• An increase in the investment tax credit to 12 per cent for one year in an effort to spur industrial plant expansion and the creation of more jobs.

"We must wage a simultaneous three front campaign against recession, inflation and energy dependence. We have no choice," Ford told Americans from the White House library in the nationally broadcast preview of his Wednesday State of the Union message to Congress.

Ford outlined the tax cut plan, saying: "Twelve billion dollars, or three - fourths of the total of this cut, should go to the individual taxpayers in the form of a cash rebate amounting to 12 per cent of their 1974 tax payments — up to a $1,000 rebate. If Congress acts by April 1, you will get your first check for half of the rebate in May and the rest in September."

City may slap Dooley's with crowding charge

By RALPH FRAMMOLINO State News Staff Writer

Only days after a second criminal complaint was filed against the Alle-Ey, East Lansing city officials are considering also starting court action against Dooley's for overcrowding.

East Lansing attorney Dennis McGinty said it is likely a criminal complaint will be sought against Dooley's for violating building code infractions Saturday night. A report by fire officials has been presented to him charging the bar with having 199 people over their 357 patron limit.

Gary Foltz, owner-manager of Dooley's, said his manager told him patrons who normally wait outside were allowed in to protect them from high winds and cold temperatures.

I've seen it crowded, but not to that extent," said East Lansing Fire Dept. Inspector Walter Dixon. Dixon, along with Fire Marshal Berman Prether and two East Lansing police officers, counted the number of people at Dooley's after a patron complaint alerted them to the situation.

"We ordered them to shut the doors down until the crowd thinned out to capacity," Prether said. Prether said the bar owners have been warned repeatedly about the situation.

Foltz said he doubts whether there were 200 patrons over the legal limit Saturday night. He also said he will continue to do his best to comply with the law, but he questions whether officials are correctly interpreting the law.

"Obviously, we're hoping like hell that we don't get a citation."

Foltz also said that the outcome of the case against the Alle-Ey will set important precedents for other area bars in determining patron limits.

"I'm hopeful that we get this Alle-Ey thing over with so everyone knows where he stands," Foltz said.

"I don't think the police are acting like kids," Foltz said. He does not think that the police were maliciously or intentionally understating the capacity of area bars.

Fire Chief Phillip Patriarche said that the area bars have been given repeated warnings and that the fire department tries to seek cooperation rather than file complaints on the first instance of building code violations.

"We try to get their cooperation first," Patriarche said, "rather than leave a nasty taste in someone's mouth.

MSU students are bullet - biting by the dozen in an effort to combat the inflation which is gripping the nation and their pocketbooks.

Students, though not going hungry, are planning their budgets more carefully in order to stretch their dollars to meet the daily cost of living.

The Pentagon Monday chose General Dynamics Corp.'s YF16 jet as the Air Force's new supersonic air combat fighter, making its production potentially one of the biggest military aircraft programs in history.

Dow Chemical Co., in Midland, Mich., says the supply of antifreeze should be adequate for future winters because market conditions, which made a key ingredient hard to come by this winter have shifted.

An antifreeze shortage last fall more than doubled the 1973 price of antifreeze. Manufacturers blamed the shortage on the Middle East oil embargo.

Antifreeze manufacturers had been predicting a similar shortage for the fall of 1975. A spokesman at Dow, one of the nation's major antifreeze manufactures, said no big increase in production will be needed to meet next winter's demand.

charged Hanoi Monday with grave violations of the Vietnam peace agreement and warned that it "must accept the full consequences of its actions." In a protest note to the guarantors of the Paris agreement the United States accused North Vietnam of illegally sending more than 160,000 troops, 400 vehicles and artillery and anti-aircraft weaponry into the South.

Meanwhile, South Vietnam claimed its warplanes, flying one of their biggest missions of the war on Monday, wrecked a 400-truck North Vietnamese convoy carrying men and supplies for an offensive against the central highlands city of Kontum.

In Cambodia, government troops fought insurgents on the west bank of the Mekong River opposite Neak Luong, a major navl base 35 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. Rebel gunners shelled the town itself, reportedly killing 10 civilians.

The U.S. protest follows expressions of concern by President Ford.

State Department spokesman Robert Anderson said the Ford Administration "obviously intends to abide by the legislation on the books" prohibiting combat activity by U.S. military forces in North Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia.

The protest note was addressed to the Soviet Union, the People's Republic of China, Britain, France, Hungary, Poland, Indonesia, Iran and U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, as guarantors of the 1973 Paris agreement under which U.S. troops were withdrawn from Southeast Asia.

Tensions heightened last week with the fall of the provincial capital of Phouc Binh to North Vietnamese-Viet Cong forces. The note said an escalation of fighting since early December has brought

Tenants take landlords to court in dispute over broken furnace

By FRED NEWTON State News Staff Writer

A landlord - tenant dispute that began more than two years ago over a broken gas furnace will be the focus of a jury trial scheduled to begin this Wednesday. The case began on Oct. 17, 1972 when the gas furnace in the house at 923 Burcham Drive broke. The house has since been torn down. The tenants are seeking restitution from their landlord for the three months when the house they were renting received no heat.

The tenants, all student age. were on a verbal lease with their landlords, Mr. and Mrs. George Ziegler. The furnace, according to Charles Ipcar, a in the civil suit, was supposed to be fixed as soon as some late rents were turned in. "Later, the landlord told us they preferred to tear the place down so it would not be worth it to fix the furnace," Ipcar said. They never did fix it." Mrs. Ziegler at that time claimed that no back rent was paid to her and that "we're trying to close the place down but no one wants to move." In November 1972 the City of East Lansing and the tenants took the case to Circuit Court in Lansing "Judge Donald L. Reisig

One area where costs could be reduced is food purchasing. Cole estimated that money could be saved if centers pooled their energies and obtained their food through bulk purchases instead of independent buying.

Another objective of the agency is to act as an information office providing assistance in locating the qualified workers and services required for children with special needs.

Married students with handicapped children would particularly benefit since the agency could refer them to a day care unit that could meet their children's needs.

Susanne Franzini, director of the Married Students Activities Unit, said the campus day care unit cannot enroll handicapped children because it lacks staff members with the required expertise. Franzini said the agency could locate centers for these children where they would be helped.

Franzini said the agency could also compile a list of volunteers so the unit could find help quickly when needed.

Cole said the $51,990 coordination program would serve the needs of all the children in the county. She said the agency would probably begin operating sometime in March or April when the applications for federal funds for its financing would be processed.

ANTHONY LEWIS

Price of growth too high

When Aristotle Onassis was trying to build an oil port and refinery on the New Hampshire coast last year, much of the local resistance centered on the beautiful little town of Durham. At one point the Onassis agent on the scene, Constantine Gratsos, wrote to a woman in Durham:

"My family background, academic educa tion and personal inclinations would all make me the last person on earth who would like to desecrate a beautiful landscape . . . unfortunately, the evolution of the world . . . will inevitably result in the elimination of all that you and I and many other people cherish. Humanity has reached the point (where) we shall have to choose between existence and beauty . . . "

Gratsos put a familiar argument in particularly chilling form - the argument of necessity. It failed in New Hampshire. Durham and the coast remain as they were. Elsewhere it has worked. Bantry Bay, Ireland was once a wonder of the world. green and lovely, rich with the creatures of the sea. Now, after an "accident" in unloading a supertanker, Bantry Bay reeks of oil and death.

Beauty was a value at risk in Durham. But Gratsos, for all his tone of brutal candor, was not really accurate in stating the issue. As Bantry Bay shows, and as Singapore now knows, those who succumb to the argument of necessity may lose more than beauty and tranquility; they may lose sustaining elements of life.

In a thousand ways, the industrialized world now faces basic decisions about its future course of development. And the crucial choice is not between existence and beauty. It is between two views of existence: the short term and the long term.

The conflict over strip mining of coal is a current example. The electric power companies want to keep their costs down. They have fought frantically against federal regulations that would make them install strip mining bill that would have made "scrubbers" to clean the smoke of highsulphur coal. Instead they want to strip the soil of Wyoming and Montana to get at the low-sulphur coal underneath. They persuaded President Ford to veto a modest them repair the surface afterward.

It is perfectly logical for a power company to want to maximize its short-term profits and socially appealing to keep the price of power down. But there is a heavy long-term cost, and it is not only the beauty lost to the great plains of the West. Land needed to feed a hungry world would be turned to waste.

One of the great difficulties in our society today is that we do not have adequate mechanisms for weighing long-term interests against the immediate. Our system grew on the principle of the market, the belief that millions of individual decisions produce the greatest benefit for the whole. The market ideal has given us wealth and much freedom. But its emphasis is necessarily on immediate gain. How can a power company be expected to weigh its desire for cheap coal today against the country's need for grain 20 or 50 years from now? There was a gothic example the day. A congressional committee scientific testimony that the gases aerosol cans, flurocarbons, may be ret old

Editorial bruhaha

The real "bizarre bruhaha" related to Jan. 4th's unfortunate basketball incident was the State News editorial response, not the incident itself.

I admit to not knowing exactly what Higher Education has finally come sent Board of Education would issues led to the suspension of 10 of MSU's up with a possible means of continue to direct kindergarten finest athletes, but whatever would prompt them to such action before one of their biggest games could not have been as trivial as you made it seem.

You stated that the incident "threatened the credibility of the entire Spartan sports program." I think that whatever issues resulted in the incident threatened and perhaps still threaten the credibility of Spartan sports, not the incident itself.

Furthermore, if problems do exist in our Athletic Dept., I certainly do not wish to see them "hastily forgotten." I hope, however, that the problems - whatever they were - that prompted the team to take the action they took will be solved to the best interest of everyone involved. And to Bob Murphy, who stated in his Jan. 9 letter that there are good players on this campus who would give an arm and a leg to play varsity basketball no matter what the conditions, if there are players good enough to play without an arm and a leg, I frankly don't see why they'd settle for college ball. I really don't think there is anybody so hung up on playing varsity basketball that they'd play no matter what the conditions. Last of all, I don't think the team is a maligned group of players at all. Nor do I feel that Lindsay Hairston, or anybody else involved for that matter, owes the student body a public apology.

Dear Joe Raccoon:

Since you can't write I will help you let the readers know of the responses received regarding the letter in Thursday's State News on the death of your sister Josie. A few trappers called and thought you had resorted to emotionalism. Since you are an animal, I presume this is bad. But I think they just don't want to hear about your pain, maybe it hurts their conscience. They also keep referring to the overpopulation of animals without having traps to control the situation. We won't dwell on that because I must tell you about the biggest percentage of my telephone calls.

Most of my conversations were with people like myself who are interested in the welfare of the animals. They know when they quit paying the trapper for your beautiful skins and take the bounty off the animals, all those people who are so interested in controlling your population will discontinue trapping. In this so-called sophisticated culture of ours some intelligent individual will develop a method far removed from the present medievalism.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1975, I affirm that I will never seek benefits from Social Security. In addition, I will make no further contributions to Social Security. To date, I have received no benefits. All of my Social Security contributions made up to the end of 1974 shall be regarded by me as an outright, total loss.

To my employers, this letter serves notice to stop withholding Social Security from my paychecks and to consider all of my compensation as exempt wages when calculating the "employer's share" of Social Security payments.

Anyone who has a consistent moral philosophy (that is opposed to coercive social insurance programs) has the constitutional and legal right to declare a refusal to accept Social Security benefits and to cease making contributions to Social Security.

•Not only do I think this step is a logical extension of recognized rights, but apparently so does the IRS. The IRS has consented to exempt conscientious objectors

American justice inequitable

WASHINGTON - Herbert Kalmbach. natty in a three-piece suit, told a news conference he had "renewed appreciation and confidence in the essential fairness of America's justice" and even hoped that his "actions have served to strengthen the pillars of justice. Jeb Magruder was welcomed home with yellow ribbons round the old oak tree actually a cherry - in his suburban yard. Neighbors gathered to greet him with a friendly banner.

Mrs. John Dean said it was a great way to start the new year and that her husband had been "sufficiently punished."

How easily is the world turned upside down! With an unexpected stroke of his pen, John Sirica - the old "hanging judge" himself, the scourge of Watergate - turned loose three of the major participants in the biggest political scandal in American history, one being seen by more and more people as having threatened the very foundations of democratic government.

Kalmbach's response was worthy of a Kafka story. He got off with six months, mostly in quarters for government witnesses, and as a result his confidence in the "fairness of American justice" is renewed. Some people spend more time in jail merely awaiting trial on minor larceny charges. Kalmbach, who sold an ambassadorship, fancies that his having pled guilty to a felony and a misdemeanor, as well as testifying against former colleagues, actually "strengthened the pillars of justice." But first, he and the Watergate gang came as close as anyone has to pulling down those

As for Magruder's neighbors, their generosity toward a good family and community man does them credit. Such generosity is virtually nonexistent, however, when the ordinary convict shuffles out of the prison gate in a state suit with a few radicals like Jim Grant and T.J. Reddy get 25 and 20 years in North Carolina on arson charges by witnesses paid thousands of dollars by the federal government? What is it when Martin Sostre spends five of his seven years in four New York prisons in solitary confinement for refusing to knuckle under to prison rites like mail seizures and rectal searches?

It is being suggested, of course, that as in the case of Richard Nixon, who goes free on $55,000 a year, the loss of high office and grudging state dollars in his pocket and no job, little ability to get one and no yellow ribbon round the stunted splinter that may pass for a tree in his ghetto neighborhood.

And if four months of minimum security confinement for John Dean is sufficient punishment for a man prosecutors say was the key man in the prosecution, what is it when a high school dropout gets 15 years in New York for possessing more than an ounce of marijuana? What is it when black political power, as well as public humiliation makes up for soft prison terms (seven months for Magruder). Aside from the fact that anyone who goes to prison, whether for four months at Fort Holabird or 10 years at San Quentin, suffers humiliation and the loss of his job and family associations, the outlook for clever, educated, well-groomed and facile men like these three is quite good in a celebrity conscious and success-oriented society. Yesterday's scandal is tomorrow's lecture tour or best seller; old felonies can found new careers, as witness that busy entrepreneur, Spiro Agnew. It is true enough that all these men ulti-

Watergate case and convict the other culprits; but it also is true that they could have blown the whistle at any time. But never did until faced with the necessity to save their skins as best they could. In the cases of Dean and Kalmbach, bar associations could levy harsher penalties than the law has by barring them from legal practice. But to the millions of low-income, disadvantaged, unskilled and uneducated

Americans, so many of whom have good reason to view the law with fear and distrust, the whole episode is likely to be another demonstration that there is one kind of justice for them, and another for affluent, educated persons with good lawyers and "standing" in their communities. The rest of us, without further recriminations on Dean, Magruder or Kalmbach, might take time to ask ourselves what a serious crime really is. A street mugging is abhorrent, a break-in demands severe punishment; but are betrayals of public trust and subversion of the laws by officials sworn to uphold them really to be considered lesser crimes, on the practical scale of the penalties that result?

minority background, even in fields in which women have distinguished themselves," the task force report said.

"In certain curricular areas, notably the vocational, students are officially excluded or are strongly discouraged from taking some courses on the basis of sex," the report added.

Textbooks minimize the capabilities and achievements of women and girls, the report said, while exaggerating those of males.

"Girls and women are omitted entirely from story after story, especially those with daringly adventuresome themes, in children's readers," the report said. "Two out of seven stories about children center around girls. Women are featured only in one in four fictional stories about adults, and in only one in seven biographies."

Boys do exciting, creative things, while girls do mundane chores like sewing and housecleaning, the report said.

According to the task force, women in textbooks are generally portrayed as mothers, teachers or nurses.

"But even the role of housewife is made dimensionless and unreal," the task force concluded. "Mothers do not paint walls, build bookshelves, refinish furniture, play the piano or engage in independent pursuits as they do in reality."

Stereotyping takes its toll not only on girls, but on young boys by presenting 'exaggerated, super heroic ideas of what is expected of them." "A boy is more often shown rescuing someone from an alligator, a hurricane or a fire than crying, which is a real, human activity necessary for the emotional well being of males," the report said.

Sexual stereotyping is further reinforced in Mighigan schools through separate courses for boys and girls, athletic bias and career counseling that discourages boys and girls from pursuing a job currently dominated by members of the opposite sex, the report continued.

If the report and its recommendations are accepted by the board, all sex bias will be prohibited in Michigan schools.

Specific recommendations include: • Mandatory courses for teachers in anti

Economic uncertainty faces legislature

By JIM KEEGSTRA State News Staff Writer

The hoopla and ballyhoo that began the state's governmental year are over and past, but the deteriorating remains.

The New Year's Day inauguration of state officials, the swearing-in of the new legislature complete with leadership speeches and the governor's annual State of the State message have come and gone, leaving behind a residue of speculation and proposals framed in generalities.

Now, almost 21/2 months after voters lifted sales taxes from food, there is still no consensus on how to make adjustments for the estimated annual $200 million loss in state

The same election swept Democrats to a commanding majority in both houses of the legislature — the first time in a decade - and left Republican Gov. Milliken standing alone in top state government.

Record unemployment and weakened businesses threaten to further cut into sales tax and personal and corporate income tax receipts. Over $78 million has already been hacked from state expenditures for education, construction and executive departments.

Legislators of Milliken's own party join Democrats in promising him an excrutiating examination of next fiscal year's budget. His request for a personal income tax increase to offset the $200 million loss is challenged by Republicans who say the sales tax repeal was a mandate for lowered spending. and by Democrats who want to look at alternatives such as corporate and nuisance taxes and possibly a switch to a graduated personal income tax.

The Republican challenge to Milliken's leadership may seem odd, but it has been said that Democrats are the moderate governor's greatest friends. Also, looking to the 1976 elec-shove the onus of tax increases onto the Democrats, they could regain some seats in the House.

Solutions to the revenue loss and Michigan's economic ills have been discussed ever since the Nov. 5 election, but the speculation cannot end, nor the proposals become specific and receive action, until February.

The legislature is recessed until Jan. 27 to allow recounts of two House elections. Milliken, now taking a week's vacation in the Virgin Islands, is expected to present his recommended budget early next month.

Several major suggestions to keep Michigan from sinking along with the auto industry have surfaced so far, but reaction and criticism remain in general terms until details become available.

Development of plans to solve the state's immediate problems might be done by a council of economic advisors drawn from among decision makers in business, labor, government and academia as proposed by Democratic legislative leaders Sen. William Fitzgerald

Nursing, said human sexuality is discussed as supplementary information when it relates to the area being studied. Students can take courses in other departments at the University, Simon said, if they want to study human sexuality.

Donald Grummon, professor of psychology, said doctors and nurses need to be more knowledgeable about human sexuality.

"General practitioners and gynecologists are the first persons that people confront with sexual problems," Grummon said. "Masters and Johnson claim that one half of the marriages in the U.S. have to deal with some type of sexual problem."

Doctors must be able to give advice, reassurance and in formation that can be helpful in referring patients to the proper people, Grummon said.

Some patients are put off by the doctors who do not have the necessary knowledge or are up - tight about discussing human sexuality," he said.

Grummon said one study done in the 1960s showed that senior medical students had collected a great deal of misinformation about sexuality. In another study done within the last three years it was found that textbooks for gynecology used in the 1950s contained misinformation about female sexuality. Grummon said that studies also showed that some of the current textbooks are inaccurate, but that the amount of misinformation had been reduced over the last 20 years. "The situation is changing quite rapidly," he said. Grummon teaches the popular Psychology 290 course on human sexuality that has been taught in the past by Andrew Barclay. Barclay is currently on sabbatical.

This show's beauty and charm lie not only in its blackness, but in its universal message. As the family struggles for acceptance and the father sacrifices his dreams for the needs of his family, one recognizes the struggles of every man.

has given him two things - a nervous condition and a well worn suit. Paul Van Antwerp gives a convincing and talented portrayal of the Job - like drunk. Skeptical and perceptive, he is the alcohol soaked observer. Brian Carpenter gives a rather uneven portrayal of this delicate role. Tom is very much the shadowy observer, whose observations are tinged with cynical and humorous outbursts. Unfortunately, Carpenter never reaches an equilibrium; he is either too silent (as in the first act) or too audible. Tighter direction might have sharpened Carpenter's effect on the action. One of his main problems is his over concern with the accuracy of playing a drunk.

Ed Laughlin is the messianic coach - narrowminded, provincial and unintelligent. His character is a shining study of the prejudiced elder. Unfortunately, his lines smack too much of television's Archie Bunker rather than the coach living in the moral decay of present day society. Indeed, Laughlin seems to be aware of this fact and his performance is characterized by a struggle for the right emphasis - Archie Bunker on one hand and disillusioned leader on the other.

The appeal and strength of the production is the actors' treatment of an overblown script. The weakness of Jason Miller's dialogue lies in its blatancy. Nothing is left to the viewers imagination - everything is spelled out. Sex, alcoholism, lack of self - respect, Tom Daley is the town tension, old age and homosexuality are all there. It is to Robert Klassen's credit that he elicits dramatic distinction over the emotional belaborment of Miller's script. This theatrical triumph is well worth the price of admission. "That Championship Season" will be performed at 8:15 tonight through Saturday. Tickets are available at the Fairchild box office. Admission is $1.50.

Man's 'Slow Motion' radiates vitality

By DAVE DIMARTINO State News Reviewer

The Welsh rock scene is alive and living in the form of Man, the island's most interesting and reputable rock and roll band.

With the release of "Slow motion." the group's fifth American album, Man has finally stabilized as a tight, four-piece unit that no longer needs a bimonthly personnel change to ensure peak creativity. The new Man band, if not the most adventurous, is certainly the tightest ensemble working under the "Man" monicker since the group's inception in 1968.

Surprisingly, American rock culture has played a dominant role in Man's musical orientation. The band claims that its musical heritage lies in those territories explored by Quicksilver during their "Happy Trails" period. Long, acid-inspired instrumentals not totally dissimilar to the "Who Do You Love" style have indeed surfaced with regularity on most of Man's recorded work. Not so, however, with "Slow Motion."

The reason for the group's sudden stylistic change is apparent when the band and its ever - changing lineup is looked at in perspective.

Man's first album, "Revelation," was released in this country by Philips records in the late '60s. Due to the existence of a talentless American group that had rights to the group name, Philips unimaginatively altered the group's name to "Manpower." The disc is, incidentally, currently thriving in neighborhood bargain bins, selling at a maximum of 47

Steeler dynasty ahead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) -The Pittsburgh Steelers are on top of the pro football world, and by all indications they could be there for quite a while.

The Steelers, making their first championship game appearance in their 42 - year history, wrapped up the National Football League title Sunday with a 16 - 6 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in Super Bowl IX.

The 10 - point margin of victory failed to demonstrate the Steelers' utter domination of the Vikings, who became the first team ever to lose three Super Bowls.

And what should be worrying NFL opponents even more is the fact that the Steelers are one of the youngest teams in the league.

the dominant running back in pro football. Terry Bradshaw, who has battled five years of criticism since his selection as the No. 1 draft pick from Louisiana Tech, is only 26, an age when many quarterbacks are only just beginning to find themselves. The Steelers also own four of the speediest wide receivers in the league. Lynn Swann and John Stallworth are rookies, while veterans Frank Lewis and Ron Shankland are 27.

Coach Chuck Noll, who rebuilt the Steelers from a 1 - 13 travesty in his rookie year of 1969 to the World Champions, was wary of predicting what many around the league are forecasting: A new dominant team in the mold of the Miami

That's the way coach George Szypula described the performances of his MSU men's gymnastics team following the Eastern Division Big Ten Invitational last weekend in Ann Arbor.

But then there were the dark moments. MSU was not to be seen when the awards were handed

"Overall, we did better in the compulsories than we've ever done in a long time but we just didn't put it together in the finals," Szypula said. "But I feel we're better off than last year not just in our ability but in the team's attitude. They all seem to have an optimistic spirit," he added. As expected, the Spartans appeared especially strong in floor exercise. Captain Rich Stout and freshman Jay Shore scored 8.05 and 8.35 in finals competition. Mike Simon, John Short, Craig

MacLean, Jeff Rudolph and Al Burchi also looked solid in their optional routines. MSU's Rudolph and Steve Murdock qualified for the finals on the pommel horse but threw and optionals competition.

Bob Holland scored an 8.15 as the lone Spartan representative in the still ring finals. The Spartans turned in a handsome showing in the vaulting event. Rudolph, MacLean and Short vaulted their way to scores of 8.3, 8.6 and 8.75 in the optionals competition and junior Jim Tuerk narrowly missed finishing third. "I've never gotten nervous during a gymnastics meet so I can't blame that for not doing as well as I could have done," Tuerk said. "I just chickened out on my second vault and missed it." Nelson Gaines represented MSU in the finals on the parallel bars but again it was in the optionals competition, not the finals, where the more successful parallel bar routines were to be found. Gaines scored a 7.85 and Craig MacLean a 7.2, while all - arounder Rudolph showed signs of becoming a welcome addition to the parallel bar

Glenn Hime and Shepherd on high bar were the last MSU gymnasts to perform in the finals, landing 8.3 and 8.0 scores.

Freshman Rudolph finished fourth among the all - arounders who competed in the compulsory and optionals competition "For a freshman, Jeff's fourth - place finish was very good," praised Szypula. "He really held together nicely during the meet." The invitational was clearly dominated by niversity of Michigan's gymnasts, who received 11 of 18 place finishes in finals competition and

Prof seeks energy from spinach powe

By SUE McMILLIN State News Staff Writer

Popeye has been pushing spinach as an energy-builder for a long time, but this green, leafy vegetable may someday become more than an energy boost for kids. It may provide a universal energy

H. T. Tien, professor of biophysics, has begun research to find a practical way of using the electricity he has generated from an artificial membrane. The membrane contains chlorophyll extracted

When this membrane is illuminated with sunlight it produces electricity in a process similar to the photosynthesis that takes place in green plants. If practical application for this process is found, it could be the first source of solar energy that could be cheaply and efficiently produced. The process is fairly cheap because of the inexpensive materials used.

Silicon solar cell

Presently there is only one practical device that utilizes solar energy. The silicon solar cell is a thin film made of immoveable parts. When the film is illuminated by sunlight it produces electricity.

But this process is very expensive because of the materials involved, Tien said. "Use of this is limited to such places as spacecraft," he said.

"Places where money is no object. Tien developed the artificial membrane in 1962. The basic structure of the membrane is made of fatty materials and is about one-millionth of an inch thick.

Currently, Tien's membrane produces 25 micro amps of electricity per square centimeter of membrane. Tien estimates that it would take .06 square miles, or an area of about the size of 25 football fields, of membrane to produce one kilowatt of electri-

In 1968 Tien's first attempts to create electricity yielded about one-thousandth of a volt of electricity. An average flashlight battery is 1.5 volts.

Photosynthesis

For the last 10 years Tien's research has been aimed at understanding photosynthesis. Now he will be working to develop the practical uses of this process.

"Solar energy, almost from every point of view, would be the most worthwhile," he said. "Utilized in this form solar energy is pollution free."

The National Science Foundation and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), predicted in 1973 that by the year 2020 solar energy would provide 20 per cent of the world's Best alternative

Tien feels that solar energy is the best alternative to our quickly depleting supply of fossil fuels.

If Tien's device can be developed to produce large amounts of electricity, a storage battery will have to work in conjunction with it. Electricity could be generated during periods of sunlight and Tien is now working with James Mountz, special graduate research assistant in physics, on the developmental research. Mountz's work is presently being funded by a short-term grant from the College of Natural Science. They hope to receive a grant from the federal government to continue their work.

County Dems approve resolution boosting Student Workers Union

By ROSANNE LESS State News Staff Writer

The organizing efforts of the Student Workers Union have gotten a boost from the Ingham County Democratic party.

The Democratic organization adopted a resolution Saturday giving support to the student labor group. Also approved was a resolution designed to make MSU adopt a policy of only purchasing United Farm Workers MSU presently buys all union lettuce and grapes. However, about 90 per cent of these are Teamsters Union products.

Allan Fox, vice chairperson of the Ingham County Democratic party and also director of ASMSU's Legislative Relations Dept. said that adoption of an exclusive purchasing policy by MSU would be an actual boy-number of "misdemeanors."

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Central Intelligence Agency

(CIA) Director James R. Schlesinger said Monday that a review of agency activities shortly after he took over uncovered a small

Schlesinger, now secretary of defense, was interviewed by a blue - ribbon panel appointed by President Ford to investigate

In its first session, the eight - man panel heard in closed session

Colby, who was expected to tell the panel what he learned from his own investigation of the allegations, entered the meeting shortly after the chairman, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, said, "this commission has but one purpose, we're going to get to Schlesinger, who headed the spy agency for six months in 1973,

Schlesinger became head of the CIA while the agency was under fire for its role in the Watergate scandal, and he said, "there were a number of issues that came about as a result of the review of intelligence activities at the agency which was precipitated by the Watergate episode . . . In the course of that review certain things covered the entire history of the agency, a period of some 20 years, and "the number of misdemeanors in that period was, I think, cott of the Teamsters Union. The Teamsters represents growers rights in the continuing battle of UFW representation. The UFW, he said, represents the workers.

The resolution supporting the student workers' organizing drive will give the student workers' organizing committee access to the Democratic party's experienced canvassers, said Tim Cain, ASMSU president, chairperson of the county Democratic Resolutions Committee and a long time student labor spokes-

Cain said that preliminary union work is sometimes a problem, and people are needed to go door to door. Interested people in the party and student workers can now be recruited.

"This doesn't mean that the organizing efforts of the Student Workers Union is a Democratic affair." he cautioned.

The Democratic party membership evidently thought that it was in the general student interest to have these motions approved at the county level, Cain said.

He added that the vote on the two motions was one of "overwhelming support" and that it means that the Democratic party in Ingham County thinks that the Student Workers Union and an exclusive purchasing policy are "good ideas." The resolutions were adopted during the county convention that is held in January of every odd-numbered year. The delegates who will attend the state Democratic convention in Detroit on Jan. 25 and 26 will present these motions to the state party for possible statewide approval and support.

The Ingham County Democrats have about 400 to 500 precinct delegates. About 30 per cent of these delegates are MSU students.

"There was not a whole lot of excitement about the vote." Fox said. "It was a routine vote. The Student Workers resolution is basically to encourage the Democratic party to become involved in the union Fox said that the resolution favoring adoption of a MSU purchasing policy of lettuce and grapes that bear only the black Aztec eagle label of the UFW is a statement of conscience." Democrats at both the local and state level have long supported the UFW boy-

Fox said that an adoption of the UFW policy at the state convention would mean that other universities that have a majority of Democrats on their governing bodies would also be requested in the future to adopt an exclusive purchasing policy.
