Academic Council expands grading options for strikers

By STEVE WATERBURY
State News Staff Writer

Academic Council Friday approved revised grading procedures for striking students and requested a study of the possibility of rearranging the Fall, 1970 academic calendar.

The council also amended and accepted a report from its student affairs committee on "Policies and Procedures on Student Disturbances."

Acting on a recommendation from its educational policies committee, the council moved to expand options for the use of certain grades for spring term. As a result of council action:

—Present regulations restricting the P-N (Pass - No Grade) system of grading were waived.

—The use of the INC (Incomplete) grade was broadened.

—The drop period in which a student may receive a grade of N (No Grade) using a late drop card was extended to the end of the term.

Present regulations prohibit drops after the middle of the term except in special cases such as registration errors or catastrophic events. The council action eliminated all restrictions on the use of the N grade except certification by the instructor of a grade.

The council guidelines state that the use of these expanded options "should be at the request of the student, subject to the approval of the instructor."

It is recommended that decisions be recorded in writing.

One premise considered by the educational policies committee in making the above recommendations to the council was that grades should not be used "to either penalize or reward a student on the basis of a decision to dissent or not to dissent."

The council also recommended that instructors permit students to do outside work in lieu of class attendance and provide special examinations. The giving of blanket grades is discouraged.

The resolution providing for a study of the possibility of rearranging the fall term schedule to allow members of the academic community time to work for political candidates of their choice in the November election was passed in a nearly unanimous vote.

The resolution labeled as "highly commendable" the present "interest, involvement and commitments made by the MSU academic community in their desire to bring about orderly constructive changes in our society."

The results of the study will be presented to the council for action at the June meeting.

The report on campus disturbances approved by the council was begun following widespread conflict at MSU over the suspension resolution passed by the board of trustees in 1968.

Board praises, supports Wharton's strike position

By BARBARA PARNES
Campus Editor

Board of Trustees unanimously passed a resolution Friday praising President Wharton's handling of the strike.

The resolution came following nearly 10 hours of discussion Thursday night by representatives from ASMSU, faculty, student strike and anti-strike groups.

The board commends President Wharton's leadership of the University during this difficult period and supports his May statement on the issues, "the resolution believe he has been sympathetic to legitimate concerns of students and faculty, demonstrating a willingness to move as rapidly as possible toward solutions which can be attained, while maintaining the integrity of Michigan State University," the resolution stated.

The board affirmed its obligation to provide educational opportunities for all who attend the University." At the same time, the trustees said the University "must be responsive to constructive change in a changing society and flexible in its methods of dealing with the concerns of students and faculty."

"If change is to come from demonstrated need and is to lead to specific objectives, it must be achieved through a rational decision-making process," the resolution stated.

At the informal Thursday evening session the board was addressed by Rick Kibbey, ASMSU representative and chairman of the strike steering committee; Janice Goldman, representative of the Radical Caucus; Harold Buckner, ASMSU chairman; and Terry Sullivan, student representative to the Academic Council.

Rick Coglianese and Eric Mettala, anti-strike group representatives; Margaret Leshner, strike steering committee member; Peter Flynn, Council of Graduate Students president and Norman Pollack, professor of history, also addressed the board.

Kibbey told the trustees that the strike steering committee does not want to shut down the University.

"We don't want to send the students home or send the faculty home or have anybody lose their job," Kibbey said. "We think these people should be left here and their talents should be addressing the issues of Indochina, racism in this country and repression in this country."

He said the University's resources are not being directed to adequately deal with the ongoing concerns of society.

"We don't see why the resources that were once turned to building up the Diem government can't now be used to end the war," he said. Kibbey suggested that the

Anti-ROTC crowd scattered

By DAVE SHORT
State News Staff Writer

Police used tear gas to disperse a rock-throwing crowd of 150 anti-ROTC protesters in front of Demonstration Hall Friday night.

The incident occurred shortly after police were summoned to force the protesters out of the ROTC headquarters there. The anti-ROTC supporters had occupied the building since 11 a.m. Demonstration Hall usually closes at 6 p.m. but remained open two hours past closing time.

No arrests were made during the sit-in after the tear-gassing.

A fracas broke out early in the morning when anti-ROTC supporters and ROTC cadets clashed on the front steps of the building. The protesters tried to storm the locked front doors when an anti-ROTC member opened them from the inside.

The protesters later entered the building from a side door and stayed in the offices and class areas throughout the day. There were no ROTC classes scheduled in the building on Friday.

University President Clifton Wharton voiced disdain over the events.

"This was a senseless incident. The question of ROTC on the MSU campus is already being addressed in a constructive manner. This very day, the MSU student government conducted a campus-wide referendum to ascertain the views of the University community. The results will be known early next week. In addition, the Academic Council has scheduled a special meeting for May 26 to consider all issues involving ROTC," Wharton said.

Wharton indicated that, according to police reports, a number of the people involved were not University students. He said that some came from East Lansing and others communities in the state.

The anti-ROTC people regrouped after they were forced outside the building and started to heckle police. Shortly afterwards, police withdrew into the building but came out after the tear gas was fired.

The protesters gathered in the Union after the tear gas. Then, after a short meeting, they marched to President Wharton's house.

Tickets are still available for Pop Entertainment's "Open Air Celebration" Sunday.

Tickets are available at Campbell's, Marshall's and the Union.

Wharton came out and addressed the crowd for about 15 minutes.

"I was not there because I have just finished a meeting with several black students and faculty members. I happen to have a job in this University that requires me to deal with all groups in the University. If this particular group would care to meet with me, I am available," Wharton said.

Note relates 'U' sentiment on slayings

By JEANNE SADDLER
State News Associate Editor

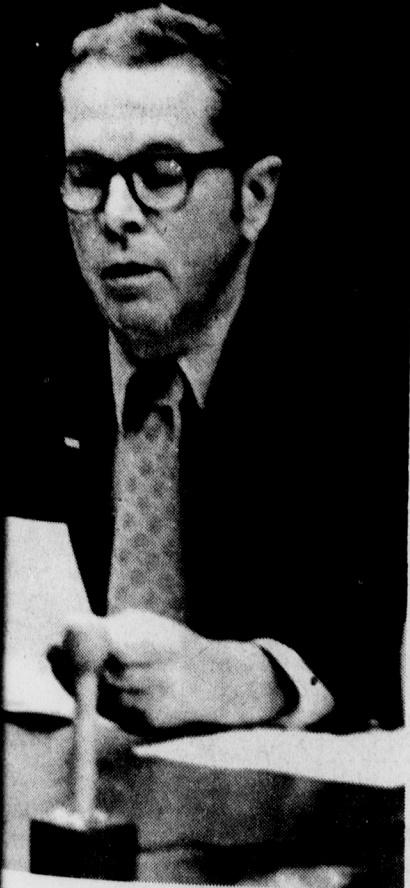

In response to the fatal shooting of two black students at Jackson State College by National Guardsmen in Jackson, Miss., last week, President Wharton sent a letter to the president of that college Saturday expressing his "deep personal sorrow" over the shootings.

Wharton said the letter was written at the request of the Black Faculty Caucus and the Black Liberation Front (BLF). BLF also issued a statement Sunday condemning the incident.

Wharton said the two black groups urged him to convey for them their "sense of horror at these shocking events." He said the letter was a reiteration of a telephone call he had with John A. Peoples Jr.,

ASMSU withholds results of vote on ROTC status

By JACQUI MILLER
State News Staff Writer

ASMSU is withholding indefinitely results of Friday's referendum on compliance with a request Friday by the Student - Faculty Judiciary. The judiciary asked that results from section one of the referendum, concerning the status of ROTC on campus be withheld.

The suit was brought before the judiciary Friday morning by Richard P. Oleksa, asst. professor of law and business administration. He was acting on behalf of two students, Hugh Lawrence, Yonkers, N.Y., senior, and Janice L. Goldman, Bellwood, Ill., freshman.

The students charged that placement of a four-column by nine-inch ROTC advertisement in the bottom left hand corner of page five in Friday's State News was unmarked and that its placement across from the editorial page would prejudice persons voting in the referendum.

The advertisement, entitled "ROTC FACTS", lists 11 facts concerning the ROTC program at MSU. Several of these facts were mentioned in the statement of Herman L. King, asst. provost, also printed in Friday's paper. That statement was issued to clarify the academic, financial and legal issues affecting ROTC.

The advertisement explained the origin of finances, salaries and buildings for the ROTC program, as well as the structure of its class curriculum, which is controlled by the University.

It stated further that "if academic credit is withdrawn from ROTC courses, University control over the content of these courses will be terminated."

"This tremendous diversity of background and academic discipline is critically important," the ad continued. "This annual influx from the college campus to the military is a necessary 'check and balance'. Without ROTC a military caste system will develop. The citizen-soldier concept will have been denied. ## EMU head blamed for violence on campus

By JIM CRATE
Editor-in-chief '69-'70

At the low-pressure eye at the center of a destructive storm, Eastern Michigan University president Harold Sponberg is the disquieting force responsible for the worst violence ever to strike that 121-year-old school.

Say student leaders and some faculty members interviewed Thursday.

Radicals and moderates alike cite the 52-year-old Sponberg as setting the stage for last week's violence on the normally peaceful Ypsilanti campus. In four days of clashes between demonstrators and police there, scores were injured, nearly 150 cars were made and property damaged in excess of $50,000 done to university buildings.

The issues and tensions go back five or six weeks, and maybe longer, an asst. editor of the campus newspaper said Thursday. Sponberg emerges in the center of every one, as compromising and unresponsive to student sentiment as least two related issues appear responsible for the high state of tension existing on campus in the weeks preceding last week's violence.

—In late March and early April several faculty members were notified of their dismissal. In at least one case, that of a lecturer in English, the dismissal came directly from Sponberg. He is reliably reported to have influenced the dismissal of the others, through their respective department heads. Only a messy, prolonged fight between faculty and administrators won the basic right of review for those dismissed.

—An abortive student strike called four weeks ago to show support for the fired faculty members resulted in the academic suspension of six student strike leaders. None have been reinstated.

Sponberg would not honor a resolution passed by the student senate calling for reinstatement of the six.

The lesson was lost on no one.

Such intransigence on the president's part is "building a very high wall of frustration between students and their administration," according to Arnold Rubin, editor-in-chief of the Eastern Echo. It cannot help but radicalize students, he contends.

To understand the full potential of that frustration, the visitor needs to look at two things. One is the power vested in, or perhaps usurped by, Sponberg. The other is the lack of any checks on that power.

"Sponberg's ultimate powers are ultimate," explains a member of the student senate. He can and does run the university by decree.

Only a primitive form of academic freedom for students and faculty exists opposite this strong, centralized authority. Even it exists through administrative benevolence.

Faculty and students may be dismissed or suspended for political activities, by direct, presidential order.

Faculty and student courts of appeal exist to review these, and other cases. But their recommendations are themselves subject to review and reversal by Sponberg.

A student senate, and student body president serve only to generate resolutions for administrative consumption. They are not involved with the enactment of legislation.

Faculty members are represented by an equally ineffectual senate, an elective body, described by a psychology professor as a "merry-go-round." They have no legislative authority.

Faculty and students alike agree that feelings of continued ineffectiveness, of being powerless against the very powerful, contribute to a high state of tension among both.

They say the administration of EMU has done nothing to relieve that tension, pointing to unanswered petitions for increased faculty and student participation in university governance.

They point out that unrelieved tension has now resulted in violent disruptions on their campus.

And they say it can happen again unless, as newly-elected student president Barry Simon says, "the administration comes out into the streets and starts talking -- and listening -- to people."

Larrowe resigns position as strike committee leader

BY ANN HODGE
State News Staff Writer

Charles Larrowe, professor of economics, resigned as chairman of the Faculty - Graduate Assistant Strike Committee Thursday because the post required a "younger, more persevering man," he said.

"Basically, I'm a loner," Larrowe said. "I have sympathy with the project, but not the energy or the patience to work with groups."

William Derman, asst. professor of anthropology, was elected chairman of the committee following Larrowe's resignation.

Larrowe said he will continue to strike until the student steering committee officially decides to return to class. He said he will remain at the disposal of striking faculty and student groups.

Larrowe's last act as chairman was to write a statement to President Wharton outlining faculty involvement in the strike.

In his statement Larrowe said the committee's meetings with Wharton and the Academic Council "reinforced students' belief that the channels don't work."

"Is it sensible to think that MSU, alone among colleges in the nation, would not have militants waiting at the wings, ready to come on stage when the moderates have shown their inability to deliver?" he asked.

Larrowe said the attitude of the central administration and the Academic Council has bred a sense of frustration that could lead to violence and destruction.

"It may be that if they had responded to the moderate strike leaders, it wouldn't have made any difference," he said. "But we'll never know. They didn't respond."

In an interview Sunday, Larrowe said he had agreed to be chairman of the faculty committee because he felt a tenured faculty member should be in the forefront.

"A non-tenured person is really taking a risk because he can be fired without knowing why," he said.

Larrowe said a tenured professor can only be punished with a pay cut and should be willing to make this sacrifice if he really supports the strike.

"The committee has done all it can do in this case because it is a student, not a faculty, strike," he said.

Larrowe said the committee should start to work for long-range educational reform within the University, beyond the demands of the strike.

The faculty group will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in 33 Union to discuss future involvement in the strike.

Police charge E.L. man in peace march accident

An East Lansing man was arrested Thursday and charged with driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor and felonious driving after his automobile swerved into a crowd of marchers near the intersection of Michigan Avenue and LaSalle Boulevard.

Lansing Deputy Chief Lawrence Murphy said the car's driver, William H. Bennett, 253 Maplewood Drive, was given a breathalyzer test. The machine indicated that Bennett was intoxicated, Murphy said.

He was arraigned at Municipal Court and released after posting bond. A hearing will be set for a future date.

Driving under intoxicating liquor is a lesser offense than felonious driving. A felonious driving charge requires a preliminary hearing. Maximum sentence of such a charge is two years in jail and a fine of $100.

According to Murphy, Bennett's car, a red Falcon, was damaged and window glass broken. Before police could reach Bennett, marchers bruised him and tore his clothes.

Two MSU students were hospitalized for injuries they sustained in the accident.

Admitted to Olin Health Center Thursday was Mary K. Goulet, Greenville sophomore. A Health Center official Sunday listed her condition as "fine."

David W. Koch, Mount Clemens junior was treated and released from St. Lawrence Hospital. After complaining of breathing difficulties, he was admitted Saturday to Olin Health Center. Health Center officials refused Sunday to issue a report on Koch's condition.

Wharton letter on Miss. killings

The following is the text of the letter sent by President Wharton to John A. Peoples, president of Jackson State College, Jackson, Miss., concerning the recent killings on that campus.

"May I once again express my deep personal sorrow at the tragic events which took place on your campus today. As I explained in my telephone call to you, the leaders of the Black Faculty Caucus and the student Black Liberation Front at MSU who met with me on Friday evening asked me to convey to you their own sense of horror at these shocking events.

"On their behalf, they also asked me to say that they stand ready to provide whatever assistance and support is within their power, not merely as an expression of brotherhood, but also as a commitment to work toward the prevention of such acts in the future.

"As university presidents, we both know that the greatest danger to peaceful protest and dissent is that of senseless violence and that, if it is to be avoided, all parties must maintain coolness and reason. And above all, we must purge from all hearts and minds - white and black - the poisons of mindless hatred and blind repression.

"Both our black faculty and Black Liberation Front are planning appropriate tributes and memorials for Mr. Phillip L. Gibbs and Mr. James E. Green, and you will be hearing from them directly. In the meantime, I did want you to know that we share your sorrow and anguish.

"As a reflection of the sentiment of the MSU community, I issued a directive Friday that our flags fly at half mast for five days."

BACKBONE EVIDENCE

Geologist finds 'missing link'

By JOHN BORGER
State News Staff Writer

A scientific discovery rated as possibly "the most unusual fossil find of our lifetime" by the MSU geologist who predicted it 36 years ago may provide a missing link between vertebrate and invertebrate animals.

Four fossils of a 200-million-year-old animal, Lochriea wellensis, were discovered in limestone in central Montana.

Although the fossils were actually found by William Melton of the University of Montana, evidence of their existence was found as early as 1934 by Harold Scott, chairman of the MSU Dept. of Geology.

Scott presented his findings at the North Central Region of the American Geological Society Conference held on campus last week.

Scott observed the animal with an electron micro-probe. He also split the four fossils lengthwise, and discovered evidence of a slightly rigid rod extending one-third of the way back from the front end of the creature.

The animal is nearly three inches long and shaped roughly like a fish. But unlike fish, which have backbones, the Lochriea has only two nerve centers at the front of its body. The uppermost is bare, while the lower nerve cord is covered with phosphorus. Phosphorus is a primary ingredient of bone structure.

This structure was vital half a billion years ago. At that time, nothing swam although the ocean bottom teemed with worms, crab-like invertebrates, and animals that lived on firmly planted stalks.

The hard mineral coating of the Lochriea's lower nerve cord provided rigidity, and allowed the nerve center to serve as a stabilizer while swimming. Prior to this, invertebrates could curl and flip to propel themselves, but without the mechanical stiffness which a backbone provides, their motion was aimless.

A backbone had to be developed to enable an animal to swim up into open water from the sea bottom.

"There was an ecological niche ready and waiting for an animal that could swim," Scott said. "The animal is fascinating because it may be the first free-swimming, fishlike animal able to search out its own food. The predecessors of Lochriea were fixed to one position on the sea floor."

Lochriea provides a link between invertebrate animals (which have no backbone) and animals which have notochords, the predecessor of the backbone.

Early fish were the first animals to possess notochords. Fossils of animals with notochords were discovered many years ago. These notochords, however, run the entire length of the animal's body.

The discovery of the Lochriea's stiffening rod bears out previous theories that if a notochord were to develop, it would be at the front of the animal and not run the length of the body, Scott said.

Scott is proposing that the newly discovered animal be placed in an entirely new major classification, the phylum Conodontochordata, because it does not fit into any of the previously established classifications. All backboneed animals are in the phylum Chordata.

The new phylum is named for conodonts, parts of the Lochriea's digestive system. Conodonts are apparently part of a filtering network used in the intestine to strain the plankton scooped up in the animal's open mouth as it swam.

Conodonts provided the first clue to the existence of the Lochriea. Conodonts are elongated, rounded objects less than a quarter of an inch long. Prior to Scott's first findings in 1934, the objects had been found in large quantities throughout the world.

Some scientists at the time called them teeth. Others said they were parts of an unknown vertebrate.

"I never called them teeth," Scott said. "Everybody else did but I didn't. I called them 'elements' and figured they were body parts of an unknown animal."

Scott said his conclusion was based on his findings of sets of four conodonts in consistent arrangements. Several times since 1934, he had searched the whole animal which he believed had four conodonts as part of its body. Soft parts of an animal may or may not be preserved, depending upon environmental conditions at the time of its death.

11 NATIONS MEET

Asians view Cambodia

JAKARTA, Indochina (AP) — The Asian and Pacific conference on Cambodia ended Sunday with a call for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Cambodia and an end to hostilities.

At the same time it set in motion an initiative to bring the Communist leadership in Indochina to the conference table for broader talks.

But the final communiqué acknowledged that the meeting of 11 nations, with Cambodia as an observer, was only a first step in efforts to end the Cambodian crisis.

Informants said South Vietnam, Laos and South Korea expressed desire for a stronger stand by the conference to preserve Cambodia's neutrality, while Indonesia, Japan and Malaysia sought to avoid any commitment that might block any broader discussions on Cambodia and Indochina as a whole.

The conference requested all sides to respect Cambodia's tattered neutrality, called for the reactivation of the International Control Commission - ICC - in Cambodia and urged the participants of the 1954 Geneva conference "and all other interested parties" to consult on holding a conference to find a solution to the crisis.

However, it also selected the foreign ministers of Indonesia, Japan and Malaysia to form a task force to consult with other nations to reactivate the ICC and arrange further meetings.

The joint communiqué, drafted after a midnight session, stressed that the conference was only "a first step in an objective endeavor to arrest the worsening situation in Cambodia."

It also held the door open to the participation of Communist China, North Vietnam and nonaligned nations like India, which refused to come to the conference, to attend a broader-based meeting in Indochina.

The significance of the conference lies in the fact that Asian and Pacific nations gathered together in an effort to tackle a grave Asian problem. Delegates were anxious to stress that while this is in line with President Nixon's doctrine on Asians shaping their own destiny, it was not because of Nixon's policy that they came here.

"There is a widespread desire among Asians to be masters of their own house," Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand said.

The commander of all U.S. troops in Cambodia reported Sunday that American forces have captured part of the field headquarters of the supreme communist command known as COSVN.

Lt. Gen. Michael S. Davison said in an interview, "We now we got part of the COSVN post office. We read one of their mail. We think we got a piece of the financial and economy section and we think we got a piece of the education training section of the COSVN headquarters."

COSVN is the objective for the American operation in Cambodia.

Cyprus police were placed on alert Sunday while hundreds of armed policemen guarded President Archbishop Makarios in the wake of unofficial reports of a second assassination attempt against him.

The Greek Cypriot daily newspaper Mahi reported that police had information that the assassination attempt would come as Makarios was traveling to Nicosia. The newspaper correctly predicted the first attempt on the president when his helicopter was shot down March 8.

Joaquin Balaguer has been elected to another term as president of the Dominican Republic on the basis of official returns Sunday from national balloting. A considerably high abstention rate seems to indicate opposition to his candidacy.

About 1.5 million Dominicans are eligible to vote, but preliminary returns have counted only a million ballots.

In Belfast, Northern Ireland, Bernadette Devlin announced Sunday she will defend her House of Commons seat in the forthcoming election, even from behind bars.

While appealing a six-month jail sentence for her part in the last August rioting in Londonderry, she said, "I have already made plans to direct my campaign from prison if necessary."

Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl, a seven-man crew and a monkey sailed out into the Atlantic Ocean Sunday on an eight-ton bundle of straw in a second attempt to prove that the ancient Egyptians were capable of sailing to the new world.

Ra II was towed out of Safi, Morocco, the same embarkation point of Heyerdahl's first expedition on Ra.

National News

Two Senate war critics said Sunday that President Nixon could conceivably use the same arguments for backing Russia or Red China as he did for sending U.S. troops into Cambodia.

This theory that there is an inherent power in the commander-in-chief to do what he pleases is absolutely unconstitutional in my view," Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said.

In a separate speech Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said that by attacking the communist sanctuary in Cambodia, the president could continue to attack sanctuaries in Laos, North Vietnam and China.

A recent survey by the President's Office of Emergency Preparedness has shown that a recurrence of the 1965 northeast power blackout will possibly hit New York City, Chicago, St. Louis and Minneapolis-St. Paul this summer.

The federal report said "the entire eastern seaboard, with the exception of Florida and New England, will face a tight power capacity problem even if normal summer temperatures prevail, fuel supplies are normal and all of the system capacity performs as scheduled." Reaction among the power companies in the indicated areas ranges from prediction of "brownouts" to simply, "it can't happen here."

Michigan News

David B. DeMaat, 37, of Grand Rapids was under arrest on bank robbery charges because of a woman bank teller who wants to help cops and doesn't mind being involved.

DeMaat was apprehended after a high-speed chase involving a holdup at the Michigan National Bank in Grand Rapids.

The bandit obtained the money from Mrs. Beatrice Vanhuizen in her teller's cage after handing her a note that he had a gun and it was a holdup. The bank burglar was triggered after he left the building with the money.

Another bank teller, Wanda Marie Glenn, 25, who recently applied to join Check Mate, a citizens' organization designed to assist policemen, then got into a car.

He chased him down the street and ran through a parking lot where he got into his car, a brown Volkswagen. Miss Glenn got the car license number and a man in the parking lot phoned police, resulting in the arrest.

Trustees withhold GM proxies

By BARBARA PARNES
Campus Editor

The Board of Trustees Friday decided not to vote the proxies for the University's nearly 6,000 shares of General Motors Corp. (GM) stock.

The board had requested in April that a committee be formed to investigate the questions on the GM proxy statement, including two proposals from consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

Roger Wilkinson, vice president for business and finance, said the committee, which held an open hearing last month, recommended support for the establishment of a GM Commission on Corporate Responsibility.

The committee made no recommendation on Nader's proposal to expand the GM board of directors to include three members in the public interest, Wilkinson said.

Warren Huff, D-Plymouth, made a motion to reject the committee's recommendation on the Commission on Corporate Responsibility. Huff's motion asked the board to recommend voting MSU's stock with the GM management, which opposes Nader's proposals.

Huff said he favors regulation of large corporations like GM by the "arms of government," rather than by individual advisory commissions.

Board chairman Don Stevens, D-Okemos, said he opposed Huff's motion because GM, if not forced to appoint its own regulatory board, would continue to use its millions in profits to oppose federal government regulation of large corporations.

Huff's motion failed by a vote of three to four. Trustee Kenneth Thompson, R-Grand Rapids, left the meeting prior to the voting.

Trustee Frank Hartman, D-Flint, introduced a motion to support the committee's recommendations. However, the motion was tabled when trustee Frank Merriman, R-DeKerville, said Thompson would not have supported Hartman's motion.

Blanche Martin, D-East Lansing; Clair White, D-Bay City and Stevens opposed tabling Hartman's resolution.

The Ann Arbor Trust Co., the voting agent for MSU's stock, will be instructed not to submit the University's GM proxies. The proxies must be returned prior to the annual stockholder's meeting at the end of May.

The board also heard a report from David Neuendorff, Toledo, Ohio, junior and chairman of the Committee on Student Tuition (COST), advocating the adoption of tuition contracts by the university.

"The University should sign a tuition and fees contract with each incoming individual, specifying the tuition and fees which that individual will be obliged to pay the University for attending the next four years," the COST proposal states.

Although the board listened to Neuendorff's proposal, no action or promise of action was made by the trustees.

In other action, the trustees adopted a memorial resolution expressing sorrow over the death of UAW leader Walter P. Reuther and his wife.

The board also approved the appointments of two department chairmen Friday.

Edward M. Eisenstein, was named chairman of the Dept. of Biophysics. Eisenstein, associate professor, has been acting chairman of the department since Nov. 10, 1968, following the death of the former chairman, Leroy G. Augenstein.

Clair E. Liedholm, an economic development specialist, was named chairman of the Dept. of Economics. Liedholm, 29, is one of the youngest men appointed to head an MSU department in recent years.

Command officials report N. Viet setbacks heavy

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodian forces recaptured Kompong Cham Sunday and the allies launched a new thrust into southern Cambodia. At the same time, a U.S. commander reported that American forces had seized part of the Communist command's supreme headquarters (COSVN) one of the main aims of the allied incursions.

Lt. Gen. Michael S. Davison, commander of all U.S. troops in Cambodia, said that at least part of COSVN was uncovered May 11-13 by U.S. forces about 10 miles inside Cambodia.

Other officials tallied up the score after the first two weeks of the allied campaign in Cambodia and concluded the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have suffered heavy setbacks.

Topping the battle action Sunday, a combined air and ground assault put the Cambodians back into full control of Kompong Cham, Cambodia's third largest city on the Mekong River. Enemy troops withdrew at midmorning under fire of the advancing Cambodian army and bombing and strafing runs by T28 fighter-bombers of the Cambodian air force.

The enemy attempted a counterattack in the afternoon, but the drive was broken quickly by the Cambodian warplanes.

As the Cambodian assault unfolded, South Vietnamese skyraiders attacked troops wrongly believed to be North Vietnamese regulars, killing at least 10 Cambodian soldiers.

Across the Mekong River three Cambodian army companies clung to positions along the river bank after a sharp enemy attack Sunday morning.

The Cambodians suffered a setback at Stung Treng, about 110 miles up the Mekong River from Kompong Cham. There, military officials in Cambodia reported, Viet Cong forces overran the Cambodian defenders, giving the enemy control of the eastern bank of the Mekong with the exception of a few pockets in the northern and southern parts of Cambodia.

The South Vietnamese Defense Ministry announced the drive was aimed at destroying the North Vietnamese 1st Division headquarters zone in Cambodia's Takeo Province.

The allied command said that a 24-hour allied cease-fire marking Buddha's birthday would apply only to South Vietnam, and that operations inside Cambodia along the 600-mile Vietnamese border would continue.

By midafternoon Sunday there had been no response from the Viet Cong, which declared a 48-hour cease-fire for Buddha's birthday last year.

With the newly announced offensive, 25,000 South Vietnamese and 10,000 American troops are now attacking a dozen North Vietnamese military bases ranging from northeastern Cambodia southward to within 10 miles of the Gulf of Siam.

Only one known North Vietnamese sanctuary just inside Cambodia remains untouched. It is in the southern central highlands near the U.S. Special Forces camp of Bu Prang and Duc Lap, about 120 miles northeast of Saigon.

In another development, allied commands announced that 7,556 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops have been killed in the operations inside Cambodia.

A U.S. Command announced Sunday put total American losses in Cambodia at 142 killed and 561 wounded.

Students seek policy change in campaigning

The MSU chapter of the Movement to Elect a New Congress will meet at 8 p.m. today in room 35 of the Union. The recently formed movement is working to change U.S. policy by changing the composition of Congress.

Student canvassers are organizing to help antiwar candidates throughout the country. Students are already canvassing in congressional campaigns in Philadelphia and New Jersey.

"Using as criteria the candidates' stands on the Indo Chinese war, civil rights, poverty, and defense spending, the New Congress organizers will select congressional races, especially in primaries, in which student support can make a difference," John Collins, asst. professor of political science, said.

The movement grew out of a "student-faculty-administration strike" starting the evening of President Nixon's address on Cambodia on April 30, Collins said.

The MSU chapter was established on May 12 after consultation with a representative from Princeton University, the organizational base and clearing house for research and funds.

"Some people say I was crazy to spend more than $8000 for our Mercedes-Benz. But when my wife and kids are out there-by themselves-on a day like today, that car is the best investment I ever made!"

Car & Driver magazine says the Mercedes-Benz line "represents the present pinnacle in safe car engineering." Take your family for a test drive today.

At last: a chance to end Southeast Asian War

Within a month Congress will finally have to take a stand on the Indochina war. Senators George McGovern, D-S.D., and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., have been joined by 19 other senators as sponsors of Amendment No. 609 to the Military Procurement Authorization. The purpose of this amendment is to end the war in Southeast Asia.

The amendment prohibits the further expenditure of funds in Vietnam for the purpose of military conflict after December, 1970, unless Congress declares war. After that date funds may only be expended for the withdrawal of troops, termination of U.S. military operations, assistance to South Vietnam only as authorized by Congress, exchange of prisoners, and arrangement for asylum of Vietnamese who may be endangered by U.S. withdrawal.

Furthermore after Dec. 31, 1970, no military advisors will be sent to Laos. Withdrawal of all U.S. military personnel will be completed by June 30, 1971.

The Amendment to End the War is a more inclusive amendment than the Cooper - Church amendment to terminate all funds for Cambodia by June 30, and while it does not preclude the Cooper - Church amendment, it also terminates our Cambodian involvement 30 days after passage.

This amendment finally gives Congress a chance to do something about the war besides acting as its critic. The Constitution gives Congress control over the granting or withholding of funds. This includes military appropriations. Congress is also getting a chance to regain the power of making war and peace, a power it has thrown away in recent years to the executive branch. Congress has been indirectly responsible for deaths in Southeast Asia by not previously taking a stand against the President. After the vote on the McGovern - Hatfield amendment, Congress at last assumes some responsibility for the war.

When the amendment comes up for a vote - tentatively within 30 days - 100 senators become just as responsible as the President for the killing in Indochina. The war will no longer be Nixon's war if the amendment fails; it will be America's war.

Congress has a moral responsibility to end the war. Vietnamization means indefinite American intervention in Indochina. If Congress does not do something, this country will be stuck with the war through Inauguration Day, 1973, perhaps beyond. All the rhetoric of senators verbally against the war becomes empty if their talk is not backed up by a vote for the amendment.

Every senator will within the next 30 days go on record as being either for or against the war in Indochina. We urge them to pass the McGovern - Hatfield amendment. If they do not, the public will still have been officially informed as to where their senator stands on the war. Those senators up for re-election this year will have to defend their vote in November. The anti-war movement will at least know who is really on their side.

Granted, it is the responsibility of the President to command our armed forces, but it is Congress' task to determine when those forces are to be used. Congress probably had no idea that Johnson was going to employ the Gulf of Tonkin resolution in the manner he did. They now have a chance to regain their power to declare war.

Defeat of the amendment means many more years of war, a war in which there will never be a winner - just losers.

How the antiwar vote stands at the moment

The following senators are co-sponsors of the McGovern - Hatfield amendment: Birch Bayh, D-Ind.; Frank Church, D-Idaho; Alan Cranston, D-Cal.; Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo.; Charles Goodell, R-N.Y.; Mike Gravel, D-Alaska; Philip Hart, D-Mich.; Fred Harris, R-Okla.; Vance Hartke, D-Ind.; Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.; Harold Hughes, D-Iowa; Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii; Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn.; George McGovern, D-S.D.; Lee Metcalf, D-Mont.; Walter Mondale, R-Minn.; Edmund Muskie, D-Maine; Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.; Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.; Stephen Young, D-Ohio.

We urge you to write to those senators that are still uncommitted, telling them what you think about the McGovern - Hatfield amendment to end the war now. It will take an all-out effort on the part of all Americans against the war to pass this amendment.

TRB FROM WASHINGTON

Reflections from the Ellipse

There was this TV truck and under it this girl and a dog; and at least there was shade down there so I crawled under it and felt all alone. There was nobody around except maybe 100,000 demonstrators and it was quiet down there, except for the loudspeaker and the harangues; and the grass was thick (with a few dandelions) and the dog seemed friendly but needed water. The girl was traveling with a man with strawberry blond beard and whiskers who looked like Buffalo Bill. I told her it was nice to be traveling with Buffalo Bill and she said yes, she had picked him up at the riot at New Haven that turned out not to be a riot; and she traveled a lot, mostly by herself. She seemed artless and naive and said her mother was dead but that she had a younger brother at Williams who gave her advice, and that she hitch-hiked along around the country a lot but less so since she was raped one time in Arkansas.

She said it fairly casually and I thought I ought to give her advice, she seemed so innocent; and then I thought, what - the hell, maybe she isn't so innocent, and I can't go around giving fatherly advice and, anyway, the dog needed water. She said the dog was a mixture of shepherd and husky and I said that is a hard kind of dog to get acquainted with but this one was young and friendly, although panting and excited with all those legs. You couldn't see the bodies or the people, but some were sandaled and some barefoot, and you kind of got a feeling what they were like just by seeing them pass. The dog didn't belong to her, she said, but to a man with purple pants. She crawled out after a while, and turned the dog over to me.

As I lay there I realized that it was a kind of religious experience. They were charged with altruism and idealism and what - not. They didn't call it God, but they were looking for something desperately; they knew something had to be done and didn't know what it was and would have given their lives for it. They stayed on even though the performance was boring and the speeches terrible. It was like one of those early Methodist meetings in pastures you read about, only here it was the Ellipse behind the White House.

I don't know. Lying there under the truck it seemed I had to be honest. It seemed to me this war from the first was an awful mistake. We can't police Asia. I think we have lost the war already. If the nation can't accept it, it is just too bad. Other big nations have lost wars. So what? The blame belongs to a lot of people, but that isn't the point.

The moratorium crowd, October 15, was a kind of picnic. Not this; it had begun to discover something. There are eight million college students in this country, they are potentially the biggest political force there is. Up on the platform outside, there was a lot of added talk from speakers about a nationwide "strike". Nonsense. These kids around me were just beginning to sense that if they try they can stop the war; they can put on shoes and go out and elect anti-war congressmen. They can do it. They have the greatest political asset, their enthusiasm. Congress knows it, and the cabinet knows it, and the cabinet knows it, and even the president has snapped back reality and knows it.

Mr. Nixon will tell the nation about Cambodia after it is over, and as I sat I began writing his speech for him.

"Good evening, my fellow Americans, will begin). The action in Cambodia achieved its purpose much faster than expected and we have won several megatons of rice and several light years of ammunition, and, vastly more important, six to eight months of valuable time. Just peace is now in sight. By the way, another census rolls around the South Vietnamese will be able to be alone.

"The easy political course would be to ignore the small minority that did not like me. However, this is an administration. Any member of my cabinet can see me any time provided he applies months in advance. We must bear with the words of doubt and defeat which Lincoln never had to endure. Let us forget them! We should lower our voices and come together, and let the National Guard handle troublemakers.

"Let us shed a tear for the four students at Kent State University who learned the late that when dissent turns to violence invites tragedy. Let us not betray our conscript soldiers in Southeast Asia who stand tall beside those bums who have been drafted yet.

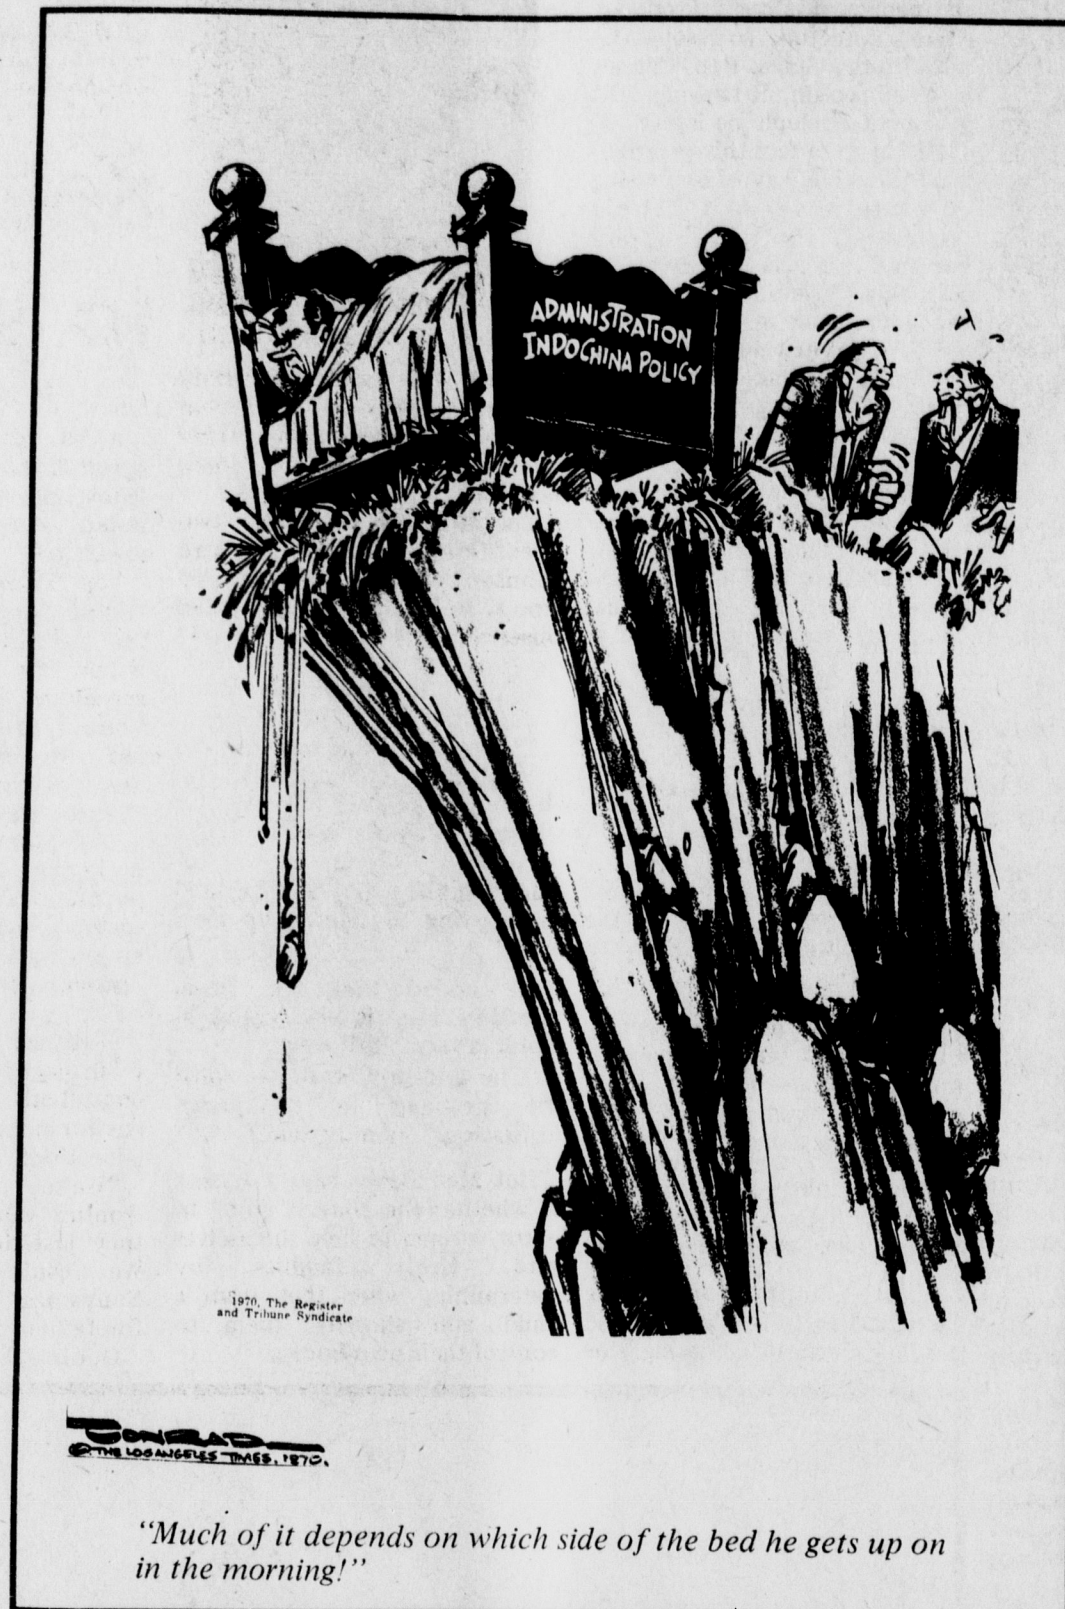

"In order that our withdrawing soldiers may not be jeopardized I have a surprise for you; I have ordered a force of allied troops, accompanied by bombing, to enter the territory of Laos and Thailand, whose neutrality we are scrupulously observing.

"To protect our credibility in Moscow and Peking it is vitally important at the crucial juncture that our government be not weakened by critical voices. When going gets tough keep the rhetoric cool.

"My fellow Americans, if this makes a one-term president, so be it; that better than seeing America reduced to second rate power which defeat in 1970 would assuredly involve. And I ask support in this, not for my own sake but for your brave sons, fighting half way round the world to redeem my promises."

OUR READERS' MIND

Murder nothing new for blacks

To the Editor:

As a friend once put it - naturally my responses to any thing white people do is colored, by virtue of the fact that I'm black.

So, what's the deal? Why isn't my black face seen in the student picket lines and my black hand wrapped around a sign saying - shut down the University?

Obviously you whites don't realize what you did when you included "Free Bobby Seale" in your list of demands for justifying a student strike.

My first reaction to "Free Bobby" was - no sss...! What are you whites trying to pull now?

It has been suggested to me by a white friend that perhaps this particular demand is an honest attempt to include another shortcoming of Tricky Dick's administration... not just Vietnam, Cambodia, the killing of the Kent State students, ROTC, but also to protest oppression of the black man.

Why just free Bobby Seale? How many whites even know who Bobby Seale is or only went to find out who he was after reading his name on a list of strike demands?

"But what about your black brothers fighting and dying in Vietnam and now Cambodia?" I've been asked. "What about all those Black students in our nation's colleges and universities? What about the potential threat to them?"

Is this the rationale behind the Free Bobby bit? Wow! Look at my head spin! Listen to my heart beat faster! Look at the tears that I won't let come! Potential threat! What a laugh! There is no such thing as a potential threat to a black man in our great society... it's for real.

Anyway, what can closing down the university do for me except knock the hell out of me economically for I, as a black man, am the one who can least afford to come back when it reopens.

What if... yes what if, by some strange occurrence, Mr. Nixon saw the light? What if he freed Bobby, no more National Guard on any campus, no more ROTC, no more war? Then, the white student's battle is won. He can sit back and drink his beer, get his tan and enjoy the fruits of his society.

Yea! Bring all the brothers home... to what? a hardy "Welcome back you brave black soldiers," from this society? Not hardly my friends. Would you believe "Here comes the niggers," now that sounds a little more like it (what you say!).

"OK - we won't shoot any more students... blacks and Negroes included (but don't worry, they can't be students for ever)."

A white boy got up in one of my classes and exclaimed, "Oh my God... they're shooting students now... I'm scared... how could they do it."

Well, that's a simple one to answer. They're doing it the same way they've been doing it to blacks for hundreds of years.

He's scared! The Great White Father is shooting his own white children... just think what he would do to me and my little ole dark self!

"But Chuck, isn't this more reason why you should support our cause?"

HELL NO!

Freeing Bobby Seale isn't going to help anybody but Bobby Seale and as I mentioned earlier, I won't be a student ever.

Where were you, my white strikers? peace and justice, when they cut that black man's genitals off in the South a couple years ago - when they bombed those little black girls in that little black church when they were murdering those Panthers? Need I go on? Why didn't you want to shut down the university then? Where were you then? Where will you be after your demands are met?

I'll sign my name for your support and I'll sympathize with your selfish aims but I'll never strike for hypocrisy!

Unfair unemployment

To The Editor:

A subject which has been often ignored on campus is student employment. A totalitarian rule exists between the supervisors and the MSU Local 1585 over the part-time student help that it employs. I would like to cite just one example of this that took place at MSU Stores on Tuesday, May 12, 1970.

The student strike movement bought its pressure to the driveway of the Stores Bldg. on Harrison Road. The students picketed with signs telling of the disapproval with the war and inflation throughout the nation. As a result many truck drivers listened to their strikers' demands and turned away without making their deliveries.

At approximately 11:45 a.m. all students help working the 8 a.m. till noon shift were told that they were "laid off indefinitely" due to the lack of business that was coming in. This event took place without any advance notice to the student helpers.

I question the legitimacy of this "lack of business" because when the Teamsters wildcat strike was in full force business was almost at a standstill, yet students were allowed to work their usual amount of hours.

A dejected group of students left MSU Stores at noon last Tuesday wondering how they were going to help support their family, or pay tuition, or keep up their rent payments. Are students now looking upon as animals who merit no respect even the slightest of common courtesy?

There must be a limit to the University regulation of one's complete academic and financial means.

TO RESOLVE WAR

Give Nixon time, rep. says

CAROL CORRIERE
State News Staff Writer

A student strike is unnecessary and people should give President Nixon more time to resolve the war, United States Rep. Charles E. Chamberlain, R-Lansing, said in a recent telephone interview.

"If students feel this (a strike) is an effective way of expressing themselves, it's their prerogative," he said. "I don't feel that it is necessary in so far as making grievances known to the federal government."

The government is very mindful of the controversial nature of the issue in Vietnam, Chamberlain said. The strike is not necessary because we are already aware, he said.

"I don't know of anyone who isn't concerned," he added. Chamberlain said his mail was running four to one against Nixon's actions in Cambodia.

CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

However, he said he would reserve decision on what position to take on an antiwar bill until it reaches the House floor.

The American people gave two presidents (Kennedy and Johnson) eight years to build up troops in Vietnam, Chamberlain observed.

"It seems reasonable to me that if two presidents had eight years it's not unreasonable to give our President eight weeks," he said.

"He's (Nixon) made good on it — he's bringing people home," Chamberlain said. "He's kept his word and he's only asking for eight weeks."

Chamberlain said that he would continue to support Nixon on a "limited" basis.

Asked about the presence of National Guard troops on campuses, he said, "It's very important that we maintain some semblance of order."

If it becomes necessary, governors have the power to call out the Guard. This is the purpose of the Guard, he said.

"I think federal troops are a last resort," Chamberlain added.

Return to values essential to save earth, expert says

By JULIE CLARKE

A return to basic values is essential for saving the world from man, Leonard Stuttman, noted environmentalist, said recently.

The former president of the Nature Way Assn. emphasized the need for changing values within the next 10 years in a speech co-sponsored by the Council on Adoptable Children and the Planned Parenthood Assn. at the First Presbyterian Church, Lansing.

"Adoption has a definite place in helping control the world's population," he said. "The earth's conditions are changing at jet pace and we must ask ourselves where our priorities lie."

Stuttman is currently a communication media consultant in the field of environmental quality and education.

"We're still operating on frontier values," he said, "and they just don't work anymore. We can't afford to Paul Bunyanize the country as our forefathers did."

Quoting Pogo, the comic strip character, he said: "Wes has met the enemy, and des is us."

"The symbol for progress in the early 1940s was a smokestack with smoke billowing out. No company would dare be represented like this today," he observed.

Stuttman said that if things have changed this much in 25 years, they will change even more rapidly in the next 25 years.

He predicted "headlines of the future" involving allocation of drinking water, children bearing licenses, sterilization clinics and day-long examinations to obtain a hunting license.

Stuttman said every one of these conditions already exists somewhere in the world.

He reported that every eight seconds an American child is born who will use 56 million gallons of water, 10,000 pounds of meat and 28,000 pounds of milk and cream in his lifetime.

These huge resource demands of Americans require between 40 percent and 50 percent of the earth's total production, Stuttman said.

"I am optimistic only on the basis that we're going to have a vast value shift in our society soon," Stuttman said.

'Minority' issue prompts McKee Report vote delay

By SHIRLEY JOHNSON
State News Staff Writer

Following a debate over the McKee Report at the American Assn. of University Professors (AAUP) meeting, a motion was passed requesting the Academic Council to wait for two weeks following final passage of the report before placing it on the Academic Senate's agenda.

The AAUP felt that the faculty needed a chance to review the report after Charles C. Killingsworth, professor of labor and industrial relations, pointed out that the provisions for minority representation by students were "on shaky footing as far as the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was concerned."

Killingsworth said that after consultation with several noted legal authorities, including Leland W. Carr, University attorney, the closest legal interpretation of the minority representation dealt with the 14th Amendment to the Constitution, which was "irrelevant to the question."

While Killingsworth concentrated on specific points within the McKee report he claimed were disturbing to the faculty, James B. McKee, professor of sociology, spoke of the basic principles in the report.

McKee said the report was developed as a response to the feelings within the faculty that it was time for students to become involved in University governance.

The members of the committee which wrote the report felt that if students were to be represented they should not only have a voice to express opinions but should also be given a vote, he said.

Student representation would be a sizable minority acceptable to both faculty and students, McKee said.

Killingsworth said that while he supported the same objectives as McKee, he felt that the provisions by which students were to be represented were of a "dubious" value.

After a close observation of the report, it was "alarming and jolting what he found in the fine print," Killingsworth said.

If the report were passed by the Academic Senate, Killingsworth stated, no organization which could be identified as faculty government would exist.

"The faculty would lack the power as a group to prevent drastic redefinitions of faculty rights," he continued.

Killingsworth noted that the provision for a faculty and student affairs committee has a 13-6 student majority.

This committee has the power to initiate and review all amendments and proposals to the Academic Freedom Report, he said.

Without approval by this committee, no changes in the Freedom Report can be accomplished, Killingsworth added.

"No other committee has such strong and conclusive powers. Once the Academic Council has approved a resolution from this committee, the Senate is by-passed and the resolution goes into effect," Killingsworth continued.

McKee accused Killingsworth of "sliding into the politics of fear," basing his arguments on the belief that students would always vote in a block with the faculty dividing their vote on an issue and giving the students power.

McKee said student representation on the Academic Council is designed so that every college is represented, making a wide variety of student opinions available.

Killingsworth's fundamental error is the assumption that students are of a "unified mind and will act in a unified manner," McKee said.

GM faces group backed by Nader

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. faces off formally this week against a Ralph Nader-backed group engaged in an effort "to make GM responsible" through a proxy fight.

GM's advantage will be proved on Friday when stockholders are expected to vote over-whelmingly against two proposals pushed by the Washington-based group which calls itself Campaign GM. There are 1.35 million stockholders eligible to vote more than 285 million shares.

But Philip Moore, 27-year-old executive director of the campaign, claims a public opinion victory, and says the extent of the group's influence won't be known for months.

The battle is being waged by a group of young Washington lawyers, associated with Nader, who formed Campaign GM as an offshoot of their broader Project on Corporate Responsibility. The Project is sparring with other firms over the public responsibility issue, but primarily through litigation.

The GM encounter is the Project's first proxy fight. Campaign GM would place two of its nine proposals on the firm's annual meeting agenda.

Without this statement, the firm's proposals would be left without a platform. Campaign GM would have attempted to raise issues at an annual meeting could have been legally squelched by Chairman James M. Rodegaster.

But discussion of the proposals to add three directors and establish a committee to study corporate responsibility to the public will be mandated. This, says Moore, is an important gain.

Moore says he hopes to focus specific issues at the meeting. GM's responsibility in safety, air pollution, product reliability, mass transportation and "the social welfare of the nation."

Moore and his colleagues they will be pleasantly surprised if they received as much as 5 or 6 per cent, happy with 5 or 6 per cent.

Moore conceded he was disappointed by the response from universities, mutual funds, banks and other institutions which the corporation acknowledged — control as 12 per cent of the firm's stock.

GM Board Chairman Rodegaster has stated that the real goal of Campaign GM is an "attack against the entire corporate system of management."

Group schedules education festival

A group known as the Students and Faculty Concerned for Humanity in Education is sponsoring a "Festival of Education" Saturday, John Noling, Muskegon senior, announced.

The day-long festival called "Different Ways for Different Days" will include "rap sessions" and arts and crafts exhibits. The festival will take place in Erickson Hall, with some activities held outside in the surrounding area.

Rap sessions will on such topics as encounter groups, drugs and education, urban minority education and the open classroom.

"We have a lot of faculty behind us who are resource people," Noling said. "We have 200 people who have committed themselves to working on the festival and coming to it."

The idea for the MSU festival came about after a recent trip made to a Toronto festival of educational alternatives, Noling said. The NSU festival will be modeled after the Toronto conference.

Literature on new approaches to education will be available at the festival.

WMSB to air views on strike

Campus television WMSB's "Assignment 10" will show a cross section of University and community viewpoints concerning the strike issues at 10:20 a.m. and 3 p.m. today on closed circuit channel 4.

STUDENT ACTION

Pittenger bid opposed

A group of MSU students have formed a "Students Against Pittenger" committee in opposition to Rep. Philip O. Pittenger's bid for Lansing's state senate seat.

Rep. Pittenger, one of three candidates campaigning for Republican Sen. Harold W. Hungerford's seat, last week introduced a resolution in the Michigan Legislature calling for the resignation of the presidents of Michigan's three major universities.

Pittenger's resolution, introduced into the House on May 7, accused the presidents of MSU, Wayne State University and the University of Michigan of "failing miserably, neglecting to enforce the laws and even sympathizing with the law violators."

Douglas Bache, Livonia freshman and committee chairman of the group, called Pittenger's resolution "irresponsible and irrational."

"We are not 'antigovernment destroyers' or students who follow campus radicals," Bache said, "but we are students concerned about our University and its good name."

"This University needs a friend in the state Senate, not an enemy," he said. "We need an intelligent senator to give voice to its needs and concerns, not a demagogue who creates greater confusion in the public's mind about the serious problems on campus."

In a statement last week, Gov. Milliken was highly critical of Pittenger's resolution.

"I think it's asinine and irresponsible," the governor said. Bache said the committee will concentrate its activities in the East Lansing and Meridian Township area for the rest of spring term.

The group plans to distribute literature concerning Pittenger's resolution and to picket his campaign headquarters in Lansing.

Students interested in joining the group are asked to call Bache at 353-8441 or Jeff Crause at 353-8377. The group's office is located in 335 Student Services Bldg., 355-8266, extension 34.

Symposium program set for African Freedom Day

ASMSU offers Open air festival

By JACQUI MILLER
State News Staff Writer

happening is coming to MSU. That is, the Open Air Celebration Sunday is planned as an opportunity for people to go to music and do just about anything else they feel like.

The Open Air Celebration is the first such concert on a college campus and is the long sought-after "brain child" of ASMSU. Previously, pop concerts were not making enough money to support a project of this proportion.

The concert will be a day-long celebration of music by the person Airplane; Chicago; Delaney, Bonnie and Friends; John McVie; the Small Faces with Rod Stewart, and the Rotary Connection.

Tickets are still on sale for $5 at the Union, Marshall Music and Apple's. The concert committee also has sent tickets to the following areas. Mail-order sales have also begun and advertisements have been sent to most central Michigan college campuses.

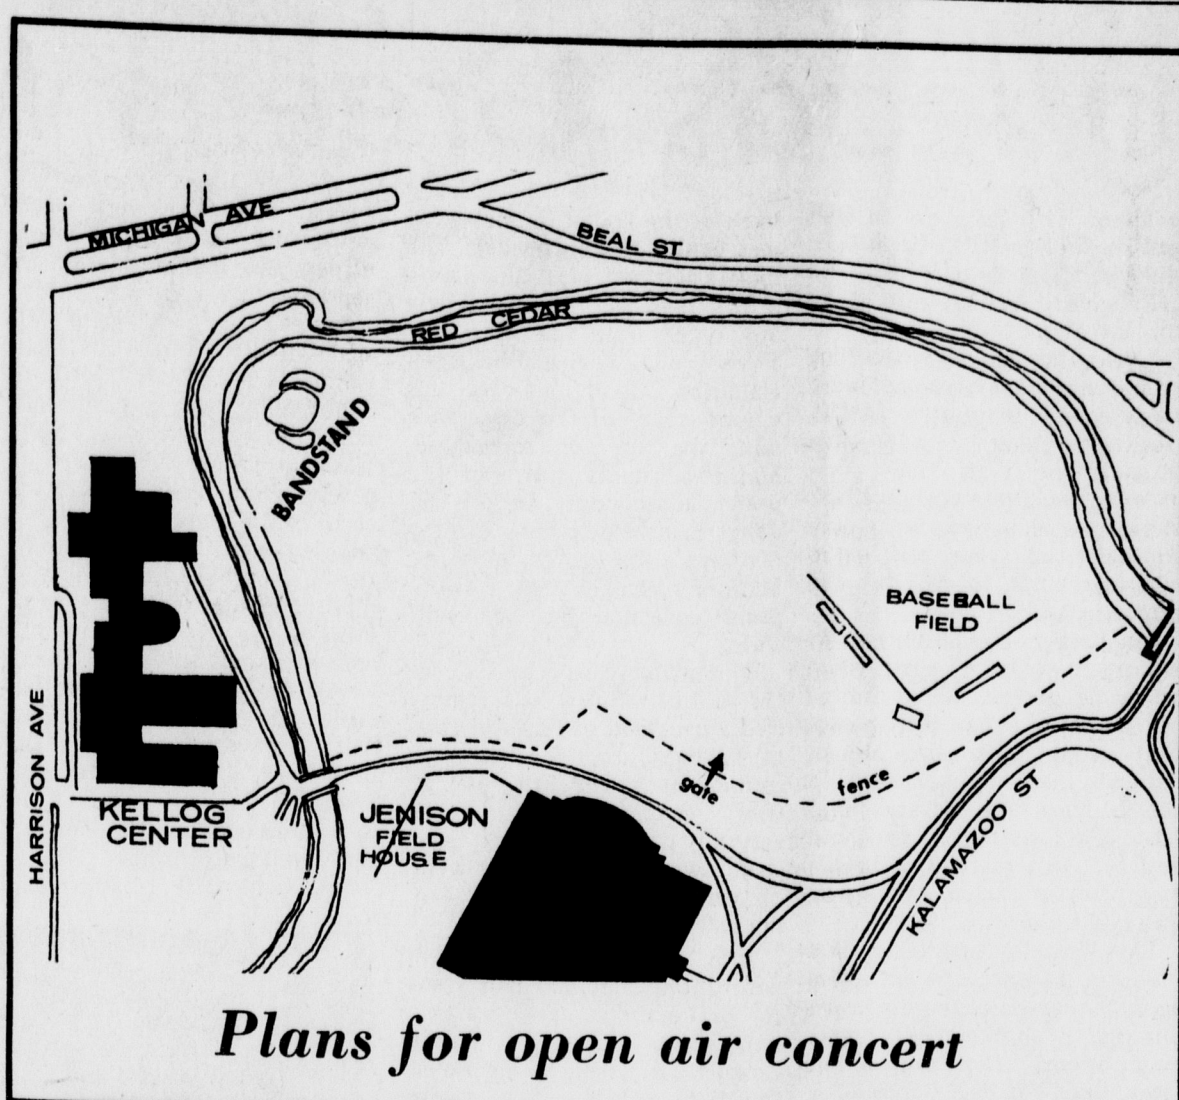

Originally, the concert was planned for the stadium but was changed to the larger Old College Field. Although the groups will be playing outside, hearing and seeing them will be difficult and the concert area itself. The stage will consist of a 40 by 100 foot bandshell opening onto the field. The sound system will be directed toward this area.

Old College Field is surrounded on three sides by the Red Cedar and on the fourth side by a fence. Students will be seated around the perimeter to insure that the audience will be able to enjoy the concert without outside interference. Tarps may be used on portions of the fence closest to the stage.

Two hundred student auxiliaries from the New Community Centered personal assistance within the concert area. Because persons refused payment, ASMSU Pop Entertainment will donate $1,000 to the New Community for use as legal service fees. Campus police will assist in directing traffic and similar duties.

First aid facilities, lost and found booths, toilet areas and water fountains will be provided within the concert area. Concession stands within the area will be managed by Crossroads Cafeteria. Main or shine, gates will open to ticketholders at 9 a.m. Sunday morning. Each of the six groups will play for about one hour with the exception of the Jefferson Airplane, which will end the concert with an hour and a half performance.

The music of the day promises to be a blend and assortment of rock, blues, folk and soul.

CREWMEN BEATEN

Pueblo exploit depicted

By JIM SHELDON
State News Staff Writer

Lee Hayes, chief radio man for the U.S. Pueblo, said "faith in God was the only thing" that sustained the 83 crewmen captured by North Koreans in 1968.

Hayes, an admitted member of the John Birch Society, spoke Friday at the Erickson Kiva in the first of the Great Issues spring lecture series.

He was discharged from the Navy on Aug. 14, 1969, after six years active duty.

North Koreans captured the Pueblo in January, 1968, and charged the intelligence ship violated the 12-mile limit off Korean shores. Crewmen were released Dec. 23, 1968, after an 11-month imprisonment.

"I don't think you people realize how bitterly these people hate Americans," Hayes said. "I would like you to know just what Communists are like."

He said the North Koreans were "antireligion" and told crewmen that "God didn't exist because the Russians had shot him down." One man died "singing hymns," he added.

A man would be beaten until he apologized for some "concocted crime" and asked to be forgiven, Hayes said. He told the audience that terror was something he could not put into words.

"I do not hate Communists," he observed, "but I do despise what they are doing to millions and millions of people enslaved beneath them and the way they are duping other people."

"Americans should understand that there are thousands of American prisoners still held in prisons abroad," Hayes observed. "These men need our prayers and help."

Hayes claimed his parents had written him 25 letters which he never received in the prison camp. The Communists would destroy letters from home and tell the men that Americans cared "more about sports than the Pueblo crew," Hayes said.

He said these things began to seem true to crew members. He said he believed the Pueblo was captured to "embarrass the United States" and to show American she wasn't the greatest naval power.

The Pueblo's closest approach to the Korean mainland was 13.5 miles, Hayes said. The ship was 15 miles off shore the day before the attack, he continued.

Authorities feared a nuclear take over of South Korea by the North, and the Pueblo was on a "routine naval mission" to learn North Korea's intentions, Hayes said. He compared his ship's actions to "Soviet trawlers" around the United States.

When enemy ships approached, the Pueblo was not alarmed, he said. Armed with two .50 caliber machine guns, covered at the time, the ship was a "light supply ship" and was not prepared to fight, he said.

Hayes said the Pueblo commander Lloyd Bucher decided to destroy classified data instead of fighting. Bucher then ordered evasive action taken to get the records destroyed and to wait for help which was promised but never came, Hayes said.

"Many people have the wrong idea about the amount of classified information seized," Hayes explained. "Most of the classified papers were destroyed from the highest classification down. The Communists did receive some classified information. We did the best we could with what we had."

Hayes said the Pueblo was "seized" and Bucher did not allow the Communists to take it. The last two words heard on the radio were "Good luck," he said.

Mushroom cult precursor of religion, author claims

LONDON (AP) -- A leading British philologist says the Jewish and Christian religions grew from a drug-taking cult in the Near East worshipped the "sacred mushroom."

John Marco Allegro, controversial lecturer on the Old Testament at Manchester University, makes his claim in a new book released today -- "The Sacred Mushroom and The Cross."

Moses, Abraham, Jesus -- none of these men ever existed, contends Allegro.

His book seems to establish the mushroom cult as the true, though veiled, precursor of Christianity and Judaism.

Allegro, one of a team of scholars who studied the Dead Sea Scrolls, contends that many of the Bible stories are "mushroom myths" common throughout the Middle East and dating back to 3500 B.C.

Allegro, who trained to be a Methodist minister but is now an agnostic, says the Bible was written in a code form so that mushroom worshippers could pass on their spells and beliefs in a way to escape persecution by authorities.

Allegro claims the mushroom has, since the beginning of time, been an object of mystery.

"Every aspect of the mushroom's existence was fraught with sexual allusions, and in its phallic form the ancients saw a replica of the fertility god himself," he writes. "It was the son of God. It was in fact, God himself manifest on earth. To the mystic it was the divinely given means of entering heaven."

Academic Council

The resolution, later rescinded by the board, allowed the MSU student to suspend any student whose activities constituted "an immediate threat to the normal orderly operation of the university."

The campus disturbances report was originally presented to the council in November, 1968. At that time the council referred the matter back to the committee with the specific directive that ASMSU involve black students in the formulation of the report.

The campus disturbance report passed by the council contains policy statement rejecting violence and acts of destruction and amends the university bylaws to provide for the safety, which will exist as a regular standing committee of Academic Council.

The new committee will be composed of five faculty members, four undergraduates and one graduate student.

The council also voted to postpone Wednesday's session of Academic Senate to allow additional time for the dissemination of information concerning Friday's council actions to faculty members.

The council approved an amendment to the Academic Freedom Report which requires that any change in the report which deals with "the professional rights and responsibilities" of the faculty first be referred to the elected faculty council prior to consideration by the Academic Council.

The Academic Freedom Report change must be approved by the Board of Trustees before it becomes effective.

Black 'Tamu' to hit toy market in June

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- A black doll that talks -- with such remarks as "Cool it, baby" -- hits the nation's toy market next month, the latest product of an all-black toy factory in Watts.

The talking doll, with the Swahili name of Tamu -- which means "sweet" -- may bring joy to some little girl but is also designed to help promote racial understanding and provides jobs for black workers.

"From an economic standpoint, we're providing people with jobs -- and economics is the basis of our problem," says Phil Gilyard, black manager at the toy factory, Shindana, which employs 30 full time black workers -- two thirds of them women.

Shindana can turn out 800 to 1,200 dolls a day. This year it hopes to produce 200,000 dolls, achieve sales of $650,000 and earn a profit for the first time.

Louis Smith, now honorary manager, conceived the dollmaking idea after the Watts 1965 riots as a way blacks could fill a retail need and provide themselves with jobs. The toy factory, limited so far just to doll-making, is a division of Operation Bootstrap, a Watts-based nonprofit agency of blacks and whites which tries to start small business for black workers. The firm makes five types of black dolls, Gilyard said. The dolls retail from $4.95 to $7.95 and are made of plastic and vinyl, with either Afro or straight hair styles.

Gilyard said the black dolls have helped promote racial understanding because they are placed side by side with white dolls in many stores and that when white girls play with black dolls they come to understand "there are different kinds of skin."

Mathews' running leads Greens to 12-7 win

By JEFF ELLIOTT
Executive Sports Writer

The MSU football team split its doubleheader Saturday. The No. 1 defense won one game, and the No. 2 offense captured the second.

But because both of the winning squads were on the same team, the Greens squeaked out a 12-7 win over the White squad in the Spartan's annual spring wind-up game before approximately 5,100 fans.

Henry Mathews put on a one-man show for the Greens. He scored two touchdowns on runs of six and 41 yards and finished the day with a game leading 192 yards in 33 carries. Both of Mathews' scores came in the second quarter when all scoring in the game occurred.

MSU Head Coach Duffy Daugherty said after the game: "Our defense is ahead of our offense at this stage of the season."

Daugherty, now with 3½ months in which to evaluate this spring's performances before the start of fall practice, indicated there may be some changes made when practice begins next August.

"We may have to take another look at our offensive line," Daugherty said. "It may be some members of the Green's squad deserve a shot at the No. 1 offense. We'll just have to wait until we see the films to see who did a good job today."

Daugherty lavished with praise on Mathews.

"Henry has had an outstanding spring and he really capped it off today," Daugherty said, obviously pleased that he may have more than one good running back for a change. "He's shown he really wants to play football this year and we're certainly going to give him the opportunity."

Linebacker Dan Kulinkowski set up the Green's first score when he picked off a George Mihailu pass -- one of three passes that went awry for Mihailu Saturday -- and returned it to the 14 yard line. Several plays later, Mathews turned right end and followed guard Bob Black's key block at the two to score. The point after was blocked.

The Whites, who netted 104 yards on the ground in 46 carries against a tough Green defensive line and linebacker crew, could do nothing after the Green score. Brad Van Pelt, punting for the White squad, booted to the Green's 24 - yard line where Mathews and Co. promptly went to work again.

After the Whites broke through to nail quarterback Fred Kolch for a six - yard loss, Mathews picked up 34 yards in three carries. The 6-3, 198 pound junior - to - be used his size to his advantage. Several times, prior to getting hit, Mathews lowered his head and shoulders and bulled right over the defender for an additional three or four yards.

With the ball resting on the 41 - yard line and third and short yardage situation, the White defensive backfield moved up from their normal 12 yards in back of the line of scrimmage to just behind the linebackers. The move backfired as Mathews took a Kolch pitchout and, aided by a key block from flanker Randy Davis on linebacker Ernie Hamilton, took off for his second score of the day. Once past the line of scrimmage, Mathews simply outraced the drawn in secondary. Safety Tim Jones made a desperate leap for Mathews at the six but fell short. Mathew's attempt for a two - point conversion fell one yard short.

Whites finally came to life near the end of the first half. Mihailu and a backfield of Ken Alderson at fullback, Earl Anderson at running back, and Eric Allen at wing back, took turns in carrying the ball. Starting from their own 25, the Whites went 35 yards in seven plays to put the ball on the Green's 40.

With a third and five confronting him, Mihailu went for broke and connected with a long bomb to split end Gordie Bowdell. Bowdell, racing down the right sideline, was closely covered by Green backs, Brad Van Pelt and Harold Phillips. But Bowdell got a step on both defenders, and Mihailu lifted a perfect floater to him three yards deep in the end zone. It was to be the White's only bright spot of the day. Marv Roberts, sophomore placekicker from Akron, Ohio, added the extra point to complete the day's scoring.

Saturday's game marked the end of the five - week spring practices and attracted several of the best professional football players in the country. Minnesota's Joe Kapp, Gene Washington and Clint Jones and Detroit's Mel Farr and Lem Barney, along with a handful of former Spartan players, signed autographs with fans before, during the half and after the game.

Proceeds of the game will again go to the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Spartan Scholarship Fund to help needy non-athlete students at MSU. Washington was in charge of getting professional players to come to the game.

Kolch went the entire route for the Greens and completed nine of 16 passes for 95 yards. Four of his passes went to split end Frank Butler for 57 yards. Kolch also picked up 40 yards in eight running attempts but lost half in pass attempts. For the most part, the Green linemen protected Kolch well and opened up big holes for Mathews and fullback Ron Slank.

The right side of the line, including guard Mike Tobin, tackle Chris King and end Brian McConnell, was especially tough. Also starting for the Greens on offense were Black, center Morgan Justice and tackle Terry Lewis.

One of the more interested spectators at the scrimmage Saturday was junior college Mike Rasmussen, all-American quarterback, who recently signed a letter of intent to play at MSU next fall. After the game, Rasmussen said he was impressed with the enthusiasm and inspiration of the Spartans and said he was looking forward to becoming part of it next fall. The red-headed southpaw spent most of the afternoon on the sidelines with Daugherty. Rasmussen flew out from his home in Fresno, California, with Daugherty's brother-in-law.

The only major injury of the day was suffered by defensive tackle Ron Curl. The 6-4, 240-pound senior cracked a bone in his right arm in the first half and was out the rest of the game.

All - Big Ten first team last year, Curl went to a doctor at halftime, returned midway the third quarter, then went to the hospital after the game. He had a cast put on. The cast will be on for six weeks, but Curl should be ready next fall.

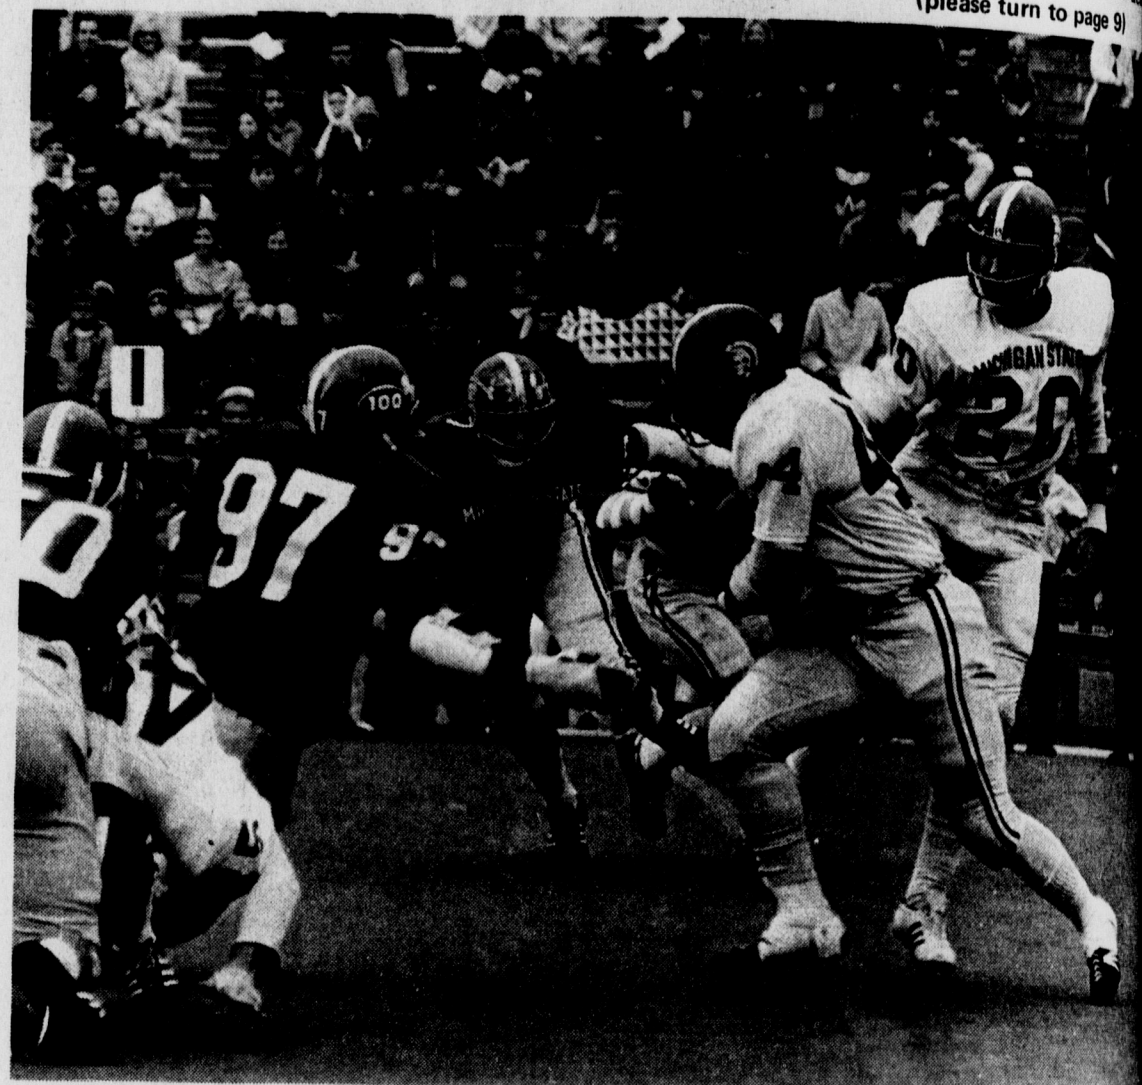

Curl was a Green's co-captain Saturday along with Butler, Kutschinski and Bill Tipton. For his fine running and timely blocking when he was carrying the ball, Mathews earned the outstanding linemen award on the Green team. Martin, who spend a great deal (please turn to page 9)

Henry Mathews, is shown going through a huge hole partially created by guard Mike Tobin. Tobin and his teammates opened holes like this one most of the afternoon and Mathews took advantage of it to gain 192 yards in 33 carries.

SPARTANS THIRD

IU rallies for Big 10 golf title

By OLG OLSON

State News Sports Writer

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Defending champion MSU and surprising Minnesota shared the lead through 36 holes of the 72-hole Big Ten golf championship here only to be brushed aside by a fired-up Indiana Hoosier link team in Saturday's final 36 holes.

The Spartans and Minnesota had identical opening round 773 team totals. The Gophers had not been considered a contender for the conference title. Minnesota played consistently Saturday to finish second overall, six strokes up on the Spartans, who placed third.

Indiana, in winning, gained its second link championship in three years. The Hoosiers, who were tied with Iowa for third place at the halfway mark, charged to a five-man total of 1,542 strokes. It was a far shot from MSU's victory margin of 1,501 a year ago.

Minnesota was second with 1,555; MSU, third at 1,561; followed by Iowa, 1,564; Purdue, 1,571; Ohio State, 1,582; Illinois, 1,583; Michigan, 1,584; Wisconsin, 1,613 and Northwestern carding a team total of 1,634 for 10th place.

Michigan's Randy Erskine captured medalist honors on rounds of 77-75-74-76 — 302. The Battle Creek senior had some putting problems in the first round, but, after taking some advice from his father, straightened out his play on the greens.

Leading the Hoosiers' Saturday comeback was Wayne McDonald who finished in a tie for second place with Iowa's Bob Mulert. Both had 72-hole totals of 304. That twosome was followed by Greg Harvey of Indiana and MSU's Lynn Janson.

Janson was the only Spartan in contention for the individual honors during Saturday's play. Spartan sophomore John VanderMeiden had a 154 after opening day but fell to the wayside in Saturday's play.

Janson had a sparkling 73 in the second round Friday. The round could have been even better but the East Lansing senior carded two double bogies and a triple bogey along with six birdies.

Janson had birdies on all four par 5s, as well as on the par 4 10th where he sank a 65-foot putt and the par 3 18th where he dropped a 30-footer for his final birdie, but being seven strokes over par netted him 73.

Indiana's McDonald received plenty of help from teammate Harvey and Kevin Proctor with a 309, Don Padgett carding a 312 and Wayne Shirecliff's 72-hole total of 314.

Proctor had a 72 Saturday. He was the only player in the field of 60 linksters to match par on the 36-36 University of Illinois Savoy Golf Course. Padgett was last year's medalist.

Also competing for MSU besides Janson and VanderMeiden, who finished with a 315 total, were Lee Edmundson (the only other senior on the Spartan unit), Rick Woulfe, Denny Vass and John Peterson. Woulfe, Vass and Peterson are juniors.

Peterson finished between Indiana's Padgett and Shirecliff carding a 72-hole score of 313 strokes. Edmundson and Woulfe each registered 316s with Vass coming in at 319 strokes to close out the Spartan scoring.

Spartan netters finish 3rd, far behind powerful U-M

By JOHN VIGES

State News Sports Writer

What was supposed to be a tight conference tennis race, with three teams struggling for first place, evolved into a runaway for Michigan's powerful squad at the Big Ten Tournament in Minneapolis.

The Wolverines easily won their third championship in a row, leaving runner-up Indiana and third place MSU only with dreams of next year. MSU could draw its only consolation from a second place finishes by Tom Gray and Rick Ferman while the Hoosiers captured two championships, the No. 5 singles and No. 2 doubles.

Everything else was Michigan. The Wolverines had finalists in eight of nine events and they captured seven of the first place medals. Michigan finished the season with 181 points, far ahead of Indiana's 98. The Spartans were third with a 74 - point total followed by Minnesota, 59 and Illinois, 47. Iowa, Northwestern, Wisconsin and Purdue rounded out the final standings.

MSU's biggest problem was an inability to post a victory over an opponent that a Spartan had beaten earlier in the year. Five times MSU lost to a foe that they had beaten during the regular season with three of the losses coming against a Michigan player. In MSU's dual meet with the Wolverines the Spartans captured three wins, but Michigan avenged their losses at the No. 3 doubles, No. 4 and 6 singles in the tournament.

"Michigan simply had more poise and more confidence than any other team," MSU Coach Stan Drobac said after the meet. Dan McLaughlin's victory over Ferman was one of the wins that made up for an early season loss. The defending champion at No. 6 singles, McLaughlin was eager to avenge his earlier 8-6, 6-4 loss to Ferman.

In the finals McLaughlin broke Ferman's serve and his last for a 6-2 first set victory. Ferman had trouble placing his first serve in the service area and was often forced to the defensive. The second set was a standoff for 21 games as the two players each held serve. Ferman, the top seeded player at the No. 6 position began playing more consistently, but he was unable to break the serve of a fired up McLaughlin.

Ferman finally had a chance in game to break McLaughlin's service when the two were tied at 9-9. Holding an advantage, the Spartan sophomore returned a volley that McLaughlin's shot appeared to be long and Ferman, ready for a return, let the ball go only to see it land on the backcourt line. The Wolverine senior was then able to hold his serve.

In the final game, McLaughlin gained two quick points and was able to break Ferman's serve to a 30 - 50 count to win the set 12-10.

The loss was a hard one for Ferman, since he had gone unbeaten throughout the season, and the shot he let go was especially haunting.

"I'll dream about that shot for the next 20 years," he said after the tournament was over.

Ferman reached the finals by defeating Wisconsin's Larry Pollack 6-4, 3-6, 11-9 in a hard fought match and Bob Girschold of Iowa by a 6-4, 6-3 count.

The other Spartan to reach the finals Tom Gray, captured his second runner-up medal in as many years. Last year Gray finished behind Michigan's Dick Dell at the No. 1 spot and this season the Wolverine's Jon Hainline proved to be Gray's nemesis.

Hainline, last year's champion at No. 5 singles, did not over power Gray but his well placed shots kept the Spartan junior off balance and Gray, who did not play his best game, fell by a 6-3, 6-3 score.

Gray was almost upset before he reached the finals. Ken Bartz of Wisconsin played excellent tennis as he scrambled to a 6-4 first set victory. But, Bartz could not handle the more powerful Gray in the next two sets as Gray gained momentum and used his over - powering serve to win 6-3 and 6-2.

Geoff Hadson fell to Gray in the semi - final by a 6-2, 6-4 count.

Mike Madura, Briggs, Duane Rhoads and Tom Gray at the No. 1 doubles and Rick Vetter and Ferman at the No. 3 doubles all reached the semis before being halted.

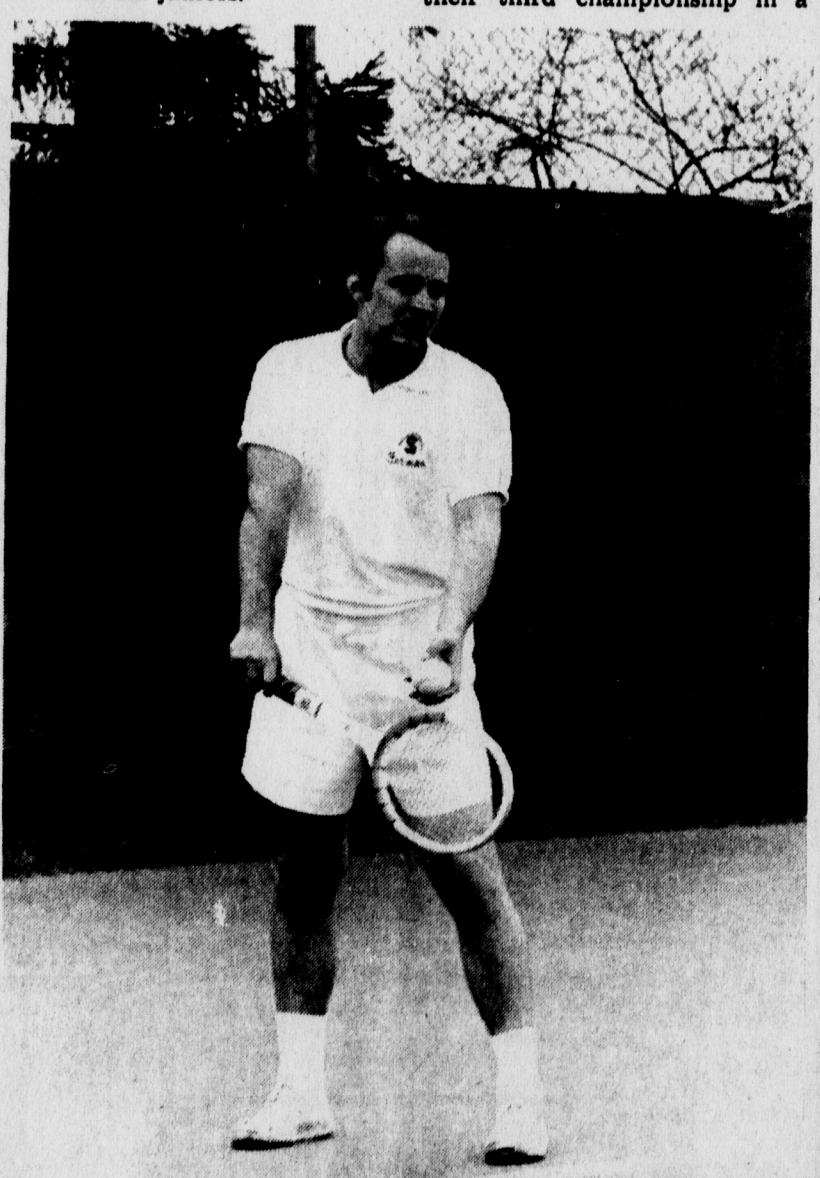

Madura defeated Scott Pearlstein of Wisconsin 6-3, 6-4 to win a spot opposing Minnesota's Dave Cross. Madura then started quickly breaking Cross' first serve but the Gopher's co-captain would not give up. He broke Madura's serve late in the set and went on to win 8-6. Cross took advantage of his own vicious serve in the second set to win, 6-3. When the two met earlier in East Lansing Madura was a 6-2, 6-1 winner.

Briggs fell to Bruce DeBoer of Michigan in the semi - final. Beaten by Briggs earlier in the year, DeBoer used well placed shots to gain a service break in each set for a 6-4, 6-3 victory.

Rhoads and Gray fell to Minnesota's Bill Cross and Bill Drake in a long doubles match by a 6-2, 9-11, 7-5 count after beating Purdue's team the day before 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Vetter and Ferman lost to Michigan in the semifinals. DeBoer and McLaughlin dropped the Spartan duo by 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 score.

Winning championships for Michigan were: Mark Conti, No. 1; Hainline, No. 2; Joel Ross, No. 3; DeBoer, No. 4; McLaughlin, No. 5; Hainline and DeBoer, No. 1 doubles; Briggs and McLaughlin, No. 3 doubles; Rhoads and Gray, No. 4 doubles; Indiana captured the other two first places with Tom Dunker and No. 5 singles plus Hodson and Darrel Snively at No. 2 doubles winning first place medals.

Herb 1st, Spartans 3rd in Big 10

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Sparked by Herb Washington's thrilling 100-yard dash win and Bob Karr's unexpected third place in the pole vault, MSU tallied 68 points to take third in the Big Ten track championships here Saturday at Billy Hayes Track.

Washington's century victory was the Spartans' only winning effort but a rash of third places enabled the Spartans to sneak by three other foes for the third spot behind Indiana and Wisconsin.

As expected, Indiana dethroned the Badgers as champion, totaling 117 points, most ever in a league meet, under a new 10-8-6-4-2-1 scoring system. Wisconsin had 91. Following MSU were Illinois with 65, Michigan with 64 and Minnesota with 63. Ohio State had 48, Northwestern 18, Iowa 16 and Purdue 8.

Washington leaned at the tape to nip Indiana's Mike Goodrich and Ohio State's Jim Harris, as all were timed in 9.5 to enable Jesse Owen's record of 9.4 to last at least another year. Defending champ Larry Highbaugh was fourth. MSU's LaRue Butcher was edged for sixth, and one point for the MSU cause, by Michigan's Gene Brown.

But the decision was not forthcoming for quite some time. It seemed obvious Washington had won, and three judges (of four) had picked the Flint speedster first, but the next places were a toss-up. Finally, after more than an hour's wait, the placers were announced, and even then, a close look at the photos made it hard to pick between Goodrich and Harris for the runner-up spot.

Washington, obviously pleased with the win, said he began to gain on Goodrich about 70 yards after the Hoosier speedster got a fast start out of the blocks. Washington and Harris were neck-and-neck to the tape but Herb leaned just enough to nip the Ohio State flash, the apparent second placer since Goodrich seemed to fade a bit as he neared the line.

More pleasing to the Spartan coaches was the Saturday performance of sophomore Butcher. He had a 9.7 in the 100 and a 21.9 in the 220. But he had run 21.5 in Friday's preliminaries and served notice that he'll make his mark on the Big Ten sprints in the next two years.

Karr, a junior who had cleared 15-0 and 15-6 in practice but never in a meet, came up with a 15-0 effort to secure third. He cleared 15-4 but the bar bounced a bit and finally fell off. Wisconsin's Joe Viktor cleared the same height rather shakily, but the crossbar held on and gave the 1968 indoor champ his second league title.

"We took Karr along because he had done it in practice and we thought he could do it in the meet. He came along and made it in the right one," Spartan Coach Fran Dittich said.

"It was a real good team performance for us," Dittich noted, "If anyone had let us down we would have been sixth instead of third."

Top placer for MSU outside of Washington was Soph Al Henderson, who placed second in the 440-yard dash in 47.5, a career best for the Detroit East Catholic graduate. Henderson and Washington also ran on the 440 relay with Mike Holt and LaRue Butcher, which placed third.

MSU placed third in the mile relay with Bill Wehrwein leading off, followed by Holt, John Mock and Henderson.

Other third places came from freshman John Morrison in the 120-yard high hurdles, junior Wayne Hartwick in the intermediate hurdles and freshman Ken Popejoy in the mile run.

Spartan fourth placers included Mock in the 880, Washington in the 220 and Lloyd Bridges with a career best of 23-10 in the long jump.

Butcher was sixth in the 220 and Wehrwein grabbed the same in the triple jump to close out MSU's scoring.

Surprisingly, only two meet records were set before the small crowd in cloudy, cool weather. Hoosier sophomore Steve Kelley shattered the old steeplechase mark of 9:00.5 with an 8:48.3 clocking, while Minnesota's freshman distance sensation, Garry Bjorklund, cracked Ray Arrington's old mile standard of 4:03.9 with a 4:03.6 clocking.

Bjorklund was the meet's only double winner as he came back an hour after the mile to win the three mile in 13:40.6, only one-tenth second off the league meet record.

The best news for MSU, in looking ahead, was that all but one of the Spartans' non-relay points returns in 1971. Wehrwein's one in the triple jump and his share of the mile relay's six points are the only losses for MSU.

Defending champions fell by the wayside in most events, as Wehrwein was not entered in the 440, Highbaugh failed to repeat his fantastic 100-220-long jump wins of 1969 (placing fourth, third and fifth), Minnesota's Tim Heikkila slipped to third in the high jump, Wisconsin's Mike Bond fouled three times in the triple jump, and two other defending champs from Wisconsin, Dean Martell (three mile) and Fred Lands (steeplechase) failed to finish. Wisconsin's mile relay, with all the members from its 1969 winning quartet back, dropped to second behind surprising Illinois.

Wisconsin won five individual titles while Indiana nabbed four individual crowns and the 440 relay title. The other wins were pretty well spread out, with Michigan, Minnesota and Illinois each accounting for two, MSU for one and Northwestern for one.

By class breakdown, juniors and sophomores dominated the meet, with juniors taking six titles and sophomores five. Badger Mark Winzenried, a junior, was the only returning champ to successfully defend his title. Three seniors earned top honors and Bjorklund was the only freshman champion, with two titles marked up after his name.

WINS TWO 4-0 GAMES

Maas, Fulton blank 'Cats twice

By RICK GOSSELIN
State News Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Ill. — After the Sunday games in western history, the host might be a bit fearful of their mark in the history books again.

Spartan baseball team, the four-hit pitching of Fulton, whitewashed western in the first game with a 4-0. In the second game, Fulton blanked the 'Cats, 5-0.

Friday doubleheader at Wisconsin was rained out Saturday's scheduled game with the Wildcats. Big rules permit a make-up of rained out Saturday games.

Maas, who had been the pitcher in three of the last four games (a streak of four wins in the last four games), extended his scoreless string to 16 and improved his record to 6-2. Three of the hits off him never left the park.

In blanking the 'Cats, the right hander lowered his staff-leading 1.44. In his brilliant three-hit performance (one hit was of the variety), deceived Wildcat bats all afternoon, striking only twice during the game. Only two men on western put two men on against the junior righthander, once in the first and again in the third. The victory raised Maas' record to 4-2 and his strikeout count to 36.

After a mild threat in the first inning of the first game, the Spartans pushed across the games' first run in the second. Tim Bograkov drilled his first hit in two years of Big Ten competition — a single to center. Steve Cerez followed with a bloop single to the same area. After Fulton fanned, Gary Boyce laced his second single of the day with Bograkov scoring from second. But Northwestern got out of the inning as Cerez was thrown out at the plate on an attempted double steal.

The Spartans upped the count to 4-0 in the third as the first four batters of the inning reached base. A single by Rich Vary and a walk to John Dace put runners on first and second. Rob Ellis doubled over the centerfielders' head, driving in two runs and advancing to third on the throw to the plate. Ron Pruitt bounced a single between short and third, scoring Ellis and climaxing the scoring.

MSU threatened in the sixth, filling the bases after two were down. Boyce reached first for the third time in the game with a bloop single to left. Vary got to first as the shortstop bobbled his grounder and Dace drew his second walk of the day. The threat subsided as Ellis lined out to shortstop.

The Spartans took up in the second game, where they left off in the opener by rattling Wildcat ace Stan Kmet for two runs in the first.

Boyce was given a free pass on a 3-2 count to become the first Spartan runner. Vary dropped a bunt down the first base line, taking the base when no one covered, for a single. Dace fled to left, advancing the runners. Ellis slapped a sharp single to center, driving home both runners, and giving him four RBIs for the afternoon.

Phil Rashead stroked a double down the leftfield line two batters later, but the scoring was halted at two.

In the fifth inning, the Spartans tallied their final two runs, giving Maas little more breathing room. Vary drew a one-out walk, but Dace's infield ground ball struck Vary, erasing him from the base path. Dace was credited with a single. Ellis slammed a double over the centerfielders' head again, scoring Dace from first and giving Ellis three second game RBIs from three hits in three at-bats. Pruitt drove a shot through the second baseman for an error, Ellis alertly scoring from second on the play.

The shutout was preserved as Bograkov made a diving one-handed catch of a short fly to center with one man on in the last inning.

Booters edged by alumni, 2-1, to close spring drills

MSU's varsity soccer team fell prey to an experienced Spartan alumni in an exciting 2-1 contest Saturday afternoon on the MSU Soccer field. The game concludes spring practice for the Spartan varsity in preparation for the soccer season next fall. Instead of playing under collegiate rules which divide the game into four quarters of 22 minutes, the teams decided to play according to international soccer rules which split the play into two equal halves of 45 minutes.

Denny Boles opened the scoring for the alumni with a goal after the game was 22-minutes old. He was assisted on the play by former All-American Trevor Harris.

The varsity had several choice scoring opportunities in the first half but each time the ball went wide or over the net. In the closing minutes of the half, junior Ray Korkiala finally put the varsity in the scoring column as he scored an unassisted goal. At half time the match was a 1-1 deadlock.

In second half play Coach Payton Fuller elected to give freshman goalie Nick Dujohn some game experience. Replacing the veteran goalie Les Lucas, Dujohn responded with some fancy goalkeeping while making five saves.

For 40 minutes the second half remained a scoreless duel dominated by a battle of defenses. Having the advantage of playing together in recent weeks, MSU's varsity offense displayed serious scoring threats at times but were continually harassed by a Spartan alumni that included three former All-Americans.

With five minutes remaining, Harris, who last year was bothered with a severe ankle injury, found an open corner of the net to break the 1-1 tie. Moments later Buzz Demling kicked the ball past George Janes, the alumni goalie, but an offside penalty nullified the goal.

Fuller was particularly impressed with the play of freshman Jerry Murray, Borys Shlapak and Demling. He was satisfied with the Spartan defense but cited ball control problem as the offensive weakness.

"By next fall we hope to overcome this weakness," Fuller said after the game. "We were not moving the ball as well as we can in front of the goal."

"I thought it was a real good game between two good teams."

PITTSBURGH'S BRIERE

Injured icer improves

MONTREAL (UPI) — Pittsburgh Penguin hockey player Michael Briere was in "better" condition Saturday in a Montreal hospital being placed on the critical list.

Briere was injured Friday night in an accident near Malartic, some 350 miles west of Montreal. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Malartic in two weeks, the hospital revealed.

The accident occurred late Friday, when the car in which Briere and two companions were riding left the road and crashed in a ditch. The other passengers received fractures. Briere was thrown clear of the wreck.

He was rushed to nearby Val D'Or, where hospital facilities were found inadequate to handle his case and he was quickly flown to Montreal. The four-hour operation Saturday was termed a success by Dr. Bertrand.

Tragedy struck again as Briere was being rushed from the scene of the accident to Val D'Or. His ambulance struck a motorcycle and killed the rider, 18-year-old Raymond Perrault of Malartic.

Briere was a rookie with Pittsburgh last season. He scored 12 goals, had 32 assists and was the acknowledged team leader as the Penguins made the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs for the first time.

Briere's parents arrived here from Malartic late Saturday to be with their son. The speedy skater was to have been married in Malartic in two weeks, the hospital revealed.

He was rushed to nearby Val D'Or, where hospital facilities were found inadequate to handle his case and he was quickly flown to Montreal. The four-hour operation Saturday was termed a success by Dr. Bertrand.

Note reveals sentiments

Referring specifically to the "murder and maiming of innocent black students at Jackson State College, as well as the recent murder of six brothers in Augusta, Ga.," the statement continued:

"The Jackson State College incident is only one example of a continuing process of the institutionalized repression of black people and coincides with our commemoration of the martyrdom of our beloved Brother Malcolm X, who fell in the struggle for justice for black people."

"We redouble our appeal for sanity and reason on all campuses, and we ask the Michigan State community to continue to set an example of how important issues can be pursued without resorting to threats to life," he said.

BLF's statement condemned "all acts of murder perpetrated by the repressive, racist authorities of this country."

Lamar Thomas, executive council member of the Front, announced a mass meeting for all members of the MSU black community Tuesday at 1 p.m. in 108B Wells Hall.

Thomas said the purpose of the meeting would be to deal with issues such as the relationship of black nationalism to the white radical movement, the nature of demands and the level of organizational efficiency in the black student community and the future needs of the black community.

The executive council members asked black students to give the meeting priority over other commitments.

"We do not feel that it is mandatory to demand that the University suspend classes for Tuesday afternoon, but we feel the need for the University to reflect some degree of sympathy for the situation," the statement read.

The Front also announced a "revolutionary - cultural event" scheduled for Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. They said the place would be announced Tuesday afternoon and in Tuesday's "It's What's Happening" column in the State News.

Board praises Wharton

attention of faculty and students be directed to finding ideas to deal with the problems of society.

Miss Goldman, representing a coalition including SDS, the Weathermen, Young Socialist's Alliance and Socialist Democrats among others, said the University should set up a "radical curriculum" to deal with the strike issues.

"If we don't, I'm just going to have to sit in the strike office for 24 hours a day and answer telephones," she said. "I don't want to shut the University down, but we do have to rechannel. There are lots of ways we can educate people."

Metalla, representing the Michigan Students' Assn. and Students for Rational Action, two antistrike groups, said the University should not take a stand on the strike issues.

"The strikers are basically asking the University to take a stand on political issues," he said. "I don't think a public institution is the place for this. I don't think it's the position of anyone within the University to take a stand on these things."

Metalla presented the board with more than 1,100 signatures on petitions supporting the right of students to attend classes without intimidation.

"I will not be prepared to go out into the public to educate unless I have my degree. I want to be educated in the way I originally signed up to be," he added.

ASMSU chairman Buckner told the trustees the strike is a success because "more people than ever have been educated on the demands." However, he said ASMSU will withdraw its support of the strike, if the all-University referendum does not indicate support for the demands.

Miss Sullivan criticized the channels in the University for their ineffectiveness in "responding to pressing issues."

She pointed out that even in 40,000 people agreed on a goal, it would take a minimum of three months to implement that goal.

"If you don't give students a chance to use the channels, they're going to go out to the streets," Miss Sullivan predicted.

Results withheld

control in the common defense."

The statement of Lawrence and Miss Goldman begins, "We the undersigned, believe that this printing, clearly a political advertisement, although neither specified as such nor signed, constitutes an immediate and irreparable infringement on student rights as defined in Article 1 of the Academic Freedom Report."

The statement lists four reasons for their charge. The first is that the ASMSU referendum, with a question concerning the role of ROTC on campus, was held the same day as the printing of the advertisement.

The second reason is that President Wharton's statement issued earlier in that week, that the results of the referendum would be decisive in the formulation of future administration policy, would "constitute extraordinary prejudice under the present conditions."

The third reason is that the ambiguous status of the advertisement, as well as printing King's statement, "will irreparably prejudice and harm the accuracy of the outcome of today's referendum with regard to the ROTC issue."

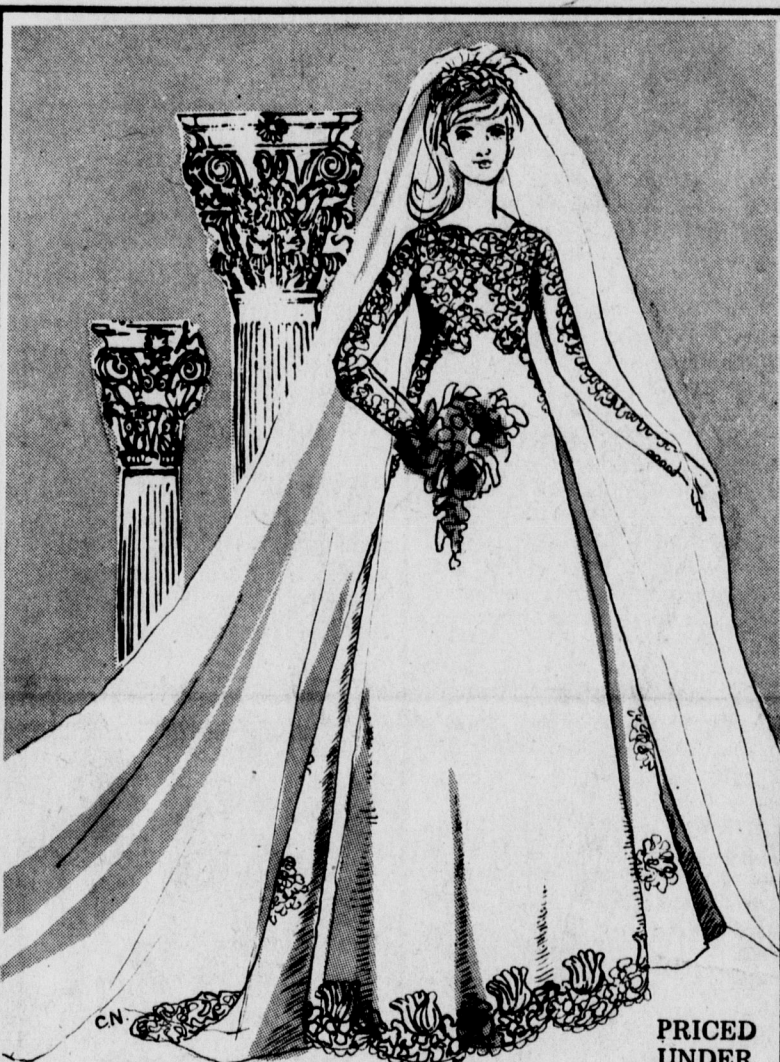

The students also said that an illegal distribution of unsigned pamphlets about ROTC in the residence halls could have influenced the voters.

Fred Leslie, advertising manager for the State News, defended the printing of the advertisement on the grounds that it is not a political advertisement.

He added that all political advertisements are attributed if they are indeed political, as is specified in the "Publication Laws for Newspapers for the State of Michigan."

Scott Ames, Grand Lodge senior and chairman of the Student - Faculty Judiciary, said that the judiciary requested that results of the referendum be withheld indefinitely. He said the students making the charges must file a formal request that a hearing on the matter be held before an injunction can be issued.
