Market plan outlined

Prime Minister Edward Heath outlined to his cabinet in London Sunday the British case for joining the Common Market.

The first test will come in the House of Commons Monday.

Political pundits are having a field day - ranging all the way from speculation that a parliamentary vote could bring his Conservative government down to speculation that the issue could break up the opposition Labor Party.

Everyone seems to agree that most members of Parliament favor Britain going into the European economic bloc.

British consul kidnapped

Three men kidnaped Stanley E. M. Sylvester, the honorary British consul in Rosario, Argentina Sunday and a leftist terrorist group called the Revolutionary Army of the People issued a communique later saying it was responsible.

The communique said Sylvester was kidnaped in connection with the second anniversary of the death of a young leftist in a clash with police here in 1969.

It was accompanied by an identification card of Sylvester, 58, who also is director of the huge Swift de la Plata meat packing complex in Rosario.

Seale deliberations resume

A jury of five blacks and seven whites resumed deliberations at noon Sunday on the fate of Black Panther Chairman Bobby Seale and codefendant Erika Huggins in New Haven, Conn.

Deliberations were interrupted Saturday morning when a juror became mildly ill.

The Sunday jury session marked the fifth day of deliberations in the case involving the torture and slaying two years ago of Panther member Alex Rackley.

Phone strike urged

Bell telephone employees were urged Sunday to authorize a nationwide strike if the utility does not raise its contract offer.

Joseph A. Beirne, president of the Communications Workers of America, made the plea from Washington in an unusual television "Membership Meeting of the Air" broadcast over 65 television stations.

Beirne called Bell's 11 per cent basic wage hike offer inequitable, and noted the union's economists urged 25 per cent increase immediately.

Laxity causes concern

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, was reported Sunday deeply concerned about an apparent laxity in military fundamentals at Charlie 2, an outpost where a rocket took a heavy toll of lives.

The attack Friday on the fire-base, four miles southeast of the demilitarized zone, came up during Abrams' staff meeting Saturday at his headquarters on Tan Son Nhut Air Base near Saigon.

Some reports said Abrams was furious over the incident, and a military source described the general as "deeply concerned and disturbed."

747 termed moneymaker

Some airline executives in New York say they are confident the 747 jumbo jetliners will prove to be big moneymakers although they flew with most of their seats empty in the first year of operation.

Boeing's 360-passenger 747 took to the skies early in 1970 when the economy was in a strong downturn.

With the recession cutting into sales and profits, corporations grounded a lot of their executives, and individuals cut back on vacation trips about the time the 747 came along.

Black caucus disappointed

The chairman of the congressional Black Caucus said Sunday the group is deeply disappointed over President Nixon's response to their demands for better opportunities for minority groups and the poor.

"I think the consensus of the group is that the report is deeply disappointing," said Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich., chairman of the 12-member organization.

"All we ended up with was simply codification of what the administration already has been doing," he said. "This is the tragedy."

Board OKs hospital affiliation

By BILL HOLSTEIN
State News Staff Writer

The board of trustees Friday approved an affiliation agreement between the College of Osteopathic Medicine and a Flint hospital, a graduate student rights and responsibilities document and several appointments of chairmen and associate deans.

The formal agreement affiliating Flint Osteopathic Hospital with the college was approved by the board subject to approval by the hospital trustees.

The agreement provides for students in the college to receive formal training at the hospital under the supervision of physicians on MSU's faculty.

In return, the Osteopathic College "will direct its resources toward assisting the affiliated hospital in rendering a more complete service to the community and in expanding its scientific activities (and) in expanding the competence of its staff," the affiliation read.

The contract is to be administered by a seven-member joint administrative board an advisory group which will act as the liaison committee between the college and hospital. The joint board will select and recommend members of the hospital staff for appointment to the MSU faculty and will make recommendations on various research programs for the hospital or college.

Numerous other cooperative arrangements are called for in the contract.

Warren Huff, D-Plymouth, was the only trustee opposing the affiliation.

The Graduate Student Rights and Responsibilities document, the graduate equivalent of the Academic Freedom Report for undergraduates, provides for a judicial structure through which complaints and grievances can be resolved and infractions of regulations adjudicated and also attempts to define the relationships and responsibilities between graduate students and their departments or colleges.

The approval Friday culminates more than 21 months of discussions, interviews, questionnaires and hearings conducted by a joint student-faculty committee.

The board also unanimously approved a proposed entry in the Bylaws of the Faculty delineating the composition, functions and procedures of the Graduate Council, (COGS).

The board approved at least four high-level appointments Friday.

Gilbert A. Leveille, professor of nutritional biochemistry at the University of Illinois, was approved as chairman of the Dept. of Food Sciences and Human Nutrition effective July 1.

He succeeds Jacob A. Hoefer, who was appointed temporary acting chairman when the department was formed as part of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources and College of Human Ecology last October.

Raymond Daniel Vlasin, asst. chancellor for community outreach and research at the University of Wisconsin, was approved as chairman of the Dept. of Resource Development effective July 1.

Vlasin assumed his current position at the University of Wisconsin in 1968 after serving there as director of planning and regional development and as program leader of the Community Resource Development and Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota.

John Barson, associate director of the Office of Medical Education Research and Development, was named associate dean of the College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Barson, a specialist in audio visual programs and educational administration, will aid Dean Myron S. Magen beginning July 1. James L. Conklin, associate professor of anatomy at the University of Michigan Medical School, was named associate dean for student affairs of the College of Human Medicine effective June 1.

Conklin, also coordinator of academic counseling for the University Medical School, will be responsible for student admission counseling and financial assistance programs.

The board approved 7-1 a recommendation to stop abuse of provision allowing students to not pay for credits in excess of 2 credit hours which will force students to pay for all credits for which they enroll.

SEEKS MONEY CONTROL

Election bill hearings set

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel opens hearings Monday on a bill to plug most of the loopholes cherished by candidates to hide sources of money they spent in getting elected.

Part of a package to limit spending for White House and Congress races, the measure would force a detailed public listing of where the money comes from and where it goes.

Senate passage of the bill, pushed by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., is considered likely. Its fate in the House is uncertain.

The Mansfield bill would close the gaps that allow candidates to omit reporting money raised by numerous campaign committees, funnel other funds through hidden groups in the nation's capital, and use dummy names and devices. Caught in the crackdown would be dozens of traditional dodges used by everyone from presidential candidates to Mansfield himself.

The Justice Department is to send Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst as the leadoff witness before the Senate Rules Committee in two days of hearings on the charges.

The package already has won approval of the Senate Commerce Committee for its plan to limit campaign spending to 10 cents per potential voter, with only half of that going for radio-TV.

Commenting on the eve of the hearings, the National Committee for an Effective Congress said Sunday bit money dominates the election system and is undermining public confidence in government and politicians.

Russell Hemenway, director of the privately supported, non-partisan NCEC, said in a statement 90 per cent of the money spent on campaign comes from fewer than 10 per cent of the people. And most of this is hidden, he said.

Hemenway added that "partisanship, narrow-mindedness, self-interest, ambition and a host of other unattractive motives of segment of Congress" blocked action campaign-reform legislation recent years.

For example, Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., listed "No" for his spending last fall, although a spokesman said the cost of the race hit $1.3 million.

The bill would plug the requiring all of a candidate committees to file full report with the Senate and House to cover all donations, spending.

Residence halls remove night banks for security

By JIM SHELTON
State News Staff Writer

Due to a recent armed robbery at the Williams Hall reception desk, residence hall officials have ordered that cash banks will no longer be available after closing hours in women's residence halls and in Williams Hall.

Robert C. Underwood, manager of residence halls, said three robberies of reception desks this year have made it "not worth the risk" to staff personnel who work alone at the desks at night.

Night staffers are too vulnerable to attacks, Underwood said, and residence hall officials are more concerned with the safety of students rather than the loss in money.

The decision to remove the cash banks was made by officials because of concern over the Williams incident. On May 16, the Williams night receptionist told police he was alone at the desk when two men entered the building, one of them drawing a knife, and demanded money.

Robbers escaped with $91.63 in cash and with $8 in postage stamps.

Other robberies occurred earlier this year at South Wonders and South Hubbard Halls. Although these were not armed robberies, Underwood said the receptionists were "conned" out of cash - on - hand. He asked that descriptions of these incidents were not printed so as not to give ideas to would-be thieves.

Underwood added many reception desks have been burglarized but said he did not know the total loss from these incidents. Between $100 and $150 was lost in the three robberies.

No staffers have yet been injured, he said, and officials are removing cash banks to make sure no injuries do occur. Change still will be available during regular business hours.

Two other security measures, proposed by the campus security committee, will begin next fall in residence halls. Chain locks will be installed on doors of bathrooms connecting one room to another in many residence halls.

Through the other program already under experiment, Holden and Wilson Halls vestibule will be installed in the women's side of residence halls. The doors will remain open.

Persons wishing to enter building living areas will be required to telephone destination for an escort. Men's side of residence hall open 24 hours a day, will have the service.

OCC vote nixed, irregularities told

Thursday's Off-Campus Council (OCC) elections were thrown out by the OCC elections commissioner early Friday because of number of irregularities in voting procedures.

Election Commissioner Sara S. Ulrey, East Lansing senior said that confusion over the number of write-in ballots allowed discrepancies between the ballot count and the number of votes on the OCC tally sheet, and the fact that the polls were not open from 8 a.m. to noon as required by elections procedures were factors behind her decision to declare the elections invalid.

Miss Ulrey said that later investigation removed the discrepancy between the ballot count and the tally sheet, but the elections were still invalidated.

"Somewhere between the time the election boxes were picked up and when we began counting ballots, some of the tally sheets disappeared," she said. "But we found the tally sheets later on."

Miss Ulrey said that 71 ballots were cast in the invalidated elections. Approximately 12,000 students live off campus.

Off-Campus Council representatives met over the weekend to discuss plans for new elections.

Quake victims sought in Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Rescue workers continued to drag living and dead from the ruins of Bingol, eastern Turkey, Sunday, and the death toll from Saturday's earthquake mounted toward 1,000.

The quake destroyed 90 per cent of the town, including the hospital, prison and high school.

The official death toll now stands at about 800-half of them in the town itself and the rest in outlying villages.

Officials said, however, contact had still not been made with many of the mountainous province's 322 villages and hamlets. The province has a total population of 150,521.

According to the few sketchy reports getting out of Bingol, mostly by radio, the scene there was one of stark tragedy, with survivors scrambling in the ruins for relatives and friends.

"It's horrible," shouted a telephone operator in a brief conversation from a quake-struck town near Bingol.

The earthquake hit Bingol as residents were preparing for bed. The town was plunged into darkness, and steady rain hampered rescue work.

Turkish authorities, drilled in earthquake relief techniques after annual disasters since 1966, began sending a stream of relief supplies into the area.

Disturbances hit Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A citywide curfew was in effect Sunday night after two days of disturbances. A state official said there was no plan at present to use National Guardsmen.

State Safety Commissioner Claude Armour said, "If it takes state police, we'll get them. If it takes the National Guard, we'll do that too. We're here to protect the city."

Armour was sent to Chattanooga after Mayor Robert Kirk Walker said Saturday night that he had asked that National Guard troops be made available. However, Armour said Sunday that Walker's communication was not an actual request for troops but that the city had simply "notified the state," a move Armour said was good judgment. Mayor Walker said Sunday afternoon a "voice of respect and responsibility is prevailing in Chattanooga" and that the city was relatively quiet, but he declared a 7 p.m. to 8 a.m. curfew for the second straight night.

The trouble began Friday night after the star of a rock music show, Wilson Pickett, refused to perform, saying he had not been paid in advance. As a result, young blacks roamed the downtown area, breaking an estimated $8,000 worth of windows in businesses.

The damage estimate in the auditorium where the show was scheduled was $2,500 as seats were ripped and doors jarred from their hinges.

There was no monetary estimate of the damage Saturday night.

Official police arrest figures for Friday and Saturday nights were 71 and 57, respectively. However, reporters who counted arrest reports said the totals were 141 and 109, with the great majority of them charged with disorderly conduct in the early morning hours Saturday and with curfew violation Saturday night and Sunday.

Police said there were 81 reports involving extensive property damage during the two nights, mostly involving business firms.

Late Saturday, the city commission called a state of emergency, including a curfew for the city of 119,000, after it was reported that bands of youths were breaking windows and throwing missiles at cars.

Walker said there had been nine reported injuries, including two policemen, but none was serious.

At one point Saturday night, police headquarters said there had been two confirmed gunshot woundings. They later changed the figure to one, then eliminated that when the physician who treated the victim said he thought he had been hit by a rock. But the man, who was released from the hospital, insisted he had been hit in the head by a bullet.

Postcards fight Viet war

By CHARLES C. CAIN
State News Staff Writer

"Voter Voucher to End the war," a program begun four weeks ago by a nonpartisan group of East Lansing citizens, hopes to bring political pressure to bear on elected officials to end the war in Southeast Asia.

The group circulates brightly colored green postcards to voters, who in turn are requested to send them to their congressman, senators, and to President Nixon, pledging their vote for these individuals at re-election time if they will consistently vote against authorizations and funds for the Indo-China war. The president is asked to complete U.S. military withdrawal by Dec. 31, 1971.

"Our continued military presence is not purifying the democracy of South Vietnam," the postcard reads.

"We contribute to death. Our presence is unworthy of our American ideals."

Representatives of the group said the war will end eventually, but, they said, even if the war is ended by Dec. 31, 24,000 lives on both sides will have been lost, based on weekly death toll estimates from both sides.

The group has distributed about 4,000 of these postcard packets in East Lansing in the last three weeks, according to Martin Gal, chairman of the program.

Gal said the present goal of the group is to get the idea to catch on nationwide and then have about nine per cent of the voters in every area bring political pressure on their elected officials by way of the postcards.

Gal explained the necessity of this since many officials think it politically unwise to go against the administration's way of handling the Southeast Asian conflict.

"Many in congress feel it politically dangerous to support a quick end to the war," he said. "We want to put tangible votes in the pocket of a senator or congressman who will support our idea. Peace should not mean political suicide."

The postcard distribution expenses are met exclusively by private donations.

Gal said the group hopes to get campus groups, concerned ministers, and local merchants interested in the voucher drive to these people can be utilized in the voucher distribution process.

Panther panel

NO EDUCATING OPPRESSED

Panthers shift emphasis

The Black Panther Party has changed its emphasis from Marxism to educating the oppressed, three Black Panthers of American Thought and Language (ATL) classes said Sunday afternoon.

The three asked to be notified only as representatives of the Detroit branch of the Black Panther Party.

Speaking in 109 S. Kedzie, they said the Black Panthers' goal now is to make people aware of their situation, ending the revolution.

Marxism will not work yet, a member said, because the masses of people are not ready to take up the gun.

"We were hung up on death the pigs for awhile," he said. Now we're concerned with educating the masses."

In order to do this, a female member said, the Black Panthers are sponsoring a survival program that includes such things as free breakfasts for school children.

"People who don't have to worry about the poverty cycle have time to look at their environment and see what kind of system they're living in," she said.

Since the survival program started, another Panther said, political consciousness has risen among blacks in the Detroit area despite efforts by the "pigs" to suppress the program. The female told of how the telephone company reportedly cut the telephone wires during one breakfast in order to cut off communications with the Black Panthers' main office.

The three summarized the Black Panthers' goals by reading the Party platform, adopted in October, 1966. Among these goals, they said, are decent housing, full employment, freedom and power to control the destiny of the black community, proper education, exclusion of blacks from military service, freedom for all black political prisoners, an end to police brutality and the right to a trial by a black jury.

"The Constitution guarantees Americans a trial by a jury of their peers," one Panther said.

"Since a peer is a person from the same educational, social, economic and racial background as a person, blacks should be tried by black juries."

The plan worked out between the University and the State Highway Dept. will make Bogue Street the major north-south road on campus. Bogue Street will be extended from Wilson Road south, running under M-43 and the railroad tracks. This will allow a clear traffic route across the railroad tracks for the first time, Baron said.

Farm Lane will remain as it is now with M-43 running under it. A Red Cedar Street feeder route off M-43 to allow access to the stadium is envisioned by the University, he noted.

Traffic lights would be installed at Harrison and Hagadorn Roads at either side of campus. An interchange to allow uninterrupted flow at the M-43 and Harrison Road intersection has been sought by some people on campus, Baron noted.

John M. Patriarche, East Lansing city manager, said Friday that a New Jersey turning pattern where traffic that wanted to turn left would first go right and then cross the median would adequately handle traffic at the intersection.

"We don't have the money or the right of way that would have to be acquired for an overpass at Harrison Road and M-43," Patriarche said.

Baron said the four points in favor of the highway include its boulevard design, (including a 20 foot median strip), that it is not envisioned as a high speed road, that it would be controlled at the railroad tracks for the first time, Baron said.

Traffic lights would be installed at Harrison and Hagadorn Roads at either side of campus. An interchange to allow uninterrupted flow at the M-43 and Harrison Road intersection has been sought by some people on campus, Baron noted.

John M. Patriarche, East Lansing city manager, said Friday that a New Jersey turning pattern where traffic that wanted to turn left would first go right and then cross the median would adequately handle traffic at the intersection.

"We don't have the money or the right of way that would have to be acquired for an overpass at Harrison Road and M-43," Patriarche said.

Baron said the four points in favor of the highway include its boulevard design, (including a 20 foot median strip), that it is not envisioned as a high speed road, that it would be controlled at the railroad tracks for the first time, Baron said.

Farm Lane will remain as it is now with M-43 running under it. A Red Cedar Street feeder route off M-43 to allow access to the stadium is envisioned by the University, he noted.

FBI-Boy Scout pact: 'Be Prepared' for 1984

One of six documents said to be among those stolen from the Federal Bureau of Investigation has turned up more unsettling information about the FBI's controversial spying operations.

According to the document, "Operation Safe" (Scout Awareness for Emergency) supplies Boy Scouts with identification cards listing police, FBI, and other emergency numbers on the reverse side. They are asked to watch for unusual occurrences or lack of activity in neighbor's homes, plus numerous other things including "criminal and suspicious" acts.

The program, as pointed out in the document, provides 20,000 "extra eyes and ears for the police department." That these "eyes and ears" are mostly children inexperienced, untrained, and innocent of the implications involved in spying on their neighbors is not mentioned. Apparently such considerations are of little concern to bureau officials.

Boy Scout officials have denied steadfastly the FBI's alleged use of the scouts as informers. Rather, they contend, the stolen document refers to a project initiated two years ago that sought to help scouts report emergencies and crimes. But they did not deny that, in effect, the scouts were acting as a grass roots extension of the police department without any vital training or experience.

The bureau's mania for gathering data for the sake of having data is questionable enough. That they have attempted, however slightly, to expand their spying mandate to children only serves to reinforce the outcry against "Keystone Kops" tactics characterized by misinformed and misdirected surveillance operations.

"Operation Safe" is just one in a long list of indictments against our nation's police force. Clearly, it is imperative to re-examine critically the bureau's operations. Still an effective crime fighting organization, the FBI has become sidetracked into affairs not particularly its business, such as snooping on anyone and everyone antiestablishment.

The analogy is almost a cliché, but one still cannot repress a shudder when "Operation Safe" is viewed vis-à-vis the Orwellian young "spies" of 1984.

SALT talks: too little, hopefully not too late

President Nixon's recent announcement concerning progress in the long-stalled strategic arms limitation talks must be taken with, pardon the pun, a grain of salt. For the past two years the SALT talks have symbolized progress in Soviet-American relations. Yet the talks have been seemingly as abortive, from a pragmatic point of view, as the Paris peace negotiations.

The President revealed Thursday that the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to concentrate on working out an agreement for the limitation of the development of antiballistic missile systems. They also have agreed to agree on some limitations of offensive missile systems.

Agreeing to agree hardly sounds like an act of great political import. Yet the manner in which the announcement was made — a nationwide TV-radio address at noon — implies that the SALT talks are about to become fruitful. A fair chance exists that, while no formal announcements can be made at the present, the Americans and the Russians have finally realized the need to limit their nuclear stockpiles for the sake of world peace.

It is unfortunate, though, that it has taken the Americans and the Soviets this long to reach an understanding. Each nation is still plunging a great proportion of its gross national product into nuclear weaponry neither can afford to use. The nuclear arms race has prevented America and Russia from giving their internal problems proper consideration.

For the present the President's statement on the SALT talks should be taken with a wait and see attitude. Simply agreeing to agree is a far cry away from nuclear disarmament. The U.S. should work for a rapid breakthrough in the SALT talks. With nuclear stockpiles growing on each side of the Iron Curtain, the world cannot afford to let cold war mentality continue to guide nuclear policy.

Ride a bike: it's better

It is now a fact. Last week's "Great Bike Race" proved that if you live within approximately 2.7 miles of campus you can get here faster and, probably, safer on a bicycle than in an automobile.

Think of it. Most of the academic community lives within the prescribed 2.7 mile radius from the university. If everybody got into the bike habit there would be less congestion, less pollution, healthier people — and you would not have to take your life in your hands every time you tried to cross Farm Lane.

What about rain and cold weather? In the abstract it is clear that the average American does not melt in a drizzle or solidify in a flurry, but considering this nation's creature comfort consciousness we would be willing to concede the point and say drive. Only use ecological logic: let one car carry six people and, thereby, decrease the automotive problem by a factor of six.

A pipe dream? Perhaps. An American without his car experiences the same sort of free-floating anxiety that a cowboy used to get without his horse. But then exercise, such as cycling, is an excellent tonic for allaying anxiety...

OUR READERS' MIND

Abortion edit emotionally laden

To the Editor:

Your proabortion editorial of May 19 is emotionally laden and fraught with "scientific ignorance, weak analogies and inconsistent thinking" — charges which you unjustly level against the antiabortionists. A careful examination and comparison of the two arguments will prove theirs to be the worthier view.

First, contrary to the antiabortionists' definition of human life beginning at conception, you aver that it is the ability to reason, the ability to comprehend one's existence, that is the distinguishing feature of human life. You add: "Most scientists agree that the fetus does not exhibit that unique feature at the end of 90 days." This is truly a profound statement. My son is 16 months old and he still doesn't possess this requisite human characteristic. Am I to infer that my son is not human? Or further, does this give me the right to slay my son? It is evident that your definition would place children in a precarious position if proabortion legislation is passed.

Secondly, you purposely misrepresent the antiabortionists' potential actual argument. Human sperm and ova possess the potential of human life. However, this is not until the two unite that this potentiality becomes actualized. When this occurs, that "mere division and specialization of cells" is in the process of becoming human life. For this reason, to include abortion in the same category with birth control, family planning and masturbation is ludicrous. The latter prevent conception while the former terminates it. This is an important and not frivolous distinction since terminating conception terminates human life.

Thirdly, the first maxim of a civil society is that its citizens be responsible for their actions. By willfully engaging in sexual intercourse, a woman forfeits any claim to the "constitutional right" of not carrying an unwanted child. If a woman wishes to reject the "burden of propagating," she should take the necessary precautions to prevent conception. Currently, I know of only two 100 per cent effective, preventive measures: sterilization and sexual abstinence. If a woman refuses to consent to these two methods, then she must be held responsible for the consequences of her actions — including pregnancy.

Fourthly, you correctly suggest that family planning "is truly effective at this point in time only among those people who least need it: established, economically independent, middle-class white Americans." Yet, you are blissfully ignorant of the fact that to date abortions have served only this same class. How many poor people have the money to fund an abortion the costs of which range upwards from $250? The present ineffectiveness of family planning to meet the exigencies of the poor doesn't negate its instrumentality. Under proper direction it can benefit all classes.

Finally, abortion is an ex post facto control of unwanted pregnancies. Isn't it more humane to attack the problem at its source (i.e., to prevent conception) rather than allow the problem to occur and then attempt to eliminate it?

In the future, think through the pros and cons of an issue and don't be moved by blind prejudice to make value judgments.

POINT OF VIEW

Fight southern African racism

By Pan-African Students
Organization in the Americas

Today, in southern Africa, the confrontation between the white imperialist regimes and the African people, between the forces of racism, fascism and colonialism and those of democracy and nonracialism, is under way. Yet almost no attention has been given by those in the outside world who support it to the strategies of this confrontation, to the development by Southern African liberation movements of a sophisticated plan for revolutionary change in which the present armed struggle is only the recent stage.

As recently as 10 years ago, the overthrow of the apartheid and Portuguese imperialist regimes of southern Africa seemed, to many outside observers, an impossibly distant goal. After the heady wine of the previous decade, in which a score of African countries had regained at least a nominal form of political independence from the colonial powers, the southward thrust of nationalism was halted. The white racist regimes, assisted by western powers and even by the United Nations, were staging a counteroffensive.

In the vanguard was the irrepressible Moise Tshombe, the traitor who, stalemated in his western-backed attempt to separate the mineral-rich Katanga from the Congo, had been installed as premier of the central Congolese government. His mandate from the forces which backed him was simple: to crush by any means necessary a revolutionary movement in the Congo which was seeking a second and genuine independence.

From Zimbabwe (so-called Rhodesia) and Azania (South Africa) white mercenaries streamed into "fight communism," which in this context meant to kill Africans and maintain the puppet Tshombe in power. They were supported by American CIA-sponsored Cuban exiles flying American planes in strafing and bombing missions. By 1965 the rebellion had been crushed.

The collapse of the central African apartheid federation further south was by no means an unmixed blessing. If it had exposed the hypocrisy of the Welensky ideology of "racial partnership," dissolved the alliance between Welensky and traitor Tshombe and secured independence of Zambia under revolutionary leadership of Kenneth Kaunda, it had also consolidated forces of reaction.

In Malawi, reactionary president Banda dismissed the more progressive section of his cabinet and set a course which would bring him into formal alliance with apartheid regime of South Africa. And Southern Rhodesia, third colony of the abortive federation, was under the openly racist rule of imperialist Ian Smith and would assert its independence from British imperialism in the UDI of November, 1965.

South African public opinion is being softened up for the dispatch of a qualitatively larger troop contingent to the Portuguese colonial territories. In this context the commencement of fighting within South Africa itself becomes a matter for strategic decision within the total southern African context.

In South Africa itself the situation in this period was, if anything, even more desperate. After the banning of the African nationalist organizations in 1960, a slow and difficult process of regrouping had begun underground. Meanwhile the apartheid government launched a massive and brutal campaign of persecution, spearheaded by Justice Minister Vorster, to crush all manifestations of opposition, to remove all potential cadres.

Detention without trial, house arrest, censorship, restrictions on movement and assembly: these were the legislative measures. The police were encouraged in the use of torture with water and electricity and such mental strains as solitary confinement. Between 1963 and 1965, thousands of activists, and many innocents, were jailed. Some had talked, some had been informed on. Others had committed suicide or been murdered by overzealous police. On July 11, 1963, came perhaps the biggest blow of all: the arrest of almost the entire high command of Umkhonto We Sizwe (Spear of the Nation), the military wing of the African National Congress. The opening of a guerrilla front in southern Africa closed the strategic and geographic gap that had existed before. Now from the Indian Ocean to the Ethiopian Ocean there is continuous activity: Angola, Mozambique, Zimbababwe, Namibia and Azania. Already there are 1,700 South African troops at least in Zimbababwe who are indispensable to the maintenance of Ian Smith's imperialist regime. South African troops and equipment are in use in Mozambique, Angola and Malawi.

South African public opinion is being softened up for the dispatch of a qualitatively larger troop contingent to Portuguese colonial territories. In context the commencement of fighting within South Africa itself becomes a matter for strategic decision within the total southern African context. Ultimately, in other words, four million white South Africans must be responsible for the defense of white privilege in subcontinent.

Such a task — maintaining an industrial economy as well as armed forces — among 28 million Africans — is in the run quite impossible. Their efforts bound to fail because they oppose current of history. Like in Vietnam, western imperialism headed by the United States of America will be defeated by African people. Our pledge is only on carry on the fight for freedom, independence of southern Africa, vindicating the cause for which many of our people died.

REMEMBER, THERE WILL BE DEMONSTRATION AND BATTLE AGAINST AMERICAN AND BRITISH IMPERIALISM AND THEIR SUPPORT OF SOUTH AFRICAN APARTHEID AND PORTUGUESE REACTIONARY REGIMES IN AFRICA ON MAY 25, 1971.

The solidarity day — May 25, 1971 — appears to have the potential of being one of the largest mass events on international level ever sponsored by African world. The governments of Tanzania, Zambia, Guinea and African states have given their consent support.

The Taylor document monument to attrition

The faculty has won the long war of attrition over the Taylor nee McKee nee Massey Report. Friday, the board of trustees passed the enfeebled, skeleton of the original Report on Student Participation in Academic Governance.

From the start the odds were in the faculty's favor. In the wake of the student activism of the late sixties and the movement's demand for a piece of the academic power pie, the Academic Council agreed to begin work on a "second Academic Freedom Report," an emancipation proclamation for the student body.

But as the passage of time has borne out, this concession was little more than a delaying tactic. To expect the prerogative-jealous faculty to freely share their power mandate with the student body is as realistic as assuming that the white supremacists or South Africa would take blacks into their government.

Keeping faith with the letter of his charge, Massey drafted a document that would have represented a concrete, though partial, realization of student participation in academic governance. This mild recommendation, however, proved too bitter a pill for the Academic Council to swallow, and though it took two more committees to do it, the academic executioner's ax finally fell.

The resultant emasculated Taylor Report has now become legal writ for the University. It grants students some representation on the Academic Council but explicitly excludes them from consideration of "matters of exclusion concern to the faculty, matters affecting the distinctly professional duties of the faculty" and "matters in which the distinctly professional rights of the faculty are at issue." Translation: salary, tenure, promotion, hiring and firing, — in general, the central concerns of academic governance.

Two years ago such a monument to bad faith would not have stood a chance of student acceptance. But two years is the academic life time of the average student. Most of the original cadre of student participation proponents have gone and those who came after fell away to implied faculty threat that "We've already gone out of our way, so take it or leave it."

To the latecomer to the student participation battle, not truly cognizant of the broken promises that went before, seemed like a reasonable contention. At all 31 seats, though limited in franchise, seem to represent a vast improvement of 3 non-voting memberships. Besides, the Taylor Report has been enacted provisionally for a period of two years. Conclusion: the students had better take what they have gotten and use this springboard for more substantial gains in 1973.

Such reasoning overlooks two important realities of academic politics. The one hand, once a document, however imperfect, becomes written statute it is to turn to legal granite highly resistant to change. Secondly, the faculty won the battle of the Taylor Report by extending the debate over a two-year period and thereby, effectively wearing down resistance. There is no evidence to indicate that things will be different between 1973 and 1973.

If students are to ultimately obtain voice in the decision-making process this University it will not be because of Taylor Report. Only departmental college doors remain even partially open to student participation, and it is at the levels that the student power base must be built — and rapidly, for there the manifest danger that the Taylor precedent will soon begin to trickle through all levels of the Academic Council the student body finally gave in to faculty contention that an imperfect document was better than none. In the Taylor Report may tend to establish strict parameters for student power will endure for the foreseeable future.

And the student body will come realize that the key they were handed served not to open the door to participation in academic governance, rather to lock them securely in a where they can bother no one themselves.

Moog stars at light show

By TONI PELLILLO
State News Staff Writer

The old musicians worked with valves, strings and wood to make their music. The new ones use wave generators, synthesizers, wires and filters to produce their music — the "electronic sound."

"Stellarphonic Moog," an eerie light and sound show that began over the weekend at Abrams Planetarium, is an example of a totally "electric experience," using a relatively new musical instrument, the moog synthesizer. An MSU graduate student and two music majors were at the controls behind the moog. The Eye See the Light Show provided the visual effects.

The sky theater (alias the planetarium) was a red glow as the crowd filed in. On stage, there was a heap of metal, countless knobs and dials, thousands of wires, a few tape recorders, a microphone, a digital counter and a piano-like keyboard looking strangely out of place among the scientific-type surroundings.

Three chairs face the machinery and the back of one reads: High Voltage. When the players walk in, sit with their backs towards the audience and begin manipulating the control knobs, you might think you were about to witness pilots preparing for a takeoff.

Instead, the lights flash and swirl from 12 hidden projectors and the electronic sounds begin oozing out. After a slow start and an eerie buildup, the moog players jumped into a supernatural theme — sounds imaginable during the Creation as the earth whizzed through space — bounced off the ceiling and walls while the light show provided appropriate and coordinate images.

Suddenly the moog became a war machine. As slides of military men flashed all around, the moog emitted sounds of military equipment in heavy fire and jungle noises, and successfully created the terror-filled atmosphere of war. Injected among the warfare were happy, colorful slides of children laughing and playing — the placidness of peace. Accordingly, the moogplayers adjusted to create a fitting mood.

Regardless of the complicated and technical aspects of the moog (rhymes with vogue), it has the capacity to be a musical instrument rather than just a memory bank computer. The moog uses electronics, physics and math to create a medium of expression. The technical knowledge is necessary to build sounds and tones from their component parts.

The basic elements of the moog machine are amplifiers, mixers, filters and voltage-controlled oscillators.

Amplifiers alter the intensity of a sound signal. Mixers allow controlled combinations of signals and permit their wave frequencies and alternate others. Voltage-controlled oscillators are generators (or creators of signals) that produce periodic wave forms under the control of externally applied voltage ("control voltage").

The machine used at the planetarium presentation was a $25,000 monstrosity owned by the MSU Dept. of Music for two years.

Players commented that the opening and closing of the presentation was live but that various other portions were partially or totally taped.

New Yorker Robert A. Moog invented the machine in 1955. The first synthesizer was huge enough to fill a small room and cost $100,000. Today, many groups (Beatles, Rolling Stones, Emerson-Lake-and-Palmer) often rely on the moog for unique electronic sounds they insert into their recordings.

Experts say that in the near future totally computerized moogs will be commonplace.

Junior 500, trike race complete Greek Week

Two major events, the Lambda Chi Alpha "Junior 500" and the Delta Chi trike race, brought Greek Week to a close Saturday and Sunday.

In defiance of a long-standing tradition, non-Greek groups snared two out of three prizes in the men's division Saturday afternoon's "Junior 500." Sororities held firm in the women's contest, taking all three trophies.

Placing first in the pushcart contest around West Circle Drive was Asher House Men, followed by last year's champions, Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Evans Scholars placed third.

Kappa Delta sorority triumphed in the women's division, with Delta Zeta and Sigma Kappa sororities close behind.

The only non-campus sponsored entry, the Mac's Bar Flammers, who shared their liquid provisions with their competitors during the race, made a valiant and nearly successful effort to qualify for the finals only to wipe out on the treacherous turn near Gilchrist Hall.

In action Sunday, Alpha Gamma Delta sorority placed first in the Delta Chi trike race, with Zeta Tau Alpha and Delta Gamma sororities taking second and third.

In the epic run of the race, one girl fell over the finish line, winning the race for her house.

Recital to feature works written for 2 pianos, 4 hands

Piano music of the 20th century will be heard in a two-piano recital by two University music students at 8:15 p.m. today in the Music Bldg. auditorium.

William Moulton, East Lansing senior, and David Neumeyer, Bay City junior will perform works for two pianos and for four hands on a single piano. Both are members of MSU's New Musical Arts Ensemble, which is sponsoring the free public concert.

The pianist will open with Eric Satie's 1903 composition, "Three Pieces in the Shape of a Pear."

Also included will be two compositions by MSU composers: Jere Hutcheson's "Electrons (1968)," a piano solo performed by Neumeyer; and "The Plastic Zygot (1971)" a two-piano work by L. Earl Morgan, music composition senior.

Batsmen win Big Ten crown

MSU, however, had equal trouble with the pitching of Illini Bill Hodges, and both Spartan runs were unearned.

The first nine Spartans had gone down in order before a throwing error by Nicholson allowed Spartan leadoff man Boyce to reach base in the fourth.

The next two batters were easy outs for Hodges and he appeared to have Pruitt out on a fly to right. But for the second straight day the right fielder became disaster personified as he dropped the fly ball, allowing Boyce to score. Oliver then connected for the first of only two MSU hits, driving in Pruitt with a sharp single to center.

A miscue on a fly ball against Michigan, Friday, had given the Wolverines two runs in the seventh to tie the score.

Ike and Clancy completely controlled the powerful Purdue hitting Friday, giving up a pair of runs apiece. Ike yielded a two run homer and Clancy was touched for a home run and a single, double salvo that scored a run.

Both pitchers appeared in top form and were never in serious trouble. Clancy raised his record to 10-1, tying a season record for wins set in 1959 by Dick Ratz. Ike won his eighth straight game, bringing his record to 8-1.

In the first game, MSU jumped to a 2-0 lead on a two run homer by Pruitt and the Spartans were never behind or tied again that day.

A walk, three straight singles and a double to the fence by Ike gave MSU their last four runs of the game in the sixth inning.

A four run inning also highlighted the nightcap. The Spartans sent nine batters to the plate in the second inning, scoring on four hits. The big blow was Rashead's two run double, scoring Ron DeLonge and Whitey Rettenmund, who were on the bases with a walk and a single.

Back to back leadoff home runs by Rob Ellis and Ron Pruitt started a three run seventh inning. After two men were retired, Rettenmund walked and Rashead and Clancy delivered singles scoring Rettenmund.

Litwhiler wanted to play everyone who made the road trip, so in Saturday's second game he put together a makeshift line-up and rotated four pitchers on the mound.

MSU went ahead 2-1 on a two run blast by John Rohde but Brian Lieckfeldt and Rick Deller each gave up two runs resulting in the final score of 5-2.

Perhaps the only disappointment of the weekend was Ellis losing his bid to win the conference batting title. Going into Friday's contest he trailed Purdue's Terry Wedgewood .489 to .486 and after the double header was behind by only .001.

But Ellis, playing with a slightly injured wrist, could not get a hit against Illinois in four at bats, while Wedgewood clobbered the Michigan pitching for four hits in seven trips to the plate.

The MSU lacrosse team looked like Midwest champions Saturday — for about three minutes.

The Spartans raced off to an early 3-0 lead over a powerful Wittenberg college team, but couldn't sustain the drive and fell, 9-6, in what had to be the most physical game of the year.

Doug Kalvelage faked short and fired long past the Wittenberg goalie with only 25 seconds elapsed in the game. Dan Denov scored his 11th and 12th goals of the season in the next two minutes and it looked like another MSU runaway.

Wittenberg, now 7-3, was not to be brushed aside so easily and scored the next six goals to snap the MSU winning streak at three. Kalvelage blew three shots by the Wittenberg goalie and assisted Denov and Val

Washington on scores. The goals gave Kalvelage 17 for the season. With 15 assists for a total of 32 points, Kalvelage led every aspect of scoring this year. Washington with 15 goals and Denov with 12 are the reason the Spartans have begun to come up in the lacrosse world.

Two Spartans were injured in the bone-jarring battle. In the stretch MSU lost George Larkin who has been hampered with injuries all season, and Mike Moody, an irreplaceable defenseman.

If penalties can be any indication of how rough a game is played, then the MSU-Wittenberg match was brutal beyond all previous matches. Thirty-one penalties were distributed and the grass in the penalty box didn't see sunlight for the full two hours.

Eighteen of the infractions were against Wittenberg and MSU's inability to capitalize on these opportunities cost it the game. MSU scored once on a Wittenberg penalty but by Coach Ted Swoboda's rule of at least one goal for every three penalties, the Spartans should have scored five more, enough for a 11-9 win.

MSU lacrosse, 4-7 this year, has come a long, long way from the days of 25-2 drubbings and a longest season winning streak of one. The Spartans moved out of the Midwest Lacrosse Association cellar this year and ended the season tied with Oberlin for sixth place with a 1-5 conference record. Denison won the division with a perfect 7-0 record.

Football tickets

Regular game tickets for the 1971 MSU football season go on sale for MSU students Monday morning at the athletic office in Jensen Fieldhouse.

Students must have ID and will be limited to two tickets per applicant for the home U-M game and away Notre Dame and Ohio State contests. Tickets are $6 each except Notre Dame tickets which are $8 each.

Students will be requested to give mailing addresses to which the tickets can be sent and will be charged 25 cents for each game to cover mailing costs.

Tickets will go on sale to the public June 1.

Gene Littler wins Colonial Tourney at three-over

FORT WORTH, TEX., (UPI) — Little Gene Littler birdied three of the last six holes to storm out of the pack and win the wind-ravaged Colonial National Invitation title Sunday with a 37-32-69 and a three-over-par 283 — highest winning tour total since 1963.

Leisman had been scheduled to work the first game and Maas the second but Litwhiler reasoned that Maas was a senior pitching his final regular season game and he wanted to give him an extra chance to impress any professional scouts.

Little could be more impressive than the no hit game that the Utica senior hurled at the Illinois team.

There are many ways to be "class" ball player. Rob Ellis showed one of them Saturday.

Fighting for the Big Ten Batting Championship, Ellis trailed Purdue's Terry Wedgewood by .001. The Spartan junior had injured his wrist Friday, leaping against a fence in a vain attempt to stop him, and he would have every right to sit out both games against Illinois. Not wanting back into the title he played the first game and began Litwhiler to let him play the second game also.

Tigers bomb Denny McLain

DETROIT (UPI) — Two home runs by Al Kaline and Norm Cash in the first game Sunday doubleheader decided the first pitching meeting between Mickey Lolich and Denny McLain as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Washington Senators, 5-0.

Lolich's four hit shutout gave him a 7-3 record while McLain, who always outshined Lolich when both were with the Tigers, dipped to 4-7 with new club.

GOV. MILLIKEN Thursday called for a 1.3 per cent increase in the state income tax rate effective next Jan. 1.

The proposed increase, an attempt to offset projected deficits in the state budget at the end of fiscal 1971-72, exceeds the original proposal last February which called for a 1.0 per cent increase.

Under Milliken's proposal, the 3 per cent raise would be continued July 1, 1972, when the rate would return to his originally proposed 1.0 per cent rate.

Milliken's action came two days after one of his top economic advisors warned that the governor's original proposal would not prevent the state from falling into the red at the end of fiscal 1972.

The state court of appeals ruled Thursday that the amount of drugs found in a person's possession must be considered in drug possession cases.

Court precedent previously had allowed convictions for illegal possession of drugs regardless of how small an amount was discovered in a person's possession.

The court ruled that Michigan courts must determine whether the amount found "is a remnant of a larger usable amount."

"If that inference can be made, illegal possession is established," the court ruled.

The ruling was meant to discontinue convictions based only on discovery of traces of illegal drugs found in a person's possession.

Diplomat found murdered near consulate in Turkey

imposition of a 15-hour curfew to permit a house-to-house search of Istanbul by 30,000 troops and police.

It was during this search that the body was found. The apartment building is just under a half mile from Elrom's home and only 1,500 feet from the Israeli Consulate.

A massive manhunt, in force since Elrom was abducted from his home in Istanbul on Monday, continued for the killers.

His body was flown home to Israel in a flag-covered coffin Sunday night in a Turkish air force jet that also carried his widow.

Elrom was well known in Israel as the No. 2 interrogator of Adolf Eichmann, the Nazi war criminal hanged in Israel

May 31, 1962.

Police sources said the apartment where Elrom was found belonged to a woman, Semih Olcayto. She told them she rented the apartment 45 days ago to two young men who said they were an engineer and an accountant.

Police said that on Saturday night, before the curfew started at midnight, five young men left the apartment carrying suitcases and told the concierge not to say anything or he would be killed. He apparently complied.

All-volunteer army gets YMCA support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Completing its first foray into political matters, the YMCA Sunday endorsed the concept of an all-volunteer army and urged Congress to permit the draft law to expire June 30.

The 450-member council of YMCAs in approving the resolutions asserted "our national defense can and should be insured by those who willingly volunteer for military service."

The council one day earlier called for "complete withdrawal of all military forces from Vietnam . . . at the earliest possible time."

The action came at the end of the three-day annual meeting of the 7.5-million-member organization.

In other action, Donald M. Payne, first black president of the organization, was re-elected, the only person ever to hold the office for three consecutive terms.

Trustees OK Taylor Report

committee, three undergraduates appointed by the chairman of MSU and three graduate students appointed by the president of COGS.

At least four of the six members selected by COGS and MSU must be nonwhite, and at least two of the six must be women.

There will be a total of 98 student positions open on the committees of the Academic Council, with the exception of a new committee on Faculty Compensation, which will have student representatives.

The participation report issued by the trustees has been subject of extensive debate at Academic Council and Academic Senate meetings for more than two years. On November 5, 1968, the council directed the Committee on Committees to select an ad hoc committee "to study the matter of student participation in the academic government of the University, notably with respect to the question of the freedom of units of the University to determine whether or not student members will be given the right to vote."

The ad hoc committee chaired by Gerald J. Massey, professor of philosophy, who has since left MSU, first met in January, 1969.

The committee spent several months collecting information about the extent, nature and effectiveness of student participation in academic government at MSU and at other universities.

The report of the Student Participation in Academic Government (SPAG) committee issued in April, 1969, declared that effective student participation "is best achieved by bringing students, in sufficient numbers, into the existing policy-making and decision-making bodies and committees of departments, schools, colleges and the University, rather than by proliferating parallel student advisory groups."

This statement, along with the recommendation that wherever student are members of a body or committee they should be given a vote, remained basically unaltered through several major revisions of the report.

After extended debate, the Academic Council recommended that the SPAG report be returned to a new faculty-student committee for revision. The new committee was chaired by James B. McKee, professor of sociology. Its report, which became known as the McKee Report, eventually suffered the same fate as the Massey Report, after it secured passage in the Academic Council but was defeated in the Academic Senate.

A third and final committee appointed by the council, chaired by John F.A. Taylor, professor of philosophy, succeeded in steering a student participation report through both the Academic Council and the Academic Senate. However, the report was subsequently rejected by the trustees.

The trustees returned the report to the Academic Council with instructions to ensure the representation of women students on the council and to include several statements guaranteeing the authority of the board.

The council accepted the recommendations concerning the inclusion of a provision which ensures council representation for women, and included in the report the statement that "within the constraints of the constitutional authority of the board of trustees the Academic Council shall be the final authority with regard to the interpretation of these bylaws."

The council rejected a trustee-proposed amendment which would have provided that any amendment to the faculty bylaws "affecting the substance of academic governance shall be referred to the board of trustees for its approval."

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Britain's national rail system is spending $60 million to electrify 230 miles of track between Glasgow and the English city of Grewe, which will complete electrification of the 40-mile Glasgow-London line.

Mercury testing to cause higher priced canned tuna

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers soon will pay through the pocketbook for new, approved, low-mercury canned tuna.

The nation's entire stock of popular fish has been free of hazardous levels of mercury since February according to the Food and Drug Administration.

But costly dockside testing of canned tuna safe adding to price consumers soon will pay at the grocery store.

"I'm very much afraid the mercury program will increase prices," Robert Nordstrom of the National Canners Association said in an interview.

Richard Ronk, head of the A's mercury surveillance, agreed. Neither official would guess at how much more of tuna will cost.

The tuna industry's drive to eliminate fish with high concentrations of mercury followed the FDA's initial ruling last December that 23 percent of a limited number of samples exceeded safety limits of 0.5 parts of mercury per million parts of fish.

The FDA's final test figures in January showed significantly higher - 3.6 per cent of the nation's supply of 166 million cans of tuna exceeded guideline.

All the dangerous cans have been removed from the market, the FDA said.

The tuna industry has instituted several safety precautions to insure that mercury levels are kept low.

For one thing, Nordstrom said, the catches from all American tuna boats now are tested at dockside to detect and eliminate fish with high mercury levels.

For another, American canners have stopped importing large varieties of tuna - particularly blue fin and big eye - which accumulate the most poison.

The mercury problem has not, however, forced any change in the fishing habits of the American fleet.
