'U' releases memo on SWU

By IRA ELLIOTT
State News Staff Writer

The University seems to have wavered just a bit from its self-professed objective stand regarding the Student Workers Union (SWU), with the dissemination of information expressing the possible negative effects of unionization. A four-page memo dated Feb. 25 from Residence Halls Manager Robert Underwood to all residence hall managers and advisers answered questions concerning why a SWU authorization election is being held, the election method and how the election outcome will be determined. The memo has not been released publicly, but its contents were described by Underwood. "I have met with residence hall managers, food service managers, head advisers and grad advisers because we felt students would be asking questions about the union. The memo was addressed to hall managers and advisers and was designed as a means of communication with that group," Underwood said.

reason for not distributing any information in support of, or concerning the union. "I'm sure certain departments would send information to supervisors on how to handle the matter, but they haven't sent out any information other than requirements, like notices of the election," Anderson said. But one student supervisor said Underwood had presented management's point of view to him. "He gave me examples of SWU's demands and the consequences his department felt they would have on the University. He was presenting management's point of view but in an unbiased fashion," Frank Cecil, student supervisor in Akers Hall, said. Asked what he thought SWU's demands would be, Underwood cited as examples sick pay, vacation pay and pay equivalent to full-time employees. SWU has said these matters will be decided by the union membership as a whole. Residence hall officials have been cautioned to state they are discussing their own opinions when questioned about SWU.

"Make sure you preface your words with 'in my opinion SWU would mean this,'" one official said. One residence hall night manager said that he was "dropping hints" about the effects of unionization on the students. "No matter what anybody else says, this will affect the students in the pocketbook in more ways than one," said the manager. The official and the manager both said they were surprised the University has not begun lobbying against the union. "I think it will come, it has to," one said.

ASMSU BOARD VOTES UNANIMOUSLY DPS, MSU facing lawsuit

By CAROLE LEIGH HUTTON
State News Staff Writer

The ASMSU Board unanimously passed a bill Monday night calling for legal action against the Dept. of Public Safety (DPS) and MSU in regard to the search and seizure procedures of the DPS at Pop Entertainment concerts. The bill is the result of a five-month delay over the proposed revisions of the DPS search policy called for by ASMSU after the controversial searching of individuals at the Jethro Tull concert in October. ASMSU President Brian Raymond said that the guidelines used by the DPS are "unconstitutional and clearly in violation of the Fourth Amendment."

"obvious bulges and protrusions" under the garments may also be examined. "Persons possessing alcoholic beverages, metal or glass containers and clublike devices will be allowed to return the items to their cars or homes. The DPS is authorized to confiscate any material that is not removed. ASMSU made some suggested revisions to the policy and then returned it to Nonnamaker's office. Later in November, a meeting was scheduled to "iron out those differences" in the policy, but was cancelled because of the CIA protest on campus. DPS Commander Adam Zutauf said that there has been no further action concerning the policy. "We have had no contact with ASMSU in regards to any revisions. These are our procedures and until the University decides they should be changed they will remain as the guidelines we use," Zutauf said.

After the controversy over the Tull concert, the DPS agreed to put its guidelines into a formal written statement, which was submitted to ASMSU and Vice President of Student Affairs Eldon Nonnamaker. The guidelines issued by the DPS detailed four major points: "The DPS officials may find it necessary to perform cursory examinations of persons entering buildings on University property under control of the board of trustees. "The DPS will meet with the sponsoring organization before the scheduled event to outline the security measures to be taken. "The methods may include "the cursory examination of purses, knapsacks, large handbags, shopping bags, etc., as well as the exterior pockets of jackets, coats and other outerwear." Any Nonnamaker said that he did not recall seeing the proposed ASMSU revisions to the guidelines and has only a copy of the written policy the DPS now uses. Zutauf said that the DPS meets with someone from Pop Entertainment before each concert in accordance with the guidelines. A DPS captain spoke with Jeff Frumkin, advisor to Pop Entertainment, and Louis Hekhuis, director of student governance, before the recent Ted Nugent concert, Zutauf said. Frumkin said that he and Hekhuis were informed that the DPS "would be checking much closer because of the nature of the crowd." However, Frumkin also said that he did not interpret this to mean that each individual would be searched. (continued on page 14)

Early returns show Jackson leading pack

(AP) — Sen. Henry H. Jackson won the Massachusetts presidential primary election Tuesday night and clipped the front-runner's wings from Georgia's Jimmy Carter.

Here are the vote totals for the major candidates in the Massachusetts Democratic presidential preference primary with 1,097 or 51 per cent of the state's 2,187 precincts reporting:

- Jackson 73,478 - 23 per cent
- Wallace 59,779 - 19 per cent
- Udall 54,832 - 17 per cent
- Carter 45,782 - 14 per cent
- Shriver 24,172 - 8 per cent
- Harris 23,910 - 8 per cent
- Bayh 14,948 - 5 per cent
- McCormack 10,876 - 3 per cent
- Shapp 8,879 - 3 per cent
- No Preferences 4,441 - 1 per cent

Legislature queries ERA

(UPI) — Action is under way in both houses of the state legislature to return Michigan's ratification of an Equal Rights Amendment to the federal Constitution guaranteeing equal rights to women. Sen. John A. Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, introduced a resolution Monday night calling for a reconsideration vote on the Equal Rights Amendment.

In Vermont, it was Carter all the way. With 92 per cent of the Vermont's precincts tallied, this was the picture:

- Carter 14,289 or 45 per cent
- Shriver 9,493 or 30 per cent
- Harris 4,747 or 15 per cent
- McCormack had 10 per cent there.

President Ford won without opposition on the Vermont ballot and was outdistancing Republican challenger Ronald Reagan in Massachusetts. Neither Republican candidate campaigned personally in either state, but Ford did have a campaign organization in Massachusetts.

Ford had about 62 percent of the early Republican vote in Massachusetts which could entitle him to 27 of the state's 43 delegates. All three broadcasting networks were projecting Ford as the victor.

MSU prepares slashed budget 'just in case'

By CAROL KLOSE
State News Staff Writer

How to trim more fat from an already carved-up, lean animal is the problem facing MSU's colleges and departments. Once again deans and department heads are being asked to look at their budgets and see what can be cut in case state appropriations for the 1976-77 fiscal year require a University cutback.

All units, both academic and nonacademic, have received a directive from the MSU administration to draw up a "contingency" budget based on a cutback of 5 per cent. University officials say the contingency plans are necessary to provide the University with flexibility, since a drastic cut in state appropriations is expected. MSU has requested $114.7 million from the state for next year but Gov. Milliken has recommended a budget of $89.3 million for the University. MSU officials will meet this week with the legislature's appropriations committees for hearings on the budget, but the University does not expect to know for several months what to expect in funds.

based on the best clues the University has at this time. The directive instructs the departments to include a 5 per cent flexibility in next year's budget while minimizing layoffs and reductions in services and maintaining the operating efficiency of the University. Perrin admitted, however, that the three categories are so broad that most or all of any cuts would have to come within those categories anyway.

Should the cut be implemented the effects on the University would be far-reaching. For faculty and staff it may mean job layoffs. For students it may mean fewer, larger classes. Clarence Winder, the associate provost in charge of the flexibility plans for academic units, said the general impact of such a cut would be larger classes and less section offerings. The University is planning on an enrollment of 43,500 for next fall, 1,000 less than this fall, which may help the situation, he said. However, MSU deans still paint a grim picture of the situation.

Leland Dean, acting dean of the College of Education, said his budget has been cut to the "bare bones" already. The college has taken previous cuts, such as the 1.8 per cent cut this year to make up for a deficit in this year's budget, and the only area left to cut, Dean said, is personnel.

"We laid off 10 secretaries this year and cut graduate assistants by 20 so any more cuts would have to come from the faculty," he said.

"There's no way losses to students aren't going to occur," he continued. "It will mean larger classes or limited sections."

Gardner Jones, associate dean for the College of Business, said his college would probably take cuts in all areas such as faculty, graduate assistants and supplies. He said some courses or sections may have to be cut because they could not be staffed. The college has had a tremendous upsurge in enrollment recently and many students may not be able to get classes the (continued on page 14)

Senate committee approves Scranton

(AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Tuesday approved the nomination of William W. Scranton to be ambassador to the United Nations after Scranton vowed to respond forcefully to criticism from Third World nations. Scranton said that while he will offer cooperation and understanding to all, U.S. action to cut off foreign aid to nations that consistently obstruct legitimate U.S. goals "may be useful in certain places and certain times." But he added that while this tactic might offer useful leverage, "I don't think this is a weapon we'd want to use in great proliferation. We can overdo it. It should be used sparingly."

"Without friends and helpfulness on the other side, our role will be extremely difficult."

Scranton said that while he approves of the way in which his predecessor, Daniel Patrick Moynihan, spoke back to hostile critics, "My style is obviously not like Pat's." Moynihan drew both praise and criticism for his flamboyant performance at the United Nations and the soft-spoken Scranton said Moynihan had succeeded in raising the morale of the American people.

Hearst's defense rests case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a last-minute pitch aimed at shattering the credibility of a government-produced film of Patricia Hearst as bank robber, the defense has rested its case with a stormy accusation of misconduct by the prosecution.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. opened his rebuttal case Tuesday, amid speculation that the trial of the 22-year-old newspaper heiress could go to the jury by week's end.

A surprise prosecution witness, Zigurd Berzins, testified that he saw a woman he identified as Patricia Hearst carrying bullets just before the bank holdup in which the heiress is charged.

The witness was called to the stand in an effort by Browning to contradict Hearst's own testimony that she didn't know whether the gun she carried in the holdup was loaded.

Anti-trust tire suits dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Dept. dropped its anti-monopoly lawsuits against the Goodyear and Firestone tire companies Tuesday because department officials have decided they don't have enough evidence to support the charges.

The department has spent about $1 million on the cases since they were filed in August 1973, against the nation's two largest tire manufacturers.

The civil suits, filed in U.S. District Court in Cleveland, were considered major cases because the department was seeking to restructure the tire industry.

The suits against the tire companies charge them with taking illegal actions to try to monopolize the tire replacement market by lowering prices to the point where it forced smaller competitors out of business.

A stipulation filed with the court allows the government to revive the suits at any time if it sees fit.

Leary denied parole again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. parole board on Monday broke a tie vote and refused to free Dr. Timothy Leary from a 10-year prison sentence for smuggling drugs.

Leary, the former Harvard psychologist who became known as the high priest of LSD, is confined at the federal prison in San Diego, Calif. He has served about one-third of the sentence.

The board voted on the case last Tuesday and reached a 2-2 deadlock.

A Justice Dept. spokesman said the tie did not necessarily mean that two board members voted for parole and two voted against. It could have meant that all members voted against parole but split on when to grant Leary a new hearing, the spokesman said.

The board normally meets in closed session and does not announce its voting breakdown.

Gun control legislation delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee sent a gun control bill back to its subcommittee on crime Tuesday, a move some supporters said would kill the legislation.

Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said he was disappointed by the 17-16 vote. He said he could not predict whether the bill would make it back to the full committee this session.

Another member, Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., said that "they've killed the bill" and that the "rifle lobby intimidated these people."

An intense lobbying effort against the bill had been mounted by the National Rifle Assn. and a trade manufacturers group known as Sporting Arms and Ammunition Society.

Petitions on nuclear fuels filled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three environmental and public interest groups filed petitions Tuesday with the government in an attempt to block a proposed export of U.S. nuclear fuel to India.

The papers were filed with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission by the Natural Resources Defense Council, the Sierra Club and the Union of Concerned Scientists.

The move marked the first time that public groups have intervened in an NRC licensing proceeding concerning nuclear exports.

At issue is some 40,000 pounds of uranium fuel which Edlow International Corp. is seeking to ship to India's Tarapur Atomic Power Station, near Bombay.

About 200 pounds of plutonium would be produced through burning the fuel in Tarapur's two 200-megawatt light water reactors.

The three groups contended that present safeguards are inadequate to insure that India will not divert the plutonium to manufacture of nuclear weapons — as India did to produce its first nuclear device, exploded in May 1974.

Hills denounces budget cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing Secretary Carla Hills said Tuesday a congressional proposal to cut $65 million from her agency's administrative budget would mean dismissing 32 to 38 per cent of its staff, or 5,000 to 6,000 employees.

"Obviously, there is no parallel for such a sudden and drastic reduction in the history of HUD, nor have there been many other agencies which have undergone such a radical reduction, at least in recent years," she told the House housing subcommittee.

President Ford has budgeted $443 million for Dept. of Housing and Urban Development administrative expenses. Traditionally, the item is left flexible instead of being specifically set by Congress.

However, Rep. William Barrett, D-Pa., chairman of the subcommittee, has proposed cutting the authorization to $378 million.

Splinter bands want amnesty

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Renegade soldiers in Lebanon's snow-covered Bekaa Valley are refusing government overtures to surrender, menacing the cease-fire that ended 10 months of civil war.

The heavily armed Moslems demand a public amnesty decree from Premier Rashid Karami as a guarantee of his pledges of good treatment for those who bolted for political reasons.

The most prominent breakaway, Lt. Ahmed Al-Khatib, said he and his 370 men will hold out until "the goals of the impoverished people" are met and religious balance is imposed on the Lebanese army. It has an officer corps that is largely Christian and Western-trained and oriented.

Khatib made his declaration to a Beirut newspaper as a March 1 surrender deadline set by Karami slipped by without any sign that the embarrassing desertion problem was near solution.

The government's inability to recover the deserters dramatized its lack of authority over wide stretches of the country.

Syrian cease-fire supervisors apparently have not forced the issue for fear of upsetting delicate political negotiations for formation of a "national union" government.

But Christian leaders are reported insisting on restoration of state authority before a new government is formed.

The Jan. 22 cease-fire worked out by a Syrian government delegation provides for the return of all Christians, Moslems and Palestinians to the areas they occupied before the war; return of all armed men to their bases; redistribution of political power to end dominance by the Christian minority, and improvement of the Moslems' economic situation. Syria participates in enforcement.

Army desertions began during the civil war, when the 18,000-man Lebanese army was in disarray. Karami refused to use the troops for fear they would split and join Moslem and Christian militias battling across the country.

Some units split anyway, in the Bekaa region near the Syrian border. Khatib, a Moslem, claimed he led his men into revolt because Christian officers used them to support Christian militia forces.

By conservative estimate, a total of more than 1,000 Moslem soldiers left their posts and joined Palestinian guerrillas and leftist Moslem civilians who occupied most of the eastern mountains.

They took with them about 175 vehicles, including tanks, armored personnel carriers, jeeps and trucks plus their machine guns and shoulder-fired rockets.

A half dozen officers, including two majors, formed rebel armies bolstered by recruits among civilian gunmen in the hashish-growing Bekaa area. The largest was Khatib's "Arab Lebanese Army," with about 70 soldiers and 300 civilian recruits.

They preyed on army patrols in the mountainous region, hijacking jeeps and supplies from outnumbered loyal units. After the cease-fire, more than 700 soldiers rejoined units, authoritative sources said, leaving about 300 roaming the mountains with hundreds of civilian lowers.

Karami's promises of treatment two weeks prompted one rebel of Maj. Salim Hamadeh, to approach his fellow breakers for a possible surrender. Reports said his command turned him down.

Memo cited assassination plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former head of the Secret Service confirmed that the late Chief Justice Earl Warren once told him he learned of U.S. plots to kill Cuba's Fidel Castro, but not until three years after the Warren Commission had concluded its investigation into the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

In an interview Monday night, James J. Rowley, who retired in 1973 as director of the Secret Service, also confirmed that he had passed the information on to the FBI in a memo to then-FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Earlier Monday, well-informed sources reported that the Senate intelligence committee had obtained a copy of that memo.

Rowley, vacationing in Florida, said the information had been provided to Warren by an unidentified source at a meeting arranged by the late columnist Drew Pearson.

Rowley was unable to confirm specifics of the memo, saying, "I can't recall the exact words of the text."

The memo provides the first evidence that Warren, who headed the investigation which concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing Kennedy, ever learned of the CIA plots to kill Castro. Rowley's memo was written in 1967, three years after the Warren commission published its conclusions.

Columnist Jack Anderson, who said he also has a copy of the memo, said Monday that Rowley mistakenly told Hoover that Warren also had learned from the source that Castro ordered Kennedy's death in retaliation for the attempts on his own life.

Anderson, a former partner of Pearson's, said the source had direct after-the-fact knowledge of the CIA plots but was only speculating when he told Warren about a possible Castro retaliation.

Rowley said only that, "We tried to do it (the memo) as was presented to us by Warren."

Anderson described the contents of the memo to The Associated Press in an interview Monday after the Las Vegas Sun reported that a secret report in the hands of the Senate committee documented the fact that Castro had ordered Kennedy's assassination and probably that of his brother, Robert.

It could not be determined immediately whether the memo described by Anderson and the report cited by the Sun were the same document.

Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Senate intelligence committee, said the Sun report seemed to involve information published previously in a September 1963 AP dispatch from Havana quoting Castro as saying, "U.S. leaders should think that if they are aiding terrorist plans to eliminate Cuban leaders they themselves will not be safe."

Church added that he has directed his staff to contact Sun publisher Hank Greenspan to see if he has any additional information.

A spokesman for Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., who is heading the intelligence panel's investigation of the Kennedy assassination, refused to confirm or deny the existence of the memo.

Schweiker has questioned how the Warren Commission could have adequately investigated the Kennedy assassination without knowing about CIA efforts to kill Castro.

According to Rowley, Warren had called the Secret Service because the source was unwilling to talk to the FBI. Rowley said that the outcome of his meeting with Warren was that the chief justice "would try to get more specific information from the source." However, Rowley said, the source refused to provide any further information.

Anderson described the following sequence of events:

• In 1967 a source with direct after-the-fact knowledge of the CIA assassination plots admitted their existence to Anderson.

• Anderson gave the information to Pearson, who arranged a meeting between the two and Warren;

• The source told Warren that the CIA had tried to kill Castro and that Castro knew of the attempt;

• The source also offered speculation that John F. Kennedy's death may have been ordered by Castro in retaliation;

• Warren relayed this information on to Hoover, who in turn informed the source's speculation to Warren as a fact.

Nixon offers report of China expedition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon has offered the administration a written report on his recent trip to China, a White House spokesman said Tuesday.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen, responding to a question, said Nixon or an aide called the White House late Monday night to offer the written report.

Nessen said Nixon's report would not be addressed to the White House but rather to the State Dept. Asked if President Ford would see it, Nessen said Ford would see it if State Dept. officials decided it contained something that "needs to be called to President's attention."

Nessen emphasized that the call from San Clemente was taken by Ford or any member of his senior staff but rather someone he described as "a functionary."

On Monday, presidential counselor Rogers Morton said he resented the timing of Nixon's trip. Ford, meanwhile, repeated intention not to de-brief Nixon.

Smoke bill approved

LANSING (UPI) — Legislation that will require restaurants with seating for 50 or more to provide no-smoking areas when requested by their patrons is one step from the governor's desk.

The state House, in an 89-4 vote Monday night, approved a compromise version of legislation aimed at protecting non-smokers' rights.

The compromise will compel restaurants to post signs announcing no-smoking areas, available upon request by a customer.

However, the proposal must still obtain the approval of the Senate.

As originally passed by the House, the measure would have required restaurants to provide permanent no-smoking seating whether or not it was requested by their customers.

The Senate version would have required restaurants to designate and provide a no-smoking area only if requested by a patron and would not have forced them to post a sign advertising the availability of no-smoking seating.

Curriculum report accepted by council

In an exceptionally brief Academic Council meeting Tuesday the proposed University Committee on Curriculum report was accepted without changes, though five students and one faculty member questioned parts of the report.

The curriculum committee report established 33 new courses, made 63 course changes and dropped 19 courses. Most of the dropped courses were in the Dept. of Small Animal Surgery and Medicine, but Milton Steinmueller, chairperson of the committee, said the courses will be replaced by the two new small animal clerkships.

'Stackoff' fad piles up followers

By KAT BROWN
State News Staff Writer

Stackoff, a "Grand Stackoff" at MSU yet, it may soon be streaking, goldfish-like and telephone-like as the latest in college fads.

Stackoff involves piling as many students as possible on top of a standard-sized double bed mattress in 60 seconds with the stackers having to remain on the mattress for a period of 10 seconds after everyone is piled on.

The campus record of 46 students was broken by the band at the University of Cincinnati Saturday when a stackoff was staged after the Cincinnati-San Francisco basketball game.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at Cincinnati was disqualified with 67 men because some of them were touching the floor. The band won a $100 prize for placing first with 47 men, while the second and third place teams received plaques.

"I haven't heard anything about it" was the common reply from sororities, fraternities and student groups polled about mattress stacking at MSU. "It sounds kind of strange," and "I know some guys that might be interested" were the responses of two spokesmen from MSU fraternities.

Kay Stackhouse, asst. director of student activities at MSU, said she has not heard about any planned stackoffs here and does not think it will be one of the big attractions during Greek Week this spring.

Jerry Summerville, asst. athletic director at the University of Cincinnati, said a friend of his in the mattress business originally thought up the idea. They found a standing world record of 57 students piled on a mattress but there was no time limit listed. The total weight was calculated at 9,000 pounds.

Furniture companies in the area backed the twelve groups that registered for the stackoff. Three judges per mattress were used to determine the three sets of finalists. According to Summerville, they are considering holding the contest annually after reviewing the rules.

"Some groups tied ropes around them so they wouldn't fall off," he said. "The only thing I don't want is somebody getting hurt."

Summerville revised the rules of the stackoff because it was getting dangerous.

"We started out allowing groups 90 seconds to pile on, and we got 54 students on one mattress, but people on the bottom were getting squashed," he said. "We had some kids bust capillaries in their chest and near their eyes."

Mike Keefe, a member of the disqualified Sigma Alpha Epsilon team, said they practiced all week for the stackoff.

"I'm a bottom man and we used to try it lying flat on the mattress, but we couldn't breathe on the bottom," he said. "So, we've got a new technique. We get 12 guys sitting on the bottom with our legs interlocked and fists curled up by our chests. That way, we can still breathe when others pile on top and start forming a pyramid."

Keefe said he and his fraternity brothers tried to get a sorority to join them in the stackoff.

"That should make it a lot more fun," he said. "I think it's definitely a co-ed sport."

Since Cincinnati's stackoff, Summerville said he has been getting calls from people all over the U.S. and Canada wanting more information about it.

Social Science 210 and 211 were also dropped because, according to the curriculum committee, the department has been "unable to provide continuity without permanent faculty."

Correction

Front page story Tuesday, Feb. 26, was wrongly attributed to saying he brought "high level legislators" to the state purchase of Frank's. The correct name is Pennington. The article should have said that those who do not have to pay dues would not have to pay dues. Members, how would you gain any union dues and would thus be considered a few equivalent to dues.

ASMSU rep system must be simplified

A controversy has arisen among groups involved in ASMSU over the existence of voting seats on the ASMSU Board filled by representatives of the major governing groups (Interfraternity, Panhellenic and Intercooperative councils and the Residence Halls Assn.).

It has been pointed out that other councils, for example the Council of Black Affairs, the Women's Council and Gay Liberation, do not hold seats, even though they represent more constituents than do some of the governing groups.

A variety of suggestions has been made for reform, including creation of voting representatives of the All-University Council, the Off-Campus Council and the Student Council, and consolidation of Interfraternity and Panhellenic into one Greek seat on the ASMSU Board.

The problem cited is real, but the interests squabbling for seats fail to deal with the true inequity in the present system.

The fault of the ASMSU representation system is that it is not uniform. Some of the seats represent colleges and some living units. As a result, some students are represented more than once. For example, a fraternity member living in a dorm would be represented three times: by the college rep, the Interfraternity rep and the Residence Halls rep.

The solution to the confusion, however, is not to add more seats representing students on the basis of race, gender or sexual preference. The solution is to simplify the system.

The easiest and fairest mode of representation is through colleges. ASMSU should revise its structure to eliminate all other representatives. Moreover, it should attempt to make college apportionment roughly reflective of student number. That is, more seats should be created for the larger colleges.

Finally, all special interest groups, whether they are fraternities, minority councils or chess clubs, could approach ASMSU as independent organizations on an equal footing.

Whatever reason once existed for including "the major governing groups" on the ASMSU Board no longer exists. The call is for reform — let the reform go to the heart of the matter.

Cooperate for cable

There may be real trouble brewing for 6,000 or so East Lansing Cable TV subscribers; trouble that could result in an interruption or decline in services.

Unless the National Cable Co., local subsidiary of the United Cable Co., and the East Lansing government are able to communicate, a great disservice will have transpired.

One of the cable stations, Channel 14, has been discontinued because it has been losing money. The discontinuation of the station could represent a violation of the contract between the city and the company.

At the same time, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) may be prepared to back up the station's termination, since the contract between the city and the United Cable Co. contains clauses not in adherence to FCC guidelines. What the FCC has said about such contracts — contracts which allow the city to have a voice in programming — is that cable companies will go broke trying to satisfy their terms. This is indeed what is happening here.

Thus the FCC has unfortunately been given the right to say "I told you so."

The National Cable Co. has shown an admirable degree of public spiritedness in its programming. It would be unfortunate for the company to lose its earned integrity because of neglecting its communication to the city. And it would be unfortunate for the city to lose the company's services.

But the city must recognize the company should not provide services found economically unfeasible. Regardless of the FCC, both move to settle the mess heading off intervention by a powerful federal agency and recognizing local latitude in the Such federal intervention summing the FCC does just jurisdiction over cable, would no one. The city, the subscribers and the company positive image all stand to

To settle productively entailed concessions by both The city would have to recognize militance with regard to sanctity of its existing contract and the United Cable Co. would come out from behind the strings of the FCC. Both move, and both must show will. A new, more realistic tract is in order — one provides maximum service to citizens, but one which does not make unreasonable demands of the company.

Carter must now address the issues

Mary McGroary

BOSTON — Jimmy Carter came into Massachusetts with the wind at his back. But New Hampshire's only clear winner didn't stay long.

The morning after his victory, the telephone canvassers at his Tremont Street headquarters had switched from their diffident "Could you support Jimmy Carter?" to the bolder, "Would you vote for Jimmy Carter?" The money was coming "easier," according to a volunteer fundraiser. But nobody was promising an encore.

Rumors of a personal and media blitz that swept New Hampshire's political centers on primary night did not materialize. The candidate stuck to his original "tentative" plan for half a day of campaigning, and the advertising budget was only modestly increased.

Let victory speak for itself seemed to be the strategy.

"He has spent only 80 hours in the state," said his scheduler, Mikki Ehrenfeld, which sounded like a nod to the gods in case the front runner encountered any track trouble.

If he should take it all in Massachusetts, of course, he would just about wrap up the Democratic nomination, which he says is inevitable. It would mean that Carter had overcome the resistance of the country's most demanding liberals and its most acute politicians.

That's a tall order. The way things are set up in this curious procedure, there are two separate contests: one liberal, one conservative. Carter would have to win them both. Otherwise, the candidate who comes in second could claim, as Morris Udall did last Tuesday, that he is still the leader of the left.

Carter insists that he is neither liberal nor conservative. Up in "Our Town" country, he just smiled and said he wasn't from Washington and would never lie. Here, that might not be quite enough.

He has pockets of liberal chic in Massachusetts, as elsewhere. But the old activist peace crowd, which was waiting for Frank Church, has largely swung over to Udall on the say-so of Archibald Cox, the revered Watergate figure.

Although endorsements in general have meant little since Edmund Muskie made history's largest collection in 1972, Archibald Cox's made a crucial difference.

"If Udall is Archie Cox's man," said a liberal Democrat, who was ready to work for Church, "maybe he's mine."

Jerome Grossman, the leader of this group, was twice approached by Carter. His endorsement would mean more to Carter than Cox's did to Udall. But Grossman, while he approves of Carter's stand on nuclear disarmament, declined to give his blessing. He does not regard Carter as a liberal, and sees little difference among the four on the left. He is remaining neutral.

On the right, Carter is competing for the traditional Democrats who do not read the fine print, with Henry Jackson, who has spent much time and money in the Bay State.

Jackson, who has had little success with his own enterprises, has appointed himself a one-man "Stop Carter" movement. In New Hampshire, when confronted with Jackson's charge that he is "two-faced," Carter unzipped his most radiant smile and heaped praise on his admired old friend — with subtle emphasis on the "old." But on arriving in Massachusetts, he deplored Jackson's retreat from his past as a civil rights advocate and environmentalist.

Nor was it right, Carter added, for Jackson to suggest that others were not opposed to school busing. Jackson recently took a full-page newspaper ad to stress his opposition. Carter, characteristically, is for school busing in the country, but not in the city, which is where it counts. It is agitated white parents of East South Boston and Charlestown.

That is where George Wallace high and drawing overflow crowd noisy rallies. Carter wants to take on in Florida, not in this volatile cluttered situation.

Massachusetts, in short, is a hard for Carter to keep it simple. He stay soft on the issues — "the disappointment people," an aide explains. But he has one quality that much admired here if it were more known. He is hard on politics. Shriver claims the Kennedy connection is the true inheritor of the political style.

Like Kennedy in 1960, when he proclaimed their favorite son Carter says he is coming to the anyway.

He is by far the most single-minded contender in this crowded of the liberals who suspect he is a con the politicians who are dubious Southern governors decide that the most important thing about him, the opt for giving him what he was getting the whole thing over with Washington Star

LETTERS To the Editor

News analyses

I was very surprised at Ira Elliott's article about the conflict between the University and the Student Workers Union, dated Feb. 20.

The article itself was interesting, but what was it doing on the front page? I always thought articles that expressed opinions and made conjectures were editorials and belonged on the Opinion Page.

This article was listed as an "analysis." Can someone explain what kinds of items go under that heading?

I am trying to make a rational decision whether or not to support the union. In order to do this I depend on this newspaper to list facts as facts and opinions as opinions.

Just in case my trust is misplaced, though, please remember to print this letter on the opinion page.

Pete Vanden Bosch

stories, which present the facts without interpretation. — Ed.

Olin treatment

Last week I had my first encounter with Olin Health Center's Gynecological Clinic and I am still angry.

First, after the usual long wait, Dr. Barrette came in, student in tow. He did introduce the student but didn't ask my permission to expose myself to the student.

Next he did the pap smear with the speed of an assembly line man. He then exposed my upper torso and did the usual breast check explaining to the student that he did it this way because it was faster.

I finally got a word in and asked him what the bumps were on my inner thighs. Naturally he hadn't seen them and had to relook. He mumbled some medical jargon and told me to get dressed. I finally got it out of the nurse that I had to make an appointment downstairs, they only did pap smears up there.

I realize Dr. Barrette is extremely busy, but while working on his vaginal assembly line he should keep in mind there are women connected and we are human beings with modesty and feelings.

Name withheld because of personal subject matter

Withdrawal

This shall serve as a formal notice of my withdrawal from the ASMSU presidential race; it is directed to the Elections Commission, to the State News, and to the general student body, as well as extant presidential candidates.

Due largely to unforeseen financial problems, I will not be enrolled in class next term; this precludes my previous plans to campaign for the presidency.

At this time I would like to thank my friends and coworkers at the ASMSU Legal Services office—particularly Bob Stark and Dave Hill—and "at home"—on 6th floor W. McDonel Hall—whose support and encouragement first led me to consider the campaign and strengthened my decision.

And further, I ask of any of those voters who had intended to support me, that they consider the Counterforce nominee for president, Mike Lenz. In our discussions he and I found substantial congruence in viewpoints on major issues and plans.

State of 'U'

I read with interest the article by your drama critic covering President Wharton's State of the University Address on Feb. 19, 1976. It would seem that the paper went to be entertained.

I was there to hear the President's views and to honor the graduate students, young faculty and my distinguished colleagues who received the recognition they so richly deserved for their dedication to students of Michigan State.

I found it an informative speech and a pleasant occasion.

Home advantage

In most sports, on the college level, be it football or hockey (my loves), you could always count on an advantage for the home team. This did not seem to be the case recently at MSU.

VIEWPOINT: STUDENT WORKERS

Charges answered by SWU

By JOHN FORSLIN

Motivated in large part by the letters printed in this space on Feb. 22 and 26, I believe there are four preliminary items which need to be examined before they interfere with the real issues of our unionization effort.

1. There seems to be a popular and wild misconception about the existence of SWU. The union exists; it has existed for some time now and has been active in obtaining and supplying information to student workers and assisting in the pursuit of grievances.

The union currently does not have the power to bargain collectively on behalf of student workers, and that is what the certification election is all about. Now, as the Civil War adage used to put it, the first step in making possum pie is catching the possum. Similarly, the first step in certifying a union for collective bargaining is to have a union.

As a functioning union, we have unavoidable expenses — lawyers, office supplies, phones and such — which need to be paid in money, some of which is supplied through individual donations and voluntary dues, as requested in our last two mailings, and some of which is supplied from organizations, such as ASMSU and AFSCME. We are now almost totally dependent on contributions and dues, and these are voluntary and appreciated in any amount.

Signing the card signifies that you are a member of the union. Signing the card is also the best protection for student workers against "unusual" administrative actions for suspected union involvement . . . or any other reason not directly related to work performance.

That is, your risk of being abruptly terminated is dramatically lowered by being on record as a union participant.

It is certainly true that there are work places in which this would simply never be a problem, where grievances seldom arise and are quickly resolved when they do. But there are other work places where these utopian conditions simply do not apply, and are not likely to apply without some sort of organized pressure from the workers. If you are an employee in a great work place, that's fine; but by signing your card and paying all or part of the voluntary dues, you can help all of us.

2. We are not a bunch of crazed revolutionaries. Our major demands are likely to be in the areas of working condition (job safety, job security, discrimination, a rationalized grievance procedure) rather than being a grab for money.

Our December survey of student workers (for which we received an astonishing 12 per cent return, and for which we are very grateful) revealed that about half of all student workers were happy with their rates of pay, and that a small fraction actually thought that they were overpaid and were concerned about getting so many raises.

On the other hand, there are also many students who work below or near minimum wage, and are doing the grubbist, nastiest work, and for whom adjustments are certainly needed.

We have no interest whatever in bankrupting the University, the State of Michigan or the student body, and we will make no attempt to do so. In fact, I personally suspect that much of the cost of these proposed wage increases can be defrayed by efficiencies proposed by student workers themselves, who often have a far better idea of what can be done than supervision gives them credit for. There will also be a saving in loss through pilferage if student workers do not feel they are getting ripped off in their paychecks.

3. Contrary to rumors and reports which have been circulating among certain campus administrators, we have no interest in "shutting down the University" by means of a strike. Strikes are very difficult to organize, boring to participate in, hard on the feet and cost employees work hours, which means money. How could we possibly benefit from such an action?

A strike is a serious action, not to be entered into lightly, and to be resorted to only in the last extremity. They are avoidable evil.

4. We claim neither that all workers are industrious, nor that Stakhanovites nor are all MSU workers slaveholds ruled by snarling bosses claim that all student workers — even in wonderful workplaces — would be off if the University could be completely specify publicly what it expects us what we are supposed to get when along with pertinent criteria for raises, dismissals and job promotions, and to which they can be expected.

Favoritism is a fine system favorites, but it is awfully nonfavorites.

The issues of unionization are not and some are quite complex. If you have questions or comments, SWU wants from you. We can be reached by mail (39423), by campus mail (321 Services Bldg.) or in person (we meet Sunday evening).

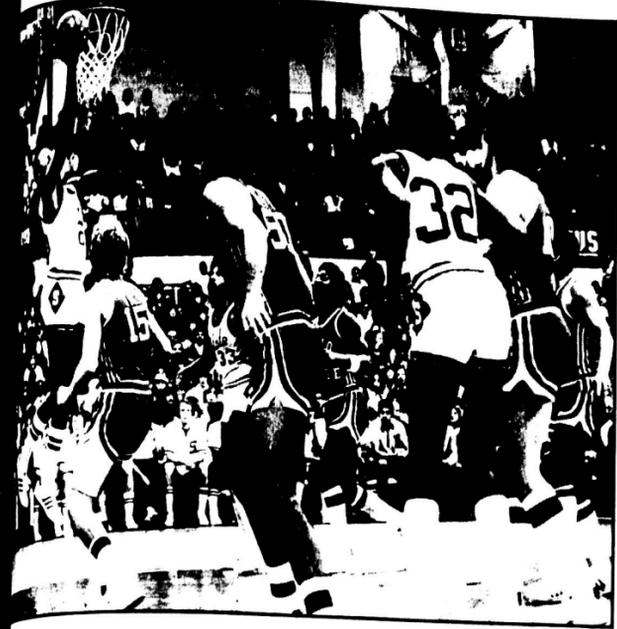

We are not a wild-eyed clique not a band of thugs (contrary to our cartoons) and we actively seek a flow of information and ideas with the city community. We resent argument hominem, and we prefer to do rumor and innuendo.

We are convinced that on every SWU position will make more student workers than the University. We therefore urge student workers to sign their cards and to vote "yes" referendum.

By the way, Mr. Kirsch . . . as kitchen supervisor, we wonder real value of your position is. In as a supervisor, you are not eligible and we would hope that any comments you have to make about be more directed to the issues at

A gathering in excess of 6,000 direct their venom toward the tall, graceful player. Each time the ball is in his possession the enemy rooters chant, "Shoot. Shoot. Shoot." Yet the pleas go ignored. The determination grows in the player's action. Thirty-five points worth of determination, to be exact. But 35 points within a total effort as evidenced by his defensive performance efforts against the enemy's top scorer. The same player is involved in an encounter with the opposition's star, Rick Schmidt. The taller Schmidt places several elbows into his opponent's body. Finally the cager in green delivers a blow to the taller Schmidt.

Furlow's pride and desire carried over to the East Lansing campus and eventually resulted in some problems. The pride and desire which dominates Furlow's life was parlayed into effort — effort not only in game action, but on the practice floor as well. MSU Head Basketball Coach Gus Ganakas elaborated, "I don't think Terry realized that other players on the same team didn't put forth as much in practice as he did. This was something that Terry couldn't understand. "He expected everyone else to push as hard as he was doing," the Spartan mentor elaborated. "He had to learn that certain players pace themselves in certain ways." Ganakas disagreed with any thoughts that Furlow has changed his outlook since last year when the entire Spartan team suffered through a traumatic period. "In my opinion, Furlow reached a level of maturity between his sophomore and junior seasons. He became adjusted to the demands of college ball and he began to understand the responsibilities last year. "It was unfortunate that those bad things happened last season. But the Terry Furlow you see today is the same Terry Furlow you saw last year. He hasn't changed," Ganakas added.

On Rick Schmidt: "People don't realize that he was pushing me around on the court. I finally became fed up and retaliated. Sure, I admit it was wrong. But at the time, nothing was made of it. In fact, we talked to each other after the game and the incident wasn't mentioned. It was his mother who pressed the issue." On the altercation with his teammate: "He was taunting me continuously. You can only take so much. So I let him have it. He then went and got a piece of wood and came after me. "The next thing I know, he's pressing legal charges. If anyone had the right to press charges it should have been me." Despite the negative occurrences of last season, Furlow agrees that he's benefited from what has happened. "I think I've grown as a person. And, I'm still growing. The one thing you can say about me and the team this year is that last year helped all of us become men. Sure, we had problems in the past. But we faced up to those problems and didn't run away from them," he mused in reference to several former teammates who opted to transfer following last season's fiasco. When this season's individual statistics were mentioned to Furlow, he cautioned the interviewer, "When one player does something good, he gets the credit. And when one player does something bad fans criticize the individual player. Basketball is a team game, man. Sure, I'm doing well this year, but the team isn't doing all that good. That concerns me. We win as a team and we lose as a team. If I have a good game and we win, fine.

It is that trait which has carried the MSU senior from junior varsity status in his junior year at Flint Northern to the lofty echelon of becoming the Spartans' all-time leading scorer and a bonafide All-American candidate. "I felt that I was good enough to play on the varsity in my junior year in high school," Furlow commented. "But we had some damn good players on that team. I just never stopped working and went to Dave Bing's summer camp between my junior and senior years," Furlow continued, while staring at the floor, obviously reminiscing. "At Bing's camp I picked up various fundamentals and they helped in my final year at (Flint) Northern. I didn't start that year, but I was the first one off the bench." That Northern team rolled to the state championship and produced Furlow for MSU and Wayman Britt for Michigan.

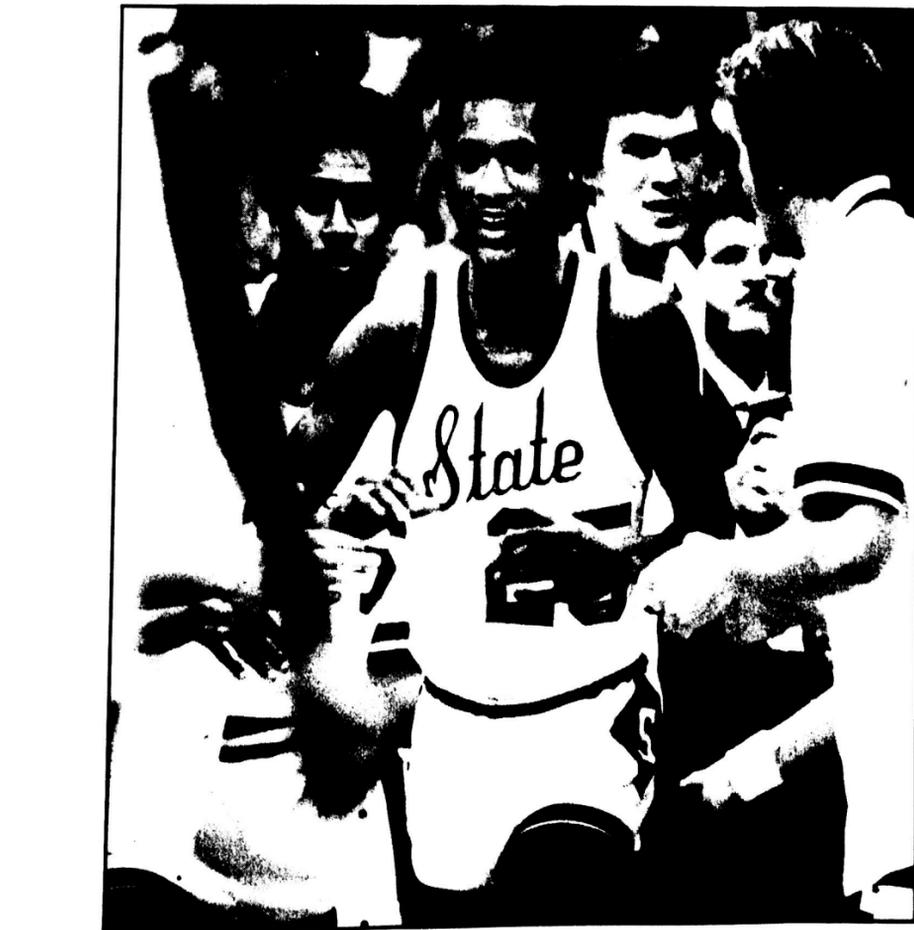

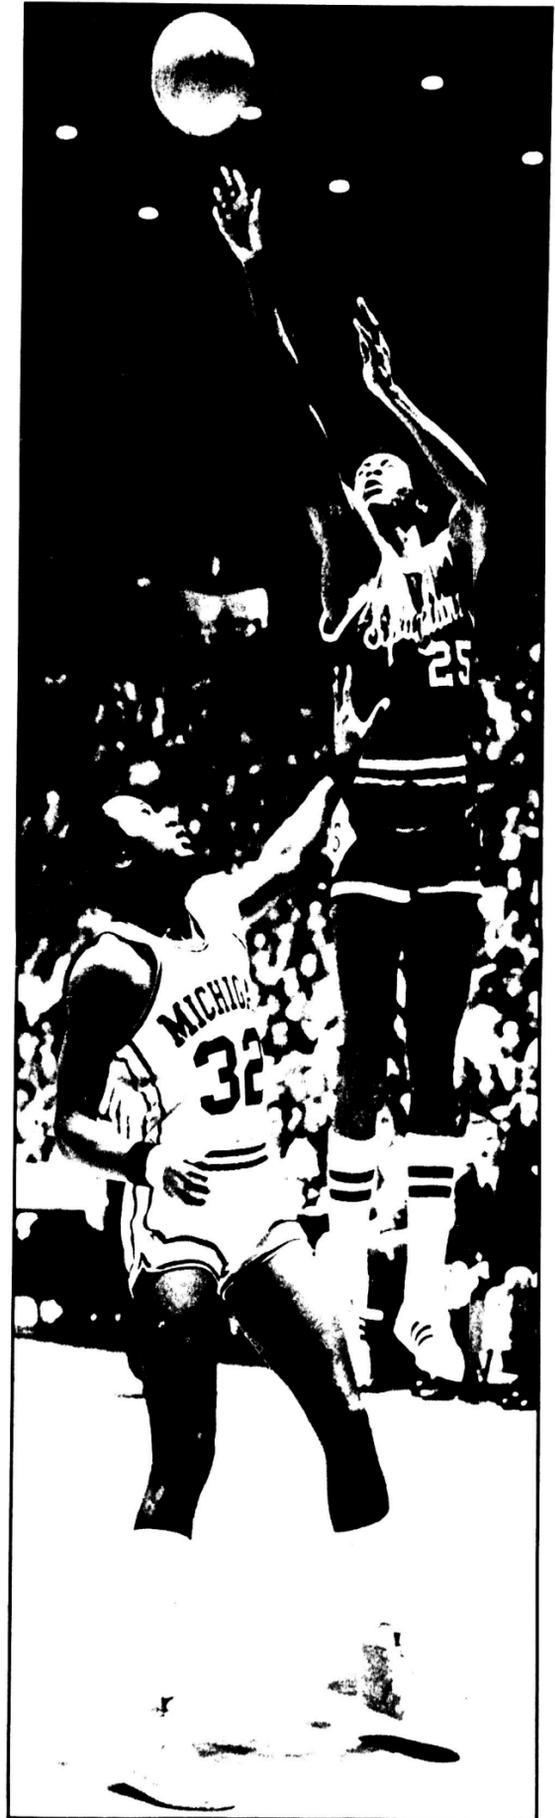

"But," he continued in rapid fashion, warning to the subject, "if it's necessary for me to score zero points in order for Michigan State to win, that's OK with me." The true motivation behind the 6-foot-5 forward's accomplishment remains in Flint. "My mother gave me my motivation and desire in life," Furlow declared. # Campbell Karate Club instruction helps fight rise in rape incidents

By NANCY LONNIE
Not all MSU women sit around too scared to go out alone at night.

The club, designed primarily to teach self-defense mechanisms because of the rising incidents of rape on campus, is concentrating particularly on karate movements.

The girls in Campbell for one hour twice a week. The two are members of the private Original Okinawa Karate Club of East Lansing.

The Campbell club is small as of yet, but members agree that what they are learning is not only practical for their physical safety, but karate is tremendous exercise as well. Karate stresses the stretching of muscles and muscle control.

of the fields of nuclear power and tenant protection. Other programs will be available, but they have not yet been decided on.

with PIRGIM's professional staff of researchers, lobbyists, organizers and attorneys. Up to $650 will be paid to each intern to cover his living expenses in Lansing. For interns in the college work-study program, higher pay will be available. Applications are available at any PIRGIM office for interested persons to construct a resume. A letter containing current address, phone number relevant job experience, a sample of writing skill, names and contact information of at least two references and a brief description of interest areas in social change should be included.

"Our aim is to teach the girls adequate means of self-defense," said Mendelsohn. "But we do not treat the girls special. We treat men and women as equal individuals. Some men are strong and others are not; the same thing goes for women."

"We don't ask anyone to do anything they can't do," he added. "But we do encourage a lot if we feel they can push harder."

The Campbell Hall Karate Club is not exclusively for Campbell residents. It is open to other dorms as well — men and women alike.

The cost per term is $15, which includes two hours a week of instruction and time to practice at the Women's I.M. Building when the Original Okinawa instructors teach there two others days a week.

Prospective members should contact Joan Reeser, 133 Campbell Hall.

International Women's Day to be observed by council

A holiday that has gone somewhat unrecognized until the recent resurgence of American women will be celebrated by the ASMSU Women's Council this Saturday—International Women's Day.

Entertainment will also be provided by the Street Corner Society, which will perform a play entitled "Woman Play" and The Creative Women's Co-Op which will give poetry readings.

The council will present workshops and display booths from various women's organizations from noon to 5 p.m. on the third floor of the Union.

The Women's Council will provide a supervised area for children. Those wishing to take advantage of it should contact Lorrie King at 355-0018.

Among the workshops being featured are "The Implications of Rape," "Women's Self Help Health Care," "Women and Divorce" and "Women, Work and Labor Unions."

Any person or organization wishing to sponsor a display or to help organize the celebration should also contact King.

Handymen dream up jogging a Inventors never get any respect. Automobiles, airplanes and jogging gloves were all ridiculed when they were first proposed. But automobiles and airplanes have become realities and, according to Roland Sabara and George Vurdelja, two MSU sophomores, so will jogging gloves.

"It's a great idea," Vurdelja said. "People wear shoes on their feet when they walk on them. They should wear our gloves when they walk on their hands."

"We figure to have several types of gloves," Sabara said. "We'll have a poly-steel radial tread for the jogger who needs better traction and longer wear. The gloves will come with optional studs and chains for use on snow and ice. If this catches on, we'll put out a sprinter's shoe with tread only on the fingertips. Who knows, we might even try a soccer glove."

The two roommates in 511 North Case Hall differ on how they got the idea. Sabara said, "I want to walk on my hands from my room to the cafeteria by the end of the term so I can hand my meal pass to the attendant with my toes. But they require shoes in the cafeteria so I'd have to wear something on my hands."

"I saw Roland walking down the hall with his hands one night and I just asked him when he'd be able to come out jogging with me. I promised to get him a pair of gloves and he wouldn't rip up his hands on the sidewalks," Vurdelja said.

The pair has tested the idea by having Sabara walk down the hall with slippers on his hands.

Sabara's interest in walking on his hands began when he saw Burt Lancaster do one-handed handstand in a movie. He exercises by walking on his hands for about 60 feet each day.

The two are planning to invest in a start-up and send the proposal to the Adidas tennis shoe company.

Though Sabara and Vurdelja don't doubt that their idea is a good one, they wonder how many people would be able to use jogging gloves.

"After all, who'd really use these things?" Sabara said. "There's me and Burt Lancaster. And he only needs one glove."

Aspirants clash in primaries

dential nominating votes, and 43 Republican. In Vermont, the primary was only for show, with no national convention delegates bound by the outcome.

The Massachusetts system is proportional in both parties, with the Republican delegation split to match the statewide popular vote. The Democrats award 26 nominating votes in proportion to the statewide race; the other 78 are divided in accord with the order of finish each of the 12 congressional districts.

It was the first Democratic primary to match all the national candidates, and the first outing for Wallace, who made a major show of it. He staged 17 of his patented political rallies, with country and western music to warm up the crowds, then his set speech denouncing "the elitists and culture merchants" and bureaucrats and federal judges.

That latter point was a major one in Boston, where a federal court order for school busing to integrate the schools of South Boston has led to explosive controversy and sometimes to violent demonstrations.

Wallace came on strong against a federal government he said was too concerned with "social experiments, busin' little children around" to concern itself with the real problems of jobs, prices, crime.

In a lower key, Jackson and Carter also spoke out against court-ordered busing.

Udall, Bayh and the others talked about that issue only when asked, campaigning instead for government jobs to put the unemployed back to work, for petroleum price controls and anti-trust action they said would curb New England's traditionally high fuel bills.

There was a bit of primary day campaigning, but for the most part, the candidates fell silent as the voters spoke.

Official figures on the New Hampshire balloting etched the strategic problems confronting the Democrats. Carter wound up with 28 per cent of the vote and the win that put him ahead of the field. Udall got 23 per cent and claimed to be atop the lineup of liberal Democrats. Bayh had 15 per cent, and acknowledged that if he ran that far behind in Massachusetts, it spelled trouble.

Harris got 11 per cent in New Hampshire, and said what he needed was to show signs of moving ahead. And Shriver, brother-in-law of Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, trailed with eight per cent, which left him badly in need of a comeback in the state where he is tied to the dominant Democratic family. Carter spent relatively little time on his campaign to parlay Massachusetts with the New Hampshire victory. He made a two-stop swing last Friday, then left his campaign to an organization that is not nearly as potent as the one he put together in New Hampshire.

Jackson, on the other hand, put on a big Massachusetts push, expected to cost nearly $500,000. He and Bayh both went on the attack against Carter. Indeed, that offensive became a staple of the late Bayh campaign, the Indiana senator accusing Carter of sounding like a Republican on such issues as federal public service employment legislation.

Furlow: picture of dedication

Continued from page 5) you have to work hard for what you want out of life. I've always had the time to work right from wrong."

Looking toward the future, Furlow admits the possibility of a professional basketball career.

Last summer the Memphis team of the ABA drafted me. It was a rough decision, but I had to look at the overall picture. I can play pro ball in the future," he noted. "I'm not going to be an adjustment. I want to play in the NBA. It's the best competition. I know that would take work on my part, but I'm willing to do that work.

"But for right now I want to concentrate on playing ball at Michigan State. Before I'm done, my goal is to be the best player to have ever played at MSU."

With that, Furlow exited the locker room to display his pride and desire before his Greek coach in yet another practice session.

Somehow, the negative occurrences of just one short season ago seemed far removed as Terry Furlow the man and player walked through that door, basketball in hand.

Art faculty show has ups, downs

Artful construction

Twenty eight members of the MSU Art Faculty will be exhibiting their artwork until March 14. Shown is James Lawton's "Landscape 3-2-1" brass sculpture with Nancy Stackhouse's "Tides" series of acrylics and water colors in the background.

By JOAN M. SUDOL
Special Reviewer

"UFO Writer (With Help From Planet Koros)" and "Hand & Hand Into The Uranium Sunset" are not titles of the latest science fiction thrillers. Rather, they are the titles of two Robert Alexander photographs which are on display at the MSU Art Faculty Exhibit at Kresge Art Gallery.

Alexander, a professor of art who teaches photography and industrial design, has done much more than give bizarre titles to his color photographs. He has produced photographs that are nothing less than exquisite — photographs that are imaginative in subject matter, rich in color and excellent in technical quality.

Alexander uses some sort of dye process in the photographic developing state which transforms the real into the fantastic. Colors and forms take on new dimensions and give his photographs an other-worldly character.

He uses ordinary objects as his subject matter — plants, lockers, a Rolls Royce — which become oddly changed into new designs and forms after undergoing the dye process. For example, in "The Owl and The Pussycat," two tape dispensers with a bottle of ink between them become transformed into an owl and a pussycat in vibrant blues and purples.

The most unique thing about Alexander's photographs is that when viewing them it is possible to see both the before and after, the real and the unreal. The Kresge Gallery would do well to exhibit more of this unusual photographer's works instead of the photographic drivel that has been displayed of late.

Robert Weil, an associate professor of art who teaches sculpture, also is displaying some unusual works. Unfortunately, his sculptures are unusual to the point of almost lacking aesthetic sense. Maybe his "message" just skims over the normal person's head. When viewing the sculptures, one can only ask, "Is he putting us on?"

The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language defines "art" as "human effort to imitate, supplement, alter or counteract the work of nature." It might be useful to keep this definition in mind when viewing Weil's works. Otherwise, one may be of the opinion that it is not art at all.

His sculpture, "Fibonacci Chops (Tennessee Stud With Tuxedo)," is a case in point. It consists of a metal crossbar with various metal pieces painted gold, red or yellow leaning against it or standing by it. Distributed underneath the whole structure there is raked sand in which some childish viewers have written such niceties as "lousy" and have autographed it with hand and foot prints.

If Weil intended this sculpture as a joke, he has succeeded. No one seems to pass by it without eliciting some wry comment or giggle. And this is not an isolated example of his work. All of his sculptures on exhibit are as bizarre, or more so. Perhaps he should start putting printed explanations of his works next to them, so that the viewer can at least try to understand the point he is attempting to make.

The light installation, "Late Piece," by Arlene Sheer, an assistant professor of art who teaches graphic design, is another unusual work on exhibit. But this one makes a lot more sense.

In this installation, a red light comes out of a black contraption and is reflected in weird designs onto the white arch formation that encloses it. A strange humming, buzzing, but musical noise is also emitted from it.

Benches are set up in front of the installation for those who wish to groove on it. People into transcendental meditation will love it, and people who just need a relaxing moment will be pleasantly surprised at the strangely hypnotic effect it has.

Twenty-eight artists are represented in the exhibit which will run through Mar. 14. The variety of artwork displayed is vast — there are fine serigraphs by James McConnell that are little larger than postage stamps all the way to large-scale abstracts which cover wall.

A good proportion of the exhibit is innovative and intriguing. Some of it is quite good. But it's worth seeing. And how often is it that one sees a "Tennessee Stud Tuxedo?"

Pop Entertainment concert set

By DAVE DIMARTINO
State News Reporter

The Electric Light Orchestra and Journey will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Monday in the MSU Auditorium.

The dual performances should be two of the finest shows seen here in months. Both the Electric Light Orchestra and Journey are excellent bands. Though E.L.O. is the more commercially successful of the two, Journey seems to be on its way to equal fame.

Tickets for the show are being sold at the Union Ticket Office for $5.50 and $6.50.

The Electric Light Orchestra is an unusual aggregation for several reasons. First, it is one of the very few bands that manages to sell millions of records while maintaining its status as a "critic's band." In other words, the group is successful at both the critical and commercial level — something very few rock and roll bands can claim.

The group's origins are interesting. Originally known as the Move, the group, with multi-instrumentalist Roy Wood at the helm, recorded four albums and several singles and attracted much attention in Great Britain, its homeland. In that time, the Move's personnel shifted about considerably. The group's third album, "Looking On," brought former Idle Race member guitarist Jeff Lynne into the Move's ranks, where he stayed with Roy Wood through "Message From the Country" and the classic single, "Do Ya."

Because of Wood's and Lynne's decision to change the Move's rockish foundations, the group's name was changed to the Electric Light Orchestra. From the searing electric guitar that was so prominent on their classic "Shazam" LP, the new E.L.O. incorporated cellos, violas, bassoons and oboes as their new lead instruments.

Orchestra, "No Answer," was a strange combination of basically Move-ish songwriting and very unusual instrumentation.

Because of a small riff between Wood and Lynne, Lynne felt slightly cheated that he received almost all the credit for the "No Answer" material. The pair split up, leaving Lynne in the group and Roy Wood to form a new group, Wizzard.

The rivalry between the two continued while, most notably in Wood's answer to ELO's first hit record, a remake of Chuck Berry's "Bend Over, Beethoven." Wood's follow up, "Stand By Me," was cute, but not as standbly, didn't do too well in the record charts.

Since E.L.O.'s "Beethoven" success, the group has recorded three very successful LPs including "On The Third Day," the surprisingly successful "Eldorado" and their newest, "Face The Music." Their current hit, "Evil Woman," is doing well to insure the new album's longevity on charts. Both "Face The Music" and "Eldorado" have attained gold status, and the Electric Light Orchestra, unlike the earlier Move, have attained great prominence here in the U.S.

Journey is a San Francisco Bay area band that has recorded two albums for Columbia Records. Guitarist Neal Schon and organist Gregg Gonsky of Santana, joined forces with Ross Valory and George Tickner (both of an earlier version of the Steve Miller Band) and drummer, keyboardist and producer, Steve Perry, to form Journey. The group, which seems to be one of California's brightest hopes at the moment.

The group is rumored to put on a superb show, thus their double-billing next Monday should be very interesting.

Know why we carry Advent speakers?
Because they're terrific, all four of them. You can spend a tubful of money and not do nearly as well.

The reason that Advent speakers have become the standards of value in the stereo business is that they do exactly what they are represented to do.

They weren't designed in imitation of anyone else's, or to make a broad line of speakers with entries every ten dollars or so to make sure to get everyone's money. What they do is what you really hoped for, at a price that's less than you expected to pay.

There are four Advents. The original, which costs $500 to $1320 depending on cabinet finish, was designed to compete with the most expensive speakers in every audible respect for a fraction of their price. The Smaller Advents, which cost $890, have the same range as the originals (not close, but the same) and essentially the same sound, but they won't play quite as loud. The new Advent 3's which cost $500, come within a half-octave at the bottom end of the other two (plenty low enough for the heaviest rock stuff and virtually everything else), and are the lowest-priced speakers you can find with absolutely convincing overall sound.

Bowl title goes to fast wits

By MICKI MAYNARD
State News Staff Writer

It takes concentration, quick fingers and the knowledge of a plethora of trivial facts to be a champion College Bowl team. The Wonders Hall team of Mark Lachowicz, John Richmond, Mark Moore and captain Cliff Fox put all three together Monday night to become the 1976 MSU College Bowl champions. It was not an easy victory for "Wonderlust" as they called themselves. The challengers, John Redmont, Matt Mason, J. B. McCombs and Kevin Dowd from Snyder-Phillips Hall, put up a battle throughout the match.

The two teams went through a long series of elimination matches to get to the finals, on the dorm and university-wide levels.

Moderator Ken Franklin, sounding like Johnny Carson with a quick cony wit and booming voice, warned Monday's audience against shouting answers or even mouthing them.

"We've had some very talented teams with lipreaders," he said. After preliminary problems with the buzzer system, which Franklin designed, the match began. The audience of around 250 filled half of B-108 Wells Hall, where the championship took place.

The Wonders team answered the first question, and soon jumped out to an early 95-10 lead, dealing with such questions as "Who made up the second triumvirate in Rome in 44 B.C.?" "Them guys look like Einstein," one girl in the audience said during a break in the action.

"They're all intellectuals," her friend whispered back.

There was a difference in the way the two teams approached the competition. Wonderlust wore green-and-gold football jerseys, and chomped bubble gum, while Snyder Phillips team members wore ivy league suits and scribbled anxiously with Mark Cross pens.

Wonders brought a cheering section that rose to their feet at half-time with the score Wonders, 125-Snyder-Phillips, 95. "Just keep relaxed, guys," the Wonders resident assistant told his floor members.

Moderator Franklin ran up and down the aisles, and came back to announce that he had collected $40 in bribes.

"But since $20 is from Wonders, and $20 is from Snyder-Phillips, I have to keep my impartiality," he said.

The second half began with both sides tense. A controversy arose when the Wonders team answered a question about the plays of Aeschylus. Captain Fox named one play as "The Furies" and challenged when Franklin said the correct answer was the "Eumenides."

"I believe the 'Eumenides' is alternately called 'The Furies,'" Fox said.

The College Bowl scorekeeper ran to the telephone to call The Answer Place, the official compiler of all College Bowl questions, and found that Fox was right.

It was smooth sailing from there on for Wonders.

Franklin said the MSU College Bowl champion will probably receive a trophy for their efforts. But more than that, Wonderlust may be on television next fall if the original College Bowl show returns to the airwaves.

"Don Reed Productions (the producers of the show) are about an inch away from deciding to put the show back on TV," Franklin said. "If they do make up their minds, the team will train during spring term and head up to New York this summer."

West Indian Student Assn. offers programs dealing with island life

The West Indian Student Assn. is now making available to the public several programs that can be used for meetings, seminars and other functions.

The club is also offering a list of subjects from which seminars could be put together. These include discussions on the cultural life of the West Indies and how it relates to life in the United States.

He said the West Indian programs are available to schools, community groups and any other organization that would like to use them. For more information, Gardner can be reached at 373-0510 during the day and at 355-0869 during the evening.

Although the club does not yet have its own audio-visual equipment, Gardner said it will probably obtain some in the near future.

Staff positions available for 1977 Red Cedar Log

Spartans secure 17 gridders

By EDWARD L. RONDERS
State News Sports Writer

The MSU football staff disregarded the fertile recruiting grounds of Ohio while signing 17 high school gridders to letters of intent.

Only two preps from the Buckeye state chose MSU, while 13 are from Michigan.

The prize recruiting catch was quarterback Mike Marshall of Detroit Southwestern. The 6-foot 170-pound Marshall was recruited by more than 200 colleges prior to choosing MSU. Marshall, who led Southwestern to the state finals last season, has not only served as signal-caller, but punter, kicker and kick returner as well.

He was named to several All-American prep teams last season.

Asst. coach Sherm Lewis, who recruited Marshall for MSU, noted, "Mike's strength is in his versatility. He can do so many things and do them well."

Lewis cautioned Spartan fans not to expect Marshall to lead MSU to the promised land. "Mike has a lot to learn about our style of play and our system. He has a lot of work ahead of him. But, one of his strong traits is that he's eager to learn and very eager to work. We didn't promise him a starting position, and he knows he'll only go as far as he's willing to work," Lewis commented.

The recent NCAA sanctions against MSU did hamper the total recruiting effort of the Spartan staff. Lewis, for example, concentrated on the Detroit area in lieu of going to several other states where he normally searches for talent. "I realized the negative publicity about the NCAA last summer. That's why I concentrated on Detroit," Lewis said.

Head coach Denny Stolz echoed Lewis' thoughts saying, "We are extremely pleased with the results of our recruiting. It was very commendable of our staff to overcome so many negative aspects and recruit such a fine group of prospective student athletes.

"The results show that high school athletes are not nearly so concerned about postseason competition as adults are. They tend to choose their schools for other reasons, such as getting a good education, feeling at home and liking the coaches and the football program," Stolz said.

MSU has two remaining tenders available, bringing the total to 20, which is 10 less than the normal allotment due to the NCAA sanctions against MSU.

Other prep stars who signed letters of intent with MSU include: Edward Abbott, Romulus, Mich., defensive line; Mark Anderson, Akron, Ohio, offensive back; Terry Anderson, Detroit, Mich., offensive back; Rick Audas, Saginaw, Mich., offensive line; Dan Bass, Bath, Mich., defensive line; Mark Brammer, Traverse City, Mich., offensive line; Al Davis, Berkley, Mich., defensive back and Angelo Fields, Wash., D.C., offensive line.

Also signing were Matt Foster, Livonia, Mich., offensive line; Harry Hagstrom, Cadillac, Mich., offensive line; Jeff Hewitt, Ypsilanti, Mich., defensive line; Mark Jones, Ypsilanti, Mich., offensive back; Mark Marana, Ispembin, Mich., offensive back; Steve Otis, Chicago, Ill., defensive line; Jim Prendergast, Grand Rapids, Mich., defensive back, and Rod Strata, Canton, Ohio, offensive line.

Spartan hockey coach Amo Bessone will be honored Friday night at Munn Arena for 25 years of coaching and service to MSU. Bessone has held the Spartan head coaching job since 1951, has one NCAA and three Big Ten crowns to his credit and holds a 328-357-137 record.

Ashe to play exhibition

"Advantage Kids" will be the theme Monday when tennis great Arthur Ashe meets formidable Dennis Ralston in an exhibition match in Jenison Fieldhouse.

The match, set to start at 7:30 p.m., is sponsored by the Greater Lansing Tennis Patrons, an organization whose purpose is funding youth tennis programs.

Ashe, currently rated as top tennis player in the world, earned a reported $327,000 in 1975, a year that included an upset victory over Jimmy Connors at Wimbledon and the World Championship Tennis crown.

Ralston achieved No. 1 world ratings in the mid-60s and captained the U.S. Davis Cup team in 1972 through 1974. He recently returned to the professional ranks as he teamed up with Rod Laver in January to win the U.S. Pro Indoor doubles championship in Philadelphia.

Proceeds from the match will go in part to the Patron's program, while the rest will be split among MSU tennis teams and tennis programs of the College of Urban Development.

The appearance will mark the fifth time that Ashe has visited the central Michigan area. He came to MSU twice in the mid-60s for the NCAA championships and an exhibition and was here about a year ago speaking on South Africa at a luncheon sponsored by Dr. Robert L. Green, dean of the College of Urban Development. Both Ashe and Ralston have a long history of successful years in tennis. Ashe captured his first national title at age 17 when he won the National Junior Indoor Singles. As an amateur, he then beat Tom Okker in the U.S. Open and soon after turned professional.

Ralston was the National Jaycees Boys 18 and under champion in 1958 and NCAA singles and doubles champion 1963 and 1964. He also won a Wimbledon doubles title when he teamed with Rafael Osuna.

Ashe and Ralston teamed in 1971 at Wimbledon but lost to Laver and Roy Emerson in the finals.

Both players have Davis Cup experience as Ashe holds a 26-4 overall match record and Ralston is 29-9.

Prior to Monday's match, Ashe will compete in World Cup team competition against Australia in Hartford, Conn., Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Ashe is also currently one of the hottest competitors in World Championship Tennis as he has lost only one WCT match this year.

Tickets for the match are $2 for students and $7 general admission in advance. Sales at the door will be $1 extra. Tickets are on sale at Jenison Fieldhouse.

Organization, ejections are major IM problems

By TOM SHANAHAN
Organizing and directing more than 500 teams and 4,500 players participating in intramural sports causes many problems. And the people responsible for solving these problems are asst. IM sports director Tom VanderWeele and graduate assistant Ernie Burkeen.

Some of the major problems they encounter include trying to schedule such a large number of teams and handling flare-ups that occur between players and referees. Scheduling problems are merely a matter of paper work for the two directors to solve.

"It takes about a week of sitting up to one or two o'clock to get the schedules out," Burkeen said.

Allowing a flexible schedule that permits teams to list times they prefer not to play is another reason that scheduling is such a long process.

But the biggest problem is dealing with players ejected from games. "It is the least enjoyable part of the job," VanderWeele said.

Basketball is the sport that has the most incidents, because of the enclosed atmosphere and because it is harder to officiate. In the first three weeks of basketball season there were 12 players kicked out of games, six for harassment of the officials and six for fighting other players.

No one has taken a swing at a referee yet this year, but this has happened in other terms. When it does happen, the directors have to contact the player and suspend him for the year.

"The odd thing about it," VanderWeele said, "is that many of them have played in high school and wouldn't even have thought of doing it then." For others, who didn't play in high school, it is an ego thing. Burkeen called it a "showcase where there is peer pressure."

VanderWeele added, "Here it is a living situation where many feel they can't back down." Most of the problems come from the players being frustrated by the officiating.

Burkeen agreed that some of the referees lack ability but also said that they're limited in getting good officials.

"We just don't get enough people interested and we don't have enough time to train them," he said, adding that they have better referees working by the time playoffs come around.

The leagues are competitive, but as VanderWeele said, "some guys take it too seriously and lose perspective totally." This is usually where the troubles begin.

This is why the IM department created a recreational B league in the 1974 school year.

The league was specifically created for the lesser skilled and those who don't want to take the games seriously. The league also eliminates the "win at all costs" attitude, because the B league has no playoffs.

It has been a success at MSU and, according to a survey the department took last year, most teams are using it as the recreational league it was designed to be.

VanderWeele has even done a study on the league and presented it at a National Conference of Intramural Directors meeting.

Titling it, "Recreational Leagues as a Viable Supplement to Competitive Leagues in Intramurals," he cited not only the satisfaction of many players but a decrease in problems caused by competitive leagues.

Problems such as teams using ineligible players, screaming at referees and fighting with other teams, among themselves, and even fans, can be included in causing disruptions.

Although the B league doesn't have the same competitive element of the dorm league, fraternity league and the A league, VanderWeele pointed out that it is not an inferior league in value to the purpose of IM sports.

"It still meets the needs of a large body of individuals," he said.

But the problems will still exist in the other leagues, and VanderWeele and Burkeen will continue to work on them. As Burkeen said, "All we can do is ask them to be a little more considerate to the refs and keep the fun in the game."

25 years for Bessone

By MIKE JENKINS
State News Sports Writer

Spartan hockey coach Amo Bessone will be honored for 25 years of service to MSU at a special pre-game ceremony Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Munn Arena.

"It was a big surprise to me," Bessone said Tuesday. "The first thing I heard about it was when someone at the State News called and told me about it. I never expected anything like this."

Coach Bessone began his coaching career at Westfield High School in Westfield, Mass., in 1946 and went on to the head coaching job at Michigan Tech in 1948. Bessone took his first job at MSU three years later and, since then, has amassed a 328-357-137 record.

Named "Coach of the Year" by the National College Hockey Coaches Assn. in 1966 after his Spartans captured the NCAA championship, Bessone-led teams also have taken three Big Ten crowns, in 1966-67, 1970-71 and 1972-73 (a tie).

The Spartan hockey pilot played varsity hockey at the University of Illinois where he graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in 1943. Bessone played professional hockey with the Providence Reds of the American Hockey League.

Asked about plans for retiring, Bessone said, "Not unless they give me a nice job on the golf course. That's where everyone goes when they retire and everybody's already beat me to it."

"But seriously, I'm not up for retirement for another four years and I think it will be time then to step down and give a younger guy a chance. I'd like to see Alex (coach Terpay) get the job. He's a good coach and a good coach. Maybe I better retire pretty soon so we don't lose him."

But coach Bessone said he still enjoys the game too much to give it up right now. "This year's team has given me as much pleasure as any of the others. I've enjoyed them all. You can't help but enjoy a place like Michigan State."

Bessone said that coaching is only half of his job, that education is as important as the sport.

"In all the years I've been coaching here I've only had about eight or nine kids that haven't graduated and, after all, that's what we're here for, to see that our athletes get an education. Without hockey and scholarships, a lot of kids would never even get to college. That's what I'm proudest of."

Friday's festivities will include a greeting from either President Wharton or another representative of the University; the reading of a resolution to coach Bessone from the Michigan House of Representatives; a proclamation from Gov. Milliken and the presentation of a portrait of the Spartan coach to the Varsity Alumni and plaque to coach Bessone from the Blue Line Club.

Jerry Marshall, the "voice of Spartan hockey" will emcee the program which is scheduled to begin just prior to the Spartans game with U-M. WKAR-TV Channel 23 will broadcast the ceremony and game along with WFMK 99 FM WKAR 90.5 FM and WMSN (the Michigan State Network) 640 AM.

Icers third in poll; Tech holds to first

HANCOCK (UPI) — Michigan Tech, which clinched the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. championship last weekend, has retained its hold atop the college hockey coaches weekly poll.

The Huskies, leaders in the poll for most of the season, drew nine of the 10 first place ballots and totaled 99 points to finish ahead of Boston University.

Michigan Tech has led the ratings for the past five weeks. There were no major shifts but MSU moved up to third place past New Hampshire though both teams swept weekend series.

The ratings announced by station WMPH (records in parentheses):

1. Michigan Tech (9) (27-8)
2. Boston U (11) (20-3)
3. MSU (20-14-1)
4. New Hampshire (24-5)
5. Minnesota (22-13-1)
6. Brown (18-5)
7. Michigan (19-15)
8. Bowling Green (21-7-1)
9. Notre Dame (18-14-2)
10. tie Clarkson (16-11-1) tie Cornell (15-8-1)

I.M. Notes

Entries for the Women's IM Team Swim Meet to be held Thursday at 6:30 p.m. must be turned in to the Women's IM Building by noon Wednesday. Entry forms are available at the office. Any changes in entries must be reported to the Clerk of Course on the pool deck when participants are asked to report prior to the running of the event.

The meet will be held for six or more teams. If six teams do not enter by the deadline, the meet will be canceled.

Final winners will determine league winners.

Each residence may enter four women in each event and two teams in the team events. Individuals cannot participate in more than three swimming events in the meet.

Budget slashes prepared

(continued from page 1) term they want them, he added. "Enrollment has outrun funding," Jones said. "We have increased class size but classes over here were substantially oversized already. Yet we've absorbed even more students." A 5 per cent cut would affect students in areas besides academics. Ted Simon, asst. vice president of the Physical Plant, said it doesn't appear that the plant can make such a cutback without cutting services. "We think we're just about hit rock bottom," he said. "There isn't much more we can cut without closing facilities, such as a wing of a building or a whole building."

Physical Plant is down 35 per cent from 10 years ago and though layoffs have been avoided, not everyone who has left the Physical Plant has been replaced.

"There are some basic things that have to be done, such as repairing heating equipment, roofing and broken windows," he said. "There is no way of stopping equipment from breaking down other than closing buildings and wings."

ERA studied

(continued from page 1) Hunsinger said ERA would invalidate laws requiring husbands to support their wives, subject women to equal military obligations in war and eliminate all-women's colleges and other organizations. "It's not fair to make women equally liable for the support of the family when their obligations within the home directly affect their earning capacity."

Residence hall services would not be affected if the cut was implemented, Robert Underwood, manager of residence halls said, because the halls are funded by student room and board rates, not from the general fund.

"Still, we are always looking for ways to cut expenses to avoid having to raise rates," he said.

Even if it is necessary to implement the cuts, officials said, it is difficult to pinpoint which areas will be most affected. Though the contingency plan calls for 5 per cent cuts in all areas, some areas may take more and some less, depending on their priority. But until the legislature hands down the verdict, the carving knife is poised, ready to trim the carcass that must feed the educational needs of over 40,000 students.

Indian province alters tradition

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The northern state of Punjab Tuesday banned marriage dowries, an ancient practice that has driven unmarried girls to suicide and wiped out family fortunes in a single day.

The new law also bans ostentatious weddings with large processions, displays of wealth and lavish feasting, all common in Indian marriages.

The state legislative assembly passed a bill that would punish offenders with one to three years in jail and fines of $120.

Traditionally, parents of prospective brides must offer dowries ranging as high as $12,000, depending on the status of the groom.

DPS, MSU facing lawsuit

In a statement to the ASMSU Board Monday night, Raymond said that his office was beginning legal action immediately. The course of action that will be taken is not yet known but consultation with attorneys was planned to begin as soon as possible.

Raymond said the purpose of the bill was to "shift responsibility back to ASMSU where it belongs and to allow the DPS to act within the confines of the law."
