FDA to ban spray cans containing fluorocarbons; will affect cosmetic items

By NANCY JARVIS

State News Staff Writer The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has announced a nationwide ban on aerosol spray cans containing fluorocarbons. The ban will take effect "within a reasonable time period." The FDA ban will affect spray cans containing cosmetic items such as deodorant, shaving cream and hair spray. About half of these products contain fluorocarbons and the FDA has jurisdiction over about 80 per cent of them.

A similar ban may take effect on household cleaning products which are regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission. This agency is presently reviewing a request to ban fluorocarbons and is expected to reach a decision by Nov.

The FDA action represents the first move by the federal government requiring a fluorocarbon ban. Several states have proposed legislation but it has not passed in

The fluorocarbon controversy has been shaping up for the past several years. Various agencies have examined the effect that fluorocarbons have on the ozone layer of the atmosphere. Scientists have long contended that the chemicals in fluorocarbons mix with the gases in the stratosphere and break down the ozone contained in that

However, the validity of ozone depletion was not definitely proven until recently.

Last month, the National Academy of Sciences released a report verifying that fluorocarbons do break down the ozone layer. They recommended selective regulation or a total ban within two years and added that this time period would be needed to determine the degree of de-

The FDA action is a response to this report. The agency feels though that another two-year wait is not warranted

"A narrowing of the probable range of ozone depletion caused by continued use of fluorocarbons will not change the ultimate regulatory situation," Alexander Schmidt,

A depletion of the ozone layer would seriously affect life on earth because ozone is a shield against harmful ultraviolet radiation. A long list of probable effects have been cited, with the most serious being a large increase in skin cancer.

Opponents of a fluorocarbon ban have argued that the depletion thus far is not very serious. However, the visible effects of fluorocarbons have not yet been released. It takes several years for the chemicals to drift up into the stratosphere and break

For example, if emissions were curtailed now, the resultant destruction would maximize around 1990 and would remain significant for several decades, the paper

The exact details of the ban have not been worked out. In the meantime, the FDA plans to require the use of cap stamps or stick on labels for products containing fluorocarbons so consumers can decide whether to use them.

Alan Hoeting, spokesperson for the FDA, said the proposal will be published in the federal register and 60 days will be allowed for comment from industry and citizens. Then the proposal will evaluated and a final notice prepared. If the action goes this far, the ban will become "regulating rule" and will become law unless the FDA is taken to "The known fact is that fluorocarbon propellants primarily used to dispense cosmetics are breaking down the ozone layer," Schmidt said. "Without remedy, the result could be profound, adverse impact on our weather and on the incidence of skin

The FDA plans to allow a phase-out period during which industries can change to other propellants. The administration also emphasized a "minimum cost to

Taylor exchange charges

By ED SCHREIBER State News Staff Writer

Major issues in the 6th district Congressional race have continued to take a back seat to accusations of political wrongdoing and alleged campaign distortions. On Monday, Congressman Bob Carr, D-East Lansing, stepped up his attack against his Republican opponent Cliff Taylor and accused Taylor of conducting "his third consecutive smear campaign," by mounting an "avalanche" of media advertisements aimed at distorting Carr's Congressional voting record. 'I regret that we have to do it, I didn't want to do it again this year," Carr said at a morning press conference in his campaign headquarters. "I thought we could debate the issues and talk about the problems facing the district and America, but it's trying to campaign negatively and distorting the truth.

Taylor dismissed Carr's charges and leveled a few of his own.

"Last Thursday when I debated Bob Carr before the Junior League, he insinuated that before our televised debate on WJIM in 1974 I received a copy of the questions in advance," Taylor said. "He implied that I, in return agreed to assist WJIM in the FCC investigation." In 1974 the FCC was investigating WJIM for alleged news

"I'm calling on Carr to meet me tomorrow on the steps of city hall at 9 a.m. and prove that I had the questions or apologize."

Carr accused Taylor of using smear tactics first against forme: state Sen. William Ballenger, whom I. ylor defeated in the 1974 Congressional primary. Next, Carr said Taylor attempted to smear him during the 1974 campaign by "distorting my positions on issues and concocting a false and phony story about a tax increase. This year Carr said Taylor has become "even more vicious." "My opponent has claimed that I have voted to make it easier for criminals to go free after serving one-third of their term, he said. "Let me say that there was never such a vote in Congress." Carr said Taylor was probably referring to the passage of the parole reorganization act, which Carr did vote for and President Ford signed.

According to Carr, the bill specifically states that a criminal is not to be paroled if there is a likelihood that that person would violate the law again.

Taylor immediately refuted Carr's charges of running a smear campaign, but stood by his position that the parole reform act makes it easier for criminals to be released after serving only one-third of Taylor said that a statement made by the chairperson of the House Judiciary Committee, Peter Rodino, D-New Jersey, supports his theory. According to Taylo Rodino said: " 'The bill would remove this impediment to progressive penology by establishing a definite parole date at one third of the prisoner's full term and by making parole at that date automatic in most instances. Taylor said the statement is recorded in the May 21, 1975, copy of the Congressional Currently Rodino is making a series of advertisements across the country attempting to explain the reform act. Carr said the final distortion by Taylor was the most "cruel distortion of them all." He accused Taylor of "preying upon and exploiting" senior citizens by twisting and distorting his voting record and insinuating that Carr supported measures unfavorable to the elderly

Recent ads by the Taylor campaign include a published evaluation of Carr's voting record by the National Alliance of Senior Citizens, which gives Carr a 30 per cent approval rating.

This organization, Carr contends, is a "sham operation" designed to confuse people with the "reputable National Council of Senior Citizens," which gives Carr a 90 per cent approval rating.

Death of two terrorists reported

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Iranian security agents have killed two terrorists, one of them a member of the group that gunned down three American civilians last August, it was reported Sunday,

A government statement said the two victims were killed Oct. 9 in a shootout on Khayyam Avenue in downtown Tehran. One of the men tried to explode a grenade on the crowded street, it said.

On Sept. 2, government agents reported they had killed three other terrorists involved in the August slaying of three U.S. civilian employes of Rockwell International in Tehran.

Officials announced that several terrorists have surrendered under an amnesty issued by the army judicial

One former terrorist was released Sunday after being cleared of involvement in any murder cases and signing a guarantee that he would not return to terrorist activities, they said.

Pentagon demonstrators arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) - About 50 demonstrators were arrested Monday when they tried to place black coffins on the steps of the Pentagon and present a proclamation to Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld.

The demonstrators, including Daniel Ellsberg, who released the Pentagon Papers, were carried away by police when they disregarded orders to disperse and went limp. Police said the demonstrators were arrested on a misdemeanor charge of impeding traffic. No violence was evident.

Those arrested were part of a group of about 700 persons taking part in a demonstration by the Continental Walk for Disarmament and Social Justice. Mayor's relative linked to drugs

DETROIT (UPI) — The federal grand jury investigating alleged drug trafficking in the Detroit Police Dept. has linked the brother-in-law of Mayor Coleman A. Young with a Sterling Heights man who is suspected of being the head of a multimillion dollar drug operation, according to the Detroit Free

The newspaper said sources close to the investigation say that Kenneth Garrett, 27, of Sterling Heights, and Willie C. Volsan Jr., 53, who is married to Young's sister, Juanita, have a close business relationship.

"You might call it excellent," the newspaper quoted the source as saying. Garrett was convicted in a 1975 narcotics trial but has won a new trial ich is scheduled to start Nov. 1.

Federal sources maintain that Young is not a target of the probe.

Progress reported by UAW

DETROIT (AP) gainers for the United Auto Workers and for Chrysler and General Motors said they are making progress in contract talks and hope to avoid further strikes in the industry this

"There was minor progress," said UAW vice president Douglas Fraser after day-long subcommittee meetings Saturday with Chrysler. "I wouldn't call it terribly significant, but it was progress.

No meetings were held Sunday. Discussions were to resume Monday.

Chrysler's top bargainer, William O'Brien, vice president for employe and industrial relations, said the company also was satisfied with the progress of talks aimed at producing a three-year agreement covering the No. 3 car maker's 109,000 hourly workers and 9,100 salaried employes in the United States and Canada.

Fraser said the mittees were studying the language in the pattern-setting agreement reached between the union and Ford Motor Co. after a 28-day strike.

"I'm satisfied with the pace. Fraser said. "Of course, it will have to intensify" before a settlement is reached.

GM Chairman Thomas A. Murphy told reporters at Hot Springs, Va., on Saturday that he thought his firm could live with the same agreement the union had reached with Ford.

"Certainly if it's acceptable to Ford, then we should be able to live with it." Murphy said. adding he hoped negotiations could be completed without a strike.

Murder trial delayed; new jury to be chosen

PHOENIX, Ariz, (AP) - In an unexplained twist, the trial of the man accused of killing reporter Don Bolles was delayed Monday and some 100 prospective jurors who had been searched and screened were dismissed from the case.

Bolles was killed when his car exploded in the midst of his investigative work for a story on land fraud in Arizona.

Nearly two hours later than scheduled, Superior Court Judge Frederick Heineman convened court briefly and told the prospective jurors: "Ladies and gentlemen, we've had a misunderstanding and the trial will not proceed now."

He told the assembled prospects that they would be called for jury service in another case.

Outside the court, Heineman refused to explain his action, but said jury selection in the trial of Bolles's accused murderer, John H. Adamson, would get underway later in the day with a different panel.

Adamson, 32, is accused of luring Bolles to the Claredon Hotel here June 2 with a promise of information linking leading Arizona politicians to a land fraud scheme.

When Bolles got to the hotel, he received a phone call saying his informant would not show up. Bolles then left and as he backed his car from the hotel parking lot, a blast ripped upward through the floor boards, throwing him from the vehicle and shattering both legs and injuring an arm.

As bystanders rushed to help, he gasped out the words, "Emprise, Mafia . . . find Adamson."

Emprise Corp., now Ramcorp Metals, is a sports concessionaire based in Buffalo, N.Y. The company owns half interest with the Funk brothers of Phoenix in Arizona's six greyhound racing tracks.

Adamson is a breeder of greybounds. He was arrested June 13, the day the 47-year-old

Fee Hall housing option may soon be phased out

A unique alternative to on-campus dormitory living may be phased out in a few years to make room for the growing medical

There are presently 88 apartments in the east wing of West Fee Hall. These apartments were built in Fee Hall in 1969 to provide single students with on campus apartment living, Lyle Thorburn, asst. vice president of housing and food services, said.

More than three-fourths of Fee Hall is used by the colleges of human medicine, osteopathic medicine and veterinary medicine, James Peters, director of space utilization, said.

The long-range plan," he said, "is to remodel the building so that the med schools have all of Fee. I would estimate that it would occur in about three years, depending on state funding for the med schools, the needs of the three colleges of medicine and the need

"The idea of having apartments under one roof, sharing the elevators, lobbies and main desk is very important," she said.

"Sharing and communication exist here, whereas off campus, you get the feeling you're living in separate boxes.'

"We have the best of both possible worlds at Fee," Rob Evans, RHA representative from Fee Hall, said. "The unique lifestyle available in apartment living is here, and the social life of a dorm is also here. There is a feeling that we exist as a whole community.

The makeup of the staff at Fee Hall is also unique. Riddle has two undergraduate advisers to assist her; there are no RAs, and no full time management staff, as in the residence halls.

"I feel very comfortable with the staff," Carlton Taylor, a resident of Fee Hall for two years, said. "It's people dealing with people. Not looking up or down, like in other dorms, but looking

Wednesday is the deadline for residents to find students to rent the apartments with them, he said. After that day, they will be charged the full rent for the apartments, even if they remain underassigned.

Anyone interested in moving into the hall should call the Fee Hall adviser's office. The only paper work involved is a dormitory transfer card.

"Rents in Fee are probably the most reasonable in the area," John Beck, administrative assistant, said. "We also hope to start a food co-op. That should help to further reduce living costs.

Problems do exist in Fee Hall because of the sharing of the building by the residents and the medical schools.

Rhonda Fields was eating lunch one day shortly after she had moved into Fee Hall when she noticed a hearse pull into the loading dock. "When I saw them unloading cadavers," she said, "I lost my appetite rather quickly." Another time, a cadaver was delivered to the reception desk for the apartments instead of to the medical office, Beck said. The medical personnel, too, have their problems with the building arrangement.

By abolishing one of the first potential signs of opportunity for peacemaking between the United States and Cuba, Prime Minister Fidel Castro's lifting of the 1973 anti-hijacking pact last week leaves us wondering just how interested in peace he really is.

Cuban actions toward U.S. interests in Angola and in the past week have done nothing toward improving what at one time looked like an emerging situation of optimism.

Castro claims a double agent can prove that the CIA is still attempting and plotting his assassination. The claim was denied by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. The CIA has, according to the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, attempted to assassinate Castro eight times in the '60s.

The anti-hijacking agreement, seemed like a major step in providing international cooperation to deter the continuance of hijacking and terrorism on commercial air flights.

The Cuban prime minister's reasoning is that if the United States cannot handle CIA backed anti-Castro Cubans, who he claimed planted the bomb which caused the crash of a Cuban airliner near Barbados on Oct. 6, then his government should not be held responsible for the hijacking of American airliners.

This kind of logic provides for nothing in the way of solving either Castro's problem with the CIA or with detering the fear experienced by a hijacker in mid-flight.

Castro at some point fails to see that the CIA activities in this country are undergoing a harsh scrutiny by the American people, the very victims of his recent

There is nothing appealing about Fidel Castro's lack of responsibility in what was the beginning of a renewal of cooperation between Havana and Washington. Apparently we are forced to start all over again. Unfortunately, maybe a few more deaths and threats of terror will do the convincing.

Closer look needed

After a beautiful promotional campaign in front of the East Lansing City Council by the Dayton-Hudson Corp., the council can, with its rezoning powers, bring to the northwest corner of our fair town a new bilevel shopping center.

Dayton-Hudson properties division has been "researching" the Lansing area and after buying the land over the last 10 years, has quite predictably concluded that East Lansing is "undermer-chandised" and needs more goodies for folks to buy

According to the study we have too many discount stores, but are in dire need of full-line stores like Hudson's. Local campus shops supposedly will not suffer from the competition and Frandor is, by Hudson's estimates, only going to lose about 12 per cent in sales until things quickly bounce back.

The stores should increase employment, bring added "pull" to the community and, best of all, increase city and school revenues to a combined $202,000 somewhat tempting sum.

Obviously Hudson's figures come to the conclusion the company originally hoped for. The council will have to do some of its own research before making conclusions on city development.

If the land is not used for shopping it will probably be used for single-dwelling residential development.

We urge a close study by the council of Hudson's figures and facts before making a decision on zoning.

ISITUERS To the Editor

Never too late

Why? That is, why did ASMSU president Michael Lenz and our student board act so belatedly on an issue so very significant to MSU students, that of rising tuition costs? It's now apparent that ASMSU had either been previously misinformed or simply deemed the issue of no immediate consequence. Lenz reversed his prior stand of opposition to one of support for the SALT organization by supporting a rally march to e Capitol to protest high tuition costs on the eve of the proposed boycott of classes recommended by SALT.

Why so indecisive? Why did nine of 14 board members fail to support any sort of action on the students' behalf? If Lenz and ASMSU didn't like the looks of the boycott and rally originally organized by SALT, then why didn't the board take the initiative to coordinate a program of their own, for the students of MSU? There was no action taken by our student representatives to in fact represent us. In my opinion nine members of the board have missed the import nce and ramifications of rising tuition costs to all students statewide, not just MSU students. The boycott had the support of all the major colleges and universities in Michigan except for MSU.

The problem of rising tuition costs in Michigan is not new. The state of Michigan has for some time been operating with limited funds which have resulted in cuts in aid to education, hence raising tuition. But why does Michigan suffer budget problems? First of all, during times of high unemployment in Michigan, certain amounts of revenue can't be collected by the state through taxation because unemployed people aren't earning an income which can be taxed. At the same time many of those unemployed are receiving unemployment benefits from the state (payment for which there is no return in productive service for he economy). When revenue is lost, state aide to certain programs must be cut. Secondly, in the past when the state legislature has felt the pressure on the budget and existing programs, it has resorted to an extension of the fiscal year. The result is to appropriate funds for the present budget from next year's budget. It may solve this year's hardships, but it only pushes the problem ahead to the next year's budget, since now it will suffer from limited funds. Michigan's present fiscal instability is marked by the recent loss of the state's previous top notch (AAA) rating on its bonds. Thirdly, the state runs into budgeting problems such as those expected for this year. Those include a predicted $40 million loss in revenue to the state as a result of the new single business tax. The auto strike is expected to cost the state $10 million a week in lost revenue. One of these situations is directly related to irresponsible legislation. It was predicted by many that the single business tax would force a loss in revenue but the tax became

Cutting aid to education is of particular interest when one considers the fact that tuition increases can cover the loss of any state aid. Other programs aren't able to make up that money by themselves. The ease with which lost state aid can be made up through tuition hikes makes the legislature's decision much easier. Easy decisions only prolong the problem until another year. By applying student pressure upon the legislature of this state in areas such as tuition hikes, we can force them to take a harder look at a difficult problem, one which they have treated so lightly. Apparently ASMSU feels we have no basis for protest. I feel inefficiencies in state budgeting combined with basic yearly economic problems and cop-out attitudes by the legislature, which has led to our tuition rising, is cause for protest.

It's disconcerting to discover that ASMSU is either misinformed on the issue or is so unresponsive to the students' interests, that no action was taken on the students' behalf until the day of the rally at the Capitol. The impact of such a protest by MSU students had been lost by then, because our own student government had failed to inform us and act on our behalf. This issue of rising tuition costs has many far-reaching implications concerning this state's economic position. It is not a matter of secondary importance. All students have a stake in the outcome. There just doesn't appear to be any relationship between student representation on the board and student interests in this case.

At the rally, Lenz said next time around MSU will be ready. Maybe next time we will be ready, but where was student representation this time around?

Mark B. Perry 1050 Water's Edge Drive

ASMSU to blame

We were extremely disappointed with MSU's showing at last Wednesday's rally to protest rising tuition, though many other schools across the state demonstrated enthusiastic support. We are not willing to blame student apathy for the poor showing, nor are we willing to depend upon Wayne State's 200 students to trump up our own members (as Michael Lenz said in the newspaper Oct. 14). The blame should be focused elsewhere.

It amazes us that the ASMSU considers its own petty squabbling enough to delay action on an issue that concerns every student in this state. It is equally amazing that they would change their opinion at the last minute and expect the student body to rally behind them. We are certain that if the students from the other state universities had known of this situation, they would have jeered along with us when Michael Lenz stepped up to the podium to spit up his hypocrisies.

Despite the State News' gallant editoria of Oct. 12, they cannot be considered faultless. One year ago, the State News printed an article mentioning that a demonstration was being planned and then ignored these plans until one day prior to the rally. Even then they failed to print the time at which it would be held and how to participate. They assumed that it would be sufficient to let students read a front page article urging them to boycott the very class that they were sitting in as they read their papers. Surely the student body, and especially the commuter students, deserved the consideration of a more complete

It was disparaging enough to find our limousine liberals to spout their campaign rhetoric, but we particularly resent the tactic of taking advantage of student solidarity in order to gain support for higher taxes. We fail to see the merit of paying more for our education on April 15, opposed to paying more at registration. Can these politicians assure us that every item in the state budget is legitimate? Or that there is no waste in the allotment of our tax dollars? And that maintaining high taxes (or raising them still higher) will change the state's lowered priority for higher education?

On Tuesday, ASMSU will consider the allocation of $800 of our money, a figure which "private estimates indicate could mount to the thousands" (SN, Oct. 14), into an anti-Proposal C campaign. To the best of our knowledge, it has not been determined that this cause will, at all, help the students. Neither has it been established that the student body is willing to donate so much of their money to this campaign.
It is time once again to raise the annual questions: Who does ASMSU represent? Who does our "student newspaper" represent? Finally, who does Michael Lenz represent? MSU's student body is not apathetic, they are either being misinformed, or not being informed at all. Marjorie Halperin and Alan Robinson Editors's note: The State News printed two editorials urging students to participate in the rally, Oct. 11 and Oct. 13. Also, there were articles about the rally in the newspaper Sept. 29, Oct. 7, Oct. 8 and Oct.

F Lot safety

At this time F Lot (South Complex parking) is under construction for a walkway over the railroad tracks. The project began in June and is now only halfway completed. Final completion is awaiting an OK from the railroad, but until that OK, students are prohibited from crossing the tracks, which forces them to walk to their dormitories via Harrison Road. Students risk a heavy fine if they cross the tracks. On Monday night, Oct. 11, we were returning home at 1:15 a.m. Upon our student rally used as an opportunity for Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, and other be found were down near the physical plant. Being apprehensive of walking, we pro ceeded to locate a DPS officer with the understanding that MSU DPS officers would provide protection for any students to and from F Lot. Within seconds we motioned a DPS Officer, thinking that he would provide protection. The officer in car number eight offered us the solution of either parking in F Lot and he would listen for our screams or we could park in front of the dormitory, risking a ticket if we did not move the car by 7 a.m.

Being timid, we risked a chance of a ticket. Either Michigan State University should provide safety to and from F Lot or construct closer parking.

Last week, in the Michigan U.S. Sen race, the campaign rhetoric reached an low. I am, of course, making reference former Gov. Romney's comments regard candidate Don Riegle.

While campaigning for Marvin Es Romney accused Riegle of being "conceit confused and being a Congressional pridonna." I've heard about any kind campaign rhetoric there is to hear - so remarks didn't shock me. But Rom didn't stop there, he then proceeded to Riegle "unstable" and he used Riegle's p

"Fair rent" for area not better

By THE COMMITTEE FOR RENT CONTROL

We strongly object to the article Karla Vallance presented to State News readers last Friday on the topic of rent control. We respect her right as a concerned individual and a journalist to disagree with our opinion of the merits of the proposed charter amendment. However, we find her descrip-tion of that proposal factually incorrect and her reasoning for preferring a "fair rent commission" untenable at best.

Let's review her article point by point:

•Vallance erroneously states that our proposal sets rigid limits for each category of housing, in contrast to a "fair rent commission" which handles cases on an individual basis. In sections 21.5 and 21.6 of our proposal it states that initial maximum rent and subsequent rent adjustments are to be made on a "case by case" basis rather than a "class by class" basis

 Vallance approves of how violations are prosecuted in the Connecticut system but neglects to mention that our proposal (Sec. 21.8) has a similar procedure with even "sharper teeth."

•Vallance objects to the stipulation that individuals who earn over $15,000 not receive compensation for their work as board members. Our reasoning is that anyone earning more than that cannot have the time to implement our program. To suggest volunteers, while interesting, is unrealistic considering a maximum time commitment of 30 hours a week.

 Vallance suggests that the 1980 termination date was "tacked on" because we believe that rent control is not an ideal solution. However, a termination date is necessary to legally defend rent control, based on court decisions in California. Moreover, we firmly believe that any municipal program should be accountable to the electorate on a regular basis. The voters will decide in 1980 whether to extend the rent control program.

•Vallance suggests that our proposal is excessively costly. Our cost estimates are based on actual figures from ongoing programs in Massachusetts. The benefits should easily exceed the modest cost of $4 per year per tenant, to be paid by each

It is gratifying to have constructive criticism when putting together a proposal such as rent control. However, to suggest an alternative concept two weeks before an election must be considered rather suspect. Where was Karla Vallance when we scheduled six public workshops winter term for the express purpose of redrafting the note of all community criticism brought to our attention. At that time we also reviewed the experience of current rent control programs in other states such as Alaska, Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and New York. The reult, in our opinion, represents a fair balance between the tenants' right for reasonable rent and living conditions and the landlord's right to a just and equitable return on his investment. Let's consider the resent rent control proposal on the basis of what it does specify and what we know about local market conditions. On that basis we think rent control deserves a fair trial in East Lansing. We urge all voters to endorse the Rent Control Charter Amendment this November.

Aubrey Matron, Bernard Schaefer and Jess Sobel are representative of the Committee for Rent Control.

Republican incumbent John Whitmyer is facing some strong competition from Democratic opponent Lingg Brewer in the battle for the position of Ingham County Clerk.

A third candidate running under the Human Rights Party (HRP) ticket, David Rathke, has not been actively campaigning for county clerk due to lack of funds, but has been trying to reach the people through the

The position, up for re-election this November, has been held by Whitmyer since 1972. Previously, Whitmyer held the post of Meridian Township Clerk.

"The experience I had as township clerk gave me insight into the county clerk job." he said. "I think my record of achievement shows I have earned serious consideration on the part of every voter for their support of my candidacy.'

The duties of the county clerk include the filing and recording of births, deaths, marriages, divorces, passports and naturalization. In addition, the clerk handles campaign expenditure files, bond money tax redemptions and works closely with the board of commissioners. The yearly salary for the county clerk is $20,249.

Some of the changes Whitmyer has installed during his time in office include electrically powered shelves and a color-coded filing system to help speed up the immense amount of filing that is done daily in the office. Whitmyer estimates the time saved has cut filing time by 25 per cent

LEADS IMPROVING DEFENSE

Foes stifled over 'Land'

By TOM SHANAHAN

State News Sports Writer If MSU tackle Melvin Land had been able to run during the that he was switched from past two years he might have been playing for the Spartans a ng time ago. "Melvin is off at the snap of the ball and is able to get to the runner because he was blessed with the ability to run," MSU coach Darryl Rogers said, citing Land's quickness and

Rogers also said that Land and linebacker Dan Bass are the most improved defensive players on the team. Rogers pointed out that Land was far behind everybody else because of an operation in January that kept him out of spring practice and an NCAA suspension that forced him to sit out the OSU

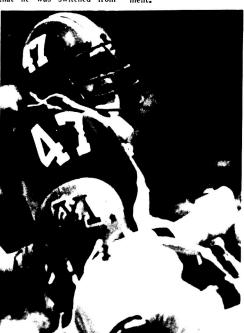

The operation Land had was the second one on his ankle to remove bone spurs. Because of the ankle trouble in his freshman and sophomore years, Land was not able to run much and his playing time was thus

But for the summer before this season Land's ankle healed and he worked hard

"I worked hard and ran hard this summer," Land said. "I got a lot stronger and gained weight." The junior whose teammates call him weight up to 232 pounds on his 6-foot-3 frame.

Another change for Land is middle guard to strong tackle this year. But he says there has been much of an adjustment.

Tackle Mel Land missed this tackle against Minnesota Saturday, but was involved in enough to be named Spartan Defensive Player of the Week.

"It's just another position When I played middle guard I had two or three people across from me and at tackle it's just one-on-one," he cited as the only difference. Playing strong tackle, Land has most of the running plays run at him and he is fifth on the team in total tackles with 46. But he leads the team in tackles for a loss with six.

But he also says that playing alongside tackle Larry Bethea also send a lot of plays his way. He also pointed out that though he is the strong tackle he says someone like Bethea is just as strong as himself despite his being called the quick tackle.

Land believes the defense is getting better each week and needs now to eliminate the slow first quarter start when the team has been prone to give up early touchdowns.

"I feel that before there was a new system and now as the season goes along people have played together and are startng to gel," he said. Land said before the disappointing loss to Minnesota that MSU would win its last six games. But he still feels confident in the improvement of team and its defense that was criticized carlier in the season.

"I'm still saying we're going to win five straight now,"

Heathcote initiates MSU cagers with vow to emphasize fast break

By GEOFF ETNYRE State News Sports Writer

Friday the curtain rose for Act III, Scene II in the continuing

"MSU Athletic Department Plays Musical Chairs." Head basketball coach Jud Heathcote followed the opening acts of athletic director Joe Kearny and head football coach Darryl Rogers, when basketball practice began for the 1976-77 season. The naming of Heathcote in April put a bureaucratic end to the most turbulent period in MSU athletic history as athletic director Burt Smith, football coach Denny Stolz and Gus Ganakas, who Heathcote succeeds were all replaced in a matter of months.

Heathcote missed out on the prime recruiting season since he was not named coach until most of the high school players had already made their college choices, but there is nothing he can do

"Now that the kids are here we've got to be positive," Heathcote

Heathcote, who brings an 80-63 college coaching record from the Unitersity of Montana, has been vowing an emphasis on the fast break since he arrived last spring and will be depending heavily on returning starters Greg Kelser, Edgar Wilson and Bob Chapman

Kelser, at 6 feet 7 inches, played forward and center last year and finished second in Big Ten rebounding. Chapman was second leading team scorer with a 14.7 average and Wilson's versatile play helped the team at guard and forward.

Help should come at center and forward from junior college transfers Les DeYoung and Jim Coutre, sophomore Tanya Web and freshman Ron Charles.

and freshman Terry Donnelly, junior college transfer Nate Phillips and sophomore Milton Wiley should vie for the other guard spot

Other returnees include Dan Riewald, Ricky Nash, Paul Stall and Kevin Vandenbussche. and Kevin vandenoussche. Don Munson, a leadingWashingtonstate high school coach, join lone holdover Vern Payne as Heathcote's assistant. Eric Hayes and graduate assistant Benny White will handle the junior varity. Perhaps an even bigger change than the coaching staff and basketball perspective will be the absence of Terry Furlow, the leading Big Ten scorer for the past two seasons. Furlow is looking for professional fame as a first-round draft choice of the Philadelphia Seventy-Sixers and Heathcote admits he will he

"Any time you have to replace 30 points per game from one individual, that's very hard to do," Heathcote said. "Everyone on the team is going to have to contribute."

The season officially opens Nov. 29 with a game at Central Michigan University. The Spartans first home game is Dec. 4 against Western Michigan University.

Also in the month of December MSU fans will get a chance to see Atlantic Coast Conference powers University of North Carolina and North Carolina State University when they visit East

Women's golf team ends fall season; tennis squad takes two in Pittsburgh

By KATHY CHOWN State News Staff Writer

According to women's golf coach Mary Fossum, MSU played "sloppy golf" last weekend, costing the team a first-place finish at the Indiana Invitation-

MSU finished in fourth place in the 20-team field, only seven strokes behind winner University of Kentucky, which had a two-day total of 844. Purdue followed with 847, home team Indiana scored 848 and the Spartans finished with 851.

It was MSU's last meet this fall, and Fossum said that the team was down after winning the Mid-West regional championships the week before. She was pleased with the overall season performance, however, as the team won four invitational meets. The women's cross country team had a brighter weekend, as coach Mark Pittman split his team in two, sending one factional in Midland and the other to the Saluki Invitational in Carbondale, Ind.

MSU was second in the Saluki meet, behind defending national champion Iowa State. Iowa totaled 9 points, MSU had 38 and Tennessee State was a distant third with 121 points in the field of 14 teams.

MSU's Cynthia Wadsworth captured fourth place with a time of 18:01 on what was labeled by Pittman as, "A washboard course - very tough and very hilly." Kave Richards was next for

MSU, taking fifth with an 18:15 time. Lil Warnes finished eighth with an 18:26 time and Diane Culp was ninth with an 18:37. The team that went to Midland won that AAU meet with

GIVE US18 WEEKS

Before you begin to question what you're going to do with your college education, consider what you can do with it as an officer in the Coast Guard.

After just 18 weeks of specialized training, you'll take a management position with real responsibility. It could be at one of our Port Safety or Marine Inspection units. Or helping operate a recreational boating safety program. You'll be on the job with the nation's foremost maritime law enforcement agency. Protecting man from the sea and the sea from man.

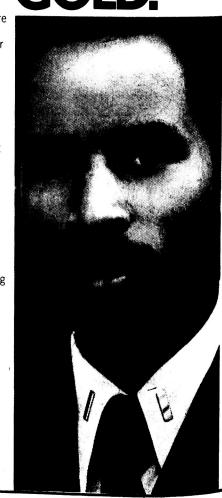

The Coast Guard's known for saving lives and property. Today our role is expanding as we protect coastal sea; life resources from depletion by fishing fleets and intercept major narcotics smugglers off our shores. A Coast Guard job is a big responsibility.

The rewards are excellent, too. A starting salary of over $10,000 a year, post-graduate training opportunities and excellent retirement benefits after only 20 years if you decide to stay with us, plus all the other benefits of military service. Of course, the personal satisfaction of a job well done is its own reward

Minnelli's 'A Matter of Time' narred by choppiness in flow

By BYRON BAKER State News Editor

Matter of Time" is Vincente Minnelli's slow and elegant nee in the old fashion: a slight, almost insubstantial tale made of affecting and important by the director's taste and sense of film is deeply flawed. Apparently extensively tampered and reedited (many scenes alluded to in the distributor's materials seem to have simply been omitted, and Minnelli portedly disowned the version in release), the narrative is y and episodic. A scene may be built with slow, careful by and cutting only to end abruptly. An interpolated logue montage of Rome is laden with wild, indiscriminate use gue montage of recinic is stated with the gauzy visual fluidity which Minnelli and his cameraman Geoffrey Unsworth have d the majority of the film.

a Minnelli (the director's daughter by his marriage to the late Garland) portrays Nina, a young, naive girl who come to to work as a chambermaid at a once distinguished, now hotel in 1949. There she meets the aged Contessa Sanziani d by Ingrid Bergman) living alone in a modest room. Once ontessa was a legendary beauty, hailed all over Europe, d by the world's richest and most powerful men.

Contessa, weary and lonely, recalls her glittering, elegant the girl, and Nina is enthralled by her descriptions. She vicariously lives the noblewoman's recollections and sees herself in stunning garb at fabulous places with men, and the world, at her feet. Through her fantasies and the Contessa's encouragement, Nina comes to realize that her future is only as limited as she wishes. That, if she strives to be herself, original in her own way,

John Gay's script (adapted from Maurice Druon's novel "A Film of Memory") is creaky and melodramatic and sometimes painfully trite. Minnelli has treated it mostly as a basis from which to weave a hopeful and delicate reflection (sometimes of almost fairy tale-like consistency) upon youth and age and being open to becoming extraordinary and original.

He has also aspired to design a film of elaborate visual beauty. The precisely lighted and dressed interiors and gently fluid camera movement through a lush, almost tangible period atmosphere are reminiscent of some of the often magnificent artifices crafted by Minnelli and the studio technicians during his

The film is designed completely. When the curious travelogue footage is inserted, it is a jarring, upsetting interruption clearly outside of the quiet, elegance of the visual scheme.

The omission and rearrangement of footage also seems to damage Liza Minnelli's performance. In "A Matter of Time" she is less mannered and more genuine than she has been in previous films, but crucial scenes of character transitions appear to have been lost. She is believable as Nina, but she sort of makes the audience take her word for it, as certain actions and extenuating circumstances are not shown, but described after the fact.

Ingrid Bergman is not so convincing as the Contessa. She grapples uncertainly with an indifferently written character — the scenarist is clearly undecided as to precisely how senile or how lucid she is. Bergman plays it both ways, with varying success. Katharine Hepburn was at one time proposed for the role, and the part seems to require the decisive sensibility which she often

Charles Boyer is fine in a walk-on as the Contessa's wealthy ex-husband. Bits by Fernando Rey, Gabriele Ferzetti and Tina Aumont are adequate, but their performances are unnecessarily marred by inept post-production dubbing. The tinny, relentless background score by Nino Olivero is weak, as are two new songs by John Kander and Fred Ebb.

The film was produced and largely financed by American International Pictures, and it is certainly the most elaborate of that exploitation-oriented studio's dabbling in culture. Minnelli's reported treatment from its organization may seem oddly appropriate considering AIP's former reputation as a supplier of sleazy monster, beach, motorcycle and other genre pictures for teen-age perusal at drive ins. The deliberate emasculation of an artist's work for any reason is irresponsible and reprehensible. "A Matter of Time" is now at the Lansing Mall Theatre.

MONDAY SPECIAL

SPECIAL LIMITED TIME OFFER.
MAIL OR BRING IN COUPON TODAY.

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS

Every MONDAY for a limited period of time, the State News Classified Department will publish the DIME-A-WORD special want-ads. Ads will be unclassified and run at the end of the Classified Section. You're apt to find an ad offering a car for sale between tickets wanted for a football game and a boa constrictor that someone wants to sell. You'll have to read 'em all to find out where you can fill your needs, but it'll be fun anyway.

PLEASE FOLLOW THESE INSTRUCTIONS

1. PRINT your ad, 1 word per box. Use as many words as you like but not less than 12 word. No business firms a less than 12 words.

like, but not less than 12 words. No business firms, please.

2. Clip out and mail or bring coupon into our office. Coupon must be in no later than 5 p.m. Thursday for our DIME-A-WORD Monday special. If received after deadline, ad will be scheduled for the following Monday.

3. Payment must accompany coupon. No phone orders will be accepted.

Graham preaches on subject of lust

By MICKI MAYNARD State News Staff Writer

"God doesn't promise any tomorrow. There's no guarantee you'll get home safely tonight. But you can be born again!

The Rev. Billy Graham brought his crusade to Pontiac Stadium Friday night for an eight-day stay, hoping, in his words, "to bring people to Over 24,000 turned out for the opening service, which combined stern preaching, organ music and a 4,000-member choir to bring across Graham's points. Surrounded by massive plastic fern trees and shiny artificial mums, the famous preacher surveyed the Michigan crowd and addressed the popular political subject of lust. "Lust is an overpowering desire," Graham intoned. "But temptation is not sin. Everyone has been tempted. I've been tempted on all points.' But lust is a sin. And you must repent. Say 'no' to lust!"

The Graham crusade is as much a theater attraction as a religious experience. The famous spiritual counselor to presidents travels with a troupe that includes musicians and evangelists. Graham likes to have notable Christians join him to testify to their faith. Friday night's guest was Lt. Gov. James Damman, who left before the program was over.

After a warmup period of songs including "Blessed Assurance" and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" several prayers and speeches precede the Rev. Graham's appearance

One of these was a subtle pitch for believers to make an "offering" which they are told is tax deductible. Prayers are offered for those who are too poor to give, hoping that they, too, will share in the wealth of heaven.

The people surrounding Graham seem to share his soft Southern accent and politeness. Leisure and three-piece suits are the standard apparel for men, and women are clad in dresses. Blue jeans are a rarity.

Graham's appearance on the stage on the 50-yard line is augmented with spotlights. A huge TV screen overhead, usually used for rock concerts, magnifies the evangelist's sermon. Graham is a table pounder and likes to gesture, specially with a time-worn Bible. As the sermon reaches its climax, Graham asks the familiar question, "What are you going to do tonight?"

"Get up and reveal the secret in your heart," he urges the crowd. Thousands get up and stream to the artificial turf. Graham surveys the crowd, occasionally glaring at journalists who join the converts.

Tears streamed down the face of one girl as she looks up toward the air inflated ceiling. A small boy in a Lions' jacket traced the centerfield lion, more intent on his gum than on Graham.

Graham tells the crowd to read their Bibles, pray to the Lord, spread the news of Christ and get into a church. He also asks them to return to all the remaining services, the goal being to fill the 80,000-seat stadium with believers.

As soon as another evangelist takes over, Graham vanishes into a waiting limousine, leaving the crowd in the midst of a religious

Reassignment process affects education faculty

By SUZIE ROLLINS State News Staff Writer

Assuming new duties, mov ing to new offices and meeting more people comprise the multiple activities of being re assigned to a new job.

Several faculty members of MSU's Education Dept. are presently facing that task.

"Most faculty who usually ask for changes want a position of greater responsibility," Keith Goldhammer, dean of the College of Education, said. "The changes on the dean's staff are a result of a decision with the Dean's Council and the Dean's Appropriations for the added staff on the research project came from a new multimillion dollar grant given to the University by the National Institute of Education.

Another major reassignment in the Education Dept. affected Donald Nickerson, previous coordinator of graduate student affairs. Nickerson is now in charge of both undergraduate and graduate student affairs.

graduate affairs for three vears. Even though his new position requires more work, Nickerson said he is happy with the meshing of the two offices. "With the economy's status the way it is, and since the meshing allows for a reduction of administrators. I think it's a good move," he said.

Nickerson added that because many students leave one area of educational study as undergraduates to pursue another during graduate school, the combination of the two offices is beneficial to them.

This is the first time in four years that the College of Education has undergone major job reassignments, Dean Gold hammer said. Due to the decline in the college's enrollment and its limited budget, the department has been forced to close several administrative positions during the past year

The triangle, an area bounded by Norfolk, Va., Puerto Rico and Bermuda, has for years been a subject of mystery and speculation in tales of ships and planes vanish ing during calm weather and of ghost ships drifting, the fate of their crews unknown.

The official government position has been to discount any theories of malevolent powers at work in the waters.

"We don't recognize any geographic area off the southeast coast of the United States that is popularly referred to as the Bermuda Triangle, or the Devil's Triangle," a Coast Guard spokesperson said.

"The United States Coast Guard is not impressed with he supernatural explanations of the disasters at sea. It is our experience that the combined forces of nature and the unpredictability of mankind outdo science fiction stories many times each year.

Officials have also attrib the triangle's reputation a swallower of shipping to fact that, because of location, the region is one of heaviest traveled areas in world.
