Financial woes kill 'U' recycling efforts

By BRAD MARTISIUS State News Staff Writer

The recycling operation of MSU's Waste Control Authority is dead. It was three profit.

The final rites will be held today, the last day of operation for the recyclers. However, the recyclers will have until September 15 to remove paper pickup sheds and barrels in classroom and office buildings that served most areas of MSU and East

The decision to shut down the operation was announced Thursday by executive vice president Jack Breslin after a meeting with Waste Control Authority director Mark Rosenhaft and other University officials last week. It was decided that the operation was still losing too much money to justify its continuation. The operation had shown signs earlier this summer of making a

"MSU lost $800 even in July, when it looked like the operation might become profitable once again," asst. executive vice president Starr Keesler said. "There was no month when the University gained on the deficit rung up by the recycling operation."

Keesler added that the costs would have risen still higher in the fall, when the operation was to lose its warehouse on Aurelius Road. "We haven't been able to find another warehouse for this price," he said.

The operation has been paying about $400 per month for rent on the warehouse.

It has been losing money for the last year, ever since paper prices plummeted in August 1974. Since that time, the operation had to depend on University loans to buy needed equipment and to continue collecting paper.

"Thus far, the accumulated deficit exceeds $50,000," Breslin said. "In the face of the University's extremely tight financial position and the demands made on all units to sacrifice, we simply are unable to absorb and justify continuing losses in this operation, despite our commitment to environmental action."

The operation was on a revolving account, meaning that the revenues from paper sales had to be used to support the costs of running the program. More than 4.5 million pounds of wastepaper has been collected since it began in the fall of 1972.

The University will revert to the normal pickup of wastepaper as part of its regular trash disposal activity. Therefore, MSU will still need room in its budget to dispose of wastepaper that would have been disposed of through the recycling operation. In addition, the approximately 30 students employed this summer will be out of jobs when they are not rehired to work during the fall term.

The operation's $50,000 debt to MSU will be partially eradicated by the sale of its equipment at a state auction and by salvaging the remainder of the equipment. "The rest of the debt will just have to be absorbed by MSU," Keesler said.

President Wharton announced Thursday that he has no alternative but to go to the board of trustees with a recommendation for a substantial increase in tuition because of the relatively small budget appropriation the Michigan legislature passed for MSU

Thursday.
This is done with extreme reluctance, but it is the only way in which we will be able to operate MSU at the level expected of it by the people of Michigan," Wharton said.

Wharton said University officers are studying the budget to decide how much of an increase will be needed and that a figure will be decided on before Wednesday.

An idea of the extra amount students will probably have to pay per credit was given by the chairman of the board of trustees, Blanche Martin, D - East Lansing, who told the State News that he had seen figures calling for a $2 increase per credit hour for undergraduates and a $4 increase for graduate students.

Another person close to the budget making process said that the increase could even be larger, with undergraduates paying $2.50 more per credit hour and graduates

Wharton's announcement came after the legislature had approved an $89 million appropriation for MSU for 1975 - 76. That was $15 million below what the University had originally asked for.

The measure appeared so austere to one member of the joint legislative conference committee that drafted the final bill, Sen. Bill Huffman, D - Madison Heights, that he resigned from the committee in protest.

The final University general fund appropriation was $89,081,300, but that was reduced even further to $88,635,000 by an amendment that cut the appropriation by 5

MSU got an additional $7.3 million for its Agricultural Experiment Station and $6.8 million for the Cooperative Extension Service.

Roger Wilkinson, vice president for business and finance, pointed out that the legislature had left the University with only $56,000 in non - designated funds to use for wage adjustments, inflation and other expenditures that may come up.

"That gives an indication of the financial crunch the University is in," Wilkinson said.

Wharton said the University realizes that the state is in a difficult economic condition and that higher education had to absorb its share of the statewide austerity.

"At the same time, however, we are mindful of the fact that quality education (continued on page 6)

Reverse discrimination suit filed against medical school not unique

By PEGGY GOSSETT State News Staff Writer

The $100,000 dollar damage suit filed against the MSU medical school charging reverse discrimination is not the only one of its kind, and could ultimately reach the U.S. Supreme Court, according to several legal consultants.

The suit filed by William H. Dery on August 1 in the U.S. District Court in Grand Rapids accused the MSU College of Human Medicine of violating Dery's constitutional and civil rights by "subjecting applicants of the white race to more stringent admissions requirements than nonwhites."

The MSU Board of Trustees has until August 21 to answer the charges.

president for University relations, said the University denies that any discrimination took place on the part of the medical school.

The MSU suit charges that the college accepted nonwhite students with "lower undergraduate grade point averages, lower test scores and lesser qualifications in other admissions criteria than white applicants."

Dery, who graduated with a "nearly straight 'A' average" in biology from Adrian College, has been rejected twice from MSU's College of Human Medicine. He first applied in 1974, was rejected and assigned alternate admission status. He then took graduate courses in biology, applied in 1975, and was rejected again.

Dery had no comment except to say that he was aware his case could go to the U.S.

Ford to appeal | HEW may bar oil import case aid to strikers

(AP) - The Ford Administration will appeal to the Supreme Court to overturn a lower court decision that President Ford's tariff on imported oil is illegal, Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Bork announced Thursday.

"This case involves interpretation of an important federal statute and the issues should be decided by the Supreme Court," Bork said.

A Justice Dept. spokesman said Administration officials have reached no decision on whether to ask the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Coumbia to stay its ruling pending a high court decision on reviewing the case.

The appellate court ruled 2 - 1 on Monday that Ford had no legal authority to impose the $2 per barrel tariff on imported oil.

(AP) - The Ford Administration has reopened an old labor-management wound by proposing to deny welfare payments for striking workers.

The proposal was quietly reviewed without public announcement by Caspar W. Weinberger last Friday on his last day as secretary of the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW). The regulation would bar Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) benefits to the families of any father excluded by state law from draw-

The idea has been advocated for years by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Assn. of Manufacturers, who contend welfare payments give unions an unfair economic advantage in labor disputes.

By R.D. CAMPBELL State News Staff Writer

An uncompleted investigation of the Spartan football program looms like a storm cloud in the distance threatening the Rose Bowl dreams of Denny Stolz, his players and thousands of Michigan State Football fans in 1975.

The NCAA has set no new date for the twice-postponed hearing of charges leveled against the MSU grid squad last April.

There had been speculation that it is now too late for the NCAA to take action which would affect the 1975 season.

However, an official for the NCAA Enforcement Dept. said that since 1970 at least four basketball teams have had sanctions imposed on against post-season tournament play for the same while in the midst of the same season.

Dave Berst, an NCAA investigator, said that Long Beach State, New Mexico State, Pan American University and Western Kentucky University were prohibited from the post-season tournaments while the regular season was in progress. It is not known whether this could be done to MSU. Even if the NCAA Council on Infractions did meet and impose penalties this fall, that ruling could be appealed in a process that could easily be drawn out past Jan. 1 when most of the bowl games are

The Spartans seem an especially likely candidate for a bowl invitation this year since even if they fail in their Rose Bowl bid, recent Big Ten rule changes would allow them to play in other bowl games. The Big Ten - conducting its own investigation - was hoping to complete its probe before the football season started on Sept. 13, according to Big Ten publicity director Jeff Elliot. But Elliot said that the depth of the investigation may preclude an early settlement.

President Wharton said University and Big Ten officials have been meeting during the summer but refused to speculate whether that investigation would be completed before the Ohio State game Sept. 13. Wharton also said that he has had no further word from the NCAA since it postponed the MSU hearing scheduled for Spartan head coach Denny Stolz says he's as much in the dark as anyone else on the

Seagram heir still missing

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (AP) — Whisky magnate Edgar Bronfman appealed to the kidnappers of his son Thursday for new evidence that Samuel Bronfman II was still alive and well.

He promised in a statement to comply with new instructions that had been received from the abductors on a tape recording, and he urged them to get in touch with him on a telephone number they used before.

Bronfman's statement was the first word of the new contact with the kidnappers. The chairman of the Seggram Co. Ltd., the world's largest distillers, had already promised to pay the ransom demand — reportedly $4.5 million.

Neither the family nor the FBI has ever confirmed or denied published reports that young Bronfman is being held underground with a 10-day supply of air and water.

New York banks absorb bonds

NEW YORK (AP) — Financial sources said Thursday that New York's major banks have agreed to take an unprecedented move by absorbing as much of the $275 million August issue of Municipal Assistance Corporation bonds as they are unable to sell to investors.

The figure mentioned in Wall Street is $150 million. This decision was made known as underwriters, faced with market resistance, met to set a price for the issue.

"As a practical matter, we are going to try to sell the issue," said a key banker, who wished to remain anonymous. "The underwriters, chiefly Morgan Guaranty, Chase Manhattan and First National City, are leaning very hard on some institutions they don't think have done

Second world war hero dies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, the defiant Airborne commander who answered "nuts" to a German ultimatum to surrender at Bastogne, Belgium, in World War II, died Monday of leukemia, a spokesman for Walter Reed Hospital said Thursday.

McAuliffe, who entered the Army hospital July 16, was 77. The small but spunky commander of the 101st Airborne Division sent his famous message to the commander of German troops during the bloody Battle of the Bulge in December 1944.

With American forces in the area outnumbered four to one, the German command sent one of its officers carrying a white flag to McAuliffe's position asking for a surrender.

Solar power plan revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The newest major energy agency outlined Thursday a three-part strategy to have the sun meet one-fourth of the nation's energy needs in 45 years.

The Energy Research and Development Administration told reporters of its national partnership with industry in a research and development effort to get widespread practical uses of the sun for heating and cooling buildings, for creating electricity and for turning farm wastes into

By the year 2020, Deputy Asst. Administrator Donald A. Beattie said, solar energy can replace the equivalent of more than 4 million barrels of oil a day. That could represent one fourth the nation's energy use by then, he said.

Grain inspector plan rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Opposition from White House budget officials apparently has doomed a recommendation by Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz that private inspectors be eliminated from the scandal-plagued grain inspection system, Agriculture Dept. sources say.

Butz himself, in a Voice of America interview recorded Wednesday for broadcast this week, predicted the administration probably would propose a more limited reform in which private inspectors are retained but placed under more intense federal supervision.

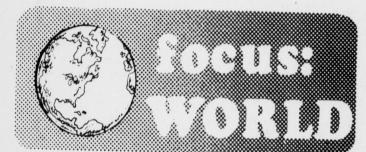

Butz last month indicated he was leaning toward proposing creation of a federal-state system that would eliminate private inspectors.

Argentines discuss appointment

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Ten army generals huddled in private Thursday on Argentina's governmental and economic crisis as beleaguered President Isabel Peron won an informal vote of confidence from some senators.

The generals meeting at army command headquarters here were reported to have discussed the appointment of Col. Vicente Damasco as interior minister in the new cabinet — the third in the last month.

Damasco was the first military man to be named to a cabinet post since Peron took over the presidency 13 months

The sources said some military men thought Damasco's presence in the cabinet gave the image of direct military interference in the government at a time when the political atmosphere is heavy with growing expectations of a military

MSU refused to sign the statement, and Wharton challenged HEW's threat to withdraw the $2 million in contracts. The contracts eventually were shown not to fall under HEW's jurisdiction and MSU kept them.

Wharton said the council began with a "commitment in the importance of affirmative action" and then began to examine the strong and the weak points of various affirmative action programs.

"We looked at particular experiences at particular schools and we asked the question 'What are some of the difficulties and why?" Wharton

From their findings the council arrived at several recommendations to Congress, institutions of higher learning and other federal agencies that the council felt would help make affirmative action work.

MELISSA PAYTON

A fan letter to Betty Ford

When we look back years from now at the accomplishments of our 38th President, the most notable may turn out to be (1) that he is the first president in decades who isn't mentally disturbed, obsessed with power or criminally corrupt and (2) a First Lady who has finally broken the tradition of plastic, brainless Presidential spouses.

The first is more of a sad commentary on the state of the American presidency than a point in Jerry Ford's favor. And the second really has nothing to do with him either. except - if you really want to stretch a point - that he was smart enough years ago to marry Betty Bloomer.

Because Betty Ford is a classy woman. Her political courage and independence was evident earlier this year when she telephone campaigned for the Equal Rights Amendment and lobbied with her husband for, among other things, appointing a woman to the Supreme Court.

And it's a damn good thing that there's at least one ardent feminist in the White House to bend Jerry's ear because the President is not known for his sensitivity toward the nation's less powerful groups.

But Sunday night in a now - famous televised interview with CBS's Morely Safer she really showed what she was made of — and it wasn't all sugar and spice.

All right, so the topics of premarital sex. marijuana and abortion stir hardly a ripple of controversy in this community. But Jesus, there was the First Lady - who is traditionally supposed to be seen and not heard - talking about those things in front of millions of Middle Americans! Not only that, she was calmly accepting of marijuana and premarital sex and downright enthusiastic about abortion.

The reaction was predictable. If the response to the Detroit Free Press daily readership poll is at all representative, a lot of people think Betty Ford has one foot in a brothel and another in an opium den. Religious leaders sermonized about decadence and immorality in high places. Ann

She has successfully alienated the self-righteous, the conventional, the passive nonthinkers and religious quacks who cherish the old myths about women and sex with the tenacity of drugged bulldogs.

Boston wade-in fights racism

LANSING CHAPTER OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE AGAINST RACISM

The incredible distortion of events in Boston by the news media demands answering. The recent confrontation on Carson Beach in Boston as reported in Monday's Associated Press story "Racial battle errupts on beach in Boston," is an example of journalism aimed at whipping up racism.

This "racist battle" was just one of many organized by ROAR (Restore Our Alleinated Rights), a racist, neo-facist organization which uses an anti-busing position as a cover. ROAR has support of the Boston city council (eight out of nine are ROAR members including Louise Day Hicks, founder and chairperson of ROAR), the School committee (four out of five are in ROAR) and Boston police who are in total collusion with ROAR. ROAR has organized goon squads carrying bats and sticks to distributed a leaflet claiming that 75 to 100 wade-in has the potential of invo attack children, black and white workers blacks, led by INCAR, were going to "take hundreds of new forces in the fight ag and their families, and have repeatedly over" South Boston beaches. The International Committee Against

Racism [INCAR] has been sponsoring a summer-long project aimed at building a mass multi-racial front of parents, students and teachers to demand and win quality schools and an end to ROAR's viscious

On Sunday, July 27, six black men were attacked by a mob of 100 for going to Carson Beach. Anti-racists all over Boston were outraged at this attempt to re-establish segregation, both at the fascist attacks themselves and at ROAR's racist justification: "Good colored people are welcome in south Boston, black militants are not ... good blacks won't come in, it's only the outside agitators." (Boston Globe, July 30.)

On August 3, the South Boston Defense League, the military arm of ROAR, urged people to come with rocks and bats and fight. Three hundred racists responded and attacked a black taxi driver and a Puerto Rican family. The Police commissioner along with the media are using this attack organized by ROAR to attack INCAR, claiming we wrote and distributed the ROAR leaflet to provoke race war!!

In response INCAR has called for a mass multiracial wade-in this Sunday, August 17, because it is the only way to establish the right of all people of all races to go to the ROAR, Mayor White, the cops and the media are conspiring to wipe out 15 years of anti-racist struggle against Jim Crow. Their smear campaign shows they realize what a tremendous blow against racism a successful multiracial wade-in can be. The

VIEWPOINT: STUDENT GROUNDS WORKERS

Workers' solidarity wins gains

By HEIDI RENN and BECKY EGAR In July, student grounds workers became concerned about a problem they were having with safety goggles. The goggles were unsafe for use because they would fog and accumulate moisture, making it difficult to see while using equipment requiring maximum operating attention.

This was a very important problem because while these people were working under these unsafe conditions, others walking or standing in the area where grounds workers were working were also in danger. Full-time workers had already been provided with safety glasses.

This was brought to the University's attention. After debating whether the cost of new goggles was more important than the people in the areas of the unsafe conditons, good safety glasses were purchased. This won a safety standard for student workers.

The grounds workers also asked for an increase in pay which had been $2.15-$2.25 an hour to $2.52, which is maximum pay for that level of work. Again, through the unity of workers, two important grievances, safety and wages, were won.

It is only through workers' solidarity of this sort that we can ever win better safety conditions, fairness on the job and decent wages. The full-time workers realized this and united. It is now time for the student workers to follow suit. This is what the Student Workers Union is trying to achieve. Though our problems are not always the same as those of the full-time workers on campus, we do need the unity to find solutions to the problems we are faced with. When it comes to such things as safety precautions, University officials, not being on the job themselves, will see the costs of safety equipment without realizing the personal hazards the workers are faced with.

When it comes to wages, the Univer also sees only its own financial woes, not that of the student. The raise in r and board and expected raise in tuition hit the on-campus worker especially h and the University is not likely to allo raise in pay to meet the rising price education.

Now, more than ever, the stuworkers on this campus need to unit look after their own interests both students and as workers.

Heidi Renn is a sophomore majorin English and Becky Egar is a sopho majoring in engineering.

Anti-SWU bigs

The article "SWU-MSU treaty stalls conflict" which appeared in the Monday, August 4, State News is one more example of the hostile, slanted coverage the State News seems to reserve for the Student Workers Union.

Perhaps the facts would have been reported if the State News had bothered to send a reporter to the Ingham County courthouse to get them. But instead, prompted at last by many calls from SWU organizers informing the State News of the results, the paper chose to call representatives of SWU and the company one full week later, and ask them what had

The reporter then inserted the quotes into the usual State News factless feature format, which appeared on page one 10 days after the event. No wonder people call it the Stale News.

This contrasts sharply with the kind of stories that the State News prints promptly. For example, the first issue published after the SWU-MSU court date carried such interesting and essential news stories as "Zzzzap! MSU prof gets grant for chemical laser experiments." Well, I suppose the entire staff could have been too busy with that to cover the news. Maybe that also explains why the State News has printed not a word about the 37 cents an hour retroactive raise that the Student Workers Union won for grounds workers back on

It seems to me that its high time the State News started printing the news, not just all the news that fits that mold.

Oom-pah-pah!

Marching drills and fight songs are replacing football formations and catcalls on the East Complex I.M. field while high school band members from across the state practice their parading.

When the four one-week practice sessions have ended, over 4,000 bandspeople will have stylized their stepping and honed their musical craftsmanship to near perfection, ready for the first fall outing.

For their efforts, many a high school homecoming should be a little more memorable and a little less blunder-ridden. And Akers Hall and the kids who stayed there will hold memories of a first foray into college residence hall life that will probably linger on even longer.

THE DEPOT RELIVES THE OLD DAYS

Not only can you hear the whistle blowing, but you can also hear the bells clanging and the lights flashing when the trains clamor by the Depot Restaurant.

Actually, aside from the whistle, the rest is staged, produced, and managed by The Depot's owner, Vince Malcangi. The effect, though, is real to life.

Two years ago, Malcangi revamped the railroad station that has been standing for over 70 years at 1203 S. Washington, Lansing, turning it into one of Michigan's showcase railroad restaurants.

Patrons receive their first taste of the gay 90's hospitality when they are greeted at the front door with a "welcome Aboard" sign. From there on in, it's a trip down nostalgic Main

The waitresses are adorned in granny dresses, and old-fashioned music plays in the background. The salad bar in an antique baggage cart and a wigwag crossing signal standing in the corner also help set the

The most precious of all the antiques in the Depot are three 60 year-old Standard Oil crowns from the tops of gasoline pumps. Boiler gauges from ancient steam engines are hung on the wall above the bar. A warning signal flashes from the back wall to heighten

Dining at The Depot brings back fond memories of the old neighborhood where the tempo of life was slower and patrons could sit, relax, and exchange the latest pieces of gossip. If those days were before your time, here's a chance to experience the way it

With leaded glass windows dating back 100 years bordering the dining area, customers can enjoy a moderately priced dinner in booths constructed from authentic railroad benches.

The Depot's menu, printed on a large facsimile of a Grand Trunk Western railroad bagge check offers dinners for the entire fami-

"We're a family oriented restaurant in a unique building," said Malcangi.

The menu has items ranging from onion rings and wine, to crablegs and strip sirloins. Specialties are anyting from seafood and steaks to spaghetti and fresh garden greens from the salad bar.

Sunday specials at reduced prices include spaghetti, fried shrimp, or fried chicken with the salad bar accompanying each din-

Popular priced items include the choice N.Y. strip steak for just $7.50 including the salad bar, the chicken dinner for $4.95 and the overwhelming spaghetti dinner with salad bar for just $3.50.

The Depot is open every day with a special luncheon

There have been no corners cut, nor a single detail spared to provide "passengers" of The Depot with an authentic atmosphere. The same care has been taken in providing reasonable prices on both menu items and drinks. Making you noon and evening meals a thoroughly enjoyable and memorable experience is what The Depot is all about. All Aboard!

Title IX brings some equality

This is the first of a two - part series. The first part explains Title IX while the second part deals with its impact on the MSU athletic program.

By PEGGY GOSSETT

State News Sports Writer Picture this: A near - capacity crowd of green and white clad MSU fans patiently watches the Spartan stadium tunnel, on an October afternoon, when suddenly the cheers break out as 70 women in full football equipment gallop onto the turf.

It's the Spartanettes and this is an intercollegiate varsity women's football game against none other than St. Mary's, complete with fat alumni contributions at the pregame lun-cheon, the MSU marching band, hotdogs, cheerleaders and pom - pom boys.

With the recent clarification of Title IX this situation has been, in reality, pushed further in the future, perhaps further than some sportswomen and sports idealists had hoped.

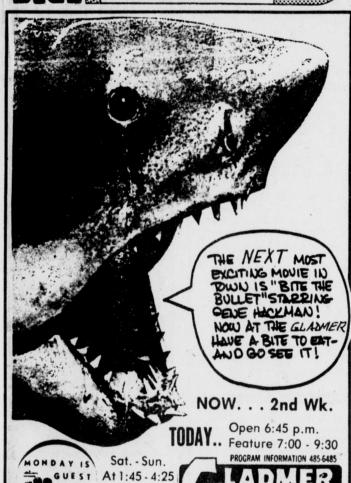

Title IX is a guideline under the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare which was implemented in an effort to ban sexual discrimination in tax supported educational institu-

It states that universities "cannot discriminate on the basis of sex in providing equipment and supplies or in any other way." The provision prohibits discrimination in athletics as well as educational programs at universities.

The MSU sailing club will hold its last regatta of the summer at 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 23. It will be the club championship for the two - man flying junior division.

'Locust' succeeds with biting imagery

By EDD RUDZATS State News Reviewer

The final image in John Schlesinger's film "The Day of the Locust" is a flower stuck in the stucco wall of a Hollywood bungalow - a flower covering the crack left by a mammoth earthquake years before.

It's a fitting image, for the quake that shook the world was the movies and in "The Day of the Locust" the myth of the movies and dream factory it became is demolished, as Nathaniel West's original characters precipitate actions equivalent to the beginning of Armageddon.

"The Day of the Locust" is a searing film, one that makes tell a tale that mirrors the decline of the entire western world as seen through the eyes of West, in his novel, and Schlesinger and Waldo Salt, his screenwriter, in this film.

Schlesinger and Salt also teamed for "Midnight Cowboy" and the results in this latest teaming are of the same caliber. Day of the Locust" floods the brain with visions of a crumbling seedy society, one in which nary a person is left untouched by the illusion of success, romance and glamor that came to be associated with Schlesinger's film deals with a group of characters in the 1930's caught in the manufacuse of some fine performers to tured dream that was Holly-woodland. The main focus in the film lies in an examination Faye Greener, a bitchgoddess figure who ultimately gives way to part-time prostitution while awaiting her big break in the movies. An extra on the studio lots, Faye is the epitome of the glamor struck at that time in history. Her entire life is built around film fantasies which she mistakes for reality, thus spending her existence acting out these fantasies, using bits of dialog that are strictly soap opera to create a life as she would like it to be, full of glamor and polish, but in actuality nowhere near woman caught up in the fantasy that Hollywood was providing

Thus her life becomes a film script where the greatest part to be had is that of Fave Greener, aspiring young actress, and every situation one to to emote in to the fullest, unless reality intrudes to bring the part crashing down to earth.

Entering the scene is Tod Hackett, a college graduate breaking into films through the art department and falling in love with Faye. Tod serves as the viewer's critical eye for much of the film, for his standards are the ones that the others are judged by. The others include a Mad Hatter salesman father to Faye, a Midwesterner doomed to fall victim to Faye's greedy manipulative tendencies, and assorted other Hollywood types such as the film producer and the obnoxious aspiring child star.

These characters swirl through a richly baroque film that demands patience from the viewer because it's difficult to get into unless you take your time for a ride through the seedy, decaying vision that West saw as Hollywood during the '30s. Yet, Schlesinger has a broader intent than to portray a doomed society at a specific period in history. "The Day of the Locust" deals with the loss of love, the corruption of innocence, and the collaspe of dreams. It produces a searing effect as the results produce Armageddon, a time when there is no love, no hope, no human comfort, but rather a destructive, vicious all-consuming attack on the world and humanity.

"The Day of the Locust" is powerful filmmaking, its apocalyptic vision brought home sharply and strongly through Conrad Hall's atmosperhic photography and Ann Roth's evocative costumes. Schlesinger's film is no lark. It presents a view of mankind that is far from pleasant or optimistic, but this view, as presented cinematically, is incredibly well done.

Schlesinger has created a richly sumptuous film that boasts tremendous performances from Karen Black. Burgess Meredith, Donald Sutherland, and newcomer William Atherton.

Black is devastating as Faye the part-time prostitute movie hopeful, delivering a performance that allows her ample opportunity to display her range. Sutherland, while effective in a different role, has moments that don't jell properly, though he manages to convey his character's desperation and brokenness. But it is Atherton who makes an impressive debut in a somewhat lifeless role of Tod Hackett, the narrator figure in the film.

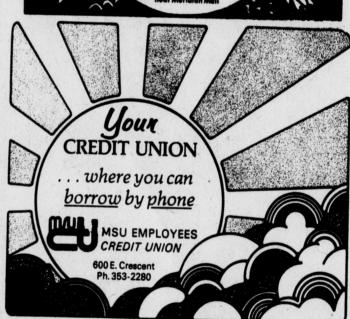

"The Day of the Locust" is a vision of the world gone awry as filtered through the cruelty and coldness of Hollywood and the life style of the era. Yet

Wharton said that his blueribbon committee made up of three faculty members and trustee John Bruff had resumed its own investigation of the MSU football program since the second delay of the Council on Infractions meeting was announced in June.

"We haven't received one single telephone call or letter asking why the NCAA delayed the hearing," Wharton said. "Frankly, I don't know when this thing will be resolved."

Wharton refused to speculate on the verdict of the probe.

Since Wharton announced on April 27 that the NCAA was investigating "certain policies and practices of the MSU football program," local media have run many stories on persons and policies under investigation, including:

This means that it will have virtually no impact on the 1976 primary elections, which will include all members of the legislature seeking re-election.

The bill puts specific limits on campaign spending and contributions except, Republicans charged, in the case of unions and other organizations that may take advantage of the Senate loophole.

It makes Michigan the first state to authorize partial public funding of elections for governor. This would be done through an income tax checkoff system that would allow individuals to contribute $2 and couples $4. The measure also requires lobbyists to report all expenditures on lawmakers over $10, except in the areas of meals and refreshments and disclosure of outside financial interests by officholders as a safeguard against conflict of interest.

The law would be enforced by an independent Political Ethics Commission enpowered to investigate any legitimate complaint it receives about a politician
