Married residents ask housing repairs

BY MARIS CHISHOLM
State News Staff Writer

As many as 22 buildings on campus are under threat of evacuation because of health hazards. Two University officials confirmed to the State News last week that evacuation plans are being developed for the buildings.

A spokesman for the Michigan State Housing Authority said that they do not have any information about the situation.

Married residents are concerned about the situation and are asking for help. They feel that the university should do more to ensure their safety.

Many married students are concerned about the safety of their homes. They feel that the university should do more to ensure their safety.

The university has responded to these concerns by developing evacuation plans for the affected buildings.

The MSU Museum is definitely closed to the public, but the type of alterations is not in doubt. The alterations are being made to prevent fire and to correct crime.

"We have been asked by the city to make sure that the alterations are done properly," said one of the university officials.

The MSU Museum is located in downtown East Lansing, next to the MSU Law School.

Women caucuses in Mexico city

Women caucus of 1000 from 10 nations opened that week conference Thursday in Mexico City to demand that women get better education, more jobs and a bigger say in ruling the world.

The 6th International Women's Conference in the first United Nations gathering devoted exclusively to women's issues the local political foreign committee, the International Women's Year.

Helen Stills of Folked, secretary general of the conference, told reporters she hoped the meeting would open a window on which women start participating not only in their own future but in those of their countries and the world.

Faisal's assasin gets the ax

A young Saudi prince killed of the chopping block Wednesday and was publicly beheaded with a swoop of a gold-embroidered sword for the favor of King Faisal: thousand chanted "Alibi Akbar," God is Great - and justice is done.

Prince Faisal bin Moussa, aged 27, had been judged guilty by a Shari, or religious court, of assassinating his uncle in the palace in the climax the murder of the monarch's prophet, Ahmad bin Abdulla, the Bible's chief assassin.

The government reported Thursday that Prince Faisal had admitted before he was beheaded that he killed his uncle in order to curry the favor of the influential brother.

Gandhi appeal conviction

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's lawyers announced Wednesday they are ready to appeal her conviction of virtual electoral malpractice.

Her lawyers said they would file a Supreme Court appeal against a lower court's decision that she committed an offense of "wilful concealment of material facts.

They said they would appeal the decision because it was a "piece of important"... and because they believe it would have a "profound effect on democracy in India."

That view was shared by others and Gandhi's close friends are said to have been "appalled" at her conviction.

Gandhi's unexpected appeal of the conviction was widely regarded as a major setback for the ruling Congress party in its domestic and international political fortunes.

The appeal against the conviction in the Punjab High Court comes on the heels of a new wave of anti-Congress demonstrations across the country.

The demonstrations, which began in the north, have spread to other parts of the country, including the southern states of Andhra Pradesh and Tamil Nadu.

The demonstrations have been caused by a series of economic policies implemented by the Congress government, including hikes in prices, cuts in subsidies, and privatization of state-owned enterprises.

The government has been criticized for its failure to address the needs of the poor and the marginalised, particularly women and children.

The government's policies have also been criticised for their impact on the environment, with many people arguing that the country is being sacrificed to the interests of multinational corporations.

The government has defended its policies, arguing that they are necessary to attract foreign investment and promote economic growth.

The appeal against the conviction of Indira Gandhi has been widely seen as a sign of the government's weak case and its confidence in its ability to continue its policies.

The appeal is expected to take several years to be heard and decided, and during this time, the government will continue to implement its policies.

The appeal against the conviction of Indira Gandhi is expected to be the focus of attention in the coming months, with many people hoping that it will lead to a deepening of the democratic debate in India.

Favoritism toward athletes dying though practiced, coaches say

The problem faced by the N. athlete is that of being a student athlete. The student athlete, no matter how good a student, cannot have the same level of success as the non-athlete. The athlete is limited by the time and energy that is available for study. The athlete is also limited by the physical demands of training and competition. The athlete must balance the demands of athletics with the demands of academics.

The city council has approved the construction of a new water treatment plant. The plant will be located on the outskirts of the city and is expected to provide a more reliable and efficient source of water for the residents. The project is expected to be completed within the next year.
Board must pad housing blow

The recession is taking a lot of fun out of being a student.

While going to classes is nominally better than doing your own cooking and shopping and being depressed light job market after graduation, students are not so lucky.

And while their parents' or their own ability to finance their college education is minimally affected by the ^clockwork, tuition and room and board rates are rising.

If room and board rates are to be topped at today's board of trustees' meeting, the hikes must be the smallest possible to meet the rising University costs. But it would mean that must follow up on the plan by passing a proposed $1.5 million extra for student housing.

The board should also carefully heed the collective complaints of double-stressed married-students before slapping a $8-a-month increase on their on-campus rent.

For the upkeep and safety of married housing units is plainly being ignored. While University officials argue over burdens of authority, the short length of time necessary to discharge children from wandering into a nearby take-out or on closer railroad tracks does not get built. Two years ago, as a result, a five-year-old child disappeared.

Marriage and apartment cleaning billing tenants guaranteed by the University is not done or done in a manner so as to be considerate of their time and effort spent, and play areas are lacking. Students are not asked for an expensive improvements or additions; they only want some clearly unsafe and unhealthy conditions cleaned up.

They are generally in an even worse state, in the area of third buildings than other students—many of them providing valuable teaching services to the University and our -pay—a married student union official says most of them are "very small." While only the landlord would meet its responsibilities.

But at present, It is quite obvious that students say they see the green and white hand of the University outsourced only when the rent is due. Residence hall and married housing rates have never be.

That will require a large jump in the housing of the demonstrates how the College has an Upper West Side office.

The letter rate increase is especially damaging to married housing students, since we have seen the rates. The University will continue to make available to the cost of the latter the same number of times as the current one, and the latter the rate increase is especially damaging to married housing students, since we have seen the rates. Buyers of Chinese Junk begin extensive cleanup

"The very sold out," explained David Beat, one of the owners. "We had too many Consolidated owners look it over and they found nothing that interested them. Most of the work that needs to be done is complete."

Beat stood upon the teak wood deck and described the water of upper marina, large blooms and clusters of fish that are home to the many fish. "There were four full plastic bags of debris," he added in an afterthought. "But we felt them and replaced the mechanics."

"As far as the sails, the main sail is used, it's tattered and needs some work. But we're happy with the way the boat looks."

Then there is the cabin. But they do not know what to make of the toilet. As he stepped into it, the floor broken against tacky wallpaper covered with chipped paint. The floorboard has been pulled down. The hand rail on the wall is wooden beams overlaid. These are more wood and plaster than the wooden and yellow wallpaper. Many small items are missing from below the sink but ordered. The thing that is nice about this is we don't contemplate moving too much," he said, "just start from scratch.

Leaving the cabin, Beat said reclamation of that section of the boat will be the same along with work. However, Trowbridge told a few of the company members and eight-hundred-dollar补修 work, while Beat added to explain to the owners.

The Chinaman stood at his new boat chart 5 p.m. Bradley, an employee of the company explained, that will receive full payment in and sell one of the very fine Chinese Junks in the United States.

Small wonder.

It's our nifty Teller 24 machine located at our Trowbridge Rd. office, in its own convenient glass and brick shelter.

You can bank, anytime you want, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, every day of the year. And you can make deposits, transfer funds, get cash, take care of payments.

We've got five Teller 24 units in our system, three right next to campus... Main office, Brookfield Plaza, and, of course, Trowbridge Rd.

Teller 24. Only East Lansing State Bank has it. And it's absolutely free. Just one of the reasons you should change banks.

If you're not sure what Teller 24 is, just ask for a demonstration. You'll be convinced! Teller 24 is the best thing that's happened to banking since drive-in windows.

Campus buildings unsafe

The Museum workers estimated that the building was being occupied by the human population on a steady basis, the builder said.

"We usually wait on an exhibit to start and have it not start when the show is opened," the builder said.

Several students, including some who were about to the building, said that the building had been open for some time last fall and that no students were present. The building was also used last spring by President William Worthington as a shelter for his Elf reporter."

Water treatment system studied for fishing use

By JEFF MERRILL
State News Staff Writer

The water treatment facilities of the Michigan State Bar and lecture halls are not the only facilities that are being studied for fishing use.

The Michigan State Bar Association has established an instructional and research program in law and is planning to begin a project to study the potential for fishing in the lecture halls.

The project will involve the use of fish in the lecture halls to study the behavior of fish and the effects of water treatment on the fish.

The fish will be placed in tanks containing water with varying levels of treatment and the effects on the fish will be observed.

The project will also involve studying the impact of fish on the water treatment system and the potential for using fish as a natural treatment method.

The project will be conducted in collaboration with the Michigan State Bar Association and the Michigan State University.

The project will begin in the fall and will continue throughout the year.

Ford creates Olympic sports panel

The group was directed to submit two reports in the next 12 months. The first report was to cover the problems and an in-depth analysis of U. S. Olympic efforts. The second would analyze the problems being faced by amateur and commercial athletes with regard to political, governmental, and other international complications and to make plans for meeting them.

Ford also stressed that the U. S. Olympic Committee (USOC) should be the national governing body for all U. S. athletes in the Olympic Games. Fixed sentencing proposed by Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford proposed legislation Thursday that would create mandatory prison sentences for certain offenders who commit crimes under federal jurisdiction and compensate victims of violent crimes.

The administration's proposals reflect what is being called a "shift" in crime policy toward less use of the federal system and more emphasis on community sanctions. Officials said the proposals would:

- require life sentences for certain violent offenses.
- impose a minimum sentence of 15 years on anyone convicted of selling or trading in the illegal drug marijuana.
- require forfeiture of property to the government for certain crimes.
- authorize fines of up to $100,000 for repeat violent offenders.

The proposals are part of Ford's effort to increase the power of the federal criminal justice system. The administration says it wants to use the federal system more in order to deal with violent crime and other serious offenses that are now handled at the local level.

On Wednesday, Ford received a report from a special task force on crime that recommended the creation of a new criminal justice agency to coordinate federal efforts against crime. The administration has not determined yet the length of the new criminal justice agency, which would be proposed for next year.

The proposal drew strong opposition from some lawmakers, who said it was not enough to combat the crime problem. Ford said the legislation would be a "step in the right direction." He added that his administration would work with Congress to pass the legislation.

A 1975 crime figure, said Ford, would be to the nation's justice system what the 1973 crime figure was to the nation's education system. The administration said it was important for Congress to pass the legislation.

Ford said the legislation would make it easier for the federal government to deal with violent crime. The administration said it was important for Congress to pass the legislation.
Soldiers help free Catholics in Lisbon

Friday afternoon. Lansing area consumers checking their mailboxes for the TV special that is scheduled to be mailed out in the next few days. This letter, dealing with the capital city's sales tax, by the state, is scheduled to be mailed to all households in the Lansing area. The letter is aimed at informing consumers about the sales tax and providing them with the opportunity to express their views on the issue.

A new reader of the U.S. Department of Commerce has also confirmed that mailings are set up completely computerized mailing systems outside their jurisdiction and that the U.S. Department of Commerce is also sending government officials from other countries. As a result of this, the U.S. Department of Commerce can also check their security and Armed Forces, through Asmus May 23, 1944. The letter, which has been widely circulated in various media outlets, is expected to be sent to thousands of households in the Lansing area.

Computers through state and local sites can, at any time, track the status of mail at the click of a mouse through a computer system that allergies enable them to do.

The district is being used as an experimental site by the state's major USPS, at Rogers Distribution Center, and at Hank's Distribution Center. The computer system that the district is using is designed to ensure that all mail is processed and delivered accurately and efficiently.
