Chipman, who credits 13.8 points a match; Gene Pea, a 6-1 guard who hits for 11.3 marks a contest; and center Paul Stokes, the team's big man at 6-7, and number two scorer with 16 points a game.

Illinois edges U-M; keeps Big Ten lead

held its undefeated big ten basketball record intact Saturday to keep its conference lead with a 5-0 record as six teams battled one another in intra-conference play.

The Illini lost three starters during their fight with Michigan, but survived a last minute surge by the Wolverines to win 75-73.

The game left Illinois 12-2 for the season, and Michigan 5-8 overall and 1-4 in the conference.

Iowa, which was idle over the weekend, holds the second conference spot with a 3-0 record.

Ohio State scored an easy 93-67 victory over Northwestern at Columbus. The Buckeyes were led by Dave Sorenson with 26 points, and aided by Jim Clemons and Jody Finney who had 23 points each.

The Wildcats' record fell to 0-4 and remained in last place in the Big Ten.

Minnesota brought its conference record to 2-2 by handing MSU its first conference defeat 85-68 at Minneapolis.

Trip to Acapulco offered

By ROSANNE BAIME
State News Staff Writer

Breaking its "spring break in the Bahamas" tradition, this year the ASMSU Travel Office is offering an eight-day, seven-night package trip to Acapulco. A seven-day trip to London is also being considered. The cost of the Acapulco trip is $239, including a round-trip chartered American Airlines jet from Detroit's Metropolitan Airport, hotel accommodations at a new hotel just off famous Los Hornos beach, two meals a day and other features.

The flight will leave Metro at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 21. Travelers will stay three per room, with individual beds and private bath, in the air-conditioned hotel. In addition to being across the boulevard from the bay, the hotel has its own private swimming pool on the roof.

Full American breakfasts and complete dinners will be provided. While in Acapulco the tour will include two full-time escorts, a tour of Acapulco Bay and a "welcome" cocktail party. Lunches and beverages are not covered in the package cost, although all airport-hotel costs, baggage handling, service charges and tips are included. Sign-up for the trip opens today. Students wishing to go on the trip may sign up and place their $50 deposit in 307 Student Services Bldg.

Some first-class seats for the flight will be available at no extra charge on a first-come, first-served basis. Also, limited places for MSU faculty and staff members are available. Anyone going on the Acapulco trip will need a tourist card, which can be obtained through the Travel Office. Students will have to present a birth certificate, passport, naturalization card or baptismal record, or a copy of any of the above, to the office.

The documents will be returned, but the tourist cards will not be handed out until arrival in Mexico, since they are necessary to obtain entry into the country.

Last year's ASMSU spring break trip was to Freeport on Grand Bahama Island. All places on the trip were filled by the second day of sign-ups, with an additional waiting list of 50 people.

To avoid this problem the Travel Office is offering a second trip to Acapulco, also at $239, for the same length of time, leaving Metro on a chartered airline at 6 p.m. Friday, March 20.

The second trip offers the same accommodations and arrangements as the first.

Another spring break tour, this one to London, is also being investigated by the Travel Office. The cost for seven days from March 22-29 would be $265. This would include round-trip jet transportation by BOAC Airline, lodging at one of three hotels in London, and an optional meal arrangement at a slight extra cost.

Anyone interested in the trip to London can get more information by calling the Travel Office at 353-8857, Ext. 23, or 355-4560, from 2 to 5 p.m. daily, or by calling Yvonne Ellingson, travel director, at 353-6318 after 5 p.m. daily.
