Udall packs 'em in at MSU

By JEFF MERRELL JOE KING State News Staff Writers

The band played a song about Tennessee and the speaker was from Arizona, but it didn't seem to bother the Michigan folk in the MSU Men's intramural Building Thursday night.

Democratic presidential hopeful Morris Udall addressed 2,500 MSU students in his bid to come up with a surprise win over front runner Jimmy Carter in the May 18 Michigan primary.
"This state could turn it around," Udall

"This could be one of the historic events of 1976 if we can take this Carter bandwagon and turn it around." Udall said. "This could be one of the historic events of 1976 if we can take this Carter bandwagon and turn it around."

The lanky Arizona Congressman opened up the evening by displaying his well-noted sense of humor. Udall smiled and waved as he stepped to the podium and the crowd "Thank you very much for the warm welcome and I accept the nomination," he

His trip to Lansing came on the third of ten days' Udall plans to spend in an effort to win his first primary. He began the day in Detroit, flew to Grand Rapids and Lansing, and was scheduled to move on to Flint late Thursday night.

Udall spent most of his time lambasting former Georgia governor Carter, but also talked about the issues he accuses Carter of avoiding, and Republican candidates Ronald Reagan and President Ford.

Udall also challenged Carter to a debate in Michigan.

"He owes us some information on where he stands, he said. "Jimmy's off picking his cabinet and writing his inaugural address. I guess I'n going to be here for the next ten days, and the people of Michigan are going to have a choice as far as I'm concerned," Udall

He once again challenged Carter to address six key issues, including cost of natural gas, competition in the oil industry, health insurance, union shops, welfare reform, and elimination of federal agencies

"I'm going to give $100 to any reporter or taxpayer who can get six straight answers from Jimmy Carter," he said. "If he gets three of the answers he gets a free paid vacation to Plains, Georgia Udall criticized both Carter and Ford for not developing a program to put unem-ployed people back to work. 'Gerald Ford has no plans to put these people to work, and as far as I can tell Jimmy Carter doesn't either," he said. Carter's campaign emphasis on "love brotherhood and harmony also brought on some criticism from Udall

"I can just see Jimmy Carter saying Exxon, if you and Shell come down to Washington I'm going to love you a little compete," he said.

Udall also explained that Carter, during his campaign, has come out both for and against several issues, including federal takeover of welfare, recovery of strip mined land, large oil companies, and

"If Ford and Carter are the nominees and abortion is the issue you'll have all points of view represented. Ford in the middle and Carter on both sides," he said. Addressing the issue of the economy,

Udall said every 30 years someone needs to come along and "Straighten out our economy and make it work

Ford's campaign manager confident of Michigan win

By JEFF MERRELL State News Staff Writer

President Ford's campaign manager tag ged Ronald Reagan as an "opportunist" and said Ford had a "better than even money chance" to win the May 18 Michigan

Rogers Morton, speaking to reporters before a luncheon at the Lansing Country Club with area Republicans Thursday, criticized the Reagan tactic of soliciting former supporters of Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Cross-over votes from ex-Wallace supporters have helped Reagan pick up victories in Texas and Indiana.

"They're opportunists, of course. They saw the Wallace campaign eroding and they saw that it's up for grabs," Morton said. "I don't think the Michigan Republicans want the Wallace Democrats taking their party away from them." Morton conceded, however, that Democrats crossing-over to vote on the Republican side of the Michigan primary will have an impact but some of it may be in Ford's

"Everyone is apprehensive about a big cross-over, but I think the cross-over will be well divided," he said.

On the recent Reagan victory in Indiana. Morton said an intense campaign by Reagan, the cross-over vote and a low party turnout hurt Ford. He said an effort would be made in Michigan to encourage a high party turnout.

Morton also said he is confident that Michigan Republicans know what they have to do to insure a Ford victory in his home state

"I think they learned a lesson in Indiana," he said. Reagan currently leads Ford in commit ted delegates with 360 to Ford's 292, but Morton said that of the 329 officially uncommitted delegates, the majority have said they support Ford.

And though Morton predicted a tight race all the way to the Republican Party convention, he was confident of Ford's strength in Michigan. "I think we've got a better than even money chance of winning it (Michigan) and getting a majority of delegates," he said, adding that Michigan is an important state psychologically, as well as for its 84 delegates. When asked if it was possible for Reagan to beat the President in his home state Morton replied, "I don't have a crystal ball. I'm not a soothsayer."

Ford's campaign plans for Michigan thus far include one upcoming appearance in the state, and Morton said he did not know how much he could step up the campaign.

Morton cited Ford's busy schedule in Washington, D.C., as hindering intense campaign efforts, and said "you always rob Peter to pay Paul" when campaigning time

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission ruled Thursday that the Chrysler Corp. misled the public about the fuel economy of its small cars two years ago and ordered the auto giant not to do it again

The FTC said Chrysler's commercials had "a tendency and capacity" of leading the public to believe that Popular Science magazine had found all Chrysler models superior to all the Chevrolet models.

Kidnaping conspiracy disclosed

ROME (AP) — The leader of the right-wing faction of Italy's centrist Liberal party and his assistant were arrested Thursday on charges of conspiracy against the state. Police said the two belonged to a group that had planned to kidnap President Giovanni Leone in August 1974

Edgardo Sogno, a former ambassador, and his assistant, Luigi Cavallo, were taken to prison by the anti-terrorist squad. Ten other persons were told they were under investigation on the same charges.

The Communist-line daily Paese Sera said Sogno and his associates planned to kidnap Leone at his summer residence near Rome and impose "a violent turn to the right" in Italy. In addition, Italy's lame duck government imposed the strictest postwar curbs on the flow of money from Italy Thursday to stop the lira's tailspin before an election showdown with the Communists next month.

Congressional conferees House again denia agree on budget ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) -Senate-House conferees agreed Thursday on a 1977 budget ceiling of $413.3 billion, which includes nearly the same amount that President Ford asked for defense spending.

The congressional budget is $17.5 billion more than the Ford Administration proposed. The difference is primarily aimed at programs designed to stimulate

The budget is based on continuing current income tax cuts and no increase in Social Security taxes. Democrats say the congressional budget would result in lower inflation and less employment than the Presi-

The budget anticipates federal revenues totaling $362.5 billion, leaving a deficit of $50.8 billion during the fiscal year that begins on Oct. 1. That compares with Ford's planned deficit of $44.6 billion on total spending of $395.8 billion.

Under new procedures designed to force Congress to look at the overall government spending instead of individual expenditures, the figures approved by the conferees will be targets for the House and Senate as they consider specific legislative programs over the next four months.

The figures for 17 broad categories of government spending will be revised by Sept. 15 and then will become binding ceilings on spending in the new year.

Both houses will complete action on the target figures The 23 conferees spent most of the three-day meeting in discussing differences over defense spending. They agreed to spend $100.8

billion for national defense in fiscal 1977 and $112.5 billion in total defense budgetary authority, which includes money to be spent in 1977 as well as some that will be contracted for in 1977 but spent in later years. The congressional total of $100.8 billion is only $300 million less than Ford requested. A majority of Republicans and Democrats in Congress apparently agree with Ford that the United States must not allow defense spend ing to drop to a level that could put the nation in a position inferior to the Soviet Union.

Democrats say the congressional budget will create one million more jobs than Ford's proposed spending program. Arnold Packer, chief economist for the Senate Budget Committee, said the jobcreation programs will cut employment to 6 per cent by the end of 1977, compared with 7-per-cent under the Ford plan.

The congressional fiscal plan will mean a 5.5 per cent hike in inflation in 1977, while Ford's would result in a 6 per cent increase, Packer said.

The spending plan envisioned by the conferees will mean a 6 per cent real growth in the total goods and services produced in this country next year, Packer said. The Ford Administration projects a 5.7 per-cent increase, but Democrats say the President's budget would mean no more than a 4.4 per cent boost.

In agreeing to the $413.3billion spending total, the con-ferees assumed that the individual tax cuts due to expire on June 30 will be continued at current levels, meaning without the $11 billion additional cut proposed by the Administra-

Admissions examined in 3 medical schools

State News Staff Writer If you're hoping to get into one of MSU's medical schools, you're hoping along with thousands of other students. But the future may become brighter as a result of recent close scrutiny of MSU's medical schools programs.

The admissions procedures of the College of Human Medicine, the College of Osteo pathic Medicine and the College of Veterinary Medicine have recently been examined, notably by the MSU Board of Trustees, because of the extremely large number of applicants compared to the number of student slots in each college each year. The appropriateness and effectiveness of the three colleges' affirmative action programs, which seek to improve medical education for minorities, have also been questioned.

Each of the colleges made presentations in April to the trustees, resulting in a resolution from the board prohibiting student admissions to the medical schools through political or personal pressure. The trustees acted to prohibit "dean's admits," by which students could be accepted into a medical program through the personal choice of the dean of the college, rather than going through usual college admissions

Based on a March executive order estimate, higher education will be slashed by at least $11 million from its present $468 million budget. MSU was headed for a minimum of $2.2 million cut from its current $87 million budget. Miller said the March estimate was Bernier, director of admissions for the College of Osteopathic Medicine. "It will make it a fair and equitable process for everyone-and that can only be looked upon positively. There are special favors asked for, asking for special consideration, but I can't answer for you how that surfaces. There aren't any set number of slots set out for political admits."

Myron Magen, dean of osteopathic medicine, said the 100 or so yearly admissions are all "dean's admits" in that he has final approval over the recommendations of the admissions committee.

But, regardless of what medical school ou're interested in, students must still fight the droves of competitors for the limited number of slots—and each college has its own complicated admission pro-

Students seeking admission to one of the medical schools are asked to go through several examinations, including, depending upon the program, such things as a three-page autobiography, lengthy personal interviews and the Medical College Admission Test (MCAT) which costs $25 and takes five hours.

The College of Human Medicine received 2,600 applications last year, but only 105 students could be accepted. For Osteo-pathic medicine's 100 places there were about 2,000 applicants this year. Chances are better in veterinary medicine—that college received between 600 and 700 applications for the 115 students who were accepted last year.

One thing is clear when applying to medical school. In state residents have the advantage. In veterinary medicine only five out-of-state residents were admitted last year. In the College of Human Medicine, 85 per cent of the applicants chosen are in-state, while the College of Osteopathic Medicine accepts 80 per cent Michigan residents.

Because of the large number of students turned away from admission to the medical schools, the board of trustees criticized allowing large numbers of students enter ing "pre-med" or "pre-vet" programs, only to pursue other careers.

The medical schools were also called upon to explain the affirmative action programs in terms of implementation and effective ness. Affirmative action was first officiallimplemented as a written program at MSC in 1970. Since then the minority student enrollment has risen nearly 33 per cent and is now at about 8 per cent of the student

The College of Osteopathic Medicine has been most successful in the area of affirmative action with the federally funded Milliken tells committee Minority Comprehensive Support Program, the objectives of which are to increase the number of minority candidates for admission and to lessen the disadvantages of applicants due to educational background.

> Director of Admissions Bernier said the program is in recruitment and retention. Futorial services, provided to all students in osteopathic medicine, are more assertive presented to minorities, he said. Any body with a 2.5 grade point average or better is eligible for admission to the college, Bernier said, but special consideration is given to minorities. There were 23 minority students admitted for next year out of 100. The program does not apply to women, but Bernier said the college is encouraging qualified women to apply. Thirty women were accepted for next year.

Judith Krupka, director of admissions for the College of Human Medicine, said that college has a strong commitment to considering applicants from populations currently underrepresented in medicine. but the admissions committee does not have a separate review system for minority applicants. The class entering in 1975 has an enrollment of 25 per cent black. Spanish speaking and native American students, up from 20 per cent in 1974.

John Welser, dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine, said only two to three per cent of the admissions to that college are minorities.

Admissions are done totally by computer," Welser said. "Affirmative action is extremely poor in vet med; it has not been

Day care to remain 1968?

It's election year and during election year, one can always trust the politicians to keep two ears and an eve and a half on the campaign. We all know the result: the needs of a nation unheard and virtually unseen.

This was likely the case with the child day-care bill. The Senate failed by three votes to override President Ford's veto of the $125 million package, threatening the solvency of day-care centers throughout the U.S.

Ford, of course, had a convenient excuse: the money would make no quantitative changes in day-care centers. What the money would have done was allow daycare centers to implement, at long last, standards which were legislated eight years ago. Now Washington is scurrying about trying to find some way to postpone the implementation of those standards, which would affect staffing and safety if they ever get funded.

If the standards are not postponed, day-care centers around the country will fold like newsprint, since the money required to meet them will continue to be unavailable. The standards would change child-adult ratios so that they would range from 1 to 1 for infants to 1 to 7 for four to six year olds. Also affected would be safety standards in day-care centers. The question central to all of this politicking is the one which will now be sloughed off until October and possibly beyond: when will the money be made available for day-care centers nationwide to implement the 1968 standards?

The Married Students Activities Unit Day-Care Center already has a 1 to 5 ratio, not because it must comply with regulations, but because it is felt that such a ratio is better for children. We believe this is correct.

This is precisely the central question: the quality of child care. The standards were passed in 1968; when do we as a nation intend to bring child day care up to

An overdue change

The Tri-County Regional Planning Commission (TCRPC) is being forced to do something it should have done long ago — allow for a policy of open membership for cities within its area.

An ultimatum by federal and state agencies has threatened to withhold funds unless the commission institutes a policy of open membership, an ultimatum the commission must comply with if it is to continue to exist.

Ironic as it may seem, the TCRPC has long been the target of a concerted and vigilant campaign by East Lansing officials urging it to change its membership regulations. But the commission has continually resisted these efforts.

Arguments for open membership given by local and unrepresented governmental units within the Tri-County jurisdiction were not any less convincing then than they are now. By allowing smaller units of government to be represented on the commission the beneficial resources offered by the TCRPC can be more equally bestowed on the entire Tri-County

Now the commission is being pressed to act, but it cannot hide from the fact that this should have been and could have been done long ago.

The system may break Carter

The poll tells us that if Sen. Humphrey had run in Pennsylvania, he would have achieved one half the vote, well ahead of Carter. Yawn. In the first place, we can't know whether that is true. In the process of running in behalf of oneself, inevitably one runs against somebody else. What Humphrey would have achieved if he had hypothetically run can be very different from what he would have achieved had he actually run. Sen. Humphrey in recent days has all but taken a blood oath to the labor unions, tonsured himself, donned coveralls and lunch-box and said: "Tell me what to do." It is altogether conceivable that if he had run in his present posture, even in a state as heavily unionized as Pennsylvania, he'd have been rejected. After all, we are talking about the man who lost to McGovern in California, who in turn lost to Nixon in the biggest

An unexamined aspect of the success of McGovern is that his mystery reflects nicely the difficulties Democrats have in being concrete. When a typical Democrat promises full employment without inflation, or full and "free" medical care, the public begins, finally, to sense that it is being trafficked with. Jimmy Carter is now only less than concrete, he seems to take the position that it is somehow vulgar to be concrete. When he is forced to take a direct stand on an issue - forced, for instance, in front of labor union tribunals to drink to the repeal of 14B — then he appears to be doing so less out of conviction than out of good nature. A matter of indulgence. "If you want to go to the World Series that bad, sonny, why I'll just dig into mah savings and get you a ticket."

Thus, to a black audience, I immy Carter announces that he is for school integration. And to a white audience, he says he is against forced busing. In fact the two positions are not always incompatible. In fact, Jimmy Carter hasn't said what his position is in such parts of the United States where the two positions are indeed incompatible. South Boston, for instance. He would prefer to urge his listeners to believe that under his leadership tensions would dissolve: why should anybody be mad at anybody else, when Jimmy Carter isn't mad at anybody, and loves us all equally?

I tell you, brothers and sisters, it is a formidable posture. And it is in my judgment, and in the judgment of men more practiced in cynicism (the sharp-eyed, sharp-tongued Richard Reeves, for just one example), entirely sincere, even if it is amorphous. I happen myself to believe in the coming of the Lord, but I do not believe that the Lord takes an emphatic moral position on 14B, even if I believe that if Jimmy Carter wanted to exclude all but theological arguments, I could make a monkey out of him in a debate on 14B.

It is most commonly assumed that religion is mere incantation. nice ritual, suitable for baptisms, weddings and funerals, and best delivered by Hallmark. Carter says it in an entirely different context. "In 1967, I had a profound religious experience that changed my life. I accepted Christ into my life."

That, really, is a terrifying statement. And I do not doubt that it the source of the awe and horror some people are experiencing as Carter heads for the nomination, all but secured by his victory Pennsylvania. The prospect of a President who would attempt to rule according to the Word is not only anti-cosmopolitan, it is in the nature of heresy against the commandments of the secular state. Could it be that a President Carter would come out against a particular measure on the grounds that he thought it wrong?

That is the nature of the Carter problem. It is likelier that the system will break him, rather than that he will break the system. quite possible that the general temper of his indulgence would bring him to stress good nature to the breaking-point of discipline. It has been calculated that, while governor, the whole of his administrative indulgences was equal to more than the sum of its parsimonious parts. Promise them simplicity, and a decent austerity and give them Macy's window. He will be pressed to the wall in the coming months, but my own guess is that he's going to VIEWPOINT: ECOLOGY

We are forsaking the earth

Leo D. Maxbauer

The technological standard of living has been increasing since man's existence. Earth, the standard of life, has been declining. . .Is this not a contradiction?

Today we live in a society geared toward short-term goals. You and I often prostitute the Earth to satisfy our present desires and for general expediency. For example, it is easy for us not to think and behave in a wasteful manner. A manner which satisfies our unending hunger for luxury and materialism. Materialism met through greater pressure being exerted upon our environment through greater consumption of the raw materials it possesses.

Here, at the University, we learn to be thinkers, but that is in theory only. Reality is reality and we all must agree, upon self-evaluation, that we live primarily in search of self-comfort. We live in accordance with norms we never question

Social life here is selfish and deplorable We spend hours each week combing our hair, relaxing in the sun, shopping for pretty clothes and doing countless other "personal necessities." All this for a desirable appearance and for "good times." Already most of us are acting like we are 30-year-old "jet setters." We don't think ideally because this life to most of us is idea

However, let me assure you, this is only a maze which is fooling us. Behind this maze something superior to us all is being abused. The Earth, our environment, being choked for every resource that it possesses and only for short-term goals, which bring us short-term satisfaction. I find it deplorable that the waters of the Earth are poisoned along with its air and landscape. Oh, does it surprise you? No, the student unrest of the late '60s didn't solve everything. Don't you know that the economic downturn of 1973 led us to forsake our anti-pollution campaign? Indeed! When it came right to a head, we chose to abuse the Earth further, rather than accept any reduction in our comfort - our standard of Today, the search for energy has reached hysteric levels. We all want too much. We want to be cool in summer, warm in winter and to drive our cars whenever we get an impulse to do so. Yes, we can do this; but only in the short run

In order to meet increasing demands for resources and energy, soon Michigan will decide whether to destroy the last of its y natural areas in its Lower Peninsula the Pigeon River Forests. The oil nanies are poised to do so. And, of course, next they will be drilling offshore in our great lakes, which are already burden-

It is time to end all this wastefulness. We are being fooled by big business, through its promotions of endless technological junk; items which are created out of the Earth's resources and are kept running by the Earth's energy.

These corporations are not feeling entities. The owners are made rich and can escape the pollution created as a result of their actions. These people are hypocrites.

They buy property and protect it abuse and pollution but they are willing pollute the land that belongs to other their personal gain. It is time to say "no" to big oil and

Chamber music series

I was glad to see the State News finally mention the Music School chamber music series. Your article (April 30) does not, however, tell how good the series has been

I have attended all but one of the concerts, and each time have been amazed by the quality of the performances. The programs have been out of the ordinary, offering combinations of instruments and voices we don't often get to hear live, and beautiful pieces of music. The musicians are all excellent, with some being extraordinarily fine, and their performances have been well rehearsed. The series has been always interesting and sometimes downright exciting. The last concert (April 20) was exciting all the way through. The audience leaving the auditorium afterward was as exuberant as any I've been part of.

It's very good news that this series is to be an annual event. It should be advertised more than it has been, and I hope that the State News will do more to make the community aware not only of the existence, but also of the excellence of this series. MSU is lucky to have such fine musicians in residence and should brag about them more.

Prof maintains court prediction

State News Staff Writer Despite the retirement of U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and the appointment of Justice John Paul Stevens, Harold J. Spaeth, MSU professor of political science, announced he is standing by his year-old prediction that the Supreme Court will vote in favor of the mandatory death penalty.

In 1972, the Supreme Court ruled to outlaw the death penalty under the provisions of the Eighth Amendment which stated that "cruel and unusual punishment" is unconstitu-

Since the 1972 ruling, approximately 35 states have reinstated the death penalty. Now the matter of capital punishment is again pending before the Supreme Court.

The justices are in the process of deciding two issues of the Eighth Amendment as to the constitutionality of the death penalty. The first issue involves the application of the death penalty, and whether or not this matter of punishment is "cruel and unusual. The second issue involves the arbitrary manner in which the death penalty is imposed upon convicted criminals. The court's objection four years ago held that the procedures then in effect with less likely alternative would be a ruling which equates "unusual" with "unequal," resulting in capital punishment being treated as a denial of equal protection of the law which was the basis of the 1972 decision to rule the death penalty as cruel and unusual punishment.

However, Spaeth changed his prediction of the Justices' final vote to 6 to 3 from the original 5 to 4. The change in voting results is due to Spaeth's prediction that Stevens will vote to uphold the death penalty, whereas Douglas had always maintained that capital punishment is unconstitutional. Spaeth stated that the decision is expected to be reached sometime before the end of June after pending before the Supreme Court for more than a Spaeth believes that the reason the court has taken so long in reaching a decision is because of Justice Douglas' illness and "much more likely a basis for delay was the atypical character of the case in which the issue arose: one in which the death penalty was mandated by a Georgia State Supreme Court rather than by legislative enactment.

"This fact, plus differences in the laws of the 35 states which specified offenses, probably caused the justices to hold the question over so that they might-as they actually didselect cases from a numer of states whose procedures reflect the range of means used to try and to sentence persons charged with capital offenses,"

The constitutionality of the death penalty could then perhaps be resolved with one fell swoop rather than in a piecemeal fashion," he continued.

Spaeth does not feel that the appointment of Stevens will sway the final outcome of the decision. He predicts, based on the judges, that Justices Burger, Blackmun, Powell, Rehnquist and now Stevens will vote to reinstate the death penalty, Justices Brennan, Marshall and Stewart will vote against. He adds that Justice White will probably vote to uphold the

State may pay primary costs

LANSING (UPI) — The Senate Municipalities and Elections Committee has approved a House-passed bill forcing the state to pick up the $2.5 million tab for Michigan's May 18 presidential primary.

The measure was reported to the full Senate Thursday on a 5-0 vote after the committee removed an Aug. 1 expiration date that would have ruled out state funding of future presidential primaries.

The Senate earlier had ap proved its own proposal to reimburse local governments for their costs in holding the election, but Elections Committee Chairman Patrick H. McCollough, D-Dearborn, said it was decided to submit the nearly

"We haven't really heard from the governor's office," McCollough said. "However, we assume he is moving in the direction of supporting the legislation because he didn't oppose it in committee.'

There is no existing provision in state law for payment of the primary costs, though state officials picked up the tab for the 1972 election. A coalition of local election officials sued to cancel assist people in becoming mas-ters of their own situations by first learning to understand themselves and their goals. "Students, teachers, people in general are searching for something — they're all looking for a way to feel comfortable with their decisions," Johnston said. "But what they're searching for is within themselves." The program teaches people how to discover and develop leadership qualities that are a part of everyone and shows a way of expressing these qualithrough positive action in both thinking and feeling. IPM was founded in 1964 by unique methods of self-realization over a period of 27 years. Since then it has become an international movement.

"Every thought we think is like a radio wave that anyone can pick up," Bond said. "We also receive thoughts from others and respond to them unconsciously.

There are basically four ways to interpret an incoming thought. A counselor helps you discern which of four personality types you function in and

"Each of us lives primarily by one of these personality types and partially by the other three," Johnston said. "Once we discern this, we can begin to understand ourselves and those around us to a greater degree.' "It's exciting to show people how to utilize their own awareness," Bond said. "You can share more with others and exercise increased sensitivity in social relationships."

IPM can be used any time to grow in life experiences. People involved in the program want to feel confident that they are doing the right thing without

Albee's 'Seascape' vividly performed here

By DARRYL GRANT State News Reviewer

Edward Albee's Pulitzer Prize winning play of 1975, "Seascape," has been given fantastic warmth and talent in a fresh production by the Arena Theatre. Both the play and the production itself are filled with a sharp and vivid awareness. The amazing thing about the show is its few faults; however, these are minimized by the overwhelming tone of excellence.

Albee, possibly the best American playwright of recent times, concentrates on the meaning and quality of life. When he tackles this classic artistic hyperbole the results are sharp, fast and penetrating. His spare and elegant prose probes deeply into the psyche of the audience, creating great empathy and understanding.

The plot is this: Nancy and Charlie, middle-aged, children grown-up and gone, decide to go and best motives for revenge

She is also a sexual woman who had hidden her yearnings amidst the brownies and brooms of her marriage. Nancy is also a wit, who has for years been reading Proust in bed while counting the moles on her husband's back.

Charlie is the quintessential symbol of the fallen grandeur of youth. An optimist, a searcher and an idler in youth, he has been tarnished by the silvery shadows of business and advancement.

Teeming with all the possible against a harsh society which creates such male sacrifice, he has become lazy, dogmatic and politely cruel

Chris Birdwell plays Nancy with a lustrous innocence and a charm that is enthralling. She is subtle, quick and strong. Birdwell's acting doesn't miss much and thank God for that!

Jack Welc as husband Charlie wonderful, playing the role with great sensitivity and winsomeness. At times, however, there is a bit too much of that, giving the production an elusive spark of puckishness that is disturbing at times. The role, on the other hand, could be responsible for this, since it makes Charlie rather like a child who has never grown up.

At their isolated dune Nancy and Charlie meet a charming pair of "sea creatures" named Sarah and Leslie. Green and reptilian, they are momentarily frightening in appearance. As the play progresses, however, they are seen to be quite like Nancy and Charlie. They both have come on "vacation" to get away, to rid themselves of the feeling of not belonging. Their children are gone and the years have chipped away at their consciousness.

Like Nancy, Sarah is the more intelligent partner, with L more intelligent partner, with Leslie being quick-tempered and prone to violence. Leslie is especially proud of his large tail, symbol of his strong sense of virility.
David Kropp and Rosa Luisa

Marquez are the creatures. Kropp is a fine actor who, despite initial nervousness, arrives at a confident position at play's end.

Marquez shows great promise as an actress, displaying a penchant for dramatic moments. She gives them depth and pathos, and quickly jumps relieve the grinding noises of his mind.

Tired, rejected and lonely he decides to "flush the city down the drain." He starts his mad, obsessive crusade to fight the wrongs of the city by buying every imaginable kind of firearm and learns to handle them. He then shaves his head-a traditional symbol of purging the soul. Finally, he moves to the streets in an attempt to assassinate the grassroots presidential candidate. He fails, but is not caught.

In a second effort to flush the rejected him. His madness is city clean of its dirt, he slaughters those he believes to be involved in the corruption of a child-hooker whom he has befriended.

But in a testimony to the madness of the sane, the newspapers interpret the bloodbath, which destroys the girl's pimp, as an act of heroism. The media hail Travis: he has unknowingly broken up a drug ring and has

In the end, Travis is strong enough to reject the city which

In the academy award-winning "One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest," the setting is a mental institution. But the question "Taxi Driver" raises is also the question here: who are the insane?

Here the answer is clearer than in "Taxi Driver." Because Nurse Ratched (Louise Fletcher), the woman who autocratically runs the institution and "I think Rick is the best catcher I've seen," Baker said. "He hustles all the time and talks to me during the game to help my confidence.

Baker will be on the mound Saturday in the first game of a doubleheader when the Spartans face Indiana at John Kobs field. Spartan coach Danny Litwhiler said that Sherm Johnson would get the call in the second game of that twinbill.

Indiana will probably send Scott Gidley, a right-hander with a 2-0 Big Ten record, and Larry Rosin, a right-hander with an 0-1 conference mark, to the mound in the twinbill.

The Hoosiers' big batter is designated hitter Scott Weiner who is swinging at a .400 clip for the season and has a .500 average in Sunday the Spartans will face Ohio State in another home doubleheader and Litwhiler said Jim Kniivila and Larry Pashnick will probably handle the pitching chores for MSU.

Ohio State has yet to decide on its starting pitchers for Sunday but the Buckeyes will bring some big bats into East Lansing. Jim Chellis, an outfielder, is hitting .365 for the season and Randy Shade, a former pitcher who now plays first base, is hitting .362 with 10 homes runs and 30 RBIs.

Spartan outfielder Jerry Weller should also see plenty of action this weekend. The sophomore has hit four home runs in his last two games and Litwhiler said, "You always go with a guy when Both doubleheaders will begin at 1 p.m. at Kobs Field. MSU students are admitted by showing a student ID and general admission tickets are $1. MSU is 3-3 in Big Ten action.

Spartan second baseman Terry Hop takes to the air to avoid a base runner from the opposing team. Hop and shortstop Roger Bastien give MSU a solid key stone combination which has helped keep the Spartans in many close games this season.

Tired of the same old sports? Try strolling over to the Men's IM Building Sports Arena this Saturday to catch the MSU Karate Club's 10th annual Spring Tournament.

Bruce Henderson, tournament director, expects a fine turnout this year and if the past is any barometer he'll get it. "I expect we'll have 200-300 participants, which has been about

"Henderson said. "But, you never know. One year we had 500 and that's big. Already established as one of the top tournaments in the Midwest, the Spring Tournament draws competitors from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin and Ontario. The tournament features competition in free fighting - open.

women, junior and peewee classes - along with displays in weaponry and competition in forms, much similar to floor exercises in gymnastics, stressing the art of karate.

"Ploucha was just promoted in September and he's won a trophy in every tournament since then.' The women's advanced division presents an even greater likelihood of an all MSU final, with three brov Shafer, Sue Catallo and Jean Nelson - fighting for the top spot Henderson said.

At the Spring Tournament, however, they will all be in the same class, women's advanced, which has no weight restrictions Since this is amateur karate "no-contact" rules apply. Henderson

"This means there is no contact above the shoulder line, because this can cause serious injury," Henderson said, "and only light contact to the front of the body and groin area." Flagrant violators of the no-contact rule are disqualified, he added.

Three points win a match...OK, what's a point?

After stressing that all punches are pulled, Henderson defined a

"If you hit them once they're not supposed to get up," he said. 'That's the basis for karate. One weapon display to watch for is that performed by the Society for Creative Anachronism, an MSU club. The society exhibits the lost martial arts of the medieval days, using armor and weapons which simulate swords, axes and clubs, Henderson said.

Those expecting to see the more dangerous displays such as unchucks — two short pieces of wood connected by rope — might be disappointed, however, "We don't like nunchucks," Henderson said. "It's CCW (carrying a concealed weapon) and against state law." There will be the traditional board breaking, he added.

The eliminations begin at noon at the Men's IM Building with peewee divisions, progressing to open heavyweight. The final matches in all classes begin at 5 p.m. Admission is $1 for students and $2 for nonstudents.

The amateur volleyball tournament is held in a different city each year and the 1976 tournament will be held in Schenectady, N.Y.

The team is under the direction of coach George Moruss.

MSU's standout quarterback Charlie Baggett has agreed to play professional football with the Hamilton Tigercats of the Canadian Football League in the upcoming CFL season.

Tigercat General Manager Bob Shaw said Baggett has not signed a contract yet, but that he will be in Hamilton soon in order to do so.

"He could easily be a starter with us," Shaw said. "I was really impressed with his performance in college and in the American Bowl in January. He has great potential in the CFL. We'll use our best quarterback and that just might be Baggett.

Magnate wants govt. incentive

State News Staff Writer

Program at Kellogg Center concluded that in order to stimulate economic growth in Michigan and other states, the government must provide incentives for investments, which are the key to positive economic growth.

James Anderton, committee chairperson and president of Summit Steel, Inc., said Michigan must provide new investment stimulus to get the state back on the track of positive economic Charles Fisher III, president of the National Bank of Detroit, said corporations and individuals must make an effort to save money rather than consume it quickly in order to build up an equity base for new capital investment.

"We must provide incentives for savers," he said. "The tax structure now favors consumption. An increase of capital gains and a decrease of dividend taxes is one way to reverse the spending trend which is hurting economic progress. "Decreasing business taxes and reducing the pollution control bureaucracy and having the government get out of deficit spending and onto a surplus budget will definitely help the situation," he said Thomas Wiltse, general manager of the Central Foundry division

HI-FI SANELY-PRICED

You don't have to go crazy and spend thousands of dollars when you buy a hifi system.

Not at Tech Hifi. Because we have great-sounding systems starting as low as $199. (Of course, we also have systems for $6,000. So if your ears and wallet are in this category, Tech Hifi is your store.)

Most people are in the $199-to-$599 range.
And this is where Tech where Tech Hifi has a larger selection than any other store.

At Tech Hifi, you don't need to go insane You don't have to resort to off-brand components to get a great-sounding system for under $300 at Tech Hifi. The all-famous name system shown here is just one example. It features the high performance Sansui 331 am/fm stereo receiver (12 watts min. RMS per channel, 8 ohms, 40 to 20,000 Hz., 1% T.H.D.), wide-range ADC XT-6 2-way acoustic-suspension loud-speakers and the dependable BSR 2260X automatic turntable with a Shure M81 magnetic cartridge.

with your checkbook to be crazy about what you buy.

HI-FI RISK-FREE

Buying a music system at Tech Hifi is fun, not risky.

If anything at all displeases you about anything you buy from us, just bring it back within seven days and we'll give you something else, or give you back your money.

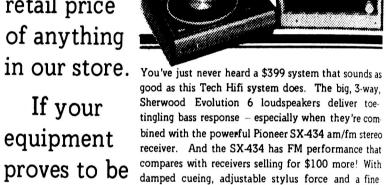

And you'll get 90 days with your
