Senate rejects Carswell by 6 votes

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate rejected the Supreme Court nomination of Harold Carswell Wednesday by a surprising 51-45 vote that touched off a demonstration in the staid, old chamber.

55-45 rejection of Nixon's nomination to the court of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., a result which me with silence.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen that Nixon was of course disappointed at the Carswell vote.

The press secretary said the President will submit a new nomination in due course, but not necessarily before the November elections.

Some administration supporters have suggested withholding another nomination until after November in hopes that the Republicans will capture control of the Senate.

Carswell received the news at his Tallahassee, Fla., home, plus a call from Nixon expressing the chief executive's disappointment. The judge issued a short statement expressing both disappointment and relief, and thanking Nixon and his Senate supporters.

Demonstrations in galleries are against Senate rules but this one went on for perhaps two minutes. At one point the majority leader, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., called for order but was not heeded. Senators took no part in the demonstration.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., who came from a hospital bed to vote for Carswell, rose to shout something which was lost in the din. Then he slumped back into his chair.

The jubilant crowd of some 500, mostly from senatorial staffs, moved out into the corridors and mingled with another 350 persons who had been unable to get into the galleries.

As senators left the chamber and passed through the crowd there were cheers for those who opposed confirmation but mainly silence from his supporters.

Thirteen Republicans joined 38 Democrats to reject the 50-year-old Carswell, a Georgia-born federal appeals judge accused of racism and of lacking the judicial laurels to occupy the same seat once held by the great dissenter, Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Twenty-eight Republicans were joined by 17 Democrats, all but one from Southern or border states, in support of confirmation. Three Southerners voted no.

There were four absentees, two ailing and two out of town. But they were listed as evenly divided, so their presence would not have affected the margin of the rejection.

Despite a 52-44 reversal two days earlier in an effort to shelve the Carswell nomination by sending it back to committee, the liberal opposition refused to abandon the fight.

In the final hours it became clear that the outcome lay with no more than three Republican senators, one of them - Maine's Margaret Chase Smith - perhaps the key.

The first indication that the administration's cause was lost came with a firm "No" from Kentucky's Marlow W. Cook. It was the fifth "no" vote cast, but a crucial one since the freshman Republican had remained tight-mouthed to the end despite an hours-long visit alone with Nixon at the White House Monday night.

Cook's vote was greeted with light applause - strictly forbidden - and a rustling among spectators.

ASMSU to allow slates in future; defeats tax bids

By JOHN BORGER State News Staff Writer

Complications in the April 15 ASMSU elections appeared Tuesday night as Student Board defeated all tax proposals, established 12 additional off-campus polling places, changed the composition of the Elections Commission, and provided for slates in all future elections.

The slate question this year threatens to delay off-campus balloting at least a week and possibly indefinitely.

The All University Student Judiciary (AUSJ) upheld the previous decision to any ballot designation of five slate members in the election. The judiciary said that designation would constitute an unfair political distinction for the slate over the other 11 candidates for six off-campus seats.

To allow slate designation on the election ballot for the upcoming election could introduce the question of political advantage - and quite possibly taint the legitimacy of the results and thus the new board itself," the majority decision said. The decision passed by a narrow margin of four to three, with one abstention.

The slate members now have a ten-day period to appeal the question to Student-Faculty Judiciary. Rick Kibbey, East Lansing junior slate member, said Tuesday that he would appeal if he lost, but could not be reached for comment after the decision was announced.

Cabinet president and elections commissioner Bob Grossfeld said Wednesday that he would delay printing the ballots until he knows whether the decision will be appealed.

Even if the decision is appealed immediately, there is no way of knowing how soon Student-Faculty Judiciary will hear the case. Off-campus elections could be postponed indefinitely.

On-campus elections would still be held on schedule.

Student Board replaced the chairman of ASMSU and the chief justice of AUSJ with the heads of the six major governing groups as members of the Elections Commission. The elections commissioner will remain on the commission in an ex officio capacity.

The current commission arrangement was open to conflict of interest charges, because ASMSU or AUSJ may be asked to act on disputed rulings of the commission.

Slates, defined as "two or more candidates registering together," will be permitted on the ballot in all future elections. Names of candidates will appear in random order on the ballots, with their slate designation appearing after the name.

Twelve off-campus locations were added as polling places for off-campus students.

They are: Spartan Village, University Village, Cherry Lane, River St. and Bogue, M. A. C. and Albert, Haslett and Grand River Ave., Commuter Lot Y, Abbott and Albert, the New Community Texaco Station, Larry's Shop - Rite, Woodmere and Grand River, and the '76 Station at the fork of Grand River and Michigan.

Interfraternity Council (IFC), Intergovernmental Council (ICC), Off-Campus Council (OCC), and Panhellenic will be responsible for finding pollworkers

Senate vote elicits relief from judge

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - Judge G. Harrold Carswell said Wednesday after his nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court was defeated that he was relieved the battle was over but disappointed in the outcome. He also said President Nixon had called him and expressed his disappointment.

Carswell, with his wife Virginia at his side at the Florida Bar Building, read a statement from a piece of notepaper.

"First of all, it's a relief," Carswell said. "It's of course always a disappointment to not win, especially when you know so many fine friends and supporters had confidence in you. I shall always be deeply appreciative of the President's confidence in making the nomination and the senators who worked so actively, and others."

"Not the least of those in this group are those of the legal profession. This has been an agonizing experience for my family, my friends. But to have taken up the gauntlet and joined in the debate would not have been fitting for a person nominated to the Supreme Court," Carswell said.

Asked whether Nixon had called him, Carswell said: "Yes he did. He expressed his disappointment. The President urged me to stay at my present assignment and I plan to do so."

Carswell is a member of the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

"After a little rest," he said, "we'll be back on the job."

"We have no intention of becoming bitter or remorseful because there is no basis for it," he said.

He answered no other questions. After reading his statement and answering the question about Nixon, Carswell abruptly left.

Resident fees may increase

By BARBARA PARNES State News Staff Writer

According to a letter drafted by President Wharton for the legislature and sent to the University trustees for approval, resident fees and tuition may be increased $1.50 per credit next year, one MSU trustee said Wednesday.

The letter for the legislature was drafted to fulfill the requirements of the 1969-70 Higher Education Appropriations Act calling for certification by the universities of resident fees and tuition not later than April 15.

"There is a gap of $1.7 million that must be made up," the trustee said. "To make up the gap one way would be to increase the term credit hour rate from $13 to $14.50."

The University requested a $17.1 million increase over the 1969-70 appropriation. The governor's budget request in February called for only a $7.1 million increase for MSU.

The governor's recommendations to the legislature for MSU anticipated almost $745,000 in revenue for MSU from existing University sources. The governor also included a balance of more than $196,000 left over from the 1969-70 MSU appropriation.

The trustee said the University has estimated a general fund operating increase of $9.8 million. According to the governor's recommendations, MSU would only have an $8.1 million revenue increase. Increased fees or a cut in University programs must result, the trustee said.

The University administration declined to discuss the content of the draft of the letter for the legislature sent to the trustees.

Elliott Ballard, asst. to the president, said the trustees discussed the fee certification requirement at the March finance committee meeting. The board requested that Wharton draft a letter for their approval to meet the statutory requirement.

Ballard said Wharton requested reaction from the trustees to the draft. To this date Wharton has not received any responses, he said.

Wharton said the draft sent to the trustees may not be the final letter sent to the legislature before April 15.

"There is absolutely no certainty that the trustees will respond favorably to the draft," Wharton said.

LAKE MICHIGAN

Investigation to begin into cyanide dumping

LUDINGTON, MICH. (UPI) State officials promised a prompt investigation Wednesday of reports that the city of Ludington and a nearby steel company dumped hundreds of gallons of cyanide poison into Lake Michigan two or three times recently.

"We'll be digging into it right away," said Police Chief Richmond, Asst. chief of waste water for the state public health department. "We should have been alerted. The acceptable level of cyanide in drinking water is zero."

Ludington Mayor Robert Overholt said Tuesday "It's happened a couple of times in the past and there were fish killed. But there's lots of water out there." The latest spill, March 15, did not become public until Monday, when the city council asked local companies to provide emergency waste disposal systems to prevent further accidents.

City Water Treatment Manager Ken Barrs said 1,000 to 1,500 gallons of liquid cyanide escaped the night of March 15 from a holding tank of the Straits Steel and Wire Co., when electrolic action ate a hole in the tank. It flowed directly into the city sewage plant.

Barrs said, since the plant was unable to treat that amount, an estimated 80 parts per million of cyanide was dumped into Pere Marquette Lake, an outlet into Lake Michigan. Ludington's water intake is a quarter-mile from where the cyanide was dumped.

Measles could delay Apollo 13 moon trip

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) - A growing possibility that astronaut Thomas K. Mattingly II could break out with German measles in space greatly increased the chances Wednesday that the Apollo 13 moon voyage will have to be scrubbed for a month.

A recheck of Mattingly's blood samples, the space agency said, confirms that he has no immunity to the disease to which he was exposed by back-up astronaut Charles Duke.

"This finding creates the possibility that unless there is a change in Mattingly's condition between now and launch, he could develop German measles in space," the announcement said.

If the shot is postponed, it could be the most expensive case of measles in history. The delay would add an approximate 500,000 to the cost of the $375-million mission.

The other Apollo 13 crewmen, James A. Lovell Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr., were reported immune to the disease.

As doctors closely watched Mattingly's condition, the count-down rolled smoothly along toward a 2:13 p.m. EST launch on Saturday toward the jagged highlands of the moon's Fra Mauro Region. Officials said it could proceed down to the final hours before a decision is made to blast off or postpone. The next favorable launch date is May 9.

A space agency spokesman said one option that might solve the problem would be the replacement of Mattingly with astronaut John L. Swigert from the back-up team. The fact that Swigert was under consideration indicated that he has a proven measles immunity.

Such a transfer would violate an unwritten rule followed in the past that individual switches to the prime crew could not be made in the final two months before a launch.

The three prime crewmen were in close contact with Duke last Thursday and Friday. The 34-year-old Duke was infectious at the time. He broke out in a rash on Sunday.

Pregnancy bill action seen

By LARRY LEE
State News Staff Writer

Proponents of a bill that would prohibit a public school from excluding a girl who becomes pregnant expect action on the measure in the House Education Committee to begin next week.

Sponsored by House Minority Leader Robert Waldron, R-Grosse Pointe, the proposed law stipulates a school must provide an alternative program if it expels a pregnant student from the regular program.

Waldron said that in many districts what has happened is that "the very people who need educating most, we stop educating."

He said the bill could help in removing women from the Aid to Dependent Children Program and is just one facet of the attack that must be made against overpopulation.

The Waldron measure would be the first bill to establish a state policy on the rapidly growing problem of pregnancies of girls under 17.

A Waldron spokesman indicated knowledge of only one other state, Maryland, which has a state policy on pregnant school-age girls similar to the proposed Michigan statute. New York City also has made it possible for girls not to be excluded from public schools.

A group of educators, social workers, and nurses concerned with the development of programs for pregnant school-age girls will meet in Ann Arbor Friday to form a state-wide association to deal with the problem.

The association's purposes would be to act as consultants to new programs and stimulate additional ones, to work with groups for social action in gaining legislative support in establishing and clarifying laws for services to school-age parents, and identifying the specific and unique problems associated with adolescent pregnancy.

regular classes, but 90 per cent made some provisions for continued education for the girls.

In Detroit, the Continuing Education for Girls program, federally funded under Title I, can handle only about 225 girls a year, but has received 3,356 requests from March, 1966 through December, 1969.

It was at this center that a member of Waldron's staff became interested in proposing the legislation that was finally introduced.

Spokesmen in Waldron's office said the bill could be a hardship in small school districts and would work best in large urban centers.

Nonetheless, they said smaller districts could establish regional centers or the problem might be resolved if Gov. Milliken's educational reform proposal of consolidation of districts is approved.

E.L. banks give reasons for failure to shut doors

By BARNEY C. YOUNG
State News Staff Writer

East Lansing banks explained Wednesday the rationale for their closing or not closing in memoriam to Dr. Martin Luther King last Saturday.

William Fleming, executive vice-president of First National Bank of East Lansing, the only local bank to close in memoriam to King, said, "We received a request asking us to close from noon to 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 4. We did close from noon to 2 p.m. in memoriam of Dr. Martin Luther King."

East Lansing State Bank and East Lansing Savings and Loan Association did not close on April 4 as asked to by Black Liberation Front Intern' (BLFI), and the Pan-African Student Organization in the Americas (PASOA), of MSU.

Edward Trautz and N.D. Miller explained the position of the East Lansing State Bank. Trautz said an unidentified man delivered to the bank an unsigned letter asking that the bank close on April 4, in memoriam to Dr. King.

Miller said dates that banks are closed are set by law. He continued "A state bank, which we are, must ask the state at least 10 days in advance for permission to close on a day when we're normally open." He suggested that the state legislature would be the body to consult on issues such as the BLFI-PASOA request.

Bob Elliot, Detroit senior who delivered the letter to the banks, said "I identified myself as a representative of BLFI-PASOA when I entered the bank. The banks should not have had to be asked to close that day, particularly East Lansing State Bank which handles all the payroll for MSU."

"They've had two years to think about closing," he said. "Some employees of East Lansing State Bank went so far as to put a sign in the window which said: 'Closed for Washington's birthday,' while we were picketing."

Mercer of East Lansing Savings and Loan said his bank received a letter about two or three days before the date they were asked to close. He said it was referred to the bank's supervisors and its Board of Governors, which would not meet until after April 4.

COMPILER VOTER LISTS

Group to petition for Hart

By DAVE PERSON
State News Staff Writer

The Alliance to Seek a Newer World met Tuesday night to discuss forthcoming projects in the Senate campaign of Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich.

Interested students were urged to petition for Hart who is expected to announce formally his candidacy for re-election to the U.S. Senate shortly. Door-to-door petitioning will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday. Students were also asked to volunteer their time to compile voter registration lists in an attempt to get more citizens to register and vote.

The meeting was chaired by Randy Bodwin, East Lansing sophomore. Various people who have had previous contact with Sen. Hart were on hand to answer questions regarding the senator's policies. Among those discussed were his position favoring the availability of contraceptives and his investigation of car insurance monopolies.

Hart's belief that an entire campus should not be penalized for the actions of a minority was also brought to attention.

Policies such as the draft and the legalization of abortion, upon which the Senator's stand was uncertain, will be investigated this week and presented at the next meeting.

Hart was cited for his exceptional work in the field of conservation. He is the only political figure endorsed by the Friends of Earth, an organization dedicated to the welfare of the environment.

The Alliance was formed in early 1968 as the Alliance Kennedy in support of the Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. In year it became the R Movement for Kennedy back Sen. Edward Kennedy for presidency in 1972.

The Alliance is in support issues of a liberal nature. Campaign of Sen. Hart will be only concern until November election.

The Alliance will meet again 9 p.m. Tuesday in the Union

State limits school sex information

Lansing (UPI) - Attorney General Frank J. Kelley today there is "no doubt" in the state's policy to encourage and provide for sex education schools.

However, he said the clause may not include specific birth control instruction although effects of family planning be taught.

Kelley said the teaching birth control would be in conflict with a law prohibiting such instruction, even though the 1968 sex education allows family planning to be taught.

Former Gov. George Romney vetoed a bill in 1968 that would have repealed the birth control ban.

The 1968 sex education law which allows any school district to hold the classes, gave Department of Education authority to set up programs, establish a library information and recommend instructional guidelines.

The sex education law became the center of controversy last year when number of persons protesting the instruction in school disrupted a Board of Education meeting where the guidelines were revealed.

Earth Day and You

The air was clean once, the water good. We could walk the land and enjoy earth's smell. Now a disease infects our country. Its smog kills trees in Yosemite. Its pollution destroys our lakes, rivers, marshes. The sea is next. We are burying ourselves under 7 million scrapped cars, 30 million tons of waste paper, 48 billion discarded cans and 28 billion bottles and jars a year. And every day we pile up a million tons more of garbage. The air we breathe circles the earth 40 times a year. Americans spew into it 140 million tons of pollutants: 90 million from cars - we burn more gasoline than the rest of the world combined. Los Angeles' smog may cause mass deaths by 1975. There are 5,500 Americans born each day. There will be 100 million more of us by the year 2000. We flatten our hills, fill our bays, blitz our wilderness. The quality drains from our lives: Each of us in any large sea-coast city is rapidly becoming one-twenty-millionth or one-thirty-millionth of a swelling megalopolis.

These are warnings. Magazines can inform - as LOOK has with its Everglades plea (September 9, 1969) and its first ecology issue (November 4, 1969).

But after the warnings and talk end, there must come action. All Americans, young and old, left and right, are getting together to talk about our wrecked earth. April 22 is Earth Day, a time of nationwide teach-ins on ecology. LOOK's second ecology issue (now on newsstands) features 28 pages on issues that will be discussed on Earth Day. It warns, but it also urges: "The Fight to Save America Starts Now." The issue starts with a plea to save "The Disappearing Beauty of the Salt Marsh," a black-and-white photographic essay. From "Five Who Care," LOOK readers learn about how things are changing. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, co-sponsor of Earth Day, writes about the need for legislation and a Constitutional amendment guaranteeing our right to a clean and healthful environment. Dr. René Dubos, a noted biologist and a Pulitzer Prize winner, and Dr. Margaret Mead, the anthropologist, write about our changing society and the ways to make Americans draw back from our consume-now, damn-the-environment attitude. Rod Cameron, a lawyer with the Environmental Defense Fund, argues that if legislation and attitudes don't change soon, we should sue polluters and demonstrate in the streets. And Henry Ford II pledges virtually emission-free cars by 1975. Dr. Paul Ehrlich, "Ecology's Angry Lobbyist," outlines the problems and pins the blame on population.

Then LOOK urges its readers to join activist ecology groups, some on campus, some off. LOOK lists 49 of the most active ecology groups getting tough with polluters in their areas, and their telephone numbers.

On the same page, LOOK unveils its Ecology Flag - green and white with a Greek theta warning of the threat of death to earth. It's a symbol of what's happened to our environment in 200 years. And it's a pledge to help clean up America by 1976, its bicentennial. The flag is offered (at 25 cents each) to LOOK readers as a sign of their commitment to a clean environment.

The warning. The call to action. LOOK's commitment. We can no longer wring our hands over the wrecked earth. We must act. Now.

Earth Day focuses on education

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Teach-ins on the environmental pollution crisis and overpopulation are planned on hundreds of college and high school campuses across the country April 22 - the first Earth Day.

Bringing together students, scientists, politicians, businessmen among many others, Earth Day activities will be focused on educational programs through discussions, lectures and films.

"We're kind of come to the conclusion that people know about the problems now and we want to try to offer them solutions," said Greg Painter, a junior at Aquinas College in Grand Rapids, Mich. He heads a teach-in group.

Reflecting the views of some scientists, other environmental activists on college campuses said too little is being done to halt pollution of the land, air and water at a time when many forms of life are threatened by corruption of the environment.

For the most part, teach-in activities get under way April 17 and run through April 25 with the bulk of them coming on Earth Day itself.

Included in the planned events are several demonstrations against large firms.

During a two-day program at Wayne State University starting April 22, students plan to peacefully picket General Motors Corp. headquarters in Detroit. Representatives of GM, Ford and the Dow Chemical Co. are on the list for panel discussions at Wayne State along with Ralph Nader, the consumer protection spokesman, Sen. Philip A. Hart and Reps. John Dingell, John Conyers and Charles Diggs, all of Michigan.

School officials on many other campuses have sanctioned teach-in events and are cooperating with students in organizing them.

The most noticeable observance in New York City will be the two-hour closing of Fifth Avenue for 46 midtown blocks, a move by Mayor John V. Lindsay that has brought protests from merchants and warnings of traffic chaos. The mayor also ordered 14th Street closed from Second to Seventh Avenue from noon to midnight, giving an Environmental Action Coalition an Opportunity for an outdoor exposition half the width of Manhattan Island.

LEGALITY QUESTIONED

Jury selection challenged

Detroit (UPI) - A group of Detroit attorneys charged the jury selection process in the city's criminal court has been subject to "a very deep and subtle type of racism" for the past few years.

They are challenging the legality of the methods a jury commissioner used to excuse 4,000 of those called for jury duty. The commissioner, Karl McKeehan, already has testified he excused prospective jurors for things such as wearing beards, chewing gum, wearing a miniskirt, being "too fat" or "too young."

If the appeal before visiting recorders court Judge Horace W. Gilmore is successful, Justin C. Ravitz, one of the attorneys, say of the future: "I think we will get fair juries. The number of blacks will double." Up to this point, the exclusion has resulted in juries made up of "a mediocre group of the retired and housewives," said one attorney.

The challenge came about during jury selection in the trial of Rafael Viera and Clarence J. Fuller, who are charged with shooting two Detroit policemen during the notorious New Bethel shooting between police and black nationalists March 29, 1969.

Ravitz said that when he saw only 25 per cent of the 150 prospective jurors were Negroes, "We went to the jury commissioner and asked to see some of the questionnaires he rejected.

"After looking at some of them, we became satisfied that the whole thing was systematically discriminatory and they were using poor standards to exclude blacks and poor people. What's plain is that they're exercising in a wholesale fashion the most racist arbitrary policy imaginable.

"Based on the statistics we have derived, 80 per cent of the 4,000 were illegally rejected," Ravitz said.

McKeehan's testimony given during several days on the stand essentially backed up Ravitz' contentions.

OSAKA, Japan (AP) - A series of gas explosions ripped through a subway construction site 10 miles from Expo '70 at the evening rush hour Wednesday. Eighty-eight persons were killed and 307 injured.

Authorities said no foreigners had been identified among the victims caught in an inferno of fire and flying rubble.

Police said it was the worst gas disaster in Japan since World War II.

The blasts occurred at about 5:30 p.m. when the downtown business area of this city of more than three million persons was jammed with commuters and shoppers.

Police said preliminary investigation showed a patrol car sent by the Osaka Gas Co. to stop leakage from a broken underground main was set ablaze apparently by an engine spark. A series of three quick explosions followed.

The blasts occurred after the fire in the patrol car had attracted a large crowd of commuters and shoppers.

The explosions leveled several buildings and touched off fires which destroyed about 30 other apartment houses, offices and shops.

Many people were killed or injured by steel sheets, concrete pavement, slabs, loosened roof slates and shards of glass from windows broken by the blasts.

Haynsworth

Carswell

Who's next?

That's strike two, Mr. President!

By a surprising six vote margin, 51-45, the Senate has defeated President Nixon's second nomination for associate justice to the Supreme Court.

This time around - Clement Haynsworth was the first Southerner to meet with disaster - G. Harrold Carswell was the object of a long and acerbic debate among senators resulting in the second decisive defeat for President Nixon.

This rejection coupled with the Haynsworth fiasco six months ago is not only a bitter disappointment to the President but a direct slap at his supposed authority. Mr. Nixon, just a few days ago in a letter to a Republican senator, attempted to assert his power to "appoint" associate justices with the Senate remaining a mere stamp of approval; this turn - about firmly establishes the Senate as a viable force with which the President must reckon.

It is interesting to note that 13 Republican senators voted against the Carswell nomination - 17 sided against Haynsworth - and hence broke with their President on an issue which, from its very outset, was labeled one entailing "partisan politics."

The President, it seems certain, will not be bullied by a Senate whose majority is intent on existing as the President's conscience. Consequently, the likelihood remains that Mr. Nixon will nominate yet another southern jurist either out of spite - due to the Senate's obstinacy in approving High Court nominations - or as part of his agreement in the "Southern strategy" by which many believed he was elected.

In all probability, the President will not offer another nominee before the November elections. Although the President may have been crass in these past two nominations, he is not naive enough to bring his personal defeats to the American public's attention - by making a third nomination - just before Congressional elections.

Finally, a fitting tribute to the defeat of the Carswell nomination occurred in the Senate galleries. Although Senate rules prohibit demonstrations, there was spontaneous clapping, cheers and demonstrating for at least two minutes.

Perhaps the outbursts of elation are an indication that the President would be wise to carefully consider the geographical origin and political/social ideologies of his next nominee if he ever wants to re-establish the tradition of nine justices on the Supreme Court.

Del Rio's licensing bill fearful control attempt Representative James Del Rio has a bill in committee that would require the licensing of all reporters. The rationale behind this is clear, simple and blatantly obvious.

To paraphrase the good legislator: The newspapers, see, are subject to the First Amendment which includes the right to free speech. Now we all know that the right of free speech does not mean free speech in a literal sense. Like you cannot yell "Fire!" in a small theater just for the hell of it, Get the idea, kids?

Now there is a growing monopoly in the United States called the press. The small daily seldom exists any more. Now you can pick up a paper in the New York airport and read the same editorial in a paper that you pick up when you arrive in Los Angeles. That's monopoly of the press, son, monopoly of the press.

Now there is nothing really wrong with monopoly, but you see these newspapers for the last 15 or 20 years have been wanting everybody licensed in every profession. You have been reading the papers for the past 15 or 20 years, haven't you?

So let's license these reporters. Let's license these reporters so we can tell them what to do because they have been telling us what to do for a long time.

These are the reasons that Del Rio gave one of our reporters, a math-sociology major, in an interview Tuesday. Every reporter should have had four years of journalism before he is allowed to write. "This will keep math - sociology majors off the pages of the press," Del Rio warmly mentioned as he concluded the interview. "You get the idea, son."

Actually Del Rio has many reasons to be upset over the press. If it were not for the watchful eye of the press, people would never have heard of the journey Del Rio and three other congressmen made in November to Puerto Rico to study low income housing, accompanied by a man that had been previously convicted of bribing public officials.

The purpose of licensing reporters, of course, is to have the right to repeal the licenses. For malpractice a doctor's license is repealed. The same would go for reporters. But what is malpractice? The Detroit News would probably have been in trouble for its expose of Del Rio a couple of years ago, for Del Rio surely would have termed this malpractice.

As long as people like Del Rio are in office, the licensing of reporters becomes something that we should legitimately fear. Without the press, there would be no one to keep an eye on our elected and appointed officials. This is most likely what Del Rio wants.

There is not much chance of Del Rio's bill passing. Bills like Del Rio's have yet to get out of committee in the Michigan legislature. But we just wanted to get the facts straight, understand, Mr. Del Rio?

OUR READERS' MIND

Reservists deserve the credit

To The Editor:

Major General W. J. Sutton, Chief of the United States Army Reserve, has proclaimed April to be community month. The idea of using the USAR in community oriented projects is certainly an excellent one. Unfortunately, however, by the time the chain of command had finished handing down its directives, this very worthwhile project had degenerated to nothing more than a publicity stunt. A letter sent to individual reservists of the Lansing units by their battalion commander makes this very clear.

- The Editors

In this letter reservists are asked to "participate in activities designed to make their communities a better place in which to live" and we were even furnished with a list of suggested community service activities. If left at this, the letter might have seemed very effective and sincere. However, the letter continues with the comment that "the name of the game is the publicize the reserve program, tell of the difference between us [the USAR] and the State National Guard," and "to familiarize the community with the functions of the USAR."

In order to avoid any false impression that may be created by voluntary activities of reservists within the next month and to reveal the true nature of this project, we would like to make several observations.

(1) Never, during the three years that we have been members of the Lansing reserve unit, has a community project ever been attempted, nor has one even been proposed. (2) Community service is hardly a "function" of the USAR, despite the fact that it possesses both the manpower and equipment to perform many worthwhile projects. (3) All of the suggested month's projects are to be accomplished by individual reservists on their own time. Thus the USAR organization is trying to get credit from the acts of individual citizens (who happen to be reservists) while exhibiting no genuine inclination to sacrifice any of its own scheduled drill time to help in community projects.

We suggest that the merit for any community service activities performed by reservists during this month should properly be credited to the individual reservists themselves, rather than to the USAR.

Overpriced

To The Editor:

If any students plan to go to the Great Bahamas next spring, DON'T!!! That was undoubtedly one of the worst experiences in highway robbery we have ever experienced. The people there were most rude in all phases of personal contact. The waitresses, taxi drivers, and receptionists were less than friendly.

The prices were outrageous. To start with, a fried egg cost 95 cents. A half hour trip in a taxi cost $3.00 and the whole island is laid out by a master mind in order to soak students of every coin they own. You can go into a real swanky place and get a steak for $10.50. The only trouble is you get nothing else. You have to pay $1.00 extra for every side order such as peas, corn or potatoes.

After one day on the island, you become sick. You are trapped and there is no place to go. Even the grocery stores have prices like: hamburger $1.89 lb.; milk - 1 gallon $1.64; bread @ 55 cents a loaf.

So, next spring, go to Florida, and save about $90.00 and have twice as much fun with your money.

Edits need documentation

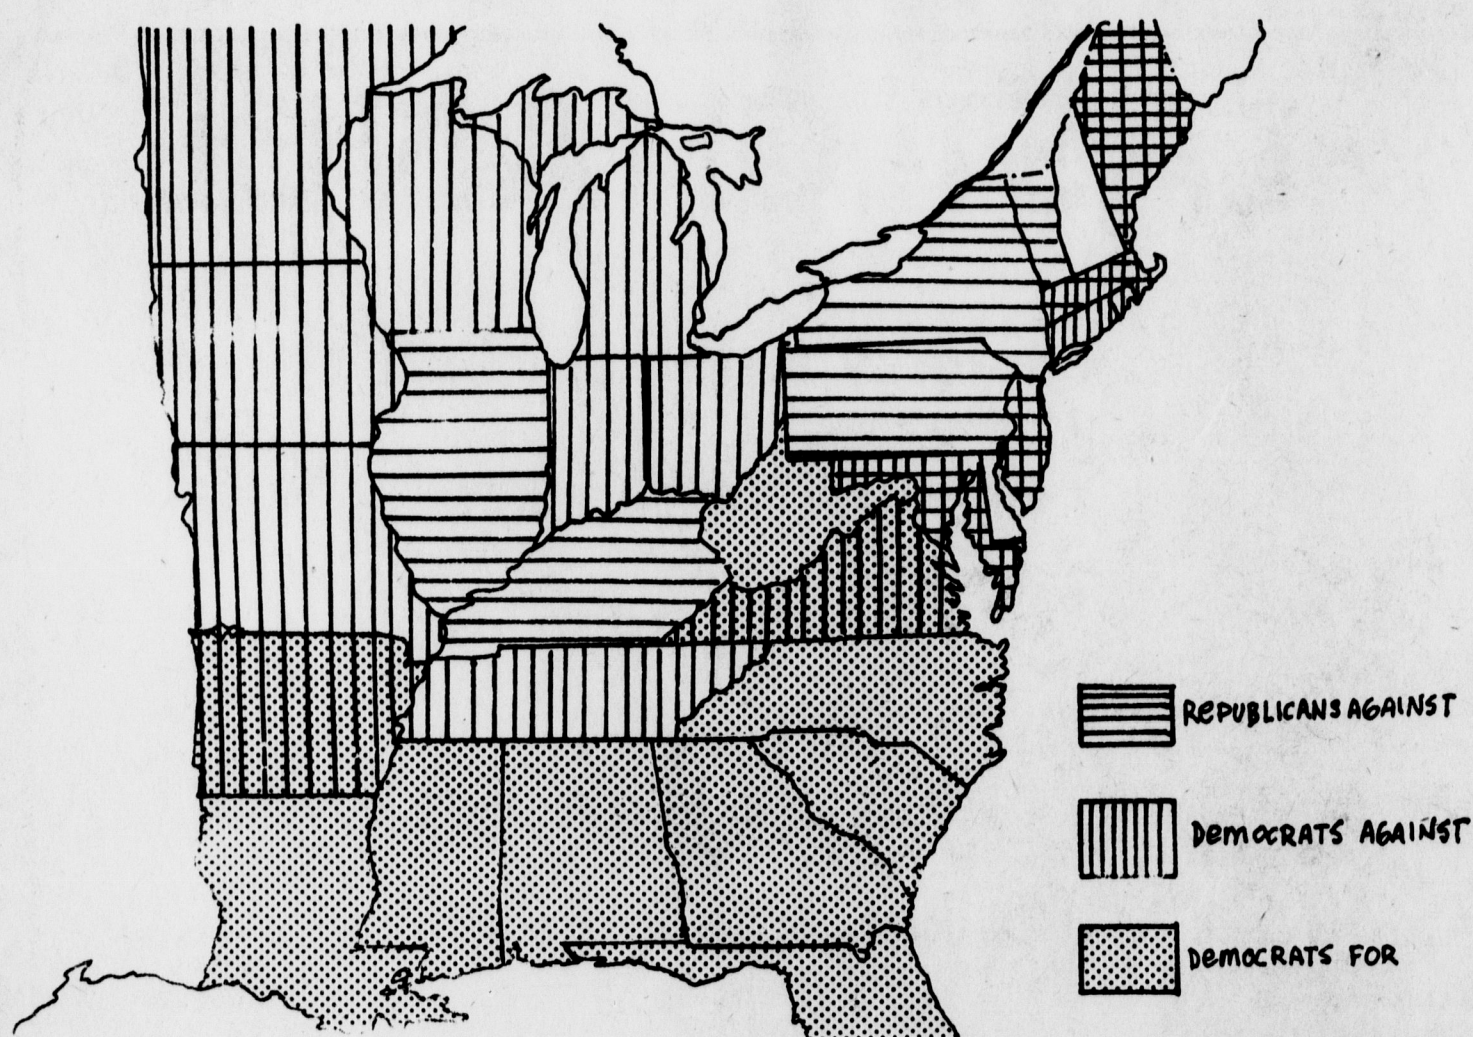

To The Editor:

In response to the State News editorial of April 1st on ROTC I would like to make a rebuttal. While reading this editorial I thought surely it were an April Fool's joke until I had finished and realized the editors were in dead earnest. Here again the SN has continued its fine tradition of undocumented, derogatory slander against ROTC.

For instance, I would really be interested in knowing how the SN established the fact that "it is no secret that the subject matter of many 'military science' courses is more propaganda than fact and that the primary criteria for good marks is how well one can toe the line, rather than how well one can use his creativity." I am also incapable of understanding how the editors can use the ideas of free thought and discussion and the "current precepts of academic freedom" to argue the abolishment of a part of academia from the campus. How does the SN know that "much course material that is presented is clearly of an inferior order to that given by other departments"? Does SN use clever spies, or comprehensive interviewing or is their information (heaven forbid) just hearsay? It would be inspiring to see the SN use real live facts in its accusations and hear the logic behind the editors' assumption that "this program is in clear violation of the precepts of free education and academic freedom." These kinds of hand-waving arguments may be all right in mathematics classes, but not in the intellectual forum of the SN editorial page. I challenge the editors to start buckling down and start censoring those editorials which do not have documented, factual information to back them up. (If they think slander sells newspapers, they should take away the mandatory SN student tax and see how many student subscribers they get.)

The Carswell vote, particularly in the South and East produced some visible and predictable Senate voting patterns. The states below the Mason-Dixon line were solid Carswell supporters. Above the line the voting was more mixed. Opposition increased further East and in the North.

Plot dulls able performances in 'Willie Boy'

By ROBERT KIPPER
State News Reviewer

"Tell Them Willie Boy is Here" is an impressive failure. It is a slow moving, uneventful and only occasionally poignant Western that is distinguished by astute direction and capable acting but reduced by a mediocre, conventional script. The story couldn't be simpler. A resentful Indian kills a white man in self-defense and is mercilessly stalked by white lawmen.

Willie Boy, an Indian who served time for a minor crime against a white man, returns to his reservation to reunite with his lover and face again the disapproval of her family and the animosity of local white men. The lovers are ambushed during an evening rendezvous and Willie is forced to kill one of his attackers. The couple flees to avoid white law that condemns an Indian for murdering a white man under circumstances. After a long pursuit, Willie, beaten into submission, becomes a victim of inequitable white "justice."

"Tell Them Willie Boy is Here," in short, outlines the final destruction of a man's spirit, already broken by a life colored by prejudice and reduced by inferior status. It deals with a man who solemnly accepts his fate but whose wounded dignity pushes him to his final, singular act of defiance.

Occasionally, "Tell Them Willie Boy is Here" moves the audience with the pathos of Willie's subjection and the plight of the American Indian. The simplicity of the story, however, leads to its undoing.

Director Abraham Polonsky obviously wanted his film to appear uncluttered and lean. He apparently wanted the chase to be paramount and hoped to illustrate through it the inequity of a situation that would force a red man to run following an act of self-defense.

In stripping his film to the essentials, Polonsky has also eliminated much of its substance. He fails to adequately define the situation or clarify the characters' motivation in the beginning. Without this necessary orientation, the chase never becomes the grueling, tense demonstration it should be.

The opening action -- Willie's despair and crime -- is handled rapidly, almost elliptically. The audience knows very little about the characters so the subsequent chase never involves or moves them. The audience is left with merely a prolonged chase film which offers little in the way of surprise or clarification to make it worthwhile.

Therefore, Polonsky's careful direction and the fine acting of Katherine Ross as the Indian girl, Robert Redford as the white lawman and especially Robert Blake as Willie Boy, can do little to save a film that has already been defeated by a lackluster script.

This is especially unfortunate since "Tell Them Willie Boy is Here" is the first film Polonsky has directed since 1951 when he was blacklisted during the McCarthy investigations. Having himself been a victim of senseless inequity, it is sad Polonsky doesn't move the audience with Willie's struggle.

While his restrained, detailed direction is admirable in itself, the script (which he wrote) makes his efforts and those of his co-workers rather fruitless.

Commercial failures that exploit their themes or simplify them with glossy compromise are contemptible. Impressive failures, such as the muted "Tell Them Willie Boy is Here," are highly regrettable.

Abrams plans free sky watch

Abrams Planetarium will present Sky Scanning at 8 this evening free of charge. Sky Scanning is a monthly program that features current sky phenomena.

Of interest this month are Mercury, Venus, Saturn, Mars and Jupiter, all of which are visible without a telescope. Mercury, usually difficult to locate, can be seen this month using Venus as a pointer.

Persons interested in further study should enroll in the Evening College Sky Watching with Eye and Telescope class, offered at 8 p.m. the second Thursday of each month through August.

Chorus to sing in Czech

The 350-voice MSU Chorus and the MSU Symphony Orchestra will present three unusual choral works at 8:15 p.m. Sunday in the Auditorium.

The "Glagolitic Mass," "a maverick mass by a composer who was a proclaimed atheist," Jones said, "has beauty, power and reverence."

The work will be sung in Czech, Jones continued, not to show off, but because Latin, German or English translations do not fit Janacek's eccentric rhythms.

Janacek, a Czech born in 1854, was a younger contemporary of Dvorak and Smetana but, unlike his countrymen, was a "loner" musically.

The 1969-70 season has been declared a "Janacek Year" with performances of several of his operas in Europe, New York and San Francisco.

This will be Jones' last performance before taking a one-year sabbatical leave to study and travel in Great Britain.

'Midnight Cowboy,' Wayne win honors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - The old Hollywood and the new have been recognized in the 42nd Academy Awards with top honors going to the X-rated "Midnight Cowboy" and to John Wayne, who is acceptable to general audiences everywhere.

"Midnight Cowboy," which tells how a handsome young Texan makes a poor living in New York as a male prostitute, was hailed the best 1969 film at Tuesday night's Oscar extravaganza. Under the movie industry's rating code, it cannot be seen by persons under 16-18 in some areas.

Wayne, the cranky, creaky Rooster Cogburn of "True Grit," won the acting Oscar after 40 years of trying. The Oscar for best actress went to England's Maggie Smith for her meticulous portrayal of a schoolteacher in "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie."

"Laugh In's" Goldie Hawn scored as best supporting actress for her first movie, "Cactus Flower." Veteran Gig Young, playing his most serious role after a career in comedy, won as best supporting actor for "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?"

"Midnight Cowboy" won two other major awards: for British director John Schlesinger and scenarist Waldo Salt. The award to Salt was notable for being the first Oscar received by a returnee from the film industry's blacklist; he had been banished during the 1950s for alleged left-wing sympathies.

The two actress winners were in England, but Wayne was present at the Music Center to accept his long-awaited Oscar.

"It was the best part I ever had," he said of the one-eyed marshal of "True Grit." "I'm damned glad it came along when it did."

Sophs, juniors dominate 'S' lineup

By GARY WALKOWICZ
Executive Sports Editor

Sophomores and juniors dominate the lineup that the MSU baseball team will send out against Ball State Saturday. The pitchers and catchers were covered yesterday. Here's a position-by-position look at the rest of the team:

1ST BASE -- Junior Tim Bograkov and sophomore Rob Ellis both figure to see action here. Bograkov, a southpaw swinger, held down this spot most of last season, but was benched by a late-season batting slump. A good glove man, Bograkov had problems at the plate again this spring, hitting .200 in Florida. Righthand hitting Ellis was one of the batting stars of the trip, ball at a .442 clip. MSU Coach Litwhiler will keep his bat in the lineup at either first or third.

2ND BASE -- Junior Whitey Rettenmund started about half the games here in 1969. He's No. 1 here now, backed by veteran utilityman Rich Vary. Litwhiler would like Rettenmund to improve upon his .180 average from the Florida trip. "He did a great job in the field," Litwhiler said. "He's our best double play man." Rettenmund was in 11 of the 19 double plays the Spartans pulled off in 14 games.

SHORTSTOP -- A season-long regular of a year ago, George Petroff will likely be the only senior starting this year. Petroff owns a good glove and accurate arm and is a fine clutch hitter at the plate. Last year he struck out 32 times in 96 trips, but still managed to hit a healthy .292, second best among the regulars. "He did a great glove job for us and was hitting with more authority down South," Asst. Coach Frank Pellerin said. Back-up men are freshman Steve Cerez and Vary, but they won't get much action here, unless Petroff is hurt.

3RD BASE -- Vary, Ellis and freshman John Rhode are all in contention here. Ellis will start at third when he's not at first. Rhode was impressive in spots with the bat as he hit .231, with one homer and five RBI's in Florida. He bats from the right side. "John was fielding well and Vary was hitting well down South," Pellerin said. Vary, who hit .323, possesses a very strong arm and may see spot pitching duty.

OUTFIELD -- All three starters are gone from last season, but Litwhiler didn't appear too worried after the way junior Gary Boyce and sophomores Ron Pruitt and John Dace ripped the ball in Florida. Boyce, who started near the end of last season, holds down the center field post. He crumpled the ball at a .426 pace with three doubles, a triple and a home run on the trip. Pruitt, who is the only righthanded hitter of the trio, was outstanding in the power department with two doubles and three home runs. The rightfielder knocked in a team-leading 17 runs. Dace, a big, strong lefthand swinger who can spray his hits, started slowly on the trip, but the hits started dropping in the final few games. Dace, who finished at .308, and fields well in left field, has excellent power, as evidenced by his four triples and three home runs. The only other Spartan who may see action in the outfield is sophomore Shaun Howitt, who missed the Southern excursion with an injury. He bats from the right side.

The pitching outlook was inadvertently cut short in Wednesday's story. The depleted portman mentioned freshman Dave Bewley and sophomore Dave Leisman as two pitchers that Litwhiler hoped could develop into relievers or spot starters. "Both of them looked promising in spots down South," Pellerin said.

The Spartan's second half slump of last season started when their bats suddenly went cold. They were depending on two or three top hitters and when they slumped the team stopped scoring runs. MSU appears to have better and more balanced hitting this season. If the pitching can match or come close to last year's effort, Litwhiler's team will be a big factor in the Big Ten race.

Andy Vollweiler

Vollweiler to lead netters-- if he beats weight problem

By JOHN VIGES
State News Sports Writer

A steady, experienced tennis player in the person of Andy Vollweiler was named by his teammates as their captain for the 1970 season.

The only senior on the squad, Vollweiler, is expected to contribute not only his playing ability, especially in the doubles events, but his leadership, humor, and tips on play that many of the players have used to their advantage.

The Spartan captain has the experience and tennis knowledge to play, but his biggest problem will be getting into shape. With coach Stan Drobac emphasizing youth this year, whether Vollweiler can lose weight and get in better condition will determine whether he plays.

"Andy is a fine player, but to play he must be in better shape," Drobac said. "Whether he plays is up to Andy himself. He should be a good captain for the team."

Optimistic about the tennis chances for the coming season, Vollweiler sees the improved depth of the team as a Spartan strong point.

"If everyone plays up to his ability we could do quite well in the Big Ten," the MSU captain said. "We will have to come together as a team and come up with effective doubles teams. The secret to the season will be to find the three best doubles combinations.

"We will be much stronger than last year. Last year I was third in singles but this season there are six or seven above me so I will concentrate on the doubles events. This weekend should give us a good indication as to how good we are. We face a strong Indiana team and if we can win a tough match like that one, we could be on our way."

The three doubles spots have been the source of confusion in the ranks. During the spring training trip through the Southwest, Drobac used a good dozen combinations. Problems arose when a player strained his arm or was tired and the coach would be forced to rearrange his lineup.

Vollweiler has combined with three teammates this spring as he has compiled one of the more consistent records thus far. He combined with freshman Rick Vetter for wins over Pan American and Texas A&M, plus joining Jim Symington and Rick Ferman for victories. His only doubles loss was against Okeahoma City when he teamed up again with Vettors.

The six singles spots are almost set for the Spartans so Vollweiler plans to concentrate on the doubles events.

"I feel that I am stronger in the doubles," he said, "and I know this phase of the game quite well. My strong point is my anticipation of where and when the ball will go. When playing, I am careful and try to let my opponent make all mistakes.

"The secret in doubles is to find two players that most effectively compliment each other," Vollweiler said. "Both power and steadiness are needed. I think that I could play well with anyone on the team and hope that during the year I can work into the lineup and eventually win one of the doubles in the Big Ten."

Edward Bear Is Here!

A. A. Milne gave us the first Edward Bear: for that was the given name of Winnie-the-Pooh, a bear of some repute.

Canada has now given us another Edward Bear: for this is the given name of a three-man group from Toronto, also of some repute.

Reviewers have given high praise to this same Edward Bear: audiences have, too. Music critic Ritchie Yorke called Edward Bear "both a pacesetter and a trendsetter... it seems likely that Bearings [the new album] will be a huge success... First there was the Guess Who, then Motherlode, and the next Canadian group that's going to make it... is Capitol's Edward Bear.

Bearings is Edward Bear's first album. It is new and it is exciting; and Bearings, too, seems destined for some repute.

Is there a Paulist in the crowd?

Believe it or not, a campus protest group is not an unlikely place to find a Paulist.

Why? Because Paulists are the mediators of our time... standing between God and man... understanding, helping, loving... trying to bring together the extremes of the world we live in and the Church.

Wherever he is... as a college chaplain, working in a ghetto or helping in a parish... the Paulist is serving.

Crippled to benefit from ramp

A wheelchair ramp is being installed at Berkey Hall to make this classroom building more easily accessible to handicapped students.

Ronald Flinn, associate director of the physical plant, said certain campus buildings already have temporary or permanent wheelchair ramps to aid handicapped individuals.

"The Natural Science Bldg., Bessey Hall, some of the residence halls and now Berkey Hall have installed ramps," Flinn said.

He also commented that facilities for handicapped individuals, now a state requirement, must be included in new structures. Flinn estimated the Berkey project will take approximately five weeks.

April showers

Spring rains and construction at Berkey Hall makes the going tough. Students must devise an alternate route while ramps for handicapped students are being built.

Pollution control involves U.S. development: Koenig

By DAVE SHORT
State News Staff Writer

America faces a new era in national development in its attempts to institute environmental control, Herman E. Koenig, chairman of the Department of Electrical Engineering and Systems, said Tuesday.

"The problem facing us is not just a matter of letting a few birds sing or having a clean river; our whole national development is involved," Koenig stated.

Koenig and James W. Butcher, asst. dean of the College of Natural Science, discussed environmental control as part of the University's April Environmental Quality programs.

Koenig emphasized that Americans have assumed wrongly that they can produce as much as possible and that the country's natural resources are infinite. He warned that the people have totally ignored the loading effect that had been put on the natural environment.

"We cannot rely on the natural environment to automatically assimilate that which we don't want."

BUTCHER KOENIG

"The bulk of material that is dumped into the environment is equal to that taken out of the natural resources. That material is not consumed, it merely changes form and thus still needs to be dissolved."

Both Koenig and Butcher stressed the need for structuring industrial, agricultural, and urban programs so that the natural environment provides the maximum return to the labor expended.

"Paper is cheap because we feel that the natural resources are endless," Butcher said. "If paper wasn't cheap and if we realized that our resources aren't endless, people would find ways of recirculating used paper and find other things besides paper for usage."

Koenig and Butcher both said part of the current environmental problem is caused because America has an economic rewards system that disregards the limits of its environment.

"In our economic set-up, natural resources such as water and air have no price tags and don't weigh heavily in economic decisions," Koenig said.

"If we could look at the natural environment as important in the whole structure, the decisions made involving our development would be different."

Butcher pointed out the importance of a total commitment in attempts at environmental control during the years ahead. He said that the educational system involving ecology must be University-wide and that all of the people must be willing to make personal sacrifices in solving the problems encountered.

Whatever happens in the years ahead, Koenig said that his generation won't completely solve the problems of environmental control. Today's college generation will be the one which will have to face the situation head on even though the older generation can make some initial breakthroughs.

SPRING TERM SEMINARS

Man tied to his environs

By STEVE WATERBURY
State News Staff Writer

The inseparability of man and environment was emphasized Tuesday by George A. Petrides, professor of fisheries wildlife, in the fourth in a series of spring term environmental quality seminars.

Petrides said those same environmental factors which are considered if life is to be sustained in a spacecraft must be considered on earth itself.

He emphasized that man is dependent not only on his local environment, but also on those plant and animal organisms comprising his global environment.

When these organisms no longer thrive on earth, we will suffer, he said.

Because of man's dependence on the entire environmental system, "we cannot restrict our view of ecology to beer cans and roadside beauty," Petrides complement the student - soil science, will speak on sponsored E-QUAL Teach-in on "Problems and Future Directions of Pesticide Usage in Agriculture." His lecture is scheduled for 4:10 p.m. in 105 Meggitt, professor of crop and S. Kedzie.

The series will continue on Monday, when William F. Meggitt, professor of crop and S. Kedzie.

Our Far East policy brings people together.

The Jade East manifesto. Its aim: to bring men and women all over the world closer together. Our policy would allow for all sorts of skirmishes, territorial gains and conquests. And still keep the peace.

Just put some Jade East on your face and neck. And anywhere else. If you've got a girlfriend, take her out as planned. If you're seeing a few girls, do whatever it is you're doing.

Now comes the best part. Since all girls are different, all reactions will be different. Some will be aggressive. Others, submissive. But whether our policy leads to final agreement or not, one thing's for sure. The negotiations alone will be worth the price.
