For the first time in three years, MSU's in-state tuition will not be raised. The board of trustees voted Friday to keep undergraduate resident tuition at $16 per credit hour and graduate tuition at $17 per credit hour. Out-of-state tuition will be increased by $1 a credit hour, raising non resident undergraduate tuition to $37 per credit and graduate tuition to $38. Tuition for credit courses taken off-campus will be increased by $2 to $24 a credit hour. The recommendations for tuition were contained in the budget preparation guidelines for MSU's 1974-75 budget presented to the board by President Wharton. The guidelines are the outline under which the University's administration will draw up the details for next year's budget. The final budget will be brought before the board at a special evening meeting Aug. 15.

Though MSU's 4,000 out-of-state students are facing a 2.8 per cent tuition increase, increases at other schools this year ranged from a 5.7 per cent increase for residents at Eastern Michigan University to a 20 per cent increase for junior and senior residents attending Wayne State University. Wharton's recommendations also included the guidelines for salary increases for MSU's faculty and administrative-professional employees. Increases averaging 8 per cent were approved. Each faculty member will get a basic salary increase. These increases will provide $700 for each faculty member earning up to $17,500 a year with a 4 per cent increase for faculty earning between $17,500 and $25,000. For those now earning $25,000 there is a $1,000 ceiling on increases. The guidelines also set floors for each rank's salary. These floors range from $8,000 for instructors to $17,000 for full professors employed for 10 months with from $10,000 to $21,250 for full professors employed on a 12 month basis. University officials said this is the first time MSU has established a minimum salary for each faculty rank. These increases will account for slightly over half the faculty salary funds available. The remaining funds will be used for merit increases by department chairmen and deans. "Generally I am satisfied," Roy Matthews, president of the local chapter of the American Assn. of University Professors, said Sunday. "I wish it could keep up with the rate of inflation, but I know that the legislature was unable to keep up with the rate of inflation for civil service salaries. "I hope the 8 per cent increase is an indicator of things to come, that from here on out the administration will fight vigorously to make sure the cost of living is kept up with," he said.

Representatives of MSU Faculty Associates were unavailable for comment. The guidelines included a minimum 4 per cent wage increase for MSU's 750 administrative-professional employees with merit raises providing for increases up to 10 per cent. A spokesman for MSU's Administrative-Professional Assn. indicated Sunday that the association was unhappy with the increases approved by the trustees. The spokesman said the association wanted more of a base general increase to protect its members who have a lower income. The association will probably release an official statement on Thursday, the spokesman said. MSU's nearly 2,000 clerical-technical employees were not included in the guidelines because the University is still negotiating with the MSU Employees Assn. (Continued on page 7)

Cyprus fighting rages as Greeks agree to U.N. cease-fire resolution

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Greek ambassador said Sunday his country "accepts in toto" the U.N. Security Council's resolution for a Cyprus cease-fire and requested an urgent council meeting to "stop the genocide" which it accuses the Turkish air force of conducting in Cyprus. The requested Security Council meeting was scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday EDT. The written request for the meeting by U.N. Ambassador Constantine P. Karamanlis said Turkish planes dropped bombs on hospitals in Nicosia, capital of the Mediterranean island, and in Famagusta. It said many persons were casualties. The Security Council on Saturday night unanimously called for a cease-fire and the withdrawal of the Greek officers. Earlier Sunday, the government-controlled radio in Athens, quoting diplomatic sources, said that Greece will go to war on Turkey if Turkish forces are not withdrawn from Cyprus within 48 hours. The broadcast gave no further details and there was no official confirmation that any such ultimatum had been made by the Greek military regime. Meanwhile, joint United Nations-Cyprus operation evacuated 4,400 foreign citizens from Nicosia and other combat areas Sunday.

The Turkish General Staff announced Sunday night that Turkish air and naval forces had intercepted a Greek flotilla off Paphos in Cyprus. The announcement said there were heavy casualties on the Greek ships. The reported battle was the first announced encounter between Turkey's forces and forces dispatched from the Greek mainland. The announcement said the action occurred as the Greek ships tried to land troops at Paphos on the western coast of Cyprus. The General Staff said the landing operation had been halted. It said the ships had come as far as Paphos despite Turkish warnings not to approach Cyprus. The report of the naval clash came about 36 hours after Turkey sent an invasion force into Cyprus by sea and air at the seaside city of Kyrenia and in the Turkish quarter of Nicosia. In full control of the sky, Turkish jet fighters bombed and rocketed Greek Army and Greek Cypriot positions in and around the capital beginning at dawn. Waves of Turkish helicopters were seen ferrying troops to a battle area near Nicosia. A shaky cease fire arranged by the United Nations to permit civilians to leave the capital went into effect at 10 a.m. — 4 a.m. EDT — and lasted until 5:20 p.m., when Turkish fighters reappeared over the city and renewed their attacks. A British military officer said the expectation was that "as soon as the civilians pull out, the Turks will attack Nicosia in force." Cyprus Radio, controlled by the Greek leaders of last Monday's coup that toppled the government of President Makarios and escalated into war, claimed in the late afternoon that four Turkish jets were shot down on Sunday, bringing the claimed total to 13 in two days. The radio maintained in broadcasts from Nicosia that the forces of the Greeks and Greek Cypriots were fighting successfully on all fronts. A lone Turkish jet returned to Nicosia late in the afternoon to strafe and rocket the city soccer stadium, which Greek Cypriot reserves were using as an assembly point. Turkish mortars hit the Lydra Palace Hotel. Machine gun fire and mortar shells pounded around the Turkish hospital in Nicosia's old walled city. Casualties appeared to be heavy on both sides but there was no way to make any reasonable estimate. Fighting during the night was chiefly along the so-called Green Line that separates the majority Greek and minority Turkish communities. Diplomats said reports were reaching them that large numbers of Turkish Cypriot civilians were being killed by Greek Cypriot armed forces. There was no official confirmation of these reports. Both sides have accused each other of killing noncombatants. Greeks outnumber Turks on Cyprus by about four to one. U.S. warships stood off southern Cyprus Sunday amid indications the United States is preparing to evacuate American nationals to escape the fighting there. Several hundred civilians were reported by U.S. officials here to have left Nicosia, the embattled capital, in a road convoy moving toward the British base at Dhekelia. Pentagon officials estimated some 800 to 1,000 Americans, including tourists, U.S. government employees, business people and families, might have to be removed. Pentagon officials, who were inclined on Saturday to think the Turks might be satisfied with a limited operation, were less optimistic on Sunday, saying there were indications the Turks were preparing a second wave of troops for Cyprus. So far, they estimated, the Turkish force on Cyprus numbers only about 6,000 men.

EMERGENCY MEETINGS HELD U.S. truce move falters

FROM WIRE SERVICES
The diplomatic effort to avoid a full-scale war between Greece and Turkey encountered trouble Sunday in getting both sides to agree on the arrangements for a cease-fire in the Cyprus war. Joseph J. Sisco, the United States undersecretary of state who is flying between the capitals of the two countries, both members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, appeared to be having considerable difficulty in winning agreement. Leaving Ankara, Turkey, for Athens Sunday morning, he talked of some progress, but by the end of the day major differences clearly remained. Sisco, trouble-shooting for the administration, is explaining in both capitals that war between them would mean the end of NATO's southern defenses and that the United States would retaliate by withholding all military aid to both Greece and Turkey. The governments of both Turkey and Greece held emergency meetings in their respective capitals on Sunday and there were indications early in the day that Turkey would agree to the cease-fire called for by the United Nations Security Council on Saturday in New York. In Ankara, Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit called an emergency meeting of Turkey's National Security Council. Before calling the security council meeting, Ecevit met with his cabinet and said it had discussed Saturday's proposal of the U.N. Security Council for a cease-fire. A statement by the government's chief spokesman, Orhan Birgit, appeared to imply it would be accepted. Birgit said, "The purpose of the Turkish invasion was to restore the balance of power on the island and to provide for the total security of the Turkish community. It had no outlet to the sea before, but now, with the conquest of Kyrenia, it does." The United States concentrated its diplomatic efforts Sunday on obtaining a cease-fire in the conflict on Cyprus or, if that fails, to localize it to the island. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met during the morning at the White House with the Washington Special Action Group, which assembles in crisis situations. The group includes representatives of the U.S. National Security Council, the State and Defense departments and the Central Intelligence Agency. Kissinger also talked at length by telephone with President Nixon, who is in San Clemente, Calif., where presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said U.S. efforts still are aimed at working to achieve a cease-fire and negotiations. Kissinger is due to meet Archbishop Makarios, the deposed Cypriot president, on Monday in Washington. Britain urged Turkey on Sunday to stop the fighting on Cyprus and warned Greece against spreading the conflict to Europe and widening it to involve other nations. In a day of hectic diplomatic action, British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan spoke five times with Kissinger by telephone with the aim of coordinating the British-American search for peace on the island. Ranking British officials said Callaghan and Kissinger agreed that the immediate objective is limiting the warfare to Cyprus itself, establishing a cease-fire on the island and calling a new peace conference among Britain, Greece and Turkey, the three signers of the 1960 treaty that set up the island republic. The sources said Callaghan urged Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit by telephone to halt all military action on Cyprus. Warsaw, Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev called Sunday for an end to outside military intervention in Cyprus and demanded that Archbishop Makarios be restored as the republic's president. Brezhnev, on a four-day visit to Warsaw, aimed his remarks at Greece's military-backed government, which he accused of "open, armed aggression."

Two girl racers victors in state Soapbox Derby

DETROIT (UPI) — Laura Cross, 13, celebrated by eating a pizza and dedicating her soapbox Derby victory to womankind. Mary Klein, 11, laughed and cried after her triumph and said she was glad she beat her brother. It was a day when males took it on the chin in the Michigan running of the Soapbox Derby. The two girls won the annual events Saturday in the state's upper and lower peninsulas. Their victories advanced them to the national championships in Akron, Ohio. Mary's win was the first victory by a girl in 19 soapbox derbies in the Upper Peninsula while Laura's win was only the second by a girl in 37 years in the Lower Peninsula event. "I'm really excited," said Cross, a seventh grader who competed in a cobalt blue racer she built at home. "I dedicated my trophy to womankind." She defeated 32 rivals, including two other girls. One of the losers, Teresa Bartz, 13, Fraser, said she entered for fun. "Some of the girls did it for women's lib," she said, "but not me. I did it for enjoyment." Klein won her race in Hancock, in the extreme north of the Upper Peninsula and immediately burst into tears of happiness. "I'm just happy I beat my brother," she said. Her brother finished fourth in overall time.

Official's opposed Simon's trip

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon's trip to the Middle East was opposed by State Dept. bureaucrats, who felt it might complicate Middle East peace efforts, but not by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, American sources said Sunday.

Winding up the trip, Simon flew from Saudi Arabia to Kuwait to continue efforts to get the Persian Gulf oil producers to lower prices and invest more of their soaring oil revenue in the United States.

In describing opposition to the trip by some State Dept. officials, one source said that the critics "obviously felt it was State Dept. domain."

He said Kissinger encouraged the mission, however, and it was approved because of a growing recognition that "economic planning plays a central role in our relations with other countries."

Proxmire checks defense profits

Sen. William Proxmire, D. - Wis., is investigating a federal official's contention that one of the country's largest defense and space contractors has been allowed to keep $26 million in profits it is not entitled to on government contracts.

Last month, the renegotiation board allowed the McDonnell Douglas Corp. to keep all but $5 million of more than a quarter of a billion dollars in profits it realized in 1967 and 1968 on government contracts that, by law, were subject to renegotiation.

The renegotiation board has the legal responsibility for determining and eliminating excessive profits realized by defense and space contractors. The five members are appointed by the President and serve at his pleasure. All the present members were appointed by President Nixon.

Coup denied; Palestine discontent

The Lebanese newspaper Beirut claimed Sunday that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat averted a coup attempt last week.

The pro - Iraq newspaper said Sadat ordered the arrest of people in "sensitive positions" in Cairo after the coup attempt. The paper gave no further details on the alleged coup attempt.

In Cairo, an official of the Egyptian government denied the report.

Beirut said a communique on Palestine issued Thursday by Sadat and King Hussein of Jordan has "caused widespread discontent" in Egypt and much of the Arab world.

The communique recognized the Palestine Liberation Organization, or PLO, as representatives of Palestinian people everywhere except in Jordan. Most Arab leaders and the PLO consider the organization the only legitimate representative of the Palestinians.

Inmates destroy French prison

French inmates rioted through the night and destroyed Nimes Prison before being brought under control Sunday. It was France's second major prison mutiny in a week.

"What they didn't burn down, they broke," said an official, who described the 400 - inmate jail as "unusable." Authorities said six prisoners and three policemen were injured in the riot. The cause of the trouble was not known.

Two prisoners died in a prison riot at Clairvaux Jail near Lyon during the week. That riot was believed to have started as a fight among prisoners.

Shot, beaten man found in Belfast

British troops found a man's hooded body Sunday in a bricked - up house near the site of a Belfast explosion they were investigating, officials in Northern Ireland said.

The victim, in his early 20s, had been shot in the head. The death brought the number killed in five years of sectarian fighting in Northern Ireland to 1,044.

The extremist Provisional Wing of the Roman Catholic - based Irish Republican Army identified the man as Brian Shaw and claimed responsibility for his slaying. It said Shaw, who was beaten severely before he was shot, had been caught trying to plant a bomb in a Catholic area of Belfast.

Spaniard new Miss Universe

Miss Spain, 20 - year - old Amparee Munoz, was crowned Miss Universe 1974 Sunday and later visited the first lady of the Philippines, Imelda R. Marcos.

Munoz, 5 - foot - 8 and chestnut - haired, sobbed as she walked down the runway before 8,000 persons at Manila's new Folk Arts Theater and a worldwide television audience estimated in the millions.

Munoz, whose father is a boxer in Malaga, became the first Spanish girl to win the title in the contest's 23 - year history.

Miss U.S.A., 19 - year - old Karen Morrison, of St. Charles, Ill., was among the 12 semifinalists.

In addition to prizes worth $25,000, Miss Universe will have the use of an entire island in the South China Sea off the Philippine coast for vacationing during the year.

Tapes show Nixon's confusion

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon fretted 13 months ago that he might have been deaf to the overtones of a cover - up plot in 1972 Watergate conversations with his aides, according to House Judiciary Committee transcripts.

"I mean, God, maybe we were talking about a cover - up - Watergate. I really didn't know what the hell - I honestly didn't know," Nixon told White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler on June 4, 1973, the transcripts showed.

The committee released its transcripts of the June 4 conversation on Saturday as part of 1,069 pages of evidence considered in the impeachment inquiry.

The White House also released on Saturday a 151 - page legal brief submitted to the Judiciary Committee by Nixon attorney James D. St. Clair seeking to refute a broad range of accusations against Nixon.

The brief said there is a "complete absence of any conclusive evidence demonstrating presidential wrongdoing sufficient to justify the grave action of impeachment."

Presidential counselor Dean Burch also repeated contentions that the committee sessions to date have been closed and have produced leaks calculated to damage Nixon.

In closed sessions the committee has been hearing evidence and, more recently, considering articles of impeachment. It will continue the closed sessions Monday and Tuesday for further discussions and a presentation of arguments against impeachment by the minority staff.

The latest documents released by the committee disclosed that former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson told of White House pressure to fire Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor as early as July 3, 1973, more than three months before Cox was dismissed.

In addition, the documents show that Cox attempted on June 27, 1973, to obtain Nixon's version of cover - up events described by his former counsel and principal accuser, John W. Dean III.

White House lawyer Fred J. Buzhardt responded a month later that Nixon would address Dean's allegations in a forthcoming public statement.

The transcript of Nixon's conversation with Ziegler, attended briefly by Haig, portray the President as confused about the cover - up implications of his conversations in February and March 1973, with Dean and other confidantes.

As he listened to the tapes, he told Ziegler: "It's not comfortable for me because I was sitting there like a dumb turkey."

Nixon also referred to his March 21, 1973, conversation with Dean in which Dean warned of a "cancer close to the Presidency," discussed clemency for the Watergate burglars and E. Howard Hunt's demands for hush money and assessed the chances of criminal charges against various White House aides.

"We do know we have one problem: it's that damn conversation of March 21st . . ." Nixon said.

Discussing that conversation and previous ones, the President told Ziegler:

"What I was saying about this crap is that it's reassuring up to a point, but in fact, uh, at least, in this whole business, we, we, there and we conspired about a cover - up (unintelligible) or so. We did talk about it on the 21st. That's a tough conversation. Unless Haldeman explains it - which he will. (Sighs) But I think we can survive that, too."

Discussing the March 17 session when Dean told of the Nixon aides who might be implicated in the scandal, Nixon asked Ziegler: "How would you - that strike you, how does it strike you? It was telling me that there was a cover?"

Ziegler replied, "Not at all."

Referring to the March discussions of whether to "let it all hang out," Nixon said Dean "might well have drawn the conclusion, Ron, that the President wanted him to keep the lid on."

"Yeah," Ziegler said. "The political lid in the Ervin committee hearings, not the legal lid in terms of the trial."

Obscure law causes cancellation of televised state lottery drawings

LANSING (UPI) - The television blackout of the Michigan lottery has now been extended to Canada.

Lottery officials Friday cancelled plans to televise the eight weekly drawings of its special jackpot game on CKLW - TV in Windsor, Ont., after learning of an obscure Canadian law that would have made it illegal.

The law makes it a criminal offense to print or publish any advertisement, scheme or proposal of any foreign lottery and the sale or offer for sale of any ticket to such a lottery.

CKLW informed Lottery Commissioner Gus Harrison that its lawyers had determined the law prohibits television broadcasts promoting foreign lotteries.

In the United States, Federal Communications Commission regulations prohibit use of radio and television stations for lottery promotion.

Lottery officials went to CKLW - TV with the idea of televising the jackpot drawings as a kind of trial. Harrison indicated at the time that he was considering proposing that the regular weekly lottery be televised by CKLW sometime in the future.

"We explored the legality of the broadcast both here and in Canada and had been advised by the office of attorney general, our advertising agency and CKLW that no apparent legal problem existed," Harrison said.

"In Canada, as well as the United States, antiquated laws written before modern, state - run lotteries were contemplated continue to cause us problems," he said.

Officials from Michigan and other states with lotteries are lobbying in Washington in an effort to change laws adversely affecting the operation of state - run lotteries, including broadcast regulations.

"We felt the exposure provided by CKLW would be good for us as well as our customers," Harrison said. "We're sorry it wasn't possible at this time."

The $1 - a - ticket jackpot game is being run as a special summer promotion to keep up interest in the lottery. In addition to weekly winners, it will feature a special drawing Sept. 24 with a top prize of $333,333 or $20,000 a year for life.

Woman rep says female groups fail to help her

By JOANNA FIRESTONE

LANSING (UPI) — State Rep. Alma Stallworth, who stands a good chance of becoming the first black woman in the state Senate, says she has received no support from organized women's groups. Being black and female and vying against an incumbent in a primary election would ordinarily spell doom for any candidate. But the incumbent, Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Detroit, now admits that Stallworth, 41, is giving him an unexpectedly good run for the nomination.

"I have received nothing from women's organizations," Stallworth said in an interview. "They evidently do more talking than acting. They tell me they can't do much because they are bound by their organization or something."

Stallworth, the mother of two sons, has served in the House for four years. In the 1972 election, she captured 97 per cent of the vote in her district, the highest of any legislative candidate.

"For some reason, it's really hard to reach women's advocate groups," she said. "Maybe I'll get better support from unorganized women just because I am a woman."

The last woman senator, N. Loraine Beebe, was defeated in 1969, chiefly because of her support for abortion legislation. There are seven women running for the Senate but observers give Stallworth the best chance of winning.

The 7th Senatorial District in northwest Detroit is becoming black-dominated. The 1970 census showed an even 50-50 black-white split, but current estimates set the district at 60 per cent black.

Stallworth said neither her sex nor her race seems to have affected the contest significantly, but noted that there is "a substantial conservative block" in the middle-class district.

She said she discarded almost certain re-election to the House for a chancey bid for the Senate because Faxon had planned to run for Congress.

CATA bus subsidy OK'd for Meridian Township

By ANGELIA CARROLL
State News Staff Write

Bus service in Meridian Township was given a temporary lease on life Tuesday night when the township's board of trustees reversed an earlier decision and approved subsidy payments to the Capitol Area Transportation Authority (CATA) for July and August.

At two earlier meetings the board had refused to come up with the township's share of a requested CATA subsidy. The 5 to 1 vote Tuesday approved payment of a $4,000 subsidy for July and August. Only two persons spoke against the continuance of the buses in the township at a public hearing Tuesday, with one person suggesting that funds be used for bicycle paths instead.

Stephen Thomas, the township supervisor, pointed out that by its earlier action the board had meant only that it had very few dollars to work with in its budget, and not that it had meant to suggest the board was not supportive of CATA.

Until April, Meridian paid $5,520 a year for the one route which enters the township — the East Lansing-Fisher Body route which runs every 20 minutes along Grand River Avenue to Meridian Mall.

Meridian had planned its budget to accommodate approximately the same subsidy as in 1973, but late in April, CATA asked local governments for massive subsidy increases. Meridian is the only governmental unit of the six served by CATA that had not made a commitment to support CATA for the remainder of 1974.

Several citizens questioned the reduction in fares which had accompanied the increased subsidy requests, and nearly all said they were willing to pay an increased fare for the buses. However, Greg Bannen, assistant director of the bus system, said that the lower fares had been mandated by the other governmental units participating in the system, and that zoned fares, where riders within the township would pay larger fares, though difficult to administer, were not being completely ruled out.

The two month continuance of financing will come from the township's 1974 budget if possible, and if not, the funds will come out of its budget for 1975.

The township has expressed a desire to seek alternative sources of money for the system.

County to appeal Warner verdict

LANSING (UPI) — The Ingham County prosecutor's office said Thursday it will appeal heroin charges against State Rep. Dale Warner, R-Easton Rapids, to the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The court is not expected to decide whether to hear the appeal for about two weeks. "We told the Court of Appeals that we think this case represents major questions that are significant to the jurisprudence of the state," said Asst. Prosecutor Thomas Rasmussen.

The charge against Warner stemming from an August 1973 drug raid on a downtown Lansing motel was dismissed by Circuit Court Judge Donald Reisig on grounds that evidence submitted by police was inadmissible.

Police raided the motel after a clerk informed them she had accidentally overheard a telephone conversation from the room in question involving a planned drug transaction. The clerk later admitted she had deliberately eavesdropped on the conversation, which made the raid, conducted without a search warrant, illegal.

"We're asking the Court of Appeals to consider whether Judge Reisig's ruling was correct when he said that Warner had standing to raise objections about a phone call in which it has not been shown he was a participant," Rasmussen said.

Warner is scheduled to testify Tuesday at the preliminary examination of two persons he has accused of kidnaping him at gunpoint July 10. Robert Sharber, 20, of Baldwin, and Joyce James, 35, of Lansing, are charged with kidnaping, armed robbery and carrying a concealed deadly weapon in a vehicle.

FOR OMBUDSMAN POSITION

Unit seeks applications

Nominations and applications for the position of ombudsman are being accepted by a special presidential advisory committee established to recommend a successor for the retiring James Rust.

Rust, who was appointed the University's first ombudsman seven years ago, retires this month.

E. Fred Carlisle, professor of English and chairman of the advisory committee, said applications and nominations — along with letters and references — should be received by no later than July 31.

The position is open only to senior faculty members, according to the Academic Freedom Report. Carlisle said the committee interpreted this to mean associate or full professors.

The committee is using guidelines established by Rust in a booklet detailing the job. It says the ombudsman listens to students, advises courses of action, explains University policies and procedures, refers students to appropriate offices or authorities, reviews decisions affecting students, recommends policy and procedure changes and informally investigates and mediates.

Spain's Franco transfers power

FROM WIRE SERVICES

MADRID, Spain — A medical bulletin on the condition of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, hospitalized since July 9 with phlebitis, indicated Sunday that his doctors were having difficulty in ridding him of the thrombosis that has developed.

The bulletin said the internal hemorrhaging that had caused a sudden crisis Friday was still in check but that the thrombotic condition in the right thigh continued "stationary."

The bleeding, which had led the ailing chief of state to transfer his powers temporarily to his successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, was believed to have been brought about by medication to inhibit blood coagulation.

Juan Carlos will become king and restore Spain's monarchy after Franco's death or retirement.

The general attended Roman Catholic mass in his room Sunday morning and was visited by members of his family. Prayers for his health were offered in churches.

The Catholic newspaper Ya reported that one of seven doctors attending Franco said of his recuperation from Friday's attack: "El Caudillo is very calm. It is a surprising serenity. All of us were surprised. It is a touch of God." The doctor was not identified.

Franco is known to the Spaniards as El Caudillo, or the leader. Franco entered the Madrid clinic on July 9 for treatment of phlebitis, inflammation of a vein in his right thigh. Doctors reported the Friday relapse after the Spanish leader of 35 years vomited blood, an apparent reaction to anticoagulants administered to improve circulation in the leg.

Medical bulletins reported Saturday that the bleeding had been contained and "the acute period has passed," but they revealed that Franco had thrombophlebitis, or blood clotting in the inflamed vein.

The transfer of power to Juan Carlos had immediate political impact in Spain and signaled openly to the Spanish people that Franco's rule, begun in 1939 at the end of the bloody three-year Spanish Civil War, probably was nearly over.

Analysts see 'banner' oil profits, large gains during second quarter

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil company earnings soared in the last quarter of 1973 and the first quarter of this year, largely because of dramatically higher prices for crude oil and increased demand of petrochemical products.

While some analysts and company presidents said then they expected these profit forces to subside during the second quarter, the anticipated downturn does not appear to have occurred for several reasons:

- Retail prices in Europe have stayed at high levels until quite recently, despite predictions that they would fall because of a sharp decline in consumption.
- Domestic producers continued to benefit from the higher, uncontrolled price of newly found crude oil. Companies should also benefit from the delayed effect of the government's decision to raise the price of the "old" crude in late 1973.
- Foreign crude prices have remained high, the latest indication being Gulf Oil's decision to buy Kuwaiti crude at a price of almost $11 a barrel.

Earnings from petrochemicals, a significant product of many companies, remained strong as demand showed no signs of easing.

Also helping the industry, the analysts add, is the absence of any congressional action on the much-debated oil tax bills, and on the call for an elimination of the oil depletion allowance.

"The industry still anticipates some changes in the depletion allowance, but there's a feeling that the changes may be less onerous than what might have been expected," says Nowak.

"The longer Congress waits the better the chances are that the industry will escape unscathed," says Habact, who feels the companies' profits may level off in 1975. Others feel consumers have adjusted to higher prices and that Congress is too concerned with impeachment concerns to focus on the oil industry.

Speaking on the eve of most companies' public announcement of their second quarter profits, the analysts say they expect strong gains in earnings over those reported a year ago. In some cases they expect higher profits than those reported for the first three months of the year.

"It will be another banner quarter for the oil companies," says Alan Habact, oil analyst for Bache & Co., one Wall Street brokerage house.

"I expect company earnings to be up substantially, from 35 per cent to 60 per cent above a year ago," says Eugene Nowak of Blyth, Eastman, Dillon & Co.

Last Friday the world's largest oil company, Exxon Corp., became the first major petroleum company to announce its second quarter results, posting a 67 per cent increase in after-tax profits from the same period in 1973 and a 10 per cent gain over the first 74 quarter.

3 print styles on display from Kresge collection

By JUNE E. K. DELANO
State News Staff Writer

The current Kresge Art Center Gallery exhibit offers both education and entertainment as it displays 100 prints from the University's permanent art collection.

The exhibit focuses on prints and printmaking from the 15th through 19th centuries and covers three major areas of printmaking: relief, which is woodcut or wood engraving; incised or intaglio, which includes engraving, etching, aquatint, mezzotint and drypoint; and lithography.

"It's a good exhibit for art history students and those interested in learning more about the history of printmaking," said Edna Anderson of the gallery.

The prints are displayed in chronological order, beginning with illustrations from 15th century religious books and including works by such artists as Rembrandt, Renoir, Beardsley, Gauguin, Cezanne and Goya.

Interspersed with the prints are detailed explanations of the printing processes and interpretations or comments on many of the prints themselves.

One of the most prominent displays is a collection of colorful prints satirizing the British political process by William Hogarth, an early 18th century artist.

Another striking group is 15 prints by Francisco Goya, which savagely mock human nature. This collection is accompanied by numerous explanations and interpretations of the works.

Other notable inclusions are wood engravings by American artist Winslow Homer, one of Cezanne's many versions of "The Bathers," and a small etching done in 1880 by Sarah Bernhardt.

The MSU gallery has acquired many prints in the last decade because, as explained by recently retired director Paul Love, they are the most feasible acquisitions financially — "where one gets the most for the money."

The gallery is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on weekends.
