PHNOM PENH, Cambodia, (AP) -Communist - led insurgents fired Chinesemade rockets into two crowded sections of Phnom Penh and its nearby airfield Monday, killing at least 19 persons and wounding about 20.

It was the heaviest toll of casualties in the Khmer Rouge's two-month shelling campaign against the isolated Cambodian capital. The city is cut off from the outside world by road and river, surviving on a U.S. financed airlift of ammunition, fuel and

A single rocket struck outside the Monorom Hotel shortly before dusk. Witnesses said at least 11 persons were killed and more than a dozen wounded. Most of the casualties were hotel employes, pedicab drivers and passers-by.

The hotel, which houses the news teams of two American television networks, had most of its windows blown in by the blast, the second time in the past week a rocket round has struck near the building.

Newsmen of the American Broadcasting Co. (ABC) and the National Broadcasting Co. (NBC) had returned to the hotel only minutes earlier after covering another blast, which took no casualties. One of the crew members, Jean-Claude Malet, suffered a slight arm wound.

A motorcycle was burning outside the hotel, with its rider lying dead beneath it, his legs shredded by the blast, Reynolds said. A number of the lightly wounded ran into the hotel lobby where employes and newsmen tried to help them.

None of the aircraft flying into the Pochentong with supplies was hit by the rockets. Diplomatic sources revealed that a record number of flights was made Sunday, with 30 flights by C130 U.S. Air Force cargo planes on lease to a civilian company and 12 DC8 cargo jets.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sentiment for some sort of continued U.S. aid to Cambodia emerged Monday among members of the congressional fact-finding mission just back from Indochina - but they were split on whether it should include ammunition.

"It's just a question of how do we get the fewest Cambodians killed and get out of there as quickly as we can," said Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey, R-Calif.

McCloskey said there would be a bloodbath in Phnom Penh if U.S. ammunition were cut off now, with "hundreds of thousands of people going to be killed."

"I'm not prepared to just abandon that continue only until the rainy season begins about June 1 and that America should then pull out all aid and personnel.

Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., agreed the United States should send in food and medicine for the refugees she said are starving inside Phnom Penh - but should cut off ammunition for the fighting.

Rep. Abzug said she believes that the only reprisals if the insurgents overrun Phnom Penh will be against officials of the Lon Nol government, and said she favors airlifting them out. She said the real problem is the refugees who, she said, number about half a million.

"Those people are overrun right now," she said. "Thousands and thousands are dying. I can't think of anything that could be worse as an aftermath.'

Rep. John J. Flynt, D-Ga., leader of the

"I doubt if we will have unanimity," Flynt said, "but we want to see how close we can come to unanimity.

At the White House, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the congressmen plan to meet with President Ford later in the week on their findings.

McCloskey said the army and insurgents are taking no prisoners in the fighting on the perimeter around Phnom Penh and that it is clear to him that there will be wholesale killing of civilians if the insurgents overrun the city.

Board to get petitions for UFW support

The MSU Student Boycott Committee will present over 5,000 student signatures to the MSU Board of Trustees on Thursday, March 20, supporting a Universitywide boycott of non-United Farm Workers (UFW) lettuce, grapes and Gallo wine.

The trustee's hearing, which falls during spring break, will be held at 3 p.m. in the Kellogg Center auditorium.

The MSU boycott is part of a nationwide cooperative to force California lettuce growers to hold supervised elections in fields. The Teamsters and UFW are currently involved in a dispute over who should represent the farm workers.

MSU buys only union lettuce but does not make a distinction between Teamsters and UFW produce.

At the board meeting on Feb. 21, President Wharton announced the date of the board's hearing and noted that the board will decide on the controversy in the near future. Since then, the boycott committee has held petition drives in residence halls.

"We want to inform the board of farm workers' rights and the lettuce growers' refusal to recognize these rights." Ed Youman, committee representative said.

Trustee Don Stevens, D-Bloomfield Hills, said the hearing will be a fact-gathering dis-"The hearing will be an exchange of views ASMSU coordinates most of its services through eight cabinets: Great Issues, Labor Relations, Legal Aid, Legislative Relations, Office of Black Affairs, Pop Entertainment, Travel and Recovery Resources.

The president appoints a director for each cabinet after reviewing candidates who have applied for the post.

The question of who controls the cabinets, the directors, the board president or the board, has been a subject of debate this

Cain and the board did accomplish several things this year, including: helping to prevent the deportation of about 20 foreign students over winter break; support of the Student Workers Union; support of a boycott of non-United Farm Workers lettuce, grapes and Gallo wines on campus, and a march for jobs in Lansing.

Cain also said he was instrumental in getting the University to waive the on-campus living requirement for sophomores and approve an eight per cent increase in student worker's wages, instead of a flat 15 cents raise across the board, earning the student worker anywhere from 1.6 cents to 2.7 cents more per hour.

University officials said that they felt the change in the living requirement was promoted more by the overcrowding of

But Cain and the board have not been able to accomplish as much as they had hoped including: revamping of the various campus judicial systems, appointments to all the All-University committees, strong cabinets and changing the internal workings of the business office.

"When they did pass support for something like the farm workers, they did so only after a long, hard fight," said Marcia Garrison, College of Arts and Letters representative. "The action came very late and was only lip service - no aid as far as money was concerned, no call to action."

Garrison is also running for ASMSU president this year.

A conflict between the board and Cain developed during fall term. Though board members talked about impeaching Cain several times, they only started the formal procedures once.

On November 25, the board listed four reasons why they felt Cain should be impeached, but most members agreed that Cain's involvement with the Student Workers Union (SWU) was the underlying reason for impeachment action.

The motion for Cain's recall was sparked by his decision to open the Union doors Nov. 11 for students waiting in the rain and cold for tickets to a Pop Entertainment concert. Earlier the same night, the board had decided that only the Pop Entertainment director could open the Union doors.

The four reasons given were: • Failure to maintain a working rapport with the business office, including the office manager and comptroller.

• Failure to maintain a working rapport with the ASMSU board. Members said there was little or no communication between Cain and themselves. They have accused him of manipulating parliamentary

• Failure to organize a productive cabinet program. The board was angry that some of the ASMSU cabinets still had interim cabinet directors six months after Cain's

Armed Indians surrender

Armed Indians who occupied an electronics plant on the Shiprock, N.M., Navajo reservation community for one week were leaving the building Monday and surrendering their arms to police roadblocks, tribal police said.

Earlier Monday, Navajo nation leaders in Window Rock, Ariz., the Navajo capital, said they had worked out a settlement that could end the week-long takeover of the Shiprock plant.

Railroad union defers wages

Union and management representatives of the Rock Island Line agreed Monday in Chicago to a 10 per cent deferred payment of salaries and wages in an attempt to keep the railroad in operation.

The plan amounts to an interest free loan that could bring the financially strapped carrier about $1.5 million a month, President John W. Ingram said.

The 10 per cent would be withheld from the paychecks of all 10,000 union member employes who agree. The plan was tdrawn up by Ingram and officials of the 17 unions who represent employes of the railroad.

Anarchists seek asylum

A West German jetliner landed in the South Yemen capital of Aden on Monday night seeking asylum for five anarchists freed in a bid to save the life of Peter Lorenz, Berlin's kidnapped, Christian Democratic leader, the German airline Lufthansa said.

A spokesman for the airline said, however, it was not immediately clear whether the anarchists wished to remain in South Yemen, a leftist state on the southern part of the Arabian peninsula, or whether the plane was only granted permission for a refueling stop.

German police said they had no word on the fate of Lorenz, 52, who was last reported held in a West Berlin hideout.

The jet took off from Frankfurt airport Monday morning with the three male and two female anarchists, a four-man crew and 60-year-old Lutheran Pastor Heinrich Albertz aboard as a guarantee of the anarchists' safety.

Russian oil production rises

Russia, the world's largest oil producer, should have an even larger output this year, the Oil and Gas Journal forecast Monday

The trade magazine reported final official figures showed the Soviets produced 9,176,000 barrels of crude oil a day in 1974, an increase of 590,000 barrels daily over 1973.

Russian production is expected to be up another 612,000 barrels per day this year, the magazine said, with most of the increase coming from western Siberian fields.

"This year's output should be more than enough to meet the nation's domestic needs and allow higher oil exports, most of which probably will go to Communist-bloc countries," the Journal said.

Court approves rape victim IDs

By WIRE SERVICES

WASHINGTON - Newspapers and broadcasting stations have a constitutionally protected right to identify rape victims who are named in court or in public records, the Supreme Court ruled

The court struck down by an 8 to 1 vote a Georgia law which made it a misdemeanor to publicize the identity of women who had been raped. Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented on procedural

In other actions, the court:

•Ruled eight to one that federal prosecutors may appeal a trial judge's order dismissing criminal charges when the dismissal takes place before an actual trial.

•Upheld the constitutionality of a New Hampshire law requiring a person to have lived in the state seven years before running for

•Declined to hear an appeal from a decision denying damages for deaths and injuries suffered by students during a 1970 disturbance at Jackson State College in Mississippi.

•Put off until its 1975-76 term government appeals from lower court decisions which struck down a ban on hiring alien residents for government jobs and restrictions on the eligibility of such aliens for

The rape victim case arose after WSB-TV in Atlanta, Ga., broadcast the name of a 17-year-old rape murder victim in a story about court proceedings for six high school boys charged with the crime. The station was not prosecuted for violating the state law but the girl's father, Martin Cohn, used it as the basis for a damage suit charging the family's right to privacy had been violated.

It was the first time the court had considered a head-on confrontation between the right to privacy and the right of the news media to report information accurately. In earlier cases, the plaintiffs contended the reports were incorrect.

The court declined, however, to answer the question of whether right of privacy suits may ever be permitted on the basis of truthful

In the Jackson State case, the justices refused, without comment, to consider reinstating a claim for damage payments for deaths and injuries of youths during a shootout there in 1970.

The shooting, resulting in the death of two youths, one of them a Jackson State student, and the wounding of 12 other students, came after a large contingent of city and state police went to the campus to quell a student riot.

In a lawsuit filed by families of the two dead youths and by three of the wounded students, a jury concluded that no single officer could be blamed for the deaths and injuries, and federal courts refused to order damages.

A special federal grand jury investigated the shootings, but decided against issuing indictments. In another civil rights case, the court turned down a request by the Justice Dept. for an order requiring three school districts in St. Louis County, Mo. to go ahead with preliminary steps toward merging into one district as a means of ending heavy racial segregation in one of the districts.

Commissions lack student members

State News Staff Writer

East Lansing city officials say there is no effort to keep students off the city's commissions, but the fact remains that there are very few students on Approximately 65 per cent of the city's registered voters are MSU students, but voting is about the only East Lansing political participation students get involved in.

East Lansing uses a system of appointed committees and commissions to study problems and advise the city council on what action should be taken.

Seven of these advisory groups - the Planning, Housing, Human Relations, Traffic and Cable Communications commissions and the Mass Transit Committee and Zoning Board of Appeals - deal with matters which may affect students.

Student interest in city commissions has not been overwhelming, but approximately 24 per cent of the applicants to these commissions in 1974 were students while only 9 per cent of the commission members are students.

Of the 53 members on these commissions only five are students. Three of these are MSU graduate students, one is an undergraduate and one is a high school student.

Commission members are appointed by city council, but interested citizens must fill out an application at City Hall indicating the commission on which they want to serve.

Mayor Wilbur Brookover said that any students interested in serving on a commission should fill out an application and it would be considered when there was an opening.

"There is no anti-student policy," Brookover said. "We've tried to keep students on the

Charles Massoglia, one of the students not reappointed, said, "They can't say they don't reappoint people just to make room for other citizens, because they reappointed so many commissioners this time."

Councilwoman Mary Sharp said there might be a shortage of students on some of the commissions, particularly the Housing Commission, but that large numbers of students have not been applying.

"I would like to see more students apply for the commissions," Sharp said.

In 1974, a total of 73 people applied to the seven commissions mentioned above. Eighteen of the applicants, or 24 per cent, were students.

Councilman John Polomsky said most students do not want to devote the time necessary to be on a commission and many students are not around during the summer to attend commission meetings.

The majority of the commission appointments are made in June, when the terms expire.

Polomsky said he tries to encourage students who are interested in serving on a commission and recommended that they fill out an application at City Hall.

Elinor Holbrook, member of the Planning Commission who intends to leave the commission. said she would like to see the commissions be more representative of the community in regards to minorities, women and students.

EDITORIALS ASMSU needs Raymond

ASMSU needs a strong, effective leader to salvage student government from its present state of chaotic impotence. J. Brian Raymond is the candidate for president who would best meet this challenge.

ASMSU needs a president who would focus his or her attention on those problems which most directly affect students at MSU. The University is not isolated in an "ivory tower" and cannot ignore the real world, but problems within the University have a much greater effect on the well-being of students than problems outside.

Raymond would devote ASMSU's time and money to national issues such as racism in Boston only after sufficient energy is devoted to students' more immediate concerns. First on his list of priorities is improvement of student housing, including permanent elimination of the sophomore residency requirement and revision of the role of RAs.

ASMSU also needs a president who can deal effectively with University administrators in the interests of the student body. After a period of confrontation and antagonism between ASMSU and the administration, the need for open channels of communication has become obvious. Confrontation will at times be inevitable and necessary, but it is useful only when backed by massive student support. Recent experience has shown that such mass backing no longer materializes on a regular basis as it did during the Vietnam

istrators through his activities in the Academic Council. Despite his strong opposition to many administration policies and actions, he has maintained open channels of communication based upon mutual respect.

Raymond has a three-year record of hard work and effectiveness in student government. As a leader in the Academic Council and Elected Student Council, he has been the dynamo behind the campaign to allow student access to SIRS forms. Stymied by an obstinate Academic Senate, he has worked on alternatives to SIRS while continuing his efforts to gain full access to the faculty evaluations. He also originated the proposal for a Student Academic Governance Assn. (SAGA), which would consolidate academic government, and has worked to make the Academic Council a more effective, issue-oriented organizaendorses the recent rise of student interest in ASMSU, but we cannot endorse Tim Cain for re-election as president.

We endorse Cain's energy and enthusiasm in office, but we cannot endorse his activities.

We cannot endorse his flagrant manipulation of parliamentary procedure for his own purposes.

We cannot endorse the total lack of leadership ability which he has displayed in presiding over the ASMSU board.

We cannot endorse the petty bickering and personality clashes which dominated board meetings under his gavel, largely due to his failure to communicate with the board members.

We cannot endorse the ridiculously miniscule list of minor accomplishments Cain cites in his campaign literature - "We have begun the Student Workers Union (SWU), stopped the racist deportations of foreign students, concert tickets inside - out of the giants.

SUE WILLOUGHBY

Empty prisons for Mitchell

John D. Ehrlichman has gallantly offered his services as legal adviser to the New Mexican Pueblo Indians as an alternative to serving time in prison for his 30 month to eight-year sentence of conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

Judge Sirica turned down Ehrlichman's request, and to add insult to injury, so did the Pueblo Indians.

But I think Ehrlichman has an excellent idea. Just think of the legal precedents such a decision would have set. This variation of Ford's amnesty program could have farreaching implications in the sentencing and parole of prisoners.

For example, take the two-time loser serving five to 10 years for armed robbery. That person could be rehabilitated by promising to serve his or her sentence as an economic adviser to some worthwhile group in need of directions, like the Ladies Alternate Wednesday Afternoon and Thursday Evening Sewing Circle, Book Review and Legion of Decency of Oconomiwoc, Wis. Think of the contributions to society such an individual could make.

Certainly an inmate serving four to six years for assault with a deadly weapon and cruelty to animals could find a little niche in life to call his or her own. Perhaps teaching Transcendental Meditation to the Eskimos in the Yukon, or even leading a selfawareness sensitivity group. Surely he could somehow contribute to the well-being of others.

Consider the plight of the criminally insane. Why condemn a man to life in an institution, when certainly there are numerous little projects or tasks hercould perform for society to make his days worthwhile. Filing and cross-indexing Marvel comic books from issue one to the present would keep this man busy the rest of his life. Perhaps he could even find the true meaning of life through the adventures of Flash Gordon. Spiderman and the Green Hornet, all while providing a desperately needed service to the community.

In addition to improving society and the situation of prisoners, this program can also provide another service to the community by clearing all these men out of our already seriously overcrowded jails. Such actions would leave plenty of room in San Quentin for real offenders - the so-called "white collar" criminals and, more specifically, the Watergate Four.

Watergate ex-con John Dean has predicted that the life of former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell could be endangered by the wrath of other prisoners if he ever enters jail. Removing all of these offenders and placing them in meaningful and worthwhile ositions in the community will make prison life safe for Mitchell.

After a year or so - who knows? With time off for good behavior, I'm certain the courts could even find an appropriate spot for someone like Mitchell. Maybe a position on some committee like the Pittsburgh Pigeon Population Control Authority. If he plays his cards right, he could even end up as executive vice president in charge of birth control and parent planning. After all, isn't America the land of opportunity? As for the prison buildings themselves, I'm sure they could find a useful purpose for these attractive and versatile buildings. With success, the amnesty program could totally evacuate the buildings within a few years, leaving them available for any interested group.

For the past four years I have been active in the struggle for Jewish rights. This is my final statement at MSU:

I wonder who died in Europe, years before I was born a Jew in America. To kill 6 million Jews from 1939 to 1945, the Germans had to be killing two people a minute, night and day, seven days a week, for six bloody years. History has shown that mankind who can be supremely cruel, is cruelest against the minority. The blacks and Puerto Ricans became minorities when they immigrated to these shores, having left a majority status in their homelands. Only the Jew has been a perpetual minority.

Arafat has called for the establishment of a secular democratic state of Palestine, yet in such a state whom would guard the right of the minority, the Jew? Milton Friedman, a noted economist, states that a government which must legislate and protect the rights of the minority, also has the power to curtail those same rights, and even eliminate them. The same man who has engineered the murder and rape of Jewish children and their mothers, the torturing of soldiers (Their throats slit, and their hands bound by their own prayer shawls and tefilin), now promises the Jew his rights if he will only lay down his arms and join a state promised by a people who have never believed in secular government or democracy.

According to the Bible which all Christians, as well as Jews believe, God told Abraham, "And I will give thee and thy seed after thee all the land of Canaan for an Workers Union at the exclusion of everlasting heritage." Yet despite this biblical claim, Christian leaders fail to emphatically support the state of Israel and in some cases, run arms to Arab terrorists hidden under their holy garments.

existed (check your history books.)

The rising black support for Arabs disturbs me, due to the continuing Arab slave trade. It is a historical fact that for centuries it was Arabs who rounded up the African Blacks and sold them all over the world. Blacks should rise up due to what is happening to their people in the Sudan, something which must be properly called

The world that today would let Israel die is really a world that has shown over the ages no real desire for justice, no compassion for the individual and no regard for the minority. The Jews who spoke up for justice and human equality, the Einsteins, Marx, Trotsky and Martin Buber, were swallowed up in the self seeking bloodshed to follow their brave words. A world that would turn on the remnants of a whole history of holocausts is a world that would turn on other minorities, the blacks, the Catholics, on individual countries and even on the Arabs themselves. Like wolves ravenous with hunger, a world without morals, in the midst of economic pressures, would lust after its own flesh.

Mr. Schmidt effectively outtalked, outacted and outmaneuvered all opposition and resistance to what he expressed as "a vehicle" that had provisions for all the issues that were being raised because of its levity of interpretation. For an organization comprised mainly of women, many of which have family responsibilities, it was totally impossible to even attend a 5:15 p.m. meeting much less sit through 41/2 hours of debate. Thus by the time the voting came more than half had left, leaving not only a scant number of exhausted people but also a higher percentage of men. So just 22 people voted and the

However, in order to continue in the spirit of "good" labor relations Mr. Schmidt and the MSUEA president, John Hawkins, allowed a straw vote to be taken on the proposed articles to be amended. Disaster fills Tidal Basin

By now everyone must know about the Bermuda Triangle, a vast body of water extending from Bermuda in the north to southern Florida and then east to a point in the Bahamas past Puerto Rico.

Charles Berlitz, who has written a best-seller about it, claims 100 ships and planes have vanished in the area without a trace, and more than 1,000 lives have been lost since 1945.

There are many theories concerning the mystery. Some people believe that UFOs are responsible. Others feel the disasters may have been tied in with the lost colony of Atlantis. In any case, the Bermuda Triangle has caused quite a stir. What has not been published is that there is a similar phenomenon right here in Washington, D.C. It is called the Washington Triangle, and it also has been a great source of mystery and unexplained disap-The triangle area is located between the White House, the Capitol and the Jefferson Memorial. Most of the accidents have taken place in the Tidal Basin, a rough, treacherous sea, 5 feet deep, which twists and turns as it empties into the Potomac River.

Jonathan Stone, who discovered the Washington Triangle, said, "The triangle is we've lost 3,400 trial balloons, 200 congressional reforms, 453 executive mandates, 230 tax cuts and one ship of state. They seem to have disappeared without a trace."

"But there must be some explanation," I

"What do you think happened to the crew?" I asked Stone.

"They lost their moral compass. Something happens to people's sense of direction when they enter the triangle. The best political navigators forget which end is up and which end is down."

"What other disasters have taken place in

"One day a Judge Carswell sailed out of the White House toward the Capitol to be confirmed as Supreme Court justice. Then a mysterious storm came up and Carswell disappeared, never to be heard from again," Stone said.

"That's terrible," I said.

"Do you suppose there is some supernatural power at work in the triangle that is responsible for so many disasters?" I asked.

"I'm sure of it," Stone said. "There is one theory that sophisticated beings from another planet live on the bottom of the basin and magnetically attract all the traffic between the White House and The Hill.

"I believe it," I said. "Some say that there is a prehistoric monster in the water that eats nothing but budgets, presidential messages, government servants and an occasional vice president of the United States." "That could make sense, too," I agreed.

"There is also the possibility that the bottom of the Tidal Basin could be the lost colony of Atlantis," he said.

"You mean Fanne Foxe could be from another world?"

There are oodles of candidates for the highly coveted ASMSU board presidency, and whatever your political inclinations may be there is sure to be one who is just for you.

Take your pick from the cast of candidates that includes two freshmen, a woman, an unsuccessful Michigan senatorial candidate, a former union steward, two Democratic precinct delegates, a socialist, and an insurance salesman, not to mention a former campaign worker for Nixon in '72 (we won't mention any names.)

These are the candidates, their issues and outlooks. The race is on!

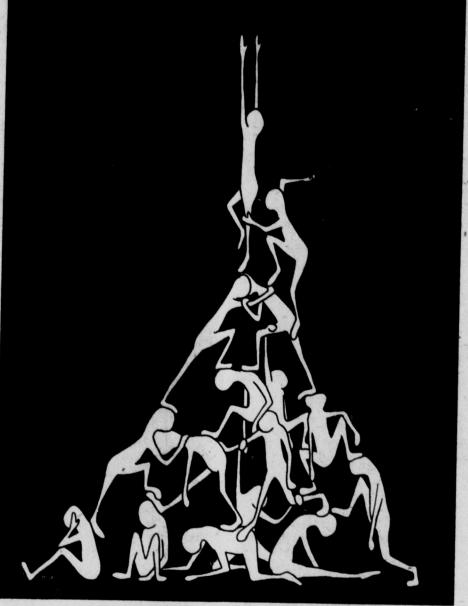

Richard Armstrong, 21, is a junior majoring in economics with a high school background in student government

Armstrong does not oppose a University boycott of lettuce and grapes or support of integration in Boston, but is more concerned about issues that affect students directly.

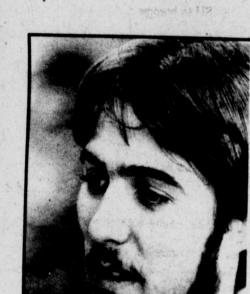

A "super concert" this spring sponsored by Pop Entertainment would be one immediate constructive action that ASMSU could use to provide a direct benefit to students. A student survey would help determine longrange objectives and concerns for ASMSU.

The role of the ASMSU board president should be that of a mediator between board factions and one of a spokesperson for the collective student body

RAYMOND

J. Brian Raymond, 21, a junior majoring in multi-disciplinary social science pre law, is currently chairperson of the College Student Advisory Committee, a representative to Academic Council/Elected Student Council and a Democratic precinct delegate.

His primary concern, one he has been working on in Academic Council, is student housing. Raymond intends to work with the administration to permanently break down triples, drop the on-campus living requirement and reduce the resident assistants' policing role in the halls.

A University boycott of lettuce and grapes and support of integration of Boston schools are secondary concerns to ASMSU, he says, but since "we do not live in a shell, isolated from the rest of the world," ASMSU must address such issues and support them, at least in publicity ventures to inform the campus population. He would not have funded a bus trip to Boston for MSU students, as did this year's board.

Cabinet directors should be autonomous after receiving initial direction and criteria from the ASMSU board early in the year.

Confidence in ASMSU will increase as a result of responsible and fair action on the part of the board and its cabinets. The major portion of the board's time and money should be directed toward the improvement of MSU.

Address: 129 Gunson #7 Phone: 332-3767

Eric Leins, 20, is a sophomore who is majoring in business-pre-law.

Leins was steward of Illinois Local 450, Hotel and Restaurant Employees in 1973-74, and feels that a Student Workers Union should be organized to protect employe rights and allow grievances to be aired. As president he would advocate distribution of funds necessary for the union's recognition but would not support a strike by workers.

Priority items would be strengthening relations with students, the administration and the State News. Such issues as a University boycott of grapes and lettuce and support of integration in Boston are concerns that ASMSU has no right to support unless it is certain the majority of the student body is behind the issue, Leins says.

The purpose of ASMSU is to be the voice of the students, not of the board members. ASMSU should become more conservative — more of a voice and less of a bullhorn.

He said that Tim Cain, ASMSU board president, should have disassociated himself from the Student Workers Union because it was seen as his personal tool to gain power, but does support the idea of a union whose major concern would be dealing with unfair labor practices.

BUSTILLOS

Tim Cain, 21, a senior majoring in economics and journalism, is the current ASMSU board president, a Democratic precinct delegate and a member of the Ingham County Executive Board of the Democratic Party.

He was a founding member of the Kellogg Center Student Employees Association and is a co-chairperson of the Student Workers Union. One of Cain's goals is to continue to support the Student Workers Union through ASMSU Labor Relations until the Union is recognized by the University through an election and begins negotiations with the University.

If re-elected, his priority item would be getting students seated on the Board of Trustees. These students would have a full voice in board policymaking and have access to everything that concerns the University. Ideal relations with the University would place ASMSU in an "effective adversary" position. He says President Wharton's job performance is "lousy" because "he operates a closed and somewhat manipulative bureacracy."

Cain wages that there will be more students voting in this election than in any other student election ever held because of the interest and controversy stirred up by the present board. He said that an activist ASMSU will best restore and increase student confidence in ASMSU.

•LINDA TLUSTY, no pref, 355-6711. If I win, my main concern would be the interests of my constituents. Right now, I feel that the board members are not interested in their constituents, Also, I think that there is not enough student interest in ASMSU. The new board should attmept to diminish this apathy. Such problems as the triple situations and the Student Workers Union are important, but should be secondary to reviving student •LYNN FLYGAR, sophomore, no pref, 353-1243. My basic concern is that students have more access to input in ASMSU. Specifically, I feel ASMSU should move to limit the power of the board president, take action to eliminate tripling, and guarantee student accessibility to teacher evaluation forms. I would also like to see support of the United Farm Workers movement as well as more stringent student control of ASMSU spending. My main qualification is not my experience, though I have served in leadership capacities since high school, but instead my willingness to work for the student interest.

•MARCESSA SILVERI, sohpomore, 355-3550, Progressive Action slate. If elected to the ASMSU board, I could continue to fight racist/sexist practices within the University, continue to build the SWU, work to stop cutbacks in education and financial aid. work to open up channels so that students, faculty, and staff can publicly voice their concerns during ASMSU and Board of Trustees meetings, and fight to give equal financial support to the co-ops, as is given to the fraternities and sororities. I am a member of the SWU organizational committee, and International Committee Against Racism. I am running for ASMSU because I actively receive their support.

•MARY FIEGEL, freshman, no pref. The primary function of ASMSU is to be responsive to student needs and viewpoints, and to get them implemented. I would like to have a student advisory group appointed to provide input to the Board of Trustees. I also feel that students should have complete access to the University's financial records. Students have a right to not only want to publicly voice my desire to know whether constant rate hikes for work for student interests but as well tuition and room and board are justified. Open access to SIRS forms are also important in trying to get the best possible education. I would work for the needs of women and minorities. Specifically, gynecologists should be hired at Olin (there are none presently) and affirmative action goals must be met. I believe ASMSU can be a vital instrument in working toward a University which operates to meet the needs of its students before all else.

•RICHARD W. ESPLEN, senior, medical technology, 332-8642. Experience: participated in high school government, president of Monti House Co-op and other offices, volunteer for MSU's family planning program. If elected, plans to be a full participant by attending all meetings and being informed on issues. Will attempt to consolidate the issues before ASMSU to only those concerns pertinent to MSU and its activities, thereby leaving national political issues, labor union (grape and lettuce debates) and racial issues (boston busines) up to the individual to decide one's own position. To vote on issues as a representative of only the College of Natural Science. Independent.

•MIKE SPITZER, majoring in Zoology and Interdisiciplinary Biology, Progressive Action slate, 393-7247. Qualifications: House president, Akers Hall for one year, currently Natural Science representative of ASMSU, member of local and national honorary science fraternities and societies, member of Honors College. As a member of the Progressive Action slate, I entirely support its platform. If elected I will also immediately re-initiate a "fair housing" committee (designed to relieve poor offcampus housing facilities) and a committee to make ASMSU more responsive to student needs by distributing questionaires through State News to facilitate better communications between students and their representatives. I also plan to see student evaluations of their instructors made available to students, as is the practice at other top-rated universities across the country. I am now working to engage Angela Davis to speak at MSU next term. In short, I will work on any project my constituency voices to me.

•REGINALD STEWART, chemistry major, freshman, 353-7409. I have, since the beginning of my high school years, been actively involved in student government, and feel more comfortable taking positive action than sitting back and just letting things come as they may. I plan to pay especially close attention to the primary function of ASMSU to represent my constituents and keep in constant close contact with them - their opinions. problems and wishes - through referenda, questionnaires, etc. Where my own decisions are concerned, I plan to give each my full consideration, without favoritism or commitments toward any one political group, and to follow that decision through.

•DONALD M. BAIRD, 355-6069. I am running for ASMSU because I can represent my peers in the College of Natural Science. I will vote in all cases to keep the concern of the students in the forefront of the ASMSU rather than issues which do not concern students here at MSU. I would like to see the board forget issues such as supporting boycotts and withdrawing committed money for politically biased reasons. I would like to see the board concentrate on the needs of the students. Such issues can include investigating the rate of tripling in the dorms and working to make the ASMSU tax voluntary.

•BRYAN TROY KOCH, computer science major, freshman, 353-7472. The present ASMSU board is too involved in petty politics. They have been less than useless in representing the students' wishes, and in providing effective student representation in the affairs of the University. The new board must be sensitive to the needs and opinions of the student body. It must consult with the students before taking action on the issues. Above all, the new board must take a definite stand on all issues presented to it. I am running for a board position because the board needs students, not more politicians.

•FRANK LESSA, math major, sophomore, 355-6821. While serving on the present ASMSU board, I have strived to stay out of the political arguments that ASMSU has so often engaged in. Rather, I have tried to get things done; I have introduced the most bills and have the highest attendance of all elected representatives. Some issues I have supported include student access to SIRS forms and elimination of the sophomore housing requirement, while I have opposed the political bickering that has often taken place, because ASMSU should be run by the students and not by political interest

•NEIL HIRSHBERG, pre-vet major, sophomore, 353-2787. The Associated Students of MSU spring election of 1974 received only 6,022 total votes. This was due in part, I believe, to the board's major interest in national issues rather than in students and their relation to the University, which is the board's chartered purpose. I believe ASMSU's first duty is to familiarize students with its powers and major functions by better advertised and more open committee meetings. Secondly I would like to see a better absenteeism and quorum policy which have previously plagued the board's operation. With these improvements I think ASMSU would be in a healthier position to tackle issues like the Student Workers Union and campus

•CURTIS STRANATHAN, freshman, English major, 353-2197, Progressive Action slate. The students of MSU need a government that is not awed at the word 'administration", that will fight for our rights as students as people. We need a student government that will provide leadership to get all students active in this fight. I know I can provide leadership. I know Progressive Action can also. •SCOTT IGNATOWSKI, 207 N. Case, 355-7006, sophomre, Students for Better Government slate. I am not a politician. My previous political experience is practically nil. The reason I am here is to be a student, not a politician. Regretfully, I feel the present ASMSU board has a tendency to play politics, frequently accomplishing little or nothing. ASMSU does not need politicians. It needs students dedicated to students and not themselves. I would like to work to get things done for the students. Probable goals are SWU, prevention of further Ron Ziegler incidents and greater student awareness of ASMSU. I would like to work for the students, not become a great debator.

•MARK YOUNGREN, 251 E. Holden Hall, 353-4102, senior. I believe that many people are dissatisfied with the present ASMSU board, and I am running for a position on the board in order to represent these people. I feel that it is necessary for ASMSU to determine, with the input of the entire student body, just where its priorities lie, and what ASMSU should and should not spend time and money on. If elected, I intend to represent the members of the College of Engineering well by doing just that.

•RUSS JOHNSON, 541 Forest, 337-7146, junior, Progressive Action slate. My qualifications for a seat on the ASMSU board in the College of Engineering are limited. but I will, as in any new experience, do everything in my power to make the Administration and its facilities more responsive and open to student inputs.

I strongly and actively support all issues being presented by, and as a member of, the Progressive Action slate. While having a broad understanding and strong dislike of pollution and wasteful use of energy, I will fight for improvement in our environment through expanded use of recycled paper and initiation of recycling programs for glass and aluminum by the MSU Waste Control Authority, thus providing jobs for students. Being a student from the College of Engineering, the continuance and possible expansion of the Metallurgy Department is of special interest to me, and is vital to all students for good educational training in this field of Engineering.

STEPHEN CHURCH, 616 McDonel, 353-1565, sophomore. The present ASMSU board has done a fairly good job in student government but I feel that there has been too much controversy involved to allow it to operate at its peak. Too much time has been lost on apparent personality conflicts that only interfere with effective student government. I would like to see ASMSU carry out its purpose, that of being the student's voice in University affairs, efficiently and effectively. As for qualifications, I was on various committees in high school as well as the executive board of my senior class. I believe all these things can be accomplished with my assistance.

Running as the College of Engineering representative, I would like to see every engineering group and society here at MSU allow a few minutes at each of their meetings for a report from the College Engineering representative on what ASMSU is presently doing. I hope all students will vote. It is by your silence that s board has done nothing.

N SODERBERG, member of Progressive Action slate, 355-1673. I want to help MSU a responsive student government that will call for student action father to student apathy. For too long the racial polarization on campus has been and racist and sexist practices have been tolerated in and out of the classroom. tan and should fight for 100 per cent tuition refund, the protection of financial aid linuing support of the Student Workers Union to unite the approximately the Fisheries and Wildlife Club and working for SWU.

MDA BEAN, junior, horticulture major, phone 355-2114. Presently working for and am a representative on Mason Hall government. I feel the present board is effective as it could have been due to the amount of time spent by some in trying to rid the board of other members whose viewpoints were not their result, student affairs were slighted. I'm running because I did not want the to happen again this year. I support the formation of a Student Workers lent access to SIRS forms, the hiring of a gynecologist at Olin Health Center, a system for concert tickets and action to end triples.

College of Social Science

•TOM GRIFFOR, 355-7016, running on the Students for Better Government slate. Restoring the students' confidence in ASMSU would be my paramount duty as representative. Without the students' support, all issues such as tripling, SWU, SIRS and the UFW boycott become mere political rhetoric. Unfortunately, many such issues are but discussion topics to ASMSU. Constant feuding between board members has resulted in a lack of action. I would strive to unify the board and work towards goals beneficial to my constituents. It's time the board recognized its constituents are more than mere numbers. I would seek the consensus of my constituents on all matters brought before me. I will replace negative rhetoric with positive action.

DAVID K. OAKS, criticism of ASMSU: Unresponsiveness when was the last time you heard from your ASMSU rep? Do you even know who he or she is? The lack of communication has hurt ASMSU. Special interest and abuse of power - Tim Cain and others have used their ASMSU title and power for their own political self interest and gain. The impeachment attempts on Cain certainly do not lack criteria and should not be overlooked. Political bias - decision to withdraw Zeigler funds. MSU has problems which must receive attention (tripling etc.) Students: First eliminate ASMSU's problems, make ASMSU responsive, get your money's worth. You're paying for it!

•CLAYTON C. COOK, political science major, 332-5137. I would like to add some stability and rational decision-making to the new ASMSU board. Only by doing this, combined with the ability to compromise, and to maintain (or establish) a sense of ethics, can credibility be restored to the ASMSU executive board. I have a background of exposure to different cultures (I have lived overseas) combined with my choice of career studies (political science). plus a year's experience as an Interfraternity Council representative and as chairperson of the Political Science Undergraduate Advisory Council. I feel that this background will enable me to accomplish the objectives stated above. Thank you for your attention and vote!

•RANDY LINNARD, junior, social science major, 355-0629. I have been active in the National Student Coalition against Racism. ASMSU, in representing students on campus, should take a lead in giving active support in the struggle to desegregate the schools in Boston to achieve equal education. The student government should call for a woman gynecologist at Olin. I support student workers' rights to organize. I would also work to organize massive student support for the boycott of non-UFW lettuce and grapes and Gallo wines. Student government should work to organize mass support for student access to SIRS forms, student faculty control of University policies and preventing tuition hikes.

•MICHAEL VARTERASIN, 355-5701. ASMSU representatives should base their delegated privilege of the vote on constituent opinion and not solely on their own discretion. The job of being representative should revolve around the basic precept of effective representation and should begin with that premise. My platform is based on the desire to bring about the necessary changes that would help increase student concern and eliminate the prevailing apathy toward ASMSU as a governing body. Past experience with the realm of politics has been rewarding for those I've served as well as myself. I will speak out for those I serve but not as one voice alone, rather as many

As a member of the Educational Policies Committee (an Academic Council standing committee), I find that student participation in academic governance plays a crucial role in establishing academic policies and bringing about changes relative to student needs. In order to achieve an adequate level of education in a large university like MSU, it is imperative that students speak out so that both administration and faculty become aware of these problems. It is these values to which I am dedicated. •ARTER L. JACKSON (m),

Every student on this campus is affected by the action or lack of action of ASMSU, whether they are aware of it or not. I'm running with Progressive Action because I believe we have a together group of people who will work for the students. One good person on a board may be able to do a little, but a good board is what is needed to get a lot done.

At 9 a.m. on WKAR-AM and FM and again at 10:30 p.m. on WKAR-FM Monday through Friday, Estell reads biographies and best-sellers, humorous and historical chronicles in half-hour-long taped segments.

His program, "The Radio Reader," is one of the oldest programs on WKAR radio and is now broadcast on other public radio stations across the of any one book," he explained. Among the books Estell has broadcast in the past few years are "Working," by Studs Terkel; "Stay of Execution," by Stewart Alsop; "I Never Had It Made," by Jackie Robinson and "The Hindenburg," by Michael M. Mooney.

Some books, especially books about politics, bring Estell negative response from his listen-

"When I select anything that has any bearing on politics I have to be extremely careful." he said. "I'm not here to editorialize and for that reason I will not select a book by anyone who is on a soapbox." Estell explained he usually did not have problems with scenes of excessive violence in his books because he tended to choose nonviolent books. "I find over the years that I have chosen true stories biographies, autobiographies, historical adventure stories that are true - rather than the novel," he said.

"And, truth is always stranger than fiction anyway, as they say," he added. "If there is any violence in the true story, it is read. The only things that are not read are those things that would violate the law, the rules and regulations that dictate to a radio broadcast station what it can and cannot do." Estell said "The Radio Reader" was an example of the type of "alternative" service offered by public broadcasting.

"This is absolutely an alternative service because copyright restrictions preclude commercial stations from doing it." he said.

For help in his never-ending search for new books, Estell subscribes to the Book of The Month Club and The Literary Guild. He also keeps abreast of the new titles by referring to Saturday Review/World, The New York Times Review of Books and similar publications.

His listeners also recommend books to him, he said.

After years of broadcasting books, Estell is relaxed in his reading. He has no particularly systematic method of dividing his books into segments.

"I just go," he explained. "I have my stopwatch, and when I see the time is coming up to 29 minutes I figure it is time to start saying bye-bye."

watch those people who had been waiting outside get seated. This took a while, but finally Mander made a gigantic gesture indicating gratitude and stepped back to the podium.

The next piece was Martucci's "Nocturno for Orchestra," a quiet romantic piece in a style somewhere between Puccini and Mahler. Mander allowed the orchestra some leeway in interpretation and the orchestra handled it sensibly and tastefully. Apparently he had worked out what he wanted during rehearsals.

Mozart's "Violin Concerto in G" followed, despite the fact that it was listed in the program as the "A Major Concerto."

Soloist Aladar Mozi, the Czech violinist who appeared here in January, also conducted the piece. This is a technique used in the 18th century. The orchestra is led by either the harpsichordist or the first chair violinist. The art of conducting was not refined until well into the 19th century so the technique involves the orchestra cueing off the violinist's bow.

Mozi played so brilliantly that he elicited applause between movements of the concerto and was called out for an encore.

The concert ended with Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony," one of the most familiar pieces in music literature. Mander made the strings do too much of the work, especially in the opening movement. He had the strings playing at top volume while the rest of the orchestra was toned down and this tended to bring out mistakes as if they were played into a loudspeaker system.

Giving an orchestra a little leeway can too often de free-for-all with each instrument trying to outdo the other. But Mander never lost control of the proceedings and the concert came

The Indiana game will mark the end of Hairston's collegiate career unless the Spartans are tabbed for a postseason tournament berth. And while he has enjoyed many personal achievements during his three-year role on the MSU varsity, Hairston is more concerned right now with getting that tourney bid.

"If we win against Indiana, I definitely feel that we will get in a tournament." Hairston said. "Our five players can match up with anybody in the country, including Indiana.

Major renovation of the women's shower and locker areas at the Women's Intramural Building will begin Monday, but all lockers must be vacated by today.

Because of the scheduled construction, the existing men's locker room will become a women's locker room.

Every swimmer participating in the men's intramural individual swim meet must attend a scratch meeting at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday in the pool office.

Individuals spark women's wins

Individual performances highlighted the weekend victories of two of MSU's women's

The women's gymnastics squad captured first place in the state meet at Central Michigan with 98.4 points to Central Michigan's 89.71.

MSU dominated the meet by placing first in every event. Cocaptain Ann Weaver led the way, capturing firsts in vaulting with an 8.77 performance, floor exercise with an 8.7 and the uneven parallel bars with an 8.53.

one-game trial against the Wol-Kathi Kincer took the allverines despite having U-M's Don Dufek remove three of around title with 33.63 points. Campbell's teeth with his stick. She also placed first on the balance beam with an 8.4, second on the bars with an 8.23 and floor exercise with an 8.6 and third in vaulting with an 8.4.

"It was a well-run meet and it went quickly," commented MSU coach Barbara Peacock. "The meet showed that women's gymnastics is advancing in the state of Michigan.

"Our downfall was on the beam, however. We still have a lot of work to do there."

Meanwhile, the MSU women's swimming team took first place in the Midwest AIAW (Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) meet at Central with 434 points, overpowering Bowling Green, who finished second with 277.

MSU set two records and captured first place in four events Friday. The 400-yard freestyle relay team was clocked in 3:43.15 and the 400 medley relay team won in 4:12.91, both setting new Midwest AIAW records. Individually, Kathy Barrett won the 100 individual medley in a time of 1:51.54 and Barbara Harding won the one meter diving event with 390.45

On Saturday, the tankers set a national record and captured four more first places. The 200 freestyle team of Barrett, Dawn Jacobs, Vicki Riebeling and Karen Waite set a new national record of 1:41.18 in winning the

ASMSU disputes plagued Cain's reign

(continued from page 1) factions: those who strongly supported the union and those who were less concerned with the union.

"The number one priority of Cain was that of forming a union and that was not the board's number one priority," said Karl Bush, College of Business representative.

As the year progressed, the board became involved in more internal politicking. Some board members did not show up for meetings, or walked out when they did not want to vote on a piece of legislation. Parliamentary procedure was bent by Cain to fit the moment.

At a meeting in January. board members said Cain was still using parliamentary procedures to his advantage. When a board member started to walk out of a meeting during a vote. Cain said the member had abstained. The member had said nothing.

Without an abstention or some vote from the member walking out, there was no quorum at the meeting and the proposal could not have passed.

The lack of action by the board was compounded by the board's and Cain's delay in approving appointments to cabinet posts, all-University committees and ASMSU commit-

In January, the board voted to rescind the funding from the Ron Ziegler speech, a Great Issues program. Cain agreed with the board's action.

Last week, the board told the Labor Relations cabinet director in a 6-2 vote to stop using cabinet funds to pay a student to compile a list of student employes. Cain has said he feels the board's actions were illegal and plans to continue paying the student worker.

Interim appointments of cabinet directors were labeled by one board member as one of the biggest problems of the year. At least three cabinets had interim directors for part of the year, the Great Issues Cabinet did not have a director for four months, and the Resource Recovery Cabinet never had a

Bush, the only board member in a cabinet, was appointed interim co-director of the Legal Aid cabinet in the middle of fall term. It was the second week in January before he was appointed as the permanent codirector.

The Great Issues cabinet did not have a director through the summer because no one ever applied for it. Cain appointed a director, Steve Findlay, fall term and he spent fall term learning how to do the job.

The board voted to withdraw the funding from the first Great Issues program Findlay arranged, the Ron Ziegler speech.

Ford, Dems seek energy compromise

Scott said he left the session feeling there would be modifications in Ford's program. Sen. Wiliam Roth, R-Del.,

issued a statement before the leadership meeting saying a proposal he made last week that further oil tariff increases be deferred for 60 days "is very likely to be accepted."

Simon and Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb were among Ford Administration officials who were lead-off witnesses as the Ways and Means Committee, which must originate all legislation involving taxes, launched two weeks of hearing on the energy issues. Simon and Zarb said Ford's proposals were preferable to a plan made public by committee Democrats on Sunday.

The Democrats' plan, outlined by Ullman, calls for a gradual tax hike to 40 cents a gallon by 1979 on excess use of gasoline beyond a family's average basic needs, with rebates through coupons or tax reductions; gradual imposition of oil import quotas as economic conditions permit; creation of a federal agency to buy imported oil; levy of an excise tax on new cars with heavy gasoline drinking habits, and a tax up to 85 per cent on petroleum producers' windfall profits.

Along with his special tariff program on imported oil, Ford recommended eventually replacing that levy with a $2-perbarrel excise tax on all domestic crude oil and imported oil, imposing an excise tax of 37 cents per thousand cubic feet on natural gas, putting a windfall profits tax on oil producers. removing price controls on and taking price regulation off

new natural gas. Simon told reporters he thinks Ullman's suggestions represent "a definite plan . . . a basis of discussion." Furthermore, Simon said he is "hearttened that Chairman Ullman in his plan recognizes that tough decisions have to be made, that he didn't think" a Senate-House joint Democratic leadership al-which it certainly was.

That Senate-House Democratic leadership program included, among other things, a gasoline tax increase of only 5 cents a gallon, creation of an independent agency with standby authority for oil import quotas and a penalty-reward arrangement to spur shoppers for new cars to buy only those with good gasoline mileage.
