Dem contest close; GOP race a runaway

Esch gets a victory from Mich. voters; gift on his birthday

By MICKI MAYNARD
State News Staff Writer

Marvin Esch's birthday Wednesday and the voters of Michigan gave him the present he wanted — the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate. The Ann Arbor Congressman defeated three other candidates in a race he was favored to win since he entered it last November. Vote totals at 11 p.m. showed Esch with 31,119. Former Michigan Supreme Court Justice Thomas Brennan trailed Esch with 16,229. University of Michigan Regent Deane Baker had 17,229. Congressman Robert Huber had less than 7,000. The Congressman's victory was predicted by radio and television analysis early in the evening. Esch had led almost all the way from the beginning of the year.

A speech to about 200 people gathered at Esch's Southfield headquarters, the Congressman said his campaign "tried to get out to the people."

"I believe in an active government for people but no government can be for people if it doesn't work."

Esch lashed out at what he felt was an overgrown government bureaucracy, saying "We now have layer upon layer of bureaucracy."

With his family gathered around him, Esch had a Bicentennial birthday cake nearby, and he told the crowd that "the trial heats now over."

There will be no gold medal for the winner," Esch said, "just the tough, hard job of making government work in an open and accessible manner."

Esch mentioned the man whose job he has to assume as he spoke to the crowd. U. S. Senate seat is open because of retirement of Senator Philip Hart.

Michigan needs a senator with a science of a Phil Hart and the common sense of the people."

Esch said he would begin his campaign at 6 a.m. shaking hands at a party. He said he would not change his campaign style no matter who his opponent was.

"I am willing to have debates and discussions across the state," Esch said, "going to focus on the issues."

The issues Esch enumerated were education, bus and the problems of employment. When asked if he would run a Senate campaign on his opponent's record on these issues (presumably Esch Riegle), Esch smiled and said he did not bring voting records into the race.

The atmosphere at the Southfield headquarters was one of cool confidence, and present agreed that Esch had the nomination wrapped up long ago.

"I don't think we had too much trouble," Leo Esch, the candidate's son.

People in the crowd seemed more interested in the hotly contested Democratic race, or in the Olympic wrap-up that was being shown on three color television sets at the headquarters.

The crowd was dotted with state dignitaries including Oakland County Sheriff L. Brook Patterson, Detroit Mayor and Trust President and Esch's son-in-law C. Boyde Stockmeier, as well as other convention delegates and Ann Arbor socialite Nancy Chase. However, officials such as Republican Senator Griffin and Gov. Milliken were not present.

Riegle beats Austin in Democratic race; vows open campaign

By SHERMAN GARNETT
State News Staff Writer

Surprising everyone but a few ardent supporters and the candidate himself, Don Riegle, five term Congressman from Flint, upset Secretary of State Richard Austin in Tuesday's Democratic primary race for the U.S. Senate.

With 35 per cent of Michigan's precincts counted, Riegle garnered 95,843 votes, or 42 per cent of those cast. Austin conceded defeat at 12:30 a.m. today following Riegle's other two opponents, Rep. James O'Hara of Utica, and Birmingham attorney James Elaman.

Promising an open campaign in the fall, Riegle earlier addressed approximately 300 vocal supporters.

The speech lasted 15 minutes and brought the crowd to the proper elevation to continue the evening's festivities. But it wasn't always that way.

The mood at the Riegle headquarters was subdued as the evening began. The posh ballroom at the Ponchartrain Hotel in Detroit held but a handful of campaign workers at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Most of them talked softly but confidently of a Riegle victory, yet few outside this group of workers gave such an outcome much hope.

But as the evening progressed, more and more people joined the party. And it did become a party.

At 9:30 p.m., the candidate's poster was brought in to polite applause. Radio station WJR predicted Riegle the winner a little later, and the news was broadcast over the public address system amid tears.

Music began, provided by a live band.

With Don Riegle's scheduled arrival only an hour away, the crowd grew more jubilant, confident. Quiet optimism changed to boldness. The crowd expected a Riegle victory speech, and not a concession.

A press secretary passed out information, promising a victory.

"There's no other way," she said.

The results from 12 precincts in Dearborn, which showed Riegle ahead by a few hundred votes, were cheered loudly.

The crowd was in the mood to cheer.

They needed only two things more: official confirmation and Don Riegle.

Official confirmation, coupled with Riegle's presence, stirred the crowd to a peak that had been building throughout the evening.

Riegle entered the room formally dressed in a tie and jacket, which he quickly doffed in favor of his typical shirtsleeve style.

He began by thanking his family, friends and campaign workers for a job well done, and then went on to assess the election.

"It seems to me what the people of the state were saying today was that they want a fighter for constructive change in the U.S. Senate."

"That means ending problems that keep people awake at night: providing jobs, help for our senior citizens and an end to special interests."

Riegle said that he would be proud to run in November with Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale, and added, "We want a government that's honest, that belongs to us, that we can believe in, and that's what we've been fighting for in this campaign."

Many of Don Riegle's long time supporters drove from Flint to attend the victory here. One of them sat dejected in the corner, despite the good news. When asked why, he answered, "I drove all this way and there are classier places than this in Flint."

Finkbeiner joins commission race

Barrett, Grebner take districts

By JANET R. OLSEN
State News Staff Writer

Accumulative totals at 11:30 p.m. Tuesday showed Sherry Finkbeiner taking the lead for 7th District County Commissioner for the Democrats, Mark Grebner ahead for 8th District County Commissioner for the Democrats and Karen W. Barrett in the lead for 8th District county Commissioner for the Republicans. William R. Rogers was in the lead for the Democratic bid for Ingham County Drain Commissioner and Marilyn Baumgartner was ahead in the Democratic race for Register of Deeds.

In the race for County Commissioner, two Democrats were running in the 7th District, three Democrats in the 8th District. The Ingham County Board of Commissioners, the governing board and policy approval center of county government, is made up of 21 commissioners who are elected every two years on partisan ballots. The commissioners who are elected every two years on partisan ballots. The commissioners earn from $4,500 to $5,500 annually.

"Finkbeiner, a five-year resident of East Lansing, was leading the bid for County Commissioner with 778 votes to Gary F. Cumpata's 199 votes. Finkbeiner has been actively involved in the Democratic party and the community as a Democratic precinct delegate in 1972 and 1974. She has stressed that one of her projects would be to open up the county's decision-making process to allow accessibility to the public.

Finkbeiner said she was very pleased with the voting outcome of the primary. "I plan to work on a strong voter registration drive in this area, and I will continue with the same canvassing — working door to door," she said.

If elected to the Board of County Commissioners, Finkbeiner has said she would keep constituents abreast of board news by distributing a districtwide, door-to-door newsletter funded by herself.

Grebner led the eighth District Democratic County Commissioner hopefuls with an 11:30 p.m. vote total of 493. Opponent Gregg Pincumbe followed with 389 votes, while Richard Arens tallied in with 204 votes.

Grebner has cited the main issues of the commission race as including dispensing contraceptives to minors, the need for a new cooperative day care center, the Lansing-based Metro Squad and student health care.

"My vote total is just about the right amount to win by," Grebner said. "Any less would have looked like I had done too little work and any more votes would have

Bunka wins primary; faces Jondahl in fall

By ANNE E. STUART
State News Staff Writer

After campaigns with similar views on many issues, two political newcomers each spent Tuesday night in tense anticipation of the final votes tallied in a tight race for a chance for election to the Michigan House of Representatives.

At 1 a.m., it appeared that Donald T. Bunka had defeated his opponent in the race by about 300 votes.

"I'm very elated, very tired, very happy and very thankful," he said quietly while waiting for the remaining two precincts to phone in and expecting a concession soon from his opponent.

East Lansing voters apparently favored 24-year-old Steven P. Zynda, an MSU and Cooley Law School graduate, over 48-year-old Okemos business man Donald P. Bunka.

A total of 1,217 votes were tallied for Zynda, with Bunka trailing with 926. But in Meridian Township, a residential area including Bunka's home, the votes favored Bunka at midnight, with seven precincts still out.

Bunka said that the race had been tight all night, but that he had not yet lost a Meridian Township precinct.

"We are less than a hundred votes apart," he said, raising his voice slightly over the babble of voices in the background at his Okemos home.

Zynda was not available for comment at either his campaign headquarters or at his home Tuesday night.

Democratic incumbent Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, was unchallenged in his own party. He received a total of 3,145 votes from East Lansing voters. The winner of the Zynda-Bunka race will face Jondahl in the race for the 59th District House seat in the November election.

The 59th District includes all of Meridian Township, East Lansing and MSU, precincts one and two of Williamston and part of southeastern Lansing.

Zynda apparently led the race in the second ward of Lansing by a narrow margin of about 50 votes, but Williamston voters favored Bunka "by a three to one plurality," Bunka told the State News. Some key precincts in Okemos had leaned toward Bunka by 1 a.m., putting him about 350 votes ahead of Zynda, with three precincts still out. Bunka said earlier he felt these precincts were the ones that would have decided the race either way.

meant I had spent too much time and money." Pincumbe and Arens would give no comment about the outcome of the primary.

Republican Barrett running in the 8th District County Commissioner let opponent G.J. Rusty Hills with 113 votes to his 53. Barrett has called for a major need to analyze where commissioners can best put county dollars to enable the continuation of services that need to be continued. She has said communications at all levels need improvement and that more cooperation between the tri-counties is necessary.

Barrett said the primary results were what she expected. "I'm very pleased with running on campus as well as I did," she said. "I'm going to have to get to know a lot more people now, including the new ones on campus this fall."

Barrett has noted that improvements in the area of the controlling of land are necessary. She has suggested an area kind of regional planning to protect natural land and farm land and has said that much of this could be handled on a county level.

Hills was unavailable for comment.

In the race for Drain Commissioner, Democrat Rogers led Democrat Charles C. Wallin with 1,132 votes to Wallin's 857.

Rogers, who has said that he doesn't like the way the restoration of Lake Lansing has been handled, first became familiar with drain commission matters when he worked at the commission on his 148 acre farm in Mason.

Baumgartner, with 1,231 votes, led opponent Paula Johnson with 1,129 votes in the Democratic bid for register.

Baumgartner, a lifelong resident of Lansing, would like to see the Mason location of the office of the Register of Deeds move to Lansing to better serve the people.

The Register of Deeds along with a staff of 12 people records all instruments that pertain to the title of land.

OSU recruits given cash, source says

Up $50 bills, Rose Bowl trips for the boys and friends, and the choice of either a Chevrolet or Gremlin for an anniversary weekend in Columbus, Ohio are some of the inducements Woody Hayes has used to recruit Ohio State football players in the past recruiting of football players, according to sources.

A source, who is currently a player in the Big Ten and who was highly recruited by the Buckeyes, said, "I'll give you information only if you don't use my name because I still have eligibility left and I don't want the undue pressure for talking to Woody Hayes."

The source explained that during a recruiting visit to Columbus in January, he did receive cash from the OSU coach.

"A Coach Rudy Hubbard set up a dinner with Woody for me, although I can't remember where it was at exactly. I'll never forget Hayes sitting across the table from me and eating French-onion soup. He told me that I should come to Ohio State because I would be able to go to the Rose Bowl and that my family and friends would also be able to go."

"Woody then looked up at me," the source continued, "and he stretched back in his chair and reached in his trousers, tapped my hand and gave me a $50 bill and said, 'Have a good time, son.'"

Woody Hayes was unavailable for comment Tuesday night concerning the allegation, which is a violation of NCAA and Big Ten rules. However, OSU athletic director Ed Weaver gave a "no comment" from French Lick, Ind., where he is attending a Big Ten meeting.

Meanwhile, the source added that following the dinner with Hayes he met his guides for the weekend, Buckeye fullback Pete Johnson and asst. coach Hubbard.

"Coach Hubbard gave Johnson some money and the keys to his green Chevrolet, it was a 1973 model I think, and told him to show me around."

"Saturday night," the source continued, "Coach Hubbard gave Johnson his new red (1974) Gremlin for us to use. Both nights we made several stops at bars, including one which had a cover charge at $3 per person."

Hubbard, who is presently head football coach at Florida A and M acknowledged Tuesday night that he still owns a red 1974 Gremlin and he had a green Chevrolet at the time of the alleged incident. "The Chevy was on loan from a dealer and the Gremlin is my personal car," he said.

"I can remember that I let Pete (Johnson) use my car on several occasions but I can't really recall that he ever used either one on a weekend for recruiting, he stated.

Concerning the money allegedly passed between him and Johnson, Hubbard explained, "I never gave Pete Johnson any illegal money. I can't really remember the incident you're talking about, but we never did anything illegal at OSU."

Hubbard added that coaches are allowed to give $10 to a prospect and that, "I never want the guide who is showing a prospect around to bear any expenses."

Meanwhile, a second source told the State News how he was approached by the Buckeye program when he was recruited in 1972.

The source, who attended another Big Ten school and is currently trying out as a free agent with a National Football League squad, said, "I don't want my name made known, because I honestly don't know if the coaches on the team have any allegiance to Ohio State. And I don't want to hurt my chances of making it in the NFL."

The second source then commented, "One day I was at school and the assistant principal came and got me out of class and said that Woody had called and that I was to wait in the office for a call."

"I waited for a few minutes and John Galbreath called and told me that if I went to Ohio State I would be taken care of the rest of my life," he added.

Galbreath, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Darby Dan Farm, was unavailable for comment Tuesday night.

The second source continued, "When I informed Woody that I was going to another school and not Ohio State he told me, 'God damn it, if you go there you won't play your first year.'"

Woody's warning apparently rang true when the player was declared ineligible for his first year of competition at the Big Ten school of his choice, according to the source and that school's records.

Weaver discounted the second source's allegation concerning Galbreath as "totally false" and added, "I made my statement yesterday (Monday), I would suspect that I would check into the allegations as soon as I return to Ohio State."

Red Cross evacuates wounded in Beirut

BEIRUT (AP) — Under a shaky truce, the International Red Cross evacuated 91 badly wounded persons Tuesday from the besieged Palestinian refugee camp at Tal Zatar.

A convoy of two ambulances and nine trucks entered the battered camp on Beirut's outskirts, loaded the wounded and carried them back through the Christian sector and across the no man's land that divides Beirut to a hospital in the Moslem-controlled part of the city.

While the convoy wound through the narrow streets of the Christian district, scores of people gathered in the streets and on balconies, mostly in silence, to watch it pass. As it crossed into the Moslem sector, Palestinian guerillas and other Moslem soldiers cut loose with a frenzied barrage of gunfire in the air, celebrating the rescue of the wounded.

The evacuees were the first of some 4,000 wounded the Red Cross hopes to take from the camp, which has been under siege by Christian rightist forces for six weeks.

Soares pledges national reforms

LISBON (AP) — Premier Mario Soares pledged his Socialist government to rebuilding Portugal's shattered economy through hard work, law and order and said he would apply for admission to the European Common Market.

Soares delivered a four-hour address to parliament outlining the program of Portugal's first democratic government in half a century.

Soares promised respect for both workers and employers.

He said he will uphold the program of nationalization, expansion of labor rights and agrarian reform established by the six provisional governments since the 1974 overthrow of a rightist dictatorship, but cautioned against "a socialism of poverty." He vowed to "listen to the owners, too."

Halifax Brink's truck robbed

HALIFAX, Canada (AP) — Two gunmen held up two Brink's guards at a busy shopping mall during the lunch hour Tuesday and escaped with an undisclosed amount of money after wounding one of the guards, police said.

A police spokesperson said the holdup occurred in Simpsons Mall on the west side of this Nova Scotia city. He said the guard, hit in the hip by the only shot fired, was not seriously hurt.

City police and Mounted Police set up roadblocks at all exits from the city.

In March, armed robbers seized a Brink's armored truck in Montreal and escaped with $2.8 million in cash and silver coins commemorating the summer Olympic games. That robbery was believed to be the biggest in Brink's 117-year history in the United States and Canada.

Air bags receive mixed reactions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Any government requirement for air bag restraint systems in all new cars could trigger a consumer revolt by drivers, Oregon Sen. Bob Packwood said Tuesday.

But a House member and the Allstate Insurance Co. told Transportation Secretary William E. Coleman widespread use of air bags instead of harness-type seat belts could save thousands of lives on the nation's roads each year.

Packwood's appearance opened a one-day hearing before Coleman on the controversial question of whether to tighten federal regulations to protect automobile drivers and passengers in the event of a crash. The Oregon Republican also said any attempt to mandate use of seat belts would be a bureaucratic "nightmare."

Coleman promised a decision before Dec. 31.

Man in black wig kills 2

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A man wearing a black wig in the darkened mansion of millionaire T. Cullen Davis shot two persons to death early Tuesday and critically wounded two others, including Davis' estranged wife, police said. Davis was charged with the murders.

The gunman "put on a black wig and started shooting all my kids — he went wild," Mrs. Davis, 35, said from an ambulance stretcher.

Officers later surrounded a home on the city's south side and used bullhorns to demand that Davis surrender. Police said the 42-year-old industrial scion emerged, head bowed, minutes later and was taken into custody for questioning in connection with the 12:30 a.m. attack.

Davis was charged with two counts of murder and two counts of attempted murder before Peace Justice W.W. Matthews. Davis' bond was set at $80,000 and he was ordered to undergo a psychiatric examination later in the day.

Scientists seek gas interaction theory

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A special team has been formed to look into a theory that gas coming from a soil sample tested by Viking's robot lab is the result of a "unique" interaction between sunlight and soil on Mars, scientists said Monday.

The scientists are looking for a way to explain the puzzling data coming from the Viking robot lab. They are stranded between two possible explanations — Martian life or a strange chemical reaction.

"We're in-between," Dr. Gilbert Levin non-living processes on earth, said, explaining that the rate at which gas is being produced by a Mars soil sample resembles neither living nor non-living processes on earth.

Initial results showed a startlingly swift emission of gases, but Levin said it had now reached a plateau.

He said a team of scientists was formed to check a hypothesis that the gas coming from the soil is the result of "some unique photochemistry" — the action of sunlight on Martian soil.

Detroit judge charged with misconduct

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit Recorder's Court Judge James Del Rio could be suspended or removed from the bench if the Michigan Supreme Court decides he is guilty of 23 charges of judicial misconduct.

The Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission, which polices state judges, formally announced the charges Monday and asked the state Supreme Court to suspend Del Rio from office immediately.

The charges will now be aired at a public hearing. No date for that hearing has been set. After the hearing, the Supreme Court will decide on whether disciplinary action should be taken against Del Rio.

Del Rio was not available for comment.

Medical teams look for source of disease outbreak in Penn.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Teams of medical detectives worked with microscopes and needles Tuesday as they hunted for the tiny disease-causing organism that has killed 19 persons since an American Legion convention in Philadelphia 10 days ago.

Working at laboratories in Philadelphia and Atlanta, the scientists tested and checked samples taken from the bodies of the dead and sick persons from across Pennsylvania.

"This is the freakiest thing I've ever seen," said Karen Shectman, a state microbiologist working at the laboratory in Philadelphia.

The researchers said they are confident of finding the cause of the disease.

State officials readied plans for a mass inoculation program should it be needed, and officials said that in addition to the 19 dead, 52 persons have been hospitalized from the disease.

State Health Secretary Leonard Bachman suggested at a news conference that the disease is similar to viral pneumonia and also said the much-publicized swine flu is a possibility, but another state health official said bacteria could be the cause.

A virus enters a body cell and attacks from the inside while a bacteria attacks from the outside.

Meanwhile, representatives of the 41st International Eucharistic Conference, a week-long gathering in Philadelphia of one million Catholics from around the world, said they planned no changes in any activities. The White House announced President Ford still planned to attend the conference on Sunday.

The 100 state and federal researchers working nonstop on the problem still don't know what causes the flu-like disease. Its symptoms include fever, congested lungs and chest pains.

Bachman admitted that it still isn't known how the disease was transmitted, but he said food or drink were not likely possibilities. Researchers were at a loss to explain why only the people at the convention contracted the disease. The ages of the dead ranged from 39 to 82.

Whatever the disease, Bachman said, the state is readying the machinery for a mass inoculation program once the agent is isolated. State officials said last week they could begin a swine flu inoculation program on short notice.

"Let's hope it's not something new," said Dr. Jay Satz, head of the State Health Dept.'s immunology division. If it is a new type of disease, it could take several weeks to develop a serum, he said.

Bachman said officials think the disease was confined to the estimated 10,000 persons who attended the state American Legion convention in Philadelphia July 21-24, but cautioned that "it is too early to discount the possibility" that conventioners who didn't get sick may spread the disease.

There are no documented cases of people getting the disease who did not attend the convention, Bachman said.

Many of the latest victims come from southeastern Pennsylvania. Most of the earlier cases were from central or western Pennsylvania.

State Health Dept. officials fanned out across the state Tuesday, going from hospital to hospital to check for illnesses with symptoms similar to the mystery disease.

Tissue cultures, including blood samples or throat washings, were taken from suspected victims and rushed by state and police helicopter to state laboratory in north Philadelphia.

Colorado flood toll reaches 77

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — Helicopter crews evacuated all known survivors who wanted to leave a flood-ravaged Rocky Mountain canyon Monday night. At least 77 persons were known dead and one official speculated the toll might reach 200.

"All the bodies will never be recovered," Sheriff Robert Watson told reporters. "Who knows what's buried in all this silt."

"I talked with myself all the time about 200, and we may well reach that. Hopefully not," Watson said.

The Larimer County sheriff gave no further reasons for his estimate of 200 dead, but officials have said they expect to find dozens of bodies under the silt and debris deposited by the 12-foot wall of water that swept through Big Thompson Canyon on Saturday night.

Both Watson and Brig. Gen. Felix L. Sparks of the National Guard said all known persons who wanted to leave had been rescued.

"Some survivors refused to leave their mountain homes," Watson said. "They were in good shape and thought they could do more good where they were."

Sparks estimated at least 100 persons declined evacuation and stayed behind.

"Every known survivor has been flown out of the canyon," the general said. "As a matter of fact, we've run some empty trips in the last couple of hours," he added, referring to helicopter rescue missions. "We just haven't been able to find anybody."

Sparks estimated that 75 persons were taken out by helicopter Monday. Before the helicopter operation began, other officials had said 300 to 400 people were awaiting rescue. There was no immediate resolution of the figures, although some may have gotten out by land.

Officials estimated 2,000 to 4,000 people were in the canyon when the flood hit. Hundreds escaped on their own or were brought out over the weekend.

The helicopters will fly over the area after daybreak Tuesday, looking for anyone who needs help.

Communities along the winding 30-mile stretch of U.S. 36 through the canyon were obliterated by the flood. Mountain homes, motels, vacation resorts, trailer camps and scores of summer cabins were washed away.

The flash flood was triggered by a heavy rainstorm Saturday night, and rains fell again Sunday. On Monday, heavy weather hampered rescue operations until late afternoon.

American diplomats flee aftermath of earthquake

HONG KONG (UPI) — The last dependents of American diplomats evacuated Peking Tuesday, leaving behind hundreds of thousands of Chinese camping in the streets awaiting an earthquake that may never come.

Large numbers of other foreign diplomats, their dependents and foreign residents also continued to leave the capital in an exodus that began last Sunday at the request of Chinese authorities.

The government is afraid new aftershocks from last Wednesday's earthquake could produce major new damage.

Hundreds of thousands of temporarily homeless Chinese spent their sixth night outdoors in tents and makeshift shelters as the only protection against a light to moderate rain.

An official of the United States Liaison Office in Peking told UPI by telephone Tuesday that the last three American dependents left for Tokyo board a morning flight.

The official said the liaison office staff was being reduced temporarily by one-third, leaving only 20 people. Five of the were women, he said.

Peking sources said makeshift "shanty towns" were heavily patrolled by police soldiers and public security forces and there appeared to be no signs of disorder despite the conditions.

Air standard violations cited for Ingham County

By NANCY H. JARVIS
State News Staff Writer

Ingham County, along with ten other Michigan counties, was cited for violations of clean air standards in the recently released 1975 Dept. of Natural Resources (DNR) Air Quality Report.

The report states that Ingham County is in violation of the sulfur dioxide standards set by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. George Su, head of technical services for the air quality division of the DNR, said the Lansing Board of Water and Light was responsible for 80 to 90 per cent of the sulfur dioxide pollution.

He also said that since the violation citation, the Board of Water and Light has installed a supplementary control system (SCS) to monitor the output of sulfur dioxide.

The board usually burns high-sulfur coal. But when the SCS realizes high sulfur dioxide output, the system notifies board personnel who, in turn, switch over to low sulfur coal.

Dennis Casteel, public relations director of the board of water and light, said the board burns about one million tons of coal per year. He said they cannot burn low-sulfur coal constantly because it is higher priced than the high-sulfur type.

"The SCS will save our rate payers 50 to 60 million dollars over the next three years," he said.

In addition to pollutant monitoring, Casteel said the SCS also watches for weather, such as high pressure conditions, that increases that sulfur dioxide content in the air.

"The system looks at weather 48 hours ahead," he said. "This way, we can switch to low-sulfur coal or switch off entirely and purchase power."

Casteel added that MSU and Fisher Body are the only other places where coal is burned in the Lansing area.

Particulate emissions were also included in the Air Quality study. Four counties — Alpena, Monroe, St. Clair and Wayne — were cited as violators in this area of pollutants.

Su said that in each county a particular source was cited as the prime offender.

"Alpena received a court order to install pollution control equipment at the Port Huron cement company," he said. "This should be done by January 1977."

Su said that a special study is now being conducted to discover how the industrial complex in Wayne county can better control the particulate outputs.

The rural dust fields in Monroe county were cited as the cause of high particulates in that area.

MSU has recently been cited for large amounts of coal ash particulates from Power Plant 65. These violations are from the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission, rather than the EPA, but do not seem to affect the DNR's Air Quality Report, since Ingham County was not cited for particulate emissions.

All the counties monitored were in compliance with the nitrogen dioxide standards and only three — Wayne, Oakland and Saginaw — were noted for carbon monoxide emissions. The heavy automobile traffic was attributed to these violations.

The one-hour ozone standard was also violated in Wayne and Genesee counties but Su said that this problem is not yet clearly understood.

"The more monitors we install, the more violations we see," he said. He added that none of the five states included in the Midwest monitoring area met the ozone standard.

"We have recently installed a monitor in the Marquette area to get a background standard," Su said.

Despite the 11 counties cited for emission violations, the report does state that the overall quality of Michigan air has improved over the last two years. The DNR suggests that "the statewide emission control program is behind the favorable report."

Wharton to aid international board

By FRANCES BROWN
State News Staff Writer

President Wharton was appointed Monday by President Ford to a new Board for International Food and International Development.

Wharton, who was nominated by the National Assn. of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, said the main objective of the board will be to strengthen and share the United States' expertise in world food production.

The six-member board was created under Title XII of the Foreign Assistance Act, passed in December, 1975, which was sponsored jointly by Rep. Paul Findley of Ohio and Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

The Board for International Food and International Development will assist the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) in setting policies and criteria for project proposals, recommending which developing countries could benefit from the program and evaluating the administration of Title XII.

Wharton said the board would strengthen the involvement of both foreign and U.S. universities in world nutrition, in which MSU is the leading university.

"The act recognizes the many contributions the land-grant universities have made to agricultural progress in this country, as well as to developing nations," Wharton said. "The thrust of the act is to assist the universities in strengthening these capabilities through research, cooperative efforts with agricultural institutions in other countries and teaching."

Wharton said he resigned as chairperson of the Food Advisory Panel of the Office of Technology Assessment, a position he has held for the last two years, in order to accept the new board position. The President said he was unsure of what time commitment the board position will entail but he monitors his activities outside the University so that they involve a total of less than 2 per cent of his time.

For many years prior to his coming to MSU in 1970, Wharton played a key role in agriculture and rural development activities in Latin America and Southeast Asia. As an economist, he has done research in small-scale agriculture, marketing, international trade, nutrition, higher education and population.

In testimony before the House International Relations Committee and Senate Foreign Relations Committee a year ago, Wharton urged passage of the then-pending legislation aimed at accelerating university agricultural research and education overseas.

He told the Congressional committees that the legislation "represents an important step in furthering our ability to deal with one of the most pervasive and persistent problems of the world — famine and the adequacy of agricultural production."

Communication Arts dean named

By DONNA BAKUN
State News Staff Writer

Erwin P. Bettinghaus, professor and chairperson of the Communications Dept., has been named the Dean of the College of Communication Arts and Sciences by the MSU Board of Trustees.

Bettinghaus, formerly asst. dean of the college, came to MSU as an instructor in have been going up and we have an excellent faculty."

Though Bettinghaus said he was unsure of the exact amount of budget retrenchments the college will be faced with, he has given three areas top consideration for this academic year — increasing faculty size, scholarship funds, research and developing plans for the proposed Communication Arts and Sciences Building.

"It is the building that will be occupying most of my time," he noted, adding that if all went well, the building would be completed in four years.

Funding for the building thus far has been a month-old $50,000 state release of planning money for architectural study to the State Bureau of Facilities.

During the first six months of the academic year, Bettinghaus will confer with the administration and the faculty of the college to consider desired space allocation for the building. Another six months of conferences with a contracted architect and the approval of start money by Gov. Milliken will preclude groundbreaking ceremonies.

The completed building, which will be adjacent to the Audiology and Speech Sciences Building on Wilson Road, will house the departments of communication, telecommunication, advertising, audiology and speech sciences and the School of Journalism.

Bettinghaus said he will also give consideration to increasing faculty size in the College of Communication Arts to alleviate a college enrollment that now totals approximately 2,300 students. He explained that every student should have the opportunity to be exposed to courses in mass communication, but that the present faculty size was not large enough to be of service to all students interested in the mass media.

Along with increasing faculty size in the College of Communication Arts, Bettinghaus plans to devote his energies to increasing scholarship funds he says have been "pinched" in the past five to eight years. He also foresees more opportunity for student research and scholarly work in the field of mass media.

Bettinghaus is the author of two text books, The Nature of Proof and Persuasive Communication. He has conducted research in the field of persuasion and language behavior.

He will succeed Herbert S. Oyer, professor of audiology and speech sciences, who has been appointed Dean of the Graduate School. Assistant Dean Patricia S. Walsh will assume the duties of assistant to the newly-appointed provost, Lawrence Boger.

Whistling away the time was the order of the day for the approximately 50 poll workers working at 14 precinct locations on campus.

Actually, poll workers did more than just sit and whistle. They caught up on reading, munched, watched television and made a lot of progress on knitting and crocheting projects.

Since most of the poll locations on campus consist of mainly dorm residents, voter turnout is usually light. At 3 p.m. after being open 8 hours, 20 walk-in voters was the highest count for all of the campus precincts. Most of the precincts had about 100 absentee ballots, but poll workers finished working with those in the morning hours.

Once the absentee ballots were taken care of, what seemed like the longest day of the year began for the workers.

"Having 15 people come in is really big," said Nancy Phillips, chairperson of precinct 17, located in the Union. "Last year at this time we had only three and this precinct covers off-campus areas."

Most of the locations have three poll workers. The workers get $30 for the day and an additional $5 for attending a meeting prior to election day.

At Precinct 12, which consists of Case Hall, the scene was similar to that of the Union. Bored workers stared off into space or read to pass the time. Two poll workers were busy reading "The Rebels," while the rest watched freshman orientation students pass by.

At Precincts 13 and 32, located in a Wilson Hall lounge, the workers were keeping themselves busy. On one of the sofas a game of scrabble took up time for two workers, while the rest stared attentively at television program "One Life to Live."

"Actually we do spend a lot of time taking care of the 101 absentee ballots," said Terry Stemle, chairperson of the precinct. "A lot come in bent, so we have to make duplicates."

Precinct 14 in W. Akers Hall had eight walk-in voters and 29 absentee ballots. The workers there read "Reader's Digest" to whittle away the hours.

"There are a lot of little details to be taken care of," said the chairperson of the precinct. "I personally think this is costing the taxpayers a lot of money and the students should register to vote in their hometown."

At Precinct 13, located in the basement of McDonell Hall, the workers read novels, munched on Pringles and knitted socks to entertain themselves.

SPARTAN VILLAGE LOCATION USED

Pediatric clinic offered

By ANNE E. STUART
State News Staff Writer

School physicals, immunizations and treatment of some illnesses are now available for the children of MSU students three mornings a week in a two-bedroom Spartan Village apartment.

From 8 a.m. to noon on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, the Student Dependent Health Care Service will offer walk-in pediatric treatment at 1412-F Spartan Village for any children who have a parent carrying at least six credits.

Basically "well-child" care will be offered, though some treatment of colds, ear infections and sore throats will be available, said Mary Fedewa, a pediatric nurse practitioner at the clinic.

"We are not equipped for emergencies," she said. "We don't have a full-time physician. Only minor ailments can be treated here."

Six children with slight illnesses were treated at the clinic in its first day of operation Monday. Clinic personnel expect an influx of patients in the next few weeks, mostly for school physicals as new families move into the area.

Student Dependent Health Care, housed in the MSU Health Center, offers health services for the spouses and children of students. A full-time pediatric nurse handles most cases, with a pediatrician available some afternoons.

With the move to Spartan Village, the health center will only offer pediatric care in the afternoons. The main reason for the move was to make health care for MSU families more accessible than it has been previously, Fedewa said.

"There is a parking problem at Olin," she said. "This discourages people when they have to drive around for an hour, especially during winter term when there is a high rate of illness."

Clinic treatment is not limited to Spartan Village families, Fedewa emphasized. Any MSU student with the minimum number of credit hours may bring children to the clinic.

Besides Fedewa, the clinic is staffed by a licensed practical nurse and a clerk. Fees are $20 for the first visit and $10 for any following visits, but are lowered to $15 and $7 respectively if the payments are made in cash at the time of the visit.

With the discount, the rates are definitely cheaper than most area pediatricians' rates, Fedewa said.

Funding for the program is primarily from the Dept. of Family Medicine and the College of Osteopathic Medicine, according to Dr. Roy Harvey, medical director of the dependent health care program and an associate professor of family medicine.

Training programs for students from the departments of social work, public health, nursing, clinical psychology and nutrition will eventually be incorporated into the program, Harvey and Fedewa said.

If the services are utilized, we can expand in almost any direction, but we are on trial with the money crunch right now," Fedewa said.

The rent on the apartment will be covered by the funding of the program, according to John Roetman, University Apartments manager.

"The total aspect of the problem warrants the use of the apartment for a health care facility," he said.

Three Okemos youths were arrested Monday night and charged with malicious destruction and breaking and entering into an occupied building.

The youths, two 17 year-olds and an 18 year-old, were reported to have entered through the second floor window of the home of East Lansing resident Del Bennett and were threatening Bennett with sticks when their presence was discovered by two MSU students working at a nearby horse barn.

A spokesperson for the Dept. of Public Safety (DPS) said the youths were then apprehended with the aid of a passing jogger and detained until DPS officers arrived and made the arrests.

Bennett lives on a small farm south of central campus, where he has resided since his birth in the late 1800's. However, the farm was sold to MSU in 1939, but with the provision that Bennett be allowed to use the house as long as he lives.

No motive for the break in has yet been determined, but police said an investigation is continuing.

Stereo equipment valued at $932 was reported missing from a room in Mary Mayo Hall at approximately 6 p.m. Saturday, DPS official said.

However, a room-to-room search conducted by investigating DPS officers proved fruitless as all of the missing equipment was discovered a short time later hidden under the blankets in an unoccupied room.

Bettinghaus

Correction

In a story concerning Hillcrest Village apartments in the State News Monday, it was incorrectly stated that Ken Goodrich was the president of the tenants association. At this time the group has not formally organized or selected a leader. It was also incorrectly stated that Walter Neller Co. owned the complex. The company is the property manager for the owner, Harry Olin, a Florida resident.

Discipline Woody, probe OSU

Before he tries to strangle anybody else, Woody Hayes and the OSU football machinery deserve nothing more than what the facts properly demand.

Woody Hayes is generally called 'outsoken.'

Going for Ed Ronders' throat and striking WJR radio's Bob Page upside his head are only the latest in Woody's physical assaults. He has previously rammed a cameraman's unit into the cameraman's eyes and slugged a fan here at MSU.

What makes these actions on the part of 'outsoken' Woody all the more repugnant is the fact that Woody is a consummate hypocrite. He self-righteously admitted turning in MSU; all the while OSU alumni and Woody himself were shuffling greenbacks back and forth like yard-line markers in their own illegal recruiting rituals.

Regulation 3, section 1, paragraphs (a) and (b) of Big Ten regulations read:

"It shall be the responsibility of each member university to ensure that all individuals employed by or directly associated with the athletic program of that university comport themselves in a sportsmanlike manner when representing their university . . . Unsportsmanlike conduct shall subject the individual to disciplinary action . . ."

If physically assaulting reporters is tolerated by the Big Ten, then the enforcement is lax.

And Big Ten commissioner Wayne "Do-Nothing" Duke should certainly recant his stand that there is no reason to investigate OSU. With the sort of specifics the State News is uncovering, there is hard, clean evidence that OSU is enmeshed in a series of illegalities — none of which it has yet denied — that could make MSU's indiscretions look like a child's mischief. An investigation of OSU is called for; swift discipline of Hayes a must.

Or is everybody intimidated by the aged Little Caesar?

Not according to the game plan

It is interesting how useful politicians find it to express themselves on matters of principle. Ronald Reagan advertises his intention to nominate a domestic liberal as his Vice President and is denounced for breach of principle. Breach of principle is here defined as the acknowledgement that there are many Republicans and other Americans whose views in certain areas fall to the left of one's own.

Whereupon John Connally (a man I greatly admire) suddenly discovers that Gerald Ford would be the "better candidate" and endorses him. Mr. Connally manages to give the impression that he has been in communion with the Lord Almighty for these many months, attempting to decide which of the two men is the better candidate for President. With a single move, Reagan convinced him — that Ford was the stronger candidate. Cool observers must be permitted to conclude that John Connally reasoned not that Mr. Ford would be the better candidate, but that he would be the candidate named in Kansas City. That is why he came out for Ford. The Thomists call that "sufficient reason."

Clarke Reed (a man I greatly like) rose up through the ranks of southern Republicanism as a conservative of the new school, here defined as a conservative who actually reads books and reacts other than viscerally in arriving at his public positions. Reed promised time and time again that he would stand by Reagan, whose positions on most public matters are Reed's own. The pressures on Reed, to give him his due, were awful. It isn't easy to arrive at the point of having to tell your secretary not to take any more calls from the President of the United States. Still, the fact is he crumbled. And it is unreasonable to suppose that he did so for reasons other than John Connally's. After all, he was beginning to wobble before anybody ever heard of Schweiker. Which ends us with the following summary:

Clarke Reed, objecting to Reagan's lack of principle in naming a liberal Vice President, affirmed his own devotion to principle by rejecting the candidate to whom he had pledged his support, in favor of the candidate who selected his liberal Vice President two years ago. It is hard to say how the cause of principle is being served by those who in its name are denying the Republican party the chance to field a candidate who can convincingly articulate conservative principles.

The ironies shine through the situation. It cannot, I think, be persuasively contended that, against Mr. Carter, Mr. Ford would do better than Ronald Reagan. Surveying the general chaos, Mr. Carter issued a wonderfully cool statement to the effect that he thought Schweiker was a very good man. In doing so, he inflamed the resentment of Schweiker by disappointed Reaganites; and, in so doing, strengthened the hand of the adversary he hopes to be contending against in the election campaign.

Mr. Alton Frye, of the Council on Foreign Relations, writing in the Wall Street Journal is jubilant about the political effect of Mr. Reagan's maneuver. Look what has happened! he says. By saying he would accept a liberal running mate, Reagan has knocked himself out. But in doing so, he has revalidated the very idea of a liberal running mate. And this means that President Ford can take as his Vice President not a conservative like Connally or Reagan, but a truly qualified candidate, like Percy or Mathias. In other words, Reagan has, however inadvertently, performed a public service.

Clearly it is not going according to plan for the Reagan people. Senator Schweiker hasn't come forward with the names of the delegates whose concern for the elevation of Senator Schweiker was to have led them into Reagan's camp. We do not know, as yet, whether they are intimidated or whether they were always illusory.

All we are given, at the moment, is the spectacle of conservatives assuaging their pique at having to live in the real world by ushering in the Presidency of Jimmy Carter. It seems ages ago, and of no apparent concern to them, that Carter announced as his choice for a running mate, Walter Mondale.

It is criminal

I was amazed to read the viewpoints on the tuition hike and salary increase on Fri., July 30. It must be mentioned here that the first of these two is painful while the second will be enjoyable for those who receive it!

Concerning the tuition increase, all of us students are being raped by the administration proposal of more than 50 percent increase since 1974 plus what they have called a "registration fee" which amounts to about $1.5 million a year for students and their parents. President Wharton wrote irresponsibly that "raising our tuition to the University of Michigan level would have generated an additional $6.3 million . . . The temptation to recommend such a drastic increase was strong . . ." This is wrong, malicious and was used only to further harass the poor inexperienced student.

Let's face it, if they will raise the tuition to the U. of M. level a lot of students simply do not come to MSU. This, therefore, not only does not provide $6.3 million but a substantial decrease in the tuition income received by MSU. Furthermore, I would like to know who had the temptation to recommend such an increase? I am sure that the answer is you, Mr. President, and most of your associates.

It is amazing that we are paying, in the upper-third level of the Big Ten and in cases the top salaries to the administration that only raises our tuition and temptation to further increase it.

It is also strange that we must compare with the weakest institutions Michigan or the nation for tuition and with such good points such as: 100 per cent tuition refunding during the first week each term, 75 per cent in the second year and 50 per cent up to the midterm. What wrong if you find a class too easy or hard and decide that you do not want? Why not be allowed to use the university facilities for all sports, games, parties, speeches, concerts . . . free from charges showing the U.S. ID card?

As Denise Gordon put it "why do graduate student pay graduate tuition when he takes a 100 to 400 level course cannot cost anything more to teach the lower division courses?"

We expect and accept the cost of education to increase with the rate of inflation at 6.5 per cent per year, but not 50 per cent over a course of two years is unjustified and unfair; it is criminal hope that the administration uses its efforts and skills to deal with the legislators to reduce the burden currently placed on the students and their parents.

Thoughts on Ford: his record, the pardon

TRB

The last time a party didn't nominate a Presidential Incumbent was Rutherford B. Hayes. I thought about it as I leaned back against the trunk of an accomodating elm tree on the White House lawn the other day on the Pennsylvania Avenue side. Temperature 85.

We were waiting for Mr. Ford. His staff had thought up a setting whereby he would be super-presidential — all incumbent, a press conference outdoors with the North colonnade as backdrop. A catbird warbled in one of the trees. An ambulance shrieked down the Avenue — "Wow, wow, wow!"

Tourists looked curiously at us through the iron rails. (There is always that little group in front of the White House rain or shine; on the frosty night of Pearl Harbor senators from the Foreign Relations Committee went in, grim and silent, and a little moon hung in the sky, and the crowd behind the rails tried to sing the Star Spangled Banner. That crowd is one of the most permanent things in the Capital.)

The President was late so I went over and sat against an elm and thought about Rutherford B. Hayes. ("B" stands for Birchard). You remember him. He got in by a fluke and was married to "Lemonade Lucy." He lived in that big white house with the colonnades. He was a pleasant-faced, full bearded, middle-western lawyer who tried to do the right things in a rather bumbling way like civil service reform; not a touch of brilliance or magnetism in him anywhere. His big antagonist was another Republican, tough, senator Roscoe Conkling, the "New York Colossus," who argued that people who tried to reform the spoils system (like Hayes) were effeminate — "man-miliners, the dilettante and carpet knights of politics." They threw Hayes out.

Mr. Ford appeared at 1:30 and I scrambled back into the tight crowd, arranged like a horseshoe — about 100 reporters and camera crews and TV people. Across the way was the old granite gingerbread State-War-Navy building now called "Executive Offices Building." Fifty years ago it held all three departments. Jimmy Carter is going to shrink them all back to size again.

Questions were sharp, and personal, and without rancor, as they are in the Washington political game. It would astound other nations. Democrats had implied that Mr. Ford wasn't smart enough to be president; did he think he was smart enough? Mr. Ford standing there composedly in a striped gray suit and blue shirt (why should a man wear a vest on a hot day?) smiled good-naturedly. He thought he was smart enough. He is a likable figure, sandy hair and eyebrows, hands clasped calmly behind him or brought out occasionally for emphasis, not taking offense. Reporters tempted him; how did he assess Jimmy Carter? Did he think the Carter-Mondale ticket beatable? (The latest Louis Harris poll shows Carter 66, Ford 27 per cent — one of the biggest chasms in history.) "Absolutely," said Mr. Ford, registering confidence.

Yes, Mr. Ford went on, answering another question, he had pardoned Richard Nixon — and he would do it again. It brought back the episode. Mr. Ford has been in office now two years next week —

August 9, 1974. A crushing question for this modest Congressman of 24 years was what to do with the stinking mess he inherited? One Sunday morning he went to church and, on Sept. 8, unexpectedly gave Nixon a "full, free and absolute pardon" explaining afterward that "my conscience says it is my duty." His Gallup poll rating plunged 21 points in one of the sharpest air pocketers ever recorded, as of course he knew it would. Newspapers raged; it deprives us all of an impeachment and a state trial that would have been one of the grandest shows in history and that might still be going on in 1976. What a choice to dump on a new president. If I'd been Ford, I'm inclined to think I would have gone to church and made the same decision he did.

I got to thinking about President Ford and Rutherford B. Hayes at the press conference, and later. My hunch is that in the present day the Republicans' suicidal yen to nominate Ronald Reagan, (with or without liberal Dick Schweiker of Pennsylvania) will abate and I suspect that John Connally thinks so, too, who has finally and unexpectedly come out for Ford. Does Ford have a chance to beat Carter? Oh — maybe.

Mr. Ford's strength is that they're all picking on him and he's an underdog, like Harry Truman and doing his best. From my point of view his two-year economic record is terrible. With a 7.5 per cent unemployment rate he still vetoes the modest 3.9 billion-dollar jobs bill. He has so little style and brilliance that he is not able to blot out Gov. Reagan merely by flashing his incumbency. He holds only rare White House press conferences which should be the steady link between him and the public (FDR had two a week). He has not been able to persuade the nation even yet that we teeter on the abyss of an oil shortage. (It isn't enough to say that the nation won't listen; he should make it listen.)

Mr. Ford's asset is that he is an attractive man, obviously doing what he thinks right, who says the same things in private that he says in public. Also that he is running against a man whom people have quite accepted yet, Jimmy Carter. And way of putting it is that in this election Jimmy Carter is running against Dick Carter. It may be a close race.

I keep wondering in the Carter statements if he fully understands the Washington he's talking about; he's anti-Washington and says he's going to reorganize government. Fine, that has been done before, it's still much the same. He says going to take a year of studying before submitting his big tax shake-up to the Congress is that a new president gets a honeymoon of 180 days, and if he wants action better arrive with plans in his knapsack. Gov. Carter's close-knit, youthful, attentive, knee-jerk team worries me already. The New York Times conservative columnist William Safire is asking about $80,000 a year contract. Patrick Caddell, 26, the chief of staff, a pollster who reportedly has other lucrative clients like Exxon, Arco, Shell and Jimmy Carter tut-tut it.

When the governor met New York businessmen last week a reporter questioned him: "I'd rather lose the election, and my wife, than to betray that confidence American public has in me." The statement, alas, easy to caricature.

So we turned back thoughtfully to the presidential press conference on the White House lawn the other day, with fountain, and the government was picnicking across the way in Lafayette park, and the five movie cameras were for Jerry Ford to say something brilliant and electrifying. He didn't.

Counseling assists Surgi-Clinic patients

By MIKE TANIMURA
State News Staff Writer
This is the second part of a three-story series on Provincial Hospital and Surgi-Clinic and its program on pregnancy termination.

A woman who suspects she is pregnant should have a pregnancy test taken after six weeks from the first day of her last period to confirm her suspicions. The test, which involves urine analysis, is given by many hospitals, crisis centers and family planning centers in the Lansing area. It should be done as soon as possible after the six week time period, allowing the woman time to decide if the pregnancy should be terminated or not.

The next step is crisis counseling to help the woman decide if she wishes to go through with the pregnancy. This service also is offered by the many crisis and family planning centers in the area.

However, if the woman decides to have her pregnancy terminated at Provincial Hospital and Surgi-Clinic, she must have her pregnancy test and counseling taken there. Judy Breitmeyer, counseling supervisor, said.

"We must determine for ourselves that the women are both physically and psychologically in need of the abortion," Breitmeyer said.

Pregnancy tests are taken at Provincial from 1 to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. They are free of charge.

Crisis counseling involves meeting individually with one of the eight counselors at Provincial. The counselor discusses with the woman — and her husband, lover, friends or parents if the woman wishes — the reasons she is considering having an abortion.

"It's a decision-making process," said Nancy Cleary, director of Provincial's Access Center. "It's not a hassling kind of thing. We don't ask women to rationalize their decision; we just make sure their decision is the right one for them."

The woman must then have a pelvic examination to determine how advanced the pregnancy is. Provincial has three pregnancy-termination procedures, utilizing the procedure that fits the advancement of the pregnancy.

Vacuum aspiration, the quickest and easiest procedure, is done on women 8 to 12 weeks from their last menstrual period; dilation and curettage (D & C), 13 to 15 weeks; and saline/prostaglandin injection, 16 to 24 weeks.

Group counseling is held with other women who will be having the same procedure, with the counselor explaining the procedure in detail with diagrams and some of the surgical equipment used.

Vacuum aspiration involves dilation of the cervix and the use of a vacuum aspirator to withdraw the pregnancy tissue. It generally takes only 5 to 10 minutes, with a local anesthetic applied to the cervix. A woman usually remains in the hospital no more than an hour after the procedure.

D & C (dilation and curettage) — "Which does not," as Breitmeyer told one group session, "mean dustin' and cleanin'" — is a slightly more involved procedure, usually lasting 15 minutes. The woman is given a general anesthetic and the physician uses a curette — a spoon like instrument to remove any remaining tissue from the uterine walls — in addition to dilators and the vacuum aspirator.

The patient normally remains in the hospital four to six hours after the procedure is completed.

The saline/prostaglandin injection is performed in the patient's room. The physician administers a saline/prostaglandin solution into the uterine cavity to induce labor, which usually occurs about 24 hours after the injection. During this time the patient is encouraged to be fully ambulatory. The patient will have attended a group relaxation session to help minimize her fear and discomfort during labor.

Six to eight hours after the fetal and placental expulsion, the woman is released.

"We give patients all the encouragement we can to get them ambulatory as quickly as possible," David Converse, nursing coordinator, said. "If there is no reason for them to remain under our care, why should they run up a higher bill by staying in the hospital longer?"

"Most women are elated to find our procedures and hospitalization not as lengthy as they expected."

No matter which procedure the woman has gone through, she is advised on postoperative health care and encouraged to make a decision on which method of birth control she will be using in the future prior to leaving the hospital, Cleary said.

She is advised not to engage in any strenuous activity for a week after the procedure. A doctor is on call 24 hours a day in the event of any emergency.

A very important aspect of pregnancy termination is psychological support, Breitmeyer said.

The last story in the series will deal with the experience of an MSU student who underwent vacuum aspiration to have her unwanted pregnancy terminated.

Judy Breitmeyer, counseling supervisor at Provincial Hospital, leads a group session to demonstrate the pregnancy termination procedures. All women go through individual and group counseling before abortion operations.

Technology must be confirmed by performance.

Here are the judgments of the most respected critics and reviewers on the BOSE 901

"I urge that you listen for yourself. I think you will have to agree that Bose has, in a single giant step, produced one of the finest speaker systems ever made."
AMERICAN RECORD GUIDE

"... If your response to it is like ours, you'll be reluctant to turn it off and go to bed."
Norman Eisenberg,
HIGH FIDELITY

"... I must say that I have never heard a speaker system in my own home which could surpass, or even equal, the Bose 901 for overall 'realism' of sound."
Hirsch-Hook Laboratories
STEREO REVIEW

"The Bose have replaced forever our bulky studio speakers with compact, handsome units. The only trouble is — our studio is beginning to look like a living room!"
DOWNBEAT

"To hear a thunderous 'low C' organ pedal... or a clean, weighty impact of a bass drum is truly impressive... There is no doubt that the much abused and overworked term 'break-through' applies to the Bose 901 and its bold new concepts."
Bert Whyte
AUDIO

"But these speakers provide a quality which is not to be matched."
STEREO & HI-FI TIMES

"The 901 is very possibly the only speaker to date to actually pour forth in true concert hall fashion."
HI-FI BUYER'S GUIDE

"After a time trial measured in months rather than weeks, this one can definitely proclaim Bose is best, big or small, high or low."

'Silent Movie:' Brooks' quiet touch

By KATHY ESSELMAN
State News Reviewer

Mel Brooks' "Silent Movie" takes the audience back to a time when comedy was king. No one with a weak heart can afford the risk of this antic farce.

This "Silent Movie" could have followed hard on the heels of Charlie Chaplin's "Modern Times" (1936), the last silent film made in this country. In the meantime, Los Angeles has changed from a small city to a gleaming glass metropolis.

But Mel Brooks has proved again that the more things change, the more they stay the same. He has stilled the big-city street noises and created a crazed comedy in the Keystone style. He makes verbal humor seem like an unnecessary obstacle as his film slips and slides forward on a banana peel of pratfalls, chases and visual gags.

The film pays tribute to the masters of MGM musicals, Mack Sennett, the Ritz Brothers and Busby Berkeley numbers. Brooks substitutes Panavision and color by DeLuxe for the grainy black and white of old silents, but the spirit is unchanged.

Brooks plays the lead as the director fallen on hard times through drink. Marty Feldman supports him, as usual. This real-life rubberman bounces from door to door, defeated by an evasive aisle of elevators. Dom DeLuise plays the third henchman. He discovers the ultimate weapon, a wily Coke machine that almost unmans him in his unending quest for sustenance.

Harold Gould turns in a leering, moustache-twirling paragon of villainy as Engulf the conglomerate chief who lusts after the movie studio in trouble. He and his partner, Devour, played by Ron Carey, plot against Mel Funn and his crew who are out to save the studio with an all-star silent comedy.

Engulf and Devour and its machinations call to mind the corporate maneuverings of Gulf and Western, who absorbed Paramount and Desilu a few years ago. The studio bears suspicious resemblance to MGM, with Sid Caesar replacing the lion in the logo.

Sid Caesar contributes a sterling performance as the hypertense studio chief. He justifies his reputation as one of the master clowns. The scene in which Feldman and DeLuise turn him on and off as they play "Pong" on his electrocardiac monitoring unit in intensive care is beyond belief.

"Silent Movie" provides 86 minutes of uninterrupted lunacy. It may not be perfect, but it is the best Mel Brooks film so far. If you are on his wavelength, you will love it. It is at the Campus Theater.

American, Egyptian art featured in exhibit

"American Life in Art" is the theme of the current exhibit at Kresge Art Gallery. The exhibit features 19 lithographs by B. Grant Wood of "American Gothic" fame.

The "American Scene" includes 18th century engravings of George Washington and abstract landscapes and still life paintings of the 1940s.

Wood's lithographs, which are on loan from the Lawrence Regans of East Lansing, depict still lifes in pastel tones as well as farm scenes of horses in the snow and cornfield and tree planting.

The exhibit is located in North Kresge Gallery and is concurrent with the exhibit of paintings by five contemporary Egyptian artists.

Both will be on view through August 15. The gallery is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and 1 to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Ledges' season continues with 'Guys and Dolls'

The Boarshead Theater continues its summer season with the opening of the musical comedy "Guys and Dolls" tonight.

"Guys and Dolls" runs tonight through August 22 at the Ledges Playhouse in Fitzgerald Park, Grand Ledge. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling 627-7805.

Special rates are available for students, senior citizens and groups.

MSU bronze medal winner applauds U.S.

By GEOFF ETNYRE
Stan Dziedzic, asst. wrestling coach at MSU, does not quite agree with some of the U.S. athletes who were outspoken against the U.S.A.'s commitment to its Olympic participants.

won the bronze medal in the 163-pound class of freestyle wrestling, but he did not take the stage to berate the country that sent him.
"I was really proud that I got there," said Dziedzic, while resting in his hometown, Allentown, Pa., on Monday. "I was reading a series of Bicentennial books just before and during the Olympics. I was really a part of the Bicentennial spirit, and there I was, representing what I was reading about."

"The U.S.A. has its own system," Dziedzic went on. "There can be changes, sure, but I'm proud of it."
"I don't know, I guess I'm sounding like a redneck," he added before tailing off his enthusiasm.

Dziedzic contrasts sharply with Mac Wilkins, the U.S. discus thrower who won a gold medal. Wilkins was quoted as saying that the United States had no part in his gold medal effort and claimed all praise for himself.
Wilkins was also the most graphic example of the state-supported athletics campaign that reared its head in Montreal. After an East German beat out Wilkins' countryman, John Powell, for the silver medal in the discus, Wilkins gave the East German a huge bear hug on national television. He explained later that he did it because he wanted all the East Germans to win to prove the superiority of the state-supported athletics system of the communist countries.

"I don't think we need to be subsidized," said Dziedzic, stressing that he could speak only for his own sport, wrestling.
"I wouldn't want to be subsidized," he continued. "I want to wrestle because I want to do it. I wouldn't want to do it for a living."

"We don't need more athletes or more training. We need more international experience and more dissemination of information. I guess what we need is just better use of our financial means."
The U.S. Olympic wrestling team was no slouch in Montreal, however, as they took six medals in freestyle wrestling — one gold, three silver and two bronze. Dziedzic said that the United States could have a top-flight team consistently if they put a little more priority on the world championships held yearly.
"We have the wrestlers in this country to beat the best wrestling country in the world," Dziedzic said. "We've always had the potential. What we need is a little more enthusiasm in the off years. We just don't put enough effort into the world championships."

Dziedzic also disagrees with Dwight Stones, the U.S. bronze medalist in the high jump and outspoken critic of the Olympic Village. Stones was so disgusted with the conditions that he flew back to the west coast to train.
"The building was overcrowded but you could get by," said Dziedzic. "The food was great. It was well prepared and you could get as much as you wanted. The people in Montreal did a super job."
Dziedzic also attributed the food and location as part of the wrestling team's exceptional effort. He said that it was easier wrestling on this continent, especially a place which is similar to the United States.

"It's difficult to go to some other countries where we just aren't acclimated to their conditions," he said.
The conditions seemed conducive to Dziedzic, who is grateful for his bronze medal, but he was admittedly downhearted about the final result.
"I was disappointed that I didn't get a gold," he said. "The way I wrestled I might have done better. I lost to guys who I might not have had to wrestle."
Dziedzic was referring to the final day of competition when he lost to the eventual silver medalist in the morning and the gold medalist later the same day.
Those circumstances might have been avoided if a Russian wrestler had not lost his match on a protest in the first round. (continued on page 10)

60 FORMER STARS FACE-OFF FOR REUNION

Alumni games to honor Bessone

A group of approximately 60 former MSU hockey stars will be to the ice at Munn Arena Friday night in a two-game reunion honoring coach Amo Bessone.
Players from almost every season that Bessone has coached at MSU will be represented in the affair, which begins with the "older" alumni playing in the first contest at 7 p.m.
Some of the more recent alumni will face-off in the second contest, which is scheduled to start around 9 p.m.
This will be the second alumni reunion since the construction of Munn Arena in '74. In fact, the first oldest contest was the first game ever played in the facility.

Some of the faces people can look for at the games include 1976 national scoring champion Tom Ross, Norm Barnes and Bob Boyd, both now defensemen in the NHL. Last season players Daryl Rice and John Sturges will also be on the scene, as well as former goalie Ron "Clarkie" Clark. Graduate assistant coach Bill Sipola and Dave Roberts are other recent players.
Among some of Amo's pupils from the 1950s and 60s are Bill Faunt, Lee Hathaway, Mike Jacobson and Tom Mikkola, all members of the 1966 NCAA championship team and 1950s stars Jack Roberts and Elwood "Butch" Miller.

The games will be part of a two-day reunion for the former pucksters, with activities on Saturday including a golf outing at Forest Akers and a banquet at the Kellogg Center.
The weekend reunion came as a sort of surprise to Bessone, who was making other weekend plans.
"I seem to be in the dark about the whole thing," Bessone said. "I was planning on going to Houghton this weekend for a reunion of all the ex-coaches in all the sports at Michigan Tech."
Bessone, who coached hockey and was an assistant in football from 1948-50 before coming to East Lansing, quickly canceled his reservations in the north-land.

The public is invited to the games, with donations taken at the door.

Student wins $100 prize for entry in essay contest

An MSU Honors College student has been awarded $100 in the college university division of the Adam Smith Bicentennial Essay Contest. George N. Vurdelja, Jr., from Lancaster, Pennsylvania, is a junior in James Madison College with a 3.94 grade point average. His field of concentration is socioeconomics. Vurdelja was among nearly 400 high school and college students who submitted essays in the nationwide competition for scholarships and other prizes valued at $7,000. Sponsored by the National Federation of Independent Business in cooperation with the Intercollegiate Studies Institute, the students wrote on the theme, "The Future of Capitalism: The Market Economy vs. The Planned Economy in America's Third Century." Vurdelja was one of 10 runners-up in the contest. The two winners, one each in the high school and college division, won the $1,000 scholarships in addition to the opportunity to join some of the world's most distinguished economists and social philosophers at a meeting of the Mont Pelerin Society in Scotland later this summer. A spokesperson for the Intercollegiate Studies Institute said the contest was extremely competitive and that there was little difference between the scores of the winners and the runners-up. William E. Simon, U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, was one of the contest judges. "It was well worth the time," he said. "The future of our country lies in our youth and I am delighted to see that some of our young people perceive the close tie between our personal and economic freedoms."

Fund raising dinner set for McCarthy

A $15 a plate fundraising dinner for former Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy's independent candidacy for president will be held Friday at St. John's Student Center, 327 M.A.C. Ave. at 7:15 p.m. Following the Asian Indian dinner, McCarthy will speak on "American Politics - 200 Years" and then answer questions. The dinner will raise funds for the campaign and for legal action initiated by the McCarthy '76 Michigan State Committee, which seeks to establish that an independent candidate has a right to appear on the ballot in the state of Michigan. Similar actions have helped place McCarthy's name on ballots in 13 other states. On July 25 on "Meet the Press" McCarthy predicted that by November he would be on the ballot in a minimum of 40 states. Persons interested in attending the dinner should contact Patricia P. Weymouth, 4544 VanAtta Road, Okemos, 48864 or call 349-2470.

A PIECE OF THE ACTION.

Every Sambo's manager gets one. Because every Sambo's manager invests as a partner, sharing in the profits of the restaurant opens every three days, and we need qualified manager-partners. Since our training program is one of the most intensive in the industry, we're not necessarily looking for people with restaurants in their background. We're looking for bright, talented people with management potential. People who can spot an objective and be willing to work hard to achieve it. If this sounds good, find out more.

LATEST TECHNIQUES, INNOVATIONS SHOWCASED

Michigan farm tours sponsored by MSU

By JANETR OLSEN
State News Staff Writer
Two farm tours Tuesday gave farmers from all over Michigan a chance to learn the newest innovations in farm business management and the latest research in the bean and sugar beet industries.

The tour, sponsored by the MSU Dept. of Agricultural Economics and the Cooperative Extension Service, included farms which employ unique business practices of particular interest to agricultural businessmen.

County for the first time in eight years, are under a contract with the Michigan Sugar Co., Carrollton. Vyskocil, along with two neighbors, have planted the beets on 100 acres and have jointly purchased a harvester.

animal wastes, in order to reduce the volume and time needed to get solid waste back to the land. The semi-solid wastes are stacked into a concrete floor pit with liquids piped into a biodegrading pit, almost completely eliminating odors in the process.

During the noon program at the Corunna fairgrounds, Pulitzer Prize winner Loren Soth, former editorial writer for the Des Moines Register and Tribune, spoke on the topic "Can We Export Our Farm Problems?"

"Agricultural experts have been so anxious to get rid of farm surplus that, in many cases, they have been easy marks for Soviet officials," said Soth, who won the 1956 Pulitzer Prize for editorial writing which brought about the exchange of farm delegations with the Soviet Union.

Soth said the U.S. cannot count on the 1975-76 grain-level export to Russia.

"Russia will produce more grain in the near future," he said. "But we can only be certain of uncertainty when it comes to Russia."

Soth pointed out the need for a grain stabilization program of some kind - preferably in cooperation with other countries.

"Our stake is so high, it would still be in our best interest to maintain a grain reserve program," he said.

Farmers also attended MSU's annual Bean and Beet Day at the Saginaw Valley Research Farm Tuesday. Tours of the 119-acre tract showed the latest research in soil management, crop rotation, plant breeding and disease control.

The research farm was purchased by the Michigan bean and sugar beet industries six years ago. MSU specialists conducting the research were on hand to explain the results of their work to those participating in the tour.

On Thursday, producers from throughout Michigan will attend a pickling cucumber field day in Ravenna, which is 17 miles east of Muskegon. The event, sponsored by the MSU Cooperative Extension Service and the Wilde Manufacturing Inc., builders of pickle harvesting machines and handling equipment, will demonstrate new cultural practices, new variety performance, weed control and machine harvesting. Personnel from the company and MSU will explain machine operations.

Rowland said he has not received his security deposit back yet and said he was told by a secretary of the mall that the merchants would not have their last week's rent returned even though the mall was closed that week.

"I felt the management was not concerned with the merchants," he said. "They were concerned with getting their rent."

Rowland, who said management had planned on keeping 37 stores open with the roller rink and the sporting goods store, added that he did not think management wanted the shops to remain at all. He said the management was just buying time to get what they wanted.

"I think it was all planned," he said. Rowland said he thought the sentiment of the majority of the merchants coincided with his complaints. Profits were not one of Rowland's problems, though.

total of $1.2 when the mall closed. She said that since April, many stores were closed out of the 150 that had originally opened the mall.

Originally it was planned that there would be an assortment of different stores, but Van Zwoll said as stores began closing out, the management duplicated many stores and merchants ended up cutting each other's throats from the competition.

Van Zwoll, who is now collecting unemployment, said she enjoyed the work, as it gave her a lot of responsibility and her contacts with the people.

As it became obvious that the idea of the mall was not working, Van Zwoll said management began discussing the addition of the roller rink. She said it was planned that the roller rink would take up one half of the mall, MC Sporting Goods would occupy most of the other half and some of the remaining small shops would be in the middle.

Van Zwoll said prior to the mall closing, only about six to 10 stores were still open for business.

Earl Rowland, owner of four different shops at various periods of time, said he was one of the first merchants to lease a shop and one of the last to close up.

Olympics enthuse Dziedzic

(continued from page 7) If the Russian, who was put out of the competition when he later lost to Dziedzic, had stayed in, the drawings would have been quite different for the final day, Dziedzic said. He would have had to wrestle only one of the matches on the final day and could have lost a decision and still won the gold.

"It's all speculative," said Dziedzic, who was playing the game that most athletes do when they lose - trying to find the circumstance that would have turned defeat into victory. "I didn't get bad draws really. That's part of the game."

Is the gold medal everything? "Well it's a two-step thing," Dziedzic said. "We want to get a medal. If we don't, everything feels like a waste of time. But... a gold is a gold."

Austin concedes race, supports Riegle

As Donald Riegle and Marvin Esch sailed to easy victories in the Senate race, the atmosphere in the losing candidates' headquarters was emotional, and at times bitter.

On the Democratic side, as Richard Austin conceded to Riegle, angry supporters were bitter over the fee scandal. James Elsmann in his speech blamed his defeat on his campaign to put an end to corruption in politics. James O'Hara said the media and the polls are to blame for his defeat. On the Republican side, Thomas Brennan would not concede to Esch and an aide said the low voter turnout was not an accurate opinion of the electorate. Deane Baker and Robert Huber, the other Republican candidates, were not available for comment.

Richard Austin conceded the senatorial race early this morning in an emotional gathering of supporters in the Grand Ballroom of Detroit's Cadillac Hotel.

Bitter protest and tears from some of the approximately 130 supporters mixed with the cheers and applause of others as Austin made his last speech of the morning.

"It seems as though the people of Michigan have made their choice," Austin said. "I can't say I am happy with their choice, but I accept the verdict of the people."

As early as the first tabulations, the scent of defeat began to spread throughout the ballroom.

Early on, the gathering appeared unwilling to believe the incoming reports being watched on three color TV sets, but it soon became clear that the 64-year-old veteran Democrat had lost to Riegle and the band which was playing added little to the sound spirits of Austin's supporters in Detroit.

Austin's first statement of the evening was a dismal one. "Whatever Democratic candidate emerges, this state will be well represented," he said. Supporters lingered on through the evening as Riegle's lead grew.

Austin's support from whites, according to observers, was as low as when he ran for Mayor in 1970. Among the white vote, Austin was running third behind Riegle and O'Hara.

He pledged his support to Carter, Mondale and Riegle in November.

gaiety and partying dictated the wait at Tom Brennan's headquarters in Okemos for the Senate race Tuesday night. But an undercurrent of disappointment and disillusionment pervaded.

Though Esch was leading by a two-one margin at midnight, Brennan said he would not concede the race then, though he added that it appeared to be a loss.

Brennan is a former Michigan Supreme Court judge and founded the Thomas M. Cooley Law School in 1976, where he is now dean.

Brennan mentioned Tuesday night's cold weather on WJIM TV 6 News and added that, "it'll be a cold day when Marvin Esch beats Tom Brennan."

Brennan cited his support for Esch as the Republican candidate, saying that he had confidence in his ability.

Future plans for Brennan include involvement with the law school rather than politics. Brennan said he could not see himself looking for something to run for.

"If we had another $100,000 we might have made a dent," he said to one campaign worker.

Tom Brennan Jr., campaign manager for his father said he was disappointed with the political system because of voter apathy.

"I hope this is not an indication of future apathetic elections both state and nationwide," he said.

The younger Brennan went on to say that people have no right to criticize the government when only 25 per cent of the people vote.

Brennan's namesake, who just completed his second year of law school at Cooley, agreed with many campaign workers from throughout the state who were at the headquarters and said money was the answer to political success.

Just before midnight, Brennan's youngest daughter Ellen, who turned 11 years old Tuesday, got a rousing birthday tribute.

"Well, we got one winner anyway," Brennan said.

An effort to expose campaign financing corruption may have cost Democrat Jim Elsmann his spot on the November ballot, campaign aids said last night.

More closely resembling a family gathering than primary night anticipation, conversation drifted from baseball to movies and occasionally back to politics at Elsmann's campaign headquarters.

Despite the candidate's poor showing in early returns, a warm, happy atmosphere pervaded. "We did much better than most polls predicted," said Joe Fabrizio, Elsmann's executive campaign manager.

"We spent $16,000 compared to Riegle's $300,000. Dollar for dollar we received more votes," he said.

Fabrizio said the entire $16,000 that Elsmann spent came out of his own pocket.

"Jim would not accept any contributions from anyone and in return he would not owe anyone special favors or treatment," he said. "That was one of the main issues of the campaign."

Lack of name recognition was definitely responsible for the poor showing, Elsmann said.

Meanwhile in Detroit, James G. O'Hara, who abandoned 19 years of congressional experience to run for the Senate, blamed his primary defeat Tuesday on misleading polls and media failure to adequately cover the campaign.

O'Hara, a Utica Democrat, conceded late Tuesday that Rep. Donald Riegle of Flint had won the Democratic senatorial primary.

In admitting defeat, O'Hara told a crowd of 175 supporters in suburban Southfield that the public's attention to polls was the prime reason for his downfall and that of two other candidates, Richard Austin and James Elsmann.

"They (polls) damaged our campaign and it was hard to get across to the public, who were used to accepting polls, but they were totally worthless," O'Hara said.

O'Hara also said the media failed to see behind the polls to adequately publicize the candidates or the issues in the campaign.

The candidate admitted he even fell short of projections in suburban Oakland and Macomb Counties. He had counted on for most his strength.

He said he planned to return to private law practice after House term ends.
