East Lansing, Michigan

CHICAGO (AP) - Judge Julius J. offman sentenced one defense attorney four years in prison Sunday and the ther to 20 months for contempt of court the riot conspiracy trial of seven men.

The judge's action came while a U.S. istrict Court jury was in its second day of liberations in the five - month trial emming from the violence that occurred connection with the 1968 Democratic ational Convention in Chicago.

Hoffman sentenced attorney William M. unstler to 48 months and 13 days on 24 ounts of contempt and defense attorney onard I. Weinglass to 20 months and five ys on 14 counts.

Hoffman said it was the first time he had ld a lawyer in contempt.

sentenced to 25 months and 23 days in jail. Weiner received 2 months and 18 days on 7 counts and Froines was sentenced to 6 months and 15 days on 10 counts.

Judge Hoffman stayed execution of the attorneys until May to allow them to function as lawyers for the defendants.

"Only the record can reveal what has gone on here," said the judge. "I have never heard a lawyer say to a judge the things you have said to me during this trial.

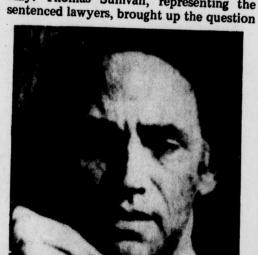

Kunstler's conduct in this case has created a record replete with direct violation of the orders of the court," he said.

The judge viewed as some of the most serious breaches of conduct Kunstler's remark on one occasion that Judge Hoffman's ruling was "outrageous" and at another time saying the defendants were going to go to jail "in a legal lynching."

Ohio anti-war conference seeks unity

By KEN KRELL DEBBIE FITCH State News Editors

CLEVELAND, Ohio -- The National Student Anti - War Conference, billed as the largest student radical conference in U.S. history, gathered here this weekend to prove that the anti - war movement did not die on Nov. 16.

Approximately 3,000 assembled at Case Western Reserve University to plan strategy for a spring anti - war program; a conglomerate of radicals, traditional liberals, pacifists and mystics -- and even a number of the over-30 group. That conglomeration of people with only one tie ne Vietnam War -- came together under the banner of the Student Mobilization Committee (SMC).

The conference quickly moved into the workshop and plenary sessions Saturday, after opening remarks from Sidney Peck, professor of sociology at Case Western Reserve University, and national co-chairman of the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

Peck opened the conference by dispelling any rumors that the anti - war movement was dead -- perhaps the greatest criticism circulated by the mass media after the fall actions. "Because the war didn't end Nov. 15. the media decided the movement was dead. Now they want to take a picture of all of you talking about its deadness.

ASMSU REFERENDUM

Snyder, Fee vote boxes not returned for counting

State News Staff Writer

Although Snyder and Fee halls did not return ballot boxes in Thursday's constitutional referendum, ASMSU officials said the responsibility lies with the presidents of those halls. Each residence hall was supposed to determine its own election procedures. Election officials pointed out that the voting margin on all five issues was so wide that ballots from the two districts would not have made any appreciable difference unless 90 per cent of the students in both districts had voted "yes" on Issue V, which had the closest count. Issue V, which linked a tax increase with cabinet restructuring, was rejected 2,842 to 2,023.

Snyder Hall president Dan Peters said ASMSU had not given him any information concerning voting procedures.

"Distribution of ballot boxes was pretty shoddy," he said. Peters said that voter turn - out at

Snyder was light, "only about 20 people." Peters had expected ASMSU to pick up the ballot boxes at Snyder, and did not have his own election officials turn the boxes in. When ASMSU officials discovered they had no ballots from Snyder, they phoned Peters Thursday night. Peters was studying, and did not have the time to take the ballots to the Administration Bldg.

"It was pretty inconsiderate of them to phone at a time like that," Peters said. ASMSU had sent letters to all hall presidents outlining the election procedures prior to the referendum. Doug

Laycock, president of Mens Halls Association (MHA), said he had personally taken such a letter to Snyder Hall last

His article was devoted chiefly to an attack on a recent book by New York Times correspondent Harrison Salisbury, "War Between Russia and China."

While Tikhvinsky shed no light on the progress of the border talks, he portrayed the Soviet Union as taking the initiative in trying to bring about a new period of friendly relations between Moscow and over defeat of Issue V

State News Staff Writer ASMSU officials expressed disappointment over the failure of Issue V (tax increase - cabinet restructuring) in Thursday's referendum, but remained optimistic over the future of the restructured student board.

By JOHN BORGER

"Students should begin thinking seriously about running from their districts, and thinking of ideas for change," Chairman Bill Rustem said.

"The next session of ASMSU has the potential to be the most effective in the history of student government on this campus, because for the first time we've got real personal contact with students,"

Doug Laycock, president of Men's Halls Association (MHA), warned that the new board members should not place too much faith in the system itself.

"I hope that the succession doesn't place so much confidence in the new structure that it doesn't work," he said. "A district representative can hide in his room, too, but the new structure makes it easier for him to communicate if he wants to."

The new board members will be elected during spring registration. Cabinet President Bob Grossfeld said he expects a large turnout.

Sixteen per cent of the student body (the turnout on the constitutional referendum) wasn't a very large turnout, but hopefully, at the spring elections during registration we'll get upwards of 70 per cent, which will be the highest in the history of MSU," he said.

"I think we'll get that because it'll be so easy to vote," he continued. "The registration voting procedure will be so

City crews strung a 1,000 foot long boom across the surface of the water at the north end of the Sunshine Skyway Bridge, which crosses the entrance to Tampa Bay. The boom consists of pieces of plastic foam strung together by ropes with plastic "teeth" extending into the water.

The workers sought to keep the oil from drifting out into the Gulf of Mexico and then back into the miles of white sand beaches where hundreds of hotels and other businesses are located.

A special committee of state, county, federal and city pollution officials met to discuss the problem.

The Coast Guard said it decided against using chemicals to disperse the oil because it was believed the combination of oil and chemicals might do irreparable harm to the ecology of Tampa Bay.

CHICAGO (AP) - Vice President Spiro T. Agnew criticized Thursday those he called "supercilious sophisticates" who favor what he said is called erroneously "open admissions" to colleges and universities.

"By some strange madness," he said, "we find the thought seriously entertained . . . that the untrained should help choose those to be trained and that membership . . . in institutions of higher learning should be determined fundamentally by considerations other than aptitude . . . "

"Of course, the criterion of competence has in the past sometimes been honored more in the breach than in the observance. But surely that is no reason to abandon it, as happens when the concept of what is erroneously called "open admissions' makes its way among some of our supercilious sophisticates."

Agnew's remarks were prepared for a $100. plate Lincoln Day dinner, sponsored by the Republican party.

Agnew also criticized dissenters. Ours is still the freest government on earth and we are still a restless people, dissatisfied with the unappreciative of our freedom," he said. "Nevertheless, we may declare with confidence that if ours is not the perfect form of government, it is the best there is; and we challenge critics not merely to point to its flaw; but to tell us what they would put in its place," he declared. "Civil disobedience in a free government - except for the nondisruptive testing of the legality of the law itself . . . is a placing of oneself above the law and implies a superiority to the law - abiding," Agnew said.

"Those who denounce without self - restraint the limitations on complete personal freedom in our form of government are more likely to curtail than to perfect that freedom," the ite president said,

Nixon: washing his hands of the pollution problem

President Nixon has just sent to Congress his extensive program for improving our deteriorating environment. Unfortunately, the President has not sufficiently backed - up his multi - faceted plan with the necessary funds.

Mr. Nixon's message called for $4 billion outlayed by the federal government over a four - year period. This money would be used to combat municipal wastes, enforce the control of air pollution, conduct intensive governmental research on eventually eliminating pollution from the automobile engine and curb industrial pollution. The federal funds are only part of the program -$6 billion is to be raised by the states through the sale of municipal bonds.

Although the President has come out with many new and innovating projects, the Nixon Administration appears terribly hypocritical on the cleansing of the environment.

The most ostentatious anomaly within the Nixon Administration is its emphasis on the supersonic this a "super" contribution to air expenditures. pollution but an extensive monetary non - investment in improving the environment. Furthermore, the President failed to mention any plans for the attack on oil pollution - an attack which is necessary to prevent off - shore and on - shore pollution primarily on the West Coast and in the area of the Gulf of Mexico.

A móre reasonable proposal has come from Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Me., who has asked Congress for a $25 billion package over four years with $12.5 billion provided by the federal government and an identical sum raised by state and local

The extra $15 billion requested by the senator is not beyond reach. However, to make the funds available, the federal government must, once and for all, discontinue the extraordinary spending for the war in Southeast Asia and the Dept. of Defense.

It matters little whether we spend $1 billion or $2 billion less on defense and war; the need remains urgent for a radical shift in a federal transport plane (SST). Not only is priorities and governmental

More slogans to please the great silent majority

The "effete corps of impudent snobs" is now safe. In a speech made last Thursday at a $100-a-plate Lincoln Day dinner in Chicago, Vice President Spiro Agnew gave one of his verbal lashings to the "supercilious sophisticates."

Besides being an example of excellent alliteration, a supercilious sophisticate is one that favors open admissions to the nation's colleges and universities. He also tends to believe that he should have some say in the curriculum that he is undertaking. Or, in the words of the great lead - tongued orator of Chesapeake Bay, "We find the thought seriously entertained . . . that the untrained should help choose those to be trained..."."

Once again, Agnew has shown a complete lack of understanding of what is going on in today's universities. Instead of making an effort to understand the "revolution on campus," Agnew has again taken the much easier route to the problem, that of coining ingenious slogans to please the ubiquitous silent majority.

The old standards of education are being challenged on every campus in America. Students are realizing that what they are getting in America's institutions of higher education is not an education. What they are getting is not easily defined. Alliteration and jingoism, though, fail to clarify anything.

The sound of Nixon's inaugural address becomes hollower. The slogan "Forward together" becomes. more than ever, words without meaning. Agnew's speech once more indicates that the present administration is just for the white, middle - class majority, not for the young, the poor or the black.

It may well do Agnew a great deal of good to read up on the matters that he speaks about. Maybe he should check out Farber's book "The Student as Nigger" instead of sticking strictly to the sayings of Chairman Max Rafferty. Then Agnew will at least know that a university is only a vocational training facility for the future employes of GM and AT & T.

Of course this is probably the way that Spiro would like it to be, a university that would produce another generation of silent and stupid Americans, a generation that would not question what is going on around them, a generation of puppets.

Much worse, though, than his general attack on those advocating educational reform, is his explicit. attack on open admissions. It is a fact that in America today one often needs a college education in order to get a good job. It is also a fact that most of the inner city schools in this country do not prepare their students for college. These students do not have the grade - points and SAT scores of their suburban counterparts who do get into college.

Open admissions is the only way to get the minority student into America's universities and out of the poverty areas. In the long run, America can best approach the problem of the "Dark Ghetto" by improving the inner city schools. Until that occurs, however, an open admissions policy for students who are members of low - income groups is the only way to get the 1970 inner city high school graduate into higher education. This, at least, will give such students a chance. If Mr. Agnew is against this, America is in much worse shape than anyone has ever begun to imagine.

POINT OF VIEW

The English Black power movement

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following "Point of View" was written by Tony Martin, member of the governing council of the Pan African Student Organization in the Americas.

The history of Black people in England goes back much further than many people realize. As early as the 16th century black faces had become almost commonplace -so much so that Queen Elizabeth the First actually issued an order in 1601 to the effect that all "negars and blackamoors" (as the brothers were called then) be transported out of the realm! She didn't dig all those black faces wandering about the kingdom. Thus racism, like everything else in Britain, has its roots deeply embedded in a centuries-old tradition.

During this period, black people became a favourite topic for writers. Shakespeare's "Othello" in which the hero is a black man, is the best-known example. Paul Robeson is among the many famous personalities who have appeared in this role- (saved them the trouble of blackening some white guy's face).

As the slave trade prospered throughout the 17th and 18th centuries, many more Africans found their way to England usually as servants in the homes of the wealthy. One or two even became famous and wrote books denouncing slavery. "The Life of Olaudah Equiano, or Gustavus Vassa, the African," is the most famous and is available in paperback even now. It was first published in 1789 in

During all this period, slavery, of course, was still a going thing. In 1772, however, in a famous case known as the Somerset Case, the Chief Justice of England declared that slavery in England was illegal. Then the familiar old story took place. Freed slaves could find no work and little food and were quickly reduced to a life of destitution on the streets of London. At this time there was an estimated 14,000 to 20,000 black people in greater London, as against 10,000 Irish.

At this point a group of English liberals hit upon a master plan -- they rounded up 300 destitute Africans, lured 100 white prostitutes on board the ship in which they placed the Africans, drunkened the unsuspecting girls and shipped the whole bunch off to Sierra Leone to found a colony. This, believe it or not, is how Sierra Leone was founded! Most of the original bunch died pretty early, but they were later joined by equally destitute blacks from Nova Scotia and elsewhere.

So in one fell swoop the liberals partially cleared London's streets of blacks and prostitutes, and founded a colony. A good day's work!

Throughout the 19th century, occasional blacks found their way to England to work on the docks or to learn professions and return home. The first Pan-African Congress was actually held in London in 1900. DuBois was there. The conference had been organized by a Trinidadian barrister living in London called Henry Sylvester Williams.

During the first and second World Wars many black soldiers made their way to London and a few stayed on.

World War II

It was after World War II, however, that black people really "invaded" England. On a June morning in 1948, a captured and converted German troopship, renamed the "Empire Windrush," docked in England with 472 Jamaican men and 20 Jamaican women. This was the beginning of the onslaught. "Today, the total Commonwealth coloured immigrant population in Britain is . . . slightly over 1 million -- or about 2% of the total British population of nearly 55 million. They include . . . 525,000 West Indians, 200,000 Indians, 125,000 Pakistans, and 150,000 from Africa and other parts of the Commonwealth" -- (from "Racial Discrimination In England," by W. W. Daniel).

At first, English people were cool. After all, hadn't they been telling those American racists how to handle their race problem for years? Anyway, it didn't take them long to realize that the only reason they didn't have a race problem all those years was because they weren't enough black people around to discriminate against.

White racism

All the usual manifestations of white racism began to appear -- job discrimination, housing discrimination, police brutality, discrimination in insurance, poor schooling in the ghettoes into which black people were being forced -- even a few burning crosses.

Things became real bad in 1958 when London's "Teddy boys" (forerunners of today's "Mods") began attacking black people. A defenseless West Indian named Kelso Cochrane, with one arm in a sling, was stabbed to death as he walked home one day. At least one lady claimed she witnessed this brutal murder but the police never arrested anyone. This was the signal for the famous "Nothing-Hill Riots." Black people could get no protection from the police, so they formed themselves into vigilante groups to safeguard their women

It was this determination of black people to retaliate in self-defense which brought an end to this attempt at wholesale violence against the black

There has been nothing since to match small-scale incidents continue at irregular intervals. Even now, black people out alone at night are occasionally set upon by gangs of hooligans (or by the police). A few convictions have been secured against the police in cases of wrongful arrest and planting of incriminating evidence, etc., on innocent black persons, but most times there isn't enough proof (usually not witnesses are around) to save innocent black people from unnecessary convictions.

American heroes

Against this background, it is surprising that a resolute and commit Black Power movement has sprung up N movement has drawn heavily example of American black military on the black military bears Black American heroes are their her and the rhetoric and trappings of miles black America are quickly transported black England.

Thus visits to England of people a Stokely Carmichael, the late Malcola and even Sammy Davis Jr. (since his since hi over to black awareness) are impor occasions among England's community.

West Indians are probably the gm most active in the Black Power movems. This is not surprising, since West Indian form the largest group within the bacommunity. And in any case West India abroad have a long and distinguished can in militancy -- Garvey, Padmore a Stokely Carmichael are obvious example Yet, West Indians do not monopole the scene. One of the best-known leaden black England is Obi Egbuna, a Bitch and even among West Indians no And even among West Indians, B Power activity is not confined to people African descent. Another of the known and most popular leaders on the black English scene is Roy Sawh, Guyanese of East Indian descent.

The authorities, of course, have a been blind to the influence of black America. It is no co-incidence that Stohe Carmichael was banned from England Robert Williams of the Republic of N Africa was treated like a common crim for no justifiable reason.

Black prospects

The prospects for black people England are not rosy. Further immigning has been banned, though white people still free to enter. The inflow of the students into English universities he dammed by a quadrupling of fe "overseas" students. Irrespond politicians, like the infamous En Powell, have been making inflammate speeches which have often acted a encouragement to violence.

After such a speech about two ye ago, London dockers spontaneous downed tools and marched on Parliament shouting their support Enoch, and insulting an East Africa ambassador in the process.

Meanwhile, police-black commun people hold classes in how to me molotov cocktails. Signs are that! conservative government wins the election things may worsen even furth and black people may be offered finan-inducements to return "home" (thou thousands in fact are black Englishme having been born there).

Unless there are positive moves somebody in a hurry it seems that world is going to wake up one of the mornings and discover, to its surprise, the it has another America on the other side the Atlantic.

All-Events secrecy

To the Editor:

We, a group of students and faculty from JMC, concur with the criticisms that have appeared in the State News concerning the handling of the proposed All-Events Building. The aura of secrecy surrounding the whole affair has put the MSU community at an unfair disadvantage. The administration has developed its own plans for increasing student fees without allowing the MSU population to become involved in any way other than tacit acceptance.

We believe that the students should have a voice through a referendum concerning this particular issue.

In calling for a referendum we are not at this point advocating one particular plan. The need for a good stage and concert hall has been more than adequately expressed by others. It is also just as obvious that Jenison Fieldhouse is completely insufficient to serve the needs of the 40,000 members of the University community.

However, we feel that the ultimate question should be submitted to an informed public; that is, a public to whom all the facts, possibilities, options, costs, etc., have been presented in a truthful and unbiased manner. Only then will a referendum be meaningful, and only then can priorities be established.

In conclusion, we wish to re - emphasize that the best interests of all are served when matters such as these are handled in full view of the University population, and with their complete and voluntary involvement.

> Ilene Zacher Skokie, Ill. junior Dave Brigode Perrysburg freshman For the Student Affairs Committee Justin Morrill College

student grievances brought to the immediate attention of administrators and faculty. However, I question the relevancy of this bill to M.S.U. In other institutions throughout the state perhaps there is a necessity for such a committee.

I think that the problems which this committee would have to solve should come under the Office of the M.S.U. Ombudsman. Consequently insofar as this institution is concerned the bill would have no effect other than making students feel that they have some sort of decision-making power when they actually don't. This bill attempts to soothe rather than uproot the basic causes of student

I contend that if the legislature is "at last" sincerely interested in the causes of student discontent that they personally look into the situation by going to the various universities and colleges throughout the state and talk to students, faculty, and administrators with the emphasis on the former to get a better understanding of the problems therein. If they could do this while laying aside their institutionalized prejudices, and not make value judgements on revolutionary efforts to change the institutions that educated them (legislators), then they too would see the need for plugging students into non-token, key decision-making positions in the university structure.

I propose that if the legislature wants to bring real change that they mandate state supported institutions to give students a voice and a vote in such areas as curriculum, the grading system, priorities on the expenditure of state appropriated funds, and yes even the hiring and firing of faculty and administrators. Perhaps then, faculty and university administrators will be forced to look at students as equals and will no longer look down their noses at students while hiding behind the "great tenure wall."

Perhaps then teachers will be able to teach, keeping in mind whether or not the subject matter will indeed meet the needs of the students. Perhaps then administrators can administrate while keeping in mind the human and humanitarian element with which they are intervention into university affairs, is given their investigation and understand of our problems, this would go a long w into insuring our first class citizens hence equality with faculty administrators. Our equal bargain positions with these other two governments would undoubtedly help solve some of the contract o most important problems facing educational institution today.

No-knock law acceptable

To the Editor:

Concerning your recent editorial in which the State News criticized the "no-knock" policy granted to the police in search of drugs, we strongly believe that the advantages of this method greatly outweigh the disadvantages.

To be sure, we agree with you that everybody's privacy is in jeopardy by "annoying" officers. However, since the wave of drug abuse (not to mention other unsightly realities) is NOT being checked to a substantial degree (for us this means entirely), we had just better quit our naivety and tolerate this "awful and unnecessary" law. The police have the right to protect the people and now they have need of our support and cooperation. As long as there are decent people who believe that love can carry you through any and all trials and tribulations and that faith in God is supreme over will of mind, then drugs tolerated. It is these citizens (rich and po alike) who are trying their damnedest raise a family in the best way they kno how, and to protect their children coming into contact with any "pushes" even members of their peer group might force drugs on them. It wo appear that if parents bring up the children properly they would not have worry about little Suzie or Johnny gette drugs, but they can't be watched 24 hours. day. Children are human. "Jenny," the film that brings Marlo Thomas to the movie screen, should have been called "The Perils of Jenny," 1970 version.

Like Pauline, her early screen counterpart, Jenny faces - eyed and winsome the perils of her age.

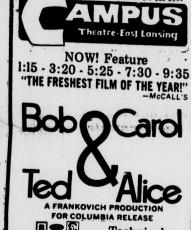

While Pauline found herself tied to a railroad track as the chugging locomotive rounded the bend or a moving log as it approached the grinding lumbermill saw, Jenny faces a whole new set of traumas, though the basic innocence and schmaltzy outlook of both are Jenny's pregnant, alone and in the cold, insensitive big city. A marriage convenience adds an unattentive, pot - smoking, draft dodging, bellowing husband and a bevy of his turned on friends to her troubles.

The script writers are quick to inform the viewers (in case they assume otherwise) that although she slipped, she is not a "fast" woman. You see, being young and easily impressed by the romantic illusions of movies, Jenny was seduced in a drive - in by an old schoolmate while Aontgomery Clift wooed Elizabeth Taylor on the ignored drive - in screen.

What, didn't Jenny know about the pill? Of course she did out living in a small town she was, alas, too shy to ask the town's only doctor to give her the pills.

What is so amazing about a film like "Jenny" (and few films, I must quickly add, are quite like "Jenny") is the yard run. Or MSU's American record at 220 - yards and a valiant but futile effort for the same at 300.

All in all, it was an evening to remember for the largest crowd in Relays history, which kept filing in for almost an hour after the meet started. But it was Washington's win above all else that made the evening a success for the MSU promoters and the fans.

The time, a "slow" 6.1 which tied the Jenison record, was really unimportant. What mattered to just about everyone there was that Washington had beaten Carlos, and that Washington just happens to go to MSU.

Washington appeared to get a good start, despite Carlos' post - race protests that Herb and second place Jimmy Harris jumped, but Washington said, "It wasn't as good as the start I had in Toronto," where he beat Carlos in a preliminary 50 heat.

Carlos apparently knew he was doomed to lose

Wehrwein and Evans hung behind Ohio State's Dick Bruggeman in the 600 til the 330 when Evans took off.

Wehrwein made his move too, but even with several tries on the last two curves calculated to carry him past the Olympic champ, Evans held on for a 1:08.9 victory.

Wehrwein was timed in 1:09.7, his best effort this year.

Wayne Hartwick, Howard Doughty, John Morrison and Charley Pollard combined to break the American mark of 28.6 in the 240 -yard shuttle hurdle relay with a 28.5 effort.

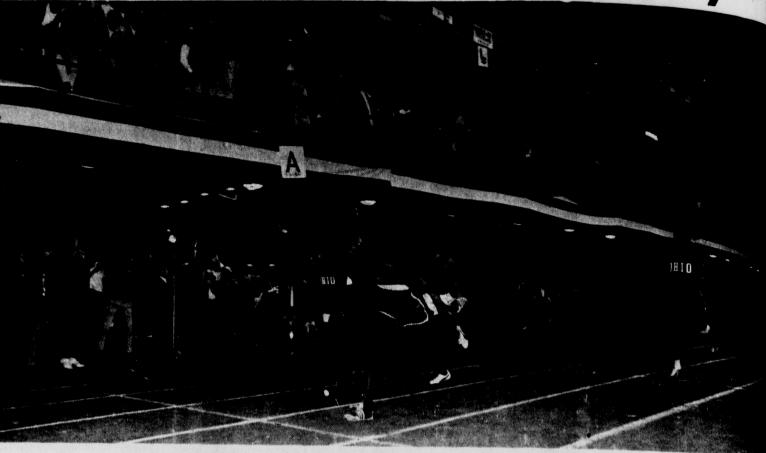

Anchorman Pollard brought MSU home half a second ahead of runner - up Air Force, which was even with the Spartans as the No. 3 man Morrison dove across the line to put the "tag" to

But the big senior, who later went on to win his third 70 - yard high hurdles crown, was not to be denied and ran a fine 7.0 for his 60 -yard anchor leg, and an American record of 28.5. Carlos missed in his try for the American 300 record, clocking 30.3, but he did break the mark at the seldom - run 220 distance, running 21.2, well ahead of the old 21.7 standard. MSU dominated the meet, taking the sprint medley relay and placing second in the mile relay, while Eric Allen (triple jump), Ken Popejoy (mile), Chuck Starkey (two mile), Paul Cooke (600), Morrison (high and low hurdles) and Doughty (lows) all placed.

Peter and Raymond Hull in their No. 1 bestseller. The store is one of 25 college stores that are participating in this grass roots

The authors strongly warn that "in a hierarchy every employee tends to rise to his own level of incompetence", -- in other words -- people are promoted until they reach a job they are ill equipped to handle. This explains, say the authors, why things always go wrong in our society and their book is crammed with illustrations that support this contemporary premise. In this era of Gallup and Harris, it was felt that there is a need for a wide - ranging, unscientific opportunity for the average person to express himself.

may have his own nomination for THE PETER PRINCIPLE practitioners, polling cards will be available in MSU Book Store for six weeks, beginning Monday, February 16. Nationwide results will be announced on April 1st. Paperbacks on display at the polling place.

On the assumption that the man on the street -- especially the college student --
