Taped in Washington Sunday and aired on CBS and various other stations while McGovern was campaigning in Chicago, the speech aimed also at the acknowledged concern of McGovern strategists that voters familiar with McGovern's promises of peace doubted that any president could stop the fighting.

McGovern said he would do it by ordering the military out of Vietnam as soon as he takes office.

"Immediately after taking my oath as president," he said, "if the war has not ended by then, I would issue a national security directive to the secretary of defense, to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and to our commands in the field, with the following orders:

McGovern said he then would notify Hanoi that the United states had taken steps to end the hostilities and call on them to honor their offer to return all prisoners of war and account for all missing in action

He said he expected this to be completed within 90 days, coinciding with the U.S. withdrawal.

"We would further notify all parties that the United States, will no longer interfere in the internal politics of Vietnam," he said, "and that we will allow the Vietnamese people to work out their own settlement.'

"The United States is prepared to cooperate to see that any settlement, including a coalition government, gains international recognition.

"Thirdly," McGovern said, "I would send the vice president to Hanoi to speed the arrangements for the return of our prisoners and an accounting of the missing.

After all prisoners have been returned, McGovern said, he would order closing of U.S. bases in Thailand and return of troops and equipment there. And he said he would reassign else where any ships stationed off Indochina.

McGovern's plan would not be contingent on an Indochina-wide cease - fire, as called for by President Nixon as a condition for U.S. withdrawal, and it would pledge the United States to stay out of "internal politics of Vietnam."

Nixon's terms also have specified release of U.S. prisoners as a pre - requisite for a U. S. pullout. And he has repeatedly stressed he is against imposition of a communist government on South Vietnam by force.

The speech was broadcast on 153 CBS affiliates, plus 34 other stations. Cost of the air time was estimated by

After hearing the published

The Post said it has learned the FBI allegation of political spying and sabotage, the chairman of the House Banking Committee blamed President Nixon for what he called a Republican attempt "to assassinate an entire political party through espionage."

Rep. Wright Patman, D - Tex., said he would try again to get his committee to hold an investigation. Patman's committee last week voted 20 - 15 not to investigate the Watergate incident.

But committee member Ben Blackburn, R - Ga., said Republicans would be "crazy" to testify.

At a news conference, Patman said he holds the President directly responsible for what he described as "the most sordid political tactics ever employed by a major political party."

His comments were echoed by Sen. George McGovern and his running mate Sartgent Shriver.

"President Nixon is in charge of his political handbooks of the totalitarian countries."

In its story Tuesday, the Post called the espionage - sabotage campaign "unprecedented in scope and intention."

The Post said federal investigators have determined the campaign's objectives included:

"Following members of Democratic candidates families and assembling dossiers on their personal lives, forging letters and distributing them under candidates' letterheads, leaking false and manufactured items to the press, throwing campaign schedules into disarray, seizing confidential campaign files and investigating the lives of dozens of Democratic campaign workers." The Post specifically accused Ken W. Clawson, deputy director of White House Communications of manufacturing a letter published by The Manchester, N. H., Union Leader saying Sen. Edmund M. Muskie, D - citizens of French descent as "Canucks."

Clawson denied writing the letter. William Loeb, the Union Leader's publisher, called the Post article "dirty political pool" and added: "The Washington Post has fabricated the whole affair to discredit the White House."

White House spokesman declined further comment, saying officials of the re - election committee had already responded adequately. DeVan L. Shumway, spokesman for the Maine, referred to New England Committee for the Re-election of the President, called the article "a piece of fiction."

Patman said he will summon all members of his banking committee to a speccial session this Thursday and

COGS challenges PIRGIM balloting

By JOHN LINDSTROM State News Staff Writer

The Council of Graduate Students (COGS) is challenging the results of the recently held Public Interest Research Group In Michigan (PIRGIM) referendum because of what it claims was illegal inclusion of graduate students in the balloting.

Rob Menson, COGS president, charged that the petitions used by PIRGIM to establish the referendum were collected only from undergraduate students, but that all students - graduate and undergraduate - were ballotted in the

"The referendum was illegal because of all the shenanigans involved with the petitioning," Menson said Monday. "We are asking the judiciary to invalidate all portions of the referendum that refer to graduate students."

COGS does not oppose the principle behind PIRGIM, Menson said, it opposes the way the referendum was Menson, who filed the suit Friday in the graduate judiciary, announced the action at a COGS meeting Monday.

The referendum, held during fall registration, passed PIRGIM's proposal for a voluntary student tax by a more than two to one margin.

The petitions used for the referendum were collected last spring for PIRGIM original referendum, held during the ASMSU general election.

"Many of the graduate students I talked to felt they weren't members of the regular student body, so the referendum didn't apply to them and

Drug shipments seized

Newly forged cooperation between United States narcotics agents and South American police forces has led to the seizure of two large drug shipments bound for the United States.

Brazilian federal police found 132 pounds of heroin wrapped in sheepskin in the hold of an American freight bound for New York. Across the continent Peruvian policemen and a Chilean detective closed in on a man in Lima, Peru, and seized 55 pounds of cocaine.

Behind the operations was the intelligence work of the United Nations Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, which has increased its number of agents in South American cities more than sixfold this year.

East Lansing American Legion Post 205 Monday night, by a 20 - 11 margin, passed an amnesty proposal that new post members, many of whom are affiliated with the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW) offered and voted upon.

The proposal, which passed after hours of debate, corresponds to an antiwar proposal that passed at the Sept. 4 business meeting.

The amnesty proposal states in part: "Having condemned American participation in the South East Asia as illegal and immoral we demand the United States grant loyal repatriation to those whose beliefs and ideology opposed America's participation in South East Asia.'

A motion to send the proposal to President Nixon Tuesday was then passed, American Legion member and state coordinator for the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, Ronald McClellan, said.

The two proposals and a motion to study possible use of the American Legion facility for a day care center, which also passed, were adamantly opposed by long standing members, he said.

Passage was secured by the larger group of new members composed of VVAW members and those of the now defunct East Lansing Veterans' For Peace, McClellan said. Post 205 commander, and professor of human nutrition,

Lawrence E. Dawson, said the proposals will not mean anything unless they are adopted at the district, state and national level. These bodies will not meet in convention until next summer, but Dawson said, the antiwar proposal has been forwarded to district headquarters for their consideration. The post's constitution requires proposals to be sent to the post's due - paying members before a final vote can be conducted.

Faculty group's fliers compare colleges pay

By BECKIE HANES State News Staff Writer

Faculty Associates (MSU - FA) listed the average salaries at MSU for the 1972 - 73 academic year in a series of fliers sent to faculty Tuesday.

The purpose of listing the average faculty salaries for each of the colleges was to show inequity at all levels, an MSU - FA spokesman who declined to be identified, said Tuesday. "All the figures were checked and double checked" he said.

The figures were based on faculty salary list presented to the board of trustees July 28.

But the administration decided not to use that list because it was incomplete. The list did not include newly hired faculty members.

Provost John E. Cantlon's office was to revise the list by Sept. 15 but was delayed. The complete list is scheduled to be distributed

Carr offers innovation, hope for 6th congressional District

In an election year filled with lackluster choices in many offices, the candidacy of M. Robert Carr for U.S. Congress offers a refreshing and promising individual to represent the 6th District.

Articulate and well - informed Carr maintains an open - minded and innovative approach to the serious issues facing Congress and the country.

his strongest Among credentials is his legal background as an assistant state attorney general concerned with environmental protection. Carr advocates the right of citizens to initiate law suits to protect the environment.

In contrast, incumbent Charles Chamberlain, Carr's opponent, has been named to the "Dirty Dozen" Environmental Action for voting against the clean water bill, against stronger pesticide control, and for the SST.

On the Indochina war, Carr maintains he has wanted to vote against a defense appropriation for a long time. Furthermore, Carr is against the draft.

Oops

Pamela Stern, Democratic candidate for county commissioner for the 7th District, was inadvertently dropped in Tuesday's editorial endorsing Democratic candidates.

Maintaining there are better methods for achieving school integration than busing, Carr does not believe congress should enact legislation on busing. Rather he would leave it up to local school boards and the court system. Welfare reform, however, must be accomplished by Congress through a negative income tax and increased federal jobs, Carr believes.

Carr promises to make all records of his committee attendance and voting open to public scrutiny. He says he will establish an ombudsman to aid constituents with governmental problems and will visit the district three weekends a month.

Though the 29 - year - old Carr is a political novice, he has undertaken an aggressive and tough campaign, attempting to reach personally as many voters as possible. Be it campaigning at factory gates or discussing issues with residence hall students, Carr's campaign reflects planning and preparation which would make him an extremely competent congressman.

In sharp contrast to Carr, Chamberlain is an entrenched congressman who haunts the 6th District like a ghost. Except for newsletters and election - time television advertising, Chamberlain remains aloof and obscure to the voters. He flaunts his position on the House Ways and Means Committe which handles tax matters.

But during Chamberlain's tenure the committee, meeting in closed sessions, has continued to create tax loopholes for corporate interests while tax reforms which will benefit the public have languished in legislative limbo.

Carr knows he cannot take the student vote for granted because of the heterogeneous nature of the MSU population. Nevertheless, he will need student support to win this race and he deserves that support.

Sperm cells are incapable of jumping out of bed, leaping tall buildings in a single bound, are far slower than a steaming locomotive and incapable of making a woman pregnant, unless they are deposited into the opening of the vagina. Therefore, when petting to orgasm in the nude, it is merely necessary to make sure that ejaculation does not occur with the penis in immediate maintain the same smooth contour proximity to the vaginal opening.

If a man took testosterone while on an exercise program, could he expect greater muscular development than if he simply exercised without the hormone supplement?

Muscle shape appears dependent upon the presence or absence of testosterone, the male sex hormone. In the presence of testosterone, muscles tend to have the more rounded bulging appearance that is characteristically seen among men. Weight lifting in particular tends to accentuate this type of muscle configuration in a man. The woman, on the other hand, can increase her muscle mass and still that we associate with the feminine physique. It is not at all clear that the shape of a muscle is related to its useful strength. Women athletes develop tremendous strength and stamina without the apparent muscle mass of their male counterparts.

While the administration of certain hormones in conjunction with an exercise program may increase the amount of muscular development, such practices are generally considered dangerous because of side effects of the hormones. Such hormones produce weight gain and there is no good evidence linking male hormones to increased performance. Strength and quickness are not affected and the increased weight is due to fluid retention.

Then the leadership of both parties resorted to parliamentary technicalities to defeat any aid for on his own financial resources round mass transit out of the highway trust fund.

Responding to intense White House pressure, the House Banking Committee blocked a public inquiry into the Watergate scandal before the election. At his news conference, President Nixon capped the week by once again boldly disavowing any knowledge or responsibility for that ugly scandal which involves his closest Probably in no other country would a private citizen relying up a group of volunteers to make an assessment of the national legislature. It is a characteristically American venture in citizen action.

Action, belated and still inadequate to the peril, is finally being taken against the pesticides which slaughter insects, poison the soil, and endanger nature's life - nourishing system. Pesticides are an issue today because 10 years ago one woman, Rachel Carson, wrote a book, "Silent Spring" which provoked national debate.

In fact, the entire environmental movement is a welling up of the concern of individual citizens and comparatively small membership organizations like the Sierra Club. Friends of the Earth, the Wilderness Society, Scenic Hudson Preservation, and numerous others. A few extraordinary individuals have emerged and helped give the movement its cutting edge. But essentially, environmentalism has become a major force in American life because ordinary citizens concerned about a particular stretch of land or body of water began to speak up and speak out - and discovered they were not alone.

A final example could be cited in the field of animal welfare. Animals cannot lobby for themselves and they are victims of every kind of danger from commercial greed to unthinking neglect to deliberate destruction of their lives and habitat. Cleveland Amory, well known as a witty television personality and the author of "The Proper Bostonians," has organized the fund for animals to campaign against cruelty to animals. He finances it in considerable part out of his own earnings. The murder of baby seals in Canada, the endangered existence of the wolf, the inadvertent killing every year by tuna fishermen of thousands of friendly, intelligent dolphins - these are some of the problems which Amory and other private citizens have forced upon the attention of our own government and of foreign governments. What is true of environmentalism and animal welfare is true of citizens working for peace, for racial understanding, for sanity in education, for better local planning. do not mean to suggest that

Gun threat

Today I read something which really ticked me off. Your columnist, Bob Novosad, rose to the defense of our heroic hunters fighting in the forests of America.

Gone are the frontier days when men had to hunt for food to survive. Today's hunting is "just for sport," though there's absolutely nothing sporty about hunting. I am not a city slicker; I come from an agricultural area where most of my friends had guns and hunted frequently. I did not. I can enjoy a walk in a green forest (what few are left), without taking a gun along. Psychologists say that guns are a phallic symbol, but not everyone needs that kind of reassurance. What is manly about hunting? Where is the sport?

Last year there was a news story about a game preserve established to protect various forms of wildlife from extinction by big industrial progress and hunters. The only problem was that some brave hunters who love the "intrinsic beauty of the rifle" waited just outside the game preserve and shot the birds as they left the boundaries of the sanctuary. That really took guts!

No, I am not a bleeding - heart liberal. Perhaps, as Novosad says, hunters are necessary to preserve nature's balance. I wonder, though, how nature took care of the situation before men assumed the responsibility. Hunters have made their contributions, of course. They've made the California condor, American eagle, snowy owl, fox, grizzly bear, egret, and dozens of other animals on this earth nearly extinct. And when was the last time anybody saw a passenger pigeon? Novosad fears the antihunting lobby, but the real danger, the real threat to this nation is the all powerful gun lobby, made up primarily of hunters, who continue to block any form of gun registration.

Perhaps the spirit of hunting will be here until the last man dies, and that last man will not be shot by a deer.

No account

To the Editor:

During a recent visit to East Lansing State Bank ("your hometown bank"), I came across a pamphlet for a Master Charge card. Considering it a good way to establish a credit rating, in addition to being a handy item in the event of an emergency, I filled out the application form and presented it to a bank representative.

The man asked me to answer a few questions, one of the first of which was whether I had a job, to which I said no. After another 10 minutes of questions, he asked if I would be willing to transfer my checking account from home to his bank in addition to the savings account I prefer not to. Following this answer, the representative said because of my lack of job, he would have to refuse my application. Leaving the bank, I wondered why he hadn't told me this earlier. Could it have been because I wasn't willing to transfer my checking account? Impossible, after all, East Lansing State Bank is "your hometown bank."

Two nights later I was listening to a local radio station when I heard an advertisement which stated "East Lansing State Bank now offers Master Charge to any MSU student, junior or above." Realizing I fit both conditions, I went back to the bank to question this misrepresentation. The man told me that the bank offers Master Charge to any junior or above, but it doesn't have to accept anyone's application.

Unimpressed by this explanation and his promise to put my request for a less ambiguous radio advertisement in the "suggestion box," I talked to some of my friends about the matter. I discovered four or them had been similarly rejected for Master Charge because they didn't have an account at the bank.

I considered the possiblity that his business was trying to mislead the student through fraudulent advertising. In addition, I speculated that banking at East Lansing State Bank was the sole criterion for acceptance as a Master Charge customer. These possibilities were quickly dismissed upon remembering that East Lansing State Bank is "my hometown bank," or was before I closed my account.

Why kill?

In the State News Friday, one of the editorial writers explained why something he heard "ticked him off." He had been referred to as a killer, a murderer for simply participating in apparent the popular sport of hunting.

He defends his feeling of guilt explaining he doesn't go hunting kill or to experience the thrill of chase. "I go (hunting) because I lo the outdoors and everything in it. I because I love the sound of the n dripping off the leaves in the preday darkness." Surely the author must at his height of enjoying the "predaw darkness and the natural beauty of the world," as a timid predaw squirrel descends through the learn and plummets to the ground splendidly decorated with lead an wild designs of blood. In all his love for the outdoors and everything in it he has destroyed, with his love, a par of it. The fact that the squire probably would have starved to deal in the winter makes him no less killer. He certainly did not kill the squirrel to save its life.

My purpose in writing this letter not to protest hunting, nor to point out hunters are killers, and therefore are a meance to nature. For I too am killer. I realize from where the food consume came from. All animals all killers, however some are mon directly involved in killing than other At the top of the list of killers are the hunters, which is all right "if killing things". things turns them on." ABORTION: PRO AND CON

Make it safe and legal

To the Editor:

The Oct. 5 issue of the State News gives some of the pros and cons on abortion and leaves no doubt that the opponents of abortion law reform, Proposal B, have very flimsy arguments indeed. For example, basing legal rights for the fetus on the 14th Amendment is absurd; the 14th Amendment begins with the words: "All persons born or naturalized in the United States. . .

Recent court decisions have not centered around the rights of the fetus under the criminal code. Thalidomide babies who lived received a favorable court decision. In contrast, the Michigan Court of Appeals has interpreted the present law to mean that the woman is the victim, that a Michigan woman can have an abortion should also legalize infanticide and under specified conditions, and indicated that legislation is needed to explicitly outline the circumstances. The Circuit Court, on Oct. 5, struck the present abortion law and stopped all prosecution under this act. Court action on the issue has supported abortion law reform.

The moral concept of abortion as murder, according to the antiabortionists, is a declaration of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. To consider abortion murder is not a fact of law; it is not a widely held moral concept; it is not medically

The letter to the Editor in the same issue indicates that if we enact abortion law reform "perhaps we

I have not touched on the question of abortion for the health of the mother or child because that is a capital punishment." The writer apparently has not checked her facts. Father Daniel Callahan, former editor of Commonweal stated in his definitive work, Abortion: Law, Choice, and Morality: "When I got together a great deal of world data from the United Nations, I learned that there were no patterns whatever. Abortions are terribly high in the Eastern European countries; the murder rate is low. But in Latin America abortion is outlawed and the murder rate is high. Suicides are low in some places where abortion is high again. In some countries where abortion has been legal for 10 or 20 years, it has not been the case that they have also legalized infanticide or euthanasia. In fact, the Japanese outlawed infanticide at the time they legalized abortion."

We who support Proposal B do not advocate abortions. We recognize they are being done and we simply ask that they be done under the safest medical conditions here in Michigan without the imposition of the moral convictions of a minority being different question, with different imposed on the individuals directly

Vietnam peace talks extended

The President's assistant for national security affairs had been scheduled to return to Washington Tuesday night after three days of talks with North Vietnamese negotiators Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy.

But, at about the same time Paris airport officials were saying Kissinger's departure had been delayed, Ziegler told newsmen at the White House that Kissinger and the North Vietnamese "have agreed to extend the talks to a fourth

This means, he said, that Kissinger and his top assistant,

Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., will return to Washi Wednesday night to report to Nixon. Asked the signift of the extension, Ziegler replied, "I can't draw conclusions at all or discuss the talks."

This sudden development came after another day which officials again refused to disclose anything abo secret talks which, until now, never have extended for than two days.

There have been persistent reports that Kissing Haig were centering their discussions on the possible up of the South Vietnamese government after the fi ends. This long has been a principal obstacle to agree

School board revives forum

To mend the gap in school - community communications, the East Lansing Board of Education this year plans to schedule open meeting for public discussions.

At the Monday night board meeting, the members agreed to revive the open sessions, which were not held during the 1971 - 72 school year.

Tentative dates for the sessions are Dec. 18, Feb. 26 and April 30.

The board decided students and faculty *members: should also serve on the ad hoc committee which is responsible for organizing the meetings.

A public meeting to discuss tax reform proposals has also been slated by the board for 8 p.m. Oct. 19 in the East Lansing High School Auditorium.

The proposed merger of East Lansing public school's data processing systems with those of the Ingham Intermediate School District and Lansing Community College was also approved by the board.

The more narcisistic Marjoe becomes, the more the focus moves away from his viewpoint. He begins to shrink more and more into a "bad hype," and the audiences start to lose their herdlike ignorance.

Surely there is enough dishonesty in the movement to merit Marjoe's contempt, but nowhere are the people as despicable as Marjoe becomes.

The film provides Marjoe with the means to get out of his unwanted situation, which he says he was unable to do before. He intends to use the film as last attack on religion, a sort of hypocritical confession.

By the end of the film, one realizes Marjoe is intelligent enough to know publicity should be enough to launch him onto the career he so desperately wants, either movies or rock and roll.

Prancing on stage like Mick Jagger, one feels sorry for Marjoe's inability to escape the indoctrination of his youth, but not to the point of ignoring what he does to the Defense sparkles

By RICK GOSSELIN State News Sports Writer

It has been a long time since George Webster roamed Spartan Stadium. Bubba Smith, Harold Lucas, Charlie Thornhill, Al Brenner. . . even Ron Curl have all passed on to greener stadiums. But their defensive prowess is not missed. The present crew, faced with the mission impossible tasks of stopping the dynamo offenses of Southern Cal. Notre Dame, Michigan and Ohio State, is putting in a determined bid to join the great forefathers of MSU defensive teams.

And after half of the big four offenses have been mowed down by the Spartan defense (USC and Notre Dame to be exact), the names of those populating that unit are becoming more commonplace. Hayner, Simpson, Clark, Hamilton, McConnell, Shinsky, VanPelt. . . all are hitters to be reckoned with.

Gail Clark was the first to draw the big publicity after outstanding games against the Trojans and the Irish on back-to-back weekends. Clark was named as the defensive player of the game for his play against Notre Dame by ABC-TV.

"Clark definitely played his best football game in college last Saturday," defensive coordinator Denny Stolz commented. "He calls all of our defensive formations and is the team's quarterback. He's a great leader and displays it in his play on the field."

MSU's coaches were lavish in their praise of individuals on the defense and their play against the Irish.

"The total defense has a lot of pride in their performance," asst. coach Ed Youngs said. "There isn't any real star on the defense but they all play with unselfish abandon and as good team players. They really prepare themselves both mentally and physically. They adjust to the challenge they are faced with."

The defense will face another top flight offense Saturday in Ann Arbor against Michigan and will attempt to cut in half the Wolverines' average yardage as it did against USC and Notre Dame.

It would be ludicrous to expect 77,000 people to atta home cross-country meets. There would be no place for team to run. A nice round figure like 250 would be am favorable respresentation, though.

that they are not one of the best squads around, or at least they should.

The loss of Dujon for the year just about sealed the fate of the booters. His ball "I just don't have much control and scoring skills were sorely missed in the U-M game and will undoubtedly drop the mediocre Spartans into the sub-average class.

The coming weeks don't offer much consolation for the booters. On Oct. 21 the Spartans will take on the Salukis from Southern Illinois in an away battle. The Salukis are presently rated fourth in the country.

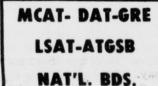

The season is only two games old and already the booters have suffered their first setback of the season with the U-M tie. It probably won't be the last.

The opening game contest with Hope saw one of the largest and most enthusiastic crowds on hand in recent years. It was heartening to Fuller and his players. What was and still is disheartening is the fact that the 1972 booters are not and Pat Casey and Jan contenders and coming seasons offer less hope.

This is not a write-off of the soccer team. It is just facing up to the truth. The truth being that the MSU soccer contingent is an object of sympathy and not of admiration.

Athletic managers for residence hall, fraternity and independent teams should begin play - offs to determine their four - man paddleball teams as the deadline for entry is noon Friday. The Men's IM also now remains open until 10 Monday through Friday.

COGS challenges PIRGIM referendum

Menson said. Menson also complained about the referendum being held during fall registration.

"We're going to try to change the University regulations about referendums then," he said. There were about 10,000 students - freshmen and transfer students and incoming graduate students - who knew nothing about PIRGIM when they voted on the tax."

Roger Telschow, PIRGIM representative, was unaware of the suit Tuesday.

"I would like to see their specific charges," he said. "I can't make any decision or statement until the entire organization has met on the

The proposed revision would establish an All -University Judiciary with five undergraduate members and three graduate members. Presently Section 4 has no provision for an All University Judiciary.

The revision had been passed by the University Student Affairs Committee last spring. The revison must now be reworked before it can come up again for consideration.
