Secretary of State Richard Austin, the other incumbent Democratic state officeholder, gamered a similarly massive 56.2 per cent support to Republican candidate Lorraine Beebe's paltry 8.1 per cent. James McClure of the Human Rights party received the backing of 5.4 per cent of students polled, with 29.6 per cent remaining undecided.

• Three of the four statewide ballot proposals - attempts to finance public transportation, repeal the state sales tax and award Vietnam veterans a cash bonus - won votes from upwards of 58 per cent of registered students.

A fourth proposal, designed to keep the level of state gas tax funds used for public transportation to a minimum, was losing by 20 percentage points.

The two - day survey was conducted according to social science procedures by State News staff members on the advice and technical assistance of the Dept. of Communication.

The degree of error on most statewide questions was just under six per cent, which means a candidate's support could possibly be either six percentage points lower or higher than the results indicated.

Cynics have called this a year of political apathy and post -Watergate disillusionment. But we at the State News believe that students still care, and set out to determine what they will say at the polls. This poll was conducted by 25 editors and reporters, who spent Sunday and Monday phoning the 510 students whose names were scientifically and randomly selected from a computer printout of MSU's fall term enrollees. A five - page questionnaire was used as the model to ask that sample -406 of which we were able to contact - over a dozen questions. With the help of members of the MSU Dept. of Communication, computer cards were punched with the results, then fed into an MSU

In addition, just under 5 per cent of Milliken's student voters are "undecided" about going to the polls, but nearly 10 per cent of Levin's (continued on page 21)

Student voters at MSU are hard put to identify many of the local candidates in Tuesday's election and generally a third of them have not yet made up their minds about who they'll be voting for, the results of a State News poll show.

But those voters who have decided on their favorites are handing Democratic candidates lopsided margins ranging from three to one all the way up to six to one.

independent voters

The poll, which was conducted through telephone interviews with 406 students last Sunday and Monday, reveals that:

Democratic 6th U.S. district congressional candidate M. Robert Carr has a cozy 44.4 to 17.5 per cent lead over his Republican opponent, Clifford Taylor. Human Rights Party (HRP) candidate Howard Jones has 6.9 per cent. That leaves 31.2 per cent undecided. Forty-two per cent of those same 189 students who were asked about the congressional race could not name a single candidate, while only 36.7 per cent could identify two.

State Rep. Earl Nelson, D-Lansing, has secured 33.9 per cent of the student vote in his bid to unseat incumbent Republican state Sen. Phillip Pittenger, who has a mere 6.9 per cent student support, in the 24th district campaign. HRP candidate John Fishbeck has 5.8 per cent, which leaves a whopping 53.4 per cent of student voters in Lansing, East Lansing and Meridian Township undecided

An even bigger landslide is underway in the 59th district state representative campaign, where incumbent Democrat Lynn Jondahl holds 48.1 per cent to GOP opponent Cathryn Lessard's 8.2 per cent of the East Lansing and Meridian Township student vote. Carroll Hawkins of the HRP has 5.1 per cent.

Again, almost 75 per cent were unable to name a single contender.

In Tuesday's only local nonpartisan candidate election, 68.5 per cent of MSU voters are undecided. In the two-way race for East Lansing District Judge, incumbent Daniel Tschirhart has 19.2 per cent while his challenger, Booker Gauldan, has 12.3 per cent of the 31.5 per cent of students expressing preference.

The awareness and political preference poll, conducted by the State News with the assistance of members of the Dept. of Communication, showed that 83.5 per cent of MSU students are registered to vote. Of these, 38.2 per cent are registered in East Lansing, 10.2 in Lansing, 8.7 in Meridian Township, 34.3 elsewhere in Michigan and 8.7 per cent outside of Michigan.

at pattern is followed, most of the Democratic candidates will be further helped.

In the state senate race, 75 per cent of Nelson's supporters say their chances of voting are excellent, while only 61.5 per cent of Pittenger's backers make the same claim.

Similarly, 53.8 per cent of state representative candidate Lessard's supporters rate their voting chances as excellent, but 59.1 per cent of Jondahl's already larger following consider their chances of voting excellent.

Democrats also benefitted from more support from Republicans and supporters of Gov. Milliken than Republican candidates got from Democratic or Sander Levin-supportin student voters. This was particularly true for Jondahl, who was supported by more Milliken-voting students than was Lessard herself, who has attempted to identify herself with the incumbent Republican governor.

The degree of error in the local portion of the poll ranges from eight to ten per cent.

Sometimes the roofers will whistle or call down to students, a big boisterous voice popping out of nowhere, just to shake them up, Polk said.

Polk, who is a philosophy graduate student, said they invite women up on the roof with them nearly every day, but thus far no one has joined them.

"We get to see a few good halter tops from up here, though," Polk said. Both roofmen agreed they like working around the women's residence halls the best, where they converse with the women as they creep along gutters and gullies.

"Once three of us were invited into a Gilchrist Hall room and this girl gave us a homemade banana cake that her mother sent up," Bennett said. "But most of the time the girls are scared when they see us crawling around outside their windows.

"A lot of students wonder if we are gonna elope with somebody when we set up the ladder and climb up near a window," he said.

They find hoards of beer bottles, records, dorm chairs and baseballs on the rooftops. Bennett once found a good golf club and tennis raquet which he kept.

He said they give the baseballs to one of their coworkers for his Boy Scout troop.

"We once found a couch ruined by the rain that had been missing from Hubbard Hall's living area. We just dropped it down four floors and hauled it to the junkyard," Bennett said.

Bennett, who wants to go into free lance photography, has been inspired to shoot colorful campus scenes from the rooftops.

The squirrel's eye view has not inspired philosophy student Polk to do any philosophic thinking, however.

"I just do my thinking about not falling," said Polk, a black silhouette perched atop the Home Management House, intently clearing leaves from the gutters.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Former President Richard M. Nixon may be bleeding internally again, his doctors said Thursday after examining him.

The doctors said it is possible a slight decrease in Nixon's hemoglobin level was caused not by bleeding but by "normal hemodilution," a temporary decrease in red blood cell concentration from cells wearing out normally.

But "we are keeping in mind that this is a slow oozing of blood into the retroperitoneal (behind the abdomen) area," Drs. John C. Lungren and Eldon B. Hickman said in a written statement.

The physicians said they hoped to pinpoint soon the cause of the decreased hemoglobin level, which was detected in the morning.

Nixon remained in critical condition for a third day, though his vital signs - blood pressure, pulse and heart beat - were stable. He was described by the doctors as being in "excellent spirits and alert to all that is going on around him." However, "the possibility still exists for further complications.

It is still premature to offer a prognosis at this time.'

President Ford was flying to Los Angeles, 25 miles north of the hospital, for a Republican campaign dinner. A hospital spokesman and Ford's press secretary have said that Ford had no plans to visit Nixon.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford was watching Nixon's condition carefully, however.

Nixon has received four blood transfusions, including one unit "packed red blood cells," on Wednesday, since he went into shock for three hours from internal bleeding shortly after phlebitis surgery Tuesday.

Ron Ziegler, Nixon's former press secretary and now his chief aide, said Wednesday that the 61-year-old president almost died from the bleeding.

He described Nixon as "weak and tired and strained from his ordeal." Ziegler saw Nixon sleeping before the crisis of internal bleeding and shock which put him in critical condition Tuesday.

Rumors have spread here that Nixon has lost the will to live. but, Ziegler said:

"I know President Nixon has not lost the will to live. He has handled the entire hospital stay, in my view, with great courage ... he is a man of great strength and courage."

Sidestepping whether Nixon's life was endangered, Lungren said in a statement Wednesday that he hoped that hemorrhaging had been arrested. He said the former president was receiving medication for pain and occasional nausea.

Nixon's wife, Pat, and daughters, Tricia and Julie, were spending most of the day and night in Nixon's suite, part of an intensive care ward at Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach, and were visiting him briefly every hour, the doctors said.

"He remains under intensive observation by physicians and critical care nurses," they added.

Nixon's hemoglobin was down one-half gram, the doctors said, without specifying what Nixon's hemoglobin totaled.

A man's normal hemoglobin level is about 16 grams per 100 milliliters of blood. Hemoglobin carries oxygen to tissues in red blood cells. Anemia occurs when the volume is less than 12 grams per 100 milliliters.

The doctor's statement was read by hospital spokesman Norman Nager. He said he could not answer questions. The doctors have declined to appear since the surgery.

Nixon is being monitored every second by a battery of medical equipment at his bedside.

Emergency resuscitation equipment is also ready for an emergency. A tube has been inserted through Nixon's nose and into his stomach to drain off fluids and prevent swelling of the abdomen because he cannot move his bowels, a side-effect of the bleeding.

The former president is being fed intravenously.

The doctors said Nixon is still off anticoagulant drugs which had been thinning his blood to prevent further clotting. The drugs made him prone to the postsurgical bleeding.

4 per cent air fare hike OKd

The Civil Aeronautics Board approved a 4 per cent increase Thursday in air fares for passengers flying within the mainland United States.

At the same time, it made permanent a 6 per cent hike that it approved on a temporary basis last April. That hike had been scheduled to expire Thursday.

The two actions mean domestic air fares on Nov. 15 will have risen 15 per cent since the fuel shortage hit last winter.

Intergration plan rules signed

U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity, Jr. Thursday signed an order setting forth his final rules for drafting a comprehensive student desegregation plan for Boston.

Some of the city's public schools were desegregated this fall under a short term plan designed by the state board of education.

The formulation of a comprehensive plan by Dec. 16 would make Boston eligible for at least $500,000 in federal school aid funds.

Garrity's order permits drafters of the plan to "utilize, as necessary, any known desegregation techniques."

Loud students rouse curfew hours review

COMPLAINTS RECEIVED FROM FELLOW RESIDENTS

By PEGGY GOSSETT State News Staff Writer is not that herds of buffalo have ked into the MSU residence halls, it is that students seem to be producing after hours noise this term. he uproar has driven residence halls to review and reconsider ement of its curfew hours. he office has been receiving ous complaints about the noise in nce halls, Gary North, coordinator dence halls programs, said.

space study committee made up of halls officials is now reviewing noise problem and considering shment of new closing hours or mement programs for the old hours. students serve on the committee.

which expects to have its review finished early next month.

North refused to comment about possible solutions to the problem. Residence halls are currently supposed to be closed, quiet and free of obnoxious and unnecessary noise after midnight on weekdays, and 1 a.m. on weekends.

However, these hours are not always enforced, North said, and many students complain about noise even before the closing hours.

"It seems some sort of social activity is going on in the dorms every minute, day and night," North said. "The problem is that there is competition between those who want to sleep and study, and those who want to socialize."

A major alteration of the situation came with the age of majority legislation which allowed 18 year olds to consume alcoholic beverages, North said. "This allowed for a lot more socializing in the residence halls, which added to the noise," he said. North said one student was infuriated with the loud party noise in the hall, but patiently waited until exactly 1 a.m. to call the police. In Fee Hall last spring, another student suffered three broken ribs after asking a neighbor to turn down the stereo. The neighbor apparently turned up the volume instead, and the two fought it out in the corridor.

North said the noise is a problem even in Owen Hall, the graduate residence hall. "Noise has always been a problem, but it seems this year there are more students who complain directly to me," North said. "There is a greater willingness to speak out, and more concern from those who want to sleep and study."

North said the amount of parties has not increased, but that the level of tolerence might be less because of the overcrowding in tripled rooms. The office reports only 450 triples are left after the estimated 1,300 have been mostly broken down. The pipes and thin walls in the residence halls also act as conductors of noise, North said, so that a party in the basement can be heard on the fourth floor. "The hours were originally set up in 1970 in conjunction with security measures policies, to stop rising thefts in the residence halls," North said.

Since then, the policy has been interpreted several ways, he said.

Some thought the policy only specified that guards would man residence halls main doors and check anyone entering for identification proving they lived there. Meanwhile, the rambunctious parties rambled on to the early hours of the morning.

Others thought the policy meant all activity except sleeping halted at closing hours.

North said that in practice, the large parties which had to be registered with the adviser in the hall were required to halt at closing hours, while the smaller group gatherings were permitted to go on as long as no one complained.

If someone complained, North said, the resident assistant was expected to solve the dilemma.

"The RA must take all interests and needs in part, and not be partial to anyone," North said. "That's not easy if you have some academic fanatics in conflict with some continual socialites on the floor.'

North said clarification of closing hour policies would also assist the resident assistants in interpreting them.

"It is getting to the point that the emphasis is more on social functions than our primary goal of residence halls to provide students with a place to sleep and study," North said.

Carr grooves to Stills' music

Observers say that 6th District congressional candidate Bob Carr was ly trying to groove along to the music of Stephen Stills at the benefit s performed for him Wednesday night at the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. hey noticed that though he tapped his foot to the music, the foot was sistently out of rhythm with the songs.

anticipate election day calmly, without the glint of victory in their'eyes, but with a determined enthusiasm to see their party recognized as a force in state politics.

Those with apprehensions that the HRP may emerge as a spoiler this year are less relaxed. For the most part, they are anxious, unnerved Democrats, locked in tight battles with Republicans. In a close race, they know an HRP candidate in an East Lansing race can spell defeat for them.

With its democratic socialist platform, advocating public control of utilities and guaranteed full employment from government, HRP support will undoubtedly draw more votes from the Democratic party than from the Republican.

Though these fears will not be relieved until the election day verdict, the HRP candidates, led by gubernatorial candidate Zolton Ferency, are satisfied with the inroads they have made in the two - party system this year. Proclaiming themselves a more organized, stronger party than ever before, most of the HRP candidates in close races said they will have no regrets if their candidacy tilts the vote toward a Republican victory. The chances of this happening are strongest in college towns like East Lansing.

Close races involving Democrat Robert Carr and Republican Clifford Taylor for the 6th District congressional seat; Democrat Earl Nelson and Republican Philip Pittenger for the 24th District state Senate seat; the 8th and 10th District Ingham County Commission races, and even the gubernatorial race, may all be decided by the strength of HRP candidates.

"I will have no regrets if Republicans win because of our candidates," Zolton Ferency said. "In fact, it would be wonderful. Then we would be in the position to have a continuing effect on Michigan politics."

Ferency, hoping for upward of 5 per cent of the gubernatorial vote, said Levin's slight margin of defeat in 1970 could easily reoccur because of his HRP candidacy, and such a defeat would buoy his party's spirits and heighten its confidence.

Such optimism turns to apprehension in local Democrats fighting strong Republican opposition.

"I would call spoiler an appropriate term." Dick McKeon, campaign coordinator for Earl Nelson, said. "If the race is close, 99 per cent of the vote for HRP candidate John Fishbeck will undoubtedly come from Earl's supporters."

A State Journal poll published Oct. 13 shows Nelson favored by 32.6 per cent of the voters, with Pittenger garnering 23.3 per cent support. Almost 2 per cent supported minor party candidates, while 42.6 per cent were undecided. "If it weren't for Ferency's pull on campus, the HRP impact would probably be a lot different," McKeon said.

McKeon said a close Nelson defeat would not leave Nelson bitter toward the HRP candidate, since Nelson prepares himself for the psychological blow a defeat would incur before the election.

Fishbeck, an MSU student, said Nelson has approached him and asked him to justify his candidacy, with the possibility of a Republican victory.

"I admit I have qualms about a Pittenger victory," Fishbeck said. "But I can't back off because of it. We're out to tackle problems the major parties haven't even discussed."

In the Carr - Taylor race, which Carr is favored in by 7 per cent in a State Journal poll, HRP candidate Howard Jones' importance has been played down by Carr.

"There could be a small drain from the Democratic party," Carr said. "And Jones could be the spoiler, but I don't take his candidacy seriously, and the evidence I see leads me to believe the whole Human Rights thing is falling apart."

Jones, an HRP candidate for the State Board of Education in 1972, said his candidacy does not represent an attempt to steal votes.

'We're in these races to offer a clear cut choice," Jones said. "Carr and Taylor offer special interest groups government, while we're addressing the issues and suggesting real change.'

Even at the grass roots levels, HRP candidates are making waves.

James Heyser, Democratic incumbent for 8th District Ingham County commissioner, believes his HRP opponent, Dave Rathke, an MSU student, may get more than 10 per cent of the vote.

"They're not spoilers, but clearly the political system has not offered day and night differences, nor any innovations," Heyser said.

Another incumbent Democratic county commissioner, Richard Conlin, of the 10th District, said he did not feel his own race was threatened by his HRP opponent, but others were.

"The losers will be the MSU voters if Taylor or Pittenger win because of the HRP candidates," Conlin said. "They've (HRP) drawn more than their share of media coverage in this year's election and sometimes more than the major parties.'

HRP candidates picketed in protest of unequal coverage at WKAR - TV and the Lansing State Journal this month, with considerable media coverage of the protests.

"extreme conservative" and said that the difference between Carr and Taylor is clear enough "without these distortions coming into the picture.'

"If he was ahead, I'd find it hard to believe that he'd be doing what he's doing now," Ballenger said. "But maybe he would. It's his way of campaigning.

Ballenger voiced complaints during the primary campaign that Taylor's advertisements then were unfair and based Thursday. on false information. However, after Ballenger narrowly lost the primary election he gave his endorsement to Taylor for the general election.

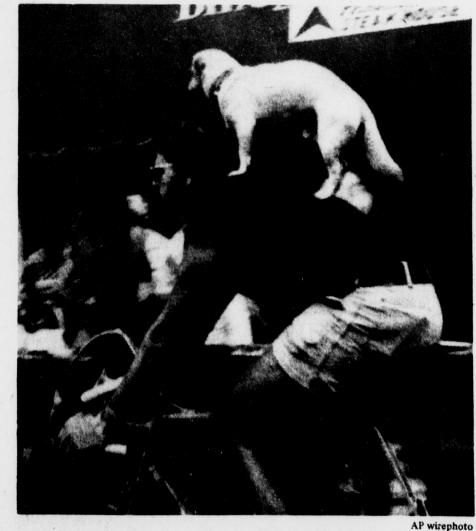

Ballenger was asked if he had changed his mind about the Taylor endorsement. "I said I supported the whole Republican slate, and I'll stick to that," he said.

The Taylor ads in question concern Carr's proposal to close $30 billion in tax loopholes. The ads say that for this to be done, the standard $750 personal deduction and deductions for medical expenses, interest paid on home mortgages and charitable contributions would have to be eliminated.

Carr denies that this would be necessary and opposes the removal of those particular loopholes. He said Wednesday the Taylor ads were "poisoning" the campaign.

Taylor said Thursday that he was "unhappy" to hear of Ballenger's criticism

"I'm pleased, though, that he said he

(UPI) - Lansing police have announced a crackdown on traffic violators who have not responded to arrest warrants issued for parking and traffic tickets.

"We are going to make an effort to pick up these people and bring them into the courts so they can take care of their obligation," Lt. William Ryan said.

Police said they have a huge backlog of warrants, including 19,000 issued on outstanding parking violations and 3,500 traffic - related offenses.

The crackdown will start today, police said. No specifics were given.

EDITORIALS Ferency vote needed

Many Michigan residents, especially the younger voters, are fed up with the top gubernatorial choices this year. The rematch between William Milliken and Sander Levin is about as attractive as a Nixon - Humphrey contest.

While the state of the state is declining under persistent unemployment and the mounting economic threat to the automobile industry, Milliken and Levin are engaged in petty bickering, pussyfooting around such a much needed reform as the repeal of the sales tax on food and drugs.

A significant percentage of voters may be looking beyond the ineffectual Democrat and Republican standard bearers come election day. The State News urges voters to join in this outcry against the staid, lackadaisical status quo stumpers and pick Human Rights party (HPR) contender Zolton Ferency for governor.

A vote for Ferency will not be thrown away. It will remain as the strongest possible argument for the major parties to become more responsive to the people. And it will return two years from now to put many HRP candidates into office if the Democratic party, which Ferency left several years ago, continues to slide away from the people.

Though many people may find they disagree with one or more planks of the HRP platform put together primarily by Ferency, the HRP at least has many answers to the state's problems. The major contenders, anxious to avoid offending any segment of voters or fat cat financial backers, have few solutions to offer.

quibbled endlessly over half - baked reform measures, and no reforms were passed in time for next week's election. It appears unlikely that either Milliken or Levin would take the leadership in a drive for true campaign reform.

Ferency stands for public ownership of utilities. During his tenure as governor, Milliken has allowed the "public services" to run roughshod over the consumers. While Levin has made a few jabs at this Milliken weak spot, Ferency proposes to go to the root of the problem by ending the profit making orientation of the utilities.

Ferency stands for many other people - oriented changes in the way Michigan is run. He favors a guaranteed annual income to alleviate the plight of the unemployed. He favors a stronger push for minority rights. He favors a graduated state income tax, a proposal which neither Milliken or Levin will touch with a 10 - foot pole. And he favors decriminalization of the drug traffic, treating drug abuse as a complex social problem rather than a fad that can be ended by locking people up in jail.

During the last days of the campaign the Milliken - Levin tussle has turned into a cut - down competition, as each candidate brings out the glaring falsehoods, inconsistencies and minor scandals in his opponent's running record. Meanwhile, the tremendous social problems facing the poor and working classes of Michigan go unanswered.

I'm voting for Richard Conlin, the Democratic commissioner candidate in the 10th District, because he has worked for real social change to help people in need. He has supported expansion of Ingham County health facilities, including the Drug Education Center clinic and the Model Cities člinic (which serves 10,000 low - income people a year).

He helped to defeat a conservative attempt to deny birth control information to minors at Family Planning. He has been a strong supporter of day care programs and of funding for mental health and drug education programs. We need representatives like Richard Conlin who care about people.

Media slight parties

The Oct. 23 State News quoted Ben Burns of the Lansing State Journal as having said with regard to the coverage of political candidates and parties that the Journal has "covered everything of significance." The judgment as to what is significant is, of course, that of an editor who is biased in favor of the parties and candidates which support the capitalist system which has brought America and the world to a resource and general welfare crisis.

Mr. Burns also asked: "Why should we give space to a minor party candidate who hasn't come up with a significant issue?" Issues are not created by parties or candidates. Issues grow out of imbalances in society. The Republican and Democratic parties have not really solved one single issue in 100 years or more of political dominance, yet they have been given almost 100 per cent of press, radio and television coverage.

Unfortunately, in my experience recently with members of the board, there appears to be some discrepancy with regard to these statements.

In June 1973, I wrote to all members of the present board requesting permission o discuss my concerns involving budgetary problems in the MSU Music Dept. To my dismay, neither Mr. Merriman nor Mr. Thompson felt any responsibility or dedication to inquire as to my concerns. Out of eight elected public officials only one, Ms. Patricia Carrigan, took the time and interest to meet with me and do what she could to answer my concerns.

On the basis of the above, I question whether either Mr. Merriman or Mr. Thompson deserve to be re - elected to serve the public for another eight years. If publicly elected officials really represent a constituency, why should it be so difficult to talk with them and obtain some explanation for what goes on in matters under their jurisdiction? I would ask all concerned voters to weigh the implications of returning such isolated representatives to positions of "public service."

Sales tax unfair

The people who reject the proposal to eliminate sales taxes on food and drugs because "the revenue will only have to be replaced with other (higher) taxes" are missing the whole damned point. The lost revenue should indeed be replaced. (Sander Levin's answer of reducing services is a very poor alternative.) But that is certainly not very good reason to reject his proposal. The real point here is that some fair - minded people can no longer accept the regressiveness of this tax. The idea is not to reduce overall taxes, but to attain equity in the tax structure.

Of course, it would be pointless if the revenue were to be replaced via another tax which is also regressive. As the state income tax is a strictly proportional tax, it is not regressive, and an increase here would not be inequitable. However, it Veterans and Go Milliken will be showing their support for Proposal "B" which is to appear on the Nov. 5 ballot, providing Vietnam veter with their postwar bonus.

Gov. Milliken was instrumental in the adoption of Proposal B for the ballot November and has long support veterans, saying on July 19, 1974, "In judgement, we owe no greater debt the to our veterans."

Proposal B will award a $600 bonust the men who fought in the Vietnam W and up to a $450 bonus to the men with supported them stationed in other countries. The monies will not com directly from citizen taxes but rather for a $205 million bond issue to be repi over 20 years from the general fund Therefore, passage of Proposal B is not inflationary measure and will not result new or raised taxes.

Ferency stands for public financing of Michigan election campaigns. During the past year Milliken and the Democratic majority in the state House

Now is the time for a change. A vote for Ferency is a vote of protest against the major parties' method of toying with petty reform while kowtowing to those who are bleeding the state dry.

Vote for change.

Veto A; pass B, C & D

Ballot proposals can sometimes be forgotten in elections dominated by the glitter of candidates and politics. But these proposals are extremely important because they alter the state Constitution and affect every citizen in Michigan.

There are four proposals on the Nov. 5 ballot. Proposals B, C and D deserve a "yes" vote, but Proposal A should be rejected.

Proposal A, if passed, will limit the amount of money which can be siphoned from the state gasoline tax into a general transportation fund. Money from the gas tax usually goes for road repair and highway construction, but in 1973 the general transportation fund was started. This fund now receives one - half cent of the present 9 - cents per gallon gas tax.

Proposal A should be rejected because transportation funds should not be limited in the Constitution. It is impossible to tell from year to year where the gas tax money will be needed most, whether on highways, in mass transit or on bike paths.

Proposal B would provide up to $600 in bonuses to Vietnam - era veterans. A yes vote on this proposal not only would prove to veterans that the sacrifices they made during the war are recognized, but also provide veterans - many of them unemployed and underemployed with an economic boost.

Proposal C would repeal the state tax on food and drugs. Though the resulting loss of revenue would probably necessitate a hike in the personal income tax, most lower and middle - income families would still receive a much - needed economic break from the tax's repeal.

Proposal D would allow the state to issue bonds and borrow money to finance $1.1 billion worth of mass transportation projects.

The proposal would provide money for the renovation of railroads, new bus systems, "new technology" transport systems like people movers, bike paths and airport and harbor development.

Proposal D is one of those rare plans which will benefit everyone in Michigan, from the average citizen to the biggest corporation. Michigan lags behind many states in development of better transportation systems. Passage of Proposal D would be a leap toward catching up.

Taylor's health care position hit

By C. PATRIC LARROWE

I'm canvassing in the women's dorms for Bob Carr, doing real good, too. Until I knock on a door, here's this disgruntled exstudent of mine glaring back at me.

'Haven't you learned your lesson, Lash?"she barks. "The primary should have taught you the voters don't want your kind in Congress. So what're you up to now? Trying to drum up support for yourself as a write - in candidate?"

"Negative," I says, keeping my cool with difficulty. "I'm campaigning for Bob

"Why should I vote for Carr?" she demands. "Taylor looks good to me, and as President Ford says, we need an inflation - proof Congress

"You've read all the good things about Carr in the State News endorsement," I says, "so I'll just give you two reasons Taylor's got to be kept out of Congress. You know Carr's for the Kennedy health bill, right?"

"Sure," she says. "It's a good program. What's Taylor's stand?" "He's for Medicredit," I tells her.

"Medicredit?" she asks. "Never heard of it. What is it?"

"It's the AMA's plan where you'd pay an insurance company for health insurance, then the government would let you take the insurance premiums off your tax bill at the end of the year."

"Sounds like the old. Nixon scheme to head off a real health insurance program," she says, showing interest for the first time in my pitch. "Is there any limit in this Medicredit on what doctors can charge?" "No," I answers.

"Too much!" she explodes. "I read the other day the average doctor's reported income is $40,000 a year! And we know doctors often get paid in cash, and don't report it on their income tax. This Medicredit's got to be the giveaway of all time for the doctors and the insurance companies.

as "guaranteed jobs," food stamps for students and the legalization of marijuana, are valid problems that a U.S. Congressman should deal with.

On the contrary, inflation is the most important problem that faces America today. Bob Carr seems to feel that fiscal irresponsibility should continue even in the face of rampant inflation. Carr's massive, socialistic health program would ruin one of the finest medical care systems in the world. Just look at England and how governmental intervention has ruined their medical care. If Bob Carr's policies are implemented, inflation will gallop away carrying the hard - earned savings of all Americans with it.

As an MSU student and a resident of the Lansing area for 20 years, I believe that Cliff Taylor will serve the people of the 6th District and the nation better than Bob Carr. David Lambert

Jones pushed

I am extremely disappointed that the State News failed to endorse Howard Jones, Human Rights party (HRP) candidate for Congress. Admitting that the "worthy third choice" has been "working for social change since before most of us were born," yet withholding endorsement on the grounds that the HRP and its proposals are too unrealistic, is in itself unrealistic. In fact, the State News has

"If Taylor's for that, maybe you got a point, Lash. That reminds me, during the primary you called Taylor a young fogey. What'd you mean?"

"It's his ideas on economics," I explains. "He thinks the medicine the economy needs is drastic cuts in spending, give it a strong dose of unemployment.'

"Weird!" she bursts out. "My daddy's told me what unemployment did to his generation during the Depression. Didn't we have a president named J. Edgar Hoover in those days who wouldn't spend money to create jobs and kept saying prosperity was just around the corner ?"

"No wonder you flunked my class," I scolds. "His name was Hoover, but it was Herbert, not J. Edgar. But you're right about the other part. President Hoover was more worried about deficit spending than fighting unemployment. That's why the economy got into such bad shape when he was president."

"You didn't impress me much as a prof," she says, "and you couldn't cut it as a politician. But you sure are making sense on why I should vote for Carr."

"Right," I says. "Now we're finally getting rid of Chamberlain, this is no time to be trading in an old mossback for a young mossback.'

C. Patric Larrowe, professor of economics, was trounced by Bob Carr in the Aug. 6 Democratic primary for U. S. Congress.

Carr praised

In the first televised debate between Bob Carr and Cliff Taylor, and in one Taylor's televised advertisements, Tay criticized Carr's proposal for comprehensive national health d insurance program, calling it a her burden on the taxpayer. Even a superfue examination of his criticism, howe reveals Taylor's gross and proble deliberate distortion of the actual cost Carr's program. As Carr said, the nation's health would be about $78 billion to $100 bill - a substantial figure indeed. The issue not whether we should spend that and for health care, however. We are and spending it.

Yet Taylor continues to imply in his that the program would cost the public additional $78 billion to $100 billion.

Carr's proposal would not entail a increase to the consumer. It would sin mean enforcing the existing tax struct which is theoretically progressive. It not been progressive in practice beca 1) The super rich and powerful have been paying their fair share but h avoided taxes through loopholes. 2) giant corporations have used their power to gain privileged status, and avoid taxes. Corporate income taxs supposed to be 48 per cent of pri However, in recent years the largest companies' taxes have typically m from zero to 10 per cent. Perhaps Taylor does not see the far his criticism, in which case he would be fit to run the financial affairs of nation. If, on the other hand, he deliberately distorted Carr's pro-(which seems more probable), voters of the 6th District would be advised to question his ethics. Simply Taylor is either incompetent or dece Carr should be praised for taking a and definitive stand on such a vital

JAMES RESTON Ford fights wrong hobgoblin

The hobgoblin of this year's elections is that the Democrats want a massive victory in the House and Senate races so that they can dominate President Ford and override his vetoes, but this is Halloween talk rather than practical politics.

Even if Democrats added another 35 seats to their present House majority of 248 · 187, they would still fall short of the 291 votes needed to create the veto proof Congress Ford is campaigning against. And this assumes that every Democrat in the House would vote the party line, which didn't happen even in the days of Franklin Roosevelt's lopsided majorities.

It is true that the Democrats are a greedy bunch and would take a landslide victory if they could get it, but even Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma doesn't want to unbalance the system. He knows from experience that the larger the Democratic majority the harder it is for him to control their votes. The Constitution insisted on a two - thirds vote of both the House and the Senate to override a presidential veto precisely because the Founding Fathers intended to make such votes extremely difficult. In general the Congress has been faithful to this principle, regardless of the party balance.

Even in 1973, when President Nixon's popularity was falling fast, the Congress was able to override only one of his nine '73 vetoes (limiting his war - making powers). And of the 37 vetoes he cast from early 1969 until the end of 1973, only five were overridden.

In practical political terms, The Democrats are less interested in boosting their present majorities in the House and challenge the present leadership and join with those who would prefer a different speaker.

Accordingly, talk of a one - party system is both bad politics and bad history. The trend usually goes against the President's party in mid - year elections, but in the last six mid - year elections, the average House gain of the "out" party has been only 26 seats. Even much larger gains

The threat is not the replacement of the two - party system by a dominant Democratic party, but its replacement by a three - party system led by Ronald Reagen and George Wallace.

Senate than they are in getting control of machinery and patronage of the the governorships in the states with the most electoral votes. They are not as eager for House and Senate seats in '74 as for control of the state houses that will help them in the presidential playoffs of 1976. Their main objective is not to override Ford's vetoes but to ride the Republicans out of the White House, which the GOP has occupied for the last two terms. A spectacular Democratic victory in the House and Senate next week, followed by defiance of presidential vetoes in the next two years, could easily produce a reaction in 1976. The economy is still likely to be the major issue in the next presidential help them if they cripple Ford by overriding one veto after another.

extravagant margin, their leaders in the House would have to consider another disadvantage: The possibility that a lot of have not always assured victory for the outs at the next presidential election.

In 1922, for example, when President Harding was still alive, the Democrats added six seats in the Senate and 75 in the House, but after his death, his successor, Calvin Coolidge, won handily for the GOP in 1924. Similarly, the Republicans gained 13 seats in the Senate and 56 in the House in the mid - term elections of 1946, capturing control of both houses of Congress, but Harry Truman squeaked back into the White House two years later.

There may be more future, therefore, in watching the governors, who are regaining some of their old authority and will undoubtedly play an important, if not a decisive role in 1976. The split is now 32 Democrats and 18 Republicans, with the prospect that the Democrats are going to add California, New York, Massachusetts, and Connecticut to their total.

They also have a good chance of holding the governorships of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Maryland, and could even pick up Michigan. With this dominant control of the state capitals in a time of economic difficulty, the Democrats should not need to worry too much about their base on Capitol Hill.

Meanwhile, what President Ford has to worry about is not losing his power of veto, but his command over his own party. If he loses heavily next Tuesday, despite all his campaigning, he may be confronted by the defection of conservative Republicans and the threat of a third party coalition led by Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

Separately, these two governors probably have little chance of winning their parties' presidential nomination in 1976, but together in a three - party race. they might finally produce a wholly new alignment of American political power and challenge both of the major parties.

In short, the threat is not the replacement of the two - party system by a dominant Democratic party, but its replacement by a three - party system led by Reagan and Wallace on the right. Third parties have never been very successful in America, but these are strange times, and at the present rate of inflation and recession, Reagan and Wallace could be the bogey - men of 1976.

given over to the automobile in areas, while mass transit has largely iorated. Statistics on energy use onstrate the error of this trend. A loaded automobile uses some 2,300 h Thermal Units (BTUs) of energy passenger mile, while mass transit ges 760 BTUs per passenger mile. ever, as of 1970, only 3 per cent of passenger traffic was carried by transit; the three times more wasteful mobile was carrying 97 per cent of raffic.

transit, the United States would save some 5,000 trillion BTUs, or about 1 billion barrels of oil, some 10 per cent of our annual oil usage.

Voters can curb energy waste

Instead, over the past 20 years the problem has been getting worse: mass transit has declined from 15 per cent of traffic to 3 per cent, and total energy consumption has almost tripled.

Obviously, we cannot eliminate all urban auto traffic, but we should look at ways to cut down, such as:

• Increasing the load in present mass transit to 50 per cent would eliminate 5 per cent of auto traffic, and save 50 million barrels annually.

• Increasing the load factor in cars to 50 per cent would eliminate 40 per cent, and save 400 million barrels annually. • Changing 50 per cent of present auto passengers onto mass transit would eliminate 48 per cent, and save 480 million barrels annually. Some combination of these strategies must be used if we are to achieve sane rail. As recently as 1968, the $6 billion federal transportation budget was divided: highways - 70 per cent, air and water -29 per cent, urban mass transit - 1 per cent, and railroads - 0.2 per cent.

We've achieved some changes since 1968, but subsidies for the automobile are still a huge portion of the transportation budget. If we put that money into subsidizing mass transit, we could make it attractive enough and cheap enough to transfer a significant fraction of automobile passengers to mass transit, which would reduce energy consumption. Michigan voters will have a chance to take the initiative in this November's election. Proposition D is a $1.1 billion bond issue. To provide funds to construct mass transit and alternative transportation facilities, vote YES on Proposition D.

Proposition A would restrict gas tax moneys from being used for mass tr To reduce the automobile's domination of our transportation system, vote NO on Proposition A. The combination of those two votes, NO on A and YES on D, will take a giant step towards a rational energy and transportation policy for Michigan. Magruder: Mitchell questioned expenses Go

WASHINGTON (AP) - Jeb Stuart Magruder testified Thursday that though John N. Mitchell gave his unenthusiastic approval for the Watergate burglary, he asked a week later why so much money was required by the man who was planning it.

Testifying at the Watergate coverup trial for the third day, Magruder said he got a telephone call from the former attorney general in the first week of April 1972, asking why G. Gordon Liddy needed "this much money."

Magruder said that he went to Mitchell's office and reviewed for him the $250,000 proposal that he said Mitchell approved on March 30 and explained that 10 - month to four - year what Liddy was asking "was in effect front money" to purchase equipment and hire men.

"Mr. Mitchell understood," Magruder said, and later authorized Hugh Sloan, the treasurer of Richard M. Nixon's re - election special prosecutor's office. committee, to give Liddy what he asked.

"What you are saying is that a week after you returned, John Mitchell asked you why Liddy needed money?" Magruder was asked.

As he testified the courtroom was rife with reports that Ehrlichman's lawyers would ask for a delay in the trial, a move to California, or a mistrial in case Nixon is unable to testify.

more fair and efficient.

Tschirhart became judge on Feb. 5, 1974. He was appointed by Gov. Milliken made a set of proposals that he after selection by a panel of believes would make the court lawyers from around the state. Gaulden and eight others were Judge Daniel L. Tschirhart, the incumbent, is proud of the performance of his court, and believes that "the integrity of also considered for the post. This coming election will be the first time East Lansing has elected its district judge. Since Tschirhart's appointment, the East Lansing District Court has had an unusually fast record of case dispatchment. Al Bard, of the traffic division of the Secretary of State's office, says "East Lansing court is one of the fastest in the state." Ninety nine per cent of traffic cases (which comprise 80 to 90 per cent of the case load) are settled within 30 days, as compared to a state average of 61 per cent in that length of time.

Tschirhart has also been complimented for his frequent use of driving, alcohol and rehabilitative programs in lieu of sending offenders to jail.

Gaulden, however, has raised a number of issues, and proposes reforms to improve on the court. Among them, with Tschirhart's responses, are:

• Small Claims court sessions in the evening. Gaulden suggests that evening sessions would be more convenient for the citizens and that they would speed up the process. Tschirhart said that evening court would not really be more convenient for many people, and that small claims are already settled promptly scheduled within 30 days, usually settled within 60 days. • Round - the - clock magistrate assistance. Gaulden says that if a proposed state law to allow courts such as East Lansing's to have such a in all cases with the possibility magistrate passes, he will obtain one. Tschirhart now agrees, but says that earlier in the campaign, Gaulden did not seem to realize that the magistrate was impossible under present'law.

· Fair Leasing Program. Gaulden wants to use the prestige of his office to encourage setting up a mediation board to deal with tenant - landlord disputes over repairs, service and leasing. He says that such a program would be more fair and equitable to both sides, and that it has worked well in Ann Arbor, where it has been tried. the suggestion, "I think it of a jail sentence. During their debate over cable TV Channel 14 on Oct. 21, Gaulden said, "It is very rarely that I have seen Judge Tschirhart appoint counsel in a case where there might be a jail sentence." He has described this as "stripping away Sixth Amendment guarantees." Gaulden says that he will provide court appointed attorneys in all misdemeanors where they are requested and the defendant is indigent.

Tschirhart emphatically states that he has appointed attorneys in all cases that carry a real possibility of jail terms, Tschirhart said recently of but that it would be unnecessary, unduly expensive shows a lack of understanding and time consuming to appoint on what a judge's position is. It counsel in minor traffic is not that of proposing laws, matters, which make up 80 to 90 per cent of court load. Instead, he denies counsel in housing cases." He said that a some cases, thereby giving up judge must apply existing law. his power to impose a jail Appointment of counsel sentence.

• A revised jury selection procedure. Gaulden suggests that jurors could be selected in advance of trials and assigned a specific date for jury duty. This would allow more citizens, including students, to serve. Under the present procedure, he says, prospective jurors are required to give a month of their time, without assurance of serving on any given day.

Money could also be saved from not paying jury fees to people who do not serve, Gaulden says. The system is now used in Grand Rapids.

Tschirhart says that this reform is under study, but that it is difficult to compare Grand Rapids, which has five district courts, with East Lansing, which has only one. 1973 cost figures indicate that the Grand Rapids courts spent $34,000 on jury selection, not including jury fees. East Lansing spent $3,500, including jury fees. Both figures are according to Tschirhart.

"If it does turn out that that system could be used for the benefit of juries in this jurisdiction, then I certainly would be in favor of it."

John Mayer, of the District Court Administrator's Office in Lansing, said that the courts that use this jury selection prodecure "say they are very satisfied with it."

Gaulden, 30, is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School. Since graduation. he has practiced law in a Detroit firm, in conjuction with the Michigan Legal Assistance Program, and in two divisions of the state Attorney General's office. He has also served on the East Lansing Zoning Board of Appeals.

Tschirhart, 33, graduated from the Detroit College of Law, and worked for four years as a trial lawyer for the Ingham County prosecutor's office before his appointment to the court.

A Record You Can Trust

In two terms as State Representative, EARL NELSON has compiled an outstanding record as a full-time legislator with deep concern for citizen needs.

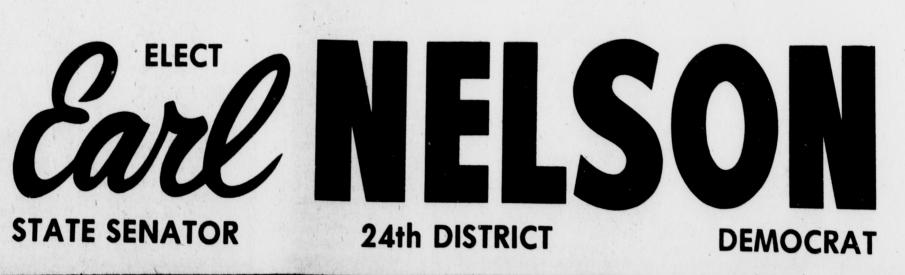

His leadership led to his selection for the important House Appropriations Committee where he has fought for government economy and effective use of tax dollars.

Earl Nelson successfully sponsored landmark legislation to modernize ineffective rape laws, removing stigma from victims.

Earl Nelson won enactment of new legislation ending disputes between landlords and tenants, safeguarding security deposits.

Earl Nelson sponsored the new state law licensing auto repair mechanics to protect consumers from fraud and sloppy work.

Earl Nelson strongly supported tax relief for low and fixed income families. . . improved measures to prevent welfare cheating. . . more effective aid for the unemployed. . . and he single-handedly won increased funding for voacational and career education courses.

Commission details offered to students

To help students who will elect candidates for Ingham County commissioner, the State News provides this explanation of what*a commissioner and a board of commissioners are and do.

The county is apportioned into 21 districts, each containing approximately 12,500 people, and one commissioner is elected from each district every two years.

The board of commissioners is the legislative body for the county. It does not have law making powers but it does have control over all agencies, including law enforcement, and control over an annual budget nearing $15 million for 1975.

The board's main function is in appropriations. Through recommendations from various board committees, and voluntary citizen commissions, the board decides which agencies shall be funded and how much these agencies will receive.

Board members estimate that close to 80 per cent of the county's money goes for fixed cost items, leaving 20 per cent for social service programs.

Estimates from previous years show that about 62 per cent of the money the board monitors comes from property tax. Another 15 per cent from state and federal revenue sharing, 13 per cent from animal licensing and interest on county investments and 10 per cent from the county's share of state income tax.

The chairman of the board has power to appoint board members to various committees, and to appoint members to citizen boards and commissions. Though the citizen commissions are only advisory, they can conduct surveys and investigations on the agencies they monitor and make recommendations to the county board.

Appointments to committees within the board are made each year.

Certain types of county construction, like county buildings, also falls under the jurisdiction of the board of commissioners. In addition, the board sets salary rates for all county personnel, including themselves.

Among the board's functions are the ability to pass resolutions urging local, state or federal action on particular issues and the power to direct the county prosecutor to prosecute cases on behalf of the county.

A commissioner's salary is based on the number of meetings he or she attends. Each commissioner gets a base salary of $1,800 per year, plus $30 per board meeting and $40 per committee meeting. A ceiling of $5,500 is placed on salary. The chairman of the board is allowed to make up to $7,200 and the vicechairman, $6,000.

He is opposed to cutting social services from the county budget and advocates less spending on police and law enforcement as a means of saving county money.

Heyser believes the county is too bogged down with bureaucracy and says local communities should have easier access to county funds, and operator of Boyd without having to go through a maze of county agencies to get Insurance Agency; them.

Under Rathke's plan, the commission, if it were established, would buy or build houses in the low - rent districts in the city, and then rent them at a nonprofit, maintenance level cost.

"In the case of true slum landlords, the county should employ its power of eminent domain to condemn and take over in the public interest their housing units," he said. Rathke also strongly supports the abolition of the

He also supports the county women's commission and a issues facing the board review of county hiring practices.

Massoglia supports the grouping of county social service agencies under a central administration umbrella. More funding for local service agencies such as the Listening Ear and the Drug Education Center is desirable, he said.

He said he would vote to abolish the Tri - County Metro Squad as it is set up now but added that the issue is a touchy Conlin says his contributions to the county as a commissioner are work on women's rights, improved health care, a natural resources recycling and recovery center and the implementation of a summer jobs program mainly for students.

Conlin does not believe a county housing commission could be established. He said it would probably be in conflict with local housing commissions and their jurisdictions.

He has supported funding of the Tri - County Metro Squad, defending his position by calling it a "police problem, not a county problem.'

Conlin said police would have the agency even without county funds and that he would support it until an alternative came along.

Economy main issue in county board race

By GARY KORRECK State News Staff Writer

so the issue in the races for 21 seats on the Ingham County oard of Commissioners. As with political battles nationwide in 1974, the economy is

How the economic question is balanced in the future may be ecided by how the already delicately balanced board changes ter the Nov. 5 election.

Democrats currently control all of the seats on the county hard, but at least six new faces will have places this year. Two anublican commissioners have decided to retire, and another has usen not to run. On the Democratic side, one candidate has the second has chosen an illness, a second has chosen to run and a third has left to pursue a seat in the state oislature

Democrats on the board generally agree that the funding of cial service programs is the county's main priority. Republicans nd to favor a decrease in county spending and a more balanced udget, pointing to nonfixed cost programs such as social services most cuttable.

The main arguments at the monthly commissioner meetings in the several commission committees usually center on anagement of the budget - which reached $15.1 for 1975 - or ow to take money from the county contingency fund to tablish new programs.

Approximately 29 per cent of the total county budget goes ward social services, which were increased by almost $500,000 rer 1974.

Included in social service budget requests are a number of programs which gain matching federal funds. Democrats claim a minority of dollar - conscious Republicans have advocated cutting these programs without cutting the matching funds from the revenue side of the ledger.

One of the main items on the current budget, which drew a raft of comments from both parties, was the $6,500 share the county kicks in to support the Tri - County Metro Squad, an undercover police unit encompassing Ingham, Clinton and Eaton counties with special emphasis on arresting narcotics dealers.

Opponents of the funding argued that area residents, primarily students, had been hassled by the squad in a series of pot busts designed to gain publicity. They said either a civilian review board was needed to monitor the agency or the squad should receive no funding.

Supporters of the Metro Squad argued that any drug activity was a burden to the community and that the Metro Squad was better than what they claimed would be no enforcement without it

Commissioners also clashed on salary levels of county employes, including themselves. The board approved 5.5 per cent raises for all police personnel and county judges, a move a few commissioners claimed was inconsistent with the intent of an austerity budget. It was argued that salaries should be increased at lower employe levels before granting increases to high - salaried personnel.

Among programs promoted by social service - oriented commissioners in 1973 were the establishment and/or funding of a summer job employment program for young adults; the formation of an equal opportunity committee to investigate discrimination in county hiring, firing and banking practices; a federal revenue allocation for a nearly completed county nonmotorized transportation plan; the purchase of Lake Lansing Park, and an urban 4 - H program for Lansing. General agreement was reached on the proposed 1975 budget of $15.1 million, which included a $30,000 cut from the health, education and welfare budget and a reorientation of funds from other department budgets, resulting in a $168,000 cut from the original budget.

Issues that should face returning and new commissioners include:

"If they can manage their money like that, the more power to them," Brady said.

Brady said that people's negative attitudes about applying for stamps are changing, particularly because of the economic situation.

"When you start to worry about losing your job, you sort of shut your mouth," he said.

Ingham County statistics show that there were 19,492 people involved in the food stamp program in September.

Of the total, 16,630 were also on other public assistance programs.

The statistics also revealed that $627,116 worth of food stamps was issued in September, of which $280,338 was distributed free.

Though the number of applicants continues to rise each month, Brady foresees a decline when the economic situation improves and more jobs become available.

Musicians break fresh ground by using ancient musical concept

By DAVE STERN

State News Reviewer A musical journey began in the early 1970s with an album appropriately titled "Road," and culminated recently in the release of two extraordinary albums.

Released several years ago, "Road" featured six virtuosi - Paul Winter, alto sax; David Darling, cello; Ralph Towner, classical and twelve string guitar; Paul McCandless, oboe; Glen Moore, string bass, and Colin Walcott, sitar - in a group called "The Winter Consort.'

The remarkable music of this album combined all the aspects of European classical music from Bach to "New" music, with African, Indian and Brazilian music, and jazz improvisation. The result was an album on A & M records that was simply one of the finest ever released in any field of music.

Darling has disappeared and Winter still leads "The Winter Consort," but with a much less accomplished group of musicians. The other four musicians from "Road" have released three albums that should turn the entire music world upside down. It was these four that contributed the genius to "Road," and that genius is now served up undiluted by Winter's theatrical tendencies.

If so, the problem may be that you do not know how the major news of the day affects you as an MSU student. At least, that is what Chuck Goudie, director of Michigan State Network (MSN) radio

Physician loses license over abortion standards

(UPI) - The Michigan Medical Practices (UPI) — The Michigan Medical Practices pard (MMPB), in a far - reaching decision ednesday, revoked the medical license of Dr. sse Ketchum for failing to meet minimal andards in performing an abortion. The 7 - 0 decision also stemmed from etchum's 1971 New York conviction on arges of criminally negligent homicide in the ath of an abortion patient and from an moral conduct charge earlier this year in moral conduct charge earlier this year in

In revoking the suburban Detroit physician's ense, the MMPB established the first concrete idelines for doctors to follow in performing ortions. Previously, the state has only onitored the equipment and facilities used for operation.

"This is the beginning of a tremendous ange," Dr. Frederick W. Van Duyne of Flint, ting board chairman, said.

The MMPB held that Ketchum, 57, failed to neet minimal standards of acceptable and revailing medical practice" in an abortion erformed on an Ohio woman last April in his Huntington Woods office.

The board said Ketchum should have performed a complete physical examination on the woman, obtained her medical history, provided counseling, had trained medical assistance ready and used adequate equipment.

It also faulted Ketchum for doing the Saline abortion in a nonhospital setting.

Van Duyne said the board's decision marked a change in the role of the MMPB, from a poorly staffed and relatively inactive group to one that requires better financing and a more aggressive staff.

"What happened today puts pressure on the legislature to give us more funding," he said.

The legislature in September approved legislation giving the Dept. of Public Health the power to regulate the state's abortion clinics. The department, however, was given power only to monitor the equipment and the facilities for safety and cleanliness.

It was not given authority to determine which abortion techniques should be used, or what constituted minimal medical standards.

Capsule 4, was broadcast for the first time at 8 p.m. Sunday over WMSN and the other four campus stations of the MSN. "We are trying to inform the listeners of how the news stories are going to affect them as MSU students, or if the stories will affect them at all," Goudie said. "Obviously, there is no other station anywhere that programs its news specifically with the MSU student in mind," he added. Goudie said the program deals with straight news rather than features

"We would like to bring to the attention of the MSU student some type of understanding of the big news picture," he said.

In the first edition of News Capsule 4, Goudie and three other broadcasters discussed particular stories in separate segments of the program. Goudie examined the potential U.S. - Soviet trade pact; Bill Judy explored the Michigan gubernatorial race; Rusty Hills covered President Ford's economic proposals, and Irene Doyle analyzed the MSU student unionization movement.

Each successive program will focus on important international, national, state and local stories in the same manner.

Goudie said that continuity in news flow and continued coverage of on - going stories would be stressed on News

Capsule 4. "Unless something big comes up, the stories next time will probably cover new implications and developments of the stories we covered the first time," he said.

. Though the format for each program will remain the same. the on - the - air personnel will change.

"We can provide a wider angle to each of the stories by offering other people's opinions on how the news stories will affect the MSU student," Goudie said.

"By the time this show is done, by the end of the academic year, everyone in our news staff will have been involved in one way or another," he added.

The next edition of News Capsule 4 is scheduled for Nov. 24. It is possible that the program could be broadcast on a biweekly, rather than a monthly basis, Goudie said. "It hasn't been decided how often this show will run," he said

"I'd like to have the show every two weeks just for the sake of regularity, but either way we will probably pursue the same stories," Goudie added

Not since the Charles Manson slayings has a story of such eminent bad taste monopolized the attention of journalists for such an inordinant period of time.

Students are barred from serving on the governing boards of their own universities in a ruling by Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley that says students would be involved in a conflict of interest if elected.

During the past year, student organizations have attempted to get an amendment on the ballot to change the state constitution to allow students to be elected. Bruff graduated with a B.A. from MSU in the 1940s, and also attended the University of Michigan Law School. He practiced law for ten years in Macomb County until 1965 when he was appointed as counsel to the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on labor and the Special Committee on Aging. Bruff also served as a trustee at Oakland University, on President Wharton's Lifelong Education Commission, as president of the Macomb County MSU Alumni Assn., president of the Macomb County Human Relations Assn. and was elected to the National MSU Alumni Assn. Bruff was also lieutenant governor in 1966. Among his main interests at MSU, Bruff lists the College of Urban Development, improved teacher education, a new health center, a law school and reducing tuition.

Bruff said he is a great supporter of the College of Urban Development. However. he adds that the college should focus on suburban as well as urban problems because of the . increasing number of urban like problems in suburbia.

In the area of teacher education, Bruff said that MSU, as the educator of so many teachers, has the responsibility to educate its students to motivate and be able to deal with low - income students.

"Teachers are continually faced with social conflict. We must put the emphasis in training teachers to cope with those situations," he said. "We must put some emphasis on teachers' education that understands that low - income children do not receive the motivation they should."

Constructing a new health center is another one of Bruff's pet projects.

"I understand you have the same health facility that was here when I was here. It is inadequate now," he said.

When discussing the proposed law school, Bruff said he would have preferred to attend an MSU law school.

The establishment of a law school at MSU gives the University the chance to open up new areas of legal education. At a new law school, MSU could pioneer in new fields like consumer law, Bruff said.

Woman harriers to make home debut on Saturday

MSU's new women's cross country teamwill make its home debut Saturday, highlighting the action on this weekend's women's sports schedule.

The triangular meet with Central Michigan and Eastern Michigan will get under way at 11 a.m. at Forest Akers golf course. Thus far in its initial season of competition, the harriers have competed in three meets, and finished fourth, third and first.

The women's field hockey team will travel to Central Michigan for a match Saturday. It faced the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor Thursday Coach Mikki Baile, whose team stood 5 - 1 going into the U -M game, thinks most of the squads' strength lies in an aggressive defense.

"Our defense is very aggressive and definitely a strong point on the team. Our stick work has also improved," she said. Baile said earlier this week she thought the U - M game would be a new experience for the team. "We will play Michigan on artificial turf which is like playing on a hard floor, and the ball is harder to control. It's the first time many of the girls will play on it," she said.

The women's volleyball team faced Calvin College and Central Michigan here Thursday. It travels to Indiana today to face Ball State in a dual meet. Saturday, the team goes to Lafayette, Ind. to face Purdue and Chicago Circle in a triangular meet.

"The out of state teams are tougher competition for us," coach Annelies Knoppers said. "We've beaten every team in Michigan, but we have some difficulty against the out of state competition."

U coach Jim Gibbard's men's cross country team will face i University Saturday in a dual meet in Oxford, Ohio. e Spartan harriers are also preparing for the important Big neet, which will be held in Ann Arbor next Saturday. sU will be trying to break a six - game losing streak against i. This year the competition from coach Chuck Zody's s should be a bit softer.

e Redskins currently have a 2 - 11 dual meet record and are midst of a rebuilding program.

e Spartans are 3 - 1 in dual meet competition. This Saturday mark the last dual meet of the season for the MSU harriers. st year the Ohioans defeated the Spartans 22 - 37. nce again the Spartans' main hopes will be riding with Herb wife, are expected to be at the MSU's $4.5 million project dedication. will be officially dedicated in Faceoff time for Saturday ceremonies tonight beginning night's game is 7:30 p.m. at 7:30. The festivities will run

There are still some tickets available for the contests, officials in the athletic ticket office, said.

Last week's crowds for the Laurentian University games broke the all - time MSU hockey attendence record, but the audiences at this weekend's games are expected to easily break the current high mark of 4,348.

Coach Amo Bessone's Spartans have several reasons why they want to start the conference campaign off on the right foot against the Golden Gophers.

"Minnesota was the only team which bested us in all four games last year," Bessone said. The Gopher squad dropped MSU twice in a series over Thanksgiving weekend here last season in perhaps the worst set the Spartans played during the campaign.

The Spartans, who finished 23 - 14 - 1 overall last year and 15 - 12 - 1 in WCHA games, are trying to improve upon last year's fourth place conference finish. In other league series this weekend, the University of Michigan will host Wisconsin; Michigan Tech is at Minnesota -Duluth; Colorado College is playing at Denver; and Denver is visiting North Dakota.

The four Big Ten teams in the WCHA compete as a group also, making the series this weekend even more important ones for the Spartans, Gophers, Wolverines and Badgers. MSU opened its 1974 - 75 season last weekend against a tough squad from Sudbury, Ont., the Laurentian Voyageurs, and split the set. Minnesota also split its first series, with intrastate rival Minnesota - Duluth. The games were not counted in the conference race, however.

A pair of Spartan defensemen who didn't see action against Laurentian last weekend are expected to don the Spartan green and white against Minnesota.

Judo coach in Belgium

MSU judo coach Jay Kim is in Brussels, Belgium this weekend coaching the United States' university team at the fourth World University Judo Championships, which are being held today through Sunday

Greg Ciungan, a sophomore, and one of the Spartans three returning defensemen, has apparently recovered from a side injury, and Bessone said Thursday it appeared that sophomore Pat Betterley would play against Minnesota. Betterley has had some eligibility difficulties.

Freshman defenseman John Dunsmore suffered a broken wrist during the Laurentian series and is expected to be lost to the Spartan squad for three to five weeks.

Tom Ross and Steve Colp, MSU's high - scoring centers who lead the club in scoring with five and three points respectively, will head the Spartans powerful top two lines cocaptain Denny Olmstead has moved into the line with freshmen Mark DeCenzo and Jim Johnson.

"Olmstead adds a lot of forechecking to that line," Bessone said about the East Lansing native.

Goalie Ron Clark, who went the distance in both contests against Laurentian last weekend, is scheduled to start in the nets for MSU. He carries a 2.5 goals - against average into the series.

"Minnesota has got speed and they pass well," Bessone said. "They are a big team this year, and they will be aggressive."

Gopher goalie Brad Shelstad, one of the country's Bessone said senior best last year, has graduated and been replaced by Bill Moen, who is scheduled to start against MSU.

Some big names for Minnesota include centers Mike Polich and Robbie Harris and defensemen Robin Larson, a freshman, and Les Auge.

This weekend's contests open the long conference season which will eventually see eight of the 10 teams making the playoffs in March.

of students undecided on the governor's campaign considered their chances of voting excellent or pretty good.

Milliken, whose widespread identification as an unusually liberal Republican may be a factor in his student support, was also more successful in attracting student Democrats to his side than was Levin in drawing Republican crossovers.

Milliken received the support of 21.9 per cent of students who described themselves as Democrats. Levin, who has tried to win votes by emphasizing that Milliken is a Republican in a year of Watergate and inflation, attracted only 8.3 per cent of self - described student Republicans - a group which the poll revealed is only half as large as student

Democrats in the first place. Despite the crossovers and party base of each candidate, both Levin and Milliken - as well as Ferency - drew their most heavy support from students considering themselves independent voters. More than 60 per cent of the 75.3 per cent of students who are registered to vote in Michigan placed themselves in that nonaligned category. In fact Ferency, the standard - bearer for a growing third party of which two per cent of the student electorate consider themselves members, got two - thirds of his preferences from "independent" voters. Students registered in Michigan favored Proposal C, which would repeal the state sales tax on food and prescription drugs, by a 58.2 to 32 per cent margin, with 9.8 per cent undecided.

It is that issue that has Proposal A, by 43.1 to 27.9.

Clown mystifies crowd at Halloween bash

By STEVE ORR

State News Staff Writer They came out in droves Wednesday night to the Alle -Ey, as munchkins and ghouls and belly dancers and Statues of Liberty, in all the typical Halloween costumes.

But in the crowd at the bar's second annual costume contest affair, one man stood out.

His real name is Bob Wallace, but he dreams of being known as "Bobini The Magical Clown."

Wallace, who graduated from MSU with a B.A. in communications last spring, performed his magic act for the crowd Wednesday night. He left them laughing and more than a little mystified with his tricks which included an "adult crowd only" stunt where he pulled a bra out of the blouse of a woman in the crowd. He also left those who heard the story and theories behind his avocation of clown magician with strong impressions.

Wallace said his whole "career" in magic began as a result of a mysterious recurring dream he had when he was 12 years old. Wallace said he kept dreaming of a particular face. one that he could not identify. It grew "worse and worse," Wallace said, until one day he saw a book jacket with a picture of Harry Houdini on it. He said he knew at once it was Houdini's face he had been dreaming of. in bars.

Wallace, who admitted the tale was bizzare, claimed "White, black, yellow people, nobody ever told us how to act toward a clown when they're a child," Wallace said. He claims that children are conditioned to react a certain way toward most people, but clowns escape that. "A clown is everybody's friend," Wallace said. "It's a shame people can't look at everybody that way."

Wallace said that during his act he tries to make his audience go back in years, to a time "before they thought they couldn't have fun without putting on airs." Wallace sprinkles "magic woffle dust" on his crowds, jokes with them and sometimes convinces them they really can be as young as they like.

Wallace, who spends his quieter moments as part owner of an advertising company in Haslett, hopes he got his big break Wednesday night in the Alle - Ey. Although he has had numerous shows at parties and conventions, it was the first time he has performed at a local bar.

Several East Lansing night spot managers said they would consider Wallace's act.

The Alle - Ey's Halloween party was enlivened when area political candidates Clifford Taylor and H. Lynn Jondahl squared off in a heated exchange Wednesday night, but instead of using political rhetoric for weapons they used ping - pong paddles.

It was nothing but fun at the party, which featured the ping pong battle as a special attraction. Taylor won the match by a score of 21-18, and walked away the winner of a Munn Ice Arena. free pitcher of beer.

March set to back bonus

A march to the State Capitol in support of Proposal B, the Vietnam Veterans Bonus, is slated for 2 p.m. Saturday following a rally at Beaumont Tower.

The march, coordinated by veterans' groups of MSU and Central Michigan University, will head from campus down Michigan Avenue to the Capitol. The veterans will hear several speakers in support of the proposal.

The campus rally, scheduled to begin at 1 p.m., is sponsored by the MSU Chicano Veterans and the MSU Veterans for the Vietnam Bonus.

Speakers at the rally will include Paul Brown, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor; Zolton Ferency, Human Rights candidate for governor; Lynn Jondahl, Democratic incumbent for 59th District state representative; Dave Hollister, Democratic candidate for 57th District state representative, and Charles P. Larrowe, MSU professor of economics.

The rally is expected to last approximately one hour, with the march to the Capitol beginning at 2 p.m.

The proposal would authorize the state to sell bonds to pay Vietnam combat veterans a $600 bonus, and noncombat veterans a bonus of $15 for each month served, to a maximum of $450. A cash bonus and educational benefits proposal was turned down by Michigan voters in 1972.
