LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon went into shock after phlebitis surgery and is in critical condition, his doctor said Tuesday

A team of physicians administered "countershock measures for three hours until a stable vascular condition was once again restored," Dr. John O. Lungren said in a written statement.

"The patient is still considered critical," he said.

Lungren said the serious complication was probably caused by "some retroperitoneal bleeding secondary to anticoagulation therapy.'

The physician had said earlier that there was "somewhat more risk than normal" to the surgery because Nixon had been taking anticoagulant drugs which left him prone to uncontrolled bleeding.

Lungren said after the surgery that there was no excessive bleeding.

"Replacement of blood loss and relaxation of anticoagulation therapy was instituted," Lungren said.

Ford was scheduled to be in Los Angeles Thursday for a campaign visit.

Surgery was decided on Monday night after doctors feared that a large clot in Nixon's leg could break loose and lodge in an artery to the heart or lungs, which could cause sudden death.

The former president was taken to his room on the top floor of Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach for recovery.

At the news conference early Tuesday, the doctors did not answer questions on when Nixon might be well enough to travel to Washington, D.C., to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial of five former political associates.

He has been subpenaed by both the defense and prosecution.

"With the threat the clot could become a pulmonary embolus, we placed a Miles Clip . . . partially occluding but not completely occluding the vein," Hickman said. He said the clip was permanent.

He said the operation was uneventful and that the former president was "recovering in the normal manner." The doctor said Nixon had the usual postoperative effects of sleepiness because of the anesthesia and was confined to bed.

Both Hickman and Lungren noted that Nixon will be prohibited from eating a regular diet initially and will be fed intravenously Tuesday.

Lungren, who had warned that bleeding might be a problem during surgery because of anticoagulation therapy, said there was no excessive bleeding during the operation.

Nixon was given no extra doses of Vitamin K to prevent excessive bleeding during the surgery. Doctors said he would continue to receive heparin, as he had before the operation, to prevent further Nixon's youngest daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, said surgeons at Memorial Hospital Medical Center had wanted to operate Monday night, but "he was too weak. He's exhausted.

Ma Bell's severed wires cause phone call mix-ups

By BRUCE RAY WALKER State News Staff Writer

If over the weekend you called your girlfriend's number and a male voice answered, don't think much of it.

The trouble wasn't two - timing, but rather ditch - digging on the construction site at Michigan Avenue and Harrison Rd. Four large telephone cables serving the MSU campus were severed Friday at about 5 p.m. by workers on the State Highway Dept.'s project to redesign the intersection.

With the cables cut, phone service to various parts of the campus was interrupted to different degrees. Some students could call out but not receive calls, while others found that when they called one number they reached someone else clear across campus.

Each of the cut cables had hundreds of wires leading through them, and before these can be spliced back together, they have to be tagged and tested. Sometimes the wrong wires are put together and then the number being called gets a different person than the one intended.

Tom Dickinson, freshman, B424 Armstrong Hall, said he has not been able to call out of his room since Friday. One time he went into a room where the phone was working and called his number and someone from Bailey Hall answered. They told him their phones were messed up as well and suggested he call their number

CATA service irks handicapper

By STEVE ORR

State News Staff Writer

"We're people too," an MSU student said as he waited in the rain Tuesday in the hopes of proving a point about the inadequacy of public transportation for the physically handicapped.

The student, Ken Laux, freshman, got his point across.

Laux, who uses a wheelchair, attempted to board a Capitol Area Transit Authority (CATA) bus outside the MSU Union. He wanted to demonstrate that CATA buses, like nearly all public buses, are not equipped with the facilities needed to handle wheelchairs. He also wanted to show the problems that arise with other physically handicapped passengers.

Heshowedwhen he could not board the bus himself that CATA buses have no facilities for the physically handicapped.

He also served as a living example of problems that have arisen over CATA's future intention to provide for physically handicapped people. But many physically handicapped people find their plans totally unacceptable.

CATA has received a state grant for the purchase of smaller buses, and plans to equip four of them for use by the physically handicapped. They will be put in use early next year on specially planned routes. Such a move would be a first step by CATA toward providing for the public transportation of the physically handicapped.

It appears the move would work to dispel one long - standing complaint from the physically handicapped. But it is the selection of the buses that has fed the controversy.

Greg Bannon, administrative asst. of CATA, said the state grant provides for a maximum expenditure of $25,000 per

Eric Gentile, president of the Lansing chapter of the National Assn. of the Physically Handicapped, said the only bus that is well enough equipped to fully serve the physically handicapped costs $50,000. Bannon said the buses CATA has looked at will exceed state standards and will be the best vehicles available for the money. "We cannot just let the program drop because it's not ideal," Bannon said. "It shouldn't be put off. God knows we're "CATA's buses will not at all be acceptable," Gentile said. He said that the $25,000 buses CATA has looked at have doors that are too narrow, inadequate lifts for wheelchairs, dangerously designed steps, poor straps for securing wheelchairs and are of unsafe body design.

Gentile said CATA dropped consideration of one model because it fell short in those categories, only to look at another in which the only improvement was wider doors.

"Those buses are totally oriented to wheelchair users," Gentile said. "There is no way in hell people with leg braces, canes or crutches can get up the steps."

Gentile called the $25,000 buses "half assed adaptations." He said CATA is taking a "simplistic and uneducated stand. Whoever makes decisions at CATA is totally ignorant" of the problems facing the physically handicapped, Gentile said. He also called CATA consideration of

"If the physically disabled and elderly can use a bus, then it's public. If they can't, it's an elitist, able - bodied - only bus service, not a public one." - Eric Gentile, president of the Lansing chapter of the National Assn. of the Physically Handicapped.

those buses "a cheap, quick way of showing the public they're trying."

Gentile, who uses a wheelchair, defined the physically handicapped as many elderly people, people with visual, speech and hearing impairments, quadriplegics and paraplegics, those suffering from cerebral palsy, muscular distrophy, multiple sclerosis and congenital birth defects, amputees, dwarfs and those using crutches, canes and wheelchairs.

He said it is estimated that roughly 10 to 13 per cent of East Lansing's population fits into one of those categories and that there are about 500 physically handicapped students and employes at MSU.

Gentile called MSU's transportation facilities for the physically handicapped 'woefully inadequate, really a bummer, with special units consisting of only one van with a lift." Laux, who ended up refusing an offer from CATA bus driver Steve Purdy to be lifted onto the bus Tuesday, said when he travels to classes he either rides with a friend or goes by himself in his motorized wheelchair and "hopes to make it." What it boils down to is that "if the physically disabled and elderly can use a bus, then it's public. If they can't it's an elitist, able - bodied - only bus service, not a public one," Gentile said. Bannon stressed that while the buses they will select may not be perfect, they will be the best CATA's limited funds can 'Our hearts are in the right place," he

Economic future index drops

An index that often points to future trends in the economy registered its second sharpest decline on record last month, the Commerce Dept. reported

The department said its index of "leading indicators" dropped 2.5 per cent in September. The only bigger decline on record was 2.9 per cent in June 1951.

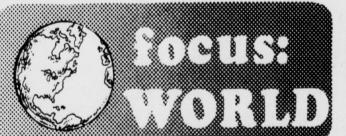

Though some economists are skeptical of the index's validity, last month's sharp drop was still another piece of evidence that the economy is weak and probably will continue to deteriorate well into 1975, at least.

The leading indicators are a set of 12 economic yardsticks selected because they have tended to rise and fall in advance of broad movements in the general economy. The index is used as a clue to future trends.

Rocky discloses loan activities

New figures made public by vice president designate Nelson A. Rockefeller bring the total of personal loans he acknowledges making to friends and associates during the past 18 years to more than $2 million.

Rockefeller Monday added 26 additional names to the list of individuals who have benefited from his largesse since 1957, a philanthropic record that has become a primary issue in the investigation of his fitness to hold the nation's second highest office.

Kissinger reassures India

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger apparently has assured Indian leaders in New Delhi that the United States will not resume shipment of lethal weapons to Pakistan.

With Kissinger due in Islamabad on Thursday, Indian officials are carefully avoiding public discussion of the sensitive subject.

But newsmen traveling with Kissinger are being advised privately that India has been reassured that the nine - year - old embargo will be maintained.

In a joint communique both sides agreed that "outside powers" should not attempt to gain positions of special privilege in the region.

British to nationalize industries

Queen Elizabeth II told Parliament Tuesday the Labor government plans to nationalize key industries, including aviation and oil, in a Socialist bid to revive Britain's economy.

The queen's address, written for her by Prime Minister Harold Wilson's cabinet, said a National Enterprise Board will be proposed to direct the restructuring and reorganization of Britain's industries. The address also contained proposals for taxing private wealth, gifts and estates.

Chile may release prisoners

Chile's ruling junta will soon release about 2,000 political prisoners, diplomatic sources in Santiago said Tuesday. They said about 500 will be deported.

The sources said negotiations are under way to find countries to accept the expelled prisoners, including the head of the Chilean Communist party, Luis Corvalan, and the foreign minister of the late Marxist President Salvador Allende, Clodomiro Almeyda.

Meanwhile, a Harris survey released Monday showed that by a 60 - 18 per cent majority, the American public believes it was wrong of the United States to intervene in and participate in the overthrow of the Chilean government.

Arab nation wants oil price cut

A Saudi Arabian official said Tuesday that his country has told Arab oil states it wants a "symbolic cut" in world petroleum prices but plans no unilateral action.

The disavowal of a unilateral cut in Saudi Arabia's oil price of approximately $11.65 per barrel contrasted with a report from Rabat, Morocco that appeared in the New York Times.

The newspaper reported that an informed Arab source said the per - barrel price of Saudi oil would be lowered next week by less than a dollar. As the world's largest oil exporter, Saudi Arabia theoretically could force down all oil prices with a unilateral cut.

Convicts make new demands

Four armed convicts holding 16 hostages in the Scheveningen penitentiary in the Hague Tuesday demanded an aircraft to fly them out of the Netherlands, a Justice Ministry spokesman said.

They also insisted that a Palestinian terrorist in the prison infirmary, who asked them Monday night and again Tuesday to give up, be turned over to them. In return, the convicts offered to release three of their hostages – two women and a man with a heart ailment.

The government spokesman did not reveal where the convicts wanted to go or the government's response to their demands.

Hunt says money demand not blackmail Du

WASHINGTON (AP) - E. Howard Hunt Jr. testified Tuesday that the money demand former President Richard M. Nixon viewed as blackmail last year was just an attempt to collect an overdue

"No, sir," said Hunt. "What do you consider it, an investment plan?"

"I consider that I was in the position of a bill collector trying to get those who had made prior commitments," Hunt said.

Hunt underwent cross examination on this second day as a witness at trial of John N. Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, all charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Hunt had testified that in March 1973 when he was about to be sentenced for his role as foreman of the Watergate break - in team he had word relayed to the White House that he wanted $122,000 to pay his lawyers. He said he threatened to disclose other covert jobs that he had done for the White times to grand juries and had decided to tell the truth finally after reading the White House transcripts last summer.

Asked whether he would have felt differently had his demands been met, Hunt "I felt a rude replied: awakening."

"I read the President's contemptuous reference to those of us who had gone to prison as idiots and jackasses. I realized there had been a wild scramble going on for months the White House to protect themselves and very little thought had been given to our plight, much less to the money which was the easier thing for them to give to ease our burden."

On the evening of March 21, 1973, after the president said the blackmail money could be raised, $75,000 was delivered to Hunt's attorney, William O. Bittman, and Hunt said he got the money the following day.

'That money delivery 'figures largely in the charges against three of the five defendants because the government said it was paid to keep Hunt quiet.

Hunt admitted again that he lied even in the book of his memoirs scheduled for publication next month.

William Frates, representing Ehrlichman, read Hunt one of the statements from that book that in two notebooks Dean destroyed after Hunt's arrest, "there were documents in which I recorded Gemstone from its inception." Gemstone was the code name Hunt adopted for the fruits of the wiretaps placed in Democratic headquarters at the Watergate building.

Hunt had written that the destroyed documents would implicate Dean, Mitchell, and Mitchell's re - election committee deputy, Jeb Stuart Magruder. But Hunt said that was untrue.

"Why did you put in the false statement?" Frates asked. "I put it in to support the position I maintained for a year or 11/2 years," Hunt said.

U.S. Army Lt. Dorothy Clark Is Coming To Campus To Talk About

College Junior and Student Officer Programs

The College Junior Program is an exciting chance to preview life as an officer in the Women's Army Corps. It's open to girls who have completed their junior year at college.

As a cadet corporal in the Enlisted Reserve, you spend four summer weeks at Fort McClellan, Alabama-with other students from all over the Nation. You find out about training, social life and the many opportunities available to you

Then you'll go to Fort Benning, Georgia, where you'll see and meet your male

You'll be paid a cadet corporal's salary. All your transportation from home and back will be paid for by the Army. You'll also receive uniforms, meals and medical care at no expense.

After you have completed this program, you'll be under no obligation to continue in the Reserves. But when you have received your college degree, you may apply for a commission, as a second lieutenant, in the Women's Army Corps.

Student Officer Program pays you while you're a senior at college

If you're convinced that you want to become an officer in the Women's Army Corps the Student Officer Program can be the rewarding second step. Only those who have completed the College Junior Course are considered, and only a limited number of applicants are selected. Your qualification and acceptance are based on your standing in the College Junior Course.

For more information on the College Junior Program, and more details on the Student Officer Program, get in touch with terim director faces ouster threat v fellow ASMSU board member

> By ROSANNE LESS State News Staff Writer

move to oust the interim director of ASMSU's Labor ations department could force student government to remine why the labor department exists in the first place.

Doyle O'Connor, interim director of Labor Relations, was atened with recall Monday night by Nancy Sutake, College of ineering representative on the ASMSU board. Sutake alleged O'Connor's chairing of the labor post was a conflict of rest because O'Connor is a student worker. O'Connor is also we in the fledgling Student Workers Union and in other munity labor organizational groups.

Under the provisions of the ASMSU constitution, only the ident can hire and fire an interim cabinet director.

the Labor Relations department was designed in 1973 as a net service to encourage and support student collective aining efforts. Tim Cain, now ASMSU president, requested formation of this service on behalf of the Kellogg Center dent Employes Assn. Then ASMSU president Ed Grafton tioned the development and appointed Cain to act as interim Cain resigned that position following his own election as (SU president in 1973, and appointed O'Connor as interim ctor until a permanent head could be appointed. Petitioning the post has been going on all term and closed Monday.

O'Connor is ousted as the head of a student government service because he is a student worker and has outside labor political affiliations, then any future director of the same ice may not be able to be either a worker or have union pathies. This appears inconsistent with the overall purpose of Labor Relations department.

O'Connor is a student employe fighting for his own cause," ke charged. "He can't see objectively, like recognizing that administration is fair with wages. It's like bargaining for self, your own interests, without a mediator."

There is no more of a conflict of interest for a student ker to be in Labor Relations than it is for a member of Legal Aid to go before a judiciary or for the head of the Interfraternity Council to live in a fraternity," O'Connor said in refuting Sutake's allegations. "Her concerns about a conflict of interest have no basis and may only be a smokescreen for personal and political conflict between us."

Sutake alleged that O'Connor and Cain are drawing up a budget for Labor Relations that includes provisions for the Student Workers Union. She maintained that this implies O'Connor is "acting like a permanent department head."

"There is something fishy about the way Doyle came on the scene," Sutake said. "I'm upset about the close ties between Tim and Doyle. Tim may be influencing Doyle.

"I'd like to see the Labor Relations department independent of the president of ASMSU."

"I'm a completely free agent," O'Connor said.

Sutake admitted that her actions, while procedurally out of order, may have been triggered by an individual personality conflict. She maintained that she was moved to this display of dissatisfaction because O'Connor has been "slandering" some of her actions earlier in the evening. "I just want to get him out of here," she said.

O'Connor and Sutake clashed earlier in the meeting when discussing an amendment to a bill taking a stand on the triple situation in residence halls. O'Connor deemed "gutless" any resolution that would delete the phrase "the administration is undertaking no positive action."

Sutake claimed that O'Connor was just using this as another chance to put down the University. She also paralleled the resolution in question to the similarly worded one that recognized the Student Workers Union.

EDITORIALS Re-elect Lynn Jondahl

In an election year full of mediocre incumbents, Lynn Jondahl is an exception. During his two years as state representative of East Lansing's 59th District, Jondahl has distinguished himself as a good, honest and competent legislator.

Cathy Lessard, his Republican opponent, has tried and failed to find skeletons in Jondahl's closet.

Jondahl has done an excellent job serving his constituents and the people of Michigan. He clearly merits a second House term.

Most recently Jondahl has demonstrated his willingness to buck the Democratic party machine when he believes the people's interest is at stake. He was a member of the "magnificent seven," a group of legislators who refused to ramrod completely ineffective campaign controls through the state legislature last spring.

As a result of their efforts, the new campaign reform bill is only partially, rather than totally, ineffective.

Jondahl also has sponsored, cosponsored or supported a series of people - oriented bills.

He cosponsored the generic drug bill, which allows the purchase of lower cost drugs which are equivalent in quality but cheaper than name brands.

He sponsored a bill which would prohibit the sale and manufacture of nonreturnable beverage containers. Jondahl has supported transportation bond issues in the legislature and supports Proposal D, which would provide $1.1 billion for development of state - wide transportation systems.

Jondahl supports a graduated state income tax, and has worked for appropriation of funds for rehabilitation of low - income housing.

Cathy Lessard has charged that Jondahl is out of touch with his constituency, even inaccessible to

However, the fact that Jondahl has been lauded by citizen and consumer groups for work in areas ranging from clean government to a clean environment shows he has the citizens' interest at heart, and understands his consituents' needs.

Carroll Hawkins, opposing Jondahl on the Human Rights party ticket, lacks both Jondahl's legislative expertise and his awareness of the issues that concern Michigan residents.

Jondahl is far more qualified than either his Republican or Human Rights party opponents in the East Lansing representative's race, and his record proves it.

P.O. boxed in by traffic

Anyone who has waited in line on Abbott Road to get into the poorly planned post office parking lot knows that improved parking facilities for the building are in order.

Right now the post office proposes to construct a horrid new parking lot across an alley from the present lot. The lots would be joined by a driveway cutting across the alley.

Residents of the area oppose the plan because it would congest the alley, which is the only entrance and exit for the 24 residents of Bower House Cooperative, its entrance and exit on Whitehills Drive would cause excess traffic on that street and it would lower property values for area homeowners.

These are legitimate citizen concerns, and so far they have been dealt with inefficiently by both Postmaster Gordon Briggs and most city council members.

The Michigan - Harrison controversy proved that once plans are adopted it is nearly impossible to get them modified.

Councilman George Griffiths has suggested that more people be hired to work at the post office during busy times. Though this plan may not be the whole answer, it is worth considering.

Griffiths also suggests that the Abbott Road post office encourage its customers to use post office contact stations located in the Campus Bookstore and the MSU Union. This could take some customer pressure off the Abbott Road post office.

Citizen reaction to the new plans for a post office parking lot warrant immediate attention. Local planners should get together with post office patrons and Whitehills area residents to work out an acceptable compromise to this long standing problem.

VIEWPOINTS: TEACHING ENGLISH

Language center flaws reviewed

Friday's article on the English Language Center (ELC) quotes one of the English literature majors teaching there as saying that background training is not important "as long as you have a good attitude when you teach." This leads one to conclude that the work done by MSU's Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) program is a waste of time. Either that or the foreign students studying in the ELC are getting "nice guys" when they could be getting good teachers.

It was not clearly brought out in the article that there is a significant pool of these good teachers on campus, namely returned Peace Corps volunteers and others who have lived and taught abroad. Most of these people are banned from employment at the ELC by the center's restriction of hiring teaching assistants from only the TESOL and English Dept. Yet the Peace Corps teachers, for example, have received at least three months (not days) of training and usually have at least two years of teaching experience by the time they hit this campus. Their "grasp of human behavior" is often as wide as anyone's and perhaps in general wider, in view of their cross - cultural experience.

The unnecessary waste the present student who could not understand his teacher, but kept quiet rather than be, in his mind, disrespectful to her. An experienced TESOL instructor would have been aware immediately of the communication breakdown. The teacher who had lived abroad would have been aware of the cross - cultural factors that prolonged it.

James L. Campana 1418 - I Spartan Village

The allegation of the inadequacy of the English Language Center (ELC) to properly facilitate the acquisition of English by foreign students is essentially correct, but by no means is it a recent development. It should be noted that the ELC, while at the center of the controversy, is itself the victim rather than the cause. There are several factors which must be considered and were not mentioned by Pat Nardi in her expose: 1) The use of literature students as graduate teaching assistants is the result of decisions made by the chairman of the English Dept. There is a general prejudice that the study of literature is superior (i.e. more aesthetic) to the study of language. As a result, more students study literature than language or the teaching of language. The absurdity of this position is further highlighted by the fact that the demand for Ph.D.'s in literature is probably less than that for any other type of degree at present.

2) Use of literature students as assistants in the ELC is rationalized as giving these graduate students experience in a secondary aspect of the study of English (Teaching of English to Speakers of Other Languages - TESOL) so they will be able to find some kind of employment if they cannot find jobs related to literary pursuits.

3) The Dept. of Linguistics, which is much more qualified to handle the theoretical concerns of language learning, had the opportunity to take control of the ELC several years ago but declined to for esoteric reasons.

4) The former director of the ELC, Shigeo Imamura, is well known to be in the fore of TESOL. He is a recognized authority who is known throughout the world for his expertise as both a language teacher and as an educator of teachers of English as a second language. Imamura persisted in pointing out that the ELC returns a profit to the general fund of the University because more money is taken in by way of tuition than is spent for professional personnel, graduate assistants, secretaries and other expenses, and hence the center should be allowed to expand. Because he had the nerve to be critical, the formerly permanent position of director situation apparently leads to is clearly of the ELC became a revolving position revealed in the remarks by the Chinese and he was revolved out of the > 5) Even though the ELC has a very low cost - per - credit hour, four fulltime professional positions have been discontinued in the center.

6) The English Dept. lacks the necessary full time staff for a fully adequate TESOL program. What few TESOL staff members there are are distracted by administrative responsibilities in the ELC.

It seems that these have all come as the result of a deeply seated prejudice that the study of language is less aesthetic than the study of literature. It is unfair to single out the ELC, because this attitude is true of the Dept. of Romance Languages as well. While there are some good language instructors there, most are only capable of teaching how to read French or Spanish and not how to speak them. Just because someone can speak a language does not mean he can teach it. There are several points, then, which should be made in defense of the ELC:

1) The problem of who teaches at the center was created by the administration of the English Dept. and the University. The ELC does not have any control over this because it is not autonomous.

2) There are several experienced graduate assistants. Several of us are certified professionals in TESOL.

3) Not everyone can learn a foreign language. The ELC has no way of screening its applicants for aptitude for language learning. Some foreign students are sent by their governments without regard for language aptitude or intelligence. However, this generally is the case for only a very few of the students.

4) In spite of all the problems of using untrained teachers, the ELC still manages to perform well (though not as well as it could). In the face of seemingly insurmountable barriers very few students finish the program at the ELC without a fair degree of proficiency in English.

Nonetheless, it is a deplorable situation for those of us within the center who can see the problems and yet are powerless to effect any change. Graduate assistants at the ELC have one of the heaviest work loads on campus. We must prepare and teach two classes a day, five days a week, for a half - time appointment. The assistants themselves are in a very difficult position because they are led to believe they are adequate to the task and made to work overly hard. It should be noted that while the situation at the ELC is less than commendable, it was exaggerated and exacerbated by Nardi's reporting. She should have done a little more homework.

The Doctor's Bag

BY ARNOLD WERNER, M.D.

Letters may be addressed to Dr. Werner at MSU Health Center. Names need not be included unless a personal reply is requested.

Why don't men shave their underarms? Wouldn't they perspire less and thus have less body odor to worry about?

The question is backwards. It should be: why do women shave their underarms? Shaving or not shaving your underarms will not change the amount you perspire. The body odor of fresh perspiration is not offensive whereas rancid sweat smells pretty bad, hair or no hair. The presence or absence of body hair relates strictly to people's ideas about what looks good, and so is heavily influenced by cultural factors.

I have read recent warnings to the effect that if a woman becomes pregnant while using the Dalkon shield and decides to continue the pregnancy, it can be extremely dangerous, even fatal. This is the IUD that was recommended to me and which I am now using.

There have been serious complications and even some deaths when pregnancies have occurred with IUDs (intrauterine devices) in place. In terms of absolute numbers there have been more of these with the Dalkon shield. But, there have been so many more Dalkon shields placed in women than other types of IUDs and the total number of complications for the number of IUDs in use is still so low, it is difficult to tell whether the cases reported merely reflect the greater usage of the Dalkon shield or whether they reflect a higher rate of complications.

The general recommendation is that if a woman becomes pregnant with any IUD, the device be removed because continued pregnancy with an IUD is potentially hazardous. Removal of the IUD at this time would most likely result in ending the pregnancy.

The question of what to do if one does have a Dalkon shield in place is answered differently by different people. My own view of a sane and safe approach is to keep the Dalkom shield if it is now in place and you are having no difficulty with it. Most IUD problems crop up in the first few months of their use, so if you are past this time and it is working effectively, the odds are good that it will continue to work effectively.

Contraception, like most things in life associated with pleasurable activities, is not free of problems. There is no method that is fool proof, free of hazards, convenient at all times and requires no thought. Then again, neither is anything in

I have a rather annoying problem. Whenever I amin a nervous waiting situation (doctor's office, before a speech or musical performance, etc.) my stomach growls, bowels groan and the back of my thighs and seat tingle. I often have to run for a john fast. I have been like this ever since I can remember and I am 22 now. Is there any help (or hope) for me?

Nervousness before a performance or speech is very common and can result in sufficient changes in heart rate and other cardiovascular phenomena to jeopardize the health of older people with heart conditions. To have anxiety of a such degree that it occurs in many day - to day situations is a condition worthy of intervention

Often the anxiety is triggered by fear, even though the person cannot identify anything particularly threatening in the situation. Sometimes a set of early life experiences involving humiliations can get such a problem started. If the symptom is as discrete as you describe, it should respond to a rather straight forward program involving some simple behavior modification techniques. The idea is that if you have become conditioned to respond the way you do, you can also be deconditioned. Such deconditioning makes use of verbal techniques and graded exercizes. I suggest you give a call to the Counseling Center here on campus for further help. The number is 355 - 8270.

political criminal and two weeks later in a law and order meeting states that all lesser criminals must be removed from the streets and forced to serve maximum jail sentences?

It appears our legislatures, federal, state and local, have a very poor concept of what is morally right or wrong. Whether a piece of legislation is unconstitutional or immoral seems to have no bearing on their chain of thoughts. It is strongly suggested that an impartial watch dog committee is needed to monitor all pieces of pending legislation, federal, state and local and to enlighten the general public as to their merits before they become laws and have to be over - ruled years later by the Supreme Court through civil suits.

It is the duty of the states to protect the health, safety and welfare of their citizens - not the monetary welfare of special interest groups.

ROCKY RECORD BLOTTED

There was no excuse for Nelson Rockefeller's failure to act in the Attica, N.Y., prison riot when he was governor. Rockefeller was well acquainted with the principles of executive action advanced by Mayor LaGuardia and Mayor Lindsay in New York City. They had seen the need of going to the site of a crisis to see directly what was going on, to get below the layers of jobholders in order to determine the truth for themselves. The

Singing Statesmen help preserve traditional tunes for MSU students

By ED ZDROJEWSKI State News Reviewer

It is probably an even bet that few students at MSU know the words to the "Alma Mater" or the "MSU Fight Song." It would be even more difficult to find anyone who knows such old traditional tunes as the "MSU Toast."

But there is a group of 60 musicians in the MSU Music Dept. that keeps these traditions from days gone by alive.

The Singing Statesmen (not to be confused with the State Singers) have long been associated with the very existence of a land grant college in East Lansing. Loren Jones, associate professor with the Music Dept. is returning to direct the group this year. He directed the group back in the early '60s and then "retired" for about seven years. Jones said the Singing Statesmen are one of the oldest organizations on campus, dating back to the last century."The group is probably older than most of the fraternities and sororities," he said. The Singing Statesmen are also known as the Men's Glee Club and like all musical groups within the Music Dept., members earn one credit per term.

Throughout their history, the Singing Statesmen have represented MSU. At one time they sang at halftime during every home football game, often competing against glee clubs from other Big Ten schools.

"No other group reaches as much into the whole University," Jones commented. The repertoire of the Singing Statesmen covers a wide range.

They sing traditional songs, sacred music, Broadway show tunes and the classics, but no one type of music is emphasized. In past years, the Singing Statesmen have enjoyed a wide reputation and an annual tour has always been part of the course. These tours have included appearances at the Rockefeller Center in New York, at Eisenhower's second inauguration in 1956 and on national TV shows hosted by Dinah Shore and Ed

Jones has not been altogether pleased with the group since he

"For the last six or seven years it has lost its image without the proper leadership," he said. During this time, the Singin Statesmen have been the domain of graduate assistants and the directorship changed often. This caused a natural decline quality, Jones said. George Steinmetz, associate professor in the Dept. of German and Russian, and former member of the group, disagrees. "The group has had the same good quality as ever," he said. Steinmetz who spent 21 years with the group, first joined the Singin Statesmen as a young teacher back in the 1930s. He recalls that at that time, the group was under the direction of Fred Patton, Wagnerian bass with the New York Metropolitan Opera. "Fred once signed a review he wrote with the initials B.G.P.

which, as he explained to me, stood for Blood and Guts Patton! Steinmetz said. His years with the Statesmen were an invaluable experience, added. "Students should take advantage of an opportunity which failed to do, or frankly, was afraid to do as a student," Steinmet

"Fortunately, I was able to take advantage of the opportunities as a teacher, but not many will get similar chance or find the time in later life to get these enriching values."

Campaign, party problems plague Milliken

By PAUL VARIAN

(UPI) - Gov. Milliken may be losing ground at the crucial stage of a tough battle for re - election — a victim of recurring problems within his own campaign apparatus and a gloomy outlook for Republicans in general.

With recent polls forecasting a nationwide sweep for Democratic candidates in the Nov. 5 election, Milliken, 52, has had his share of setbacks on the homefront in the waning hours of the campaign.

The most recent was the newspaper disclosure last week of contributions to the 1970 legislative campaign of running mate James J. Damman from land developers whose plans he voted for as a Troy city official.

The report came on the heels of earlier unfavorable publicity generated by the fundraising activities of Milliken Finance Chairman John Stahlin and conflict of interest allegations leveled against Myron Wahls, Milliken's hand - picked choice as the GOP candidate for attorney general.

With just two weeks left in the campaign, Milliken had no choice but to stand by Damman - especially in light of the fact that he was aware of the potential embarrassment the donations could have before he picked him for lieutenant governor.

Analysis

Levin, a 42 - year - old Berkley attorney, is putting the finishing touches on a well organized campaign whose beginning can be traced all the way back to his defeat in 1970. The enthusiasm he displayed en route to an overwhelming primary victory over Jerome Cavanagh remains his strongest ally.

Pointing to the national trend favoring Democratic candidates. Levin said, "People are tired of Republican rule. And Milliken is part of that rule.

Milliken, a wealthy Traverse City retailer who served in the Senate with Levin in the 1960s, is no less aware of the dilemma facing Republicans. But, "it's a trend which I think will be reversed in Michigan," he says. KARATE TOURNAMENT

A central issue of the campaign has been the disagreement between Milliken and Levin over the feasibility of repealing the state sales tax on food and drugs - a proposed constitutional amendment that will appear on the ballot as Proposal C.

Milliken, who has cut taxes in Michigan over the past two years, says repealing the food and drug tax would force an increase in the income tax and for that reason opposes the proposal. Levin favors it, saying that by trimming the budget an income tax hike can be avoided.

Though Levin has found little support for his stand from his Democratic colleagues in the legislature, the popularity of Proposal C could rub off on him.

The former state senator has avoided personality clashes with Milliken, but denies he has conducted "a softball campaign." He also disputes the theory that the campaign has suffered for lack of an emotional issue to draw voters to the polls.

"I am convinced that there is deep emotion about inflation in this state," he said in an interview. "There's nothing in my judgment more emotional than bread and butter.'

By MARK LEEDS Through dissection of the emains of an Indian ivilization which flourished along the shorelines of northern Michigan in 300 B.C., team of MSU anthropologists is painting a picture of a bile society which centered on manufacturing and trade. As part of a project which began last summer, Charles E. Cleland and William A. Lovis, MSU professors of anthropology, have undertaken a study of the American Indian the region of Michigan's inland waterway. The waterway stretches from Cheboygan, on Lake Huron, across the tip of the Lower Peninsula to Little Traverse Bay and Lake Michigan at Petoskey. Cleland and Lovis, with the aid of undergraduate and graduate students and a $75,000 grant from the National Science Foundation, have done an extensive survey of the 200 - square - mile area ounties, confining their work to lake and river shorelines. They have found evidence to ndicate that both the Lake. Michigan shoreline and the

of Emmet and Cheboygan

inland waterway area served as part - time homes for the Indians.

Settlements they are unearthing were those of Indians who lived during the Woodland and Archaic eras and were part of Algonquin speaking tribes that settled in small gatherings mainly along water bodies, Lovis said.

Artifacts appear to indicate the Indians wintered along the inland waterway and spent summers along the Lake Michigan shore, much as summer vacationers today flock to the state's Great Lakes' beaches. Discovery of chunks of pottery and copper at these locations indicates they engaged in some form of trade.

Among artifacts discovered, Lovis said, were flint chips thought to be byproducts of stone tool manufacturing. Few artifacts were found along the lake shore, which is believed to have been the tribes' summer trade locale.

Dividing the area into 30 zones for random sampling, Cleland and Lovis based their study on resources such as soil, elevation and vegetation.

Their findings, now being

Ford to get tough on oil import decrease

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford signaled a get - tough attitude to hold down oil imports and said Tuesday he "will be open to suggestions" for revising his anti - inflation program if the economy continues to falter.

In a wide - ranging news conference, Ford also reported progress in nuclear arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union. reaffirmed his support for vice presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller and announced a shake - up in the federal energy

Ford convened the surprise White House news conference about an hour after the government announced that leading economic indicators had taken the sharpest one - month plunge in

The first questioner cited that gloomy economic news and asked Ford whether he was ready to amend the anti - inflation program he announced earlier this month.

Ford responded that he believes his proposals are a sound, "finely tuned ... constructive program" but said Congress must act on portions of it.

While designating the PLO as said. "We have problems . . . we want solutions . . . " When Ford was asked about possible limits on Arab oil imports, he responded that he believes his voluntary energy conservation recommendations can achieve the goal of cutting imports by 1 million barrels per day. But he added:

"If there isn't the saving of 1 million barrels per day of oil imports by voluntary action, we will, of course, move to any other alternative, including the possibility of mandatory limitations, to achieve the result."

Regarding the domestic energy program, Ford announced he was removing John C. Sawhill as energy administrator and replacing him with former Asst. Commerce Secretary Andrew E. Gibson.

In answer to another economic question, Ford said he was making "a maximum effort" to trim the current federal budget by $5.4 billion to a $300 billion ceiling, and spoke of the possibility of sharper cuts - perhaps totaling $7.5 billion.

As for the budget he will send Congress early next year, he declared "it will be a tight budget, a very tight budget," but cited no figures. When questioning turned to foreign affairs, Ford made these major points: Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's just - concluded

Moscow talks with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev "were ye constructive" and "some of the differences . . . have be narrowed" on a second - stage strategic arms limitation

"At this stage aren't certain what impact it will have."

Arab decision may kill peace talks

RABAT, Morocco (AP) - A decision by Arab leaders to create an independent Palestinian state under Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) appeared Tuesday to have doomed the Geneva Middle East peace talks, at least temporarily.

In an Israeli radio interview from New York, Information Minister Aharon Yariv denounced the decision taken at the Arab summit meeting and repeated Israel's vow not to hand over territory to the

"There is nothing to talk about at Geneva," he said.

PLO spokesman Abdul Mohsen Abu Maizar said the Arab summit's decision "is a big blow against Israeli and American policy." He reiterated the PLO goal to merge Israel into a Palestinian state where "Jews and Arabs will have equal rights and obligations.' Israel's rejection of a Geneva conference involving the PLO left any hope for a settlement to the bilateral, gradual approach proposed by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. However, even this seemed in question since Israel and the PLO have consistently refused to recognize or talk with each other.

The Arab nations, with strong endorsement from Moscow, recently called for reconvening of the Geneva conference in preference to Kissinger's step by - step bilateral proposal.

In line with the moderate approach of Arafat at the conference sessions, PLO officials avoided claiming the decision was a defeat for Jordan's King Hussein.

Jordan had sought to represent Palestinians in the peace talks and to gain control over Palestinian territory demanded from Israel.

A summit spokesman said Hussein and Arafat exchanged expressions of mutual support. He added that the conference called on Egypt, Syria, Jordan and the PLO to organize relations among themselves so they can carry out the Palestine decision.

Summit sources said Jordan expressed firm "reservations" to the Palestine decision, but then explained this would allow Hussein to negotiate with Israel without being identified

Rising inflation ups rare coin business

William Bradford, owner of Liberty Coin, 223 Abbott Road, demonstrates the value of rare coins and precious metals. The 10 coins in his hand were equal in value to the paper currency in 1915 when the money was issued. Now the paper money is worth four cents and the coins are worth $1,700.

By RALPH FRAMMOLINO

State News Staff Writer No matter how you flip a rare coin, you cannot lose. Collecting rare coins is what many would consider a pleasurable pastime, but more and more people are buying and selling coins as a defensive investment designed as an inflation hedge.

"These are boon times for rare coins and precious metal investments, the way inflation has been treating people,' William Bradford, owner of the Liberty Coin shop, 223 Abbott Road, said.

"Doctors, lawyers, even professors at the University people who know a little bit about the economy - are coming in and buying bagfulls of silver coins," Bryan Godwin, proprietor of Mid - American Coin and Stamp, 1880 Haslett

"The government causes all the trouble and we have to pay for it," Bradford said. "People have been lied to by the government for years and years about inflation.

Walter White, an employe of Bradford, calls the buying and selling 'defensive investments." People are not necessarily making money on the coins, but are keeping pace with inflation, he said.

"Take, for instance, a $20 gold piece minted around 1900," he said. "It would have the same purchasing power now, in relation to wages and prices, as it did when it was minted." A coin like that would be worth roughly $295

"When you buy a coin, you have to be prepared to wait at least 5 to 10 years in order to give it a chance to increase in value." Lillian Simon, proprietor of Morheat Coin Company, 108 N. Magnolia Ave., said.

"It's not a business for the cautious or those with high blood pressure," Bradford chuckled.

The value of a coin is determined by several factors what people are paying, auctions and publications. Much of the price is still in the judgment of the dealer, however, Bradford said.

"We tell people to diversify - invest a little bit in gold, a little bit in silver — and put the rest in the bank," Godwin said.

Godwin said that buying coins for their metallic content and for investment purposes jumped rapidly in the late summer, but now it seems to be easing up just a little bit.

Simon thinks the desire for buying coins for their metal value alone will die out but purchasing them for rarity in mint will continue.

investment for their collector's value is more of a sure thing than buying them for their metal value, she said. The reason for this is that gold and silver prices will fluctuate, but once one has purchased a rare coin, there is no way the value can decline. It will only go up, she said.

The market for precious metal purchasing will expand Jan. 1, when the federal government will allow people to purchase gold bullion.

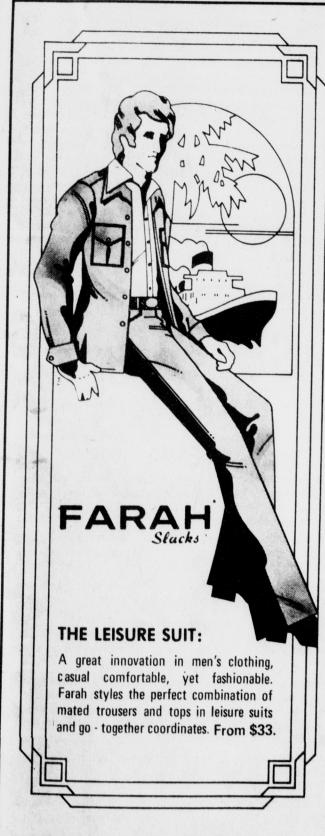

"Gold bullion is gold bars and anything melted down," Art Butler of Art's Coin Shop, 18295 S. Washington Ave., said. "It is now up to $200 an ounce that's a 170 per cent increase in the last 12 months. The reason for this is that the Arab countries have driven the price up."

Butler says he sees the business going up rapidly and eagerly awaits the repeal of the ban on public consumption of gold bullion.

"As the law stands now, we are not allowed to own gold from another country minted from 1933 on," he said.

Officials at MSU's intra - state rival school have indicated that the soccer program next year will become a varsity sport. Though the sport is not similar to MSU in organizational appearance, this yea: the Wolverines, as usual, have a tough contingent. When Spartan coach Ed Rutherford's undefeated booters travel to U-M today, they could be facing their toughest

The last two years the two schools have met, MSU has managed only to tie U-M twice. Last year at home, the game ended in a 1-1 deadlock and two years ago, the final score at U-M Game time in Ann Arbor for today's contest is 3:30 p.m.

Rutherford is not one to rest on past records and team reputations. He has said that every team the Spartans have faced this year, whether from a large or small school, has played well

"Any time these teams play MSU they get juiced up." Rutherford commented. "I am willing to bet that all of the teams we have played this year have given their best performance of the MSU leads the series with U-M 2-0-3.

Today's game will once again present a challenge to the booter offense. The Spartans, with a 6-0-2 record, have scored one goal or less in half of their games.

Rutherford insists that as long as the team is winning, that is all that counts, but the squad is stressing improvement in scoring

The booters, however, have consistently dominated their opponents in shots on goal. In their last game, a 1-0 victory over winless Albion, the team finished ahead in that department,

In the past eight games the Spartans have outscored their opponents 18-4.

After today's game, MSU will host Hope College in its last home tilt of the season next Wednesday. The soccer team ends its schedule the following Friday on

BIG JOB FOR NIELSEN, BIRNEY

Frosh head kicking game

By PAT FARNAN State News Sports Writer

The latest in a long line of imported wonders from across the sea has gotten his precious little foot into the Spartan locker

Another of those wiry little converted soccer players who can kick the oblong ball sidewinder style, from the wrong side, barefooted and sometimes behind the back, has donned the kelly green and white of MSU in pursuit of knowledge and three

Luckily the Spartans didn't have to sail to Viking country to recruit freshman Hans Nielsen, their little Danish dandy. He was hiding out in Manistee under the alias of an exchange student and kicking 60-yard field goals in his spare time.

Nielsen hasn't been so dandy for the Spartans. He split the uprights from 40 yards against Purdue last Saturday, the lone time in three attempts the Spartans' investment has paid returns. Nielsen has converted 10 of 11 extra point attempts, however.

"The coach usually tells us before the game who'll kick," Nielsen said. "Sometimes I feel like I shouldn't kick because if I miss I'm done, you know. I'm more confident after making that Former Spartan kicker Dirk Kryt, who fashioned wearing blue socks, a watch and setting NCAA records on the field, has advised Nielsen to approach the ball from less of an angle.

"Dirk has helped me a lot even though he is Dutch," Nielsen cracked. "I think the change has made me more accurate. I can't kick as far, probably about 45 yards."

A former soccer player who still considers Vejle, Denmark, as home, Nielsen tried out for the Spartans this fall at the advice of Manistee high school coach Duane Wedberg, Nielsen kicked for Wedberg in 1970, listing a 47 - yard field goal as one of his accomplishments. After his brief stint there, Neilsen returned to Denmark and attended a Danish prep school for two years.

After trying out for the Spartans and Central Michigan University, he chose MSU.

"MSU offers a bit more academically and that's what I'm here for," Nielsen, a predentistry major commented. "At first I had trouble but I'm getting along all right now. It's a different educational system, you know.'

Nielsen seems to be getting along better on the field, too. "I've felt the pressure more now that I've begun to take kicking more seriously," he admits. "This is big business. I knew that before, but now it's more obvious."

Nielsen has shown the ability to kick the ball great distances. He once knocked out an opposing player with an attempted field

"He jumped up and got his chin in the way," Nielson said. "It was a stupid thing to do.'

MSU punting and kickoff specialist Tom Birney has come a long way since he first adorned a football uniform at Detroit's Bishop Borgess High School.

The 6-4, 207 - pound freshman is huge as kickers go, but Birney has adapted his hulking frame well to the rigors of competition in the Big Ten.

When I was in high school I doubled as a defensive end and a kicker," Birney said. "But I developed my kicking more and more as I practiced and it eventually became my main duty. In three years as a field goal and punting specialist for Bishop

Borgess, Birney earned all - state honors twice and established a Detroit Catholic League record with a 47-yard field goal. Birney began the season as MSU's primary place kicking specialist, but has since seen action only as the Spartans' punter and kickoff man. "I thought that I would mainly be doing field goal and extra point kicking when I first came to MSU, but my punting has worked out well," Birney explained. "Hans Nielsen is a good kicker and we have competition in practice to keep us improving. Whoever looks the best in practice is the one who does the

Nielson has taken over as the Spartans' field goal and extra point specialist, but Birney is satisfied with punting and kicking

"I didn't start punting until my junior year in high school, so there are still a lot of things I have to learn," Birney said. "For instance, earlier in the season, I wasn't getting any height or distance on my kicks.

"Coach (Andy) McDonald showed me that I was pointing the nose of the football upwards when I should have been pointing the nose of the ball down. It's helped.'

Birney currently stands seventh among the conference punters with a 37.5 average. His longest punt as a Spartan was a 61 yarder against Notre Dame.

Like his kicking comrade Nielsen, Birney was born in a foreign country. Until the age of six, he lived in Scotland, where his father played professional soccer for five years. As a starting punter in only his first year at MSU, Birney has demonstrated a few traces of inexperience, but he says things are "The first game was the hardest," Birney recalled. "It's getting a little better though. My confidence is improving with

Dual schedules: are they beneficial for women's golf, tennis squads?

State News Sports Writer

MSU's women's tennis and golf teams are the only two women's squads which compete during both the fall and spring seasons, and even though both coaches agree that a dual schedule is beneficial, the Spartan golf coach does have one minor complaint. Both teams recently completed successful fall seasons. The tennis squad was 3 - 0 in dual meet competition, while the golfers highlighted their season with victories at the Midwest Invitational and

MSU Invitational tournaments. Golf has had a dual season for two years now and coach Mary Fossum likes fall MSU head trainer Clint Thompson is shown taping up freshman Melvin Land before football practice. Thompson and his staff aid the entire Spartan athletic program by keeping players physically in shape for competition. athletic training crew will be right behind them when they do. Thompson and the rest of the training staff put in long hours keeping the Spartans physically ready for each Saturday's game and he makes no bones about calling the training program here one of the best in the country. "I'd say it's right up there with the rest of the schools," Thompson said. "There are certain schools around the country that have outstanding athletic training programs. With the advent of an athletic training degree being offered now at many schools, you have more and more schools that have good programs. "Even though we do not have the curriculum offered here yet for an athletic training degree, the in - service training that a student athletic trainer can get here is tops. It's one of the best in

Thompson presently has a 12 - member staff, if Dr. James Feurig, team physician, is included. Besides Thompson, Gayle Robinson is the only other full - time staff member. The staff also consists of four graduate assistants, two of which are women, and five undergraduates. The four graduates are Jim Rankin, Tim Kirschner, Sue Schneider and Peggy Pettit; while Don Kaverman, Sean Ovington, Mike Soloman, Mike Mascaro and Ray Saltzman are the undergrads.

The two women trainers give MSU a distinction which Thompson believes no other college can claim.

"We really have no line of demarcation between who takes care of whom," Thompson said. "We have women trainers taping the men. We have the men trainers giving physical therapy to women athletes. In that respect I take the people that I have and am able to cover a larger area rather than having the women for

Thompson, in his second year as head trainer, begins his day sometimes as early as 6 a.m. and is always the last person to leave. "I'd say 10 hours is a normal day," he said. "The trainers and

Dr. Feurig are the last ones to leave at night so the day sometimes runs until seven in the evening. I feel that to administer to the program to the point where everything is running smoothly, that The long hours Thompson puts in are spent doing such things

"In a short sentence the main job of an athlete trainer is the

as teaching, giving injured athletes treatment and conducting prevention, care and rehabilitation of athletic injuries,"

"Prevention includes the taping we do every afternoon. The care comes in after a player is hurt. It involves the physical therapy that goes into getting an injury better.

"When I think of rehabilitation, I think of a serious injury where you have surgery or are disabled for more than three days. When you're out that long, you've got something major wrong with you and you're going to have to do some muscle rehabilitation."

As if Thompson's day wasn't long enough already, he is also the editor of Athletic Training, the journal of the National Athletic Trainers Assn.

As busy as Thompson is, especially during football season, he is always looking for ways to improve the MSU training program.

"I think that the main thing that has to be done here is to make sure that the quality of teaching given to these young men is up to date," Thompson said. "There are always changes being made in any field and as long as we keep up with these changes, these people are going to graduate from here and go into the profession with the latest knowledge and techniques in their

Though he puts in so many hours, Thompson loves his job. "I wouldn't want to do anything else," he explained. "Under the circumstances, most people might not think of this as a job. It's something that I really enjoy doing and time passes by so quickly that I really don't have enough time during the day to get everything done that I want to do."

campaign is successful, and representatives from the local trucking industry indicate that it will be.

The EPA recently ordered 70,000 of the heaviest, noisiest trucks to install quieter tires and mufflers before Oct. 15 1975. Violations detected after maximum penalty of $25,000 per day.

According to the EPA, the cost of installing new exhaust systems and quieter tires (tires with a different tread design) is about $135 per vehicle.

The EPA also proposed new that date could draw a standards affecting motor

"It's nothing but another cost," he said. "We just bought 520 new tractors from Ford, which are supposed to be up to

"The average use of our tractors is only 12 months," he said. Van contends that most of the problems with the regulations will be in companies that use older models.

Howard Bosscher, of Associated Truck Lines, Inc., generally agrees with Van.

"Most of our people are getting into compliance with the regulations, if they're not already there," he said. "Most of our equipment is in order with the anticipated regulation."

However, one problem may still develop, Bosscher said. There are two ways to test noise levels in trucks: the standing mode, where the truck is stationary while running, and the roll - by, motion. Roll - by captures all of the noises made by the vehicle itself, plus additional noises like the air rushing by and where the truck is actually in quivering sheet metal. Bosscher said, however, that there is little chance of the EPA using the roll - by technique because of the cost involved. "Our expense, also, won't be quite as large for the standing mode as for roll - by,' Bosscher said. Manufacturers of trucks, like the trucking companies, said their only choice in the situation is to comply.

"We can't take the order in stride," John Knóx, director of engineering at Diamond Reo

Trucks in Lansing, said. "But when there are laws, we meet those laws."

Orders like this "make it very hard to make economic decisions," Knox said. Continually changing EPA regulations make it hard for small truck manufacturers to make long range design

Clayton Hatch, general manager of Warner and Swasey Co - duplex Division, said the only way to keep up with the regulations is to keep ahead.

"As of Oct. 1, we changed our mufflers around," Hatch

Hatch also said that most people do not realize the problems involved in cutting noise levels, even just three decibels.

"If we reduce from 90 to 87 decibels on the driveby (exterior truck noise) we would be halving the noise evel," Hatch said.

Several environmental groups have expressed dissatisfaction with the new orders, however, claiming they are not strict enough.

CLIFF TAYLOR:

HE'S HIS OWN MAN.

When you vote for Congress on November 5th, consider this: will the person you elect really represent you in Washington, or will they represent a few power brokers or special-interest groups?

To help answer this question, you might want to look at the financial reports of the two major candidates:

CLIFF TAYLOR

BOB CARR

As you can see, Cliff Taylor has received only 10.1% of his campaign contributions from special - interest groups and 70.8% from private citizens making individual

Bob Carr, on the other hand, has received 58.4% of his contributions from interest groups - groups which he has said are "going to Washington with me" - and only 21.1% from private citizens. In other words over half of Bob Carr's campaign finances have come from special - interest groups. And in his primary campaign, over 55% of the money he raised came in one check from just one interest group!

You see, Cliff Taylor has placed a limit of $2,000 on contributions to his campaign from special - interest groups or individuals. And he even gave back $3,000 to one group when they tried to go over that amount.

Because Cliff Taylor has taken positive action like this to prevent his campaign from being financed by a small group of monied interests, and because he has financed his campaign with contributions from over 700 sources, Cliff can truly be an independent Congressman in Washington.

That's the way he wants it, because Cliff Taylor wants to represent you, and you alone. He wants his only debt to be to the people in his district – to voters like you.

And after all, isn't that the way it should be?

Rain chills warm autumn spirits

The sky was serene with majestic warmth Monday. But Tuesday, it cast lurid shadows as pelts of rain dashed down on a half - dazed East, Lansing.

Clad in everything from wispy windbreakers to heavy winter parkas, an unsuspecting body of MSU students wearily made their daily trek amidst the hard rains and gloom. A few students, apparently ahead of their autumn - attired counterparts, came prepared and made their slow walks sloshing to class in conspicuous raincoats and rubber shawls.

Others huddled close to lecture halls, taking refuge under discarded newspapers and plastic tote bags. It was a day of drooping smiles, innocent splashes through mud puddles, squeaky, soggy tennies and frizzy hair.

If predictions by the National Weather Service prove correct, rain should continue throughout the week. For the next three or four days, periods of warm weather and rain are expected.

Is the weather going through a mild schizophrenia trying to decide whether it is summer or winter? The weather service

Though temperatures have been a little above normal for the last couple of days and below normal last week, the service feels it could be merely a transition - a changeover period for the temperature to straighten itself out.
