Reasons for food trouble start to materialize, focus

By TOM HAROLDSON State News Staff Writer

A weary nation continues to watch the saga of high food prices marked by such news stories as senior citizens scurrying through garbage cans for leftovers, baby chicks being slaughtered and shoppers boycotting supermarkets.

Through retrospect, reasons are beginning to surface on why food prices are at an all - time high. This doesn't mean economic experts are ready to give solutions to the problem, nor the Nixon administration can ever guarantee that food prices will drop. But some very tangible and important causes for high food costs are being realized with a much clearer picture of the food industry focusing in.

What has caused the high food prices? *An increasing demand for food is cropping up not only in this country but in the world also, causing the already short supply of food to be nibbled away.

*Poor weather in parts of the country, last year and this year, has hurt the supply of food that agriculture officials had hoped would alleviate the short supply. In Michigan, fruit crops are down this year by 40 per cent due to a dry summer.

*Price controls, which were to halt spiraling inflation and food prices, have bred cynicism and lack of faith in price News Analysis controls. In some cases, such as the slaughtering of the baby chicks and marketing pregnant sows, the controls have caused complications.

*The nation is in the midst of high employment, resulting in more money in circulation, resulting in higher demand for

The devaluation of the dollar abroad allows foreign countries to buy more of our goods for less money.

Most of these factors were not evident when the cost of food first ran to avalanche proportions. According to B. Dale Ball, director of the Michigan Dept. of Agriculture, because these conditions and factors were not realized the various economic phase controls did not work.

"When the initial phases were proposed, the economic picture was a mystery to President Nixon's economic experts," he said. "Because they did not see that there were crop shortages, high employment with more money in circulation, a low supply in crops and a strong international demand, their phases did not work."

He added, though, that the economic picture is getting clearer and that these various conditions can not be combatted. But simply because these facts are known, he said, does not mean that the days of low cost food will return.

"At one time last year, the food shopper was paying an average of 16 per cent of his pay check toward food. Now, he will be required to pay at least 20 to 25 per cent of his take home pay for food."

Ball predicts that food prices will level off this year once food supply increases, agricultural controls are lifted in most areas and food suppliers are able to get a fair return on their products.

"The farmer, manufacturer and retailer must be able to pay for their costs of production," he said. "With the price controls they were not able to do this and a, revolt occurred," he said. "Hopefully the Nixon administration sees that as long as the food producers meet these costs of production and can pay their bills, the food supply will not be hindered in any Certain steps are being taken to make sure that more food will be available for consumption by next year. More than 40 million acres of once untouched, subsidized land will be released for crop production next year.

Innovations in crop growing, cattle breeding and food manufacturing are being tested, some of which are proving successful in increasing supply. Export controls, to halt the increasing flow of certain foods out of this country have

How these innovations, controls and policies will work is difficult to determine at this time. But as several economic experts have said, things can't get too much worse than they have been this year.

Trustees vote to OK budget for 1974-75

By TERI ALBRECHT

DIANE SILVER State News Staff Writers

Though the 1974 - 75 University budget was approved by the oard of trustees at their Friday meeting, one trustee expressed issatisfaction with the process for formulating the $152.3

Trustee Jack Stack, R - Alma, said after the meeting that the card should play a greater role in the planning stages of the udget and not merely approve any list of figures presented to it y University officials.

"I have recommended that we have presentations by partment chairmen and deans so we can have more substance pon which to make a decision," Stack said.

This approval of the budget request is the beginning of a year ong process to obtain funds from the state. The request will be nitted to Gov. Milliken this fall. He will then make a budget commendation in February for all state agencies to the gislature based on these figures. After House and Senate committees have held hearings and ade recommendations to their respective houses, the legislature approve a final budget, which is incorporated into the higher ducation bill. It is then sent back to the governor for his Next year's approved budget request represents a $17.2 illion increase over the 1973 - 74 request.

The request again includes funds to establish a law school at SU. The legislature refused to appropriate any funds for a law chool this year.

Improve roads In other action, the board approved plans to widen the ollingwood entrance and to extend Bogue Street to the Life iences Building. A motion to adopt a new solicitation and stribution ordinance for on - campus buildings was tabled. The budget includes $129.7 million for the University's meral fund (an increase of $13.9 million), $12.6 million for the operative Extension Service (an increase of $1.7 million) $10 million for the Agricultural Experiment Station (an crease of $1.6 million).

The budget request features an increased emphasis on utrition and food production projects to help consumers President Wharton said. This is reflected in new programs and raise questions on what is being discussed. I don't think the research in the Agricultural Experiment Station, Cooperative Extension Service and the College of Veterinary Medicine. Approximately half of the increase in the general fund budget would be utilized for increasing staff and faculty salaries and fringe benefits. Increases for improvement and expansion of existing programs total about $2.6 million, including $986,000 for the College of Human Medicine, $1,014,000 for the College of Osteopathic Medicine and $200,000 for the College of Veterinary Medicine. Another $2.8 million will be used to cover an inflationary factor of 5 per cent on University purchases, increased fuel costs, compliance with the new Occupational Safety and Health Act and the operation and maintenance of the physical plant.

The board also approved continuing plans for designing a communication arts building, a performing arts center and nine

The board approved $127,000 to improve the Collingwood entrance to MSU and $150,000 for extending Bogue Street to the Life Sciences Building. Work will begin on both projects immediately.

Action tabled

The trustees put off action on a new distribution and solicitation ordinance after Stack voiced concern that the ordinance could be misinterpreted by future administrators in order to prevent legitimate petitioners from seeing students.

He suggested that an amendment be added to the ordinance stating, in part, that the ordinance not infringe in any way upon the right of the people to petition the University or government. Trustee Kenneth Thompson, R - East Lansing, felt that Stack's amendment was irrelevant. Thompson further noted that it was a good example of the board's lack of faith in the administration. "One of the problems this University has is that the people on this board are not supporting the University," he said. "I think it is about time this board gave support to the president and administrators of the University.' Stack replied that he was only trying to avoid problems resulting from ambiguity in the ordinance's wording.

After the meeting Stack said that Thompson's comments were "inflammatory rhetoric and were not relevant to the question.

"Public board members are not elected to constantly rubber stamp the administration's programs," he added. "We are here to administrators have perceived my questions as an attack on their intentions or integrity," Stack said.

Gifts and grants totaling $7,982,367 were accepted by the board. The figure includes several major federal grants for further development of the Colleges of Human Medicine and Osteopathic

Other grants included $355,902 from the National Heart and Lung Institute to a long - term hypertension detection and treatment program and $625,000 from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for creating a criminal Justice Systems Center at MSU.

The board made 311 faculty appointments, including Carl Goldschmidt as director of the School of Urban Planning and Landscape Architecture, Howard W. Stoudt as chairman of the Dept. of Community Medicine and Harold Riley as chairman of the Dept. of Agricultural Economics.

The board also appointed Holly L. Schrank to hold the University's first women's academic internship.

Hunt slated to testify as hearings resume

FROM WIRE SERVICES

WASHINGTON-The Senate Watergate committee resumes its hearings at 10 a.m. today with convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt as leadoff witness and a committee promise of fewer daily sessions. The committee announed the streamlined hearings will run only three days a week instead of five. The witness list has been purged to weed out minor testimony and Nov. 1 has been set as the deadline for the hearings.

Hunt's testimony is expected to complete the phase of the hearings reviewing events leading up to the break-in at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate June 17, 1972, the burglary and the coverup. Hunt has admitted leading the group that broke into Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office to steal records.

Then the committee will investigate 1972 presidential campaign "dirty tricks" and campaign financing. Samuel Dash, chief committee counsel, said the question still to be answered by the committee is whether the abuses that occurred in the 1972 campaign constituted a difference in kind or in degree from past political practices.

ABC-TV will broadcast today's hearings locally on WJRT, Channel 12, in Flint. The network will alternate with the other two major networks on subsequent sessions, at least for this week.

The committee's request for tape recordings of Watergate-related conversations held by President Nixon is still pending in the courts. The U.S. Court of Appeals is weighing whether to uphold an order by Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to preview the tapes and decide what goes to the Watergate

Meanwhile, a Rhode Island rabbi who has filed a suit to halt the Watergate hearing because it violates civil lights of witnesses in the case said he would appeal a dismissal today.

City demolition The City of East Lansing razed the vacant fraternity house at 451 Evergreen Ave. after the city council approved the move Tuesday. The space will become part of the Valley Court Park which is adjacent to the lot.

Will Kissinger liven up UN?

United Nations diplomats are looking to Henry A. Kissinger, the German - born secretary of state, to liven up dull General Assembly debates. Kissinger will address the 135 - nation assembly today, his first speech as secretary since his Friday confirmation by the Senate, 78-7. Kissinger was sworn in as the 56th secretary of state Saturday at the White House and was praised by President Nixon for being the first naturalized citizen to become secretary. His voice cracking with emotion as he touched on his persecutions as a Jewish youth in Nazi Germany, Kissinger said, "If my origin can contribute anything to the formulation of our policy it is that at an early age I have seen what can happen to a society that is based on hatred and strength and distrust - and that I experienced then what America means to other people in its hope and ideals."

Last-ditch ration plan weighed

The Nixon Administration's last - ditch fuel rationing plan now under development incorporates features from the draft and from bank checking accounts.

This final stage of a four - step "contingency plan" which would go into effect if rationing becomes necessary - would revolve around "checks" issued to all car owners which would have to be turned in at gas stations to purchase fuel. The retailer then would deposit the fuel checks in an account on which he could draw to receive more fuel supplies. Checks would be issued to consumers on a still - unspecified priority

The check system would be combined with local rationing boards, modeled after draft boards, to classify consumers, deal with emergencies and monitor

Before these final harsh steps would be taken, though, administration moves might include appeals for voluntary fuel conservation by the public, changing power plant consumption to more plentiful fuels and establishing priorities and allocations.

TV, radio warned on sexism

The lone black member of the Federal Communications Commission warned broadcasters they must stop discriminating against women or face commission action.

The commissioner, Benjamin Hooks, who addressed a meeting of a chapter of American Women in Radio and Television in Memphis, said he hoped court action or denials of licenses would not be necessary.

"I believe that the majority of men - and you women - who own broadcast facilities, intend to do right. But like most of us, they need a little help."

He said 37 per cent of 1,800 FCC employes are women, mostly in low civil service grades with only 4.5 per cent in top grades.

Albert hits Nixon comments

"The President does not have a monopoly on wisdom," declared Speaker of the House Carl Albert in a nationwide radio address Sunday responding to criticism of Congress' legislative record. Albert said Congress had compiled an impressive record so far this year and will improve on it before adjourning. Albert said Congress, not Nixon, had taken the initiative in dealing with economy, health, energy and crime problems.

Democratic leadership in Congress would like to work with Nixon, Albert said, but allowances have to be made for differences of opinion. "Congress does not perform at the behest of this President or any president," he said.

Senate considers defense cuts

The Senate is expected to sharply test this week President Nixon's pleas against cuts in U.S. forces overseas and a slowdown in Trident submarine development.

"All of our efforts to secure a more peaceful and prosperous world will be endangered if we unilaterally erode our defense posture," Nixon said in a letter to Senate leaders. The Senate is considering a bill authorizing $20.4 billion for military procurement in the current fiscal year.

Junta vows to repair economy

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Chilean military junta has announced an emergency plan to put the economy in order and open the door to foreign investment with guarantees against expropriation.

Gen. Gustavo Leigh, a member of the four-man junta that seized power from Marxist President Salvador Allende Gossens Sept. 11 said the emergency measures were necessary. "to repair the chaos" inherited from Allende's government.

But Leigh said the military government will not scuttle social reforms carried out by Allends. Meanwhile, an American couple held prisoner for a week in Chile said they had witnessed the execution of 400 to 500 persons since the military took control of Chile.

Patricia and Adam Garrett Schesch, who returned to Miami Sunday, also accused Chile's new military leaders of "conducting a program against foreigners.'

The Scheschs, graduate students at the University of Wisconsin, were released Friday and expelled from Chile. They arrived in Miami aboard one of the first flights permitted to leave

"We personally saw the shooting of 400 to 500 prisoners, in groups of 30 to 40, at the National Stadium where we were being held," said Schesch, 31. He said the shootings were carried out by the military and occurred in the

In Santiago, the military junta termed the Schesch's allegations "absolutely baseless."

"I can assure you that not even one person, let alone 400 or 500, has been executed," a spokesman said.

The couple said it had also seen and heard beatings administered to prisoners, many of them foreigners.

The junta has admitted that 5,000 to 7,000 persons have been detained in Santiago's main soccer stadium since the Sept. 11 coup. Most of them have been arrested as suspects and are being freed after questioning at a rate of about 100 a day, an official source said. Two Mary Knoll priests from the United States, Francis Flynn of Miami and Joseph of the Boston area, are being detained at the stadium. Their release was expected Saturday, but was delayed because authorities said they wanted to question them further. Thirty Allende aides are being held prisoner on an island in the Straits of Magellan, a junta spokesman said. On foreign investment, which declined sharply under Allende, Leigh said guarantees will be offered and added. "We want to give confidence to the entire world. The doors will open for any foreign capital seeking a place in Chile.

Leigh said Chile's industries have returned to near normal since the coup and those that were nationalized legally under Allende will continue under the control of the state.

Those that were expropriated illegally will be returned to their former owners, he said.

The employment picture for women is now worse than it was o years ago, an MSU professor told 70 women employes of the pept. of State Highways.

TRIES TO HALT RESIDENT'S FEARS

Sharp to seek land sale

By ANDREA AUSTIN State News Staff Writer

Councilwoman Mary Sharp, who was booed along with other councilmembers last week by an angry East Lansing neighborhood group, will apparently try to allay the residents' fears that a controversial road extension project will increase traffic near their homes.

Sharp, who is running for re election in November and was faced with the possibility of losing votes in the Bailey School area, reportedly will introduce a resolution next week asking that the city sell property it owns on the Ann Street corridor or convert it into parks.

Bailey area residents confronted council Tuesday with their fears that council's earlier approval of an 180 foot extension of Ann Street would mean increased high speed traffic in their neighborhood.

315 Orchard St., said Sunday. The Bailey School district, north of Grand River Avenue between Abbott and Hagadorn roads, is comprised of a mix of young - family and older homeowners. Student housing expanding north is a threat, say many residents.

People there are afraid Ann Street will become part of a peripheral route between Hagadorn Road and the central business district, bringing more and faster traffic to a quiet neighborhood.

Sharp was not available for comment Sunday.

Mattson said residents of the Bailey area were disturbed by Sharp's reaction to their protests at the Sept. 18 city council meeting, at which over 40 people appeared in opposition to the construction.

At the meeting Councilman George Griffiths moved to reconsider council's Aug. 21 decision to extend Ann Street for 180 feet between Spartan and Stoddard avenues. The motion died for lack of Sharp said then that she agreed with the East Lansing Planning Commission's wish to keep Ann Street from becoming part of a peripheral route, but would not oppose the current construction or pledge to vote for no future construction.

Mattson said the residents see Sharp's position change as very significant.

"I do think at least 1,000 people in the Bailey community would vote for a candidate who will say he won't allow Ann Street to be extended," he said. "I think the candidate who comes out for mass transit and other ways of saving the center of the community will win a lot of votes."

Norman Stewart, 536 Orchard St., one of the Bailey residents who plan to meet with Sharp, said he wants to know specifically what she proposes, and who on the council will support her move.

"I'd like to know if it (the proposed resolution) is a smokescreen," Stewart said Sunday. He said Sharp may be using it as a move to win votes from Bailey-area residents.

Petitioning opens up for ASMSU election

Petitioning begins today for a special election to be held by Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) on October 3, to fill two recently vacated ASMSU Student Board seats.

The empty posts represent the College of Communication Arts and Social Science/James Madison College, both officially vacated at ASMSU's Sep. 16 meeting.

Petitioning for the positions ends Friday. Though this is contrary to the ASMSU Operations Code, which says petitioning is to last 10 days, Ed Grafton, ASMSU president, feels the ASMSU constitution, which says a special election is to be held two Wednesdays after any post is vacated, takes precedent.

One problem the special election has already encountered is that ASMSU is currently without an elections commission. The Elections Commission monitors each election by counting votes, taking recounts, hearing appeals and listening to gripes. Grafton said that he will appoint an interim elections commission to moniter next Wednesday. Marla Simpson, former elections commissioner, quit her post at the end of spring term when she dropped out of school to change her state residency status.

Grafton said that people in the newly implemented Chicano aide program in residence halls expressed interest in running candidates in the special election. From Chicano Aides program however, no one was available for comment Sunday. Poll locations, not yet determined, will be set up at various

WJIM viewers to 'wait and see' if station's programs will improve

Now that Harold F. Gross and his WJIM - TV station have had their license renewed by the Federal Communications Commission, mid - Michigan viewers will have to adopt a "wait and see" attitude in regards to better local programming.

Gross reached agreement with Citizens United for Better Broadcasting and the Lansing Committee for Children's Television the day the station's license was due for renewal.

According to the agreement, WJIM will start broadcasting more local children's programming, more local public affairs and more local news.

However, Gross should have been more responsive to community concerns a long time ago and not waited until his license was due for renewal before making any moves to improve local programming.

The agreement also called for the appointment of three citizens to the WJIM public service advisory committee. This is an excellent move and should do much to improve community relations between the station and local citizens.

However, Gross is not exactly a "model citizen" just because he reached agreement with local citizens under license renewal pressure. There is still the question of the Detroit Free Press article of Sept. 2, in which Gross is accused of promoting his business interests on his WJIM - TV station and blacking out public figures on WJIM news reports who oppose his business interests. According to this article, Gross blacked out such notables as Gus Scholle, the late president of Michigan's AFL - CIO, and ex - Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa. Gross has also blacked out Lansing city councilmen who disagree with his bid for Lansing's cable television

If Gross were to have the Lansing cable television franchise, there is a definite possibility of a monopoly over local communications. Such a monopoly would tend to weaken the communications structure internally, due to a lack of competition, and give area viewers little choice in programming.

Gross has taken more than just passing interest in the day - to - day operations of WJIM. Hopefully, steps have been taken to give WJI!' personnel a greater say in the operations of the station and less subject on a one - man

But will Gross and WJIM really reform? It is hard to say. He has reached agreement with citizens on local programming and that, at least, is a start. Better local programming will not only benefit the community in general, but will help Gross and WJIM as well. The increased local programming should serve a larger cross section of the community.

As for the other accusations against Gross, only time will tell. Gross is a businessman, first and foremost. This must be remembered at all times. One can only hope that Gross will reconcile his financial interests with his responsibility to the Lansing community and outlying

Straw vote essential for advisers

A proposal by the ASMSU board to create four student liaison advisers on the board of trustees, though falling short of true student representation, is a step in the right direction. But the proposal is useless unless the students receive a straw vote.

The proposal would allow the students to sit in on all public meetings of the trustees and during private ions at the discretion of President Wharton. However, these students would not have the right to initiate motions or resolutions, nor have access to the confidential records of fellow students or teaching faculty members.

They could also be politely asked to leave meetings on matters of faculty tenure, promotion, retention or Without access to all information and the right to sit in on all meetings of the trustees, without being excluded at Wharton's discretion, the student liaison advisers could not act as competent decision makers

While the ASMSU proposal offers students an immediate voice in University, a proposed constitutional amendment is a more direct inlet for student representation in the future.

The Michigan Higher Education Student Assn., of which ASMSU is a member, currently is involved in a petition drive seeking an amendment to the state constitution. The amendment would provide positions for students on all college governing bodies with regular member voting privileges and responsibilities.

ASMSU's student liaison adviser proposal now goes to President Wharton, and then to a joint student administrative committee for revision, before it finally reaches the trustees.

The last time the trustees were presented a similar proposal they amended it beyond recognition. This time the straw vote is essential and must remain.

Nixon likely to choose Connally if Agnew leaves Washington

By JAMES RESTON New York Times

WASHINGTON - Two leading Democrats are now on record as saying that if Vice President Agnew resigns or is shoved, President Nixon would have no trouble in choosing Agnew's successor and getting the Democratic-controlled Congress to approve the President's personal choice.

Gov. Wendell Ford of Kentucky Chairman of the Governors Caucus, has said that "The Congress, of course, should scrutinize the selection, but on balance, the President should have the choice.

Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss agreed, saying: "I believe the people would see this as the President's responsibility.'

If this is true, and it may very well be, we may be at the beginning of a process in which former governor John Connally of Texas could replace Agnew as vice president and emerge as the leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, with a good chance of beating the divided Democrats in 1976.

From the President's point of view, the replacement of Agnew by Connally would be cynical but logical. He admires Connally for his brassy confidence, good looks, political cunning and emotional eloquence. Both were poor boys who made good, but Connally has the courage of Nixon's convictions, shares Nixon's conservative philosophy and love of power and is more comfortable than Nixon in the worlds of business and politics.

The White House says the President has no contingency plan for the replacement of Agnew. The Democrats claim they have not been discussing the problem. Almost everybody defends the principle of presumed innocence. Connally says he is not funning for anything and wants only to be the best cattle breeder in America. And there is about as much truth in each of these statements as in all the others.

The truth is that Agnew has not only been gravely weakened, but virtually destroyed, by leaks and premature publicity even before the evidence against him could be weighed by the Baltimore grand jury.

At least some of the President's supporters think Agnew's resignation would help the President by avoiding a test on whether the vice president can be tried before impeachment, an awkward constitutional problem in the President's own case. And politically, it would give the President the chance to put Connally in the forefront of presidential politics only a few months after Connally joined the GOP.

From the point of view of the Democrats, however, it is hard to see why, with their majorities in both houses of Congress, they would casually go along with Governor Ford of Kentucky and Chairman Strauss of the Democratic

For confirming Connally as via president would increase the chances the they would have to run against him i 1976, and this could be the most critic decision of that campaign, for while the Big Texan may be one of the wor diplomats around these days, he probably the best politician and the be public speaker in the whole crowd.

Getting the Democrats together of anything these days, however, is a proble if not an impossibility, which is w they've now been out of the White House for two terms

Richard's just a brotherly bugger

DONALD NIXON

By ART BUCHWALD Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The startling revelation that President Nixon had tapped the telephone of his own brother, F. Donald Nixon, has caused great concern among civil libertarians. If a president can tap his own brother without a court order, their thinking goes, no one in this country

But there is a school of legal opinion that maintains the Fourth Amendment guarantees of right of privacy and of protection against search and seizure do not cover blood relatives of high government officials.

HE DIDN'T WANT DONALD TO

The leader of this school is the great constitutional lawyer, professor Sam Clemente who wrote the definitive book on President Millard Fillmore's wiretapping activities, titled "He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother.'

Clemente told me, "The Supreme Court has ruled on many occasions that it is perfectly legal for a President to tap his brother's telephone in the interests of national security. In the case of President Fillmore, the President suspected his brother Dillard was getting kickbacks from slaves who were working on government projects in the South. Fillmore ordered the Secret Service to tap his brother's

"When The Washington Post broke the story, Fillmore's press secretary announced the tap had been placed on Dillard because of threats on his life. Most of the threats were made by President Fillmore himself. But when questioned about this, the press secretary refused to comment.

"Fillmore's brother sued the President for invasion of privacy but the Supreme Court, in a 5 - 4 decision, ruled in the President's favor.

"The majority opinion said, It is obvious that writers of the Constitution did not have relatives in mind when they wrote the Fourth Amendment. It is impossible for a president of the United States to carry on his executive duties without knowing what his brother is up

"Nobody can do more damage to a president than his brother and since most brothers tend to take advantage of the President's high office, it is essential that the President of the United States be given free rein to tap his kinfolk."

Clemente continued, "But the court ruled that the President could not tap in laws. 'We realize,' the ruling said, 'that in many cases a brother - in - law could give a president even more trouble than a brother. But if we opened the privilege to brothers - in - law, there would be no end to wiretapping in this country.'

"Although President Fillmore won the suit, he agreed not to tap Dillard's phone any more. But he refused to turn over the tapes on the grounds that if he did he would be setting a precedent for future presidents who would have to turn over their tapes to their brothers."

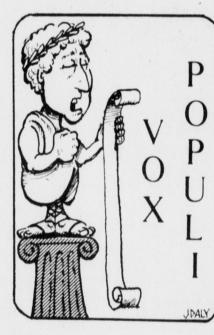

I asked Clemente, "Do you think President Nixon was relying on the President Fillmore - Dillard decision when he authorized the tapping of his brother's phone?"

"Either that or the Ulysses S. Grant

"If you recall President Grant was worried about his brother's drinking problems and ordered a tap on his phone. As soon as he got enough evidence on him, Grant ordered his brother arrested for drunkenness. But the case was thrown out when it was revealed that Grant had members of the White House staff break into his brother's doctor's office to steal his brother's files."

Clemente did not think the American public would be alarmed over the news that President Nixon had tapped his brother's phone.

"Anyone who has a brother would like to do the same thing."

Employes shocked by recent dismissal

By SHARON HANKS State News Staff Writer

Employees of Lum's restaurant and the High Wheeler bar were dill disillusioned Saturday over the abrupt firing of three - year manager Ed Rouillard of the two businesses.

About 25 of the 50 employes attended a staff meeting saturday morning to hear the reasons for the curt dismissal, but most employes were still somewhat shocked with the decision. Most were reluctant to release their names for fear of losing their jobs but did say they were "shocked," "saddened" and thought he did a "fantastic job."

"We were all shocked because we think he's a brilliant guy," Ron Ballast, asst. manager of Lum's, said. "He's done nothing but Rouillard said most of the new policies would not have catered to the college crowd.

Rouillard, 26, has managed Lum's and the High Wheeler since they opened in October 1970, and May 1973 respectively. He said Lum's has been "making big money" and within the past few days has had record gross sales. The High Wheeler has "broken even so far and will pull financially ahead soon,"he added.

The Rundquists, on the other hand, say Lum's has not met their financial expectations. "Two years ago we were at the top of gross sales. Since then it's been declining," Jon Rundquist said. The High Wheeler is also suffering financially, he added.

Rouillard holds a BS degree in hotel and restuarnat management from the University of New Hampshire and a MA degree in business administration from MSU.

He has had several job offers, but says he is still looking. The new manager is Ronald Lee from Detroit.

Lee's experience includes four years as a regional manager at Red Barnes of Michigan, manager of Burger Chef in Maryland and general manager of two corporations.

He hopes to implement some of the national policies of Lum's such as a new menu and redecoration.

Prices to level off, grocers say

By TOM HAROLDSON

State News Staff Writer

Area grocery store managers predict that food prices will continue to rise and eventually level off, but add that the rising prices are not their doing.

They feel absolved of the price increases mainly because Phase price controls dictate that they can only raise their retail prices to meet the increase the wholesalers pass on to them. But in the long run, they all agree, the final increase must be passed on to

Chuck Morris, grocery manager for Meijer's Thrifty Acres in Okemos, said the retailer is caught in the middle of the situation because he has to meet the higher prices that wholesalers are

"We are trying to maintain the lowest price possible but at the same time we have to at least meet our costs and the wholesale price," he said. "Fortunately, the customers have been very understanding and see the situation we are in."

Bob Blakeman, asst. manager of Goodrich Shop-Rite, added that shoppers are being more selective, substituting lower-priced goods for higher-priced goods whenever possible. They are also buying less meat, a fact verified by most grocers contacted in the

"Shoppers have cut down on the amount of meat that they buy and in place of it they are substituting tuna fish and cheaper foods in its place," he said. "By buying less meat, they have kept up the supply and consequently halted the increasing prices on The meat supply in the area has also increased because of the lifting of Phase 4 price controls on beef on Sept. 12. This has resulted in a sudden rush of beef to the market, but because the beef was held until the freeze was lifted, it is of a more inferior quality. With more beef on the market and fewer buyers for it, the price of meat has been held at a standstill but according to Harold Hoffman, manager of Peet Packing Co., the situation is

"Meat is cheaper by 10 to 12 cents a pound, but this should change after most of the cattle has been delivered to the market,'

Area grocers, packers and food processers also said that the demand for pork is low resulting in lower pork prices.

In the areas of flour, oils, canned fruits and canned vegetables, though, the situation is different. Grocers said that there is a current shortage of these products resulting in higher prices and a short supply. The situation was evident, for example at Meijer's where the supply of flour was sold out temporarily on Friday. But the grocers add that the situation is only temporary due to bad weather. Once the supply of grain begins to come in flour

As for the price controls that they have to work under, grocers claimed little admiration, stating that controls were hurting more than helping and were unnecessary in the first place.

"We were getting along all right without controls." Morris Brown manager of Eberhard's on Michigan Avenue, said. "I can't see why we need them now."

"If price controls are to work they have to be enforced for all areas, not just on retailers and by exempting farmers," Blakeman said. "What results is shortages in some goods, as we have seen and chaos in food prices in general."

SN compares costs at area food markets

Food prices are high-no one needs to be told that. And in the face of these climbing costs, some shoppers are even cutting back their total food purchases.

But nearly everybody is becoming more cautious about the types of food they buy and where they go to buy them.

With that in mind, the State News has compiled its third area-wide survey of food prices in a year. The chart at left is intended to showstudents what local grocery stores charge for various food items.

Hopefully, this chart will give you an idea of where you can go around East Lansing to get the most for your food dollar.

Ten local stores were surveyed Saturday by State News staffers. An effort was made to get a representative sampling of food categories. Mostly name brands were compared for consistency. However, most stores sell their own brand which is usually less expensive than name brand occasions when a particular store did not have the specific brand name or size for which the team of reporters was looking.

The "X's" represent

Hence, it could be that store has sugar, even though an "X" appears in the box for that item because it did not carry five-pound packages of Domino's sugar.

The survey was conducted Saturday by seven reporters: Andrea Austin, Sue Burzynski, Jim Bush, Angelia Carroll, Tom Haroldson, Mike LaNoue and Susan Semler.

Some errors may have been made during the complicated task of gathering prices and preparing them for publication, though every effort was made to insure accuracy.

Agencies help in hunt for doctors

By LAURA MILLER State News Staff Writer

Billy Austin, 2, had a 103 temperature. His mother, a Spartan Village housewife, frantically called a number of pediatricians, but none were taking new patients.

Like many student families not serviced by the University Health Center and without a regular doctor, Billy's mother had to make an expensive trip to a hospital emergency ward.

But Billy's mother need not have gone to the hospital if she had known how to get in touch with a doctor taking new

She could have called one of several services that have listings of private physicians taking new patients, like the Ingham County Medical Society, at 332-8021.

During the 1972 season, the "sold - out" sign was posted at the box office for eight Lecture - Concert Series attractions. Despite the fact that more MSU Students purchased our reserved - seat tickets last year than ever before in our history, we've written this message to let you know how you can avoid the disappointment of the "sold - out"

At the beginning of each fall term, we announce four series of

So, for a minimal financial investment today, you can have your seats for a whole series. Or for all four series. It's economical; it's

LCC plans debates on evolution

Educators, authors and lecturers will discuss Divine creation versus evolution at a special seminar this fall at Lansing Community College (LCC).

Speakers will debate the question, with equal time given to the theory of evolution and the Biblical version of creation.

The two - credit seminar will meet for 10 weeks beginning Sept. 27 from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursdays.

Those interested may register for the class at the first session or at LCC's admission office until Oct. 3.

Featured speakers will include Harold Urey, Nobel prize winner and NASA consultant, and Paul B. Weisz of Vienna, professor at Brown University. Both have written science textbooks that are currently in use at LCC and other colleges. Robert T. Anderson, chairman of the MSU Dept. of Religious Studies, will open the seminar with a discussion of creation according to the Bible and other Near . Eastern documents.

Anderson believes that the Biblical account is actually "an affirmation that the cosmos is not chaotic, but that forces in the cosmos are working for man."

Interest in the controversy over creation and evolution was recently revived when the California State Board of Education established a tentative policy requiring that creation be taught as well as evolution.

Bills proposing a similar policy have been introduced in the Michigan Legislature. One was introduced in March this year.

WHARTON TO RECEIVE REVIEW NOV. 13 Panel to free governance study

By MIKE GALATOLA State News Staff Writer

The special committee established to review MSU's system of academic governance will make its findings public on Nov. 13.

Lester V. Manderscheid, chairman of the ad hoc committee to review academic governance, told members of the University Committee on Governance Academic Friday that the special study will become public record when President Wharton receives the report Nov. 13.

ALICE COLTRANE

Manderscheid declined that the nature of the Friday to say if the committee had recommended any structural changes, saying he preferred to wait until the council had received the full

"So far our report is set in tentative concludions; nothing has been set in concrete,' Manderscheid said.

But Thomas R. Standley student representative for the College of Communication Arts on the University academic governance committee, clashed with Manderscheid at the meeting over the ad hoc committee's relative secrecy.

"Why were your meetings closed during the summer?" Standley, 327 Fernwood. Jackson, asked. "This sounds like one of those committees that gets set up and is never heard from again."

"If our report can't stand the light of day, it's sure to be voted down in the council," Manderscheid told Standley. Manderscheid said Saturday committee's work made closed meetings necessary. "We would each come in with our ideas on an area and exchange them. During the course of the meeting members would change their original outlook," he said. "Now no one wants to be quoted as having one opinion at the outset but changing his mind throughout the discussion."

Manderscheid said that even if the report was immediately approved and accepted, any action suggested in the report would probably not be taken until fall term of 1974.

"Even if our report were well received by the Academic Council, it would still have to go through the Academic Senate and the March meeting of the board of trustees," he said. "So I don't think any changes we suggest will be put into effect for a year."

But Standley is worried that the report might not be openly discussed

"There's no guarantee in the bylaws that open meetings will remain open after the report. comes out," he said. "I hope the University Committee on Academic Governance will push for guidelines that will make sure the students know what's in the report."

Originally the ad hoc committee was to have reviewed only student participation in academic governance.

The Academic Council had mandated such a review for May 1973 when it enacted on May 19, 1971, the Bylaws for Academic Governance which allowed students to actively take part in academic affairs at both the University and college

But the steering committee sent on May 1, 1973, a memorandum to the council, recommending the area of review include the entire structure of academic governance.

"There was a broad feeling that the whole system had become quite burdensome with too many committees and subcommittees," James T. Bonnen, chairman of the steering committee, said Saturday. "It was time to assess its strengths and weaknesses."

The council appointed a seven-member committee -(an eighth member was appointed in early September) on May 31 and charged it to consider ways to allow the faculty, students and administrators to participate effectively in governance and academic policy makers to work together.

Tom Rush coffeehouse concert produces beautiful entertainment

By MIKE LaNOUE

State News Reviewer When Tom Rush climbed the stage at Mariah Coffeehouse Friday night and picked up his guitar, the beautiful sounds began. He was great.

And the packed audience of 400 responded by being intent listeners.

The best song that Rush has ever recorded is "No Regrets/Rockport Sunday" and the most beautiful song he played at Mariah was the same.

The song has a universal message that anyone can relate to - it tells of a man who is in and out of love and not altogether sure of himself, but for what went before he has "No Regrets."

After the show Rush said that the Eastern United States has been a great source of inspiration for his writing.

Anyone who heard the guitar solo after "No Regrets" heard just how inspirational Rockport, Mass., a small ocean harbor town, was to Rush.

He said it took him a year to compose the solo, which is full of intricate harmonics and surely captures the thought he noted before playing it: "The ocean does two shows a day

Rush showed viewers a spontaneous rapport.

"Trying to play guitar with a band - aid on your finger is like taking a shower with your socks on," Rush laughed. He also told a really funny story about Zal Yanovsky, who played lead guitar in the former Lovin' Spoonful group.

It seems Yanovsky braved airport surveillance equipment on one flight and snuck a can of soup on board that he poured into his "barf bag," and after completely freaking out the stewardess, he asked her for a spoon. Little did she know of his soup.

Rush is taking on a new country sound in his music.

Rush enjoyed the Mariah crowds and said he may return to MSU at some future date.

The first act that played along with Rush was Pete Widdig, a local folk entertainer who currently appears Monday nights at the Olde World

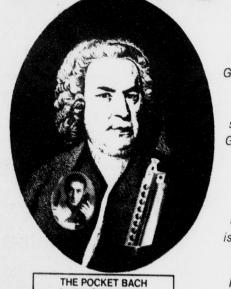

Pete's specialty is a very articulate sounding harmonica that he plays using a neck brace. He writes all of his own material, some of which is promising and all of which is better than average.

The Mariah stage crew did an excellent job with staging and lights that was agreeable to both performers.

Coming up next at Mariah is J. Paul Hammond.

Waitresses work hard, get little

By SUSAN AGER State News Staff Writer Their enemies are students and Saturday nights.

But for most, it's also their sole livelihood.

Waitresses in a college town like East Lansing must cater to the whims of typically easy-to-please diners who don't come with their pockets ajingling.

"Students are a real drag," a waitress at Beggar's Banquet, 218 Abbott Road, said. "They can't seem to realize how hard this kind of work is, and always walk out without leaving a tip. At least once a night it happens - a big $15 order, and not a cent for a tip. And I don't do this for fun."

Like most student waitresses, she needs the money, and needs it regularly to pay the high price of education.

Some waitresses seek the evening shifts to draw bigger tips. But at the International House of Pancakes, 2800 E. Grand River Ave., the night shift includes the "bar rush" but little reward.

"Between 2:30 and 3 a.m. each weekend nights, they start lining up, and the line usually trails far outside the door." Donna Whalen, an IHOP waitress and MSU graduate said. "Bar-weary students don't tip too well.'

Whalen said that $8 a night in tips is average. Her hourly wage of $1.60 is peeled down to about $1 an hour she said, after taxes and $2 a week for meals is deducted.

Waitresses are normally allowed a "duty meal" during their brief breaks, usually something on the regular menu which management provides free or at minimal

Waitresses at IHOP are allowed almost anything on the extensive menu - "Anything but steak, shrimp, chicken the good stuff," Whalen

"Business wasn't too good, and we were told we'd get a raise when the profits got bigger," one waitress said. A 10-cent raise was promised for their next pay checks by Ed Rouillard, former manager of the High Wheeler and Lums, but Rouillard was fired last week - leaving waitresses wondering if the promises will be kept. One High Wheeler waitress left a job at Lums "that was more fun" for 20 cents less an hour at the pub, hoping for bigger tips. But they haven't been much bigger, she said, and times are getting rough for she and her husband, a pre-veterinary student who does not work.

The High Wheeler waitress had time to sit down and talk. At Lums the pace is quick, with each waitress serving up to 35 people.

Though the starting wage at Lums is the same as at the High Wheeler (both are owned by Russell and Jon Rundquist), raises are regular and can reach $1.60 an hour.

One Lums waitress said she one day. She noted that couples tend to tip far less than groups of men or women.

A Beggar's Banquet waitress blamed meager tips on regulars who feel that if they're friendly a tip isn't expected.

Students are also notorious for "skating" or walking out without paying a usually substantial bill. Some waitresses are forced to pay the bill themselves, like at Beggar's Banquet, but they can sometimes evade it by destroying the unpaid bill.

At Lums skating is a nightly occurence, one waitress said, since the two exits are rarely manned simultaneously. The management absorbs the loss.

Joe House, a waiter at Lizard's, 224 Abbott Road, told of his expectations of a big tip from a large table of students. But they left through a rear fire escape with an unpaid bill of more than $10. House said it happens about once a week. "We don't have to pay for their assininity, but they had better not dare walk in here again," House said.

Even Cave of the Candles, a posh restaurant at 110 Abbott Road, has an occasional problem with skaters.

Waitresses at Cave of the Candles dine on $6.25 dover sole, $4.50 shrimp tempura, or occasionally a hamburger when they tire of the fish diet, Linda, a student waitress said.

She has made as much as $100 a night in tips and has had to ask her boss what her hourly wage is.

"It's $1.31, just like at Lums and the High Wheeler, but no one who works here really pays attention to it or cares," she said. Tips average about $30 a night, but if a waitress makes a big killing she will give $5 to the bartender and a few dollars to SYRACUSE, N.Y. - Michigan State beat the block by 33 conds and Syracuse by a 14 - 8 count Saturday afternoon when sphomore tailback Tyrone Wilson slammed into the endzone for two yard come - from - behind touchdown.

Spartan win needed

SYRACUSE' N.Y. - The tendency has been for everybody to remark that "State sure lucked out" Saturday, when they won as they did against a questionable Syracuse team. And they probably did. But that's still a little unfair to a team that fought back with the pressure on and won a game that was as mportant to them as Saturday's.

A loss to Syracuse Saturday just might have put the lid on things for the year as far as Denny Stolz and his team were concerned. On top of that, things would have been quite different in the Spartan dressing room after the game. For example: There wouldn't have been a group of grown men, in ecstasy,
